MYTH OR FACT? Rutgers professor attempts to untangle fanciful from factual in US history

Prof. Ellis notes that though the legends are heavily colored by their authors, they are still to the story. He says that the legends are not to be taken too literally, but that they do contain a kernel of truth. He says that the legends are not to be taken too literally, but that they do contain a kernel of truth.

teachers who fail to keep up with the latest revisions keep teaching what no longer is so.

"Once a myth has been created its perpetuation is relatively easy. The printed page carries an authority all its own. I read it in a book, I believe it, especially if the author is well-known or well-liked," he said.

In discussing the period of the revolution there is much that is myth, doctor Ellis noted. He agreed with John Adams who wrote that "the American Revolution was started in the hearts and minds of men, rather than by an oppressive British parliament or by King George III."

How about that fine old story about the Boston Tea Party? It turns out, doctor Ellis said, that mismanagement in the British East India Company brought the organization to the edge of bankruptcy.

As a corrective measure parliament passed a law permitting ships to carry tea directly from the east to the colonies without requiring transshipment in Britain. This succeeded in reducing shipping and handling costs which protected the price of tea and adversely affected colonial smugglers.

The smugglers agitated and fabricated evidence of evil intent and organized successful protests about "oppression." In 1773, S.C., New York City, N.Y., Philadelphia, Pa., and Boston, Mass.

The ultimate uprising was far from unanimous. Fully a third of the colonists opposed the revolution preferring to remain Loyalists and many finally left for what are today the Canadian maritime provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

WHY DON'T YOU BELIEVE? American history contains much that never was true but is still believed as fact. Such myths are the raw material that doctor Ellis has collected in a book entitled "40 Million Schoolbooks Can't Be Wrong -- Myths in American History." He writes about the myths of the "savage Indian," the pomper Paritan, and the smuggler-organized Boston Tea Party as only three examples of an abundance of myths through American history.

A good example of this, he says, is the "falsely harsh picture" of the Paritan drawn in Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter." He described as an unfortunate exaggeration the

Mrs. Major elected again by volunteers

Mrs. John Major of Rahway was elected president of the Red Cross Hospital Auxiliary for a two-year term. Mrs. Edward Loyitzky was elected president.

Also chosen were Mrs. ... recording secretary, Mrs. Walter F. Hall as corresponding secretary, Mrs. William F. Sroops as treasurer, Mrs. Ray Freeman as gift shop treasurer and Mrs. Albert J. Davis as assistant shop treasurer.

Reflecting another initial term, Mrs. Major noted the auxiliary began a luncheon snack bar in the cafeteria and raised funds to purchase a scintillation camera for the nuclear medicine division of the hospital's radiology department.

A native of Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. Major returned to Rahway. She has worked with the Red Cross as a civil and disaster relief secretary of the Red Cross. Mrs. Major was formerly on the board of directors of the Visiting Nurse and Health Service in Elizabeth, representing Rahway. She has served as secretary and president of the Rahway Junior Service League and secretary and treasurer of the Rahway Woman's Club.

At their April 7 meeting the members agreed to request from city councilmen an ordinance to set the speed limit in the Grover Cleveland school zone at no more than 15 miles an hour during the appropriate hours for the safety of the school children.

"We also made a proposal to the board of education to provide us with better maintenance service and garbage disposal," a group spokesman said.

In addition it was said that the members will support the police department in enforcing the curfew hours at the school playground.

CONGRESSMAN MATT RINALDO
10TH DISTRICT NEW JERSEY
REPRESENT FROM WASHINGTON

Ills in a nutshell

By representative Matthew J. Rinaldo

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter's family interest in peanut farming has focused public attention on an outrageously wasteful federal program which should long since have been legislated out of existence. Outmoded price supports or subsidies for peanut growers squander hundreds of millions of taxpayers' dollars a year, prevent thousands of acres from being used for more essential crops and perpetuate outmoded subsidies where they are not needed or beneficial to the economy. Whether or not they like peanuts and whether or not they want peanuts, taxpayers are being forced to make massive subsidy payments to peanut growers. As if that's not bad enough, taxpayers are also being forced to shell out millions of dollars to subsidize exports of surplus peanuts. It's a nasty situation all right.

