

Council votes to rent out gas company building for use as unemployment office; sets Sisto meet

One of the most frequently asked questions in Rahway was answered on April 17 when city councilmen voted 5-3 to rent out the old Elizabethtown Gas Company building in the New Jersey department of labor and industry for use as an unemployment office.

Debate over rental of the building and discussion on holding a public hearing on the controversial $100 monthly permit were the only high points in another quiet council session. Voting against use of the gas building as an unemployment office were located at Central Avenue and Hamilton Street will be rented on a monthly basis for the sum of $500 a month. Unemployment service personnel would only occupy the second level floor.

In addition city officials promised to provide routine janitorial functions as well as continue to provide for building utilities such as heat and electricity. Telephone service would not be included.

Improvements to the building made for the benefit of state personnel will be paid for by state officials after approval is received from local authorities.

Under the conditions of the resolution passed by the councilmen state personnel may also use existing building facilities such as parking spaces and rest rooms.

Councilman Marsh said the services the city would have to provide would result in a loss in income to the city and not a gain as the $500 a month rent would indicate.

He then resumed criticisms made at the March council meeting saying the building should be sold, so it could be put back on the tax rolls.

The Republican councilman warned the clause providing for janitorial service would probably mean a new employee in the future. He said the office should instead be located in a city hall where he claimed there was enough room to accommodate.

Councilman Voynik echoed his colleague's remarks and noted once state agency personnel occupy the building their presence would serve as a deterrent to selling the structure.

Fourth ward Democratic councilman Walter McLeod noted the building is already occupied by personnel from the traffic and juvenile bureaus of the city police department thus necessitating janitorial service and utilities.

He said since the building has been maintained without compensation for about two and one-half years and residents have a real need for the service of the unemployment agency, it would be best to rent the building to the state.

FRESH AS THE FLOWERS ... The baby parade used to be an annual event in Rahway at the early part of the century. Amzi Leonard, an employee of 'Baumann's Florist' of Rahway, took this photograph of his nephew Thomas W. Burton, Jr., center, during the parade of either 1919 or 1920. Despite the passage of years Mr. Burton of 879 West Inman Avenue is still a city resident and Baumann Florist, established in 1858, is still in business.

Wagner pleads guilty to embezzlement charge

The past treasurer of Rahway local no. 31 of the Policemen's Benevolent Association pled guilty in superior court in Elizabeth on April 10 to a one-count accusation charging him with the embezzlement of $8,364.50 of PBA funds.

Kenneth N. Siegel, assistant Union County prosecutor, said city patrolman Robert E. Wagner will face a maximum sentence of three years and a maximum fine of $1,000.

The defendant, a veteran of 25 years on the city force, will be sentenced by Judge Richard P. Muscatello in the county courthouse in Elizabeth on Friday, May 9, according to assistant prosecutor Siegel.

It was reported Wagner surrendered to city police on February 27, just prior to his retirement from force on March 1. The assistant prosecutor said it will be up to civil service commissioners to decide if Wagner will receive his pension.

The 54-year-old Wagner pled guilty before the case ever reached a grand jury, the assistant prosecutor noted. The charge said the officer embezzled the association funds while serving as club treasurer from November 1968 to October of last year.

Wagner, a resident of 212 Jefferson Avenue, was represented by David M. Feinberg, a city attorney. Assistant prosecutor Siegel said the embezzlement was discovered following the election of association officers late last year. At that time Daniel Stone assumed the presidency and Joseph Cotignola became treasurer.

It was said in reviewing the association books Mr. Cotignola found $230 entered as the yearly salary for the treasurer. In reality the treasurer was only entitled to a salary of $130, according to the prosecutor's assistant.

It was revealed at the trial that Wagner wrote himself a check for $130 and then had it countersigned by the then PBA president Donald Caulfield.

It was reported that Wagner would then change the numeral 1 to 2. He also reportedly would scratch out the word "one" and write over it "two." The accusation also detailed a complicated set of transactions which allegedly allowed Wagner to transfer association funds apparently to his benefit.

An investigation by association officials followed the discovery of the check altering incidents, according to the assistant prosecutor. It was also referred to city police chief Theodore Polhamus.

Although an audit had begun in the city, it was said, the matter was soon brought to the attention of the Union County prosecutor, William Bonelli of the prosecutor's staff then began his own audit which reflected the loss of $8,364.50.

Complaints against the defendant on various charges, including embezzlement, were signed on December 27, according to assistant prosecutor Siegel.

The county official noted as part of a plea bargaining process the state will recommend dismissal of municipal complaints against Wagner.

The charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, forgery and embezzlement brought at the city

John C. Kenny of 567 West Inman Avenue was appointed to a five-year term on the Rahway redevelopment agency in a 5-3 vote at the April 14 council session.

Opposing him were Republican councilmen Louis C. Boehl of the sixth ward, Peter M. Donovan of the fifth ward and John C. Marsh of the second ward. First ward Republican councilman Eugene D. Gentsch was absent from the session.

The Republican trio earlier tried to reappoint Joseph Meffe whose expired term will go to Mr. Kenny. Their move lost in a 3-5 vote.

The same trio failed in another 3-5 vote to appoint Kenneth Treadwell to the housing authority. By a 5-3 vote John McGrath of 1431 St. George Avenue won the five-year term.

In other appointments a list of special policemen was unanimously approved and Samuel Rothstein of 1113 Midwood Drive was elected and appointed a constable.

Two ordinances were passed on second reading. The first concerned a buffer strip of greenery to be added to the new city hall complex to be built on lower Main Street.

This ordinance, which was slightly amended on the recommendation of planning board members, passed with only councilman Marsh dissenting. There was no public comment.

The second concerned a $146,000 bond ordinance for the extension of Hart Street and the purchase of various equipment, including a street sweeper, garbage truck and flashers. It was unanimously amended to change the life of the bonds from 17 to nine years. As this was ruled a substantial change by the city attorney a public hearing will be held on the amendment at the next council session.

Councilman Marsh objected to the ordinance saying flashers, as a safety item, should be included in the budget and not bonded. He also objected to the garbage truck saying the garbage contractor should be made to "uphold" his

Final Maurice Avenue subdivision hearing held

The final hearing on the Maurice Avenue subdivision request from officials of Ottmar Construction Company was held before city planning board members on April 10 in council chambers in city hall.

