Board kills Searles' post; doctor Ellman reappointed

The three new Rahway board of education members, swept into office on a wave of public unrest over school budget increases, combined with other spending-conscious board members to eliminate the newly-filled position of director of personnel.

Robert A. Searles of Millburn was appointed to fill the post in a 6-3 vote on February 17. Voting against him were William M. Roesch, Edmund L. Hoener and Mrs. Charles (Miriam) Hull.

At the March 17 board meeting the trio joined newcomers Barry D. Henderson, Paul M. Geyer and Paul A. LoRocco in eliminating the post. Doctor John J. Sprowls, who originally supported filling the post, switched sides making it a 7-2 vote.

voting to retain the post were reverend Orrin T. Hardgrove and Donald L. Kennedy. Doctor Sprowls explained voter reaction to the school budget and the resulting anticipated cuts caused him to change his vote.

In voting to abolish the position Mr. Geyer noted he said on February 17 the post should not be filled since there was the possibility three lame-duck board members would be casting ballots.

At that time he urged board members to postpone the vote until after the March 11 school board vote to avoid "hardship" to Mr. Searles or to others.

The vote capped a series of board actions throughout which the new board members slowly gained strength for their positions.

In the opening election for president Messers. Henderson, Geyer and LoRocco supported Mr. LoRocco but reverend Hardgrove won the post with the votes of the other six members.

Mr. Hoener was unanimously elected vice president.

The meeting then proceeded relatively calmly until a pair of resolutions were reached concerning the reappointment of doctor Neil Ellman as supervisor of curriculum and instruction.

A resolution placed on the agenda at the request of a minority of board members sought to abolish the position, one of three similar posts in the school system. A following resolution placed on the agenda with a majority support called for doctor Ellman's reappointment.

A half dozen members of the audience, including former school superintendent Austin I. Singer and president of the Rahway Taxpayers Association Alonzo W. Lawrence, rose to speak on behalf of abolition.

They obviously had the support of the audience, which occupied at least a third of Roosevelt School auditorium, which applauded widely after each expression of outrage.

Mr. Singer, who noted the proposed school budget was the first he voted against, attacked board members for allowing the number of administrators to increase while the number of students decreased.

Doctor Ellman, who was finally reappointed by a 5-4 vote, receives a salary of $21,013. The other curriculum supervisor is Alexander Busse who receives a salary of $19,913.

Mrs. Frank (Adele) Magnolia, who is principal of Madison School, will remain in a supervisory post on July 1 at an undisclosed salary. The cost of maintaining the three supervisors was the main target of attack from both board and audience members.

Voting to abolish doctor Ellman's post and later voting against his reappointment were Messers. Geyer, Henderson, LoRocco and Roesch.

Mrs. Hull explained the supervisor of curriculum post was the only area of the administrative reorganization she truly

Mayor splits $2.28 million in funds among 18 projects

An estimated $2.28 million in federal money to be received by Rahway under the community development act of last year will be put to use in 18 different areas of community need over the next five years, according to an application approved by mayor Daniel L. Martin.

The mayor, who by federal regulation is accorded sole decision-making authority on the use of the funds, said the money is being used to "assist in making Rahway a model progressive community."

The city is one of 60 municipalities in New Jersey to be allotted the funds.

Mayor Martin explained the closeout of urban renewal projects is the first requirement to be met. The Rahway Redevelopment Agency has three projects in progress, the South Branch flood control project, the Lower Main Street housing development and the East Hazelwood Avenue industrial park.

The agency will be put out of business by the middle of next year, the mayor explained.

Funding of the new controversial fire headquarters on Main Street will receive priority consideration in the program, Mayor Martin stated. He said any community development funds applied to the project would free funds currently allocated for the firehouse for use on the new city hall and police headquarters.

Rahway was said to have an estimated 49,000 feet of combined storm and sanitary sewers which have an adverse effect on flooding and sewerage treatment costs for the city.

Separation of such sewer lines was a target set by the mayor through utilization of the federal funds. Mayor Martin says he is also aiming for several storm drainage improvements throughout the city to alleviate flooding.

Federal regulations require the disadvantaged benefit from the awarded funds and as a result senior citizens, the handicapped, those of low income and consumers were said to figure prominently in the mayor's application.

A security system is planned for the senior citizens' housing complex on Grand Avenue. Housing rehabilitation assistance and a transportation system, including a mini-bus operation, would be geared to the elderly, the hand-capped and low-income people.

These groups may also benefit from the establishment of consumers operations including a food buyers' cooperative which will be studied under the community development program.

A service assistance program to advise city residents on how to cope with business and financial problems will be formally studied in conjunction with a study to identify all forms of federal, state and county services which could be made available to city residents.

Expansion of library services, including the establishment of a small library branch or a bookmobile, will be the subject of another study with an eye towards improving service to the elderly, handicapped, and those of low income, the mayor said.

A program of identification and removal of architectural barriers to the handicapped will also be undertaken.

Mayor Martin said he is also giving direction to improvement of Rahway's physical appearance as part of the community development program. Consequently extension of citywide code and concentrated neighborhood code enforcement will receive funding attention.

In addition the mayor

City budget to shrink by $300,000 plus

Cuts totaling more than $300,000 from the previously approved 1975 tax levy in the city budget were agreed upon by city councilmen and mayor Daniel L. Martin.

In a statement issued on behalf of council members and himself, mayor Martin called the proposed budget a "strict austerity budget."

"When the cost of living appropriations show virtually no increase, it is apparent good economy is being practiced," he said.

The mayor also had high praise for the councilmen claiming each one had contributed a money-saving idea to the list of budget cuts.

Proposed budget reductions were said to be library $5,233, traffic bureau $1,300, microfilming $20,000, public works salaries $40,560, health department expenses $10,000, police salaries $17,279, dog regulation $6,750, police expenses $24,815, mayor salaries $370, law salaries $650, comptroller expenses $650, tax collector expenses $500, conveyer expenses $550, public works expenses $30,000 and fire department expenses $5,000.

pected to make large cuts in the city school budget which would further reduce the governing body's budget by decreasing the reserve for uncollected taxes.

About half of these reductions, involving primarily the purchases of equipment, will be funded outside of this year's tax levy through bonds and revenue sharing, according to the mayor.

These include the $23,815 purchase of new police vehicles with revenue sharing funds and a bond ordinance with $30,000 in public works equipment and $5,000 in fire department equipment.

Proposals by the mayor and councilmen anticipating more revenue are sale of city property $5,000, industrial waste charges $6,000, reimbursement of physicians' fees $1,920, housing inspection grants $7,000, payment in lieu of taxes $14,000 and emergency employment act reimbursement $6,000.

The city officials also agreed to apply $100,000 of revenue sharing funds to the increase in the fee paid to the Rahway valley sewerage authority.

The city budget will be up for a vote on March 20 at 8 p.m. in council chambers at city hall on Campbell Street.

Operating expenses for the city would actually decrease in 1975 by 5% while total salaries would increase by 8%, according to a spokesman for the mayor.

The total amount for municipal purposes, including those two items, capital improvements, debt service and statutory expenses, would increase by $44,000 over last year's figure of $6,375,932 for an increase of less than 1%.

Despite the economy measures it was said an expected drop of 10% from the $3,029,308 in outside revenues received by the city last year will force an increase in the amount to be raised through taxes.

This would mean nine additional points to city property owners or a 3% increase in their total tax bills.

Councilmen are also expected to make large cuts in the city school budget which would further reduce the governing body's budget by decreasing the reserve for uncollected taxes.

City releases summary report on master plan; proposals aim to maintain residential community

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the concluding installment in a series of articles on reports issued by city officials in preparation for the establishment of a new master plan for Rahway.

The last of these reports summarized the recommendations made by the planning consultant firm of Robert A. Rosa Associates of Edison.

"Based on the projection of a stable population it is expected the present amount of single-family residential dwellings will be adequate to accommodate the future needs of Rahway," the report on the new master plan said.

However the researchers noted while the number of residents will most likely remain unchanged, the composition of the populace will alter, and there will most likely be increased percentages of elderly, newlyweds and poor people.

The consultants felt high- and medium-density dwellings should be erected to meet such needs. It was recommended the land owned by the Rahway redevelopment agency adjacent to the Rahway Plaza apartments on Main Street be used for a high-density development for the elderly.

