Bryne tax proposal would increase state take by 37%, Rinaldo states

Representative Marlow J. Rinaldo (R-12th district of New Jersey, called for a referendum on the tax proposal by the administration of Governor Brendan T. Byrne.

Saying adoption of such a tax would be a "major step" toward the state's goal of raising $1 billion for education, Rinaldo said.

"An income tax would be a major step toward the state's goal of raising $1 billion for education," Rinaldo said.

Bond proposals depict need for fiscal order

Last month the New Jersey Legislature approved a record $2.8 billion state budget for the coming 1974-75 fiscal year, more than doubled from the anticipated surplus in the 1973-74 budget.

The state's increasing reliance on bond issues to finance capital projects can be illustrated by a decreasing capital portion of state budgets and the simultaneous increase in bond issues.
