Tax levy up by 12.3% for county

In Union County the 1976 county tax levy of $41,669,519 compares with the 1975 tax levy of $37,097,975. This is an increase of $4,571,544 or 12.3%, ranking the county 11th according to the percentage of change among 21 counties on the basis of figures supplied by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association.

Total property tax levies to finance New Jersey's 21 counties have more than doubled in seven years, according to the association, rising from $336 million in 1969 to $692.2 million in 1976. The increase is $71.1 million or 11.4% increase over 1975 county tax levies.

Comparison of the 1976 and 1975 county tax levies shows that percentage-wise 14 counties had increases in excess of 10%, topped by Cape May at 24.1%, Camden 17.4%, Gloucester 16.2%, Somerset 16.1%, Middlesex 16% and Burlington 13.8%.

Two city residents fined $100 for failure to give good account

Two Rahway residents were fined $100 each for failure to give a good account of themselves on April 8. The penalties were imposed at last Thursday's municipal court session.

One fined was Robert E. Dimocento of 158 West Main Street and Richard Drake of 50 Russell Avenue. The latter man was also placed on one year of probation. A $25 fine was imposed on Michael Rose of 831 Paleyky Street, Rahway, for possessing an alcoholic beverage while in a Rahway High School classroom. He is a student.

Also fined $25 was John Abruzzese of 1927 Sussex Avenue, Rahway, for leaving the scene of an accident on April 26. He was also ordered to pay $10 in court costs. For disregarding a traffic signal Nancy D. Bryan of 45 Bernard Avenue, Edison, was fined $25, she was also told to pay $10 in costs. For disregarding a red

87 referred after testing

A total of 87 people were referred to physicians last week following free health screenings at Rahway Hospital. The two-day service attracted more than 600 people to free examinations for either hypertension, diabetes or oral cancer.

Hospital personnel referred 44 people to a physician for treatment of hypertension, or high blood pressure as it is more commonly known, 32 were referred for treatment of diabetes and 11 were referred to oral surgeons.

Screenings were conducted for a few hours April 27-28 while the oral cancer screening was done separately on April 28. A total of 209 people were tested for both hypertension and diabetes, 77 for hypertension alone and 145 for oral cancer.

Elderly hold day at races

The Clark Senior Citizens Club held a bus trip to Freehold Raceway May 11. Members had luncheon at the clubhouse then spent the afternoon at the races, one of which was named for the Clark senior citizens.

Club members provided Easter trays for Runnels Hospital patients and plan to provide gifts for Mother's Day and Father's Day. Recently the group provided many lap robes, hospital shirts and other needed articles for the patients at the hospital.

Projected activities include on June 1 a three-day trip to Granite, N.Y., and on June 12 participation in the Clark bicentennial parade.

Neil Kahn cited thrice at field day

Cadet-colonel Neil Kahn of 1003 Midwood Drive, Rahway, son of lieutenant colonel and Mrs. Leo Kahn, he of the United States Air Force reserves, received three awards at the 82nd annual military field day of Rutgers, the State University held May 1.

Cadet Kahn is the group commander of the air force ROTC unit at the state university. He received the Reserve Officers Association, Department of New Jersey award for "outstanding furtherance of the ROTC program by a senior cadet, the Eisenhower award of the Retired Officers Association and the air force ROTC outstanding commander ribbon.

The Eisenhower award carried with it, in addition to the plaque, a $100 United States savings bond. The city resident was graduated from Rahway High School in 1972. He will be commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation this month and expects to go on active duty as a missile launch officer with the strategic air command.

Library gets gift
The Clark Public Library will be the recipient of a gift of 30 paperbacks and other publications pertaining to Israel from the northern New Jersey region of the National Federation of Jewish Men's Clubs, Incorporated.

Choral club concert has bicentennial note

The Rahway Choral Club will present a concert of American music on Monday, May 17, at 8:15 p.m. in the parish house of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, 80 Elm Avenue, Rahway. Miss Elizabeth Maury will serve as the accompanist and Earle A. Hartman will conduct the chorus.

An audience sing-a-long will be led by Miss Lynn Harko on the accordion and barjo. Joseph Harko will offer tap dances. A quartet from the chorus will do special numbers. The music will reflect the bicentennial celebration and will include a popular soldier song of the revolution, "Chester," "America-Our Heritage," "Shenandoah," an American sea-chanty, "Aurora Lee," "Beautiful Dreamer" and "Smiles."