It was further recommended the vacant land adjacent to the public housing on Capobianco Plaza be used for medium-density development in the form of garden apartments or townhouses to meet the needs of younger residents.

The report stressed the continuation of single-family residential neighborhoods for the city. To this end it was recommended the conversion of such dwellings into multi-family units be forbidden in low-density neighborhoods.

One serious change in residential areas would be the removal of residences affected by flooding in the Union and Allen Street areas and in the South Branch removal project area.

Additional commercial development would be restricted to land adjacent to Routes nos. 1 and 9 between Lawrence and Patterson Streets and Land in the Essex and Putnam Streets area.

Only three areas would be open to further industrial development. These would be in areas already geared to industrial use.

In terms of community facilities the researchers noted declining student enrollment would soon make possible the closure of Washington and Columbian Schools.

The report came out strongly in favor of the controversial Main Street firehouse and also supported the purchase of an aerial ladder truck and a 1,000-gallon pumper.

The researchers were also in favor of replacing city hall with a medium-density housing development and constructing a civic center at the corner of Main Street and East Milton Avenue.

It was recommended the new city hall include adequate space for health department and civil defense offices. It was also felt a new police headquarters should be part of the complex.

In response to the flooding problem it was recommended storm and sanitary sewers, combined in older sections of the city, be separated.

It was also said the cleaning and widening of stream beds, construction of culverts and other improvements in specified areas of local streams would aid in alleviating flooding problems.

The researchers said in their report, issued June 12, the city lacks adequate park space for passive recreation such as walking and reading and parkland was unevenly distributed depriving the central and eastern portion of the city.

Various recommendations were made to correct this including the use of city-owned land for parks, creation of a municipal recreation fund and installation of recreational facilities in existing parks.

In the area of transportation it was said development of areas outside the city would increase traffic through Rahway.

To handle this it was recommended Randolph Avenue be extended to Routes nos. 1 and 9, a proposed interchange at West Lake or West Inman Avenues and the Garden State Parkway be opposed and selective alternate side-of-the-street parking be instituted on Route no. 27, along with other modifications.

Also highly recommended by the researchers were the establishment of walkways, bikeways and a mini-bus network throughout the city.

To insure the success of the new master plan the consultants said the city should adopt a property maintenance code, review and update its subdivision ordinance and adopt a proposed zoning ordinance offered by the research team.

The work on a new master plan was financed in part through an urban planning grant.

"Old Photograph Contest" for senior citizens to be part of city "Realtor Week" celebration

To help celebrate "National Realtor Week" and to test the memory of local old-timers, the Rahway Board of Realtors, which represents about 25 members in Rahway and Clark, will sponsor an "Old Photograph Contest" for local senior citizens.

In cooperation with the board, The Rahway News-Record and The Clark Patriot will run two pictures in the issue of March 27, one each of an historic site in the city and township.

The object of the contest will be to submit the best entry describing in 100 words or less what the picture depicts, the approximate year it was taken, a description of the location and a short history of the structure presented plus whatever other interesting facts the contestant knows.

The contest will be open only to those city or township residents who are over 65 years of age and retired. No member or relative of a board member will be eligible to compete.

The controversy surrounding renovations to offices at Washington School for use as city board of education offices, a big issue in the recent school board race, surfaced again at the March 17 education board meeting.

Board members unanimously voted to authorize the board president and secretary to submit a change order, the total cost of which is not to exceed $385, for the proposed office partitions project at the school.

It was explained the order is to allow construction of a booth to enclose the new telephone switchboard approved by board members at their December 16 meeting and thus $50-for-his-labor.

Alonzo W. Lawrence, president of the Rahway Taxpayers Association, questioned how the $50 was arrived at. Mr. Ward said the figure was suggested by Mr. Vogel and approved because, "I felt it was proper recompense."

In other action the board members accepted by a 5-1 vote, with doctor John J. Sprowls casting a negative ballot, a motion to adopt a court settlement in the case of the board versus the Rahway Education Association.

Board attorney Leo Kahn explained the case involved a teachers' contract from two years past which will still be effective to June 30.

According to the contract, if the cost of living increased more than 7.5% between January 1973 and January 1974, the salary guide for the first year of the contract would be adjusted accordingly for the second year.

Because of confusion over exact dates, the teachers said the cost of living went up 9.7% during the period under question while board members said it went up 9.2%. The teachers' interpretation would have cost the board $26,000.

Mr. Kahn said a non-binding arbitrator was brought in to determine the facts and the arbitrator agreed with the teachers. When board members rejected his decision, association officials brought the board to court.

Solomon Stern of 11 Sandalwood Drive, Clark, asked the council to table the traffic light ordinance until all facts concerning the light could be brought out. He said, "I think the light is an excellent idea, but it must be done right."

He pointed to the misalignment of the street, to the possibility of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company may have not met variance requirements and to the further possibility that might be required to align the street.

Councilwoman Mrs. Carl H. (Alma) Kumpf said to delay any longer allows an extremely hazardous situation to continue to threaten the safety of township residents.

there was no conflict of interest. Also by unanimous vote an ordinance providing for the standardization of police and fire alarm systems was passed.

Councilman Labella said, "The fast growing purchases of sensitive alarm systems is posing a serious problem for the township's police department."

He pointed to five reasons why permits, registration procedures and qualifications must be established.

He said the cost of monitoring these alarm systems was high, the alarms were congesting telephone communications with the police department, the systems were tying up radio communications between the police department and patrol units, there is a possibility of accidents attributed to responding to the alarms and there is a need to protect residents from fraud in the purchase of alarm systems.

He stated the cost of transfer of property or purchase of property as a variance requirement.

Mention was made that third ward, councilman Donald W. Labella's pharmacy might be affected by the light possibly creating a conflict of interest.

Board attorney Teresi assured those in attendance no benefit to the councilman's store could be achieved by the placing of the traffic signal. He stated tenure for another year and a half.

Mr. Singer chastized board members saying his board never sent a budget to Trenton but made the necessary eliminations at the local level.

He said if serious cuts were not made it would make a mockery of the March 11 election when voters defeated the proposed budget 4-1.

"Bureaucracy is something we have to fight," he said.

New stamp set hails four heroes of struggle for American freedom

Design details of a set of four new commemorative stamps honoring heroes of the American Revolution were announced by United States postal service representatives.

The stamps in the series, called "Contributors to the Cause," will be issued Tuesday, March 25, in four separate cities.

The subject of each stamp, identified by name and by a descriptive phrase in the design, are Sybil Ludington, youthful heroine, Salem Poor, gallant soldier, Peter Francisco, fighter extraordinary, and Haym Salomon, financial hero.

Two years after Paul Revere's famous ride, 16-year-old Sybil Ludington rode 40 miles through the New York and Connecticut countryside rallying militia to meet the British at Danbury.

On April 26, 1777, after a messenger advised that the British had sacked Danbury and the local militia were withdrawing, Sybil donned her father's work trousers, mounted her horse and rode through the night crying out a warning.

The militia responded, 400 strong, and moved at daybreak. Although Danbury was looted and burned, the British force lost a 10th of its forces in the ensuing battle and was forced into a disastrous retreat.

Probably the most celebrated of the black soldiers who fought at the battle of Bunker Hill was 28-year-old Salem Poor, a freeman who enlisted in the militia company commanded by captain Benjamin Ames.

Mr. Poor's valor and conduct during the battle was so exceptional that 14 Massachusetts officers some months later signed a petition to the Massachusetts legislature in his behalf.

Peter Francisco, reportedly a large man with incredible strength, joined the continental army at 15 serving in seven major battles including the one ending with the British surrender at Yorktown.

As a small boy he was put ashore from a ship at City Point, now a part of Hopewell, Va., speaking a mixture of Portuguese, Spanish and French.

As a member of the 10th Virginia regiment he first saw action at Brandywine in September of 1777.

During the battle of Camden, as legend has it, he shouldered a 1,000-pound cannon alone and saved his commander's life.

Haym Salomon, merchant, banker and Revolutionary War financier, was born in Poland of Jewish-Portuguese parents in 1740.

As a large depositor in Robert Morris' Bank of North America Mr. Salomon contributed to maintaining the new government's credit.

When Mr. Morris was appointed superintendent of finance he turned to Mr. Salomon for help in raising the money needed to carry on the war and later to save the emerging nation from financial collapse.

After the war Mr. Salomon was almost penniless and died in 1785 before he could rebuild his business.

