Second move to curtail Karcher's influence fails at council meeting; administrator's salary upheld

A second move against city director of law Alan Karcher failed at the June 9 city council meeting when a motion to temporarily delete his salary and that of his legal assistant fell with a 3-3 vote. The motion came in the form of an amendment to a salary ordinance. The first move against the city attorney came at a special council session on June 3 called to discuss that ordinance but action on the measure was postponed until the regular council meeting. At the special session Democratic councilman-at-large Tor Cedervall joined with five Republicans in an attempt to alter the staffing of the legal department in order to create the post of special counsel to the city government. Currently Mr. Karcher holds this post but some of his opinions have not met with favor from councilmen.

At the regular session on Monday second ward Republican councilman John C. Marsh tried to postpone a final decision on Mr. Karcher's fate by moving to eliminate the two salaries from the ordinance pending a future resolution of issues.

The motion won the support of Republican councilmen Eugene D. Gentsch of the first ward and Richard J. Voynik of the third ward plus councilman Marsh but not the backing of councilman Cedervall who abstained.

Voting against the amendment were Democratic councilmen-at-large Francis R. Senkowsky and Willson D. Beaugard, council president, plus Walter McLeod of the fourth ward.

Board will allow student smoking; schools to open Sept. 3 next year

Accusing the board of education of backing down to the students, board member Barry D. Henderson was the lone dissenter on a motion to allow pupils to smoke on school grounds. The new board member also voted against slight changes in the elementary school district lines during Monday evening's special board meeting held in Roosevelt School. The smoking change was part of a new secondary school code of behavior approved by a 8-1 vote. Though a longtime opponent of smokers doctor John J. Sprowls reversed his position saying by letting students smoke outside of school, the deplorable bathroom conditions in the high school may be rectified. He stated students are afraid to use the school's bathrooms and are often expelled for violating smoking laws. The new smoking regulation is effective for two months. Also voting in favor of allowing smoking were board members reverend Orrin T. Hardgrove, Edmund L. Hoener, Mrs. Charles (Miriam) Hull, Donald L. Kennedy, William M. Roesch, doctor Sprowls and Paul A. LoRocco. Board member Paul M. Geyer was absent.

Controversy during the evening centered around changes proposed in the city's elementary school district map. Assistant superintendent of schools Frank Brunette advocated the changes stating the new redistricting plan will allow the plan to eliminate two elementary teachers; lower the number of oversized classes and insure a fair method of having racially-balanced classes.

Though eliminating two elementary teachers there will be two additional secondary teachers next year. Defeated board of education candidate William Wanko protested against the plan and asked who was going to pay for the increased cost of busing. The assistant superintendent countered by claiming there is no evidence to support the redistricting plan will cause an increase in costs.

Speaking for the board Mr. Brunette said there are eight classes this year with over 25 students in a class while under the new plan there will only be five classes as large as 25 students.

Another advantage of the plan according to Mr. Brunette was the range of class sizes would be decreased. He stated last year class sizes ran from 17 to 30 and under the new redistricting proposal they will range from 18 to 26.

The major change in the elementary school plan is to define the areas of Franklin School's district. He said there will be no variations from the districting map as allowed last year. The assistant superintendent said the new plan makes the city one large attendance area under guidelines supplied by title I regulations.

PROCEEDING WITHOUT DELAY, SO FAR... City officials successfully defeated in the courts a challenge to construction of the Main Street firehouse. City business administrator Joseph M. Harnett estimated work on the structure, the subject of numerous suits and public criticism, was between 20% and 25% completed. He said the building, located at Main Street and East Emerson Avenue, would most likely be finished by the end of the year.

plan according to Mr. Brunette was the range of class sizes would be decreased. He stated last year class sizes ran from 17 to 30 and under the new redistricting proposal they will range from 18 to 26.

Mr. Brunette released statistics showing the decline in elementary students. In 1972-1973 there were 2,479. In 1973-1974 there were 2,300 and this year there are 2,242 elementary students.