Also to be offered are a choral montage of songs from 1900-1920, a medley of show tunes by American composers and "You'll Never Walk Alone" with Mrs. John Orban as soloist.

Members of the choral club are Mrs. Dominick Berardi, Mrs. Donald Brewster, Thomas Cregge, Mrs. Benjamin DeDeucus, Mrs. Joseph Delicos, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Eggers, Mrs. Henry Fisher, Mrs. Lewis Gibb and Miss Harko. How come credit for welfare recipients?

By H. Sidman Wachter

Welfare payments to the destitute were, like their predecessor income relief, intended to assure that nobody in the United States should lack for food, shelter and clothing. Since America is a land of plenty, most people agree that the professional beggars indigenous to some societies were not to be tolerated here and that assistance to the needy should be systematic and professional.

In the beginning a careful investigation was made of every welfare applicant before relief payments were given and spot checks were continued so as to reduce the incidence of fraud. However as time went by, the incidence of fraud became rampant.

They came to regard the assistance furnished by industrial taxpayers as a vested right and in many cases they resented the investigators assigned to check on their eligibility for handouts. Thus quite understandably the social service union insisted on discontinuance of investigations.

We have, in recent years, seen the formation of "Welfare Rights" groups which operate under the mistaken assumption that the United States Constitution guarantees a "free ride" for everybody in this country. We have seen on television overweight and brash women marching with placards which demand a new school outfit every fall for each school child whose family is sustained by welfare.

The great "gimme" push is on. No need to earn. Just demand. Nevertheless those who clamor to be on the receiving end without ever giving or producing anything (except their own offspring) are cheating themselves even more than society. First they ignore the Christian doctrine, which is also a sensible maxim, that "It is more blessed to give than to receive." If they would devote their efforts to serving others, in however humble a manner, as volunteers when paid jobs are unavailable, life would be far more rewarding for them.

Secondly, contrary to the tenets of all religions they are attaching undue importance to material possessions. While it may be human nature to covet beautiful homes and garments, fancy foods and luxury cars, such mere "things" should never be the be-all and end-all of existence. Many of our greatest citizens, reared in humble surroundings, were dressed in school clothes which, although neat and clean, were often threadbare and patched. Indeed a touch of self-denial and asceticism never hurt anyone; it is in fact good for the soul.

Thus we come to the advertisement in a local newspaper which prompted the foregoing reflections. The advertisement is for a new department store. One banner headline states: "No Credit Refused!" Below are four pictures of furniture sets in living rooms and bedrooms at $599, the others at $399. Immediately below these is another banner headline stating: "Welfare Recipients Accepted!"

How can an individual on welfare, i.e., one who earns nothing and has no steady income, possibly qualify as a good credit risk? Has the world gone crazy? Is there any valid reason why the taxpayers should be expected to underwrite new furniture for welfare cases?

The Salvation Army, Good Will, United Methodist Church and other charitable agencies repair discarded furniture and give or sell it to the indigent. This means welfare recipients, Americans are not expected to sleep on mats on the floor, as do our Asian friends, but there is no excuse for those who eat, lodge and dress courtesy of the hard-earned taxpayers and the new beds, let alone a six-piece "classic colonial" bedroom set.

For all we know there may exist some arcane regulation which requires a businessman to accord credit to welfare recipients and entitles them to make unnecessary and expensive purchases which are, in effect, charged to the workers in our society. If such is the case, perhaps the Union County welfare board will see fit to inform this newspaper of said regulations, and also to explain the why and wherefore of it. Our readers would probably be interested.

Pfister backs measure listing educational taboos

As more and more "liberal" people - regulators are given federal and foundation grants to bring about a managed society in America, it is hardly surprising to find such "educational" trash as a 1973 Prentice Hall text titled "Behind the Mask, Our Psychological World" - in which the author suggests to students that to truly induce creative thinking, we should teach our children to question the Ten Commandments, patriotism, and the laws against incest!

This is but a minute example of the "educational" tripe to be found in many of our public school systems which is designed to unfreeze our children's old values in preparation for their acceptance of new "values."

