City Council approves development accord despite 'deal,' 'racemonger' charges

By R. R. Faszczewski
Despite charges by one councilman the proposed development on the former 14-acre redevelopment property behind the city's municipal complex could result in a low-income housing project, which would make "Capabianco Plaza look like Wall St.," and the mayor calling the councilman a "racemonger," the Rahway City Council Monday approved two resolutions which concern a feasibility study for the tract and authorize an option on the property.

Second Ward Councilman John C. Marsh, who said he was bitterly opposed to the two measures, declared, despite a press release to local newspapers last week about the possibility of a hotel and/or convention center being considered for the site the information from the city administration this could become a reality, Rahway was not deemed to be the site for such a convention center or a hotel.

He charged the mayor and the administration with having a "handpicked developer and real estate agent" ready to go on a project they had already planned. The councilman said he had fought against low-income housing when he was mayor, and that the city had long ago let the opportunity for real development of the tract go by the boards.

Calling the Second Ward councilman a racemonger, Mayor Daniel L. Martin said he resented the councilman's comments about inhabitants of low-income housing projects. Mayor Martin added there would not be a subsidized project put on the tract.

He also said when the Second Ward representative was mayor he had given tax abatements on two high-rise apartment complexes, which was the same as subsidizing utilities. The sponsor of both measures on the tract, Councilman-at-Large Walter McLeod, said Councilman Marsh circumvented the truth.

Councilman McLeod added he had been involved in redevelopment since he moved to the city and in all that time the 14-acre site had "been an albatross" around the city's neck. He declared to let the administration get a feasibility study done to determine the best use of the land would be the best thing that could happen to it.

The councilman-at-large strongly objected to Councilman Marsh's remarks about those living in low-income projects, saying there was nothing wrong with it and oftentimes the system forced people to live the way they did. He also pointed out it was in 1968 during the Marsh administration that the "steam had blown off" in Rahway, referring to racial disturbances which had taken place that year.

When talk turned to the specific resolutions, however, Sixth Ward Councilman James J. Fulcomer tried to amend the resolution, which authorized the New York City firm of Pannell, Kerr and Forster to conduct the feasibility study, so that there would be no mention of the fact the city, in a related agreement, would receive $5,000 toward the study from the developer, leaving a net maximum to be expended by the city of $4,500 for the study.

Councilman Fulcomer objected to the above provision because he felt it tied the city too strongly into an option with a single developer. However, Business Administrator Joseph M. Hartnett replied the clause was only in the contract resolution so the Governing Body would have the information it needed on the proposal. The Fulcomer amendment was defeated by an eight-to-one vote.

When First Ward Councilman Lawrence Bodine objected to the release of the information on the tract development to the media before the Council was given the information, Mayor Martin said the release was necessary so those in the marketplace would know Rahway was taking some action on development just as two neighboring communities, Linden and Woodbridge had done. The mayor said this was necessary in order to prevent the competitors from getting the edge over Rahway in the eyes of the developers.

However, an amendment proposed by Councilman Bodine to require the study to be completed within 90 days was adopted by the Governing Body. The second resolution on the tract authorized an option agreement on the land purchase with the developer. It too was adopted with only Councilman Marsh voting against it. A city Realtor, Julia Stanford of 1171 Main St., however, said the city was entering into the development agreement "behind the backs of Rahway Realtors," because for two years there had been no guidelines issued which would have enabled local Realtors to find developers for the tract. The mayor replied the city had advertised over a year ago for firms to con-

