Improved computer education, team teaching to highlight new school year in city

By R. R. Faszczewski
A new computer education plan at Rahway High School and the continuation and refinement of the Core Program for seventh to ninth graders at Rahway Junior High School will greet city students as they return for the 1984-1985 school year on Wednesday, Sept. 5.

Over $100,000 has been allocated from the Rahway Board of Education budget for the high school computer education plan. The equipment will include 15 Apple IIe computers, 15 printers, 15 power protectors and software supplies.

At the request of the high school's principal, Roy Valentine, and with the support of Superintendent of Schools Frank D. Brunette, a computer education committee was established at the high school last September.

The committee investigated the implications of the rapid changes taking place in computer technology, recommended courses to be offered in computer education and studied and recommended equipment and software to meet the immediate and long-range needs of the school, according to Mr. Brunette.

According to Robert Brown, the vice principal of the high school, the committee also determined what facilities were needed to house equipment and programs and the best way to evaluate and acquire software and recommended a plan for in-service education and staff development.

Members of the committee attended professional workshops and vendor-sponsored educational seminars and read all available literature relating to the subject.

The committee is also developing procedures for operating a parallel recording system with the school's guidance department and for updating, recording and using students' records within a student support system in the attendance office.

Mr. Brown reports by November the school system will have report cards prepared and ready for distribution in computer support system, and by Saturday, Dec. 1, the committee plans to develop file forms for new curricula on computers in the mathematics and business education departments and to have new course selections ready for student selection in February of next year.

In the junior high school the Core Program will be refined for seventh and eighth graders to place students in two core groups, numbers permitting, with a team of teachers for each grade. Academic classrooms will be assigned so they will be next to or close to each other—resulting in a limited amount of student movement during the school day—because, other than for special subjects and physical education, the students' classes and lockers will be assigned to specific locations.

Although the ninth grade will continue to function as before there will be limited movement for ninth graders within specific areas within the building, according to Herman Sherman, the junior high school principal.

Following are some of the goals of the program: Teachers, counselors and administrators in a team will hold regularly-scheduled meetings during planning periods regarding the students, classes and subjects.

Team members will improve communication among themselves in dealing with curriculum, testing and test results, reports to parents and the school staff, planning, programs and assemblies. They will encourage students to learn how to get to know each other and to improve their ability to work together more cooperatively.

They will also plan jointly for the use of guidance services, the library, speakers, the auditorium, large and small group instruction, time and other facilities.

They will provide classroom situations that may be regulated to best meet the needs of each student intellectually, socially, emotionally and behaviorally. Having all teachers of a team teach a student should enable him to teach his potential since all will share their learning experiences with him to assist him with his subject area.

They will be able to discuss each student with the team members in order to determine better methods for improvement. They will discuss a child with parents and/or child study team members in order to combine the understanding and possible means of helping to correct problems.

They will be able to agree upon mutual academic behavioral and social expectations of students and cooperatively treat discipline/behavioral problems for the common good and they will work in a joint team effort for parental contact, progress reports and report cards.

According to Mr. Brunette all of the Rahway schools will be making a concerted effort to improve the instruction of writing skills for all students.

He added a number of the district's staff members have had special training through the New Jersey Dept. of Education and starting in September all staff members will be receiving in-service training throughout the school year in kindergarten to 12th grade in all the schools; all principals have, as part of their development plan, an objective to improve student writing skills and the improvement of the students' writing skills will be measured, by holistically scoring writing samples in May of the upcoming school year.

Board names Hugger, Addona grid coaches

By Joan Gorzenik
The Rahway Board of Education on Aug. 20 appointed two assistant varsity football coaches for the 1984-1985 school year, despite some opposition by one Board member, who said he did not feel the need for two appointments.

Board member, William Ulrich, okayed the appointment of Keith Hugger, Frank Brunette. The appointments bring the total to six.

The dissenting Board member explained Keith Hugger, the latter applicant, was "better qualified" for the position.

He added Rahway resident, Mr. Addona, who was initially approached for the position by head coach, Edward Yergaloni, took the job "as a favor."

Mr. Yergaloni later recommended the appointment of Rahway native, Mr. Hugger, who came forward after learning of the position opening. Mr. Ulrich explained.

Both appointments are contingent upon the approval of the Union County Superintendent of Schools Vito Gagliardi.

Several Board members supported the appointment of both men.

Ronald Matusaitis said, "It would be foolish of this Board to put a team out there that was not well coached and not ready for anything out there." He said he does not feel this (the extra appointment) is a great expenditure.

Mr. Brunette said the head coach recommended both men.

He added, "We should stand by that."

Another Board member, Little Henderson, explained the "children need the best." By the Board giving the hiring of Vincent Addona, he will have added incentive, she said.

Mr. Ulrich's major objection was the additional coaching position was created because of Mr. Addona. He said he could not see the need for allocating money for an additional coach at this time. (There are usually five assistant football coaches, according to Superintendent of Schools Frank Brunette. The appointments bring the total to six.)

Mr. Yergaloni a little extra, he will have added incentive, she said.

Board member, Betta Jacobs, saw the dual appointments as a vote of confidence for Mr. Yergaloni.

In regard to the appointment of Mr. Hugger, Board member, William Hoodzow, said he could think of no other man better qualified than Mr. Hugger.

Mr. Ulrich said he "wholeheartedly supported the appointment of Mr. Hugger."