Mortgage money available, according to Clark Realtor "Mortgage money is definitely available and prospective homebuyers should not hesitate about coming out to look for their dream homes," according to Daniel Colangelo, a Clark Realtor who serves as secretary of the Union County Multiple Listing Service. Mr. Colangelo said current reports from the real estate firms which comprise the service membership indicate they are experiencing a minimum of difficulty in assisting buyers to obtain mortgages. "In most instances we are told home shoppers are happily surprised to discover they measure up much more favorably in the eyes of the mortgage lenders than they thought they would," he said. According to the Clark real estate executive, the more home seekers understand the thinking behind mortgages and the factors taken into consideration by financial offices, the less trepidation they have. "Since a mortgage loan is actually made to a person, the individual's credit standing and ability to pay are prime factors, he noted. "But since the loan is secured by the real property, the home itself, much emphasis is placed on its design, condition, marketability and location," Mr. Colangelo further explained. The service official noted financial institutions are in business to lend money. As a result, he said, they will make every reasonable effort to cooperate with a homebuyer in enabling him to successfully finance his purchase.

Marsh and Maguire considered Republican assembly possibilities

Both John C. Marsh of Rahway and William J. Maguire of Clark are said to be under consideration for the Republican nomination for the state assembly from the 22nd state legislative district.

Both men will be screened along with other hopefuls by members of the Union County Republican Committee on Wednesday, March 26, at 8 p.m. at the Franklin State Bank in Clark, according to committee vice chairman Richard Hatfield.

The other aspirants to be screened reportedly include former assemblyman Arthur Manner of Berkeley Heights, former Springfield mayor and now township committeeman William A. Russo, who resides in Scotch Plains.

Mr. Hatfield explained there are three prospective candidates from Scotch Plains but said by the time the screening session is held two will have been eliminated.

Mr. Maguire served two terms on the frecholder board and was mayor of Clark from 1960 to 1968. The owner of a township travel agency he was also a member of the Union County planning board.

Republican second ward councilman Marsh served as mayor of Rahway from 1967 to 1971 at which time he was defeated in a reelection bid by current mayor Daniel L. Martin.

Mayor Martin stopped a second try by councilman Marsh to regain his seat last year but by the slender margin of 89 votes in a three-way split.

The district is represented by assemblywoman Mrs. James (Betty) Wilson of Berkeley Heights and Arnold J. D'Ambrosia of Rahway, both Democrats, whose terms will expire in November.

Assemblyman D'Ambrosia is facing trial after indictments on charges of fraud, embezzlement, larceny and bribery and extortion. The accusations involve incidents which allegedly took place when he was head of the city public works department.

The district includes Rahway, Clark, Fanwood, Plainfield, Mountainside, Kenilworth, Scotch Plains, Berkeley Heights and Chatham.

Mr. Manner, a former mayor of Berkeley Heights, served five three-year terms on the township committee. He was selected to the board of freeholders in 1967.

Mr. Russo, who was reelected to his second three-year term on the township committee last fall, was mayor in 1973. He is employed as a sales engineer by the Allen Bradley Company in Bloomfield.

POSSIBLE STANDARD BEARERS... Both Rahway Republican second ward councilman John C. Marsh left and former director of the Union County board of chosen freeholders William J. Maguire of Clark under consideration as Republican candidates for the state assembly from the 22nd state legislative district. A screening session will be held Wednesday, March 26, in Clark.

Clark elementary students commence Spanish project

Fourth-grade pupils in Clark elementary schools are receiving two 20-minute periods of Spanish instruction each week from student members of the Spanish Club of Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School in Clark.

Mrs. Henry (Shirley) Vogel, a foreign language teacher, is club advisor and organizer of the program. The project involves selected club members who held workshops with Mrs. Vogel during the first semester of the school year to organize materials, decide on topics and determine teaching techniques.

At the beginning of the second semester the students started the instruction in the four elementary schools.

The students participating are Joanne Lystach, Janet Pinkham and Patricia Rosivack who teach at Frank K. Hechley School and Irene Kostarski, John LaRegina and Susan Rosenmeier, who teach at Valley Road School.

At Abraham Clark School Lynn Brauss, Janis Galman and Nancy Nicholson are participating in the project. Kathleen Miklas, Scott Luxenberg and Kenneth Siegel are involved in the project at the Carl Kumpf School.

Mrs. Vogel is teaching a pilot class at Hechley School in order to guide the activities and foresee any problems which might arise.

The program goals are to provide elementary school students with a conversational acquaintance of Spanish. The children are learning to count, express greetings, say the colors and talk about the weather in Spanish.

A month is spent on each topic with different techniques for each subject. Games, audio visual materials and student-made written materials are used. Mrs. Vogel meets each week with the students to review the progress and discuss lesson plans for the following week.

Local DeMolay members saluted on 56th birthday

The 56th anniversary of the founding of the Order of DeMolay was saluted by Rahway mayor Daniel L. Martin who proclaimed the week extending from Sunday, March 16, to Sunday, March 23, "International DeMolay Week" in Rahway.

Member of the Union chapter, with headquarters at 1660 Irving Street, Rahway, will join with members of the 2,400 other organization chapters in celebrating the week, according to master councilor-elect Paul E. Moseberg.

Mr. Moseberg explained Frank S. Land and nine teenagers found the organization on March 18, 1919 in Kansas City, Mo. Today the group claims three million active and senior members.

It was noted the DeMolay members include actor John Wayne, Olympic decathlon champion and United States congressman Robert Mathias and newscaster Walter Cronkite.

According to chapter member William V. Herman of Clark, the group aims at individual leadership training and character development through community service.

In his proclamation, issued March 10, mayor Martin noted the Union chapter members will be celebrating their 56th year of service in Rahway.

Marine private Geoffrey C. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Jones of 334 East Stearns Street, Rahway, completed infantry training school at Camp Pendleton, Calif. He received specialized instruction in infantry weapons and tactics.

Paul Grupe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Conolly of 1991 Price Street, Rahway, was named to the dean's list at Pennsylvania State University.

City hospital plaque salutes best helpers

A plaque honoring volunteers who have donated more than 2,000 hours at Rahway Hospital was dedicated and mounted in the hospital conference room.

Those honored are Mrs. David (Mary Jane) Armstrong of Rahway, Mrs. Harrison (Louise) Baldwin of Westfield, Mrs. Charles (Amelia) Gillis of Rahway, Mrs. Frank (Doris) Libbey of Rahway, who is a hospital employee, and Samuel S. Marino of Cranford.

The names of two deceased volunteers are also on the plaque.

The plaque will serve as a symbol of appreciation for those who have dedicated a great amount of time to the hospital and also as an inspiration for other volunteers, said Mrs. Herbert (Jean) Kramer, director of volunteer services, at the dedication ceremony.

The dedication took place at a volunteer meeting which also included a discussion session for hospital helpers.

Safety council opposes proposed parkway exit

Members of the Rahway Safety Council met on March 11, with president Harold R. Gjertsen presiding and Frederick Grimaldi serving as secretary, and made plans for upcoming council activities.

According to sergeant Ronald Mickow, the police department's representative to the council, flashing lights at school locations on St. George Avenue may become a reality in the near future. This has reportedly been a council project for several years.

President Gjertsen, council representative of the Union County Safety Council, reported city efforts in opposition to new exits from the Garden State Parkway into West Inman Avenue appeared to be successful.

The state is contemplating new exits at the turnpike in Woodbridge and at Route no. 82 Morris Avenue in Union township.

Wade Likins, reporting for the child and school safety committee, said tentative plans for the annual school patrol trip has been formulated.

Alternative plans are to take the patrols to either Great Adventure amusement park or to West Point sometime in May.

President Gjertsen appointed a liaison committee consisting of Louis R. Rizzo, Herbert Freeman, Casimir Begier and himself to work with the mayor's office on matters pertaining to the Safety Council.

Sooner or later,
you're going to hire a lawn service.
So here are some things you should know.

By Your Local Lawn King Dealer.

I'm going to do my best to make this an unbiased, informative piece of writing. My hope is to give you reasons why you should (and probably will) have a lawn service, ways to evaluate different services, some insight into costs, tips on jobs you can do yourself, and so on.

I hope to do all this without slanting the story in favor of Lawn King... but I'll probably fail.

You see I believe that our service is the best you can get. If I didn't, I'd have bought one of the other franchises.

Now you know where I stand. I hope you'll read on anyway.

