A new state office, the New Jersey Dept. of Public Advocate, was established in May, 1974.

The agency was the first of its kind in the country—a government agency, supported by general taxes, created to supply legal representation for the public. The accompanying legislation empowered the new agency to represent the public interest in quasifudicial proceedings before state regulatory agencies, to intitate litigation on behalf of mental patients and prisoners and to institute legal proceedings on behalf of the public in any broad social concern.

sometime next year, he will probably pursue a bachelor's degree in nursing.

The city resident has continued to work full time and recently his ability was recognized as he was appointed night nursing supervisor. Twenty-six is young for such a position, but his peers, other nursing supervisors, describe him as "very mature for his years" and "demonstrating great empathy for both the patients and the staff." Another added his unending patience makes him an excellent teacher. In addition to his serious approach to patient care, a quick sense of humor and feeling of esprit de corps make him a desirable co-worker, they say. Although he goes off duty at 7 a.m., theoretically, he can always be found in the supervisors' office an hour later reviewing the status of patients as well as the staffing with the day supervisors.

When the new supervisor can squeeze some free hours from his crowded schedule he paints in pastels, goes skiing, shoots color pictures with his camera or reads magazines on one of those subjects or his profession. He has never found being a male in a predominantly female occupation a handicap -- indeed, it has been an asset. Patients tend to remember him. Of course, being six-foot, three-inches tall increases his visibility too. As graeful as Mr. Finer is to Rahway Hospital for the inspiration and opportunities he found there, he appreciates most it is where he met his fiancee, Miss Angela McCaul, an intensive care nurse who comes from Monoghan, Ireland, The couple plan to be married on Saturday, Sept. 15, by The Rev. T. A. Edison, inventor, Friendless and penniless, the self-styled "T.A. Edison --Inventor" arrived in New York City in late spring. 1869, the very image of the "poor lad" in the "pluck and luck" stories Horatio Alger would typiny 20 years later.

Sreakfast presented the first New York challenge to the 22-year-old inventor. He begged a bit of tea in a wholesale tea emporium, then traded the tea for a breakfast of apple dumplings and coffee --which he later recalled was "the finest repast" of his life.

Edison set out to explore New York on foot. He walked all day and, by his own account, "a whole night long." He had no alternative, since he had no money for a room. Twenty-four hours of walking gave him ample time to reflect on his life to date as a self-taught, portly-disciplined, wandering melegrapher who natively thought he would be recognized as an inventor merely because he had so advertised himself.

True, he had secured one patent -- for a mechanical vote-counter which would immediately record votes as congressional representatives pulled either a "yes" or "no" switch. He had thought politicians surely would welcome that. welcome that.

"no" switch. He had thought politicians surely would welcome that.

Edison remembered forever the cool reception when he showed the vote recorder to a committee of Congress.

"Young man," said the chairman, "that is exactly what we don't want."

Anonymous, slow votes suited Congress just fine, the chairman explained. The young man then vowed to invent only items which would be "in commercial demand."

Now he was in New York, where financiers madely pursued millions of dollars and where laventors toiled to keep up with Wali Street's incessant demands for faster service and certain communication.

The brash youth waited only until his second day before knocking on the door of Franklin Pope, probably New York's best-known electrical engineer.

Pope was employed by a major financial house which circulated prices of gold on an ingenious mechanical "gold indicator." Since prices of gold fluctuated widely minute by minute, it was absolutely vital the machines be precise and prompt.

A few days after his arrivel in New York, Edison was in the gold company's headquarters observing the central indicator as it flashed gold prices to dozens of offices around the city. Suddenly the machine stopped.

Panic overwhelmed the firm. Pope began extensive and complicated tests on the machine. Screaming messenger boys poured in from customers around the city. Nearby customers rushed in to add angry demands. The company manager yelled wildly for help.

Unperturbed by the uproar, Edison calmiy pointed out the trouble ——a broken spring, He replaced the spring, reset the machine and put Wail Street back on the gold standard within minutes, Edisons shrugged it off as merely common sense and good luck.

Naturally the youth was hired. Soon he and Pope formed a small company to construct "various types of electrical devices," Edison lived in Pope's home in Elizabeth and worked 16 to 18 hours daily in a tiny Jersey City laboratory.