Board okays 8% teacher pay raise

A memorandum of agreement between the Rahway Board of Education and the Rahway Education Assn. which gives city teachers 8% pay increases in both the 1983-1984 and the 1984-1985 school years was ratified by the Board at its special session on Sept. 6. The accord has reportedly already been ratified by about 400 members of the education association, which represents teachers and other non-management school employees. Board members also began to hire back some of the teacher aides placed on the Reduction-in-Force list at the end of the last school year. According to the school body's secretary and business administrator, Anthony Rocco, Jr., five aides were hired back to work in offices in the elementary schools and Rahway High School. Mr. Rocco added the nine additional aides who have not been hired back yet will be returned to work as the need for them arises. The architectural firm of Eckert, Morton, Russo and Maggio was hired to prepare drawings and specifications for the renovation of two student toilet facilities in the older section of the high school and to oversee all construction work associated with the project at a fee of 10% of the total amount of the project. Although buildings and grounds chairman, Louis R. Rizzo, last month estimated the cost of the renovation at $46,000 per bathroom, Mr. Rocco said the actual figures will not be known until the architect has had a chance to look over the project.  In other action, the Board: • Accepted the resignation of David Smith, a French/Spanish teacher at the high school, effective Aug. 31.

• Okayed the resignation of Walter Swiere, high school librarian, effective Aug. 31. • Approved the resignation of Richard Lorenzen as a social studies teacher at the high school, as head wrestling coach and as assistant boys soccer coach, all effective Aug. 31. • Authorized the transfer of James Marino, a social studies teacher, from the junior to the senior high school for the 1983-1984 school year. • Transferred Robert Van Bergen from being a junior high school librarian to being a junior high school social studies teacher for the 1983-1984 school year. • Approved the transfer of Miss Kathleen Miller, an English teacher at the high school, to be librarian at the high school for the current school year. • Appointed Miss Jo-Ann Bertolo as an English teacher at the high school, effective Sept. 7, at the annual interim salary of $16,795, pro-rated and fully federally-funded. • Employed Mrs. Gwen Botwinick as a special education teacher in the perceptually-impaired class at the junior high school, effective Sept. 7, for the balance of the school year, at the annual interim salary of $16,670, pro-rated. • Named Miss Linda Greenberg as a foreign language teacher at the high school, effective Sept. 7, for the balance of this school year at the annual interim salary of $14,685, pro-rated. • Appointed Miss Lauren Natkie as an elementary librarian, effective Tuesday, Nov. 1, or as soon as possible, for the balance of the current school year at the annual interim salary of $17,225, pro-rated and fully federally-funded. • Transferred Mrs. Lana Khalaf from being a business education teacher at the high school temporarily to being a guidance counselor at the junior high school, effective Sept. 7. • Hired Miss Suzanne Akaras as English As A Second Language/bilingual teacher, effective Sept. 7, for the balance of this school year at the annual interim salary of $15,830, pro-rated. • Appointed Miss Felicia Correto as an elementary librarian, effective Nov. 1, at the annual interim salary of $17,225, pro-rated and fully federally-funded. • Named Elizabeth Bisogno as the junior high school librarian, effective Sept. 7, at the annual interim salary of $14,685, pro-rated. • Passed a resolution requiring a teaching-staff member to submit to a physical examination. • Directed the superintendent of schools to give a final 30-day notice of termination of employment to a clerk-typist, with the last day of employment to be Wednesday, Sept. 21.

• Hired Joseph Velotti as a custodian at the junior high school, effective Sept. 7, to Tuesday, Dec. 13, at an annual interim salary of $11,505, pro-rated. • Added Miss Frances Benson, Frank Colletti, Miss Carol DeLoretto, Peter Karavetes, John Piquinto, Marc Schwartzbach and David West to the 1983-1984 substitute teacher list. • Appointed Mrs. Phyllis Anderson as a classroom aide for the pre-school handicapped class at Roosevelt School, effective Sept. 7, at the interim hourly rate of $5. • Hired Mrs. Louise Gavalak as a classroom aide for the class for the emotionally disturbed at Franklin School, effective Sept. 7, at the interim hourly rate of $5.

CONVENTION CENTER PLANS - John McNamara, right, a member of the Kiwanis Club of Rahway, presents a certificate of appreciation to Joseph Hartnett, the business administrator for Rahway. At the last weekly meeting, Mr. Hartnett told the members that a marketing survey is being prepared for the 14-acre site behind City Hall with the first option being the construction of a hotel-convention center on the site. If this is not feasible, the second option would be for office and residential use. He noted the city has been patient in the development of the site, wanting to make the best possible choice for the community. The Rahway Kiwanis Club meets on Wednesdays at 12:15 p.m. at the Columbian Club in Rahway.