Who cares, as long as it's green?

I hear this a lot. People say, "I don't give a damn whether it's grass or clover or plantain growing out there. This may be Suburbia, but I don't need a lawn for status."

Sure. But even the clover and plantain won't stay green forever without care.

And the fact is, you should care what's growing out there. If you have a good lawn, it will add from 5% to 10% to the selling price of your house. Don't take my word. Ask any reputable realtor in town.

The cost of not caring for your lawn is a lot higher than the cost of proper care.

And that's just basic maintenance!

Could you do it yourself? Sure! Will you, though? No way!

There's no mystery to what we do. You can do it yourself, and you can buy or rent all the special equipment to do it. Spreaders, aerators, rollers - they're all available.

And so are the fertilizers, control agents, seed and all the rest of it.

You can do it. But unless you're some kind of nut, you won't. You'll just go on giving your lawn a token treatment in the spring. And for the rest of the season, all you'll give it is a disgusted look on your way to the golf club, the boat or the tennis court.

between 6.2 and 6.5. This is easy to do, and helps a lot. Lime can be applied at any time, the sooner the better on lawns with a low pH. As a maintenance practice, it's best to apply lime in the Fall.

You can fertilize it four times a year. But be careful in the summer.

You can apply weed killer to stubborn crabgrass, dandelion plants, plantain and other nuisances. Far better than pulling them, which only gives you more weeds.

You can (and should) do a lot more, depending on the time you want to give the job.

Ask me, or ask your garden center, and do as much as you see fit.

Every bit helps.

Now, down to price.

A lawn service is going to cost you, but not as much as you think.

Actually, it will be cheaper than the same care if you did it yourself. If it seems expensive, that's just because you're not doing all you should.

Measure your lawn, and figure the cost for yourself.

Here's what a lawn service does.

A good service first takes a good look. Your lawn may have special problems and need special treatment. Or you may be lucky, and have a better lawn than most.

Whatever's needed, you should be told about it and told how it will be dealt with. And at that time, you should be told exactly what it will cost. If you get an "estimate", better call another lawn service.

A good lawn service will set up a program of scheduled treatments, at least four a year. (I do a lot more). I schedule four treatment visits and four checkbacks between treatments, to see how your lawn is doing. If it needs something more, I do it. No extra charge, either. A contract is a contract. I remember one lawn where I was back about eight times - with the equipment. Tough for me, but great for that poor sick lawn.

The four regular treatments should be scheduled in spring, early summer, late summer and fall. At each one, you should get fertilization, weed control, power rolling and power aeration. (Except for late summer, when we don't aerate. It would be wrong then.)

In addition to this, your treatments should also include seeding, extra fertilization (we use three different formulas of fertilizers in different amounts at different times), grub proofing and fungus control, pre-emergent and post-emergent crab grass control, chinch bug control and sod webworm control.

Don't expect miracles.

And don't trust a lawn service operator who promises them!

No service, and no amount of care, is going to restore a sick lawn in the first treatment.

If you start now, you may see some improvement this season, but only if you know what to look for.

The real big breakthrough will come next year.

And then you'll be amazed.

I'm amazed myself, when I see what has been accomplished by four or five treatments. Mother Nature and Father Time.

What can you do yourself?

You can keep your lawn well watered. This is especially important in the spring and fall, for at least three weeks after seeding. Unless it's kept wet, seed won't germinate and the new seedlings will die.

Here's how much to water. Put anything that holds water on your lawn while you're sprinkling. When it's an inch deep, you've watered enough.

You can cut your lawn regularly. And you should, whenever your grass gets over three inches high. Never cut off more than one-third of the leaf and don't cut it too short. The drawing will explain why.

You can lime it every year. And you must lime it to keep the pH

Why not to cut too short. If you cut to a 1" height, you've cut off the grass leaves. Chlorophyll in the grass leaves manufacture the plant's food from sunlight, carbon dioxide and water. So if you cut them off, the plant starves. And weeds (which are short) will grow instead.

Get started now.

Call me and set a date for a diagnosis and a price.

Your lawn requires constant care throughout the growing season. If you wait, the lawn will only get worse, and it will take longer to control its problems. So if you call me now, both you and I will be a lot better off.

And so will your ratty old lawn.

Price includes all labor and materials.

School budget cuts: make them sizable and make them stick

Clark and Rahway voters expressed both their anger and concern on March 11 when they voted to reject their respective municipal school budgets. In a sense township voters did it twice by first rejecting on March 4 the budget for Union County Regional High School District no. 1, possibly the first time in the history of the regional board, and then defeating the proposed appropriations for township schools by a 3-1 margin. Now that the vote is over and attention and anger is being focused elsewhere. As required by law the defeated school budgets were turned over to the respective municipal councils within 48 hours of their defeats for the necessary trimming. As of today the councilmen have less than a week to perform the often painful, but definitely necessary, surgery.

After the operation the school boards will have the right to appeal the council decisions to the state commissioner of education who will make a final ruling. After the loud outcry on March 11 the following words may not be necessary, at least it is hoped not, but still they bear repeating. Councilmen must heed the voice of their constituency. Both budgets must be cut at least by the percentage of student population decline.

Granted there are areas where it appears few cuts can be made. Inflationary price increases concerning public utilities are beyond the control of the local board members and contracted salaries are fixed. Yet budget cuts can force thermostat settings down, shut off unnecessary lights and increase classroom sizes which would all result in welcomed savings.

Both school board members and councilmen must objectively evaluate every program, recreational or scholastic, which is beyond the domain of standard classroom instruction. Do recreation programs duplicate city or township efforts? Can a new program be postponed another year? Can the work of one individual near attrition be split among four remaining members? Every year citizens ask board members, "What would you do if there just was not enough money?" This year the board members will have to produce an answer because the funds really are not there.

All board members, both those elected this year and the incumbent staff, must realize they have been handed a mandate by the voters. They must cut costs. Any other action would be a moral outrage against the electorate and would make a mockery out of the March 11 election.

Tax incentives needed to prod homeowners to install energy-savers

By representative Matthew J. Rinaldo

A study completed by the federal energy administration concluded that by improving the efficiency of residential and commercial heating systems our nation could save 210 million barrels of fuel a year.

This is especially important since last year the United States spent $24 billion on imported fuel. In 1972 one quarter of the nation's energy budget was spent in the household and commercial sectors, and roughly half of this amount went for heating, cooling and ventilating residential buildings.

By and large this energy is not being used wisely. Various private and government agencies have found significant energy savings can be achieved by upgrading existing homes to make them more energy efficient. The addition of insulation, storm windows, storm doors and caulking material could easily reduce the energy required to heat and cool a home anywhere from 10 to 20% the experts claim.

According to the United States Department of housing and urban development, the structural modifications to achieve a 15% annual fuel reduction in a home are already available within current construction practices, and the addition of these items would not interfere with the life style of the occupants. It estimated the cost at an average of $550 a home.

Certainly higher fuel costs act as an important inducement to homeowners to upgrade their residences. The energy administration reports during 1973 between 85,000 and 105,000 dwellings were retrofitted with energy saving improvements.

Millions of other homeowners however have balked at the expenditure. In view of the national imperative to conserve energy congressmen must consider legislation to provide them with an incentive.

I have sponsored legislation to establish a tax credit for homeowners who invest in energy saving improvements in their residences. It would allow a homeowner to subtract from his federal income tax 25% of his investment in storm windows, storm doors, insulation and other energy saving home improvements. The credit is limited to $250 and could be taken only on the taxpayer's principal residence.

In addition the bill provides a 25% credit up to a limit of $1,000 for the homeowner who installs solar heating and cooling equipment in his residence. In my judgment this would give impetus to the industry to invest in solar systems and stimulate the demand for fossil fuels and assist in the nation's clean air program.

My legislation would restrict the tax incentives to a five-year period on existing dwellings. Changes in local building codes and federal regulations on mortgages would require all new construction comply with these same energy savings features. Judging by the experience in Michigan where a similar plan was offered by a public utility through a credit system, the results would be impressive.

The total annual cost of the program in tax credits would be approximately $750 million at its outer limits. For this investment of upgrading approximately 20 million homes, the United States could roughly save an estimated 578,000 barrels of oil a day or 210 million barrels a year. At the current import price of $11 a barrel this program can cut roughly $2 billion off the United States energy bill and our imbalance of payments. Beyond its impressive saving potential the program would provide an important stimulus to a depressed housing industry. Sources in the industry estimate the energy alterations of 4 to 5 million homes would be possible in the next 12 months.

