Council okays pact on office-hotel complex

By R.R. Faszczewski
The development of a hotel-convention center-office complex on the tract of vacant land behind City Hall came a step closer to reality Monday as City Council voted to accept an agreement between the city and the developer, Rahway Corporate Center, whose principal is Daniel Colangelo of 21 Brant Ave., Clark.

The vote on the measure was five in favor, First Ward Democratic Councilman Jerry L. Coleman voting against it, Second Ward Republican Councilman and Fourth Ward Democratic Councilman Harvey Williams absent at the time of the vote and Fifth Ward Republican Councilman George Wagenhoffer abstaining.

According to the accord the land, previously city urban renewal property, will be sold to Mr. Colangelo and his partners for $377,500 to be paid in installments "computed" and paid when each phase of the three-phase project is put into development.

At the signing of the agreement the developer will be required to pay a 10 percent deposit on the first phase, to be calculated by multiplying the number of square feet in that phase by $1.25 per square foot and then by a factor of 10.

Within 10 days of the beginning of construction on the first phase the developer will be required to provide a 10 percent deposit on the second or third phase, whichever he decides to develop first, to be calculated by multiplying $1.25 by the number of square feet in the phase it chooses and then by 10.

When he actually takes title to whichever phase he intends to develop second he will be required to pay a 10 percent deposit on the remaining phase, to be calculated by subtracting the amount paid for the previous two phases from $787,500 and multiplying that figure by 10.

When he takes title to the first phase the developer will have to begin construction of the first office building within 10 days.

Within 10 days of having 50 percent of the first building, either rentable or saleable space, occupied or committed to occupancy, the developer will be required to begin construction of the second building in the first phase.

Within 10 days of obtaining 75 percent use of the first phase the developer will be required to take title to and begin construction on whichever of the next two phases he has previously elected to build next and pay the purchase price of that phase, as outlined in the agreement.

When he takes title to the final phase he will be required, if the final phase is the second phase, to build a hotel/convention center of not less than 100 rooms, or if the final phase is the third phase, an office building of at least 28,000 square feet. The above construction must start within 10 days of obtaining title.

Within 10 days of making the second phase operational, if that is the next phase built, he will be required to either begin construction on an approximately 65,000 square-foot office building or take title to the last phase, or if the third phase is to be the next phase he will be required, after obtaining 50 percent use of the first building in that phase, to commence construction of a 21,168 square-foot building.

In the case of development of the third phase, after 75 percent of the use of two buildings is completed, he will take title to and enter into the construction phase of the last section and pay the city the full remaining price for the development.

There is also a specific timetable under which, if certain development does not take place, the land not developed would be returned to the city and the money deposited up to that time would be forfeited. Under that provision, the second section—either the second or third phase—must have the developer take title to it and commence development within two years.

Within six months of taking title to the second section he agrees to develop the remaining phase, and within a year of taking title to the last phase to be developed he must start construction on that phase. Construction of the last phase will have to be completed within a year and six months from the date construction actually begins.

The pact also calls for a 15-foot storm sewer easement and two 15-foot sanitary sewer easements at a site on the property depicted in the accord. In addition to other standard approvals for any development, the contract calls for the developer to provide flood insurance for any improvements now on the property or made by him in an amount at least equal to the development cost of the property "during the anticipated economic or useful life" of the improvements.

Each phase of the project property is exempt from real estate taxes now and will continue to be exempt until "until each respective conveyance and is free from any lien of prior real estate taxes."

Property taxes will be levied when the land is actually conveyed to the developer.

All of Mr. Colangelo's shareholders/partners will be subject to approval by the city and the principals of the corporation/partnership will be subject to city approval if they change during development.

Sixth Ward Republican Councilman James J. Fulcoer called the development pact, "an important step forward for the city."

He said it was the first time since he has been on Council that development would be taking place behind City Hall and the development would give the city "a bite of the apple."

