Coleman wins First Ward; Jackson takes city

By R.R. Faszczewski

Apparently the recipient of strong voter support for Democratic Presidential contender, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, in the city Democratic primary election, who ran against organization candidate, Barry G. DeReamer, for that party's nomination for First Ward councilman, won the nod in Tuesday's Democratic Primary Election by 38 votes.

Citywide The Rev. Jackson, from Chicago, garnered 1,022 votes, the second highest tally of any candidate on the entire ballot. His highest totals were in the predominantly black First and Fourth Wards. In the Second District of the First Ward, which gave The Rev. Jackson his highest total in that ward, 143 votes, Mr. Coleman had 84 votes to only 28 for Mr. DeReamer.

The Third District of the ward, which gave Rev. Jackson his second highest tally of 117, also gave Mr. Coleman his second highest total of 73 votes, compared to 47 for Mr. DeReamer.

Overall First Ward totals were 195 for Mr. Coleman and 137 for Mr. DeReamer. Mr. Coleman will now go on in the November General Election to face Republican "First" Ward nominee, Adam A. Mackow, who garnered 55 ballots in his unopposed race for the GOP nomination.

Back to the Presidential race, in which Rahway voters went against the state-wide trend which gave the Democratic Primary victory to former Vice President Walter Mondale of Minnesota. The Rev. Jackson had 619 votes in the Fourth Ward and 324 votes in the First Ward, more than 50% of his total citywide.

In the city Mr. Mondale came in second with 921 votes to 568 for Colorado Sen. Gary Hart and 56 for Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. Mr. Mondale unofficially won in Union County.

Incumbent Republican President Ronald Reagan, running unopposed in New Jersey for his party's nomination, led the GOP candidates in Rahway with 531 votes citywide.

The highest overall vote-getter in Rahway, however, was incumbent Democratic United States Sen. Bill Bradley, who had 1,056 votes to 102 for Elliot Greenman.

The senator easily captured his party's nomination for a second term and unofficially won in Union County.

Sen. Bradley will face Republican contender Mary Mochary of Montclair in the fall. Mrs. Mochary easily defeated Robert Morris of Mantoloking statewide, countywide and in the city, where she had 264 votes to 90 for Mr. Morris.

Rahway residents over-whelmingly supported incumbent Democratic Congressional Rep. Bernard

The Democratic nod for the one-year term was won by incumbent, Peter Okrasinski, of Union, who was running unopposed.

Mr. Okrasinski garnered 831 votes in Rahway.

All four Republican nominees for freholder were running unopposed.

Among them, Edward J. Stomkowski of Union had 460 votes in Rahway to 459

Dwyer by a vote of 867 to 154 over Alex Piechowski of East Brunswick, his challenger for the Democratic nod.

Although official results were unavailable as of press time, that result probably held districtwide, judging from past races.

Rep. Dwyer unofficially won in Union County. On the Republican side in the Sixth District, which also includes Linden, Winfield and Roselle in Union County and several municipalities in Middlesex County, Dennis Adams of Edison running unopposed for the GOP nod, had 472 votes in Rahway.

In the Democratic race for Union County freholder, the organization candidates for the three-year terms easily won over three challengers from Hillside and two from Elizabethtown.

Leading the way was incumbent, Gerald Green of Plainfield with 813 to 799 for Mary Ann Doris of Linden and 746 for Harry Pappas of Springfield.

They were followed by the Elizabeth-based ticket of Salam Ismail, with 391, and Myra Satterfield, with 384, and the Hillside team of Adrienne E. Sneed with 124, Samuel McGhee with 118 and William Galik with 114.

Although results in the races for the three-year terms were unofficial as of press time, it looked like the Democratic organization candidates had won countywide.

The Democratic nod for the one-year term was won by incumbent, Peter Okrasinski, of Union, who was running unopposed.

Mr. Okrasinski garnered 831 votes in Rahway.

All four Republican nominees for freholder were running unopposed.