It strikes me that this program would offer a visible, relatively inexpensive and practical step towards national energy conservation. I have high hopes congressmen will approve this bill in the near future.

'Racism' now reversed, to combat it disemploy aliens, married women

By E. Sidman Wachter

Just as racism, now "reverse," is more than ever rampant today in the form of "affirmative action," the Philadelphia plan and countless other projects favoring members of some groups over the rest of the population, so also is the means test.

Some years back the United States supreme court outlawed the poll tax. This type of means tests had much to recommend it, as it insured in some degree that only those contributing to the support of government should be permitted to elect that government. It was decreed that, as in George Orwell's "Animal Farm," all should be equal, with the foreseeable result that certain animals were soon "more equal" than others. This book incidentally, along with "1984" by the same author, should be required reading for all high school students to fortify them against the siren song of socialists.

America has already come full circle to acceptance of what amounts to a "reverse means test." Persons of means who have worked the hardest and been the most frugal are penalized. Instead of being allowed to spend the fruits of their own labors as they desire, they are taxed excessively to provide beer and skittles for the "have-nots" who, too often, are also the "do-nothings."

We find present General Ford suggesting an income tax "rebate" which would apply not only to those forced to turn over some 33% of their salaries to the federal government by virtue of the Marxist graduated personal income tax, but also to those who have not paid one cent of tax in a given year! A "reverse means test" obviously. How can one receive a rebate on what he has not paid?

Or take the recently enacted assembly bill no. 442 in New Jersey which ordains that by September 1976 the 200th anniversary of American independence, all schools in the state must serve lunches and these lunches must be free for those who pass a "reverse" means test.

Well since the means test is once more in fashion let it be brought to bear on the unemployment problem. Let employers discharge married women who have husbands to bring home the bacon just as they did during the Great Depression of the 1930s. These women work for the sake of acquiring luxuries or a higher standard of living, and as long as our society was affluent this was all well and good.

If their jobs were now made available to unemployed men, the latter could resume their rightful roles as family heads supporting their own households. Women can find plenty to do in the home and in fact should be there as long as their children are; whereas, an unemployed man sustains damage to his ego when he is not employed and dependent. Once the youngsters have left the nest, women can find opportunities for voluntary service in church groups, Red Cross chapters, veterans' centers and clubs which will give beneficial outlet to their surplus energies. As long as times are hard, does it not make sense to give priority to husbands and fathers and let each family unit make do with one income as in the 1930s?

A corollary of this would be for government to revise its employment statistics to make them more realistic by eliminating from the count married women, pregnant women, students, seasonal workers and retirees whose inclusion really "pads" the jobless rolls.

Another beneficial action would be to disemploy all aliens who had not filed their first papers for citizenship by January 1 and replace them with loyal American citizens. This kind of preference for nationals is probably routine in other nations.

67% of regional districts reject proposed school budgets

The voters in Union County Regional High School District no. 1 were not alone in rejecting their school budget. Out of 61 regional districts voted on March 4, 41 were rejected by the electorate.

The 67% rejection rate is more than double a previous record rejection rate of about 31% registered in 1971. Since then fewer than one budget out of four has been approved by regional voters.

It was reported the $90-721 local vote on March 4 was the first time district no. 1 voters rejected a proposed regional-school budget.

Regional school board officials must now submit their budgets to local governing councils which will have 10 days in which to make cuts. The school boards officials may then appeal the reductions to state education commissioner Fred C. Burke.

"We can not know yet the size of the cuts or which programs will be affected, but there will be cutbacks and they will affect children," said doctor Donald Merschneck, district no. 1 superintendent. Officials from other regional districts noted that most probably budget reductions will have to come in the area of staffs.

Mr. Marcink and Theodore A. White of Mountain-side blamed declining economic conditions for the defeat of the district no. 1 budget in all but two of the six municipalities concerned, Garwood and Berkeley Heights.

At a regional board of education meeting on March 5, board president Charles E. Vitale said he hoped an amicable agreement could be reached locally without having to appeal to the state education commissioner.

At the same session a request from Dennis Fox, president of the teachers association, urging a mid-winter vacation in February for Arthur L. Johnson be placed on next year's calendar was taken under advisement.

Letters to the editor Grant attacks councilman Marsh, calls on council to end kid stuff

Please tell me when I will be able to pick up a copy of The Rahway News-Record and not find a letter or statement by loser councilman John C. Marsh. On March 13 I found another slurry statement from councilman Marsh telling the mayor his (the councilman's) plan was the only one which could save the taxpayers money.

First, get rid of excess city personnel like he did when he took office; name a dogcatcher named Patrick O'Donnell. This same Mr. O'Donnell irks Mr. Marsh something awful.

Next he tells us our taxes are the highest in the county. I called the tax office and inquired about this accusation. The list of taxes per $100 was as follows: Berkeley Heights $3.62, Clark $2.86, Cranford $5.82, Elizabeth $5.99, Rahway $3.02, Westfield $3.86, Roselle $5.15 and Scotch Plains $3.69.

It seems to me someone is not getting their facts straight. Either the Union County tax office is wrong or councilman Marsh is. Come on councilman Marsh, stand up and be counted and straighten this matter up once and for all. Did we elect nine councilmen to run our city efficiently and with the city residents at the top of their priorities list or did we elect them to fight on party lines at every council meeting?

I think our city is on an even keel with any other city in New Jersey, and I am proud to be a Rahway citizen. We have a very good police and fire department and a beautifully run first aid squad.

So why not get down to business and run our town like a state-of-the-art councilman? Quit all the petty kid stuff. Let your heart vote on what is good for Rahway and not your political party.

Ross contradicts chief justice, gives judge Postizzi lower rating

In the March 6 edition of The Rahway News-Record and the Clark Patriot I read a letter written by the chief justice of the New Jersey state supreme court commending the courtroom demeanor of judge Joseph R. Postizzi of Clark.

Of course the chief justice was not present but some unnamed observer reported the very pleasant conditions he observed. Possibly the judge was having a good night or was it just the night I saw him he was having a bad one?

Well anyway, two years ago I was an observer in judge Postizzi's court and what I observed appalled me to such a degree I felt compelled to write to your newspaper and to the chief justice of the New Jersey state supreme court and the Clark council.

But your newspaper did not have the courage to publish my letter which is very sad for a newspaper editor and it is doubtful that you will have the courage to publish this letter either. If this is the case, you should be ashamed of having such fears.

Wilson gets $1,000 fine and 90 days ceasing attempt to win Wilson a new trial, told the court there had been no indication of criminal intent on Wilson's part in the bribery and attempted extortion trial.

He said the issue of soliciting political campaign contributions, a focal point in the trial in which the prosecution tried to build an atmosphere of soliciting money from contractors as a way of political life, was not considered to be a crime in 1969.

Mr. Pettit accused the prosecution of tainting all public officials even though soliciting campaign contributions has only recently become more stringently regulated so the charge against Wilson is now charged as a crime.

Mr. Pettit last week charged John F. Allaire, Jr., the state's chief witness, in 1969 solicited campaign contributions from township employees and contractors when he was the township director of public works.

Mr. Allaire, who vehemently denied the charges, testified at the January trial that he participated in weekly meetings with former Clark mayor Thomas A. Kaczmarek and others in the mayor's "inner political circle" where it was planned which contractors should be approached for political contributions.

A special Union County grand jury investigating municipal corruption already has begun gathering evidence as a result of the disclosures at the Wilson trial.

Mr. Kaczmarek and John P. Higgins, former Clark attorney and political advisor to Mr. Kaczmarek, appeared before the grand jury within the past two weeks.

Assistant prosecutor Eugene Rosner, head of the county prosecutor office's governmental investigation unit, said the constitutional sentence imposed on Wilson marks an end to politics as usual.

"I think the court recognized that implicit in the jury's verdict was the feeling that politics as usual will no longer be accepted," Mr. Rosner said.

The sentence, he said, indicates the court "will not endorse what had been the prevailing morality, thus locking it in as a standard for the future."

said he plans to make a park and recreational area on East Hazelwood Avenue opposite Lovell Avenue where a row of dilapidated houses stands.

The Democratic chief executive also noted improved street lighting in high crime areas and the elimination of traffic congestion in those areas of the city which require it would be undertaken.