Mr. Addona, the son of Rahway Councilman at Large Vincent P. Addona, played football at Rahway High School, Ursinus College in Collegeville, Pa., and Kean College of New Jersey in Union. He will receive $1,846 extra services compensation for his first coaching assignment.

Mr. Hugger was a quarterback on the 1979 Rahway, Group No. 3, Section No. 2, state championship team. He played at the University of Connecticut and set several receiving records, including most receptions in a game, 14; in a season, 59; and in a career, 103.

After being graduated from high school he tried out for the Dallas Cowboys and later signed with the New York Giants and was subsequently released from the team. He will earn $2,049 as extra services compensation in his new post.

In other action, the Board:

• Accepted the resignation of James E. Thomas as the assistant varsity football coach for the 1984-1985 school year.

• Transferred Richard Plesher from assistant freshman football coach to assistant varsity football coach at the extra services compensation of $2,357.

• Re-appointed Raymond Candloro as the freshman assistant football coach for the 1984-1985 school year at the extra services compensation of $1,757.

• Appointed John Dillasio as the athletic trainer for the fall season of 1984 at the extra services compensation of $2,360.

• Named Phillips Williams as the junior varsity boys soccer coach for the 1984-1985 school year at the extra services compensation of $1,186.

• Re-appointed George Mitchell as the freshman boys soccer coach for the 1984-1985 school year at the extra services compensation of $1,346.

• Appointed Ira H. Weinstein as principal at Rahway Junior High School effective Sept. 1 or as soon as he can be released from his current position as vice principal in Winfield Park.

• Appointed Mrs. Toni Sullivan from the Reduction in Force List as a teacher of the handicapped in the district for the 1984-1985 school year.

• Employed Mrs. Kathleen Keane as a teacher for the emotionally disturbed at the senior high school for the 1984-1985 school year.

• Appointed Miss Tracey Turk as a resource room teacher at Franklin School for the 1984-1985 school year.

Merck talks adjourn with limited progress

Negotiations on the contract between Local No. 8-775 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers and Merck and Co., Inc., which is headquartered in Rahway, were adjourned by mutual consent after short discussions on the morning of Aug. 23.

The talks broke off when it became apparent that the two parties were very far apart. No further meetings have been scheduled. State mediator, Anthony Damico was present, reports a Merck spokeswoman.

The limited progress achieved was overshadowed by significant differences. For example, agreement in principle for the portion of the contract that deals with the Calgon plant in Hawthorne was reached and initiated by Merck and the assistant chief steward of the union, the spokeswoman added.

However, while agreement in principle was reached for the Branchburg Farm unit in North Branch, the union's chief steward refused to initial the agreement, she said.

The contract for the Merck Institute group at Rahway was discussed, but outstanding issues remain unresolved.

Discussions with the chemical operators at Rahway indicate there are still several unresolved areas. Progress here appears to be impossible until issues involving the mechanics are resolved, the spokeswoman continued.

While some movement was made in the mechanical area at Rahway, the basic issues separating the two parties remain, she noted.

Byron Roe, Merck's chief negotiator on the local contract, said even after 16 weeks "the mechanics still do not accept the need to improve their efficiency to reduce mechanical costs at the Rahway site. The changes sought by the company are not new and represent practices which already exist at other Merck sites."

In the negotiations this week, Merck continued to clearly state its resolve to achieve the changes necessary to make the entire Rahway site competitive and cost-effective, he said.

Mr. Roe added the company's negotiators will be available when the union is prepared to join in meaningful and fruitful discussion.

"Until the new contract is agreed upon, employees who return will be working under the terms of our April 30 offer," he concluded.

Letters to the Editor

Could parking unit be breaking law?

I heard a new state law that says a parking authority cannot establish higher rates for lots than the rates set for the streets by the City Council.
 If that is so how come the rates for Lot "B" in Rahway are higher than the rates for the streets? Is the Rahway Parking Authority breaking the law?
 What is the Rahway City Council going to do about lowering the high parking meter fines that are driving business out of Rahway?

Jail name change awaits study results

Rahway Third Ward Councilman and the President of the City Council, Max Sheld, announced today the re-naming of Rahway State Prison is still awaiting the study results from the New Jersey State Dept. of Corrections.

Councilman Sheld, long an advocate of re-naming the maximum security facility located in the Avenel section of Woodbridge Township, said the bill sponsored by Assemblyman Thomas Deverin, who represents Rahway, to re-name the three state maximum security prisons was vetoed by Gov. Thomas H. Kean.

The governor indicated all corrections facilities, not just the prisons must be re-named. Accordingly, he directed the Office of Correction Commissioner William Faure, to undertake a study to produce a list of name changes for all state prison facilities which bear the names of specific geographic locations, the councilman pointed out.

Assemblyman Deverin's Bill No. A-151 was given impetus by the continuing concern of Council President Sheld, who has maintained for the past three years the prison in Avenel is an inaccurate association with the city of Rahway has cast a "dark cloud" over the image of his community.

"Not only is Rahway Prison not in Rahway, but it is not even in the same county as Rahway. This common reference to the prison causes an unwarranted erosion of both business and residential values in our city," Sheld said.

Consumer News

By James J. Barry Jr., Director
 New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs

Busy Americans are finding mail order purchasing a convenient and efficient way to shop. However, the boom in business has swamped some mail order businesses and attracted some unscrupulous operators. When shopping by mail you are buying something before you actually see it and in some cases, paying for it before you actually receive it.

Mail order complaints constitute the second largest number of complaints filed with the Division of Consumer Affairs (automobile complaints are first). Non-delivery of merchandise, shipment delays and confusion about refund policies generate the most common complaints. Other deceptive or unlawful mail order practices.

