State praises

Mother Seton schooling

Sister Regina Martin, the principal, received notification that Mother Seton Regional High School in Clark was recommended for renewal of its state approval to June, 1990. A team of evaluators visited the school recently to conduct the evaluation.

Dr. Walter M. McCarthy, the manager of non-public school services, under the Division of General Academic Education for New Jersey, conducted the evaluation. Mr. Saul Rossien, educational specialist for non-public school services, and Sister Catherine Moran, assistant superintendent of schools in the Archdiocese of Newark, completed the committee.

The visiting committee found the school continues to meet the standards and criteria required of private secondary schools for approval. The findings are summarized as follows:

1. A well-developed statement of philosophy provides direction to the program. Comprehensive educational objectives, related to both the philosophy and the curriculum, have been established.
2. The school is well organized and competently administered under a responsible board of control.
3. Teachers and administrators are qualified by educational background, professional preparation and teaching experience. All hold degrees, over-half on the graduate level. There appears to be excellent rapport among administration, teachers and students.

4. An organized program of instructional supervision is in place. Formal and informal lesson observations are conducted by administrators and department chairmen.

5. A variety of in-service activities provides for the professional improvement of the staff. These activities are planned by a committee of the faculty.

6. A faculty-curriculum council is responsible for curriculum evaluation and development. There was evidence of considerable curriculum activity.

7. The full range of guidance services is provided to all the students.

8. Library/multi-media facilities, resources and professional services are available on a full-time basis and well utilized by the students and staff.

9. The school facilities provide an appropriate environment for teaching and learning. They are attractive and well maintained.

10. The curriculum meets, and in some aspects, exceeds, statutory graduation requirements in communications, computation, science, United States history, physical education, health, arts and career education. Family life education is an integral part of the total program. Courses of study including curriculum proficiencies are being developed in all subjects.

11. The credit system is commensurate with the credit structure prescribed in regulations. Credits required for graduation exceed the minimum.

The curriculum continues to be remarkably rich and varied. Its comprehensiveness is illustrated in the following aspects: Variety of electives in subject areas to provide breadth and depth of study; a comprehensive business education program, programs in the fine and practical arts, advanced placement and honors programs, an expanding computer education program, a reading program and a comprehensive activities program.

Students are spirited, positive in their outlook, and very supportive of the school. A warm, friendly atmosphere prevails.

The visiting committee based its findings on information gleaned from discussions, observations and a careful review of various materials describing the school, reports Sister Regina.

MORE DAY CARE NEEDED...Reviewing a probability sample report indicating support for more day care in Rahway, left to right, are: Cathy Spinella of Clark, a junior majoring in sociology at Kean College of New Jersey in Union; Frances Williamson, assistant to the executive director of the United Way of Union County; Roye-Ann Hargrove, director of community services at the college, and Dr. Ardyth Stimson, a sociology professor at the college, who supervised the student study.

Survey: More day care needed in city

Four Kean College of New Jersey of Union students determined through a probability sample between 65 and 81 percent of the people in Rahway favor an additional day care center, but only 17 percent of them are familiar with the agency that would sponsor it.

That agency is the Rahway Community Action Organization Inc. (CAO) which was reorganized under a broad-based board last year and operates the John F. Kennedy Community Center at 796 E. Hazelwood Ave., Rahway.

The CAO now provides lunches and after-school programs to about 80 latch-key children from all parts of the city. More than 300 children and youths benefit from CAO programs in the summer. CAO is funded by the United Way of Union County, state division of youth and family services, and the state department of education.

Roye-Ann Hargrove, director of community services at the college, who serves on the allocation board of United Way, recognized the CAO needed statistical work done to buttress its case for more day care in Rahway. There is some church-run day care, she said.

She enlisted the help of Dr. Ardyth Stimson, a sociology professor at the college. Dr. Stimson offered the services of four students in her methods of social research class.

They are Kelly Galligan, a social work and gerontology junior; Michele Petit-Clair, a freshman considering a career in marketing; Mary McMahon, a sociology junior, and Cathy Spinella, a sociology junior from Clark.

The students began their survey with a sample of 900 that included 300 telephone numbers each of residents of low, middle and high-cost housing. The survey respondents, narrowed to 100 in each group, but the results are consistent across socio-economic lines, the students found.

Their report stated 65 percent of the people with children would use day care and 81 percent of the people without children felt there was a need for it.

Although the agency has been in existence for 13 years 83 percent of those surveyed were unaware of it, the students discovered. The community center building, which houses the CAO's multiple services, is a one-story structure about 15 years old with a gymnasium, kitchen, classrooms, resource room, offices and other facilities and off-street parking.

Dr. Stimson said, "Since this was a probability sample we can generalize our percentages to the general population."

Rahway has about 29,000 residents, she noted. Results of the survey were presented to David Brown, CAO board chairman; Betty A. Cobb, CAO director and Frances Williamson, assistant to the executive director of the United Way of Union County, during a meeting at the college with Roye-Ann Hargrove, Dr. Stimson and the students.