Lung group helps pupils breathe easier

If your child has asthma or other long-term breathing problems, you may register for the next Family Respiratory Care Course at the Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside. The program, conducted in cooperation with the American Lung Assn. of Central New Jersey at Clark, will be held weekly from 7 to 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday beginning on Tuesday, Sept. 20, and continuing to Tuesday, Oct. 25, as part of the ongoing Respiratory Education and Support Program (RESP). To provide for individualized attention, registration will be limited to 10 families. The RESP service augments the medical team plan of the family physician and all participants may be referred by their physician. During the sessions emphasis is placed on education and better family management of the breathing problems, encouraged by the child to increase the parent's knowledge about their child's specific problem, causes and home care. The RESP service is available to parents whose children have asthma, bronchitis, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, or per airway obstruction and congenital birth defects. Parents gain support from meeting and talking with other parents experiencing similar problems, and the youngsters increase their self-confidence by sharing their feelings with their peers and the professionals who conduct the sessions, reports a spokesman. The service also helps increase the child's tolerance of physical activity by exercises which

County college maps golden jubilee gala

Union County College's year-long Golden Jubilee Celebration will be launched at a convocation on Sunday, Oct. 16, in outdoor ceremonies on the Cranford campus. The celebration, named in honor of the college's 50th anniversary, will be held in the afternoon on the Cranford campus's South Lawn. In case of inclement weather it will be moved to the afternoon on the campus in Cranford. The convocation will be held in the afternoon on the Cranford campus's South Lawn. In case of inclement weather it will be moved to the afternoon on the campus in Cranford. The convocation will be held in the afternoon on the Cranford campus's South Lawn.

A highlight of the convocation will be an academic procession including representatives of New Jersey's higher educational community and of colleges and institutions to which Union County College students have transferred over the past 50 years, as well as the members of the college's faculty and staff. Mrs. Leifer reported a committee comprised of faculty, staff, students and alumni is being organized to plan the convocation.

We hope our friends in the academic community as well as many of our friends and supporters throughout New Jersey will join us in celebrating the college's first 50 years of operations," Dr. Orkin said. Union County College was established on Aug. 17, 1932, through a consolidation of Union College in Cranford, which was founded in 1900, and Technical Institute in Scotch Plains, which was founded in 1960. Union County Junior College was the first of six Emergency Relief Administration institutions formed in New Jersey during the Great Depression to provide employment for out-of-work professors and a college education for Union County residents who could not afford to attend college.

Initially, Mr. Higginson will be working to establish the goals and objectives of the new operation, as established by the Union County Cultural and Heritage Advisory Board, an adjunct to the county board of chosen freeholders. A major function of the new office, he said, will be to seek out funding sources and manpower to take on new projects. Among his past professional associations are: The Senior Citizens Study Center at Union County College, consultant for the state Summer Arts Institute at Rutgers University, directing art programs at New Jersey state prisons, the New Jersey Council on the Arts and various schools, where he taught mathematics, communications, writing and other topics. A graduate of Southern Connecticut State College, Mr. Higginson was with a major in history. Mr. Higginson also received a certificate from the Yale University Institute of Far Eastern Languages. Mr. Higginson may be reached from Monday to Friday by telephoning 233-7906.

New cultural aide seeks out funding

A published author, historian, lecturer and art collector, William J. Higginson, recently reorganized and directed the office of Cultural and Heritage Programs at Union County College. The office was reorganized and began operations on Aug. 29 with Mr. Higginson and one part-time secretary at the county offices at 300 North Ave., E. Westfield. The new position was created in an attempt to continue the work of the late Elizabeth Pate of Westfield, a noted local historian and administrator of the county's cultural and heritage programs for many years, who passed away recently. Mr. Higginson will be working to establish the goals and objectives of the new operation, as established by the Union County Cultural and Heritage Advisory Board, an adjunct to the county board of chosen freeholders. A major function of the new office, he said, will be to seek out funding sources and manpower to take on new projects.

