SOMEBODY FORGET THE CARDS? ... Despite the casual atmosphere which prevailed at the Jopert Holiday Inn in Elizabeth on July 23, the topic was a serious one. Mayors from eight local municipalities, Rahway and Clark included, gathered at the request of officials of the United Way of Eastern Union County to discuss better methods to meet the health, welfare and recreational needs of their constituencies. Present at the session were, left to right, mayor Bernard G. Yarusavage of Clark, mayor Daniel L. Martin of Rahway, mayor Eugene J. Carmody of Roselle Park, vice president Miss Ann V. Galvin of the Anchor Corporation of Elizabeth and president Walter Money of Elizabethwater Water Company of Elizabeth.

Mayor: over $8,000 recovered for past pollution of water supply

Saying he has remained true to his word of five months ago, Rahway Mayor Daniel L. Martin announced the recovery of a total of $8,018.18 as payment in full for costs incurred by the city as a result of two industrial pollutions of the Rahway River.

The Democratic chief executive for the city labeled the recovery of damages "one of the first sweeping and significant precedents which possibly could be established in the public interest."

In January Mayor Martin, saying he was incensed at chemical and oil spills into the river, announced a "get-tough" policy with polluters.

The mayor said at that time that he would no longer rely solely on environmental protection laws against pollution, but that he would use every means at his disposal, including litigation, to see to it that polluters are fully responsible for what they do.

On two occasions between January 15 and January 20 the city was forced to shut down its water treatment plant, once as a result of a chemical spill and once as an oil spill, the mayor noted.

The city, which relies on the Rahway River for its water supply, then had to purchase water from the Elizabethwater Water Company of Elizabeth to meet the needs of residents. It was said the upstream spills also required the city to put water division employees on overtime for extensive monitoring and testing of the river.

The mayor indicated that on advice of counsel he was not revealing the names of the polluters at this time so as not to prejudice settlement of a pending action for yet another pollution of the river.

For the chemical pollution, which occurred in Cranford on January 16 of this year, the city recovered a total of $3,867.48. Of that, $1,150.88 was for personnel time, $136.30 for vehicle costs, $964 for laboratory testing and $1,716.30 for the purchase of over 7.5 million gallons of water.

Mayor Martin hailed the payments to the city as "a lot better than a $500,000 fine."

Cranford. For this the city recovered a total of $4,145.70 of which $984 was for personnel time, $111 for vehicle costs, $489 for laboratory tests and $7,612.70 for the purchase of more than 11.5 million gallons of water.

Mayor Martin hailed the payments to the city as "a lot better than a $500,000 fine."

"We have established a precedent here," he continued, "that we believe will go a long way toward ensuring protection of the river. We intend to keep being tough with polluters and upstream communit-

George Washington tells of plans to revisit city

Plans are underway to reenact the journey George Washington took in the spring of 1789 from Mt. Vernon, Va., to New York City, N.Y., to be inaugurated as the first president of the United States. Included will be his stopover in the Merchants' and Drivers' Tavern on St. George Avenue in Rahway.

The idea for the inaugural journey was conceived by the members of the Rahway Historical Society and the New Jersey District of Kiwanis International as a way to celebrate the nation's bicentennial. A committee of Kiwanians, historians and other interested people was formed to plan the reenactment.

According to Arthur J. DeLorenzo, chairman of the committee and governor-elect of the state Ki-wants district, "The goal of the program is to reproduce as faithfully as possible the many facets of the inaugural journey."

"This will include carriages and harnesses, the liveries, uniforms and costumes of the day and, of course, the first president and his aides with their historical steps and ceremonies of welcome, the Hudson River crossing and the inaugural ceremony," he explained.

Members of bicentennial and historical society committees are assisting in the preparations and celebrations which are planned and members of revolutionary societies in costume will act as reception committees. Kiwanis club members in the towns of passage will stage programs.

Plans call for the inaugural journey to begin at Mt. Vernon on April 27 of next year and to end at Federal Hall in New York City on May 2. In between there will be stops in Baltimore on April 28, Philadelphia on April 29, Trenton on April 30, Rahway on May 1 and Elizabeth on May 2.

Also participating in the planned pageantry will be citizens on horseback, caravans of carriages by Carriage Association of America members and the first troop of the Philadelphia Cavalry.