Mr. Brown expressed his appreciation the use of Kean College students saved CAO a considerable sum in consultant fees.

Betty Cobb said the statistics gathered would be used in applying for state funds to establish day care at the center.

Maguires' ship: Floating home

Editor's Note: Following is the third in a series of stories on the cruise of former Assemblyman William Maguire and his wife, Mrs. Doris Maguire, of Clark, to the Far East from San Francisco.

We learned on our sixth day at sea that Walter Mondale had chosen Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate. Armed Forces Radio gave us this news. The reaction of the passengers was one of surprise since none thought Mr. Mondale could win no matter whom he chose.

Three albatrosses have been following the ship since our second day out, landing on the ship at night only. They are large, graceful birds with a 5 foot wing span and they seldom flap their wings, gliding, instead, on wind currents generated by the ship.

On the 10th day out we toured the balance of the ship, visiting not only the bow and stern, but below decks too, where most of our cargo is stored. It is most impressive.

The cargo leaving San Francisco was diversified: Meats, automobiles, thousands of bales of cotton which will be converted to clothing and shipped back to the United States and panels for computers which will be assembled, wired and shipped back to the States.

Our first mate is Richard Abrams. He is second in command and is a product of the California Maritime Academy having been graduated in 1966. Rick has traveled the world over. He'll complete 20 years of service in 1986, when he plans on retiring at the age of 42 to establish a new career as an entrepreneur.

She anticipates her background will be useful in the "nitty-gritty details" of the every-day operation of the special education program. An immediate task will be reviewing all the district's procedures to be sure they are in compliance with all the new, detailed regulations and regulations that were adopted by the state department of education in July, 1984.

County GOP to honor Kean

The Union County Republican Committee will hold its annual Lincoln Day Dinner on Friday, Feb. 8 at the Town and Campus Restaurant in Union.

General Irwin I. Kimmelman, as well as other prominent political leaders, will be over 600 people in attendance, according to Mr. Pisano.

The brass choir, Solid Brass, will present a concert at Crescent Avenue Church in Plainfield on Sunday, Feb. 3 at 4 p.m. The group will be joined by the organ and the Chancel Choir of the church, led by organist, director, Kathleen Upton.

When it comes to choosing which fuel to heat your home, the right choice is GAS HEAT. There are many good reasons why you should. Here are but a few of them:

ABUNDANT SUPPLY—Natural gas supplies are increasing and the natural gas is about 94% domestically produced. GAS HEAT IS EFFICIENT—Superior combustion gives greater burning efficiency. GAS HEAT IS DEPENDABLE—Delivered in underground pipes regardless of the weather—and you don't pay for your gas until after you use it.

Franks: Return surplus to taxpayers

Since Gov. Thomas Kean delivered his annual State of the State message recently, I have received several dozen calls from residents of Clark with suggestions concerning the use of the state's $200 million budget surplus.

I wanted to take this opportunity to share with your readers my views regarding the state's fiscal affairs. My strong belief is the governor and the Legislature have an obligation to balance the long-term needs of the state with the goal of providing direct property tax relief in dealing with the surplus.

Already scores of legislators have filed bills to use portions of the excess funds for a variety of projects. The aggregate cost of these proposals exceeds $2 billion. The budget year began with an anticipated surplus of $75 million in the General Fund. It has grown to at least $200 million and some experts expect it to approach $1 billion by the end of the fiscal year on Sunday, June 30.

In times of fiscal crisis, the Legislature doesn't hesitate to increase taxes. Now that we have accumulated the largest surplus in the state's history, it is only fair we rebuke a substantial portion.

Therefore, I will work in support of a program that includes $100 million to accelerate the clean-up of toxic waste sites in our state. With the future of the federal Superfund Program in doubt we have the responsibility to rid our state of this serious threat to public health and safety.

Each day we read more about the growing problem of solid waste disposal. The garbage crisis demands swift action by the state.

Ogden survey: Mandate needed on waste plants

Nearly 95 percent of the people responding to a constituent questionnaire distributed by Ogden, whose district includes Clark, want the Legislature to mandate a resource recovery as a step to solve the state's mounting solid waste disposal problem.

More than 75 percent of the respondents to the survey said they did not understand the new insurance laws enacted to help reduce car insurance premiums.

The first phase of restoration will concentrate on the minor lobby. Meanwhile, a new furnace is being installed by McDowell Oil, which provided the unit at cost.

Rinaldo bill blacks out 'gray market'

Federal legislation cracking down on the mushrooming "gray market" in luxury European automobiles will be introduced by Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo, whose district includes Clark, a senior member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee.

The New Jersey Republican said today the increasing number of gray-market cars which do not meet United States emissions and safety standards, is "not only a threat to the environment but is also costing the government tens of millions of dollars in lost tax revenue. Many consumers buying these vehicles, with the expectation of realizing a substantial savings, end up buying a financial headache."

Legislation Rep. Rinaldo is preparing for introduction early in the session would eliminate non-conforming gray-market cars by requiring every vehicle brought into the country comply with United States emissions and safety standards at the time of entry. Under current law, the importer is responsible for the condition if they are modified in accordance with the law.

