Assemblyman urges state gasoline schedule

A spokesman for the Automobile Club of New Jersey had advice recently for motorists who want to know whether to keep the engine running of shuttoff during a long, slow crawl toward a service station.

The spokesman said motorists must base their judgment on how fast the line moves. One minute of idling uses up more gasoline than restarting the engine would. The club figured the average engine consumed half a gallon of gasoline in one hour of idling.

He added motorists could cut gasoline consumption 5 to 14% by not turning on air-conditioners. He also said a weil-tuned car used 10% less fuel, and properly inflated tires also helped, because underinflation in-creased rolling resistance.

Adoption, on the other hand, is the permanent plan for many children. A variety of children need adoption homes. The goal of adoption is to give a child a permanent family of his or her own.

The recruitment of foster and adoptive parents from Essex and Union Counties is being co-ordinated by the division's Regional Office for Foster Care and Adoption located at 1180 Raymond Blvd., Newark.

Interested families may contact a caseworker at the above address or telephone 648-4550 to discuss the qualifications for foster and adoptive parenting any weekday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Family Services, the state's primary social ser-vice agency for the fami-lies and children of New Jersey, is in need of homes for hard-to-place children. Foster homes are needed Foster homes are needed for children of all ages, especially teen agers, Adoption homes are needed for hiack, inter-racial and handicapped children as well as children over nine years old. For the next eight weeks the search will be on in the Essex and Union County areas for parents willing to provide care for these children. Regardless of age, economic or social position; religious affiliation, ethnic or cultural grouping, there are all kinds of children who might need temporary care. The goal of foster care is to reunite the child with his or her parents or to make someother permanent plan.

maceutical glant, Merck & Co., Inc., settled a discrimination case with the United Status Days of Lebor by agreeing voluntarily to spend $3.2 million through 1982 on "new and expanded affirmative action efforts" for its female and minority employers.

The company will spend most of the money on job training and development programs for women and minorities and for "equal employment opportunity training" for supervisors, a Labor Dept. spokesman sald.

However, some $200,000 was earmarked for women the company agreed to promote to higher positions in research and scientific activities, the spokesman noted.

"This was the only area in which the government believed it had a supportable case of discrimination," said Richard Devine, assistant director of the Office of Contract Compilance.

Merck, which does $30 million annually in government business, mostly through pharmaceutical supply contracts with the veterans hospital system, is covered by a federal executive order requiring government contractors to take affirmative action to hire and promote women and minority employes.

The Dept. of Agriculture is spending half a million dollars for research on feedstocks on their conversion into fuels. About $590,000 is being spent by the department for competitive gasohol-related research grants to colleges.

Last March I sponsored legislation to promote the use of alcohol as a motor vehicle fuel. It directs the secretary of energy and the Environmental Protection Agency to take cooperative action to speed up the expanded production and distribution of gasohol. would allow the rapid amortization of facilities producing alcohol as a petroleum additive.

A third bill I am supporting would abolish the feed grain set aside program, which cost taxpayers over $800 million last year, and earmark a significant portion of the grain reserve to serve as assured feedstocks for the alcohol fuels industry. It would also provide the Secretary of Agriculture with discretionary authority to make available all agricultural commodities under his control for this purpose. That includes corn, wheat, sugar, potatoes and dry milk.

United States farmers have proven they can produce more than Americans can consume or export if the farmers have guarantees their grain and corn will be purchased. The gasohol industry would give them that guarantee, while assuring surplus supply of grain for domestic consumption international trade by reducing fuel imports. Finally, it would create a new industry to recycle trash and farm wastes.

Action needed now on people's referendum

The success of Proposition 13 in California is resounding. Property taxes have been slashed by $6.4 billion and state income taxes by $1 billion. These tax cuts have so stimulated the state's economy in the final quarter of last year and the first quarter of this year, personal income jumped 14 per cent, with a resultant upsurge in consumer services forecast by the doomsayers have not come to pass.

Of the 100,000 workers separated from local governments, only about 17,000 have been actually laid off. The rest have only about 17.00 have been actually and the test acts either quit or retired. Because they have not been repliaced, the public payroll has been reduced by 8 per cent. Furthermore, because of the tax savings, business has been able to generate 552,000 new jobs, sufficient not only to absorb the released government workers but also to reduce unemployment faster than the national average.

So why don't New Jersey (appayers hop on the Proposition 13) had worse and put a tax-raying measure before the 13 bandwagon and put a tax-saving measure before the voters in November?

The answer is simple. The New Jersey Constitution does gasohol industry would give them that guarantee, while assuring surplus supply of grain for domestic consumption and for export abroad.

