Elizabeth Jacobs gets 124 write-in votes to capture two-year city school position

By Joan Gorzenik
Rahway voters cast an unusually high number of votes for Elizabeth Jacobs, a write-in candidate for the two-year unexpired term at the Rahway Board of Education Election Tuesday.

She won the seat by a large margin, gaining 124 votes. Mrs. Jacobs was heavily supported in the Third Ward, in all districts, while her area of least support was the First Ward, Third and Fourth Districts.

Three other write-in candidates with a strong showing at the polls were Frank Foley, Eileen Bene and Lillian Henderson with 77, 57 and 46 votes respectively.

Had there not been any write-in candidates, the choice of who would fill the two-year seat would have fallen to the city's superintendent of schools, James J. Clancy.

There was no real opposition to incumbents, Rick Proctor and Barry Henderson, and newcomer, William Walter Hoodrow, candidates for the three-year terms that were available. Votes cast respectively for the three were 559, 607 and 511.

The votes were equally shared throughout all wards, with Mr. Henderson receiving the biggest tally.

Mr. Proctor is a life-long resident of Rahway and a graduate of Washington and Lee University, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in psychology. He is employed in the health and welfare field, and ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic nomination for Assembly from the district which includes Rahway and Clark in 1978.

Mr. Henderson is a former Board president. He is active in many city organizations, and in a lieutenant on the city police force.

Mr. Hoodrow is a graduate of Rahway High School, as are four of his children. He was employed as the clerk in the Union County Sheriff's Dept. until he left his position as a senior clerk at the county

Jan. 1 of last year. Unofficially, there were write-in votes for three year terms for Mr. Foley, Eileen Bene and Kevin Weirick. City voters backed a long-standing trend Tuesday night by approving the school budget. The current expense portion of the budget was approved by a large margin, 463 to 198.

while the capital outlay portion was approved 436 to 302. They okayed a current expense tax levy of $7,567,232, up from last year's $7,409,571.

The capital outlay figure is $170,264, down slightly from $174,095 from last year's budget.

A Board official predicted Tuesday few districts would approve their budgets as Rahway has.

The greatest opposition to the budget was felt in the Third Ward, Third and Fourth Districts, and the Sixth Ward, First and Second Districts.

A major catalyst for voter approval may have been the fact that no new taxes for school purposes will be involved this year.

The new school budget will mean an approximate two-point decrease in the tax rate in support of the city's school system.

Italian-American unit asks minimum mandatory jailing

The president of the New Jersey Alliance of Italian-Americans, Salvatore Fucile of Rahway, recently wrote to Gov. Brendan T. Byrne and to leaders of both parties in the New Jersey Legislature on behalf of the group's Issues Committee to modify state legal procedures to reduce crime and decongest the courts.

Citing the state's overcrowded court calendar and the fact "those who can afford expensive lawyers and high court costs can delay important trials for years, and finally succeed in obtaining minor sentences or dismissals for their clients," the Italian group president wrote the citizen is fearful of walking the streets because of the possibility of being molested.

Mr. Fucile noted the punishment for crime is not equal for all because bail policies are different for different people and "some judges are very lenient or incompetent, while others are more rigid."

The Italian-American leader, on behalf of his committee, urged the imposition of a minimum mandatory sentence for each crime.

For example, he said murder performed during the commission of a crime should carry a mandatory death sentence, and murders deemed "heinous" should be sentenced minimally to five years for the first offense, 10 years for the second offense and life imprisonment for the third offense.

Those convicted of robbery for the first time should face at least five years in prison, according to the Italian-American group.

The second and third offenses should carry minimum penalties of 10 years and life imprisonment, respectively, Mr. Fucile wrote.

The above sentences should be left to the judge within certain procedures established by him, and not to the adversary who makes the accusation.

In order to insure fairer jury selection, the group suggested juries be screened for the type of crime involved, and jurors be assigned to cases without screening privileges for the attorneys involved.

Another suggestion was the accused be given the chance to tell his story to the court for a limited period of time without being restricted to only answering questions.

The group would also make jurors privy to all discussions between jurors and attorneys without being subject to the possibility of having a mistrial called because of this.

Congested court calendars could be free to flow if society again if small civil and matrimonial cases were decided out of court on the basis of the written presentations of both adversaries, according to the Italian-American Alliance.