It was estimated a dozen Maurice Avenue residents rose at the session to speak in opposition to the application. None were said to have spoken in favor. At the conclusion of the public session the attorneys presented 20 minute summations.

According to Eric Rickes, a spokesman for the disgruntled citizens who hired Walter Fryga to challenge the request, areas residents are mainly concerned with flooding. He said the lot is a "wet area" which receives much runoff water from both Clark and Linden. The citizens, he explained, are worried the construction would increase runoff.

To dramatize their statement a movie was shown of conditions in the area during a rain storm. It allegedly showed one resident standing in his backyard with water almost up to his hips.

According to Jay B. Bloom of Springfield, attorney for Ottmar officials, the company would construct 17 homes on about 3.4 acres if the request was granted.

He said the one-family, three-bedroom homes would probably sell for about $50,000. He noted the company plans were approved in a letter from the Union County engineer to the department of environmental protection.

He also submitted a letter from the Union County planning board noting its approval. The letter from board members, however, cited the need for a detention basin.

Called as witnesses by Mr. Bloom during the six sessions were Richard Luster, municipal engineer for Scotch Plains and Fanwood, doctor Abraham Elsamak, a professor of city planning from Rutgers, the State University, real estate appraiser Dudley Painter and traffic consultant John Christ.

Mr. Fryga's witnesses, in addition to the citizens, included Saul Schachter of Schachter Realty in Linden and the engineer hired by the citizens.

Among the citizens were two Clark residents, Rocco Tropeano of Douglas Drive and Walter Wolcicki of Maurice Avenue, who reside within 200 feet of the proposed construction.

It was noted if the subdivision wins approval the applicants will still need the permission of the city zoning board. Mr. Rickes claimed seven of the 17 homes would require variances.

He further noted a new street would be constructed which would make two existing homes non-conforming. The residents of one of these homes reportedly opposes the plan while those in the other were said to be non-committal.

Mr. Rickes estimated he has the support of 42 families or all but six households on the block. He said many of the residents favored using the land as a park.

During the session Mr. Rickes read a letter from the general superintendent of the Union County park commission noting the superintendent's opposition to the proposed development since it would be adjacent to county park land.

Rahway Republicans form organization to promote candidacy of Arthur Manner

The candidacy of former state assemblyman Arthur Manner of Berkeley Heights received another boost through the formation of "Rahway Citizens for Art Manner" and the appointment of Peter M. Donovan as group chairman.

At the same time Mr. Manner, who is seeking the 22nd assembly district nomination against William J. Maguire of Clark and Donald F. DiFrancesco of Scotch Plains, announced his opposition to a state income tax.

Fifth ward Republican councilman Donovan said, "Mr. Manner's demonstrated concern for the problems of flood control, unemployment, fiscal responsibility and corruption, plus his strong legislative opposition to an unnecessary state income tax, make his candidacy stand above the crowd." Other group officers are vice chairman Joseph Meffe of 2359 Whittier Street, executive secretary Miss Terri Malone of 625 Cora Place, treasurer Adm. A. Mackow of 1990 Luthery Street and Mrs. James J. (Josephine) Fulcomer of 384 Raleigh Road.

Mrs. Malone cited the former Berkeley Heights mayor's "courageous and public objection to the reactionary elimination of the state committee members and young Republicans from the Union County legislative screening committee."

She also hailed "Mr. Manner's call for increasing the membership of the committees as they represent all rank-and-file Republicans, not just a small, power-greedy clique." Councilman Donovan noted Mr. Manner's record of two years service in the assembly and three years on the Union County board of chosen freeholders. He was also a Berkeley Heights township committeeman. "The proposed income tax, presented as a necessity to finance schools, will raise far more money than needed for that purpose," Mr. Manner said. He called for the elimination of salary increases for cabinet members and the governor, the end of maintenance allowances for state officials and having judges pay their own pensions as ways to cut the budget deficit without increased taxation.

The News-Record staff reporter accurately interpreted what was told to him and did in fact on many occasions throughout the petitions controversy concerning the additional firehouse appropriation speak to members of the opposing parties involved to gain their opinions. In no instance, as it is very clear from a reading of the article, does the newspaper state the men, Alonzo W. Lawrence and James Simpson, were guilty of any of the allegations in fact being investigated by the local prosecutor.

News-Record asked to retract article on firehouse battle

The Rahway News-Record was asked to retract statements made in the January 9 edition concerning the article headlined "Lawrence warns mayor on libel." City attorney rules association petitions improper, forgery charges may loom for Lawrence, Simpson.

The News-Record was told prior to publication of the January 9 edition by a source in the administration that city officials were turning the petitions over to the local prosecutor, which in fact they did, to investigate allegations of forgery and false swearing of oaths. It should be clearly stated that in each case where the charges were made, The News-Record was careful to note it "was told," it "learned" or "it was asserted."

Never did The News-Record state these men have bad reputations, nor does it now, nor have any facts been brought to the attention of the newspaper to confirm the allegations. The News-Record staff reporter accurately interpreted what was told to him and did in fact on many occasions throughout the petitions controversy concerning the additional firehouse appropriation speak to members of the opposing parties involved to gain their opinions. In no instance, as it is very clear from a reading of the article, does the newspaper state the men, Alonzo W. Lawrence and James Simpson, were guilty of any of the allegations in fact being investigated by the local prosecutor.

The fact of the matter is that the Rahway Taxpayers Association, of which Messrs. Lawrence and Simpson are officers, announced in a paid newspaper advertisement that it was "spearing" a petition drive seeking to bar added appropriations for the new firehouse.

Those two men were later pictured in The News-Record personally handing stacks of petitions to city clerk Robert W. Schrof. Subsequently the same petitions were in fact turned over to local prosecutor Theodore Romankow to investigate allegations of forgery and false swearing of oaths.

As part of the prosecutor's investigation a detective was assigned to the case and he did in fact interview Mr. Lawrence. After the local investigation Mr. Romankow did in fact turn the petitions over to the Union County prosecutor's office for further investigations of the charges.

The News-Record did not and does not seek to harm Messrs. Lawrence and Simpson or to in anyway injure their good names. The pair of their own choosing publicly associated themselves and their organization with the petitions.