As a consumer you should be suspicious of offers that seem too good to be true. Chances are they aren't. Prize Headquarters, using a Mailwood Post Office box number as a mailing address, sent notices to thousands of consumers telling them they had been selected to win a diamond ring with real gold. All consumers need do, the notice went on, was to send $4 to cover postage and handling and they would receive the rings offered. Thousands of people sent in their money. Most received nothing in return. Those who actually received rings were not much better off. The diamond was so small it could barely be seen and of very poor quality. It was set in a shiny metal surface and the rings themselves were made of cheap metal.

Most received nothing in return. Those who actually received rings were not much better off. The diamond was so small it could barely be seen and of very poor quality. It was set in a shiny metal surface and the rings themselves were made of cheap metal.

Its appraised value was under $5.

The division has taken legal action against Prize Headquarters on behalf of consumers. But, in the meantime, thousands of consumers are out $4.

MISLEADING MAIL OFFERS
 • Work-at-home schemes prey upon those with the fewest options—young mothers, disabled people and those unable to find other jobs. They often become victims of mail order advertisements seeking $10, $20 or more for worthless work-at-home kits. Instead, the victims receive instructions on how to rip others off with similar false claims in a type of pyramid scheme.

• "Lifetime subscription for only $4.95" sounds like a real bargain. But the offer is probably for a magazine that you've never heard of before and, if it's published at all, it probably comes out only two or three times a year. Incidentally, the "lifetime" is that of the magazine, not yours.

• Any notice or advertisement that announces you have won a prize and then requires you to purchase another item or submit to a sales presentation or do any act is a violation of the law. The earlier mentioned Prize Headquarters was unlawfully requiring a $4 payment.

Quality education takes hard work

One of the most rewarding of the duties I assumed as governor is my membership in the Education Committee of the States. This highly prestigious organization is widely recognized as the leading private education-oriented group in the country. So naturally I am both pleased and honored to have been chosen chairman-elect of the committee.

In the past two years the commission has achieved a critically important goal—it has successfully managed to focus the attention of the nation on the dangerously lagging state of public education in the United States, equally important, we have kept the focus on education. I believe there is now in our country a wider recognition than ever before of the dangers we create for ourselves by ignoring the quality of education.

Nearly three decades ago America was electrified by the launching of the world's first man-made satellite. That achievement by the Soviet Union generated fears at home that American education was falling behind that of our rival and the result of that fear was increased emphasis on education in our public schools.

Today we face a new threat—a threat to our economic future and, more importantly, the economic future of our children, who must compete in the market place of tomorrow's highly technical world.

To meet the challenge the commission created the Task Force on Education for Economic Growth. Last year the task force reported on the serious decline in the quality of education in our public schools. This year the task force's report focused on the new and imaginative proposals many different states have developed to meet the challenge of providing excellence in education. The responses have been swift and energetic and they made it clear that a powerful national commitment to renewed excellence in education does not have to originate in Washington.

The report makes many points, but there are three I think every American must keep in mind—because every American has a direct stake in the quality of the education we provide our children.

The first point that must always be remembered is that there is no single answer to school renewal and no uniform approach. Each state, and even each school district, must devise approaches that meet their specific needs.

Second, we must not rest on our laurels. Many reforms have been achieved in New Jersey and in other states over the past year or two. But to ensure these achievements become permanent improvements to our schools, we must continue to work toward more and better improvements in the system, must remain diligent. Our educational decline was caused by paying only sporadic attention to the plight of the schools. This nation can no longer claim ignorance of the damage this kind of inattention causes.

Finally, we cannot deny that knowledge is power; trained intelligence is a chief component of a nation's productivity or its general economic health. Most importantly, it is the basis of our democracy. Government of the people, by the people and for the people can only survive if those people are equipped to rule themselves intelligently.

A nation requires leaders with courage and patience and daring and trained intelligence to solve problems. But we don't need only an elite few—we need millions and millions of them—and the way to foster them is through the public schools.

I believe we now have the momentum to keep up the pace of educational reform. That momentum comes from parents, from students, from professionals and people in business, industry and public life. Most importantly, it comes from those who hold the keys to excellence in education—our teachers.

It is past time for the adult world to burden teachers with our common and serious responsibility to the generation after our own. Ensuring continued high quality in our public schools is a task which must fall to every one of us—not just to our teachers.

New Jersey has made considerable progress in improving public education. We spend more for education than ever before. We have new and more rigorous standards for the performance of our schools and our students. Soon we will have in place new and more rigorous standards for our teachers.

Chamber conducts parking meter poll

The Rahway Chamber of Commerce completed mailing today a poll on parking meters to about a third of the households of Rahway to determine public sentiment on lowering parking meter fines to $3 from the newly adopted fine of $5. It was announced today by Chamber study committee chairman, Adam A. MacKow of Rahway.

"We urge every respondent of our survey to respond to this important chamber poll to help us decide what course of action the chamber should take on the recent increase in parking meter fines from $2 to $5," said Mr. MacKow.

The poll consists of three questions: (1) Do you think the parking meter fines should be lowered to $3 or less? (2) If you got a $5 parking meter fine in Rahway for not paying a fine, how would you react? (3) Do you think parking meters should be placed in neighborhoods where there are one family and two family homes?

Mr. MacKow said the poll was mailed to about 300 households in Rahway.