Stargazers ready for heavens' fall

The free Friday night program presented by Amateur Astronomers, Inc., which jointly operates with Union County College, will be highlighted on Sept. 30 with a "live show" by the members who participated in the Java eclipse expedition in June of this year. They will bring their own telescopes and give first-hand accounts of the eclipse, according to Barry Malpas, the astronomer group's librarian, who directs the group's slide presentations. The observatory is open every Friday night, with the exception of the third Friday, when monthly business meetings and lectures are scheduled. The regular meetings, to which the public is invited free of charge, feature lectures by experts in astronomy followed by an informal social hour at the observatory. Other slide show topics to be offered during September include "Black Holes," Oct. 23. The schedule for October night viewings are: "The Red Planet Mars," Oct. 7; "Life Beyond Earth," Oct. 14; and "Voyager Jupiter," Oct. 28.

Congressman Bernard Dwyer Reports

The United States Navy's recent decision to name Stapleton, Staten Island, its preferred northeast home port for seven ships is good news for our region, which over the years has been shortchanged by Pentagon spending policies that have favored the south and the west.

Locating the Iowa Surface Action Group (SAG) in the New York City area port region had the support of our entire New Jersey delegation. Joined by members of the New York Congressional delegation, we contacted Navy Secretary John F. Lehman earlier this year urging the department to home-port the Iowa SAG in our harbor.

The home-porting project also held the support of business, labor, government and community groups based support that reflects its economic importance for our region.

The area in and around the port of New York and New Jersey is becoming a center of emerging technologies and is the home of engineering firms of national importance. There has also been a resurgence of naval repair activity here.

By locating the seven-ship fleet in our port, the Navy will bring more work for our residents. The Navy has also estimated its military payroll will be $68 million a year, and those people who live and work in the region will be spending their dollars here.

The new program, to be funded by a federal grant, will save an estimated $10.2 million annually in welfare payments and another $115.2 million in administrative costs over the next three years.

The designation of the Staten Island site as the Navy's "preferred alternative" is scheduled to be followed after this year by environmental studies before a final decision can be made on the home port site. Once the site has received final approval the project could be completed in about three and a half years.

Two other area ports, the Army's Military Ocean Terminal in Bayonne and its Brooklyn Terminal, were considered for home-porting in addition to the Stapleton site. The decision to home-port the Iowa Surface Action Group in the port of New York and New Jersey will be beneficial to these sites and the entire port district, where there is a high concentration of economic burdens having seriously diminished the employment base.

I was proud to be part of this bi-state effort to bring the Surface Action Group to the harbor we share, a decision that will be extremely beneficial to our two states, and to the Navy.

According to Dr. Kaplowitz, the three components of the course are: orientation, career decisions and self-knowledge.

"Careers," Dr. Kaplowitz said, "deals with the career decision-making process and involves helping them get to know their own values and clarify their own goals. It is assessing their skills."

The self-knowledge aspect imparts human relations in terms of making the best choices for themselves as they take on responsibility.

They are twice as likely to be graduated if they take the course," he concluded.

Rep. Fauntroy to address black confab

The organizer of the recent March on Washington, Rep. Walter Fauntroy, will join national and state religious, civil rights, political, business and community leaders at the first New Jersey Black Issues Convention from tomorrow to Sunday, Sept. 18, at the Somerset Hilton Hotel, according to conference convener, Newark Councilman Donald Tucker.

Issues to be discussed during the three-day convention, according to Councilman Tucker, include: Education, housing, employment and economic development, mass transportation, black religious institutions, crime and criminal justice system and political empowerment.

On Sept. 17 the councilman will lead a workshop on building coalitions.

The Newark official went on to note conveners, Margaret Hayes, the president of the National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials, has been working with organizations throughout the state for several years, bringing about the convention.

"Emphasis will be on the shared goals of blacks, Hispanics, women and the peace movement—the same coalition that produced the recent March on Washington," he pointed out.

The councilman said Rep. Fauntroy, who is also a former chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, will discuss the implementation of the Family Plan, as put forth by the caucus three years ago.

"As president of a major state-wide organization," Margaret Hayes expressed concern about the present obstacles to the cohesiveness of the black family.