Finally the mayor said he will seek to undertake a program of restoring historical sites in Rahway. A survey is planned to locate and identify such sites.

In releasing his plans for fund use to the public, Mayor Martin emphasized the fact that the bulk of his goals would be spread out over five years.

"There will definitely be improvement in all of these areas," the mayor stated, "and we are going to see to it that the city's image and life as a community improves considerably."

In the first year of the program Rahway will receive $567,000 which, according to Mayor Martin's plans, would be used for closure of urban renewal $60,000, East Hazelwood Park $103,000, security at senior citizens' housing $16,000, street-lighting in high crime areas $3,000, preservation of historical sites $1,000, expansion of 11th street $2,000, transportation for the elderly, handicapped and low-income $36,000, residents' service need analysis $3,000, construction of new firehouse $300,000, planning and management $26,000 and administration $12,000.

In the second year the funds would be allocated for closure of urban renewal $60,000, housing rehabilitation assistance $3,000, loan service $3,000, housing rehabilitation loan service $50,000, street lighting $10,000, traffic circulation $160,000, separation of sanitary and storm sewers $190,000, storm drainage $30,000, architectural barriers to handicapped $5,000, consumer cooperatives $6,000, residents' service assistance $20,000, planning and management $10,000 and administration $15,000.

Rahway's application was prepared for Mayor Martin by city planner Robert E. Rosa of Edison. In addition to funds coming directly to the city Rahway is a participant in the Union County community development program. Fifth ward Republican councilman Peter M. Donovan was appointed to represent the city along with Mr. Rosa.

Mayor Martin said he is confident councilman Donovan "will do an excellent job fighting for Rahway's best interests."

Architect fee eyed by board

A compromise was reached in the judge's chambers before the matter came to trial, Mr. Kahn explained. He said a compromise figure of 9.4% or $13,000, was arrived at.

Mr. Kahn noted employees in the highest salary categories will receive a 2% less cost of living increase, according to the contract. School personnel will receive retroactive payment in one sum.

In the area of negotiations over a new contract with the association, Mr. Kahn, the board members' chief negotiator, said between two-thirds to three-quarters of the contract was resolved.

Still to be decided he said were all items concerning money and seven or eight areas. Because of the impasse in these areas, Mr. Kahn said, a mutual request for a state mediator is being prepared.

He said the request will be sent to Trenton by next week. He explained if this failed the next step would be to bring in a non-binding fact finder to act as a judge.

on the ceiling and the laying of ceramic tile were completely done.

Board members unanimously passed a resolution praising outgoing board president Switek for his 16 years of service. He served as president from 1963 to 1965 and from 1969 to this year plus as vice president in 1968.

Earlier president Switek, who chose not to run in the March 11 election, labeled the ending of his board service "the passing of an era in my life."

He thanked the board members for what he called their advice, understanding and kindness. He received a standing ovation from the members at the conclusion of his remarks.

State legislators work to reverse recession with host of programs

By assemblywoman Mrs. James (Betty) Wilson of the 22nd state legislative district which includes Rahway and Clark

No problem is more pervasive or more serious than the current state of the economy. Pessimists say we are in a full-fledged depression, and there is no question this is true in certain industries such as construction where unemployment is extremely high. Even optimists are forced to admit we are in a serious recession. The problems of the recession, ever rising prices and increasing unemployment, go far beyond New Jersey. It is a national and even international problem. As such the state legislature alone cannot find a solution. However there is much we in state government can and should do.

Last August state legislators created the economic development authority to assist business and industry by making low interest loans. Loans totaling $16 million have already been made and have stimulated approximately $24 million in ancillary business and investment for machinery and equipment and have provided about 800 jobs.

I have recently co-sponsored legislation to increase the power of the authority by allowing it to issue pollution control bonds. This bill would help firms to comply with pollution control requirements while creating jobs to expand and grow their existing plants and additional solid waste disposal capacity.

The legislators have also passed the emergency employment development act of 1974 which created an office of business and industry advocacy, a customized manpower training program, an international trade program and a tourism and promotion program, all designed to encourage the expansion of business and employment in our state.

Several new programs are now under consideration by legislators. One is the mortgage assistance pension plan which has been proposed to the governor and legislators by the New Jersey Builders Association. This plan would allow the use of some state pension funds for mortgages at reduced cost while providing higher yields of interest to the funds' investment program. Such a use of these funds could provide about 43,000 new homes thus increasing the availability of both jobs and housing.

The legislation and proposals I have described are some of the efforts we in state government are making to cope with the recession. I would like nothing better than to be able to tell you we will solve all of the state's economic problems but to make such a claim would be false and misleading. What I will tell you is in the state legislature are keenly aware of the problems generated by unemployment and inflation and in our state, we pledge our unflagging efforts. There is no higher priority.

Legislators propose committees to direct progress of measures

A recent public hearing on a pair of state senate proposals calling for the establishment of joint legislative committees to oversee the operation and progress of measures already enacted into law indicates a division of opinion regarding the effects of such proposals in improving the legislative process, noted a New Jersey Taxpayers Association spokesman.

Senate concurrent resolution no. 149 would supplement joint rules for legislative procedure and authorize creation by concurrent action of both houses of the legislature of joint oversight committees, he explained.

Each panel would consist of at least six members, two senators chosen by the senate president, two assembly members selected by the assembly speaker and at least one citizen appointed by the presiding officer of each house.

Each oversight committee, he further explained, would study and evaluate the extent of compliance with legislative intent on the creation of new governmental agency of instrumentality, any alteration or structural change of any state agency or political subdivision plus alteration, abolition or creation of any legal rights, duties or responsibilities.

Senate concurrent resolution no. 148, the two spokesmen noted, would implement the previous resolution to create five committees to study and evaluate the following 1974 laws: mail voter registration, urban aid, public financing of gubernatorial campaigns, repeal of the 1962 New York and New Jersey bond covenants restricting port authority participation in mass transit projects and the department of the public advocate.

Supporters of the oversight concept, he said, claim the proposed review committees would help improve legislative procedures by enabling the legislature to evaluate the effectiveness of new laws, measuring the public reaction of new laws through conduct of public hearings and the possibility of greater legislative "follow through" on recommendations and criticism.

Critics of the oversight committee proposals say while the objectives of the two resolutions are laudable, the addition of more committees to the already overburdened legislative process may not achieve any improvement of the legislature.

They argue, according to the spokesman, that lawmakers are not able to devote sufficient time to present standing committee assignments for adequate consideration of a record volume of bills.

Over 40 special legislative commissions and committees have been created but not all are fully functioning and some joint committees seldom meet, he noted in stating the critics case.

Suggested alternatives to the new oversight committees were said to be assignment of the oversight responsibility to existing agencies:

- the standing committee which reported the original legislation assisted by the office of fiscal affairs or
- the law revision and legislative services commission which is a 12-member of policy body of legislative leaders from each house which now approves programs for analysis.

Academic honor roll told for city high school; about 6.7% of students receive high honors

A total of 94 students or about 6.7% of the student body at Rahway Senior High School achieved high scholastic honors for the second marking period, according to a list released by superintendent of schools doctor Edward L. Bowes and assistant principal Nicholas F. DeLmonaco.

Seniors performed best with 43 students winning high honors. Next came juniors with 37 winning the designation and then sophomores with 14 pupils being so honored.

The category "honor" refers to students who received grade point averages of 84 to 91 points in all major subjects with no mark below 75. Merit students are those who achieved an average of 80 to 83 points in all major subjects with no mark below 75.

'Rahway River Authority' wins quick assembly okay

Flood protection bill calling for the regional establishment of a "Rahway River Authority" within Union County received overwhelming approval by the state assembly and is now being acted upon by a state senate committee.

Labeled as "a major step toward flood relief within our state" by its sponsor, assemblyman Joseph L. Garrubbo of the 20th district, the proposed authority mandates representation from communities which lie within the river basins for the development of flood control projects funded by the sale of authority bonds.

"This is a strong bill. Volunteers to drive cancer patients to and from treatment centers are being sought by the Union County unit of the American Cancer Society. Those interested should contact the society, located at 512 Westminster Avenue, Elizabeth, at 354-7373 or 232-0641.

because the magnitude of the flood problem in our district requires strong, positive action. Membership and participation in the authority by designated river basins towns must be mandatory," assemblyman Garrubbo noted.