Among them, Edward J. Stomkowski of Union had 460 votes in Rahway to 459 for Alan M. Augustine of Scotch Plains and 454 for Robert F. Gonor of Linden, all running for three-year positions, and 444 for G. Richard Malgram of Plainfield.

Going back to the ward councilman races in the city, in which all other candidates were running unopposed, among the Republicans, in the Second Ward incumbent, Walter Pitts, had 131, and in the Sixth Ward John Blair had 129.

In the races for Rahway seats on the Republican and Democratic County Committees there were several contests.

Among the Republicans, in the Third District of the Second Ward Gary Mero defeated organization candidate, Edward P. Doone, by a ballot total of 27 to 18 with two write-in votes for Mr. Doone.

In the Second District of that ward the organization candidate, Viola Stafford, defeated Marie Miller 22 to 15.

The only Democratic contest for county committee was in the Third District of the Fourth Ward, where organization candidate, Richard A. Williams of 306 Brookfield Pl., defeated Berley Hanna, Jr. of 799 Laurel Pl. by a vote of 65 to 18.

Commenting on the suggestion advanced by the neighbors to build a parking garage, Mr. Yoder noted a garage is the least desirable way of solving the problem.

"The construction cost of several million dollars would not be reimbursable making it extremely difficult, if not impossible, to construct such a facility. But perhaps the most important reason not to build a garage is that it would limit our flexibility to respond to the future medical needs of the community," he added.

The hospital plans to appeal the decision at the next City Council meeting and is hoping the plan for off-street parking spaces to comply with the city's mandate 650 parking spaces be available by the end of the current construction period and to lessen the number of cars that often cruise around neighboring streets looking for safe parking.

"The problem of parking has been one that has gotten increasingly worse over the past few years and with all the construction going on, it will be harder and harder for employees, visitors, volunteers and neighbors to find places to park their cars," the hospital president pointed out. "By the end of this year, when we expect to begin construction on the Madison Ave. side of the building, things will get worse since that is where the current employee parking lot is located."

Officials seek alternatives to garbage pileup

By R.R. Faszczewski

Faced with the decreasing availability of sufficient landfill sites close enough to dump garbage at low cost and an ever-mounting volume of solid waste, Union County officials are being forced to look at new methods of garbage disposal.

This was the consensus of opinion expressed by county, state and local officials at a breakfast conference sponsored by the Employer Legislator Committee of Union County in Springfield recently.

Rahway Mayor Daniel L. Martin emphasized although Rahway has been mentioned as a possible site for a resource recovery plant, where garbage from municipalities around Union County would be brought to be converted into energy, there is no definite proposal now and the city would be looking seriously at the best possible proposal for Rahway.

Mayor Martin added the volume of traffic relative to waste hauling is tremendous now and there should be no major increase if the facility were to be located in Rahway.

He said there should be adequate provision made for the handling of the truck traffic so there is no backup at the plant.

The mayor disagreed with complaints from Middlesex County that its landfill should not be asked to handle garbage from Union County.

He said the landfill sites in the 22 New Jersey solid waste districts had been state selected and the sites in Middlesex County were not the sole property of that county because just as the growth of the state was not dependent on county boundaries neither was the solid disposal problem.

The city's chief executive did say, however, the selection of a site in Rahway showed the county was able to think ahead on resource recovery.

He noted the Rahway location was conducive to the plant and since the city's character was mostly industrial anyway the plant would not change that character, but would better it.

Mayor Martin also pointed out private industries such as Merck and Co., Inc., Regins and Purulot would all need energy and there would be a source for that produced by any plant constructed.

Since there would be a dollar benefit to Rahway and the Elizabeth-Linden-Rahway corridor would eventually have a plant anyway he couldn't see why the plant shouldn't be built in Rahway.

The official did caution, however, that Rahway would not get into the same situation as it is in with the Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority, where nine communities have their sewer lines connecting to a city sewer plant, which causes some infiltration problems for Rahway and Rahway is being forced to fix them on a dollar-to-dollar basis.

Although he said the best reason to locate the resource recovery plant in Rahway is the dollar advantage to the city, he cautioned the plant would be a private industry and not a function of government.