However, because of the cost of retrofitting and loose federal enforcement, it is estimated that fewer than 5 percent of the vehicles imported into the United States comply with the law. Rinaldo said that more than 35,000 last year's figures is expected to exceed 70,000 by 1988 in the absence of stiffer restrictions.

Rinaldo said consumers are lured by discounts ranging from 15 to 40 percent off the sticker price charged by authorized dealers. Many small-time operators buy cars cheaply abroad, but keep no inventory, have no showroom, no service parts, and offer no manufacturer's warranty or recall notices. Among the more popular gray market cars are Mercedes-Benz, Audi, Porsche, Ferrari and Rolls Royce.

He added there is a serious question whether retrofits are ever as good mechanically as those produced in the factory, especially for the American market. Dealers claim among the difficulties or hazards associated with these cars is improper compression ratios, which eventually lead to knocking and ping, weak side door reinforcements and catalytic converters installed too close to the fuel lines, risking fire.

"While customers may get a break on the price," the representative said, "they do not get the manufacturer's warranty, and sustain a loss in resale value of the car. The cars frequently end up with shoddy workmanship when and if the required modifications are made. It is unfair" to manufacturers, dealers, vehicle owners and to legitimate importers to allow poorly-converted gray-market cars to flow into the United States market, he said, contributing to increased pollution of the environment and putting innocent consumers to be victimized. It is also costing the government serious loss of tax revenue.

Merck earnings increase by 12%

A spokesman for Merck & Co., Inc. of Rahway today announced net income for the fourth quarter of 1984 was $115,606,000, compared with $104,835,000 for the fourth quarter of 1983. Earnings per share were $1.59, up 12 percent from $1.42.

Sales for the fourth quarter were $961,916,000, up 12 percent from $855,779,000 for the fourth quarter of 1983.

Net income for 1984 was $492,967,000, compared with $450,855,000 for 1983. Earnings per share were $6.71, up 10 percent from $6.10.

Sales for the year were $3,559,665,000, an increase of 10 percent from $3,246,139,000 for 1983.

John J. Horan, chairman and chief executive officer of the health-products firm, said, "Overall sales gains in 1984 reflect the continued strength of the company's newer human health products, including 'Mefoxin,' an injectable antibiotic; 'Timoptic,' prescribed for control of glaucoma; 'Moduretic,' a potassium-sparing diuretic for use in certain cases of high blood pressure; 'Dolobid,' a non-narcotic long-acting analgesic, and 'Noroxin,' an oral antibacterial for urinary tract infections that has now been introduced in 12 countries outside the United States. Unit sales declined moderately for the overall group of other established in-line human health products."

Merck introduced its new oral cardiovascular agent, enalapril, an angiotensin converting enzyme inhibitor in Germany in the fourth quarter and in France and the United Kingdom this month. The company plans to introduce the product in most major markets, including the United States, this year. The trademark for enalapril in the United States will be "Vasotec."

In November, 1984 Merck introduced "Tonocard" in the United States. A new oral agent for treating heart arrhythmia (abnormal heartbeat), it is the first product to be introduced under Merck's collaborative agreement to develop and market in the United States a series of drugs discovered by AB Astra, a Swedish pharmaceutical company.

"Animal health products had significant sales gains in both the quarter and year, with the broad acceptance of ivermectin, the company's new product for control of internal and external parasites in animals. The specialty chemical and environmental products segment of Merck's business also had year-to-year sales gains in the quarter and year," Mr. Horan said.

"Approximately one-half of the 1984 sales increase came from the effect of the previously announced 1983 acquisitions of Laboratorios Abello in Spain and Banyu Pharmaceutical Co., Ltd. and Torii & Co., Ltd. in Japan," he added.

On October 1, 1984, as previously announced, Merck increased its ownership in Banyu to just over 50 percent by exercising its option to exchange convertible bonds for additional shares of Banyu, and accordingly, in the fourth quarter, consolidated the operations of Banyu, which were previously accounted for under the equity method. As expected, these acquisitions had a dilutive effect on earnings in 1984, after considering the costs of financing.

"These acquisitions were made as part of our long-term strategy to establish a significant position in these important pharmaceutical markets," Mr. Horan noted.

"The strength of the United States dollar continues to adversely impact the international portion of our business," he declared. "The strong dollar reduced sales $50 million for the quarter and $145 million for the 12 months, compared with the same periods last year. Cost-control measures and productivity improvements helped to offset the unfavorable impact of exchange. We expect earnings in the first quarter of 1985 will be moderated by the strong dollar and by expenses associated with new product introductions, but anticipate accelerated growth over the balance of the year."

FOGGY DAY IN RAHWAY TOWN... Construction on the new elevator shaft at Rahway Hospital continues even in inclement weather. On a recent winter day the fog was extremely thick, but the construction crews were able to see well enough to keep working. The elevator shaft is just a small part of a vast construction program going on which will modernize Rahway Hospital and increase the hospital's square-footage by 40 percent. The construction is under the supervision of the Damon G. Douglas Co. of Cranford.