Also the mounted police of New York City, cavalry from Valley Forge Military Academy and West Point Military Academy, companies of Scottish Highlanders and Canadian Grenadiers, fire and drum corps, the coast guard, governors and mayors.

Ottmar hearing to run; no ruling on apartments

The hearing by Rahway board of adjustment members on the request by representatives of Ottmar Construction Company to construct a street off of Maurice Avenue was continued until the members' Monday, September 22, session.

The action came at the July 21 board meeting held in council chambers in city hall, according to board secretary Mrs. John (Janet) Moran. She noted there will be no August board session.

Officials of the Springfield-based firm were granted a subdivision request by city planning board members on June 24 for approximately 3.4 acres off of Maurice Avenue where they hope to eventually construct eight homes.

All of those homes would have insufficient lot depth. Company officials are seeking permission to construct a road which would connect their proposed development with Maurice Avenue. The subdivision application was severely attacked by local residents who feared it would increase flooding in their neighborhood.

No decision was forthcoming at the adjustment board session on the request of a Winfield resident for permission to erect an 18-unit apartment building at 1174 New Brunswick Avenue after demolishing the existing apartment and rooming house.

A variance is required because apartments are not permitted in the residential R-B zone. A hearing on the request was held June 19 by board members. Decisions were reached on two other applications. The request of officials of A. J. C. Constructors, incorporated to convert four one-family homes on Bar-

AN EDITORIAL

Let Essex County rule? so says redistricting plan

We were pleased to see that Rahway councilmen at their July 14 meeting went on record as opposed to what surely must be a politically-inspired plan to dismantle the 12th congressional district. If this gross act of gerrymandering is allowed to become law, Rahway will be placed in a district overwhelmingly dominated by municipalities in Essex and Bergen Counties, including Newark.

Because one effect of the plan would be to create two Democratic-controlled congressional districts encompassing Union County, and thus possibly destroying the reelection chances of incumbent Republican representative Matthew J. Rinaldo, it is tempting to treat the issue as a partisan, political question. This is both dangerous and wrong.

The true issue is whether the residents of Union County, including Rahway citizens, are to be represented by a local politician who has local interests uppermost in his mind, or an out-of-county man with little concern for our needs. An Essex County representative, be he Democrat or Republican, will think first and foremost of the plurality of out-of-county voters who elected him before, if ever, considering the wishes of Union County or Rahway citizens.

Further, the destruction of what is exclusively a Union County district will have serious effects on county

Mayor Martin meets with flood victims July 24, says no immediate, permanent solution available

A report released by the mayor's office described a meeting held July 24 between Mayor Daniel L. Martin and 40 flood victims as "lively but courteous."

The meeting, held in city hall and conducted by the mayor, was called in response to a request by first ward residents in the area of the North Branch of the Rahway River, most of whom had to be evacuated as a result of flooding caused by last week's heavy rains.

The residents were taken back early in the meeting following a question by Roy Roach of 207 Union Street as to when they could expect an end to their flooding problems.

"It will not be for five or six years," the mayor reportedly told them. He explained that a flood control project requested by the city from the federal government has passed through the preliminary phases and must yet complete the design and construction phases.

The project, the cost of which was estimated at over $5 million, will extend from Maple Avenue on Robinson's Branch to Whittier Street on the North Branch.

Although disappointed that there was no immediate, permanent solution to their problem, residents appreciated what city business administrator Joseph M. Hartnett called the mayor's "forthrightness while pressing for some short-term remedies on a smaller scale."

Clement A. Truppa of 1657 Irving Street said that "it's good to have an honest mayor and we hope that you will pursue correcting some immediate problems."

He suggested that the city start deslagging and desilting the river in the immediate area. The mayor responded that he would have the engineering department develop a proposal as soon as possible.

Charles Collins of 1804 Allen Street questioned the possibility of utilizing Milton-Lake, Bloodgood's Pond and Jackson's Pond as retention basins to hold back the flood waters in Rahway.

Mayor Martin claimed retention basins would be helpful in upstream communities, but said they would not help in Rahway which is at the end of the river basin.

The mayor cited engineering data which he said showed that since the Rahway River basin consists of 81 square miles, it would take a retention basin in Rahway 81 inches deep and one-mile square to hold one inch of rain for one hour. Rahway itself is less than four miles square.