Several of these "obstacles" will be discussed in the workshop. Topics include: Black teenage pregnancies and the negative images affecting black value systems and the role of the media.

The Black Women's Agenda should emerge from the convention, and the workshop will be held at the Newark Hilton Hotel.

City pupils offered free, cheap meals

Speakers for Rahway's Roosevelt, Franklin, Madison and Grover Cleveland Schools in addition to Rahway Junior High School and Rahway High School announced today low-cost, nutritious school lunches are available to all children enrolled.

In addition, meals will be provided free or at a greatly reduced price to children from households whose gross incomes are at or below those shown for their household size on the income scale below.

Applications for free and reduced-price meals were sent to the households of all children enrolled in the schools.

The following are the income Eligibility Guidelines announced by the United States Dept. of Agriculture, which will indicate annual, monthly and weekly incomes, respectively, for each household size and then for reduced-price meals based on the number of persons in the household.

1 - $2,065; $472; $166; One, $6,318; $527; $172; and $8,991; $750; $323; three, $10,686; $891; $748; $310; $257; $293; four, $12,870; $1,073; $248; and $18,315; $1,527; $355; five, $15,054; $1,735; $290; and $21,423; $1,788; $412; six, $17,238; $1,427; $332; and $24,531; $2,045; $472; seven, $19,422; $1,619; $374; and $27,639; $2,304; $532; eight, $21,616; $1,807; $416; and $30,747; $2,563; $592; and each additional household member, $2,184; $185; $42; and $3,108; $259; $60.

Foster children are often eligible for free or reduced-price meals.

Application forms are available at each school, and application can be made at any time during the school year. If a household size or income changes during the school year, parents should contact the school so all children receive the proper benefits.

In the operation of Child Nutrition Programs, no "Kids' College" to open on Sept. 17.

Youngsters aged 11 to 15 will get an opportunity to "go to college" when Union County College's "College for Kids" gets underway on Saturday, Sept. 17.

Offered through the Division of Continuing Education, the program features classes created for students in the above age groups conducted on Saturdays during daytime hours, affording the youngsters an enjoyable learning experience while at the same time providing mind-challenging material. A special course in painting and drawing has been arranged for children aged nine to 13.

Other courses include "American Sign Language for Kids," "Psychology for Kids," "Basic Martial Arts for Kids," "Video Techniques for Kids," "Calligraphy for Kids," "Computers for Kids Beginning" and "Computers for Kids Continued."

Some of the courses meet for five sessions, others for eight or 10.

Tuition ranges from $25 or $50.

All classes will meet on the college's Cranford campus, with the exception of one section each of the "Computer for Kids" courses which will be conducted on the Scotch Plains campus.

Councilman Marsh: Land 'deal' hurts Rahway taxpayers

"Mayor Daniel L. Martin has deliberately lost millions of tax dollars," charged Councilman John Marsh, referring to the still-undeveloped 14 acres of urban renewal property behind the Rahway City Hall.

"By its own admission, Mayor Martin could have negotiated the sale of that land many times, but chose instead to leave it vacant all these years and therefore unproductive," Councilman Marsh stated, adding, "It sounds like the mayor's real aim was to make sure the land is developed by his own hand-picked developer."

Once determinations are completed, school officials are required to verify a minimum of 3% of the approved free-and-reduced-price applications on file.

The second Ward representative charged the mayor's excuse he felt commercial development was "not best for the community" is a bit lame considering the study he now wants us to pay for. After all, what does the mayor think the study is going to suggest—a horse farm? Such things as convention halls and hotels all come under the category of commercial."

Mr. Marsh, who while mayor of Rahway for four years secured state and federal funds and began developing that property, said even with only the first part of the development accomplished, "the tax benefit to our citizens has amounted to several millions of dollars."

The Republican added it is "travesties" Mayor Martin would "sacrifice the purses of all Rahway citizens again just to get another of his monuments," adding, "He's certainly got an inflated opinion of himself, thinking he alone knows what's best for our community. I'm not sure if he's really that egotistical, or it's all a cover-up for more devious doing."