The progress we have made, however, must be counted as the past and we must continue to look to the future. Through the efforts of our Department of Education and the Education Committee of the States I am confident we in New Jersey and citizens in every state will continue to provide the impetus for continuing improvement in our schools.

Pension funds can cut mortgage rates

The decline in housing starts over the past three months could mean trouble for New Jersey home builders.

Data compiled by the commerce department indicates construction of single family homes was down 10% from June, making it the third consecutive month of decline in that sector. The "National Assn. of Home Builders" has expressed alarm over the figures and there may be basis for this concern in economic projections which show the downward trend in housing starts could continue through the end of the year.

Part of the problem there is a shrinking pool of available mortgage money at affordable interest rates. Unites interest rates contained an increasing number of potential homebuyers will be priced out of the market with the result the building industry will suffer.

To ease the impact a long-term decline would have on the nation's home building industry, I am co-sponsoring legislation that would make it easier for the trustees of private pension funds to invest in home mortgages in qualified mortgages provided the transactions were made at arms length and represented a prudent use of the money. The proposal is reasonable and consistent with the recommendations made last year by the Presidential Commission on Housing. It is also backed by the National Assn. of Home Builders.

In my view this would be a reasonable step toward restoring a national priority for home ownership at a time when so many Americans are unable to buy their own homes. This legislation would not cost taxpayers a cent and it would not subsidize homebuyers at the expense of pensions.

However, it would help potential buyers by providing a larger pool of mortgage money at more affordable interest rates.

These restrictions should be relaxed to make it easier to use these funds for mortgages and mortgage-backed securities. The bill is pushing would permit investments in qualified mortgages provided the transactions were made at arms length and represented a prudent use of the money. The proposal is reasonable and consistent with the recommendations made last year by the Presidential Commission on Housing. It is also backed by the National Assn. of Home Builders.

 To Serve We Must Compete

They're still alive in Rahway, N. J.

Not the animals, but another kind of dinosaur—obsolete work rules. You know about dinosaurs. We'd like to tell you about outdated work rules that can sap the competitive strength of a company and threaten it with economic extinction.

There is a union work rule at Merck's Rahway plant that says we need five people to install a fence post. Can you imagine what it would cost at home if you had to hire a utility mechanic, a pipefitter, a rigger, a mason, and a carpenter for such a simple job? But the union won't agree to change the rule.

This is just one situation out of literally hundreds that occur every working day at our Rahway and Hawthorne plants. That's the reason this is a real issue in the current labor dispute at Merck.

We're simply asking the Rahway site to adopt rules already in place among our competitors and at other Merck facilities. We have to modernize them to keep Merck competitive.

Being competitive is the only way to provide jobs. Everyone benefits—our employees, our customers, and the community.

That way, we can all avoid the fate of the dinosaurs.

This message is one in a series designed to keep you informed on issues affecting Merck and the community. We welcome your comments. Write to: Community, Merck & Co., Inc., Box 2000, Rahway, NJ 07065.

RAHWAY'S FUTURE - Rahway High School Head Football Coach Ed Vergaloni and assistants, Vince Addona and Bill Dolan, put the youngsters through some running drills during this summer's Rahway Recreation Dept. Football Clinic.

Mrs. Lenczak will assume responsibility for supervising and coordinating patient care and education programs on this unit.
"Our Intermediate Care Unit provides patients with close observation than routine hospital care, but less nursing assistance than in the intensive care units," Mrs. Lenczak's expertise in critical care nursing will be a tremendous asset in coordinating patient care and expanding patient education programs as the hospital increases the size of the Intermediate Care Unit," said Mrs. Berger.
Prior to her appointment at St. Elizabeth, Mrs. Lenczak worked for 13 years in critical care nursing at the Jersey City Medical Center in Jersey City. She served recently as the head nurse of the Coronary Care Unit.

St. Mary's seeks return of adults

A spokeswoman for St. Mary's R. C. Church of Rahway announced that plans are underway to establish a process, "The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults," in the parish beginning in October.
Through this process the parish hopes to reach out in friendship to those who have no church ties and to those who may be seeking information about admission into the Catholic Church, as well as former or inactive Catholics and adult converts. The program will consist of three stages: The first stage will be a time of inquiry by the interested person; the second stage will be entrance into a more profound preparation for the sacraments and the third stage will eventually include Lenten preparations for the Easter celebration and reception of the sacraments.
In this connection the adults involved will be assigned sponsors, members of the parish who will introduce them into the parish and parish life, both social and liturgical. Hopefully, sponsors will be people with whom inquirers can discuss the nitty-gritty kinds of things to clear up confusion and misunderstanding, the spokeswoman said.
Initiation into the church means becoming part of a living community and this process is designed to give the adult a sense of belonging and commitment to church membership to sample the Catholic way of life, she concluded.

Long term asked in Rahway theft

The Union County Prosecutor's Office is seeking an extended prison term for a 1-year-old Perth Amboy man in connection with his conviction for the burglary and theft at a Rahway trucking firm, it was announced on Aug. 16.

A single set of fingerprints and a footprint impression lifted by Rahway Sgt. Donald Canfield led to guilty verdicts last week against James Steven Goteil at the conclusion of a five-day trial before Superior Court Judge Cuddie E. Davidson, reports a spokesman for the prosecutors' office.

Assistant Prosecutor Robert P. O'Leary said Goteil would normally be facing up to five years on each of the third degree offenses at the Sept. 21 sentencing date, but the state is filing a motion which would allow the court to incarcerate him for an additional five years because of his prior record.