The mayor concluded by saying it was easy to be negative about an idea such as solving the county's solid waste problem, because it did not require a thought process, in order to come up with positive solutions required consideration and a thought process.

Another proposal involves a charge of 75¢ per ton to compensate adjacent counties for the fact their landfills will be used up quicker, when adjoining counties bring in their garbage, he noted.

Union County freholder chairman, Charlotte F. Filippio, said the county was 100% in favor of operating to find a long-term solution to the solid waste problem.

However, she added, in the short term there must be no solution, especially if the Industrial Land Reclamation Landfill in Edison is allowed to close on the Sunday, July 1, date currently being discussed by the state.

Freholder DeFilippio said that landfill should be expanded to buy time for Union County and if Union County is forced to dump out of state it should not be penalized.

Union County Manager Arthur Gris pointed out that the county freholder board and the county administration have shown they recognize the seriousness of the problem by putting $660,000 in the county budget for siting and a study of the waste disposal problem by experts.

A good portion of that money, according to Mr. Gris, will be used for a public education campaign. The county manager added a siting analysis was needed to search for a landfill site and several hundred thousand dollars would be needed for a study to see if no site was available.

Meanwhile, according to Mr. Gris, negotiations with Middlesex County for another landfill site were at a standstill since Middlesex faces a landfill closing itself.

Both Freholder DeFilippio and Mr. Gris agreed the state suggestion that Union County should use an Ocean County site for dumping was unacceptable.

The county manager said he is not negotiating with Ocean County and since the Pine Barrens were one of the few safe environmental areas left in the state such a proposal would not be good for the state.

He noted the Rahway location was conducive to the plant and since the city's character was mostly industrial anyway the plant would not change that character, but would better it.

Mayor Martin also pointed out private industries such as Merck and Co., Inc., Regins and Purulot would all need energy and there would be a source for that produced by any plant constructed.

Since there would be a dollar benefit to Rahway and the Elizabeth-Linden-Rahway corridor would eventually have a plant anyway he couldn't see why the plant shouldn't be built in Rahway.

Merck employees walk out of work at five plants

A spokesman for Merck and Co., Inc., which is headquartered in Rahway, said the firm's major moves on June 3 to meet union concerns in a company effort to avert a threatened strike at major manufacturing facilities in West Point and Danville, Pa., Elton, Va., Albany, Ga., and South San Francisco, Calif., and also to bring union employees back to work from a lockout at Rahway and Hawthorne.

As of June 4 production and maintenance workers at the five facilities had walked off the job. About 3,000 employees are affected by the strike action, according to the spokesman.

Negotiations were adjourned by the federal and state mediators late on the afternoon of June 3, he noted.

The company offered the Merck Inter-Union County a revised wage and benefit package that would raise annual wages more than $1,600 over the life of the contract. This would be accomplished partly by cost-of-living adjustments, he explained.

In the revised proposal the company moderated its medical benefit cost-containment proposal, the spokesman pointed out.

The company proposed to return locked-out employees at Rahway and Hawthorne to their jobs for a month while negotiations continue to resolve remaining differences in their local contract, he said.

The union rejected that proposal, the spokesman noted.

"We hope the union will take the responsible course of submitting the company's proposal to its members for a vote," said Donald S. Brooks, the chief labor negotiator for the company.

"The union members averaged $34,500 in wages in 1983, plus average benefits of $8,000," Mr. Brooks added.

"Our proposal provides an excellent balance between the needs of the company to be competitive and the interests of union members in improving their wages and benefits, which are already among the best in United States industry," he concluded.

Yoder underscores need for parking plan

The president of Rahway Hospital, John Yoder, announced the hospital plans to appeal the recent decision of the Rahway Board of Adjustment which rejected the hospital's plan to build a parking lot across the street from the hospital complex.

The use variance did not get the required five votes that it needed to be approved, the board vote was 4-3 in favor of the plan, reports Mr. Yoder.

According to city law, the hospital can appeal the decision to the City Council within 10 days of its publication.