Actually, the development of a gasohol industry would result in reduced costs to the American taxpayers. Farm subsidies of $4 billion to $7 billion a year, depending on supply and demand, would be substantially reduced. Gasohol also would bolster the value of the dollar in international trade by reducing fuel imports. Finally, it would The answer is simple. The New Jersey Constitution does not permit any group but the Legislature to piace referencia before the voters. That is why approval of a constitutional amendment providing for citizen initiative and referendum has become imperative. Then, and only then, will it be possible to place on the ballot critical issues like Proposition 13 through petitions by private citizens.

The first step must be approved by three-fifths of both houses of the state legislature of Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 138 which would enable the placing on the November ballot for approval of the voters a constitutional amendment permitting initiative and referendum. This measure was introduced by assemblywomen, Mise Barbara Curran of Summit, and endorsed by, among others, Assemblyman Charles Hardwick of Westfield and Donald T. EiFrancesco of Scotch Plains, who represents Rahway and

The wording of the proposed amendment is as follows:

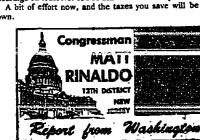

"The people reserve unto themselves the power to propose a laws and amendments to the Constitution through the initiative process, as may be provided by law, and, in addition to that required by Article No. 8. Section No. 2, Paragraph No. 3 of the Constitution, and the people reserved unto themselves the power to approve or reject all or any part of any duly-enacted law through the referendum process as may be provided by law."

It should be noted the Constitutions of 23 states already provide for the initiative and referendum procedure.

Something must be done to stop the big spending by state and local government. Since 1962 the New Jersey state budget, annual state spending, has soared from $500,000,000 to $4.4 button. It his is eight times as large as the increase line was the possibility. in our state population.

But here is the hitch. Although the bill was introduced last September, the Democratic majority in the Legislature has for nine long months Ignored both it and its companion bill in the Senate. There is no excuse for shunting to one side a

If the nation displaced 10 per cent of its unleaded gasoline with alcohol, it is estimated we could save 320,000 barrels of oil a day. The savings would be much higher if there was a total conversion to gasohol, a situation which may be forced upon us sooner than we plan. It is possible for alcohol to be mixed with regular gasoline now, but virtually all dealers mix alcohol with unleaded gasoline because of the octaine-boost-A spokesman for the Rehway Police Crime Prevention Bureau has a few tips for motorists waiting in gasoline station lines:

--Don't carry extra gasoline in trunk or back seer, fumes can cause an explosion.

--Leaving the motor running you are wasting gasoline and causing air pollution and the car to overheat. ing quality of alcohol.

A total conversion to leaded and unleaded gasohol would mean a 20 per cent reduction in the amount of imported oil mean a 20 per cent reduction in the amount of imported out the nation uses for gasoline. Some experts note it takes more energy to make a gallon of alcohol than to produce a gallon of gasoline. There will, of course, be a loss of energy when one form of fuel is converted into another, such as coal to electricity. But the real issue is the energy balance is not the specific gain or loss of energy, but the social and economic a surplus of grain or garbage, which it has, then gasohol makes sense. More importantly, America must decrease oil imports, and gasohol will help achieve that objective.

Gasohol is not the total answer, of course. But for motorists waiting in long lines for scarce fuel, it offers a reprieve until something better comes along.

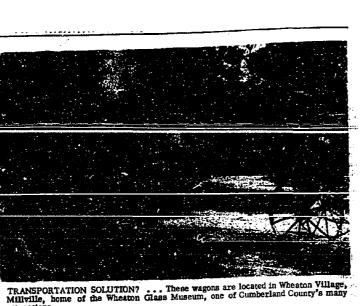

I have requested the Dept. of Energy and the Port of Authority of New York and New Jersey to reach an agreement within the next few months on construction of a $30 million gasohol production plant in the port region capable of producing 100 million gallons of ethanol annually. One major advantage of such a waste conversion plant is it would be situated near major refineries and one of the largest garbage landfills in the world.

Juvenile crime makes golden ege nightmare

The golden years have swiftly turned into the "terms years" for senior citizens in New Jersey whom crime has forcist into a form of self-imprisonment in their homes. And in a growing number of cases, home has proven to be equally united for the elderly. in agrowing number of cases, nome has proved to be equally unside for the electify.

According to a State Police spokesman, senior citizens are the victims of 22 per cent of all "strong arm robberles."

But senior citizen associations challenge the crime, statistics, contending they do not reflect the many incidents which the elderly refuse to report for fear of retribution.