Finally, the group suggested the determination if perjury has been committed should be left to the judge within certain procedures established by him, and not to the adversary who makes the accusation.

Army Corps plans favor city levees

The district engineer of the New York District of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, completed a study of the flood problems within the Rahway River Basin—the Essex, Union and Middlesex Counties.

The purpose of this study was to determine whether federal participation is warranted in improvements for flood control and allied purposes in the basin.

Public meetings in connection with the study were held in Rahway and Cranford on April 27, 1979 and June 17, 1979.

The study was prepared in order to expedite reports for the flood-prone areas that were severely damaged in 1968, 1971 and 1973.

To date, favorable recommendations have been made for federal flood control improvements in such following areas, which are currently in Congress awaiting final action:

Upper Robinson's Branch in Clark and Scotch Plains and Pumpkin Patch Brook in Clark, where the recommended plan consists of channel modifications, levees, bridge replacement and a concrete dike. The recommended Federal modifications along Pumpkin Patch Brook are now unfavourable due to a change in federal flood control and local storm sewer system responsibilities in urban areas.

Lower Robinson's Branch in Rahway, where the recommended plan consists of channel modifications, levees, floodwalls, a concrete dike, a stop-log structure and swing flood gates.

The final survey report reviewed all of the remaining known flood-prone areas in the basin, but focused on the feasibility of Federal flood control improvements in Millburn, Maplewood, Union, and Cranford.

The report concluded federal participation in such improvements is not economically justified in these communities at this time.

During October and November, 1980, a representative of the New York District met with local officials to discuss the unfavourable findings and furnish them a copy of the draft final survey report.

The comments from these local officials have been addressed and will be included in the final survey report, reports Col. W. M. Smith, Jr. of the Corps.

The final survey report on the basin will be reviewed by the District Engineer, New York District, Corps of Engineers, 26 Federal Plaza, New York, N. Y. 10278.

Lawrence Petrosino of the New York District is available to answer questions on the final Survey Report for those who telephone (212) 264-3579. Views and comments on the study findings and conclusions in the draft final Survey Report should be addressed in writing to the District Engineer at the above address. To permit these views and comments to be considered in the final survey report, they should be furnished to the New York District by Thursday, April 30.

MADAM LIBRARIAN - Kimberly Thorne, left, and Carolyn Korman are shown looking books in the Madam Librarian's room. The girls are part of the school's Student Library Group, a volunteer group working in a library and library management.

Veterans seek units for Memorial march

Plans are well underway for the Annual Rahway Memorial Day Parade, and six bands have been committed. Each year, under the sponsorship of the Rahway Veterans' Central Committee, a different group is assigned to chair the parade.

This year the host post is 681 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of Rahway, and Junior Vice Commander Anthony J. Pascale is chairman of the Veterans' Central Committee.

The parade will be held on Sunday, May 24. First call for assembly will be 1 p.m. with the kickoff time at 1:30 p.m. World War I Veterans may participate, and they will be riding in vehicles provided by the Second Battalion of the 113th Infantry under the auspices of Paul L. Angelo of Rahway, supervisor of the Union County Office of Veteran Affairs.

Area organizations may send contingencies in march in the parade and join with city officials, the Police and Fire Dept., First Aid Squad, Girl and Boy Scouts, twirlers and other units of the Recreation Dept., the Rahway Chamber of Commerce, the Elementary School Band, the school crossing guards, students of all schools, church groups, and all community clubs. As always, the Rahway High School Redman Band, under the direction of Ronald Dolce, will lead the parade.

This year the reviewing stand will be at the Rahway City Hall.

Rutgers pupils aid in beating tax date

As Wednesday, April 15, the deadline for filing federal income tax returns, approaches, many poor and foreign-born taxpayers have turned to a group of Rutgers University students for assistance.

The students, all members of the Rutgers University Tax Clinic, are providing free tax counseling and preparing tax returns for low-income and foreign-born residents of New Jersey.

The clinic is a part of the Rutgers University Center for Social and Public Policy, which was established in 1982 to provide social and public policy research and education to the Rutgers community.

The clinic is staffed by a group of Rutgers University students who are trained in tax law and are supervised by a faculty member who is a tax expert.

The clinic is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Wednesdays and Thursdays. It is located in the Rutgers University Center for Social and Public Policy, 100 University Avenue, Newark, N.J. 07102.