Goteil, who was found guilty by a jury of eight women and four men following 90 minutes of deliberation, has prior convictions for property crimes in Union County and a voluntary manslaughter conviction from Georgia, the spokesman added.

According to the state's criminal code, the prosecuting attorney can apply for an extended prison term if the defendant is a persistent offender with at least two convictions within the last 10 years, Assistant Prosecutor O'Leary said.

In court during the week, one Federal Bureau of Investigation expert from Washington testified a sneaker print lifted from the floor of the trucking firm's office could only have come from a sneaker that was seized during a search of Goteil's closet in his home.

Another expert corroborated Rahway Det. William Shiel's findings that latent fingerprints lifted from the roof of a 1980 Cadillac stolen during the burglary matched with Goteil's fingerprints.

Seton Hall taps Thomas Long

A 1983 graduate of Seton Hall University in South Orange, Thomas Long, was named the assistant sports information director at his alma mater, Athletic Director Richard J. Regan announced recently.

Long returns to Seton Hall after serving as an athletic assistant in the athletic department at Villanova University in Villanova, Pa., for the past year.

As an undergraduate at Seton Hall the assistant director majored in communications and for three years served as the manager for the university's highly successful baseball team. Prior to his senior year Coach Mike Sheppard named Long one of the team's captains for the 1982-1983 season, setting what was believed to be a precedent in collegiate baseball circles.

In addition to his work with the baseball program Long worked as a student assistant in the sports information office, was a contributor to the campus newspaper, "The Setonian".

Improved computer education, team teaching to highlight new school year in city

By R. R. Faszczewski

A new computer education plan at Rahway High School and the continuation and refinement of the Core Program for seventh to ninth graders at Rahway Junior High School will greet city students as they return for the 1984-1985 school year on Wednesday, Sept. 5.

Over $100,000 has been allocated from the Rahway Board of Education budget for the high school computer education plan. The equipment will include 15 Apple IIIe computers, 15 printers, 15 power protectors and software supplies.

At the request of the high school's principal, Roy Valentine, and with the support of Superintendent of Schools Frank D. Brunette, a computer education committee was established at the high school last September.

The committee investigated the implications of the rapid changes taking place in computer technology, recommended courses to be offered in computer education and studied and recommended equipment and software to meet the immediate and long-range needs of the school, according to Mr. Brunette.

According to Robert Brown, the vice principal of the high school, the committee also determined what facilities were needed to house equipment and programs and the best way to evaluate and acquire software and recommended a plan for in-service education and staff development.

Members of the committee attended professional workshops and vendor-sponsored educational seminars and read all available literature relating to the subject.

The committee is also developing procedures for operating a parallel recording system with the school's guidance department and for updating, recording and using students' records within a student support system in the attendance office.

Mr. Brown reports by November the school system will have report cards prepared and ready for distribution from the student support system, and by Saturday, Dec. 1, the committee plans to develop file folders for new curricula on computers in the mathematics and business education departments and to have new course selections ready for student selection in February of next year.

In the junior high school the Core Program will be refined for seventh and eighth graders to place students in two core groups, numbers permitting, with a team of teachers for each grade. Academic classrooms will be assigned so they will be next to or close to each other—resulting in a limited amount of student movement during the school day—because, other than for special subjects and physical education, the students' classes and lockers will be assigned to specific locations.

Although the ninth grade will continue to function as before there will be limited movement for ninth graders within specific areas within the building, according to Herman Sherman, the junior high school principal.

Following are some of the goals of the program: Teachers, counselors and administrators in a team will hold regularly-scheduled meetings during planning periods regarding their students, classes and subjects. Team members will improve communication among themselves in dealing with curriculum, testing and test results, reports to parents and the school staff, planning, programs and assemblies. They will encourage students to learn how to get to know each other and to improve their ability to work together more co-operatively.

They will also plan jointly for the use of guidance services, the library, speakers, the auditorium, large and small group instruction, time and other facilities.

They will provide classroom situations that may be regulated to best meet the needs of each student intellectually, socially, emotionally and behaviorally. Having all teachers of a team teach a student should enable him to teach his potential since all will share their learning experiences with him to assist him with his subject area.

They will be able to discuss each student with the team members in order to determine better methods for improvement. They will discuss a child with parents and/or child study team members in order to combine the understanding and possible means of helping to correct problems.

They will be able to agree upon mutual academic behavioral and social expectations of students and co-operatively treat discipline/behavioral problems for the common good and they will work in a joint team effort for parental contact, progress reports and report cards.

According to Mr. Brunette all of the Rahway schools will be making a concerted effort to improve the instruction of writing skills for all students.

He added a number of the district's staff members have had special training through the New Jersey Dept. of Education and starting in September all staff members will be receiving in-service training throughout the school year in kindergarten to 12th grade in all the schools; all principals have, as part of the 1984-1985 school year, despite some opposition by one Board member, who said he did not feel the need for two appointments.

Board member, William Ulrich, okayed the appointment of Keith Hugger, but cast a dissenting vote on

Board names Hugger, Addona grid coaches

By Joan Gorzeleni

The Rahway Board of Education on Aug. 20 appointed two assistant varsity football coaches for the 1984-1985 school year, despite some opposition by one Board member, who said he did not feel the need for two appointments.

Board member, William Ulrich, okayed the appointment of Keith Hugger, but cast a dissenting vote on the hiring of Vincent Addona.

Mr. Ulrich's major objection was the additional coaching position was created because of Mr. Addona. He said he could not see the need for allocating money for an additional coach at this time. There are usually five assistant football coaches, according to Superintendent of Schools Frank Brunette. The appointments bring the total to six.