To those parents and taxpayers who still feel the "educational" should work for them instead of vice versa, and to those parents who are unhappy and concerned about the "educational" slop being spooned to their children in government controlled schools, take heart. Relief may be in sight in the form of assembly bill no. 125 which, if enacted, will go a long way toward restoring control of public education to the parents and taxpayers of this state where it belongs.

Enactment of this bill is imperative because it would block the radical New Jersey Education Association's efforts to remove all restrictions on what is taught - in the classroom!

If enacted this bill will assure parents and taxpayers that students may only be tested for intelligence quotients, proficiency in basic skills and academic subject matter. Any testing pertaining to pupil or parental attitudes or personal information pertaining to the pupil and his family would be taboo.

Also taboo under this bill would be any attempt by school districts to change the attitudes, values, political and religious beliefs of the students as well as any attempt to supersede parental authority. It is my considered opinion that this type of legislation is sorely needed.

County hikers slate jaunts for Saturday

Activities to be offered to members and guests of the Union County Hiking Club on Saturday, May 15, will include a six-mile ramble in the South Mountain Reservation with participants meeting at Locust Grove at 10 a.m.

The same day a bicycle ride in the Oldwick area is planned. Participants will meet either at the Howard Johnson restaurant on Route no. 22 in North Plainfield at 8:30 a.m. or at the Presbyterian Church in Pluckemin at 9:30 a.m. The ride will be to Oldwick and Pottersville then back.

On Sunday, May 16, there will be a hike in New York state. The meeting place will be either at the Echo Lake Park or at the Echo Lake Park. The hike will begin at 2 p.m. at the Union County park commission's trap and skeet range.

Township school officials, parents attend PTA meet

The spring county council meeting held May 6, by the Union County Council of Public Education Association at the Ramada Inn in Clark featured speakers on the controversial subject of strikes by teachers.

The luncheon meeting was attended by president-elect of the Frank K. Henly School P.T.A. Mrs. Daniel (Joyce) Gresco and members of her executive board, as well as John Conlin, school principal, and Mrs. Norman (Madeleine) Brian, member of the Clark board of education.

Representing the Clark school were Mrs. Edward (Rose) Zukowski, Mrs. Henry (Virginia) Apellan and Mrs. Michael (Betty) Arnold, Mrs. Harry (Patricia) Brand and Mrs. Jules (Roz) Friedman also attended.

City students' art displayed

Charles Stevens, art teacher, announced several Rahway Senior High School students have their art work displayed at a bicentennial exhibit at the Rahway branch of the Public Service Electric and Gas Company, 1530 Irving Street.

The exhibit, which will be held until tomorrow, features bicentennial art work in a variety of media dealing with many different subjects. Students who have contributed are Cindy Denny, Kim Gannon, Linda Lensch, Richard Masbach, Diana Moller, Yvonne Mourer, Susan Graham, Kathy Olrech and Filteen Wilson.

Drug problem grows

By Representative Matthew J. Rinaldo

Seldom in the nation's history have law enforcement agencies faced as difficult a problem as the spreading traffic in hard drugs. In New York City, N.Y., the hub of drug traffic in the metropolitan area, heroin and cocaine dealers openly sell drugs on street corners. It is more convenient in some neighborhoods to purchase drugs than to place a bet on an NFL-Frank Bettig (OTB) parlor.

Not even the state's mandatory life sentence law has slowed the drug trade. A reduction of one-fourth in New York City's narcotics squad and drug treatment centers have become a revolving door for drug suppliers. Despite three or four convictions for selling and supplying hard drugs, dealers are released on bail, free to sell more or to escape the country.

Here are some facts that I learned in a recent meeting with officials of the United States drug enforcement administration:

-Newark remains the center of drug traffic in northern New Jersey with an estimated 25,000 addicts.

-An invasion of brown Mexican heroin, which is usually stronger than the white powder from Turkey and southeastern Asia, is spreading to suburban and rural communities throughout the country.

-Methadone abuse is increasing and deaths related to methadone overdoses are expected to rise by 100% this year.

-Mexico is replacing Turkey as the chief source of

Reader offers suggestion for skateboard program

Skateboarding has made a comeback as popular as ever. Many young people can be seen all over the city riding on their boards and practicing various skills and stunts. It is clear the revival of skateboarding is here to stay and not just a passing fad.