The gentlemen, thus, are in fact associated with the petitions and the petitions are in fact the subject of an investigation for allegations of forgery and false swearing of oaths. This did not and does not mean, nor was it ever said to mean, the gentlemen are guilty of anything.

City wins first round in new firehouse fight

The walls of the new Main Street firehouse will continue to rise, according to city attorney Alan Karcher who said the possibility of a temporary restraining order on construction was defeated on April 15.

At that time Elizabeth superior court judge Harold Ackerman ruled against an injunction sought by opponents of the firehouse. Among the arguments raised by the foes was the failure to include completion dates in the advertised bids and the failure to specify preference for American products, according to the attorney.

Mr. Karcher said the city will have to return to court on Friday, May 16, to show cause why further construction should not be enjoined. He was optimistic on the outcome.

He announced at the April 14 council session that a suit which involved the city and was brought by opponents of the 1973 reevaluation was summarily dismissed. He said the ruling was made in Elizabeth superior court by Judge Henry Osborne on April 11.

Professor sees new music synthesizer gaining acceptance and understanding

Just about everyone knows musicians must practice in order to perform well but how many realize listeners must practice to understand and enjoy unfamiliar musical language?

Among those who do understand is Michael L. Smolanoff, an assistant professor of music at Rutgers, the State University. Professor Smolanoff concentrates on the Synthi 100 and the rather exotic electronic music it produces at the new Rutgers fine arts building at the Camden campus.

Professor Smolanoff, who was introduced to electronic music as a faculty member at the Philadelphia Musical Academy, explains to the uninitiated that "the Moog is the most common electronic musical instrument. What distinguishes the more advanced Synthi 100 from the Moog is its computerized memory bank."

And yet, he said, the public should not get the idea the Synthi 100 is an excessively complex instrument.

"You do not have to be an engineer to compose on the synthesizer," the Lindenwood resident explained. "Instead of writing down notes on paper, you start to compose by placing pins in a matrix."

The matrix is connected to oscillators, which are the sources of sound and which in turn are connected to speakers. To complete the process, the composition is sent through a bank of filters to limit the range of preferences or modify the sound quality and then is stored in the memory bank. Use of the memory bank permits the recall of sounds, series of sounds or combinations of sounds as desired.

Professor Smolanoff suggested this is a simplified version of the process but at the same time he emphasized that synthesized music is "a small but important part of 20th century sound. Any music major who is not familiar with this new performing art has a gap in his education," he said.

The machine is made in England, and there is only one other Synthi 100 in the United States, at Indiana University. The refined version of this instrument is part of an electronic music laboratory in the fine arts building.

Professor Smolanoff believes synthesized music "adds a new dimension to live performance." He says it is part of the movement to find new ways of playing traditional instruments such as clarifying a flute or violin.

The reason audiences sometimes do not feel comfortable with the new medium is there is a lack of understanding and non-acceptance associated with any new art form, professor Smolanoff said.

To avoid this difficulty

he always composes his scores for a "combination" performance. His music is purchased with a tape of recorded music from the Synthi 100 which serves as an accompaniment for the musicians.

But despite minor difficulties professor Smolanoff sees "music going through a renaissance." And most new works, he says, are being played by chamber groups associated with colleges.

He believes the reasons for the upswing in music are primarily economic. Most recordings are limited to the classes to avoid payment of royalty fees, and professional musicians are familiar with these works so the rehearsal time is less costly, he said.

Professor Smolanoff predicts an exciting multimedia concept, including music, dance, film and light in a "theatre package," will be the distinguishing mark of music in this century.

The Rutgers teacher firmly believes electronic music will work its way into modern music history as more works are composed and as audiences develop an understanding and appreciation of the music.

ENGINEERS EXOTIC ELECTRONIC ORCHESTRA ... Professor Michael L. Smolanoff prepares to produce the latest in rather exotic electronic music on the Synthi 100 at the new fine arts building at Rutgers, the State University in Camden. The Synthi 100 at Camden is one of only two such instruments located in the United States.

City Italians set bus ride to view play

The annual bus ride to Watchung View Inn will be held by members of the ladies' auxiliary of the Rahway Italian American Club on Sunday, May 4. The women will view a performance of "The Odd Couple."

Buses will leave from the clubhouse on the corner of Inman and New Brunswick Avenues at 6:30 p.m. Reservations for the dinner and show must be made with chairman Mrs. Frederick Grimaldi by Monday, April 21.

Members will host an international covered dish social at the clubhouse on Saturday, May 10. The event, to be held in cooperation with men's club members, will celebrate the completion of the newly-decorated bar.

Tickets will not be sold. Members and guests will gain admission with their food entries. Those planning to attend should contact Mrs. Anthony Abate at 382-9463 concerning what food they will bring.

Mrs. James Cherego, chairwoman of the "June Birthday Party," asked for volunteers to assist her in preparations. Those interested in joining her committee should telephone 381-5954.

Lake Avenue curbing cited by safety council members

Rahway Safety Council members will request city councilmen repair curbing on the north side of Lake Avenue running parallel to Roosevelt School play area, according to safety council secretary Louis R. Rizzo.

Mr. Rizzo said the decision to make the request came at the March 8 safety council meeting following a report by Frederick A.

Chenevert.

Mr. Chenevert said the curbing "is in a deplorable condition permitting automobiles to jump the curbing onto the blacktop where children play," according to Mr. Rizzo.

At the same meeting patrolman Nerton Avery, the city police department representative to the council, reported on action being taken to counter speeding on Lake Avenue.

President Harold R. Ojertson, representative to the Union County Safety Council, announced he will attend a seminar on traffic development and safety signals at Rutgers, the State University on April 9.

Frederick Grimaldi reported school crossing guards are being evaluated in preparation for awarding a plaque to the best guard in June.

Plans for a trip to Bear Mountain and West Point are being finalized for school safety patrol members, according to school safety director and school and child safety committee chairman Wade A. Link.

The trip for the estimated 181 members is tentatively scheduled for Tuesday, May 27, with four buses leaving Rahway at 9 a.m.

New Jersey may lose $44 million because of supreme court ruling

As joint appropriations committee members wrestled with a $487 million revenue gap in the governor's proposed state budget for 1975 to 1976, the United States supreme court handed down a decision which could void New Jersey's two personal income taxes and cost the state an estimated $44 million in taxes for the coming fiscal year, noted a New Jersey Taxpayers Association spokesman.