He needed two Republican votes to accomplish it, but mayor Daniel L. Martin finally succeeded in appointing Marcus I. Blum as municipal magistrate at the June 9 council meeting.

On second reading were ordinances appropriating $20,000 for the resurfacing of various city streets and another authorizing participation in a countywide revenue sharing plan.

October 15 of last year on the extension until a study could be conducted. The postponed measure stated such a study discouraged the extension.

He favored a one-year trial period for the agreement. A resolution stating opposition to a proposed congressional redistricting plan which would possibly place Union County under the domination of Essex County politicians was postponed with councilman Voynik in the negative.

New suit against firehouse dismissed; construction estimated at 20% finished controversial structure be re-bid. This time the suit was dismissed without the judge even considering the arguments raised, according to city director of law Alan Karcher who represented Rahway.

The Main Street firehouse, estimated to be between 20% to 25% completed, weathered another storm with all its bricks remaining in place as another suit brought by the Rahway Taxpayers Association was dismissed on May 29.

According to the city attorney, Judge Ackerman ruled the objections detailed in the suit should have been raised when advertisements for bids were first released and not after construction had already begun on the building. Earlier the judge refused to issue a stop-work order sought on the basis of the same arguments. This was the final determination on the suit.

It was stated the firehouse foes attacked the method of advertising for the bids on the basis that a specification for American products was not included. Mr. Karcher said such a preference is understood and taken for granted. Other objections were said to center on the fact that many of the days over which the ads appeared were either weekends or holidays.

The last criticism was said to involve the failure to ask the number of days in which the project would be completed in the bid specifications.

Mr. Karcher refused to rule out the possibility of another suit, but it was felt to be most unlikely by city business administrator Joseph M. Harnett.

Fire chief George G. Link said the only thing which could possibly delay construction is a strike by ironworkers now being discussed by union members. The possible job action would most likely come in July.

False arrest charge costs Merck and security guard over $70,000

A 44-year-old Cranford engineer not only went home proven innocent, the went home over $70,000 richer on June 3 after having won a suit for false arrest which he brought against Merck and Company, Incorporated of Rahway and a company security guard.

After two hours of deliberation members of a Union County grand jury returned the award for John Rosko of 12 Rutgers Road who sued the city-based pharmaceutical firm and Jonathan Rogeberg following his arrest and imprisonment in 1971 on charges the state company blueprinters.

Members of the jury directed Merck officials to pay Mr. Rosko $68,999.91 plus costs in punitive and compensatory damages and ordered Rogeberg to pay $1,961.73 plus costs.

The engineer, who was represented by New Brunswick attorney Francis J. Lutz, charged Merck officials and Rogeberg with malicious prosecution and false arrest after he was picked up October 4, 1972, as he was leaving the Rahway plant.

When he was taken into custody by security guards the engineer had in his possession several blueprints he had been working on for a waste treatment plant Merck officials were to have constructed in Albany, Ga.

The company spokesman charged the blueprints were of value to potential bidders for the project and that Mr. Rosko, a temporary employee, was trying to steal them. His arrest came after he had been placed under surveillance by plant security personnel following reports he allegedly was sneaking prints out of the plant in violation of company regulations.

Mr. Rosko, who had worked for Merck in the late 1960s and was temporarily hired in 1971 through an employment agency to prepare piping designs for the waste treatment plant, denied the allegations. Contending he was taking the blueprints home to study and thus better prepare himself to do his job.

The engineer testified he had not been told he could not take the blueprints home. He also told the jury during the seven-day trial he had been promised a job by Merck officials to do design work on a second waste treatment plant at Rahway and he was studying the blueprints for the Georgia plant to prepare for the city project.

Mr. Rosko said after his arrest at the plant he was arraigned in Rahway municipal court and imprisoned before being released the same day on $25,000 bail.