Mr. Yoder stressed the hospital is trying to increase the number of off-street parking spaces to comply with the city's mandate 650 parking spaces be available by the end of the current construction period and to lessen the number of cars that often cruise around neighboring streets looking for safe parking.

"The problem of parking has been one that has gotten increasingly worse over the past few years and with all the construction going on, it will be harder and harder for employees, visitors, volunteers and neighbors to find places to park their cars," the hospital president pointed out. ## Letters to the Editor

Mr. Hartnett replies to Brandt's charges

In his recent letter to you Robert Brandt made a most unfair personal attack against me and the city administration. In alleging a conversation I had with him reflected contempt for the views of others, Mr. Brandt apparently completely misunderstood me and the point I was trying to make.

The point I was attempting to get across is petitions drawn up on resource recovery by Councilman John Marsh and his campaign aide, Miss Tina Malone, are improperly worded, not to demonstrate "contempt" for anyone.

In explaining this point, I gave hypothetical examples of how this improperly worded petition could not achieve the result desired by Mr. Marsh and Miss Malone. The purpose of giving these examples was to show Mr. Brandt exactly how and why the petitions are improperly worded, not to demonstrate "contempt" for anyone.

I have no reason to believe Mr. Brandt is anything but a sincere person. In the future, I hope he will refrain from personal attacks, stick to the issues and accord the views of others the same respect he seeks for his own.

THE NEW JERSEY REPORT

Garbage problem needs solution now

I am sure it must sometimes seem the news coming out of Trenton is an almost endless stream of warnings about crises and catastrophes about to befall us. There is danger in this, since when disaster is forecasted there is a tendency to ignore the warnings and to do nothing.

Yet the warnings must be heeded. In any number of areas, particularly the environment, New Jersey's leadership is being challenged. The state is in a position to lead in the past two years we have finally begun serious and meaningful work on cleaning up the cankers of toxic waste dumps that blot our landscape and threaten our water supplies.

In this area the progress has been impressive. New Jersey leads the nation in toxic waste cleanup. With the help of the Federal Superfund and our own Hazardous Waste Spill Fund we are making substantial progress.

There is another area, however, where progress is not simply threatening to overtake us, it is upon us today, and in the next few years will affect every single resident of our state in one way or another. The problem is garbage.

We Americans produce garbage at an alarming rate. But our willingness to produce it has not been matched by our willingness to do what is necessary to dispose of it.

In New Jersey we produce about 10 million tons per year. That's about 1.3 tons for every man, woman and child in the state. We are forced by a United States Supreme Court mandate to accept another two million tons each year from haulers in New York and Pennsylvania.

The past 10 years New Jersey's leadership has lacked the will to face up to this crisis and the hard decisions needed to come grips with it. And now, the crisis is upon us. For 10 years we have been running out of landfill space.

New Jersey has about 170 landfills, but about 20 of them accommodate 90% of our garbage. Many of the largest landfills are approaching or have reached their capacity. This year, it is likely landfill closures will force more than 1,000 garbage trucks per day to seek new places to empty their loads.

The immediate negative impact of such actions is two-fold. Increased costs are generated by forcing haulers to find new, more distant, landfill destinations; and those jurisdictions with remaining landfill space will have that space used up more quickly as they are required to accept more garbage from outside their own district.

The impact of all this, of course, eventually falls on the shoulders of the individual homeowner or renter. Regardless of whether garbage is hauled by a municipality or by a private carrier, the extra costs associated with traveling further with each load and the increased dumping fees that are likely to be found at the new landfill destinations inevitably come directly back to the individual family, either through increased taxes to pay for municipal hauling or increased fees charged by private carriers.

Beyond this immediate problem lies the worse and inevitable one: What happens when there is no landfill space left at all? The answer is simple: There will be none.

New landfills are extremely difficult to site. No one wants them in their municipality or their county. And, beyond this, the threat of groundwater contamination forebodes many other possible sites.