The bill is unlike prior legislation which was rejected by governor William T. Cahill in 1973, he said. It presents a completely revised concept and approach while satisfying the necessary requirements and concerns of the governor's office.

Copies of the proposed legislation have been distributed to representatives of the affected municipalities and a public hearing was held to discuss the bill with interested organizations, municipal officials and citizens.

The environmental bill was said to have won assembly approval in almost record time. Assemblyman Garrubbo says he will continue his efforts to expedite the passage of his flood legislation into law.

New state fire service instructors club conducted organizational gathering in city

A statewide effort to improve the training of firefighters and to develop uniform professional standards for fire service instructors was launched on March 8 in Rahway at an organizational meeting of The New Jersey Society of Fire Service Instructors.

The meeting was held in the auditorium of Merck Sharp and Dohm Research Laboratories in Rahway, according to Roger McGary, fire-chief at Merck and one of the society's organizers.

The organizational effort is being spearheaded by several fire service instructors throughout New Jersey who recognize the need for a state group founded on the same principles as the International Society of Fire Service Instructors. The ultimate intention of the state organizers is to affiliate with the international organization, Mr. McGary said.

The proposed objectives of the state group will include:

- provision of effective and continuous leadership in education and training of fire service personnel,
- promoting acceptance and understanding of the importance of fire services training,
- development of uniform professional standards,
- establishment and maintenance of instructor listings throughout the state,
- cooperation with other professional associations and societies and
- sponsorship of regional conferences on fire training problems.

Mr. McGary said establishing a state society which is affiliated with the international group would help complete a national network of fire service training personnel.

Louis J. Amabili, director of the Delaware State Fire School, heads the international society which is leading a nationwide effort to develop instructor qualifications through the National Fire Protection Association committee on instructors' certification.

International members also participate in committees for the certification of firefighters, officers and inspectors. They also sponsor two major conferences a year dealing with instructors' problems.

A spring conference, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, March 22 and 23, in Memphis, Tenn., will precede the annual fire department instructors conference. A fall conference is held each year in various sections of the country.

Donovan says Rahway will benefit from community development funds

Fifth ward Republican councilman Peter M. Donovan of Rahway, who is the appointed council representative to the Union County community development committee, reported this week that the committee's first year funding will be of great benefit to the city.

Committee members, who are responsible for determining the use throughout Union County of $375,000 in federal community development funds, voted last week to approve the use of $200,000 for engineering design of the Lenape Park retention basin.

Councilman Donovan explained the project, since it is a part of the Rahway River watershed, will benefit city homeowners by slowing the tide of flood waters.

The county community development program will be in effect for five years, and councilman Donovan stated he will "do all in my power to fight for the most benefit to Rahway."

In addition to the $200,000 for the Lenape retention basin, county funding was broken down as follows: feasibility study of the Carpenter Placed retention basin $20,000, feasibility study for Elizabeth River retention basin $20,000, feasibility study for the Salt Brook detention basin $10,000 and engineering design of the Cedar Brook detention basin $150,000.

Also Summit urban renewal $50,000, United Way community child care countywide program $50,000, Springfield senior citizens center $40,000, Roselle senior citizens center $20,000, restoration of Clark national historic site $10,000 and administration to the county planning board $5,000.

Councilman Donovan said on the funding vote he seconded the $10,000 project for Clark in return for strong support from Clark for the Lenape retention basin.

He further said "as long as we keep on our toes I am certain we will be able to get things accomplished for Rahway through this program," adding he was greatly pleased the bulk of the first year money would go to Rahway.

He also recognized the Union County planning board for what he called the "low" administration cost of $5,000.

"The staff of the county planning board, in particular director Al Linden and engineer Kenneth Marsh, have done an outstanding job in terms of the objectivity they have given to their recommendations for funding distribution," the Republican city official said.

Councilman Donovan said he expected more funds in the second and third years of the program would go toward social programs, particularly the upgrading of run-down housing throughout the county.

"Rahway can also benefit from programs of that nature, and we will do our best to see to it our community receives funding," he concluded.

RINALDO WELCOMES WINNERS... Miss Anne Hogan of 7 Holly Street, Cranford, right, and Miss Sheryl Hoehn of 57 Prescott Turn, Clark, were greeted by 12th district representative Matthew J. Rinaldo on a tour of the capitol in Washington, D. C. Miss Hogan was the winner and Miss Hoehn the runner-up in the "Junior Miss. Elegant" of Western Union County. The pageant and the trip to Washington were sponsored by the Jaycees of Cranford.

Marsh: citizens should march on city hall to protest budget

"With more than $1.3 million in padding in the 1975 city budget, it is absolutely essential Rahway citizens march on city hall tonight, when councilmen will be holding the public hearing on the budget," declared second ward councilman John C. Marsh.

"We are faced with a 40% increase in taxes this year with the school budget increasing about 22% and the city about 28%," the Republican city official added.

"The administration of mayor Daniel L. Martin has continued to deceive every year about how small an increase we are going to face, and every year we get out tax bills during the summer and discover mayor Martin's duplicity," he said. "But by then it's too late to do anything about it," he continued. "Now is the time to try to convince the mayor and his council colleagues that citizens will not stand still for this cavalier treatment. Thus I urge every citizen to come to the meeting and force the administration to live up to their responsibility or tell them to get out!" councilman Marsh declared.

"This is our last chance this year!"

The councilman said he made a careful study of the budget and the personnel requirements of the city departments keeping in mind "we are in the midst of a severe recession which promises to worsen with high inflation and rising unemployment and that we are a low-income community."

As a result he suggests: --an estimated 80 unnecessary city jobs be eliminated and the salary budgets of the departments affected be reduced accordingly (a listing of these jobs and the affected departments as well as the salaries will be available to the public at the public hearing); --the operating budgets of most city departments be reduced by 20% (a listing of the affected departments with the current operating budgets and the proposed reduction and savings will also be available); --all department head salaries be frozen at last year's salaries; --freeze all hiring; --sell all city-owned buildings and properties presently unoccupied and untaxed and use the proceeds to pay surplus monies.

"I realize these economy measures may seem drastic to some," councilman Marsh said, "however we are faced with an economic crisis which demands drastic action if taxpayers are to survive."

"During the past four years our taxes have risen to the highest in Union County with unnecessary city jobs, improper or no bidding, some pay increases over 20%, and virtually no economics being practiced or even preached," he said.

"In 1973 mayor Martin took us to court when I tried to force the administration to eliminate unnecessary city jobs. At that time councilman Richard Vovnik and Eugene Gentsch backed down to mayor Martin and restored all the unnecessary city jobs along with the mayor's high taxes," councilman Marsh added.

"One or two or three councilmen cannot win this

THE EASTER STORY: the last supper, crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ as related in the gospel according to St. Luke

EDITOR'S NOTE: In observance of the Easter season The Rahway News-Record and The Clark Patriot present the following account of the Passion of Jesus Christ excerpted from the gospel according to St. Luke in the King James version of the Bible.

Now the feast of unleavened bread drew nigh, which is called the Passover. And the chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill him; for they feared the people. Then entered Satan into Judas surnamed Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve. And he went his way, and communed with the chief priests and captains, how he might betray him unto them. And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money. And he promised, and sought opportunity to betray him unto them in the absence of the multitude. Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be killed. And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat. And they said unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare it? And he said unto them, Behold, when ye are entered into the city, ye shall find a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the house where he entereth. And ye shall say unto the goodman of the house, The Master saith unto thee, Where is the guestchamber, where I shall eat the passover with my disciples? And he shall shew you a large upper room furnished; there make ready. And they went, and found as he had said unto them; and made ready the passover. And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him. And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer: for I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves: for I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come. And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you. But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table. And truly the Son of man goeth, as it was determined: but woe unto that man by whom he is betrayed! And they began to envy among themselves, which of them it was that should do this thing. And there was also a strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest. And he said unto them, The kings of the Gentiles exercise lordship over them; and they that exercise authority upon them are called benefactors. But ye shall not be so; but he that is greatest among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve. For whether is greater, he that sitteth at meat, or he that serveth? Is not he that sitteth at meat? I am among you as he that serveth. Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations. And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel. And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren. And he said unto him, Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both into prison, and to death. And he said, I tell thee, Peter, the cock shall not crow this day, before that thou shalt thrice deny that thou knowest me. And he said unto them, When I sent you without purse, and scrip, and shoes, lacked ye any thing? And they said, Nothing. Then said he unto them, But now, he that hath a purse, let him take it, and likewise his scrip, and let him that hath no sword, let him sell his garment, and buy one. For I say unto you, that this that is written must yet be accomplished in me, And he was reckoned among the transgressors: for the things concerning me have an end. And they said, Lord, behold, here are two swords. And he said unto them, It is enough. And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his disciples also followed him. And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation. And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done. And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him. And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly; and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground. And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for sorrow, and said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. And while he yet spake, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him. But Jesus said unto him, Judas, betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss? When they which were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword? And one of them smote the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear. And Jesus answered and said, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear, and healed him. Then Jesus said unto the chief priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders, which were come to him, Be ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and staves? When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against me; but this is your hour, and the power of darkness. Then took they him, and led him, and brought him into the high priest's house. And Peter followed afar off. And when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the hall, and were set down together, Peter sat down among them. But a certain maid beheld him as he sat by the fire, and earnestly looked upon him, and said, This man was also with him. And he denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not. And after a little while another saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. And Peter said, Man, I am not. And about the space of one hour after another confidently affirmed, saying, Of a truth this fellow also was with him: for he is a Galilean. And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately, while he yet spake, the cock crew. And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said unto him, Before the cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrice. And Peter went out, and wept bitterly. And the men that held Jesus mocked him, and smote him. And when they had blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophesy, who is it that smote thee? And many other things blasphemously spake they against him. And as soon as it was day, the elders of the people

