Census study reveals increase in non-whites

The population of Union County has changed markedly over the last 20 years with an approximate 7% decline in the number of residents here from 1970 to 1980, according to a report prepared by Union County College's Office of Institutional Research.

Five significant trends in the population of the county are cited in the report entitled, "Population Characteristics of Union County for 1960, 1970 and 1980 and the Profile of Students at Union County College in Spring Term, 1982."

The report is based on statistics provided by the United States Census studies of 1980, 1970 and 1960. The report, prepared by Mrs. Patricia Biddar of Rahway, the director of institutional research, looked at changes in the makeup of the county's population over the last 20 years. The college will use the report to identify changing trends in the county, and then use that information to plan to meet the educational needs of students.

The report found the present total of Union County residents is lower now than it was in 1960. The report also indicates the percentage of males in the county appears to be decreasing over time; in terms of racial/ethnic categories the white population is decreasing, while minority groups' population is increasing; the number of individuals under 17 years of age has decreased by 45,624 from 1970 to 1980 with most of the decrease occurring in the racial-ethnic category of "white," and the number of individuals aged 65 years of age or older is increasing as well as the proportion of females comprising that group.

According to the study, all Union County municipalities experienced decreases in population from 1970 to 1980. The largest percentages of decline in population in Union County during that time were: Fanwood, 12.9%; Clark, 11.3%; Springfield, 11.3%; Summit, 10.8%; Cranford, 10.3%; and Kenilworth, 10.3%.

Hillside at 9%; Plainfield at 3%, and Berkeley Heights at 4% evidenced the smallest percentage of change from 1970 to 1980.

Hillside, Plainfield, Roselle and Rahway experienced a 20% or more increase in the number of individuals listed in a racial-ethnic category other than "white."

Hillside and Plainfield showed a decrease in the number of persons aged 65 years of age or older from 1970 to 1980, while Mountaintop, New Providence, Springfield and Union experienced increases of 25% or more in the number of individuals who were 65 years of age or older during the same period.

The report shows that Hillside, Elizabeth and Plainfield experienced the largest declines in population in the category of "white" during the past 10 years.

Hillside showed a decrease in its white population of 35.9% from 1970 to 1980. Elizabeth's white population declined by 30.1% during that time span, while Plainfield's decreased by 27.4%.

The County College report also noted for the first time in the history of the census, Hispanic residents in Elizabeth were included in the 1980 numbers. The census noted Hispanics make up 26.7% of Elizabeth's population, with 28,305 of them now living in that municipality. That number is greater than the Black population in Elizabeth, which according to the 1980 census, is 18,622 or 17.5%.

The report shows overall the census found in the last 20 years Union County's makeup has changed significantly.

The current makeup of Union County, according to the 1980 census study, is 74.4% white, 15.9% Black, 8.1% Hispanic, and 1.6% in other categories.

The 1960 census showed the county, at that time, was made up of a very different population, which was 92.3% white, 7.5% Black and .1% in other categories, with no statistics available for Hispanics at that time.

NAACP to elect new officers

The regular meeting of the general membership of the Rahway Branch of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People will be held at the Ebenezer African Methodist Episcopal Church at 253 Central Ave., Rahway, on Monday, Dec. 13, at 8 p.m., for the purpose of electing officers and members of the Executive Committee for the 1983-1984 term, reports John J. Robertson, the branch president.

A slate of officers was nominated at the November meeting.

Mr. Robertson added, "All members of the branch in good standing are eligible to vote, and are urged to be present."

Dec. 2 passed a note to a teller at a walkup window at the Maple and St. George Ave., Rahway, office of the Commercial Trust Co. of New Jersey, and made off with about $1,200 in cash.

According to the Rahway Police, the robbery occurred between 4:30 and 5 p.m., and another robbery with the same method of operation happened later the same evening in Metuchen.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is looking into the case, police told The Rahway News-Record.

New lives given deaf by 'hearing dogs'

By R. R. Faszczewski
Rahway-area residents recently found out that being deaf does not have to keep a person sheltered from the vital "sounds" of living.

A demonstration about the Central Jersey Club of the Deaf's program to provide dogs to help the deaf "hear" was performed recently at the Italian American Club in Rahway.

The program gives priority to severely or profoundly deaf adults, young deaf adults seeking independent lives apart from their parents, deaf parents with infants and young children, mature, deaf adults with no other support systems and the elderly deaf who wish to remain independent, reports Denis Munn of Bayonne, the director of the program.

According to Mr. Munn deaf recipients are encouraged to contribute accordingly to their ability and help fund financial sponsors for their dogs. No applicants are denied a "hearing dog" because of their inability to contribute toward the cost of a dog, he added.