The dissenting Board member explained Keith Hugger, the latter applicant, was "better qualified" for the position. He added Rahway resident, Mr. Addona, who was initially approached for the position by head coach, Edward Yergalakis, took the job "as a favor."

Mr. Yergalakis later recommended the appointment of Rahway native, Mr. Hugger, who came forward after learning of the position opening. Mr. Ulrich explained.

Both appointments are contingent upon the approval of the Union County Superintendent of Schools Vito Gagliardi.

Several Board members supported the appointment of both men.

Ronald Matusis said, "It would be foolish of this Board to put a team out there that was not well coached and not ready for anything out there." He said he does not feel this (the extra appointment) is a great expenditure.

Mr. Brunette said the head coach recommended both men.

He added, "We should stand by that."

Another Board member, Little Henderson, explained the "children need the best." By the Board giving

Mr. Yergalakis a little extra, he will have added incentive, she said.

Board member, Beta Jacobs, saw the dual appointments as a vote of confidence for Mr. Yergalakis.

In regard to the appointment of Mr. Hugger, Board member, William Hood-zow, said he could think of no other man better qualified than Mr. Hugger. Mr. Ulrich said he "wholeheartedly supported the appointment of Mr. Hugger."

Mr. Addona, the son of Rahway Councilman-at-Large Vincent P. Addona, played football at Rahway High School, Ursinus College in Collegeville, Pa., and Kean College of New Jersey in Union. He will receive $1,846 extra services compensation for his first coaching assignment.

Mr. Hugger was a quarterback on the 1979 Rahway, Group No. 3, Section No. 2, state championship team. He played at the University of Connecticut and set several receiving records, including most receptions in a game, 14; in a season, 59; and in a career, 103.

After being graduated from high school he tried out for the Dallas Cowboys and later signed with the New York Giants and was subsequently released from the team. He will earn $2,049 as extra services compensation in his new post.

In other action, the Board:

- Accepted the resignation of James E. Thomas as the assistant varsity football coach for the 1984-1985 school year.

- Transferred Richard Plester from assistant freshman football coach to assistant varsity football coach at the extra services compensation of $2,357.

- Reappointed Raymond Candloro as the freshman assistant football coach for the 1984-1985 school year at the extra services compensation of $1,757.

- Appointed John DiBlassio as the athletic trainer for the fall season of 1984 at the extra services compensation of $2,360.

- Named Phillips Williams as the junior varsity boys soccer coach for the 1984-1985 school year at the extra services compensation of $1,186.

- Reappointed George Mitchell as the freshman boys soccer coach for the 1984-1985 school year at the extra services compensation of $1,346.

- Appointed Mrs. H. Weinstein vice principal at Rahway Junior High School effective Sept. 1, or as soon as he can be released from his current position as vice principal in Winfield Park.

- Appointed Mrs. Toni Sullivan from the Reduction in Force List as a teacher of the handicapped in the class for the emotionally disturbed at the junior high school.

- Hired Darby Fleetwood as a speech correctionist in the district for the 1984-1985 school year.

- Employed Mrs. Kathleen Keane as a teacher for the handicapped in the class for the emotionally disturbed at the senior high school for the 1984-1985 school year.

- Appointed Miss Tracey Turek as a resource room teacher at Franklin School for the 1984-1985 school year.

Merck talks adjourn with limited progress

Negotiations on the contract between Local No. 8-575 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers and Merck and Co., Inc., which is headquartered in Rahway, were adjourned by mutual consent after short discussions on the morning of Aug. 23.

The talks broke off when it became apparent that the two parties were very far apart. No further meetings have been scheduled. State mediator, Anthony Damico was present, reports a Merck spokesman.

The limited progress achieved was overshadowed by significant differences. For example, agreement in principle for the portion of the contract that deals with the Calgon plant in Hawthorne was reached and initiated by Merck and the assistant chief steward of the union, the spokeswoman added.

However, while agreement in principle was reached for the Branchburg Farm unit in North Branch, the union's chief steward refused to initial the agreement, she said.

Discussions with the chemical operators at Rahway indicate there are still several unresolved areas. Progress here appears to be impossible until issues involving the mechanics are resolved, the spokeswoman continued.

While some movement was made in the mechanical

area at Rahway, the basic issues separating the two parties remain, she noted.

Byron Roe, Merck's chief negotiator on the local contract, said even after 16 weeks "the mechanics still do not accept the need to improve their efficiency to reduce mechanical costs at the Rahway site. The changes sought by the company are not new and represent practices which already exist at other Merck sites."

In the negotiations this week, Merck continued to clearly state its resolve to achieve the changes necessary to make the entire Rahway site competitive and cost-effective, he said.

Mr. Roe added the company's negotiators will be available when the union is prepared to join in meaningful and fruitful discussion.

He also said the company's unconditional offer to return employees to work is still in effect.

"Until the new contract is agreed upon, employees who return will be working under the terms of our April 30 offer," he concluded.

Ten-run rally leads city over Roselle
 With a seven-run lead in the fifth inning of its second intra-county league play-off game against Rahway on Aug. 15, Roselle had to be optimistic about its chances for evening the series and force a deciding third game.

Rahway, however, had other ideas. A 10-run explosion in the fifth inning propelled Rahway to an 11-8 win and a sweep of its semifinal series.