Last month the high court ruled unconstitutional the New Hampshire commuter income tax on non-residents, he explained.

Since the tax falls exclusively on non-residents' incomes and is not offset by other taxes imposed on New Hampshire residents, he reported, the court held the commuter income tax was in violation of the privileges and immunities clause of the United States Constitution (article no. 4, section no. 2), which says each state must grant non-residents the same privileges as its own citizens.

New Jersey levies a pair of taxes on the personal incomes of non-residents employed in this state, said the tax group spokesman.

The emergency transportation tax enacted in 1961 applies to New York residents working in New Jersey while the transportation benefits tax enacted in 1971 is imposed on earnings of Pennsylvanians employed in the Garden State.

The rates of the particular commuter taxes are identical to those of the taxpayers' home states, he continued. The funds derived from each are placed in separate funds to be used for transportation projects between the state and New Jersey.

He said the governor's revenue estimates for fiscal 1976 include $32 million from the emergency transportation tax and $12 million from the transportation benefits tax.

Some state officials contend the federal court ruling may not be applicable to the New Jersey taxes since the revenue from it was said adoption of a statewide personal income tax in New Jersey would relieve doubt regarding legality of the levies now imposed by New Jersey upon non-residents. Out-of-state citizens would then be taxed at New Jersey rates and the taxes would no longer be limited to New York and Pennsylvania residents but to all residents employed in New Jersey.

Advocates of a statewide personal income tax offer the ruling in the New Hampshire case as an additional argument for passage of a personal income levy as a major revenue source, noted the tax association representative.

Trio of hits keeps Clark police moving

A 29-year-old Rahway man walked away with only minor injuries on April 12 after the car he was driving struck a stone wall at Valley and Annum Roads in Clark. The automobile reportedly went out of control while traveling at a high speed.

Police said James Caverly of 1035 Stone Street was treated for lacerations of the face at Rahway Hospital.

Two men were also arrested in Clark on drunk driving charges after two other separate accidents.

Police said Randy Pinkham, 18, of 70 Prescott Turn, struck two parked cars on Oak Ridge Road near the golf course and left the scene.

He was arrested shortly after midnight by patrolman Guy Everest. Pinkham was released in his own recognizance.

John Czarnik, 27, of 173 Harrison Avenue, Colonia, was arrested by patrolman William Zdatko at 12:35 a.m. after he allegedly struck a car parked on Raritan Road near Lake Avenue and then reportedly backed-up and struck the car behind him.

Linden official notes rises

Net income for the first three months of this year was up 34% or $135,021 from the comparable period last year for Community State Bank and Trust Company of Linden, according to bank president Lloyd Harris.

The announcement came at the annual meeting of bank stockholders in the main bank office, 601 North Wood Avenue, Linden, on April 8. About 60 stockholders were in attendance.

He said income from all loan categories was higher with expenses appropriately lower. Mr. Harris told the stockholders the recent bank calculator promotion had produced over $1.2 million in new deposits.

Also the bank's new service known as "Write-A-Loan" featuring a free checking account with an overdraft loan service had reportedly brought in $24 new checking account customers and over $300,000 in new installment loan business. He said committed lines for use of the new service totaled nearly $1.5 million.

Start bicycle rental at park

At the present time the rental concession is open only on weekends from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Puppet show held at Hehrly

A puppet show entitled "Smookey Earns a Star" was performed by the third-grade students of Miss Luce Cassidy at Frank K. Hehrly School in Clark.

The play, concerning safety at school and at home, was an outgrowth of several class lessons and involved social studies, language arts, mathematics, science, art and music.

The play was adapted and directed by Miss Beth Turkish, a student teacher from St. Peter's College of Jersey City. The children made the puppets, scenery and props. The performance was given for parents and kindergarten students.

Both Case, Williams angered at FCC story

United States senators Clifford P. Case and Harrison A. Williams, Jr. wrote the federal communications commission on April 3 to protest what they said are reported attitudes of commissioners which appear to represent an affront to the people of New Jersey.

In a letter to chairman Richard Wiley, the senators from New Jersey referred to a recent article in The Evening Times of Trenton which they said portrayed the commissioners and the staff of the FCC as treating lightly the issue of improved television coverage for the state.

Junior swatters win
The swatters from Rahway Junior High School opened their season with a bang defeating Roselle 12-5 and shutting out Clark 5-0. Keith Hugger aided the former win while Kevin White's three-hitter helped in the latter.

Drag racing on township road by youths leads to $50 fines, suspension of licenses

Two younger residents of Clark convicted of drag racing on Madison Hill Road were fined $50 and given 45-day license suspensions last Thursday by municipal court judge Joseph Postizzi.

Also fined $10 in court costs for racing were Robert J. Herbig of 25 Blake Drive, Clark, and Samuel Dordoni of 74 Prescott Turn, Clark. According to the arresting police officer, another individual was yelling obscenities and making obscene gestures out of Herbig's automobile during the race.

Joseph J. Santosalvo of 2041 Prospect Street, Scotch Plains, was fined $200 and $10 in court costs for driving while on the revoked list. He also received a $10 fine for a stop sign violation.

A two-year revocation of his driver's license and a $200 fine were given to George Segels of 534 Garden Avenue, Woodbridge. He was penalized for drunk driving.

For driving while his ability was impaired William J. Loeffler of Glenwood Avenue, East Orange, was fined $100 and $10 in court costs.

Careless driving cost Richard Crater of 401 West Price Street, Linden, $20 and $10 in court costs. For driving while on the revoked list Allen P. Hodges of 1161 Bergen Street, Newark, was fined $200 and $10 in court costs.

Brian J. Connelly of 85 Jordan Road, Colonia was fined $20 and $10 in court costs for driving 65 mph in a 25-mph zone.

For not inspecting his vehicle James Constandi of 653 Myrtle Avenue, Garwood, was fined $10 and $10 in court costs.

Both Morris E. Rosenbaum of 31 Greenwood Drive, Millburn, and John Awains of 95 Oakland Terrace, Newark, were fined $20 and $10 in court costs for driving recklessly.

Benjamin H. Snavely of 1108 Hampton Place, Elizabeth, paid a total of $340 in fines and had his driving rights revoked for six months. He was convicted of driving while on the revoked list without registration or insurance and of missing license plates.