The real target for any inventor was Western Union, and vice versa, since Western Union equipment. Finally, wh Within 30 days Edison had spent virtually the entire Fortune for new experimental equipment.

He explained: "Mine was too sanguine a temperament to keep moncy in solitary confinement."

But something more important had been released from confinement: Edison's genius. T.A. Edison, in-

Homeowners may get smalier rebate checks

Homeowners who may be unduly concerned when they receive a smaller homestead rebate payment this July compared with last year's should take time to obtain and compare the effective tax rate in their municipality for 1977 and 1978 before calling or writing the governor, state treasurer or director of taxation for explanation, suggests a New Jersey Taxpayers Assn. spokesman. The maximum homestead rebate payments for homeowners in 384 of New Jersey's 557 municipalities will be smaller in July this year than last year. The reason is reduction in the 1978 total effective tax rate in the municipality from the 1977 rate. On the other hand, the miximum rebate payment will increase for homeowners in 99 municipalities, while in the remaining 84 the maximum rebate payment will increase for homeowners in 99 municipalities, while in the remaining 84 the maximum rebate payment will be unchanged.

Calculation of homestead rebate payment is based on a complex statutory formula. To facilitate determination of the rebate amount for the maximum assessed value of each property to qualify for the maximum repular rebate payment. NJTA's analysis used the regular rebate which represents the amount for a home with an equalized value of $15,000. State-wide about 94% of all homeowners receive the maximum rebate.

In 1977 nearly 1,401,000 homeowners received repayments to realing $274.6 million, an average payment of $196. Last year, 1,402,000 rebate checks totaling nearly $271.7 million were paid eligible homeowners, an average payment of almost $194. Average rebate figures include additional $50 payments to over 316,000 senior citizens, totally disabled persons and surviving spouses.

Maximum rebates this year range from a low of $156 renate figures include additional $50 payments to over $16,000 senior citizens, totally disabled persons and surviving spouses.

Maximum rebates this year range from a low of $156 in Holland Township in Hunterdon County. to a high of $255 in Winfield Township in Union County. Analysis of changes in the municipal maximum rebates from last year to this year indicates of the 99 municipalities with increases, 91 were between $1 and $5, while eight increases, 91 were between $1 and $5, while eight increased $4 or more. Of the 384 municipalities with decreased maximum rebates, 299 were between $1 and $3, while $5 decreased $4 or more. The largest dollar increase for the maximum rebate is $9 in Audubon Park in Camden County, while the largest decrease is $23 in Atlantic City.

The qualification for the homestead rebate is home ownership and residency on Oct. 1 of the pre-tax year. Applicants must file by Dec. 1 completed, state-prescribed forms which are malled directly to all eligible owners of the previous year. The filing deadline has been extended several months each year — this year to March 1. When the July payment day nears, homeowners who have not paid their taxes in full for last year will not receive their checks, instead they will be sent to the municipal tax collector. The law restricts the rebate payment to 50% of the net total property tax.

Home buyers in much of New Jersey will soon be able to take advantage of the mortgage terms available through the Federal Housing Administration—but without the long processing delays typical of FHA mortgages inthe past. City Federal Savings and Loan Assn. is extending to its 68-office branch network the FHA Co-insurance Program already operational in its Elizabeth headquarters office.

City Federal Glicials, who began to look at the program late last year, recently closed their first co-insured FHA loan, taking just four weeks for the loan processing, instead of the four to six months normally required for loans insured entirely by this Federal agency.

This is because the bank has taken on much of the sperwork otherwise handled by FHA and has accepted 10% of the insuring risk. The practice since the agency was created in the 1930's has been for FHA to insure the entirely Three township students, the 1980's has been for FHA to insure the entire loan.

Reviewing significant events of last year and commenting on the bank's results, particularly as they related to income, deposit growth, return on assets and yield on stockholders' equity, was Raymond W. Bauer, chairman and president.

Mr. Bauer apprised the stockholders of the current legislative and regulatory climate facing the banking industry, including the newly-authorized money market certificates and linked accounts. He also noted the possibility of checking accounts for savings and loan associations, a lowering of requirements on certain savings instruments to benefit the smaller saver, a change in the conditions of Federal Reserve membership and the authorization of NOW accounts nation-wide. Among the problems faced by banks in meeting increased costs is the unrealistic current yeary law in New Jersey, which is presently under consideration by the Legislature, he explained.