Police arrest man, 20, in murder, rape case

A 20-year-old construction worker was charged on June 4 by police with the murder of a 65-year-old former Rahway woman who police say was stabbed to death and then raped on June 8.

Ralph C. Henderson of Lakewood was charged with the crime against Mrs. Joseph (Ann) Tallan whose body was found in a blood-stained garage 50 feet from her home in Greenbriar Development, a retirement village in Brick Town. She moved there from Rahway 18 months ago.

Police said Henderson was employed by United States Homes Corporation of Lakewood, builders of the retirement complex in which the victim lived and was killed. He was arrested on the grounds of the village and held on $1,000 bail. He was arraigned the next day.

A communicant of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church of Rahway and a former volunteer worker at Rahway Hospital, Mrs. Tallan was a widow. Her body was found by a nephew who arrived to take her to a relative's graduation.

Rahway High School wins accreditation; financial squeeze viewed as main concern

Rahway High School was again accredited by a committee of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for a 10-year period ending December 31, 1985, according to school principal Roy M. Valentine.

Students were described as being "very well behaved, polite and cooperative" and committee members complimented school officials for the "cleanliness and cheerful atmosphere" prevailing in the school facilities.

Along this line the 22 evaluators noted the total expenditure per pupil in the city is the third lowest in the county and second lowest in the kindergarten through 12th grade area.

Committee members also felt "an equitable policy of remuneration" for sponsors of student activities should be adopted to encourage teachers to "enhance their professional growth."

Di Francesco outpolls Maguire; Amalfe first in freeholder contest

While there were no great surprises in the final election results released by the office of Union County clerk Walter J. Halpin, there were a few interesting figures.

For example newcomer Donald T. Di Francesco of Scotch Plains, who was criticized in his bid for the Republican nod for a 22nd district assembly seat because of what was called inexperience, outpolls his runningmate—William J. Maguire of Clark.

Mr. Maguire, well known in local party circles as a former freeholder and township mayor, tallied 2,893 votes—districtwide while Mr. Di Francesco, a lawyer who never held elected office, garnered 2,929.

The two men easily beat a challenge from Arthur A. Manner of Berkeley Heights, who drew 1,585 votes, and Mrs. William (Linda) Wnuck of Rahway, who received 1,249 votes.

This means Messrs. Maguire and Di Francesco will face incumbent assemblywoman Mrs. James (Betty) Wilson of Berkeley Heights and William A. Wolf of Rahway, both Democrats, in the November election for the two seats from the district covering Rahway and Clark.

Assemblywoman Mrs. Wilson drew 2,512 votes districtwide and Mr. Wolf, a local labor leader, 2,365 votes. Mr. Wolf replaces assemblyman Arnold J. D'Ambrusa of Rahway who chose not to run citing pressures on his family stemming from his two recent indictments.

In the Republican phase of the race for nominations to run for three seats on the Union County board of chosen freeholders, Mrs. John (Rose Marie) Sinnott outpolled her incumbent runningmate countywide.

Mrs. Sinnott received 9,574 votes while Herbert J. Heilmann and Walter J. Ulrich of Rahway received 9,544 and 9,553 votes respectively.

Out polling even Mrs. Sinnott was Anthony Amalfe, one of the three organization-backed candidates for the freeholder nomination, who obtained 9,908 votes countywide.

His running mates, Mrs. George (Leda) Persel and Abraham Rosenwag, garnered 8,839 and 9,233

Dangers of marijuana attested to by experts but ignored by media

By E. Sidman Wachter

On a recent visit to the office of a reputable Union County physician, the writer found in the waiting room pamphlets on marijuana prepared by the American Medical Association. From these reassuring screeds one could only conclude smoking marijuana was a minor hazard comparable to smoking tobacco and the chief hazard consisted of the fact that marijuana is illegal. Well the underground press, which is basically out to destroy the United States, is also sold on marijuana.