Surveys made by the general accounting office show the program will waste $155 million of taxpayers' money this year and $175 million next year. Unless changes are made the program will squander a billion dollars of tax funds over the next five years.

How does the program work and what's it all about? It had its start in 1941 when the enactment of a law requiring that federal subsidies be paid to farmers producing peanuts on an allotted 1.6 million acres.

Price support levels were based on a scale guaranteeing a profit for those growing peanuts on the allotted acreage. Over the years technology has made it possible to triple the yield per acre. Consequently far more peanuts are being produced than the free market needs or the government originally anticipated. Because of the increased yields the department of agriculture estimates that market needs could be met by putting no more than 900,000 acres into peanut crops. The federal government however continues to subsidize 1.6 million acres — paying for a 700,000-acre surplus each year.

Under the outmoded payments to planters taxpayers were forced to buy 1.9 million tons of peanuts last year at a cost of $294.50 a ton. Currently in storage are more than a billion pounds of peanuts and 200 million pounds of peanut oil. Market prices saddle taxpayers with a heavy and mounting loss through the price support program.

The agriculture department, which operates the program, has recognized its flaws and recommends it be drastically reduced in scope, but congress has been slow to act. Pressure from many legislators in southern states — where the subsidies go — have blocked moves to cut back or repeal the subsidies.

Consequently, under the guise of protective subsidies, a near feudal system persists which freezes young farmers out by restricting allotments to those whose families began receiving allotments nearly four decades ago, or to those who can afford to buy peanut "allotments" at inflated prices.

Sound free-market concepts require that peanut crops be based on market demand rather than on some antiquated government production formula. America's peanut production should be more in line with policies being operated by wheat, feed grain, sugar and cotton production under the 1973 farm act. The folly of the peanut subsidies should be widely recognized and brought to an early end.

A bill I have introduced in congress would do just that. It rapidly would scale down price supports and then phase out price subsidies altogether. Ending the peanut subsidy makes sense for taxpayers and I hope congress will support this expensive small game with taxpayer money.

Robertson wants action to stop road extension

The Randolph Avenue extension is still on even though Rahway councilmen voted to rescind their commitment to this project after investigating the possible disastrous effects this highway could have on the residents of Rahway while benefiting only the traffic going through Rahway from neighboring towns.

The Union County planning board on April 14 notified the Rahway planning board, city hall, police department and city engineer via a letter to rescind the money for this project is included in the tri-state transportation improvement program for the fiscal year 1976.

Officials representing Rahway, Clark attend chamber of commerce meet

Attempts by the Eastern Union County members of the chamber of commerce to increase the highway program and increase in government aid to the state from every level of officials on the night of April 22.

At a luncheon reception and dinner held by the chamber at the Sheraton Hotel in Cranford, Mayor Alexander S. Williams, who represented area mayors, said over 50 businessmen would do well to continue strong support of the chamber.

The strength of this organization with representation from banks and industries is that it speaks for business in general.

Washington's trek starts tomorrow

The inaugural party will have dinner at the tavern and stay overnight in Rahway. A reception to meet the modern Washington will be held in the Coachman's Inn in Cranford that evening at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday morning, May 2, the carriages will leave Rahway at 9:30 o'clock destined for Elizabeth. There will be a short stop in Linden at 11 a.m. before proceeding down Route No. 27 and across Elmora Avenue to Liberty Hall, arriving at 11:45 a.m.

At 12:30 p.m., the coaches will travel to historic Boxwood Hall, located on East Jersey Street, where Elizabeth May's Thomas Dunn will lead a large group of Elizabeth citizens in welcoming the party. Ceremonies at Boxwood Hall will mark the end of the inaugural journey through New Jersey.