The Mayor stated that the solution to flooding in Rahway is to provide a protected river channel that is capable of containing water flow and passing it through the city as quickly as possible.

That, he said, is costly and takes time but he assured residents that city officials would continue to press for the project to be expedited.

Mrs. William Storey of 1620 Allen Street complained about the overgrown condition of vacant lots in the area which is aggravated by flooding. The mayor assured her that the city would force the property owners to clear the lots.

Residents of lower Union Street asked for their unpaid debt to be improved and for the sewer lines and catch basins at the corner of Allen Street to be cleared. The mayor said it would be done immediately.

A survey will also be initiated to determine if the residents wish to be assessed for curbs and paving.

The mayor said flooding is the most frustrating

FINALIZE PLANS FOR JOURNEY ... John Fairlough, right, president of the bicentennial inaugural journey committee and a member of the Carriage Association of America, describes the fine features of the kind of carriage that carried George Washington to New York City for his inauguration. Listening are Mrs. Charles (Carrie) Miller, secretary of the committee, and Arthur DeLorenzo, committee chairman. The journey, including a stop at the Merchants' and Drivers' Tavern in Rahway, will be reenacted next year as part of the national bicentennial celebrations.

Mayor Martin urges city flood victims to file with Cranford aid office; council president appeals to federal officials to expedite claims

Rahway Mayor Daniel L. Martin urged all city residents who suffered any damage whatsoever from the flooding caused by recent heavy rainstorms to report to room no. 7 in Cranford township hall on Springfield Street in Cranford.

A one-stop disaster assistance center has been established at the location following president Gerald Ford's declaration of New Jersey as a disaster area due to the flooding. The declaration was made upon the request of governor Brendan T. Byrne.

The Cranford office, one of four opened throughout the state, will be in operation from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The mayor said center officials may announce expanded hours in the near future.

The center will provide long-term, low-interest loans from the small business administration, special unemployment assistance to people who lost jobs because of the floods and relocation assistance for people left homeless.

Center personnel will also help victims obtain temporary mortgage and rent payments, long-term loans for farmers and special funds to replace public facilities.

Among the agencies represented at the Cranford center are the Internal Revenue Service, department of housing and urban development, the federal department of labor, the state department of community affairs and the Red Cross.

Mayor Martin noted that residents should report directly to the center at Cranford rather than trying to go through any other officials. The mayor said this would be the quickest way for flood victims to obtain assistance.

He also urged residents to bring with them to Cranford any information that would assist their flood damage claims.

"This," he said, "could include photographs of damage, bills for work done to repair damage, and estimates from contractors for repairing damage."

Upon arrival at the center, the mayor explained residents would be directed to the proper agency or department for the filing of their claims.

Other centers were opened in Fair Lawn, Morris-town and Bridgeton to service flood victims in 12 of the state's 21 counties. An estimated $85 million in damage was caused within a two-week period of severe rainfall.

An estimated 550 federal officials were assigned to the state to provide post-flood services.

An official of the small business agency said his bureau will provide loans of up to $55,000 at 5% interest over a period of 30 years. He further stated loans of less than $5,000 will not require collateral.

The official said once applications are filed with his agency it would take about three to four weeks before the money is actually in the possession of the applicant.

In a separate but related action, city council president Wilson D. Beauregard issued an appeal to federal disaster officials and elected officials on all levels to expedite the claims of city residents as quickly as possible.

On behalf of the entire council, president Beauregard, a Democratic councilman-at-large, told the federal officials that inasmuch as city residents constantly live in fear of flooding, they should at least have the assurance that they will be given as much aid as possible when there is flood damage.

Gardening experiments, displays highlight open house at Rutgers

GARDENING TIPS ... Miss Helen Rayner of 6 Gullick Road, Princeton, a graduate student in horticulture at Cook College of Rutgers, the State University, demonstrates the proper way to tie a tomato plant to a stake. The recommended "figure eight" method and new techniques for home gardening were shown to visitors at the university vegetable-flower open house on July 20 on the Cook campus.

"How do I know when to pick my eggplants?" "What do I do with the green tomatoes that are still on the plants in the fall?" "I have the same varieties in my garden. Why do your's look better?"