Here is a case where people who should know better act deliberately to mislead the public. No civilized nation on the face of the earth legally sanctions the sale or indiscriminate use of marijuana. Even Norway and Sweden, despite their permissiveness, outlaw marijuana and heroin. Nigeria imposes the death penalty for the sale or production of marijuana.

While some narcotics and dangerous drugs, such as barbiturates and other sedatives, and amphetamines and other stimulants, have medicinal value, such is not the case with marijuana, heroin or the hallucinogenics. A worldwide prohibition was placed on marijuana by the World Health Organization under the auspices of the United Nations.

The very real dangers resultant from the use of marijuana were described by 20 top medical and scientific experts in testimony before the senate internal security subcommittee last year. The testimony was summarized in a report titled "The Marijuana-Hashish Epidemic" published by the subcommittee and published in the Congressional Record of July of last year.

According to this testimony the use of marijuana is a trend toward national disaster. More than 30 million people have used this drug in some degree and several million Americans are regular users. More than 10 million pounds of marijuana came into this country illegally last year, and figuring one pound to every 200 users this quantity was sufficient to serve the entire population!

Most impressive was the testimony given by doctor Harvey Powelson, chief of the department of psychiatry in the student health center at the University of California in Berkeley. In 1967 he had given the green light to marijuana but after seven years experience creating some 1,000 patients at the university he had become a strong critic of marijuana. He cited examples after example of brilliant graduate students upon whom marijuana had the following effects: difficulty in concentration, loss of sense of time and memory, loss of will to do sustained work, inability to sleep, regular hours, loss of normal appetite, sexual impotence, loss of ability to handle mathematics at a prior level of achievement or to follow logical arguments, hostile suspiciousness and gullibility.

Other expert testimony showed marijuana use results in massive damage to the cellular process, to the reproductive system and to the lungs and respiratory system at a rate 10 times as fast as cigarettes. This, the principal ingredient in marijuana, tends to accumulate in the brain and gonads and other fatty tissues, in the manner of DDT, creating the serious possibility of brain damage, distortion of perception and reality, chronic passivity and lack of motivation. Other tragic results cited were genetic damage and mutation, the weakening of immunity to disease and a "precancerous" effect on lung tissues.

There is a grim possibility that the million of junior high school and elementary school children now using marijuana may develop into a generation which has never matured, either intellectually or physically, because of hormonal deficiency and a deficiency in cell-production during puberty. We may find ourselves saddled with a population of semi-zombies young people afflicted by chronic passivity and the amotivational syndrome.

As usual the mass media have given all the publicity to pro-marijuana writers and speakers. When doctor Gabriel Nabus, a distinguished professor and scientist at Columbia University, wrote "Marijuana, Deceptive Weed," this book was ignored like the plague. This was despite the fact that six scientists at the school wrote personal letters to the New York Times stating the book had great merit and should be reviewed. Later 16 professors and scientists at the college of physicians and surgeons at the university wrote to the New York Times Book Review Section also urging review of the book but this supposedly intellectual journal played deaf, dumb and blind.

People have a right to learn the other side of the marijuana story. For the sake of our country and its future let us hope parents will do some investigating among the government sources mentioned. The 1960s and 1990s will demand keen young minds and alert, dedicated hearts to solve America's problems, not drug-besotted escapists.

Letters to the editor

Allaire: I am not anti-education, board must obey public mandate

I would like to establish once and for all that John F. Allaire, Jr. and friends are not anti-education. If we were anti-education we would not be strenuously defending the right of Clark taxpayers to have their voting mandate accepted by members of the board of education.

In the past taxpayers have been very good to board members and I submit the board members should reciprocate. Taxpayers are in a quandary over the budget episode and its circus atmosphere. It is my understanding board members, not township council members, requested a week to further deliberate due to their unpreparedness at the joint meeting, not as board president Philip A. Miller stated.

It appears president Miller disturbs public information which every taxpayer who supports education

Former assemblyman Herbert H. Kiehn of Rahway is one of many state legislators watching his pension get lost amidst a confusing array of legal actions and opinions.