Three individuals were held for the Union County prosecutor's office and placed under $10,000 bail. There were charged with the possession of a handgun, a small quantity of drugs and several minor traffic violations.

Charged were Maurice Orange, and Houston D. Washington of 1422 First Street Southwest, Washington, D. C.

Barber shop quartets set for Westfield date

While many people may feel spring begins with a date on the calendar, members of the Colonial Chorus say the official harbinger is the annual "spring thing" of the local chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Incorporated.

This year's show, "Two on the Aisle," will feature three quartets "The Sound Revival," Mid-Atlantic district representatives to the society's international quartet competition this June, "The Note-Wits," a comedy quartet and "The Treetops." The Hickory Tree chapter of Sweet Adelines, Incorporated, and the local group, last year's suburban area champions, will also be featured.

The show will take place Saturday, April 19, at Westfield High School on Rahway Avenue at Dorian Road in Westfield. Curtain time will be 8:15 p.m.

A few tickets to "Two on the Aisle" are still available and may be obtained by telephoning 245-9588 or 233-6296. James R. Power, a former president of the local chapter, is ticket chairman.

A LITTLE MUSICAL COMEDY... The Note-Wits combine comedy with close, four-part, barbershop-style harmony. Area audiences can enjoy their routines Saturday evening, April 19, in "Two on the Aisle," the spring presentation of The Colonial Chorus, local chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Incorporated. City to rent old gas site for NJ office agreed with councilman McLeod.

Mayor Daniel L. Martin noted the police services would continue to be provided from second floor offices.

The state agency would be staffed by an estimated two or three people, according to city business administrator Joseph M. Harnett. Mr. Harnett said there would probably be no more than 25 or 30 people in the office at one time.

Mr. Harnett and councilman Marsh disagreed briefly over the amount of taxes the building could yield the city. The administrator estimated the taxes would amount to $6,000 a year or about $500 a month, the same as the rent.

Increase in vandalism and violence in schools demands serious action

As many teachers, parents and students have believed for many years the level of violence and vandalism in American public schools is reaching a crisis level. Confirming evidence for this belief was supplied by a report issued by United States senators. As part of their findings the legislators noted 70,000 teachers are the victims of serious physical assault each year in America. In 1973 alone 100 students were murdered in the 757 school districts surveyed.

The report stated between 1970 and 1973 homicides increased by 18.5%, rapes and attempted rapes by a staggering 40.1%, robberies by 36.7%, assaults on students by an unbelievable 85.3%, assaults on teachers by an almost equal 77.4%, burglaries of school buildings by 11.8%, and drug and alcohol abuses on school property by 37.5%.

Perhaps worst of all was the fact that confiscations of weapons by school authorities by the end of the 1973 school year increased a reported 54.4%. Far from being a sign that these weapons included knives, clubs, pistols and even saved-off shotguns which were said to be designed to be easily concealed in student lockers.

The report spoke of "an unprecedented wave of wanton destruction and vandalism" which one senator estimated cost $500 million a year to rectify. He aptly described this sum as a "vandalism surtax."

There is no easy solution to this problem. Placing policemen in the schools only heightens tension and creates animosity while doing little to actually curb violence, as figures from many big cities where police are patrolling schools prove.

A much better project, and one practiced with success in the local area, is having officers address children in the lower grades when a more lasting impression can be made and bonds of friendship can be forged. That and good surveillance of school grounds by both police and school-area residents at night will go far.

Even more important is the role of the teacher. As many of the troublemakers come from disturbed homes and poor environments, the teacher can curb hostile, anti-social tendencies by presenting the school as an alternate environment. When positive feelings are attached to the school and its structures vandalism should decrease.

But at the same time teachers should be strict in their defense of school property. Senseless damage to educational property should be punished with the same vigor as falsification of a research paper or cheating on an examination. In the ancient world students would join a school as one would a family and they were expected to maintain the communal property and do their share of the chores. Such classical learning should be reinstated.

New measures needed to ease and encourage adoption of US children

The outpouring of offers by Americans to adopt Vietnamese orphans has revealed the difficulties involved in adopting children, whether they are American or foreign born, for thousands of couples and for single people in the United States.

American couples have trouble adopting children because most of them want very young children. The liberalization of abortion laws in the United States has made the adoption of foreign children much more common. But another side of the problem is that private adoption agencies in the United States are confronted with a maze of state laws and regulations and very often lack information on adoptable children in other states.

I was struck by a letter from a New Jersey couple who wrote to me describing their anguish in trying to adopt a baby. They have a good income and a three-bedroom home in the suburbs and are unable to have children. "Both of us have a great deal of love, understanding and patience and would enjoy the challenge, excitement and rewards of helping a child grow, love, learn and mature," they wrote.

The adoption agency informed them after several interviews that no white children were available for adoption. They went to another agency that put them on a waiting list with 350 other applicants. They did so with the knowledge that only 75 of the 350 couples would be accepted because of the lack of adoptable children.

There is not much chance this couple or many others will ever have the opportunity to adopt an unwanted child or orphan. It is no wonder several thousand American couples have opened their arms to Vietnamese children despite the cries of a few critics that the children are better off being raised in their own culture.

Everyone hopes the 1,700 Vietnamese orphans brought here find loving parents to raise them. But one side effect it can have is to focus attention on American born orphans in the United States who need and want homes.

Department of health, education and welfare officials estimate there are as many as 120,000 children in this country waiting to be adopted. According to officials of the Child Welfare League of America, this figure could be as high as 190,000, or 10 times more than the number of Vietnamese orphans flown to the United States.

Before the military collapse of South Vietnam I sponsored two companion bills aimed at assisting in the adoption of American orphans. The first would establish within the department of health, education and welfare the computer capability for keeping track of all adoptable children. Both private and public agencies would have free access to the system to facilitate the adoption of out-of-state children or children from abroad.

This is clearly needed in view of the fact that, although Vietnamese orphans are now finding homes,

Chief to talk to city Dems

Rahway police chief Theodore Polhamus will address the members of the city Fourth Ward Democratic Club tonight on the subject of block watchers, according to club president Harvey Williams.

The announcement came at the April 7 meeting of the Rahway Democratic Club. It was also announced that members of the city-wide club will hold a Chinese auction on Tuesday, May 27, at 8 p.m., at the American Legion hall on Maple Avenue.