These and hundreds of similar questions were asked by home gardeners as they toured the flower gardens and vegetable research farm during vegetable-flower open house held at Rutgers, the State University on July 26 in North Brunswick.

home gardens, plastic suitable for mulching, demonstrations on how to prune, stake and tie tomato plants for bigger and better quality fruit and experiments being conducted on new varieties of vegetables.

"We test the new varieties that come out each year here at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station to find out which ones are specifically adaptable to New Jersey's growing conditions," said doctor Pollack. "The results are the basis for our recommendations."

Another feature of the open house was the insect and plant disease clinics operated at the Rutgers display garden and the vegetable farm. Each clinic station was manned by researchers and extension specialists, agricultural agents and experts in plant pathology and entomology.

The new concept of a vertical garden designed for small growing areas or as a screen for privacy also attracted the attention of the flower-lovers as they toured the Rutgers display garden.

Other features seen among the 140 annuals included dianthus in separate colors of coral, pink, crimson, white and scarlet just perfected by plant breeders and shown for the first time.

Arguments over store hours may go on, but Pathmark won

Arguments over whether the Pathmark supermarket in the Grant City shopping center off Central Avenue in Clark should be allowed to operate on a 24-hour-a-day basis will probably continue for some time, but the court decision on the matter appears to leave little room for argument.

The dispute between township officials and representatives of Supermarkets General Corporation, the Delaware firm which operates the Pathmark chain, has its origin in the passage by township councilmen of a law limiting the hours food stores may operate.

The state constitution guarantees the right of "acquiring, possessing and protecting property" among other rights while the amendment states no state shall "deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law."

The ordinance, passed June 19, 1972, said no specifically defined food stores "shall consume any sale prior to 7 a.m. and all such stores shall cease such sales no later than 11 p.m. on any day of the week."

Violation of the ordinance would have led, upon conviction, to a fine not to exceed $500 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 90 days, or both.

The decision held the township ordinance was "null and void and of no force and effect whatsoever" as it contravened the constitutional provisions cited by Pathmark representatives.

Farkas inclined to try during bar examination

Today Robert Farkas, owner of R. F. Associates, 1697 Elizabeth Avenue, Rahway, an engineering consultant firm, is taking his New Jersey bar examination lying down.

He is not overly relaxed or unconcerned about the test being given in the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark, instead he is recovering from surgery to correct a spinal condition.

The surgery has kept the 49-year-old resident of 772 Prospect Street, Westfield, bedridden for 50% of the year. It also forced him to take his New York state bar examination on July 22 and 23 in New York City while flat on his back.

In order to permit him to take the bar examination, for which he has been preparing in many months, members of the Westfield Volunteer Rescue Squad transported Mr. Farkas to New York City on July 21 and took him back to St. Barnabas Hospital in Livingston on July 24.

He received the tests in bed and dictated his answers to a proctor who wrote down his replies. It marked the first time in nine years that New York Bar Association officials administered the examination in this fashion.

The father of five children explained the unusual methods he used in studying for the examination. "I listened to taped lectures of the bar review courses while in the hospital, but most of the time it was done between 7 p.m. and 4 a.m. because during the day there are constant interruptions," he stated.

Mr. Farkas was graduated from Brown University in Providence, R.I., and received a master of arts degree at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute of New York City. He earned his law degree at the Brooklyn Law School and needs to be able to practice law as a patent attorney.

Mr. Farkas must undergo more surgery and, if it is successful, he hopes to be walking with the use of a cane in about two months.

425 Wolf supporters gather at cocktail party

Over 425 supporters of Democratic assembly candidate William A. Wolf of Rahway gathered for a cocktail party at the Rahway American Legion hall on July 20 to help their candidate launch his campaign.

Among those present were Rahway mayor Daniel L. Martin and incumbent assemblywoman Mrs. James (Betty) Wilson. Mr. Wolf's runningmate in the race for the two assembly seats from the 22nd district which includes Rahway and Clark.

The affair was under the direction of Mrs. John C. (Pauline) Kaylo of Rahway, an officer in the state and county hairdressers' association. Co-chairman was Edward Flynn, president of the citywide Democratic club.

Also present at the affair were Mrs. George (Leda) Perseley and Roselle mayor Anthony Amalfi, both Democratic candidates for the Union County board of chosen freeholders in the Tuesday, November 4, election.