The latest move came June 4 when a Trenton lawyer who represents the state legislature issued an opinion arguing that former legislators who received what some claim to be lucrative benefits from a 1972 pension program should be allowed to continue receiving such monies.

This contradicts an April ruling by the state attorney general in which he said all legislators who left office before noon on January 8 of last year, such as Mr. Kiehn, were ineligible to collect benefits.

The legislative pension act was signed into law by former governor William T. Cahill on November 3, 1972, thus many of the people ruled-out of the program by the attorney general had originally voted to include themselves in it.

Under the pension plan the legislators are entitled to a lifetime pension of $300 a year for each year of service based on the current $10,000-a-year salary. They also could collect for prior years of service.

The pension law was said to be a significant improvement of the benefits previously available to legislators under the public employees retirement system.

Since the law was enacted however, the number of eligible legislators has been whittled down in two rulings by the state attorney general who reviewed the pension program under pressure from former assemblyman James M. McGowan of Elizabeth.

In March the assemblyman, a local daily newspaper, the Chamber of Commerce of Eastern Union County and C. Thomas Thomas, mayor of Millburn, filed suit in superior court in Union County to have the law declared unconstitutional.

The second ruling from the attorney general was the April decision.

David J. Goldberg, a lawyer for the legislature, responded to the April ruling and the March suit by saying the pension law is constitutional in every respect. His response called for restoration of benefits to legislators who left office before the January 8 deadline.

Although the attorney general's ruling denied the benefits to many legislators, it defended the basic thrust of the pension law as a "constitutional form of deferred compensation paid on account of previously earned compensatory credit for the rendition of legislative service."

When the attorney general's office ruled the effective date of the pension program should be January 8 of last year and not November 3, 1972, when it was signed into law, it eliminated the retroactive and increased benefits for more than 120 senators and assemblymen who served in 1972 and 1973.

Before the ruling, a legislator such as Mr. Kiehn who served for six years was receiving a pension of $1,800 a year under the law. However because he left office before noon on January 8 his pension was reduced to $1,000 a year, or what he was entitled to under the public employees plan.

The pension calls for legislators to contribute 5% of their salary for each year for each year of service and allows them to kick in a like amount for prior years in the legislature.

Alan Karcher answers critics, says legal opinions his own

Saying that some weeks his work for the city draws his fees as high as a carpenter would earn, city director of law Alan Karcher reacted calmly but firmly to a move by city councilmen to reduce his salary and curb his influence.

The councilmen tried to cut Mr. Karcher's salary and alter the staffing of the legal office in an attempt to create a special counsel for the legislative body. Currently Mr. Karcher attends council sessions and renders legal advice.

The move, which had the support of five Republicans and one Democratic councilman, came at a special June 3 council session. It died after a conference with administration officials at which they promised a review and a report on the matter.

Mr. Karcher said his opinions to councilmen are his own and no city official, including those in the administration of mayor Daniel L. Martin, ever tried to influence what he had to say.

The only thing the mayor ever told me is, 'Alan, tell me what you think the law is,' the director said.

To counter claims of poor attendance at meetings and not earning his salary, Mr. Karcher detailed his activities for the city for the week of May 12.

He said on Monday he attended a meeting in city hall which extended from 8 p.m. to midnight while on Tuesday he prepared various memoranda, wrote four opinions in the form of letters and held numerous telephone conversations with various city officials.

Wednesday consisted of more conversations with officials plus a conference on the Main Street fire-house controversy, he stated.

On Thursday there was a meeting with county superintendent of schools doctor William West in Westfield from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., he explained. He said he then went back to his office where he dictated reports on the morning session.

Friday involved being in the Union County courthouse in Elizabeth to handle a case involving the fire-house, Mr. Karcher concluded.

At that time there will be a public hearing on the application filed by Mr. Johnson of 3 Morton Lane, Warren, who says he is seeking to divide his land so he can sell the back lot which would be created for construction of a home.