Palm Sunday observance marks kingship of Christ

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the latest installment in a series of sermons authored by local clergymen.

"And the multitudes that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David; Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest." (Matthew 21:9)

The triumphant or royal entry of our Lord into Jerusalem is celebrated each year on Palm Sunday. This is the beginning of Holy Week.

and give approval to all that existed. He challenged the status quo and by the steel of a will completely surrendered to God He challenged the corrupt religious and social system of His day.

It was the public assumption of His kingship as messiah that contributed greatly to the condemnation and crucifixion of Jesus.

The Christ who was crucified upon the cross was born to be king. He lived a sinless life like a perfect king. He spoke with the authority of a king.

If we would know the peace and power which comes from God then we need to make Him king with control over our loyalties.

City Orthodox church to mark start of Lent

While the western segment of the Christian community will observe Palm Sunday on March 23, Orthodox Christians will be celebrating the "Triumph of Orthodoxy" and marking the first Sunday in Lent.

Eastern and western Christians determine the Easter date according to different methods of calculation, which often causes the celebrations to be observed several weeks apart.

This year there will be a difference of five weeks between the two observances, with Orthodox churches observing Easter on Sunday, May 4.

On the first Sunday of Lent each year vesters is celebrated commemorating the triumph of the Orthodox faith. This celebration dates back to the eighth century when an attempt was made to remove icons, religious paintings, from the church.

The ecumenical council of Nicea was called in 787 and sacred images were restored. However a new attack on the use of icons was called and the reinstatement of icons was permanent. On the first

Wine not? By Enrico

California wines are now being featured in top restaurants and gourmet stores in Japan.

In Bordeaux, Champagne is served as an aperitif before dinner parties. Of course, it should be very cold. If you don't have tulip or flute-shaped glasses, an ordinary wine glass will do.

Plum wines are made from the whole fruit, including the pits, which add an almond taste.

Wine drinking is on the increase all over. In Britain, it's become so popular that even pubs are serving wine.

Although imports of foreign wines seem to have leveled off last year, consumer demand remains good. According to industry sources, imports were overloaded for a few years, and importers are just letting buyers catch up.

Account of passion stresses Christ's humanity and the chief priests and the scribes came together, and led him into their council, saying, Art thou the Christ? tell us.

And he said unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe; and if I also ask you, ye will not answer me, nor let me go. Hereafter shall the Son of man sit on the right of the Power of God.

Then said they all, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said unto them, Yea say that I am, And they said, What need we any further witness? for we ourselves have heard of his own mouth.

And the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate, And they began to accuse him, saying, We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Caesar, saying that he himself is Christ a King.

And Pilate asked him, saying, Art thou the King of the Jews? And he answered him and said, Thou sayest it. Then said Pilate to the chief priests and to the people, I find no fault in this man. And they were the more fierce, saying, He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilean, And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

And when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceeding glad: for he was desirous to see him of a long season, because he had heard many things of him; and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him.

Then he questioned with him in many words; but he answered him nothing. And the chief priests and scribes stood and vehemently accused him. And Herod with his men of war set him at naught, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and sent him again to Pilate.

And the same day Pilate and Herod were made friends together: for before they were at enmity between themselves.

An Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people, said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me; as one that perverteth the people: and behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man touching those things whereof ye accuse him: no, nor yet Herod: for I sent you to him; and lo, nothing worthy of death is done unto him.

I will therefore chastise him, and release him. (For of necessity he must release one unto them at the feast.)

And they cried out all at once, Away with this man, and release unto us Barabbas: (who for a certain sedition made in the city, and for murder, was cast into prison.)

Pilate therefore, willing to release Jesus, spake again to them. But they cried, saying, Crucify him, crucify him. And he said unto them the third time, Why, what evil hath he done? I have found no cause of death in him: I will therefore chastise him, and let him go.

And they were instant with loud voices, requiring that he might be crucified. And the voices of them and of the chief priests prevailed. And Pilate gave sentence that it should be as they required.

And he released unto them him that for sedition and murder was cast into prison, whom they had desired; but he delivered Jesus to their will.

And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus.

And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him. But Jesus turning unto them said, Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourselves, and for your children.

For, behold, the days are coming, in the which they shall say, Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the paps which never gave suck. Then shall they begin to say to the mountains, Fall on us; and to the hills, Cover us. For if they do these things in a green tree, what shall be done in the dry?

And there were also two other malefactors, led with him to be put to death. And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left.

Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do. And they parted his raiment, and cast lots. And the people stood beholding. And the rulers also with them derided him, saying, He saved others; let him save himself, if he be Christ, the chosen of God.

And the soldiers also mocked him, coming to him, and offering him vinegar, and saying, If thou be the king of the Jews, save thyself.

And a superscription also was written over him in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

And one of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, saying, If thou be Christ, save thyself and us. But the other answering rebuked him, saying, Dost thou not fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation? And we indeed justly, for we received the due reward of our deeds; but this man hath done nothing amiss.

And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. And Jesus said unto him, Verily I say unto thee, To day shalt thou be with me in paradise.

And it was about the sixth hour, and there was a darkness over all the earth, unto the ninth hour. And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst.

And when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit: and having said thus, he gave up the ghost.

Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man. And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote their breasts, and returned. And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, stood afar off, beholding these things.

And, behold, there was a man named Joseph, a counsellor; and he was a good man, and a just: (the same had not consented to the counsel and deed of them;) he was of Arimathea, a city of the Jews: who also himself waited for the kingdom of God.

This man went into Pilate, and begged the body of Jesus. And he took it down, and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a sepulchre that was hewn in stone, wherein never man before was laid.

And that day was the preparation, and the sabbath drew on. And the women also, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the sepulchre, and how his body was laid.

And they returned, and prepared spices and ointments; and rested the sabbath day according to the commandment.

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre. And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments: and as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee, saying, The Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.

And they remembered his words, and returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest. It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told these things unto the apostles.

Merck's city expansion part of larger project

The expansion of facilities and renovation of the Merck and Company, incorporated in Rahway are only a small part of a company expansion program for the city-based pharmaceutical firm.

A $46 million facility for the manufacture of the active ingredient in Aldomet, a prescription drug for treating high blood pressure, is under construction at the company plant in Danville, Pa.

Also being built is a plant in Ireland at a cost of $68 million for the production of bulk chemicals for further processing into pharmaceutical products mainly for the use of Merck plants in Europe.

What is described as being the world's largest granular activated carbon plant is being constructed at Catlettsburg, Ky., for Merck's Calgon Corporation subsidiary.

In November ground was broken for a Calgon plant in Belgium. Together the Kentucky and Belgium facilities will cost $31 million.

Kelco Company, another Merck subsidiary, is building a $37 million plant in Okmulgee, Okla., for the production of a variety of specialty biogums used for the control of water in food processing.

In addition a plant was opened in Paxton, Ill., for the manufacture of water cooling and conservation equipment for the Merck subsidiary, Baltimore Aircoil Company.