Others in attendance were city Democratic councilmen-at-large Francis R. "Bud" Senkowsky and Wilson D. Beargard, council president, plus city Democratic chairman Patrick O'Donnell.

Support for Mr. Wolf, a well-known local labor leader, was also demonstrated by John Williams, business representative of the Carpenters' and Millwrights' Union local no. 715 of Union County.

Other union leaders were Neil Boyle of local no. 675 of the Electrical Workers Union, Frank Wade of local no. 480 of the Iron Workers Union and Lawrence Carr, vice president of the Union County central labor council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Milton Crans, a trustee of the county labor council, and other council officials were also in attendance.

Mr. Wolf, a city resident for 29 years, has been active with the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, American Cancer Society and the Heart Fund. He served for four years as chairman of the mayor's advisory committee.

PATRIOTIC PAINTERS... Under the direction of Charles Miller, Rahway students repainted the sign marking the spot where George Washington was received by troops in the city on his way to New York City for his first inauguration as president. The marker is located across the street from the Merchants' and Drovers' Tavern at the corner of St. George and Westfield Avenues where the general stayed on his visit. The patriotic painters are, left to right, Michael Kusnez, Christopher Hargett, Kathy Dougherty, Sandia Kosinski and Sandra Gjertsen.

UNATTRACTIVE CURVES... In what he called an attempt to dramatize the plight of the township in its attempt to obtain cooperation from all levels of government to fight flooding, Clark mayor Bernard G. Yarusavage held an on-the-spot inspection of Robinson's Branch of the Rahway River in Clark. Inspecting one of two S curves in the river are, left to right, Union County freesholder Herbert J. Hellmann, Jr., mayor Yarusavage, 22nd district Republican assembly candidate Donald T. DiFrancesco and William J. Maguire and township Republican councilman-at-large Manuel S. Dios.

Mayor conducts inspection to dramatize Clark flooding

Mayor Bernard G. Yarusavage and councilman-at-large Manuel S. Dios gave an on-the-spot report of the behavior of Robinson's Branch of the Rahway River in Clark and its effect on Pumpkin Patch Brook to freesholder Herbert J. Hellmann, Jr. and 22nd district Republican assembly candidate Donald T. DiFrancesco and William J. Maguire.

The meandering of the river, with a course that doubles back in S-curve configurations in two places, was blamed for the water back-up that caused the flooding of Pumpkin Patch Brook after recent heavy rain storms.

The flooding affected homes on Orchard Terrace, Brookside Drive and Deerwood Drive and has often threatened other streets such as Willow Way, the Republican chief executive for Clark noted.

The mayor said a preliminary study has been conducted and completed by

Tax association urges caution on bill limiting state spending

Legislation proposing an unusual method of constitutional limitation of state, county and municipal expenditures is being considered by the state senate, reported a New Jersey Taxpayers Association spokesman.

Senate concurrent resolution no. 3208 would amend the constitution to mandate legislative enactment of laws relating governmental expenditure increases to increases in state personal income, he said.

The bill awaits action by senate revenue, finance and appropriations committee members after having been the subject of a public hearing in Trenton on July 10. Companion legislation to implement the proposal, senate bill no. 3289, is before the same committee.

In testimony at the public hearing, representatives of the taxpayers association noted the proposed manner of placing maximum limits on state and local government spending based on personal income has not been adopted by any other state.

A 1973 initiative effort in California to constitutionally limit state appropriations to a fixed percentage of personal income was defeated by voters, they noted, while another citizen-initiated constitutional amendment to limit annual growth of state government taxes at 9% of a three-year average of state personal income is under consideration in Washington.

At least 38 states have constitutional or statutory limits on certain financial aspects of local government, the spokesman stated. The most common limitation technique employed by states on local governments is by millage, a rate limit on property taxes.

It was said preliminary research by association personnel has not revealed any state which has a constitutional provision limiting overall state taxes or expenditures.

The concept of limiting governmental spending by constitutional amendment, while popular in principle, needs in-depth evaluation, cautioned the association spokesman. Association officials called for comprehensive analysis to determine the feasibility of the proposal with respect to the government as well as a sampling of counties and municipalities.

The applicability of such a limitation measure to New Jersey's numerous and diverse local units remains questionable without adequate study efforts, they said.