"We'll never really know how many senior citizens are analy to report statis, especially these instituted by juveniles," said State Violent Crimes Compensation Board Chairman Thomas A. Kaczmarck, a former Clark mayor.

"Romically, the seniors, who have earned the right to peaceful retirement living, have become easy prey for the growing number of juvenile hoodiums, who have lost all respect for society as well as the law," Mr. Kaczmarck added.

In Esses County, Presecutor Donald S. Ceburn called the rise in juvenile crime "a very serious matter. The juvenile justice system appears to have broken down."

Brick Township, in Ocean County, one of the fastest growing communities in the state, considers the juvenile crime problem to be one of the most serious concerns.

"Wo're plagues by vandalism, burglaries, larcenies and an occasional holdup, and better than 60 per cent of these crimes are committed by juveniles," said Brick Public Safety Director Eugene W. Halton.

"We have a lot of senior critzen complexes here, and we have a lot of senior critzen complexes here, and we have a lot of wooded areas and waterways which serve as an escape haven for teenagers," Mr. Halton explained, adding the 28 square miles and the add configuration of the municipality make it that much more difficult to patrol.

Mr. Halton produced figures showing the weekly crime rate in Brick for the first three weeks of May. In the first week there were 64 breaking and enterings, larcenies and malicious damage cases, 91 in the second week and 70 in the third week.

"And the summer is just coming upon us, when our normal 60,000 population rises to overe 100,000," Mr. Halton said. accept.

Chief Justice Richard J. Hughes, who will be 70 in August, recently said the alarming rise in juvenile crime, especially in the form of attacks of senior citizens, has turned him from a the form of attacks of senior citizens, has torsize ann more dove to a hawk.

"Old people are imprisoned in their apartments. I wouldn't willingly waik the streets of my neligible-shood in Princeton at night or on urban streets in daytime," he said.

"These offenders are not satisfied with just taking the Social Security check, but most injure the elderly, too, it has Social Security check, but most injure the elderly, too. It has to stop," the chief justice added.

While statistics on elderly victims of crime are on the rise, the number of juvenile offenders are rising even more rapidly. In fact, the criminal justice system in New Jersey, and indeed across the country, is confronted at present with a major crime wave involving juveniles.

Foe example, juveniles were arrested for 16,422 major crimes in the first six months of last year, according to the State Police Crime Index. In the second six months of last year, the number of juvenile arrests rose to 20,398. This represented almost 48 per cent of all major crime arrests in New Jersey last year.

"And still the courts treat juveniles with kid gloves," said a country official in New Jersey who was the victim of a

For senior citizens who are not county officials but who attempt to live as best they can on fixed incomes, their fear motivatges even the simplest decisions in their lives.

A Belleville man, Eugene Zappo, immediate past president of New Jersey Federation of Semior Citizens, which has 504 affiliated clubs around the state, said "senior citizens are deadly fearful of muggings, pocket-picking and purse smatching."

The regional board of transportation in Passaic County An elderly man in a Morris County community told of "The regional board of transportation in Passale County took a poil not long ago and found that only 2 per cent of the senior citizens dured to go out after dark," Mr. Zappo said, adding the poll was conducted in urban and suburban communities.

architects who design senior citizen housing complexes.

"We found places with balconies and trees alongside were just inviting burglars, so now they keep balconies off of all new senior citizen complexes."

He added most complexes have good security provisions, including guards.

"It's the isolated senior citizens that worry us most. For example, if someone breaks into a senior's bome and steals the television set, that could be especially traumatic."

"The loss of a television set to a senior citizen on a fixed income who lives alone and is afraid to go outdoors might result in a tragedy," he explained.

Mr. Zappo said crime is the "number one concern of senior citizens," adding those who live in urban neighborhoods fear muggings the most, and those in the suburbs are afraid of burglaries.

"Senior citizens are most fearful of juveniles, because juveniles are more apt to physically harm the elderly," he explained.

The director of the "Outreach" senior citizens program in Paterson, sponsored by Catholic Family Community Services, said she has found "many senior citizens who are afraid to walk the streets in daytime, much less go out at night.

"They're afraid. it's a common feeling with all senior citizens in the urban areas as well as the suburbs. They're afraid of being robbed or mugged, mostly by juveniles," she noted.

Members of the Outreach program escort seniors to doctors, clinics and other needs, especially in high crime areas. They advise them of their rights after becoming the victim of a crime, encourage them to press charges, and help put seniors in contact with legal services agencies.

A Monmouth County woman explained how a bus filled with women, many of whom were senior citizens, was beset by rock throwers along the Garden State Parkway.