The bank official indicated the bank faces this year with great enthusiasm and opportunity, despite the pressures stemming from an increased level of competition and the demands being put on the bank in the way of regulations and reporting requirements.

pounds of illegal drugs -- mostly marijuana -- are smuggled into the United States every day.

Efforts in 1970 to crack down on the "French Connection" of heroin traffic led Congress to pass the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act. But it Inadvertently repealed an existing law which had made it a felony for any person to possess a narcotic drug on board a vessel of the United States. The law limited authority to those in possession of a controlled substance on board a vessel arriving in the United States or the customs territory of the United States.

As a consequence, the U. S. Coast Guard has been unable to effectively prosecute Americans who pick up contraband drugs outside the 12-mile limit. Even more distressing is the fact foreign nationals on board "mother ships," whose only cargo is contraband drugs, have been able to drop off drugs to smaller vessels without any fear of going to jail. Those which are seized are repatriated to their own countries at taxpayers' expense. The reason is the Coast Guard is often unable to find evidence in the ship's log their cargo is detined for U. S. waters.

Legislation I am sponsoring would plug this loophole in the law by subjecting U. S. citizens and foreign nationals to arrest for possession of illegal narcotics while on the high seas. The Coast Guard would be permitted to selze the "mother ship" and prosecute its officers in agreement with international law if contraband drugs are transferred to smaller vessels bound for U. S. waters.

The United States has long held it has the right to exercise extra-territorial jurisdiction over persons committing offenses contrary to our laws by virtue of their impact upon our vital national interests. A foreign-flag vessel loaded with contraband drugs should not be protected against our drug laws -- provided its cargo is destined for our shores. By E. Sidman Wachter The only way prices can be lowered is by cutting big government down to size, that is, by less government. While the media like to blame consumers, middle men and producers for the soaring prices of whatever one purchases this year, they overlook the real culprit one purchases this year, any or an experiment.

Notwithstanding its protestations of befriending consumers and favoring lower prices — "Methinks he doth protest too 'muchi"—blg government is indirectly responsible for our economic woes, including the sad fact the 1940 dollar is worth a bare 18¢ today. Consider facets of the record:
-Inflation. Inflation is defined by the dictionary as --Inflation. Inflation is defined by the dictionary as an increase in the supply of money and credit. Our banking system, and the Federal Reserve, both privately-owned but government-controlled, continually inflate the money supply. For example, member banks of the Federal Reserve borrowed $1.3 billion in the last week of January, compared to less than half that amount, $426 million, the same week of last year. More money is poured into circulation without any corresponding increase in goods or services. With additional green stuff around, its value declines and prices rise by leaps and bounds. In the words of Morgan Reynolds, staff economist of the Center for Education and Research in Free Enterprise at Texas A & M University: "A rapid increase in the supply of dollars relative to other goods has necessarily diminished the value of a dollar. The cure is to slow down the government's reckless expansion of the money supply." foreign-flag vessel loaded with contraband drugs should not be protected against our drug laws -- provided its cargo is destined for our shores.

One proposal I am sponsoring would increase the penalities on the basis of the tonage and value of cargo seized. A fine of $5,000 and five years in jail for a first offense -- which is often suspended by the courts -- makes the risks of a million-dollar drug deal worth-while for most traffickers, increasing the penalty to the value of the contraband, plus a mandatory jail term, would make drug dealers think twice before getting into this lucrative off-shore business. down the government's reckless expansion of the money supply."

- Taxes, Big government is responsible for taxes—not only the federal and state personal income taxes which are especially onerous this month—but also a multiplicity of hidden taxes. There are over 100 taxes on a loaf of bread before it reaches your table. Further, through heavy taxation, big government drives less prosperous or efficient companies out of business. This means the overall production of goods is reduced. With scarcity, prices zoom up.

- Borrowing. To cover budget deficits big government has to borrow, thus consuming wealth which otherwise would have been invested in free enterprise production, expansion and research. Because all this government borrowing raises interest rates, the costs of all loans, whether for business expansion or for the purchase of new houses and cars, are drastically increaced.