Samuel J. Flynn, president of the citywide club, reminded residents that club meetings are held the first Monday of every month at the legion hall at 8:30 p.m. The public may attend.

Heyburn criticizes board member for alleged failure to salute flag

I was amazed to read legion commander Alfred Huggers' letter to The Rahway News-Record referring to the ingrate who will not salute our flag.

As an individual he has the right under our Constitution but being a member of the Rahway board of education he has no place in our society. This is America.

I would like to take him on a tour to our naval academy in Annapolis, Md., so he could feel the pulse of patriotism which prevails.

He should go through a memorial hall which honors the exploits of naval heroes and is highlighted by commander Matthew Perry's immortal flag which bears the legend "Don't Give Up the Ship."

We would not have to travel that far. I could take him or her to Philadelphia so he or she could touch the Liberty Bell. If it was sure it would not crack more.

Never yet would he right here in Rahway, any Monday at 1 p.m. at the senior citizens center on Esterbrook Avenue or the Rahway Retired Men's Club with black and white members, opening meetings with the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by members 60 to 90 years of age.

The best thing for this individual to do is to resign as soon as he can. Right now he is heat. He would never get another chance in Rahway.

Dodd's call for return to basics in education both timely and correct

By E. Sidman Wachter

It is predictable the educationists, the educational hierarchy which stands to benefit from extravagance in educational expenditures, would raise a hue and cry over the suggestion of state senate president Frank J. Dodd of Orange that school programs should be reduced to "basic skills."

Of course state senator Dodd said precisely what parents and taxpayers have been saying for several years, but their remarks have fallen on deaf ears. The educationists shouted them down. It remained for a man of the state senator's prestige to render the suggestion of a return to educational basics worthy of consideration.

Educational frills should indeed be eliminated. Youngsters should obviously be taught to read, write, spell, punctuate, add and subtract with facility before they are "socially promoted" out of elementary school. The fuss raised by the colleges of Livingston College, a tax-supported institution, over the mere possibility of literacy becoming a prerequisite for graduation from college, demonstrated how nonsensical is the present system of so-called education.

According to a nationally syndicated columnist, 5% of all youngsters in this nation between ages 12 and 17 (1 million out of 23 million) cannot read or write. She calls this degree of illiteracy alarming since until reading has been mastered no other academic discipline can be achieved.

"Let Johnny begin his literary life with Aesop's fables or the easy rhythms of Robert Louis Stevenson," she wrote. "But never please a passing glance at things like 'Look, John, see how Mary runs!' Such rubbish not only insults a child's intelligence it sours him on the printed word forever. The 'New England Primer' and McGuffey readers with short selections from the classics produced two generations of fluent readers, many of whom went on reading all their lives."

Few of today's middle-aged adults, other than those whose parents paid school taxes and also paid their tuition at private or parochial schools, were taught in small classes. Yet the educational competence of high school graduates presently in their late 30s or older is far greater than that of most post-1955 graduates. Ask any personnel manager or department head.

Neither money nor hills nor even swimming pools should be the criterion of "thorough and efficient" education. School systems should be judged by their products, and according to scholastic aptitude tests and other nationwide examinations, the over-all educational achievements of young people are declining every year. Courses in southern European cooking and the like for high school credit should forthwith be eliminated along with elaborate, intricate and immoral sex education. Familiarity with history and science should be required for high school graduation. Those incapable of, or disinterested in, making the academic grade should be routed to vocational-technical schools where hopefully they may master skills to make them self-reliant adults.

Plain common sense should prevail on educational programs and costs. Money must be saved at both the state and local levels. In view of the recession and the taxpayers' desperation, state senator Dodd is to be complimented for speaking out.

Mrs. Ward notes consumer aid available for township residents

As the duly appointed representative of Clark in the consumer affairs local assistance program of the New Jersey division of consumer affairs I feel it necessary to comment on the generous offer of John F. Allaire Jr. to aid Clark consumers in his advertisement on page no. 2 of The Clark Patriot of April 10.

When he first expressed a concern for the welfare of his fellow citizens earlier this year I advised him official state authority and training were available for his use. To date he has ignored both. Only time and subsequent actions will reveal the sincerity of Mr. Allaire's commitment.

I have been serving actively since my appointment in March of last year.

I do not see the need of an advertisement but I wish to list the following items:

- my phone number is listed at the municipal building, the New Jersey division of consumer affairs in Newark and local telephone directories;
- I further the local calling area of the readers of this paper;
- all calls are handled by me personally and I have visited both parties in disputes when necessary and —I am not now, have never been nor intend to be a candidate for elective office.

The councilman, and members of Rahway Citizens for Flood Control with which he is affiliated, oppose the landfill on the northeasterly side of Robinson's Branch saying it would increase flooding in the area.

A request from flood control group members to hold a hearing, based on an article in the city flood plain ordinance, was denied by city attorney Alan Karcher.

With this in mind councilman Cervellari was quick to emphasize his request was based on what he called the inherent right of councilmen to hold a hearing on any matter of public interest.

The hearing was set for Friday, April 25, at 8 p.m. in council chambers in city hall. Additional news on the Sisto controversy will be found on page 3.

Councilman Marsh attempted to expand the hearing to include other landfill operations including, he said, one on New Brunswick Avenue and work behind the mayor's home.

His motion failed in a close 4-4 vote with Democratic councilmen McLeod, Francis R. Senkowsky and Wilson D. Bearegard, council president, plus Republican councilman Voynik voting against it.

When councilman Marsh made his initial comments concerning property owned by the mayor he was criticized by councilman Senkowsky who asked, "Will councilman Marsh ever stop politicking?"

The Republican tried to continue his remarks he was ruled out of order by president Bearegard.

In telling of his support for the hearing councilman Voynik noted special hearings have been held on tennis courts and other matters.

Mrs. Nardoza voices complaint over locked lavatories at RHS

I wonder if the parents of Rahway High School children are aware lavatories are open on only one floor of the school and that they are congested and filled with smoke.

Recently I read a convincing appeal by Victor Kurylak on behalf of the students for a designated smoking area. This was either turned down or ignored. As a result smoking continues in the lavatories causing a fire hazard and constant annoyance to the many students who do not smoke.