Steve Wick provided the big blow for Rahway, hitting a three-run homer with the score tied at eight to force the margin of victory. Joe Chirichello began the uprising with a leadoff double and later added a two-run single. Brian Wittick, the winning pitcher in Rah-

Foster children are often eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are available at your school and application may be made at any time during the school year.

In the operation of Child Nutrition Programs no child will be discriminated against because of race, color, sex, handicap, national origin, age or ability to pay.

A child will not be identified as a recipient of free or reduced price meals.

For the school officials to determine eligibility the household must provide the following information listed on the application: Names of all household members, Social Security numbers of all adult household members, or a statement that the household member does not possess a total household income and the signature of an adult household member certifying the information provided is correct. The school will advise parents of their child's eligibility within 10 working days of receipt of the application.

Any parent dissatisfied with the eligibility determination may contact the school to request an informal conference (or may appeal the decision by requesting a formal hearing).

Letters to the Editor

Could parking unit be breaking law?

I heard a new state law that says a parking authority cannot establish higher rates for lots than the rates set for the streets by the City Council.

If that is so, how come the rates for Lot "B" in Rahway are higher than the rates for the streets? Is the Rahway Parking Authority breaking the law?

What is the Rahway City Council doing to do about lowering the high parking meter fines that are driving business out of Rahway?

Jail name change awaits study results

Rahway Third Ward Councilman and the President of the City Council, Max Sheld, announced today the renaming of Rahway State Prison is still awaiting the study results from the New Jersey State Dept. of Corrections.

Councilman Sheld, long an advocate of renaming the maximum security facility located in the Avenel section of Woodbridge Township, stated the bill sponsored by Assemblyman Thomas Deverin, who represents Rahway, to rename the three state maximum security prisons was vetoed by Gov. Thomas H. Kean.

The governor indicated all corrections facilities not just the prisons must be renamed. Accordingly, he directed the Office of Correction Commissioner William Fawcett, to undertake a study to produce a list of name changes for all state prison facilities which bear the names of specific geographic locations, the councilman pointed out.

Assemblyman Deverin's Bill No. A-1151 was given impetus by the continuing concern Council President Sheld, who has maintained for the past three years the prison in Avenel is inaccurate association with the city of Rahway has cast a "dark cloud" over the image of his community.

"Not only is Rahway Prison not in Rahway, but it is not even in the same county as Rahway. This common reference to the prison causes an unwarranted erosion of both business and residential values in our city."

LEGITIMATE BUSINESS
Busy Americans are finding mail order purchasing a convenient and efficient way to shop. However, the boom in business has swamped some mail order businesses and attracted some swindlers. When shopping by mail you are buying something before you actually see it and in some cases paying for it before you actually receive it.

Mail order complaints constitute the second largest number of complaints filed with the Division of Consumer Affairs (automobile complaints are first). Non-delivery of merchandise, shipment delays and confusion about return policies generate the most common complaints. Other complaints deal with misrepresentation and other deceptive or unlawful mail order practices.

As a consumer you should be suspicious of offers that seem too good to be true. Changes in price aren't. Prize Headquarters, using a Mapwood Post Office box number as a mailing address, sent notices to thousands of consumers telling them they had been selected to win a diamond ring worth $4,000. The notices went on, to send $4 to cover postage and handling and they would receive the ring. Thousands of people sent in their money. Most received nothing in return. Some who actually received rings were not the winners.

At this time, the Commissioner Fawcett's department has not come forth with the requested list of alternate names for New Jersey prison facilities. These institutions are: The state prisons known as Rahway, Trenton and Lehighburg, the youth correctional centers at Yardville, Bordentown and Avenel, the training schools at Jamesburg, Trenton and Skillman and the Correctional Institution for Women in Clinton.

On Aug. 15 Assemblyman Thomas J. Deverin, the speaker pro tem, wrote to W. Cary Edwards, the chief counsel to Gov. Kean, asking whether Commissioner Fawcett had submitted the list of names for the correctional facilities.

Report from Washington

Quality education takes hard work

One of the most rewarding of the duties I assumed as governor is my membership in the Education Commission of the States. This highly prestigious organization is widely recognized as the leading private education oriented group in the country. So naturally I am both pleased and honored to have been chosen chairman-elect of the commission.

In the past two years the commission has achieved a critically important goal—it has successfully managed to focus the attention of the nation on the dangerously lagging state of public education in the United States; equally important, we have kept that attention focused. I believe there is now in our country a wider recognition than ever before of the dangers we create for ourselves by ignoring the quality of education.

Nearly three decades ago America was electrified by the launching of the world's first man-made satellite. That achievement by the Soviet Union generated fears at home that American education was falling behind that of our rival and the result of that fear was increased emphasis on education in our public schools.

Today we face a new threat—a threat to our economic future and, more importantly, the economic future of our children, who must compete in the market place of tomorrow's highly technical world.

To meet the challenge the commission created the Task Force on Education for Economic Growth. Last year the task force reported on the serious decline in the quality of education in our public schools. This year the task force's report focused on the new and imaginative proposals many different states have developed to meet the challenge of providing excellence in education. The responses have been swift and energetic and they made it clear that a powerful national commitment to renewed excellence in education does not have to originate in Washington.

The report makes many points, but there are three I think every American must keep in mind—because every American has a direct stake in the quality of the education we provide our children.

The first point that must always be remembered is that it is no simple answer to school renewal and reform to say, "Let's just do it better." Each state, and even each school district, must devise approaches that meet their specific needs.