In addition to the proposed limitations of resolution no. 3208 should be reconciled with limits on local school spending included in bill no. 1516, the "thorough and efficient" bill, to determine compatibility and possible effects of interaction of the two, they continued.

Association officials also noted the proposed amendment contains excessive detail and wording in violation of the constitutional drafting principle of brevity and simplicity and suggested substitute language for the legislature's consideration.

Resolution no. 3208, as well as other pending legislation involving limitation of government spending, is as yet indefinite in its adaptability to the complexity of New Jersey's structure of local government, the association officials stated.

They argued analysis and study must precede adoption of such proposals to prevent approval of a measure ill-suited to the New Jersey situation.

Select first semi-finalists for 'Little Miss Rahway'

Six preliminary semi-finalists were chosen on July 23 to compete for the title of "Little Miss Rahway" in the contest sponsored by Rahway Jaycees.

Selected were Lisa DiAnno, Renee DiCosimo, Patricia DiZurilla, Susanne Finer, Christine Fry and Lisa Tennesson, according to Jaycees contest chairlady Mrs. Allan (Jean) Drake.

The second-half of the semi-finals for girls 7-10 was held yesterday in Second Presbyterian Church of Rahway where the preliminary competition was also conducted.

Judging the first semi-finals were Rahway Jaycees Mrs. Antonio (Maria) Garay, president Mrs. Bobby (Lillian) of science degree from Henderson and Mrs. Raymond (Patricia) Skotek, in Carbondale, Ill., on May 17.

Case: transportation budget changes reflect my views

United States senator Clifford P. Case said his long-time concern with the environment is reflected in changes in the federal transportation budget approved by the senate committee on appropriations.

The ranking minority member of the transportation subcommittee of the appropriations committee, senator Case told the committee that his budget revisions were for the most part "based on a concern for the integration of transportation into the total environment and for the use of transportation to improve the quality of life."

For example, the Rahway resident said, the research and development budget for automated highway transit should be restructured to include $2 million for social and economic studies of the impact of the proposal.

The Republican national legislator noted that previously the federal transportation agency's research and developmental programs in this field had emphasized hardware with little attention to social and economic factors.

As a general principle, senator Case said, "the federal government needs to recognize that social and economic factors are as important as hardware, and no technological research should be carried out without parallel consideration of the total environment."

Magurie claims legislators sold out to Brendan Byrne

William J. Maguire of Clark, Republican assembly candidate from the 22nd district, charged members of the state legislature of selling out to governor Brendan T. Byrne in meeting his demand for only partial restoration of state budget cuts.

Terminal leave pay out for future Clark crews

Clark councilmen acted at their July 21 session to prevent a repetition of what occurred when former township building inspector John Donzelman retired from his post.

In a unanimous vote the councilmen deleted section no. 13-1 of an ordinance establishing standard personnel policies and practices of the township.

According to township legal director Joseph Triarsi, the action abolished terminal leave pay for future township employees. He stressed the action would not affect current employees or attempts on their part to obtain terminal pay.

Mr. Donzelman, upon his retirement, requested terminal pay from the township. On the basis of various legal rulings, the attorney said, it was decided the township did not have the proper authority to grant such pay.

Mr. Donzelman then sued the township and won in court. According to Mr. Triarsi, the court ruled while the township had "no express authority" to make such payment it did have "implied authority" and was thus obligated to make the payment.

Mr. Triarsi explained the action could not be retroactive covering current employees as they may have taken their jobs under the assumption such terminal pay could be granted.

STARTING WITH BASICS ... Miss Nora-Provenzano is working with Michael Hauptmann, a pre-schooler at Abraham Clark School in Clark, on improving his speech articulation. He is following visual clues supplied by his instructress in learning to make the medial L sound. This is part of a speech course offered in the township summer school sponsored by the township board of education.

S IS FOR SUMMER SCHOOL ... As part of a speech course offered in the Clark summer school, children use picture cards for visual clues for learning such things as the S sound in the initial, medial and final position of a word. As an aid to reinforcement of correct sound production each child is given the opportunity to evaluate another student's speech pattern. Troop no. 47 set for European trip

When members of Rahway Boy Scout troop no. 47 travel to Europe on Saturday, August 2, they will be bringing a bit of the American bicentennial celebration to their European comrades.