The school has handled this problem by closing most of the lavatories. I do not consider this a fair solution. Children especially girls, should have the right to use a convenient, uncrowded lavatory between classes for comfort and hygienic reasons. If they have a class on the third floor why should they have to fight their way into a lavatory on the first floor, especially when it is often not functioning properly and is almost always smoke-filled? After this frustration they may be faced with detention for being late for class.

I believe if the administration listened to the needs of the students the students would in turn have more respect for the facilities of their school.

Friedman raps Pfister's remarks, notes need for some assistance

This letter is prompted by the correspondence of Donald Pfister in The Clark Patriot of April 3. Mr. Pfister stated "food stamps ... will be fattening over 15 million welfare mamas."

He further contended the people who receive these stamps are "able-bodied men on strike, those who prefer breeding bastards to taking a job, and college 'students' ... and virtually anyone else the federal government can locate to qualify as poor."

Next week the supplemental unemployment benefits of both Chrysler Corporation and General Motors will run dry due to the extensive layoffs necessitated by the current economic downturn. I seriously doubt the $67 an automobile worker gets to subsist on can qualify as "fattening welfare mamas."

Although I consider myself far to the right of a "card-carrying liberal," there are instances where economic assistance is needed to survive. In regard to Mr. Pfister's comment on "college students," would it be better to waste a person's talent? Would Mr. Pfister do away with low cost student loans?

Both the major political parties, whom Mr. Pfister labeled "Socialist Party A and Socialist Party B," realize the power of intellectual malcontent. Every major socialist knew their strongest backing would come from frustrated intellectuals and not the people who "spread among them boundless, donations and benefits."

Councilman Marsh challenged the figure saying gas company officials were paying more than that in taxes years ago.

At one point he said taxes would be closer to $9,000 a year.

The first major discussion of the night centered on a request by councilman Cervellari to hold a public hearing on the permit issued for a landfill operation on property owned by the Sisto Realty Company of Linden.

The councilman, and members of Rahway Citizens for Flood Control with which he is affiliated, oppose the landfill on the northeasterly side of Robinson's Branch saying it would increase flooding in the area.

At the same time it was noted state representatives will request the defendant be required to make full restitution to the police association regardless of whether Wagner receives a jail or non-jail sentence.

Assistant prosecutor Siegel said the prosecution would take no position on what type of sentence Wagner should receive.

The county official stressed no public monies were involved in the incident. He also said the "sad occurrence" should not cast any reflections on "the high integrity of other Rahway policemen."

It was reported Wagner's official retirement was suspended until the case is completed in court.

Councilman Marsh labeled unanimous council passage of an ordinance on first reading adopting an official city flag "a flag-waving exhibition."

The councilman said the flag, which was designed during the city centennial celebration in 1958, was officially adopted. City business administrator Robert W. Schorf said no record of official action could be found.

Also passed on first reading was an ordinance prohibiting the consumption of alcoholic beverages in public places or on private property within the city without the permission of the owner.

There was some opposition from traditional critics of council spending during the public hearing on the ordinance. Doubt was also expressed on the feasibility of extending Hart Street because of the condition of the land.

Mayor Daniel L. Martin again tried to appoint Marcus I. Blum and the attempt again failed this time 4-4. Republican councilmen Rich, Marsh, Donovan and Richard J. Voynik of the third ward voted in the negative.

Elujah Bullock of 1227 Park Street was unanimously reappointed to the local assistance board on the recommendation of mayor Martin.

Another fire for city lady despite move

Another fire broke out in the city residence of Mrs. Evelyn Letcavage and although fire officials say the April 9 blaze was probably caused by careless smoking Mrs. Letcavage says it different.

"They are trying to get me," she remarked. She explained the fire was the latest in a series of blazes and other incidents which she says unknown assailants have perpetrated on her property.

The fire was in the trash receptacle in the kitchen of her apartment at 2025 Oliver Street. It was the second fire in a row which she says unknown assailants have perpetrated on her property.

"But this one does not preclude that they were maliciously set," the chief noted.

Crusaders win; Redskins beaten

The Clark Crusaders handed the diamond men from Wall Township their first loss of the season as the boys of Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School won 10-7. In other action the Rahway Indians lost to the Scotch Plains Raiders 5-0. The Crusaders scored eight times in the last of the third inning after Wall scored six runs in the second. Three singles, four walks and a hit gave the Wall visitors a five-run lead. Another run in the third put Wall ahead 7-1. The Clark swatters then produced eight in the last of that inning to take the lead for the rest of the game. Clark had 13 men at the plate. Six Crusaders collected hits and four others walked. One was hit by a pitch. Wayne Jasinski singled and doubled to drive in a pair. Jasinski and Joe Skimmons each picked up three hits in the winning effort. The Crusaders' record is 2-1 while Wall's is 3-1. The Raiders staked Geoff Workman to a 4-0 lead in the first two innings of the city game. After Workman walked two Rahway batters in the fourth and following a long-line drive Eddie Kelly came in for relief. The right-handed sophomore fanned six, walked one and hit a batter in three and two-thirds innings. So it was Kelly who benefited from the Raiders' three-run first.

Clark booters win pair after losing duel

Clark soccer team members, sponsored by the township board of education, opened their season with a loss to Cranford but won two Rahway booters in the fourth and following a long-line drive Eddie Kelly came in for relief. The right-handed sophomore fanned six, walked one and hit a batter in three and two-thirds innings. So it was Kelly who benefited from the Raiders' three-run first. The Clark boys were at full strength for the March 29 away duel with Rahway. All 23 booters were able to play at least one full period as Clark squeezed past a strong city squad 5-1 in a see-saw battle that went right down to the wire. Guido led a well-balanced township attack by scoring the opening goal and then following it up with another after Rahway booters scored their first goal. Clark maintained a one-point advantage throughout most of the match. Goals were courtesy of John Triano, Mike Dezie and Robert Biase. The city booters almost drew a tie when they were awarded a penalty kick with in time on the clock. However Clark goalie Steve Marchant made a strong save to insure his team the victory. On April 6 Clark booters scored a 5-1 victory over Woodbridge in a home game. The township lads had trouble generating an offense in the first quarter but Brian Murphy drove a hard shot into the net early in the second period. Woodbridge booters answered with a goal on a breakaway which just slipped past goalie John Sheehan. Guido broke the deadlock with an early fourth-period blast. After that the Clark boys were on fire. Mike Dezie buried a looping kick by John Triano into the net. Triano followed with a 25-yard kick and Erich Cass rounded out the scoring on a penalty kick in the final minutes of the game. Clark will battle Westfield Sunday, April 20, at 2 p.m. The final three home matches, all at Arthur L. Johnson, will be on Sundays, April 20, May 4 and June 8. City, township Realtors have history of concern

Ever since the establishment of the Rahway Board of Realtors in 1937 members of that body have taken an active interest in the life of the communities they serve.