The Second Ward representative also asserted the mayor for "Duplicitous arrogance and unprecedented contempt for the City Council." He said he and other Council members received a memorandum from the administration asking Council to consider resolutions approving a study and a contract for the 14 acres.

"On the same day two local daily newspapers carried press releases from the administration claiming it has already completed agreements for the study and the private developer. One of the press releases stated the study is already 'being done,'" he added.

For further information, contact the market on duty, since the administration has already hand-picked the developer, the pocketbooks of our residents have been consistently ignored and waste, raised," the councilman stated.

Referring to the study, Councilman Marsh said the information is expected to reveal it is available to local real estate firms as well as to "It seems to me since Mayor Martin has shown himself bent on building an unnecessary city job patronage empire, he might utilize some of that personal money to conduct the study and develop the firm to develop the land. In any case, a developer planning to build on that land would certainly be willing to pay for the entire study."

Divorce workshop to be held at Caldwell

Psychologist, Charlotte Spigelman, who has a masters degree in social work, will present a workshop "Divorce: Effect on Mothers and Daughters," on Tuesday, Sept. 27, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the Caldwell College Student Center in Caldwell.

She is a specialist in marital and family issues, including divorce and remarriage. She is a staff therapist at the Center for Counseling and Human Development in Cranford and also an adjunct instructor at Montclair State College in Upper Merion.

A graduate of Barnard College and the New York University School of Social Work, she received advanced training in family therapy at the New Jersey Center for Family Studies and the Philadelphia Child Guidance Clinic.

The workshop is sponsored by the Counseling Center of Caldwell College. For further information, please telephone 228-4424, extension 307.

 A Legislative Report from Senator Don D'Ercole

State tracks down welfare fraud

Two major problems confronting the Dept. of Human Services are tracking down welfare cheats and parents who are delinquent in making child support payments.

Welfare fraud costs New Jersey taxpayers millions of dollars annually. Delinquent child support payments cause extreme hardship on families, forcing many single parents to seek public assistance.

Human Services officials recently announced a new computerized program that will save taxpayers millions of dollars by intensifying efforts to find welfare violators and parents who fail to meet their child support obligations.

The new program, to be funded by a federal grant, will save an estimated $10.2 million annually in welfare payments and another $115.2 million in administrative costs over the next three years.

The new system, which will double the size of the current system and serve the entire state, is expected to reduce errors in public assistance, food stamps and Medicaid benefits and reduce the sequence of checks manually in the county welfare agencies.

Human Services Commissioner George Albanese says the computer system will prevent fraud from the outset of the filing of an application for welfare. The system will allow department employees to tap into data banks throughout the state and other states as well to check out potential applicants.

A bill sponsored, which recently passed the Senate, would make another tool available to Human Services. Under this legislation financial institutions would be required to supply details on public assistance recipients with bank deposits exceeding the income limits.

Data banks tapped by the new computer system will also help state officials to find fathers who may have left the state to avoid child support payments. The automated system will result in the state increasing its collections from absent parents by about $7.6 million annually.

The new computer system will allow state officials to administer a welfare program as free from errors and waste as possible. It will ensure there are ample funds available for those who are genuinely in need of public assistance.

Freshmen learn how to remain in college

Kean College of New Jersey in Union has found a way to keep freshmen students from dropping out and studies since 1977 show those in the program are twice as likely to be graduated.

An associate professor of psychology, Dr. Henry L. Kaplowitz, said a three credit course called "College, Careers and Choices" is offered to freshmen and those who take the course are more likely to stay in school.

According to Dr. Kaplowitz, "studen attention is a critical program for nearly all institutions of higher education in the United States. Nationwide, about 40% of entering freshmen never achieve a degree, and this figure has been stable for over 40 years." For most students dropping out of college is a vocational and personal setback and for society, a waste of limited educational resources and a loss of human potential.

Dropping out relates the usual developmental changes associated with college attendance, yet colleges typically know little about the actual numbers of students withdrawing or their reasons for doing so.

The professor and two others run the program and conduct the yearly seminar. They are Dr. William Angers, a professor of psychology, and Dr. Marcelle Hissman, the director of counseling at the college.