- Non-productive employment. Big government em-City, township students the first of three groups of Merit scholars to be named in the 24th Annual Nation-wide Competition administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corp. of Evanston, III.

Mr. Dynga expects to study chemical engineering in

--Non-productive employment. Big government employs millions of workers in Washington, D.C., state capitals, county seats and in the field, all of whom produce exactly zilch. Most hold their jobs because of political payoffs. Wages of government employes, like the expenses of their offices and furnishings, represent net losses to the taxpayers. And these people are very well-paid indeed, far above the levels of similar jobs in private free enterprise. The big money they receive for their non-productive labor puts more cash into circulation, payo for more purchases and drives up prices for all.

--Government-owned property. Big government in Clark, he received the George H. Coppers Merit for their non-productive labor puts more cash into streutation, pays for more purchases and drives up prices for all.

—Government-owned property. Big government in Washington owns at least one-third of the land in the United States. In some western states the percentage of federal ownership of land amounts to 50%, state and local governments also own considerable land and property. Of course no taxes are paid on government-owned property such as Green Acres, national parks, state parks, county parks, town parks and the like. The lack of taxes on these properties has to be made up by taxes on other property. Worse yet, the supplies of land, lumber, oil, natural gas and other resources become virtually "off bounds" to private free enterprise. The resultant scarcity of these resources then drives up the prices consumers must pay for heating, gasoline, plastics made from petroleum, and housing, to name a few.

Our nation was built on the competitive, free enterprise system, not by a humbling, top-heavy, overpaid and unnecessary bureaucracy. It is time we got "back to basics" in government as well as in education.

Drug traffic crackdown needed on high seas

The recent report by an Essex County Grand Jury 90% of all school students have used drugs, including fourth graders, offers a frightening glimpse of the spectacular spread of drugs in American society.

United States drug enforcement authorities estimate 95% of the regular drug users in American society.

United States drug enforcement authorities estimate 95% of the regular drug users in American society.

Drug smuggling directly affects our national wellbeing. While drug abuse harms the health and morality of our youth, the cancer of corruption is just as troublesome.

The black market in drugs co-exists alongside our domestic economy, sapping its energy and vitality while contributing nothing to our national economic growth or quality of life.

In fact, it significantly impacts on our negative balance of payments. Illegal drug traffic may total as much as one-third of our annual costs of importing oil.

In sheer magnitude marijuana smuggling alone approximates twice the gross national productof accountry the size of Ireland.

Illegal drug trafficking is an enormously lucrative business. Last year alone, the Coast Guard seized 3,5 million pounds of contraband drugs worth a staggering $1.5 billion. They estimate an average of 130,000

Your baby's tears and smiles communicate to you long before those first precious words. As both a mother and a grandmother, I can give you some hints
about crying.
Tears may signal that baby's diaper is wet and uncomfortable. It's easy to check and a dry baby is certainly a happler one.
Sudden, loud noises or anything starding can produce fear and make baby cry.
Comforting and holding baby close will usually stop the tears.

Crying also can say that baby is overtired. If baby still cries when put in bed, wait a while or try a rocking chair. Chances are sleep will come

Bread you can make while beating clock

Do you want to bake your own bread but can't find the time? Quick breads can be prepared in a relatively short period of time. Quick breads are leavened either by baking powder, baking soda, steam, or a combination of any of these three leavening agents.

Many quick breads lend themselves to countiess variations and serving idea. They need not be limited to a main dish or selad accompaniment. Biscuit dough becomes an hor d'oeuvre when wrapped around stuffed olives or cocktail onlons and baked.

Muffins, hiscuits, waffees and pancakes are versatile for breakfast, brunch or luncheons. Tea muffins and nut loaves are well-suited as finger foods when entertaining.

Rich quick breads such as shortcakes, crepes and bilintzes serve as the basis for many desserts. Often served with fresh fruit or a sauce, they make an attractive meal ending.

The harvest was scantier in Europe, where bad weather, plagued the vineyards.

The harvest can't be timed by schedule. Nature decides when the grapes are ready, and it's up to the vinteer to recognize the point.