He explained all the land lies within a commercial zone, but he believes the back portion of his property

NEW FRONT DOOR... Christian Scientists from Rahway and around the world gathered on June 2 for the annual meeting of members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. They were welcomed by the sign of the new portico entrance to the church, the final step in new construction at the Christian Science Center. The 26-story church administration building finished two years ago is at the left.

New front door for church greets Christian Scientists

A new front door for the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., often called The Mother Church, was opened. In fact it was this is the first time the historic edifice has had a main entrance and the familiar Back Bay landmark is suddenly drawing fresh attention. The new entrance has columns and carvings and examples of old-world stonework craftsmanship rarely used by builders these days. It was said the search for artisans trained to do the work was one of the challenges of the project. The new portico front marks the completion of a project begun at the turn of the century. The original structure, a modest stone Romanesque building, was completed in 1894 but soon proved to be too small for the growing congregations of Christian Science. A huge, domed extension was completed in 1905. Today the original is still tucked beside the Byzantine shoulders of the extension and is still cherished by church members because of the pioneering effort it represents. The new entryway has broad steps which open onto terrace and back-paved walkways and landscaped spaces which flow to other parts of the church center. The Christian Science Publishing Society is on one side and The Mother Church Sunday school on the other. Ten, 42-foot limestone columns form the portico's classic half-rotunda. Just beyond the columns are revolving doors set in a glass wall reinforced by bronze bands. These doors lead to a ground floor lobby where two elevators take churchgoers and visitors to the auditorium and its balconies. Passersby will have a clear view to the auditorium where there are organ pipes filling an archway behind the main platform from which two readers conduct church services. The columns were turned and carved from Indiana limestone. On top are six-ton Corinthian capitals handcarved to match the detail of the older parts of the building. The capitals are the largest the limestone contractor said he can ever remember carving. They are five feet high and nine feet across diagonally at the top and four feet in diameter at the bottom. Cut from 30-ton blocks of stone and carved by the last known carving team in Indiana, the capitals took more than a year to finish. Each averaged from 500 to 700 man-hours of carving time. A sunburst rose window, set in a circular parapet beneath a gabled roof, has 12 petals and is 10 feet in diameter. Its stained glass will be illuminated from the inside. No ceremonies marked the May opening of the portico and the formal completion of the center. Instead, in a brief statement, Christian Science board of directors members called for "works instead of words" and "renewed dedication on the part of Christian Scientists in a time when spiritual values are being tested more sharply than ever before by the materialism of modern life." "Mary Baker Eddy, who founded the Church of Christ, Scientist, believed it possible to restate positive Christianity and its lost element of healing even in the midst of a scientific age," board member DeWitt John commented. "This is proving practical," he said, "but it is a cause requiring strong moral and spiritual devotion on the part of those who would seriously enlist in it." Particular gratitude was expressed by the directors to Christian Scientists throughout the world whose contributions made the center possible.

Rahway Christian Scientists hear speech by board head

An estimated 12,000 church members, including Christian Scientists from Rahway, heard a keynote speech from the incoming chairman of the board of directors of the Christian Science Church in Boston...

practitioner, teacher and lecturer in the years leading to his election to the board in 1972.

He was the Christian Science committee on publication for German-

Otto Bertschi

The speech came at the annual meeting of members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ-Scientist in Boston. The theme of the 80th annual session was "The Power of God's Word."

According to Mrs. L.C. (Agnes) Schelling, the assistant committee on publication for First Church of Christ, Scientist of Rahway, there are 70 branches of The Mother Church in New Jersey.

"Obedience to God's law," declared incoming chairman Otto Bertschi, "illuminates individual consciousness and saves the individual from the fearful contemporary picture of vast public and private institutions against which ordinary men and women too often feel helpless and ineffective."