After establishing the organization on May 18, 1937 under the name Rahway Real Estate Board, the founding members began to petition city officials for the removal of an old east-bound platform of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

They sought the replacement of the so-called temporary wooden structure with a more sound platform. They first presented the motion on August 11, 1937, and although it took three years a new platform went up in 1940.

Despite the many years, and a change of name in May 1965 to the Rahway Board of Realtors, board members continue working for the community by serving on the Rahway planning board and board of adjustment.

Board members also serve on the Rahway development agency and the city United Way drive. Realtors also work with the city Kiwanis Club, Young Men's Christian Association and Rotary Club.

The original board members were president Abraham Weltz, vice president Peter A. Sensenig, secretary John F. Geyer, treasurer William Well and governor Alfred C. Brooks.

Officials of the National Association of Real Estate Boards granted a charter to the group on October 19, 1937. The board was soon affiliated with the New Jersey Association of Realtors which consists of 39 Realtor Boards and 25,000 members.

Membership in the board allows the 27 members to use the designation "Realtor" and display the board emblem. In return the members are required to follow the board code of ethics.

The Rahway board, which includes Realtors in both Clark and Colonia, is one of three real estate boards in Union County. The other two are the Cranford Board of Realtors and the Eastern Union County Board of Realtors.

The current board leadership is composed of president Mrs. James J. (Catherine J.) Reese, vice president Sidney Smith, secretary Mrs. Harold (Hannah) Lynch, treasurer Peter M. Campana, and directors Mrs. Alexander (Julia R.) Stanford, Abraham Reppen and Edmond V. DelPrincipe.

Board members will join Realtors across the country in celebrating National Realtor Week which extends from Sunday to Saturday, April 20-26.

To mark the event, local Realtors sponsored an "Old Photograph Contest" for Rahway and Clark senior citizens.

MAYORS JOIN IN SALUTE ... Both mayors Daniel L. Martin of Rahway and Bernard G. Yarusavage of Clark proclaimed Sunday to Saturday, April 20-26, "Realtor Week" in their respective communities. At the ceremonies were Rahway Board of Realtors treasurer Peter M. Campana, mayor Yarusavage, board president Mrs. James D. (Catherine) Reese and mayor Martin.

Mayors Martin and Yarusavage join in saluting 'Realtor Week'

President of the state Realtor Association, said this will be the second time this program has been run.

During October of last year the program was initiated by two association committees, "Make America Better" and "Urban Task Force."

According to president Reese, homeowners and other residents are urged to spruce up their properties, report abandoned automobiles or refrigerators and generally make New Jersey a better place in which to "live" and work.

The second part of the current campaign will take place from September 22 to October 5.

Charles J. Searles, chairman of the local "Realtor Week" program, will be coordinating entries in the "Old Photograph Contest" for retired, senior citizens of Rahway and Clark for the awarding of $100, $50 and $25 United States savings bonds and a luncheon celebration during "Realtor Week."

Overall revenues increased 11% to $1,222,000 while first quarter earnings per share were $1.04 versus $1.01 last year.

Thomas D. Sayles, Jr., president and chief executive officer, stated the result for the three months, although modest when compared to those of the past several years, must be viewed in relation to the difficult overall economic climate.

Summit Trust income noted

Officials of the Summit Bancorporation of Summit, whose wholly-owned subsidiary is the Summit and Elizabeth Trust Company, reported a first quarter net income of $632,000 for the period ending March 31.

Inn men down Corky's; Drugs beat Rest squad

Old Corner Inn came from behind to defeat Corky's Pals 91-89 to capture the championship of the Clark adult basketball league. In the B division final Clark Drugs stopped Clark Rest 88-62.

Corky's led by the play of 5-foot, 9-inch guard Bruno Iannone, took an early first quarter lead 26-22. However the Inn men rallied behind center Jim Kelly to take a single point halftime edge 46-45.

The game saw-sawed back and forth as the Pals' center Randy Takis scored 14 third-period points to lead his team to a 65-62 margin. But Corner had it when it counted outscoring the losers 29-24 in the final stanza for the victory.

Kelly led the winners with 30 points while Andy Blewjas added 18 and Dennis Kocazek and Ken Tanke each had an even dozen.

Corky's was led by Iannone's 33 points while Takis added 22 and Pat Higgs and Phil Deegan each had 14.

Clark Drugs, which have been up-and-down all season, played one of its best games of the season as it crushed Clark Rest 88-62 for the B division title.

Drugs came out running from the start rolling up an early first quarter edge 20-5 and increased the lead to 44-22 at the half. The Rest men played the Drugsists fairly evenly from that point on but could never come close as the poor first quarter sealed their fate.

The Drugsists were led by Dan Pocus and Frank Wanka, each with 17 points, and Mike Keiri who had 23.

The Rest squad was led by Art Lynch who had 16 points while Rich Curry had 13 and Randy Mulberry had 12.

Tax federation leader asks $489 million cut

Letters calling for a $489 million reduction in the state budget proposed by governor Brendan T. Byrne were sent out to state legislators by Edward T. Magee, president of the Federation of New Jersey Taxpayers.

Mr. Magee said the adoption of his recommendation would eliminate the need for new state taxes, including the controversial proposed state income tax.

Saying the governor sees a $487 million shortage in state income for the next fiscal year, Mr. Magee declared state spending should be cut by $489 million thus ending the need for new taxes.

He proposed the following cuts:

-- $144 million in a "once-only addition" to the Bateman-Tanzman school aid formula.

-- $62 million in aid to dependent children appropriations.

-- $183 million or 7% in department budgets and

-- $100 million from reappropriated balances.

Mr. Magee noted aid to dependent children funds have increased "7,000% since 1953 going from $6 million that year to $419 million in next year's budget."