A pre-placement visit in the home assesses the applicant's need for a working animal, a commitment to meeting the dog's needs and determination to reinforce the response training. Also considered are a person's age, lifestyle and physical disabilities. Through the assistance of a member of the placement staff experienced in sign language each dog is chosen specifically for its deaf master.

During the training period the recipients are encouraged to stay in close contact with the Hearing

Dog Center, which is located at the Red Acre Farm in Stowe, Mass., and to maintain an active interest in the dog's progress. An opportunity to visit the center, and work for several days with his dog is offered to each recipient during the final week of training, noted Mr. Munn.

A non-profit organization established in 1963 to provide a home for old and worn-out horses, the farm has provided veterinary students with scholarships and is now giving homeless and abandoned animals a chance to provide deaf persons with a "realistic alternative for independent living, protection, companionship, a sense of responsibility and a readiness to respond," the club director pointed out.

He also said the program prevents the animals from being euthanized.

Using a concept developed in the mid-1970's, the professionally-trained hearing dog consistently alerts its deaf master to the presence of sound everyday communications devices or warning danger signals and thereby enables him to respond in an appropriate manner, it was pointed out at the program in Rahway.

The dogs are trained to help their masters respond to the alarm clock, doorbell, telephone or smoke alarm.

Hearing dogs have been helping the deaf with daily other animal shelter. Nationally, approximately 80% of the lost or abandoned animals that end up in dog pounds are eventually put to sleep, but the lucky pups selected for hearing dog training are given a second chance for leading a useful, happy life, the club spokesman pointed out.

He concluded Red Acre Farm has a professional dog trainer who works fulltime helping the animals learn their new duties. A placement counselor with a professional background in deafness works with the deaf recipients before, during and after placement of the dog in its new home. Hearing dogs are certified, and guaranteed legal rights equivalent to those enjoyed by guide dogs for the blind.

For the second time, the Annual Tree-Lighting Ceremony will be held on Thursday, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the front of City Hall, at the corner of Main St. and Milton Ave.

An atmosphere of the early 1900's will be created with the help of the luminaria candles, which will decorate the plaza in front of City Hall. These candles have been donated by the Rahway Chamber of Commerce.

In keeping with the spirit of the 1900's a chamber spokesman suggested par-

DRUNK-DRIVING ARRESTS CLIMB IN TOWNSHIP

A significant increase in drunk-driving arrests since the implementation of a Drunk-Driving Task Force Grant awarded by the Office of Highway Safety of New Jersey was reported by Clark Police Chief Anthony T. Smar.

Friends of Animals opposes 'attempt to raise costs'

Friends of Animals, Inc. called for Gov. Thomas H. Kean to veto a measure now before the State Assembly that would reduce available care to the three million owned pets in New Jersey, and greatly increase the cost of that care to pet owners, according to a group spokesman.

The proposed bill, A-1619, is a concurrent resolution already approved by the Senate. It was expected to come up for a vote in the Assembly on Dec. 6.

A-1619 is an amendment to the State Veterinary Practice Act, which Friends of Animals believes already gives too much power to the veterinary profession.

The animal group spokeswoman contends the reason for the bill's passage through the Senate is its deceptive appearance.

"More power to keep out fewer veterinarians, and this translates into higher costs for the pet owner," she added.

United Way asks: Help us meet goal

The United Way of Eastern Union County has reached 50% of its goal, according to the campaign chairman, Christopher Armstrong. "More people are going to need help from the United Way's 45 agencies. It is up to us to see these people receive the assistance they need."

"The response has been good to this year's campaign, but we still have a long way to go before we can wrap-up the campaign. I'm calling on all sectors of eastern Union County's communities to pledge their support to the United Way," added the chairman.

"The people you help may be your friends, neighbors or co-workers. They are counting on you."

The United Way of Eastern Union County serves, among others, the residents of Rahway and Clark. Even a woodpecker owes his success to the fact that he uses his head.

Nike Site selected for stables
The Nike Site, located in the northeast section of the Watchung Reservation, has been selected as both the temporary and permanent site of the new Watchung Stables, reports Union County Manager Arthur J. Gisi.

The site, a former missile installation area that has long been idle, was preferred by the county, the architects for the project, and the New Jersey Dept. of Transportation. The stables, currently located on Glenside Ave., Summit, will be displaced by the construction of the last portion of Rte. No. 178, now underway.

Mr. Gisi said after conversations with local and state officials the choice of the site was formalized. The temporary facility will be constructed immediately so stable operations can continue, and construction on the new stable is expected to begin in March and finished by the 1984 season.

The total cost of the project, being funded by the state, is set at $5.5 million.

What is the law? Ask the judges on the highest court; it's what they say it is.