When that happens all skateboarders, even those who are very skilled, are criticized for their "unsafe" sport. In reality, skateboarding is just as safe as any other sport. It is just a matter of knowing what you are doing.

Many other sporting activities have been organized and made into safe activities. Other children are given proper supervision and provided with a place to use their sport. Some towns offer organized skateboard competitions and provide a place for which awards are made.

I would like to ask, on behalf of all the skateboarders in our city, that similar efforts be made in Rahway. The city recreation department or board of education could develop a skateboard program and even hold competitions to promote skateboarding safety. In addition to providing an area where supervised skateboarding could be offered, it would put many parents at ease to know that their children are pursuing the sport safely.

Therefore, I ask the mayor, council and board of education to show their true concern for the youth of Rahway by considering establishing an area for skateboarding and a skateboard program.

Roessner tells Kansas counterparts financial reform may be weakened

The president of New Jersey's largest savings and loan association predicted the long awaited financial institution reform legislation, if enacted at all, "will only be a watered down version of what is really needed."

Gilbert G. Roessner, president of City Federal Savings and Loan Association of Elizabeth, told a convention of the Kansas Savings and Loan League that "much of the blame for this can be laid at the doorstep of the savings and loan industry itself."

Mr. Roessner, who has been an outspoken critic of opponents of financial institution reform, told the Kansas savings and loan officials that "our industry got a case of cold feet" in the case of the reform legislation.

He said the savings and loan industry is in need of such legislation in order to become family financial centers "able to serve all the financing needs of our customers, rather than just a narrow range of those needs."

The savings and loan industry, a past-president of the National Savings and Loan League, chided his industry for "being like a kid in a candy store."

"We've been told we can have whatever we want -- and just like the kid, we can't make up our minds," he said.

Mr. Roessner reminded his audience it was the savings and loan industry, as long ago as the 1950s, which sought broader powers for thrifts in an effort to better serve the family's needs.

"But," he went on, "as soon as it looks like Congress was ready to let us do that, the industry -- helped by the commercial bankers -- backed away."

The legislation Mr. Roessner was talking about, the financial reform act, was sent back to the subcommittee level of the House of Representatives banking committee earlier this week. That is a sign, he said, that the bill will be substantially weakened if passed at all.

Mr. Roessner also blamed what he called the commercial bank lobby, the American Bankers Association, for helping to defeat the bill. He termed the ABA's argument against the bill "a specious one" in that, he said, the ABA said the bill leaned too much in favor of savings and loan associations.

"The real reason for the banker opposition was earnings," Mr. Roessner said. "One provision in the legislation would have meant the bankers would have to pay interest on checking accounts -- which they ought to do, and so should savings and loan associations."

"The banks don't want to pay interest on those accounts, and they certainly don't want restrictions on their checking accounts -- which they ought to do, and so should savings and loan associations."

Offmar request denied; Sisto given green light

Supporting the action, which affirmed the plan of the State site plan, were councilmen Beauregard, Gentsch, Marsh, McLeod and Voynik. Councilman Cedervall voted no, councilman Senkowsky abstained and councilman Donovan registered as not voting.

The councilman's action came on the advice of an outside attorney, William S. Gurkin, who was hired for that. He said the earlier council resolution should be rescinded because there was no legal basis for such a decision.

In a companion resolution a communication was ordered to be sent to the firm and its attorney affirming their compliance with the council's latest action and telling them to disregard a prior communication ordering the removal of the landfill.

Councilmen Cedervall and Donovan, the former a staunch anti-flooding activist, were most vocal in their opposition to affirming the site plan approval. Councilman Cedervall said he would never vote to affirm the "dastardly action" of the planners.

The measure rescinding a prior resolution which reversed the action of the city planning board in approving the site plan for the landfill of Sisto Realty Company passed with five supporters after a stormy exchange between councilmen.

IF NUCLEAR ENERGY IS CHEAPER, WHY ARE MY BILLS STILL SO HIGH? It does cost PSE&G less to produce electricity with nuclear energy than with oil or coal, because nuclear fuel is cheaper than oil or coal. At present, about 15 percent of the electricity our customers use is being produced by nuclear energy. This results in savings of billions of dollars in fuel costs - savings that are automatically passed on to our customers.