State Public Advocate Stanley Van Ness said more juveniles than ever are being represented by the public defender system.

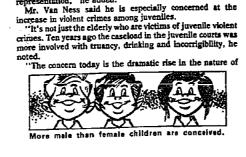

"The juvenile problem was once confined to the cities, but no more. It's all over the state. Youths are getting into the same kind of trouble all over," Mr. Van Ness said.

"In fact, I think we're now defending more juveniles in the suburbs. Their parents may be affluent, but the kids are indigent — and that's the requirement for public defender representation," he added.

Mr. Van Ness said he is especially concerned at the increase in violent crimes among juveniles.

"It's not just the elderly who are victims of juvenile violent crimes. Ten years ago the caseload in the juvenile courts was more involved with truancy, drinking and incorrigibility, he noted.

"The concern today is the dramatic rise in the nature of they re recogning more vices; and the state and his met incident who fear youth graphs," he declared.

"The problem is reflected in the juvenile court statistics.

Where there used to be two or three murders and rapes a year committed by youths, only as recently as four years ago, now we're getting anywhere from 12 to 24 of these kinds of the Burlington County." Mr. Sullivan said.

United County Prosecutor John Stamler produced figures to show complaints against juveniles last year were the highest for a five-year period, as were dispositions of cases by the county's juvenile court.

Two state agencies begin July 1 operation

Two major new organizational units of state government, an independent Office of Administrative Law in the Dept. of State, and the Tax Court in the judiciary, officially began their first full operating fiscal year on July 1 reports a New Jersey Taxpayers Assn. spokesman.

The major purpose of OAL is to improve the administrative hearing process by speeding it up and providing greater expertise and impartiality. Previously hearings were carried out by a combination of part-time and full-time employes in 12 of the 19 executive departments.

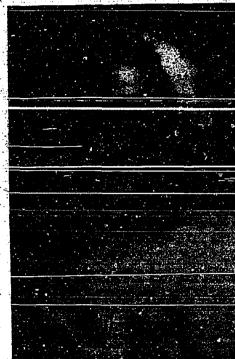

Employes who conduct hearings necessitated by appeals-contesting departmental rulings are now called administrative law judges. They must be attorneys-at-law, although non-attorneys with special experience and expertise in administrative law and hearings in a particular function such as education may be employed. Most will serve full-time.

A specific minimum hearing timetable is required. The appropriate agency head must be presented the hearing officer's report within 45 days after completing a hearing, and the head of the agency involved in the hearing has another 45 days after receipt of the report of the administrative judge to act finally on it.

The Office of Administrative Law has been in a development stage since Jan. 6, operating on a part-time appropriation. Total first-year cost of the new agency is indefinite. Due to lack of experience, no budget details on number of petsonnel or related administrative costs were available for the John Appendations Committee to evaluate the 51.7 million governor's 1980 budget recommendation. The Appropriations bill during budget deliberations. However, up to $2.4 million additional may be transferred from various agencies which no longer require funds for administrative learnings.

The judiciary in fiscal year 1980 will be augmented by a new Tax Court, a group of full-time judges with expertite in trastion, who will concentrate on hearing appeals from actions of the 21 county boards of taxation, the Director of Taxation, who will backlog of between 25,000 and 30,000, many of which are for different years involving the same property.

New Jersey becomes the third state after Hawaii and Oregon to have an agency in the judicial branch hearing and deciding tax matters. Six new judges have been appointed by the governor to serve in the Tax Court and rules of procedure have been prepared to implement legislation both enacted and pending. The law provides a small claims division which will hear complaints in which the amount in controversy is $2,000 or less. The 1989 appropriations bill provides $1.4 million for the new court in addition to any unexpended funds transferred from the Dept. of Treasury tax appeals account. Some of the new costs will be offset by fees for filing tax appeals.

Legumes can provide good meat alternative

Extension Service

Legumes have been known as a good meat alternative because of their high-quality protein and are high in B vitamins. But, how do you cook and use them?

Lentils should be stored in an un-opened bagor covered container in a cool, dry, lace until ready to use. Properly stored, they will keep indefinitely, it is not necessary to soak lentils before cooking. To cook a pound, rinse them and put in a heavy seacepan with five cups of water and two teaspoons of sait. Bring the water to a boil, cover the por and reduce the heat to simmer. In 30 minutes the lentils will cook to a puffed tenderness.

Lentils are frequently served plain with better or mashed and seasoned or served with a sauce. Pureed lentils can be used in dips, croquettes, suiffed reners and souffice or