Second, we must not rest on our laurels. Many reforms have been achieved in New Jersey and in other states over the past year or two. But to ensure that our children receive permanent improvements to our school systems, and to ensure that we continue to work toward more and better improvements in the system, we must remain diligent in our educational decline was caused in part by paying only sporadic attention to the plight of the schools. This cannot deny that knowledge is power; that intelligence is a chief component of a nation's productivity and that our future as a democracy depends on the people who are equipped to rule themselves intelligently.

A nation requires leaders with courage and patience and daring and trained intelligence to solve problems. But we must not dilute our educational decline was caused in part by paying only sporadic attention to the plight of the schools. This cannot deny that knowledge is power; that intelligence is a chief component of a nation's productivity and that our future as a democracy depends on the people who are equipped to rule themselves intelligently.

Chamber conducts parking meter poll

The Rahway Chamber of Commerce completed a poll on parking meters to determine public sentiment on lowering parking meter rates to $3 from the newly adopted fine of $5.

The poll consists of three questions: (1) Do you think the parking meter rates should be lowered to $3 or less? (2) If you got a $5 parking meter fine in Rahway for an overtime meter, how would you react? (3) Do you think parking meters should be placed in neighborhoods where there are one family and two family homes?

"We urge every recipient of our survey to respond to this important chamber poll to help us decide what our use of action the chamber should take on the recent increase in parking meter rates from $2 to $5," said Mr. Mackow.

THE NEW JERSEY REPORT

Pension funds can cut mortgage rates

The decline in housing starts over the past three months could mean trouble for New Jersey home builders.

Data compiled by the commerce department indicates construction of single family homes was down 10% from June, making it the third consecutive month of decline in that sector. The National Assn. of Home Builders has expressed alarm over the figures and there may be basis for this concern in economic projections which show the downward trend in housing starts could continue through the end of the year.

Part of the problem is there is a shrinking pool of available mortgage money at affordable interest rates. Unless interest rates are contained an increasing number of potential homebuyers will be priced out of the market with the result the building industry will suffer.

To ease the impact a long-term decline would have on the nation's home building industry, I am co-sponsoring legislation that would make it easier for the trustees of private pension funds to invest in home mortgages. Over the years the government has discouraged pension fund investments in mortgages by imposing regulations that make it more difficult for the plans to put their money into those instruments than into equities, bonds and other forms of securities.

Higher standards for mortgage investments have been imposed even though mortgages have proven to be a superior form of investment, especially for pension funds. As a result, it is estimated only about 3% of the more than $300 billion in private pension plans is invested in mortgages.

These restrictions should be relaxed to make it easier to use these funds for mortgages and mortgage-backed securities. The bill I am pushing would permit investments in qualified mortgages provided the transactions were made at arms length and represented a prudent use of the money. The proposal is reasonable and consistent with the recommendations made last year by the Presidential Commission on Housing. It is also backed by the National Assn. of Home Builders.

In my view this would be a reasonable step toward restoring a national priority for home ownership at a time when so many Americans are unable to buy their own homes. This legislation would not cost taxpayers a cent and it would not subsidize homebuyers at the expense of pensions.

However, it would help potential buyers by providing a larger pool of mortgage money at more affordable interest rates.

Staying Competitive: Third In A Series

Not the animals, but another kind of dinosaur—obsolete work rules.

You know about dinosaurs. We'd like to tell you about outdated work rules that can sap the competitive strength of a company and threaten it with economic extinction.

There is a union work rule at Merck's Rahway plant that says we need five people to install a fence post. Can you imagine what it would cost at home if you had to hire a utility mechanic, a pipefitter, a rigger, a mason, and a carpenter for such a simple job? But the union won't agree to change the rule.

This is just one situation out of literally hundreds that occur every working day at our Rahway and Hawthorne plants. That's the reason this is a real issue in the current labor dispute at Merck.

We're simply asking the Rahway site to adopt rules already in place among our competitors and at other Merck facilities. We have to modernize them to keep Merck competitive.

Being competitive is the only way to provide jobs. Everyone benefits—our employees, our customers, and the community.

That way, we can all avoid the fate of the dinosaurs.

stage will eventually include Lenten preparation for the Easter celebration and reception of the sacraments.

In this connection the adults involved will be assigned sponsors, members of the parish who will introduce them into the parish and parish life, both social and liturgical. Hopefully, sponsors will be people with whom inquirers can discuss the nitty-gritty kinds of things to clear up confusion and misunderstanding, the spokeswoman said.

Initiation into the church means becoming part of a living community and this process is designed to invite those without religious commitment or church membership to sample the Catholic way of life, she concluded.

St. Mary's seeks return of adults

A spokeswoman for St. Mary's R. C. Church of Rahway announced that plans are underway to establish a process. The Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults, "in the parish beginning in October."

Through this process the parish hopes to reach out in friendship to those who have no church ties and to those who may be seeking information about admission into the Catholic Church, as well as former or unconfirmed Catholics. All those 18 years of age and over would be eligible.

The program will consist of three stages: The first stage will be a time of inquiry by the interested person; the second stage will be entrance into a more profound preparation for the Catholic way of life, the sacraments and the third stage will eventually include Lenten preparation for the Easter celebration and reception of the sacraments.

In this connection the adults involved will be assigned sponsors, members of the parish who will introduce them into the parish and parish life, both social and liturgical. Hopefully, sponsors will be people with whom inquirers can discuss the nitty-gritty kinds of things to clear up confusion and misunderstanding, the spokeswoman said.

Initiation into the church means becoming part of a living community and this process is designed to invite those without religious commitment or church membership to sample the Catholic way of life, she concluded.