The scouts will depart at 5:45 p.m. that day from New York City, N.Y., for a visit to five western European countries. The 58 scouts and their 14 leaders will complete the tour in two weeks.

During that period they will tour southern England, Belgium, Holland, West Germany and Luxembourg, and will present the colonial - Bennington flag to several foreign scouting groups and local government representatives.

On Tuesday, August 5, the scouts will be interviewed on television in Amsterdam, Netherlands, and, that evening, present a flag to a Dutch troop.

The following day the members will be honored at a ceremonial camp-fire gathering at Ablasserdam, a small town some 10 miles east of Rotterdam.

On Sunday, August 10, the itinerary calls for a tour of the Peace Palace in The Hague, site of the pre-World War II League of Nations.

On Tuesday, August 12, the troop is scheduled to visit the British parliament in London, England, and meet several members of the house of commons. That night they will present the Bennington flag to an English troop in Wallington, Surrey, a country village south of London where the founder of scouting lived and worked.

The leader of the tour will be Klaas "Nick" Baker, a native Hollander and naturalized American citizen for 11 years.

He described the trip as "one more means of fostering American goodwill in western European scouting circles. This is the main purpose of the trip. Of course we also plan to present a number of bicentennial flags, all donated by United Counties Trust Company of Elizabeth, to our Dutch, Belgian and English friends."

Wine not? By Enrico

We have all become familiar with a number of French wines. Italian wines of different regions deserve our attention too. Here are some names to look for.

Barolo is a big wine, strong and dry and really rich in taste. Some compare it to Chateaufort-du-Pape. The wine tastes best when it has matured six or seven years. It can stand up to the most flavorful red meat or game.

Soave is one of the finest dry white wines, perfect with fish, chicken or veal, and a treat with lobster. It tastes best if it is not more than three or four years old.

Vaiolicella, dry, red and delicious, has a smooth texture with a puckery aftertaste. Like Beaujolais, it tastes best a little cooler than room temperature. Serve it with red meat, pasta dishes and veal with red sauce.

Deny variance to ski shop at July 21 zoning meeting

Peter Streeter was denied a variance by Clark board of adjustment members at their July 21 meeting. The request was to continue operating a retail store selling skiing goods and hiking equipment at 93 Brant Avenue near the Garden State Parkway traffic circle.

The variance was needed as the applicant sought to continue using a retail shop located in a commercial office zone. It was said the prior occupant of the site operated a quick printing firm.

New policy on sale stories necessitated for newspaper

Articles reporting garage or rummage sales, Chinese auctions, flea markets or similar sale events will have to be accompanied by an advertisement in order to be published in The Rahway News-Record and The Clark Patriot. The new policy will take effect as of the issue of May 22. It will cover sales conducted by all civic and social organizations including charitable and religious societies. According to a spokesman for the newspaper, the new policy is necessitated by rising costs and an increased demand for editorial space. It was noted such articles are in a sense already advertising.

Americans Have Most Goods, Highest Income

Someone once condensed the total population of the world into one imaginary town of 1,000 people. The interesting observations on Americans which resulted were printed in a recent issue of TESCO ROUNDUP, Texas Electric Service Company's employe newspaper. Some 60 persons out of the 1,000 would represent the total U.S. population, with the rest of the world represented by 940. The 60 Americans would be receiving half of the total income of the entire community.

Let Essex County rule? so says redistricting plan unity when it comes to countywide problems such as flood control or countywide projects such as federal revenue sharing. If representation on the national level is taken away from city and Union County residents, and this will be the de facto effect of the redistricting plan, who will benefit? The most apparent answer is Newark. The problem here is Newark is already adequately represented by both its own national legislator and a host of special-interest lobbies catering to urban constituencies. Why must Union County and Rahway be denied a basic right in order to have Newark overrepresented? In addition advocates of redistricting ignore the fact that the 12th district is within 1% of the one-man, one-vote standard established by the United States supreme court. They also ignore the fact that the justices have ruled that traditional political boundaries, such as county lines, should be respected in drawing districts so long as such recognition does not produce great discrepancies. In short, Rahway residents and Union County citizens have nothing to gain and much to lose if the redistricting plan passes the legislature and our tax-happy governor who unveiled it. City residents should take their cue from city officials and join the opposition to this dismemberment of the 12th district.