Offered in the fall as well as the spring semester, it covers three aspects of student life. Teachers come from the various disciplines in the college.

The 1983 Rahway Recreation Dept. Men's Slow-Pitch Softball League Tournament champions are Armando's Angels, who won the title by defeating Market Body Works 10-4 in the championship game played at Rahway River Park softball field No. 1. Armando's jumped to a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first on hits by Gene and Bob Sojka.

Market Body took the lead to 2-1 with a run in the second on singles by Bill LaFarge and Joe Stulfin followed by Pat Garvey's double.

Armando's came roaring back with four runs in its half of the second on hits by Ron Wisniewski, Walt Fryz, and Bob Wisniewski and Gene Sojka's long homerun to left field.

Armando's made it 10-1 with four more runs in the third inning as Bob Sojka and Vic West singled and

Kean booters offer depth of choice

A turnout of 45 soccer candidates, the largest in recent years, greeted Coach Tony Ochrimenko's first-year team at the Kean Recreation Center on Sept. 12. The list includes eight starters from last year's team which gained a spot in the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. Division No. 3 tournament by winning its final nine regular-season games.

During the last two seasons, Kean has given up just two goals to conference opponents.

The returning starters are Junior Henry All, left wing; junior Joe Anselmi, right wing; sophomore, Jim Tom, fullback; junior, Tom Braun, right halfback; senior, Marc Chmielewski, center forward; sophomore, Nick D'Ambrino, of Rahway, midfielder; sophomore, Everitt Kamieka, midfielder, and junior, Lucas Panikals, forward.

Rich Magan, a junior forward, who was a starter in the 1980 team, has returned to school and is battling for a first-line position.

The regular season opened Sept. 9 with an invitational tournament in Madison.

'Small miracles' sought in athletes

"Small miracles" are all Tom Pawlowski asks for. The Union County College athletic coach has given since this year in the form of improved academic achievement on the part of some of the college's athletes as well as full athletic scholarships for several athletes who transferred to four-year schools.

Pawlowski, who was appointed athletic counselor early this year in an effort to improve the academic standings of the college's athletes, is proud of the fact that sophomores among the men's and women's basketball teams and the wrestling team, six received full scholarships to attend major and Pace University and the University of North Carolina-Charlotte upon graduation this year.

Pawlowski offered plenty of counseling for those who struggle. He helps in scheduling classes so they don't conflict with athletic practice, and seeing the students get enough study time for themselves. Pawlowski also attended many of the numerous games played by Union County College athletes in an effort to "build a rapport with the students."

Ecuador team slips on Mid-Jersey

The Mid-New Jersey Youth Soccer Assn.'s Division No. 3 League Select team defeated the National champion, Indiana Soccer Club of Evansville, 3 to 0 at Giants Stadium in the Meadowlands.

The Mid-New Jersey Select was led by center half, Joe Burkhard of Clark, who opened the scoring with a goal in the 10th minute and by center forward, Gregg Schmale of Westfield who scored two goals in the second half, set-up by Burkhard and Victor Pasquet of Scotch Plains.

"I see my job as an out-reach thing. Some of the athletes here are people who because of their athletic ability have never taken their studies seriously. They're not using their potential in this area. But any athlete who is considered 'coachable,' who listens to direction and advice, can be pushed in just about any area, including

Pioneers to point compass to Clark

By Ray Hoagland

Fifth-year Arthur L. Johnson Regional Coach Larry Sturcho's Clark Crusaders will open their soccer season tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when they host the New Providence Pioneers, and next Wednesday, Sept. 21, they will travel to Irvington to face the Camptowners.

The Crusaders will have an experienced goalkeeper in senior Robert Butts, and his backup goalkeeper is junior, Vincent Pereira.

After completing the 10-team round robin on Aug. 28, they were tied with Frank and Joe Crink of West Orange, with identical seven-win and two-loss records.

On Aug. 30 they lost the playoff match two games to one.

Third place went to Doc Berman of Elizabeth and Phil Zozzaro of Little Falls.