Mr. Bertschi is the first overseas member of the denomination's administrative governing board. A native of Zurich, he served as a Christian Science speaking Switzerland from 1957 to 1963. He visited branch churches in central and southern Africa.

There are more than 3,000 branches of The Mother Church in 57 countries.

"It is vital we separate the hypnotic claims of material power," the chairman said, "from the true power which belongs to God."

He said "divine power always acts through spiritual illuminations" and urged all members to reaffirm the spiritual power of Christianity calling for "new vision to match new challenges."

Jules Cern of New York City was named president of The Mother Church for the coming year.

A new century edition of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, was announced at the meeting.

Visit by coadjutor bishop set by Orthodox church

Special services and activities for parishioners of St. John's Russian Orthodox Church, 211 West Grand Avenue, Rahway, were announced by reverend Frank P. Miloro, pastor, for the weekend of June 14 and 15.

Most reverend John R. Martin, coadjutor bishop of the American Carpatho-Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic diocese, will make a canonical visitation to the parish and bless a plaque which will hang in the church narthex.

Father Miloro said activities will begin with holy confessions for children of the church school at 10 a.m. on Saturday. Adults may also receive confession then.

On Sunday morning a procession of clergy and parish committee will escort the bishop from the rectory to the church at 9:40 a.m. In the narthex the blessing of the plaque will occur.

The plaque bears information pertinent to the church dedication in June of 1973. Bishop Martin will be greeted by Father Miloro with the holy cross and by parish president Michael Sudio with the traditional bread and salt.

The hierarchical divine Liturgy will begin at 10 a.m. Responses will be sung a cappella by the church choir under the direction of John M. Dickon. The bishop will preach the archpastoral sermon.

At 1 p.m., a dinner will be served in the church auditorium. In charge of arrangements is Phillip Yurchuk assisted by Mr. Sudio.

Mrs. Theodore Komas is handling ticket reservations. Mrs. Thomas Rustick serving and Mrs. Michael Sverada decorations.

A program is being printed which will be distributed at the banquet. In addition to bishop Martin, who will deliver the main address, speakers will include Mr. Yurchuk, Mr. Sudio, very reverend monsignor, Stephen Sedor of Perth Amboy, very reverend Elias Kozar of Yonkers, N.Y., and father Miloro.

Miss Marlene Illanovsky will present the hierarch with a presentation bouquet of red roses.

Father Miloro said, "The dedication of the plaque will set the theme of reaffirming our faith and rededicating ourselves to God and church."

"In doing so we give thanks to God Who has blessed our parish richly. Since the consecration of our new building in June of 1973, a total of 64 members have joined the parish, 20 of whom are converts to Orthodoxy who have been chrismated and received into the faith," he explained. "Attendance has increased as has generosity, in short we are spiritually headed in the right direction."

Members of both fellowships will hold a paper drive in the church parking lot on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Those in the Methodist men's club and second mile Bible class will hold their annual picnic in Somerset that day.

Afternoon circle meeting participants will hold a picnic in Linden on Tuesday at 11 a.m.

Morning services will be held today at 7 o'clock, Saturday at 9 o'clock, Sunday at 8:30 o'clock and Monday at 7 o'clock.

Late Friday evening services will begin at 8:30 o'clock with the children of the Hebrew school graduating class assisting. One shabbos will be sponsored by parents of the graduates.

Wine not? By Enrico

Burgundy was a big name in wine back when the Nemes were destroying Nivech. By now, you can assume they know what they're doing.

Trouble, is there isn't a LOT of great Burgundy. The average vineyard is only one and a half acres, and even the larger ones are tilled by a number of different owners, each of whom makes wine slightly differently.

How small is Burgundy? Consider this: of the great white wine, Montrachet, sometimes less than a thousand cases of one vintage year reach the market.

Because there are so many vineyards, knowledgeable Burgundy buyers look for the name of the shipper. Some of the most famous are Jadot, Bouchard, Latour, Drouhin and Chanson. Many others are good, too.