To ignore this problem any longer will only create bigger and bigger problems for all involved. Even now the cost of solving this problem will increase. To ignore it further will make that cost impossible to bear.

It is clear we must not only find new ways to dispose of our garbage, but that we must find ways to cut down on the volume to be disposed of.

It is clear we must not only find new ways to dispose of our garbage, but that we must find ways to cut down on the volume to be disposed of.

Responsible recovery, therefore, or tipping fees, tend to be higher than landfill fees, particularly in the early years of operation, because of the high start-up cost of recovery operations.

To deal with this problem the legislation now under consideration in the General Assembly under the sponsorship of Essex County Democratic Assemblyman Harry A. McEnroe would create a Resource Recovery Investment Fund to be levied on the owner or operator of every landfill. The tax would start at $1 a ton and increase gradually to as high as $10, depending on the action by the solid waste district in which the landfill is located.

There are 22 solid waste management districts in New Jersey and each would receive the revenues realized from this tax in their district. The money would go into a Resource Recovery Investment Fund and could be used by the district to finance the construction or operation of a resource recovery program.

Honor unit cites Robert Singer

A Clark scholar, Robert A. Singer of 171 Hight St., was named to the National Honor Society in political science by the University of Delaware in Newark, Del.

Because some districts with existing landfill space must accept garbage from outside their own district, they will be forced to use up their landfills more quickly than if disposal were limited to their district. To address this issue, the bill would levy an additional 75¢ per ton on disposal of 75¢ per ton on out-of-district waste, with that money going into the Resource Recovery Investment Fund of the recycling district.

Some districts have failed to meet their obligations for disposing of their own waste, preferring to send their garbage into other counties rather than create their own facilities or enter into inter-district agreements.

Under the terms of this bill districts that fail to make a good faith effort to meet their obligations would be charged an additional surcharge of up to $150 a ton, with that money going to that district that is forced to accept the extra garbage. The bill would also allow the Department of Environmental Protection to assume administration of the district's Resource Recovery Fund and withhold other money that would normally go to the district.

Together with other changes in existing solid waste laws, this bill should make it attractive for every county to begin addressing, seriously, the problems of dealing with our growing volume of solid waste.

Certainly, the program will increase costs for every person who puts a garbage can out at the curb. But to allow the problem to slip further away from us would only mean far, far greater costs in the very near future.

DATLINE: TRENTON

A Legislative Report from Senator Don DiFrancesco

Time to crack down on child abusers

Child abuse is reaching epidemic proportions in New Jersey and throughout the nation.

Over 30,000 cases of child abuse were reported last year in New Jersey alone. Nationally, between 100,000 and 500,000 children are abused annually.

For years child abuse received little public attention or concern. Now this serious crime, which can permanently scar a child, is getting the public exposure it deserves. As more is learned about this crime we have found new laws are needed to protect our children.

For instance, the state requires fingerprinting and criminal background checks on school bus drivers, yet we do not require criminal record checks of potential foster parents or day-care workers. These people are responsible for caring for our children, but we have no way of knowing if they have a criminal history of child abuse or other violent offenses.

I have introduced legislation that would mandate fingerprinting and criminal background checks on all potential foster and adoptive parents. In addition, I plan to sponsor other legislation that would require criminal record checks of all state employees who are responsible for caring for children in day care centers and state institutions.

Review we turn over our children to someone else's care, we should know if there is anything in that person's background which could threaten our child's safety.

Walker, simply place a few dollars more on your gas, electric or charcoal grill and when the wood begins to smoke you are ready to grill. For even more smoke use mesquite chunks for coals instead of charcoal, added Walker.

Mesquite grilling is not only limited to meat, food and seafood. The sweet-smelling smoke does wonders for skewered vegetables, such as cauliflower, broccoli, potatoes, peppers and almost anything used for kabobs, Walker pointed out.

Mesquite Enterprises packages mesquite in 5 pound bags for distribution. Individual consumer purchases can be obtained locally from the Mesquite Enterprises site located at the corner of Hart St. and Hazelwood Ave., Rahway.