Clark pupils write rural pen pals

Youngsters are writing letters like mad and not gambling one bit about it. Mrs. D. L. Prapakas, class at St. John's Episcopal School in Clark, because of the "Weekly Reader" has matched nearly two million children in this nation wide letter exchange program during the past four years.

The students exchange letters with pupils of similar ages but different backgrounds who live in rural areas. Mrs. Prapakas says she has heard many letters from the heartland.

The students in Mrs. Prapakas' class write to children who live in an area that has very small rural communities of about 400 people. Many of the children ride school buses for miles to get from their farm areas to school, she said.

In return, the Mississippi children have told the local youngsters, "We had our Beauty Queen last night."

School boards group: Aid shortfall is tax

The New Jersey School Boards Assn. is advising local school boards when they prepare next year's budgets, to advertise the difference between the full 1984 state aid and the amount they will be recommended by the governor in March as a state-imposed property tax.

The Legislature fails to pass new revenue measures to fully fund the state aid statutes, they are in effect imposing a tax anyway, but avoiding the political discomfort of supporting additional tax measures at election time, the association's executive director, Lloyd Newbaker, said in an address yesterday.

"The impact of the state's failure to act will be felt by individual property owners as their taxes are subsequently forced up," Mr. Newbaker added.

The association's notice came in response to recent developments at the state level: The State Dept. of Education's release of full school funding figures with an accompanying memorandum from education commissioner Saul Cooperman warning boards not to expect full aid amounts, and Gov. Thomas H. Kean's special message to the Legislature on Nov. 23, which the leaders termed as "insufficient" in addressing the school funding crisis.

In the advisory Mr. Newbaker urged local school boards to first prepare "re-sponsibly, frugal" budgets without shortchanging their district educational needs.

Said the state board group leader, The responsibility of the local school board is to develop a budget that will provide for a thorough and efficient education for the public school children within the district. To do any less would be to disregard the law.

He further advised the state's local school districts to prepare two revenue projections as well as two estimates of local property tax levies and tax increases, one based on full state aid, the other on figures in the governor's proposed budget. According to the association executive, the latter figure would indicate the estimated local property tax increase needed to meet the budget based on aid figures recommended by the governor.

Animal group saves strays with spaying

A spokeswoman for the Friends of Animals, Inc., announced, as of last month, the animal-protection organization's low-cost spaying clinic for female dogs and cats had spayed 15,000 animals since opening in Sept., 1980.

"In just two years," said Alice Herrington, the group's president, "we've been responsible for significantly reducing the number of strays in Monmouth County and the state."

It's a record we're proud of, since these offspring would have been abandoned to the wild, put to death in pounds, starved to death or met their demise under the wheels of cars or under trucks," the animal group president added.

"Based on a conservative estimate of dogs' or cats' reproductive cycles," she added, "the 15,000 spayed animals could have added many thousands of animals to New Jersey's already serious overpopulation problem."

Two litters per year with multiple young in each litter is the norm, the spokeswoman noted.

As explained by Susan Russell, the group's education director, "Spaying has a modest charge which includes inoculations and hospitalization."

"A person brings his or her female pet to our clinic in Neptune, not far from the Garden State Parkway, and brings it home the next morning," she said.

"The animal is made comfortable all the while, and the operation is performed by licensed veterinarians aided by trained professionals in modern, anti-septic surroundings," she noted.

The altering of male cats is another service of the clinic Susan Russell described as "essential."

Dispelling some of the myths about spaying, she concluded, "a spayed animal is more content, has a better temperament, doesn't feel the need to roam and makes a better pet all around. This is all very desirable and is very cost-effective."

ARTISTS IN RESIDENCE - On Nov. 16 senior citizens participated in an art workshop at Rahway's Roosevelt School. The workshop was one of many programs that were offered to families of Roosevelt School students during American Education Week. Rahway Public Schools art teacher, Janet D. [Name], supervised the workshop.

included an assortment of Christmas craft projects. A group of artists from the Grand Ave. Senior Citizens Homes were bussed to the event. The teacher gave an "A" to all of those seniors who participated in the workshop.

Hospital promotes Kirk C. Tice

A spokeswoman for Rahway Hospital announced the promotion of Kirk C. Tice, the former administrator of the Cardiology Department, to assistant director of clinical services.

Mr. Tice will continue direct administrative responsibility of the Cardiology Department, and assume administrative responsibility for the Diagnostic Service Center. Additionally, he will assume responsibility for all areas under the associate director of the hospital whenever the associate director is not available.

He is working on a masters degree in health services administration at the New School for Social Research in New York City. Mr. Tice is a member of the Association for Respiratory Therapy, the New Jersey Hospital Assn. and the Association of Hospital Directors.

He also serves as a member of the infection-control and respiratory care committee at the hospital.

I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience.