County college pins two future nurses

Two area students, Jacqueline Davies of Rahway, and Barbara O'Donnell of Scotch Plains, were named to the list of students in Union County College's practical nursing program who received their nursing pins at a pinning ceremony conducted on the college's Scotch Plains campus.

Fifteen of the students are enrolled in the college's first-year nursing program. The program is a two-year program and includes a clinical experience at the Elizabeth General Medical Center in Elizabeth, Overlook Hospital in Summit, the Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountaintop and John E. Rumrill Hospital in Rutgers University.

The program is offered twice a year by the college, in January and September for day-time students. The part-time evening division, which takes two years to complete. The program is designed to prepare the students for the licensing examination of New Jersey. The evening program included a candlelight ceremony presided by the Florence Nightingale Pledge, Mrs. Catherine Helmick of Rahway, the coordinator of the practical nursing program, said.

Schooling needed in safety for eyes

A New Jersey teenager named Mike was building a frame for a new room as part of an industrial arts class when a nail ricocheted, heading right for his eyes.

Fortunately, the high school student was wearing safety goggles, for the nail imbedded itself in the lens.

Not every student is as fortunate, but in Mike's school, nobody is allowed in shop classes without safety eyewear. His teacher, in order to encourage eye safety awareness as a life-long habit, devotes two weeks in the classroom so it may be the subject of eye protection in the safety program.

Few parents think their children's eyes are at risk in the classroom so it may come as a shock to learn 623 New Jersey students in the past 57 months suffered eye injuries in shop classes.

The National Society to Prevent Blindness maintains almost every one of these injuries can be prevented with the use of proper safety eyewear.

For many years the society has pressed for better eye protection in school for the eyes of the nation's young people. Some 36 states, including New Jersey, have school eye safety laws requiring appropriate protective eyewear in hazardous classroom situations, passed after model legislation developed by the society.

The society's eye safety curriculum materials, available for grades ranging from kindergarten to high school, are widely used around the state as well as nationwide.

For example, in New Jersey, Prevent Blindness

Oak Ridge to patch divots and more

One of Union County's three golf courses, Oak Ridge Golf Course in Clark, will begin closing certain holes in October to begin irrigation and repair work on that course.

Course in Kenilworth, Union County's third course, which offers 27 holes and a nine-hole Pitch-and-Putt Course, will be open for play next fall, weather permitting.

Similar improvements at Oak Ridge will be made in January of next year, the entire course will be closed so work can proceed as rapidly as possible. It is hoped Oak Ridge will be ready to reopen for the spring, 1984, season. Similar

"Small miracles" are all Tom Pawlowski asks for. The Union County College athletic coach has given since this year in the form of improved academic achievement on the part of some of the college's athletes as well as full athletic scholarships for several athletes who transferred to four-year schools.

Pawlowski, who was appointed athletic counselor early this year in an effort to improve the academic standings of the college's athletes, is proud of the fact that sophomores among the men's and women's basketball teams and the wrestling team, six received full scholarships to attend major and Pace University and the University of North Carolina-Charlotte upon graduation this year.

Pawlowski offered plenty of counseling for those who struggle. He helps in scheduling classes so they don't conflict with athletic practice, and seeing the students get enough study time for themselves. Pawlowski also attended many of the numerous games played by Union County College athletes in an effort to "build a rapport with the students."

You need to pull teeth to take this course

Dental assistants, certified dental assistants and registered dental hygienists will have an opportunity to review basic concepts and procedures in their field in preparation for an examination by enrolling in a course offered by Union County College's Division of Continuing Education this fall at the college's Scotch Plains campus.

The course, "Review Course for Certification of Dental Assistants," is designed to provide experienced dental assistants with a review in basic concepts in preparation for the written examination they must take to become certified. This course will be conducted beginning on Thursday, Oct. 20, for eight sessions on Thursdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. The tuition is $50.

Participants who enroll in the review course will receive a certificate of completion from Union County College as well as Continuing Education Units. The CEU is the nationally-recognized standard unit of achievement awarded for participation in qualified continuing education programs.

For further information about enrolling in the course, please telephone 276-2600, extension 206 or 238.