Neighborhood Watch gets first boost

Rahway Local No. 31 of the Honorary Policemen's Benevolent Association is sponsoring a Neighborhood Watch program at the University of Delaware in Newark, Del.

Members of the local will work in each ward throughout the city familiarizing residents and law enforcement with the program, it was announced.

All organizations were urged to support this program and let them know they were not alone. Walker stated his company harvests mesquite from land holdings in South Texas and imports the wood to New Jersey for distribution. Although the company is relatively young, restaurant and retail accounts are growing.

Walker emphasized although mesquite has been used for grilling in the southwest for many years, it is just now starting to develop across the rest of the country. "Restaurant and retail accounts are growing," Walker stated.

A student from Rahway, Eric Schupp of 1129 Main Ave., received a French award.

Mesquite Grilling - The Hot New Food Trend

Within the past few years, outdoor grill foods and restaurants specializing in country-style cooking have really gained a lot of popularity. Most of this "popularity boom" has been due to mesquite wood, which gives meats and seafood a fantastic smoky flavor.

Don Walker of Chatham, who has cooked with mesquite for over 14 years and who owns Mesquite Enterprises, said you haven't really grilled until you've grilled over mesquite. The flavor that mesquite gives to food is unique and delicious. Not only does beef and seafood taste great, but once you have grilled chicken, sausage and pork over mesquite, nothing else can compare, he said.

Walker, who is a manager with a major corporation, said when he moved to New Jersey about five years ago, he would bring back mesquite wood from his visits to Texas.

SPOT LIGHT ON OUR SCHOOLS

COMPUTER CONGLOMERATE - Computer study continues at Rahway Junior High School under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Snyder. Recently the computer literacy course and the honors algebra class hosted Tom Korn and Richard LaFard, right, of the AT&T Network Systems sales group. They demonstrated UNIX, Writer's Workbench Software, which is an editor that proofreads original writing for spelling, punctuation, word-choice errors and split infinitives. It also can analyze writing style for sentence structure and organization of ideas. The students typed a paragraph into a terminal which is linked to a larger computer at the AT&T Corporate Education Center in Princeton. They then received a complete analysis of their original writing. In addition to their own writing the students saw an analysis of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. This computer demonstration allowed students and faculty the opportunity to see the applications of software now available. The junior high computer program was added to the curriculum this school year. Watching the computer at work, shown, left to right, are: Frank Jones, Michael Krebs, Michelle DiRini, Michelle Millerick and Chris Bondarenko.

DAY IN THE SUN - On May 14 the federally-funded pre-school of the Rahway school system held its annual picnic at Mural Park in Colonia. The picnic was held with the help of the Parent Advisory Council, both fathers and mothers, reports Mrs. Linda Steuf, the chairwoman.

"ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE" - Is a course offered at Rahway Junior High School for foreign students seeking an education in the United States. Mrs. Madye Jimenez, a teacher of the course, is proud of the four students who made the junior high school academic honor roll. They are: Leonardo Arevalo from Peru, Jose Sosa and Immar Carbajal from El Salvador and Rudipier Grehval from India.

TAKING THE TALLY - Counting the profits of the day after Clark's Carl H. Kumpf School's Parent-Teacher Assn. Craft and Flea Market held in Clark on March 31 are: Mrs. Ginny Kuyat, the treasurer; Mrs. Judy Olsen, the first vice president; and Mrs. Sharon Kluman, the president.

FUTURE ASTRONAUTS - James Caterina, from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, presented the students at Clark's Frank K. Henly School with a demonstration of the accomplishments and future projects of NASA. Taking part, left to right, are: Allen Morton, Louis Van Bergen, Debbie Kinley, Mr. Caterina, Stefanie Novy, Karen Cincilli and Douglas Gryski.

COLLEGE BOUND - Clark's Carl H. Kumpf School guidance counselor, Mrs. Mary Foster, congratulates seventh grader, Joseph Loong, who was invited by the Johns Hopkins University Center for the Advancement of Academically Talented Youth to attend the center's 1984 Verbal Regional Awards Assembly in Baltimore. The student is being honored for the high scores he attained on the Scholastic Aptitude Tests, which he took along with high school students earlier this year. He will receive a regional certificate as a top-scoring participant in the 1984 CTY National Talent Search. In conjunction with this honor, the Kumpf School received a commendation from Johns Hopkins, "in recognition of its educational support of some of America's most outstanding students with academic potential," reports principal David M. Hart.

AND THE WINNERS ARE - Mrs. Donna Villars, a reading teacher at Rahway Junior High School, recently announced the winners of the Second Annual Reading Poster Contest, open to all seventh and eighth graders. They are, left to right: Robert Capace, seventh grade, third place; Donna Abrams, eighth grade, first place; Douglas Harvatt, seventh grade, first place; Hala Abdel, seventh grade, third place, and Mary Lawrence, seventh grade, second place.

THE SWEET SOUND OF MUSIC - Children gather around Michael Sommers as he picks their love for music. The fourth grader and others have been sharing their musical talents with their Frank K. Henly School classmates from Clark prior to the start of the school day and at luncheon.

VALLEY OF THE KINGS REVISITED - The grandeur of ancient Egypt came to life as the students in the social studies class of Walter Stevens at the Carl H. Kumpf School in Clark. In creatively-designed projects, the students recreated points of interest from ancient Egypt and presented oral reports to their classmates about their findings. The students whose projects were judged by the class to be the best, shown, left to right, are: Chad Williams with his replica of an Egyptian elabaster boat which was found in King Tut's tomb; Sheri Olsen with the death mask of King Tut; and Scott Boutsikaris with his model of the entrance to King Tut's tomb found in the Valley of the Kings in Egypt.

FLAG DAY A SIGNAL OF UNITY

The pendulum that times the moods and attitudes of America's youth is swinging toward traditional national values, a survey of young people's opinions indicates.

This study demonstrated that the country's youth is sharing adult concerns about major issues, such as nuclear warfare. Such findings offer sharp contrast to the postures of teenagers in the 1960s and '70s which were marked by strident and rebellious approaches to national affairs. The survey was based on responses from 986 students aged 13 to 18 across the country.

As Flag Day, Thursday, June 14 approaches, these findings offer assurance to those concerned over certain troublesome trends of life in the United States. What the survey points out is that the basic values which have helped shape America's greatness are as sound as ever and are winning wider acceptance in an often distressed world.

The Stars and Stripes beam a signal of unity of 230 million free people welded into a nation, one and inseparable, united not only in a community of interests but by a vital unity of sentiment and purpose; a nation distinguished for the clear individual conception of its citizens alike of their duties and their privileges as well as their rights and obligations.

Congress has recognized the special intent of honoring America by setting aside the 21-day period from Flag Day to Independence Day, July 4, as a time for examining our country's problems and considering what contributions we can make to help solve them.

This time span, selected to correspond to the traditional 21-gun salute accorded to heads of state, was initiated by the Honor America committee of the American Historic and Cultural Society and won hearty acceptance by Congress.

The Honor America group, a private, non-partisan organization, has been functioning since 1970 in stimulating a patriotic spirit through the media—press, radio, television, films—and separate historic and educational groups. Now, this year, the federal government has created and funded the national Endowment for Democracy to advance the cause of freedom and independence on an international basis. Thus, the impetus introduced by the Honor America effort is gaining momentum.

The survey of young people's views showed the majority agree with their parents' position on such subjects as drugs, education, politics and sex. Have the adults conscientiously thought out the answers to the problems related to these issues?

Unanimity of opinion, of course, is not to be expected. But as Americans we should and will tread our separate paths leading toward the common good of our country.

All adult citizens should make a positive effort to register and vote in local and national elections. In addition, everyone should try to familiarize himself or herself with local civic issues bearing on schools, taxes, crime and so forth. Some of these matters are complex and require time and effort.

But it is relatively simple to display our flag on June 14, an action which conveys a sense of respect, an indication that each individual knows and appreciates the significance of this banner.