However, Councilman Marsh, who was present prior to the vote but left before it was taken, said the agreement failed to stipulate that a tax rate would have to come out of the site within a certain amount of months or the developer would face penalties.

He also questioned the credibility of the developer. Councilman Wagenhoffer said he had many questions which were not yet answered on the development, including the location of a dam to cause the Rahway River to rise high enough to make it more attractive to the developer.

Mayor Daniel L. Martin replied the dam would probably be between Lawrence St. and Rte. No. 1, but its location might depend on the location of a proposed Union County resource-recovery plant in the same area.

Council, Board settle their budgets

By R.R. Faszczewski
The city last week put the finishing touches on its budgetary decisions—both the 1985 municipal and school—tabs—with final agreement on both.

On May 7 City Council adopted its $7,143,937.56 tab, which had been delayed while it awaited state approval and to which the Governing Body had made some last-minute revisions.

Residents can expect to pay another $120 in municipal taxes on a house assessed at $40,000, an increase of $17.20 over last year.

Unlike the city budget originally introduced, under which the city had anticipated using a 6.5-percent formula to calculate the state limit on spending increases, the tab finally adopted was 6.5 percent "CAP" limit formula usually used.

All three Republican councilmen, who had called for more cuts than were made, voted against the measure.

$288,906 in the budget was attained through sales of various parcels of land not benefiting the city. The money helped lower the amount taken from surplus.

According to Anthony Rocco, Board of Education secretary and school business administrator, the $60,000 reduction in the cut will mean about a 17-point tax increase for school purposes instead of the 16-point increase which would have occurred under the previous Council-proposed cut.

As to exactly where the cuts will be applied Mr. Rocco said that has not been determined yet.

However, as part of the school budget settlement the city did agree to pick up the costs of providing school crossing guards in addition to certain services for garbage, recreation and gasoline already provided by the two bodies for each other under previous agreements.

Mr. Rocco said even though the crossing guards are city employees the School Board had issued their checks under a previous agreement.

A CITY OF HISTORY

Chamber offers community directory

Within a short time the Rahway Chamber of Commerce will again distribute a map and informational brochure on the community. This time it will be expanded to include a directory of the houses of worship, which was edited by the Rahway Ministerial Assn. under the direction of the Rev. Joseph M. Quinlan, the pastor of St. Mary's R.C. Church.

The map itself is "up to the minute," showing the newest streets, and has a street index and marks over 40 points of interest in the city, reports a spokesman. Profusely illustrated, it has four Norman Strouse illustrations of historic buildings which once appeared in the "Rediscovery Of Rahway." Two Lloyd Garrison paintings appear courtesy of Kennedy Jewelers & Corey & Corey, who own the originals. A professional photographer, John Reminger, donated his services so the pictures of the Rahway Geriatrics Center and the Second Baptist Church (Rahway's newest church building) would be just right.

Representatives of the public and parochial schools, Rahway Hospital, the Rahway Economic Development Corp. and many others, have edited the copy. Ray Eggers, the project director, pointed out that distribution will be in June and the maps will be available wherever the Chamber Logo is displayed (all over town).

The chamber membership List on the map reads like the "Who's Who" of Rahway Business & Industry. It's format as a business directory, therefore, should be most useful according to Mr. Eggers.

Chamber membership is open to civic, business and industrial entities in the community. Please telephone 499-0210 or 388-8087 or write to Rahway Chamber of Commerce, Post Office Box 595C, Rahway, N.J. 07065.

Time to honor older Americans

Since 1963 May has been proclaimed as Older Americans Month, a time set aside to express this nation's gratitude to its senior citizens. Members of both the House and the Senate have recently approved a resolution to continue this special tribute in 1985.

This year's commemoration holds particular significance, since it coincides with the 20th anniversary of the landmark Older Americans Act, established in 1965 in response to the lack of community social services for older persons.

The 1984 amendments also provided for the inclusion of health and human services to tens of millions of older individuals in their communities, including nutrition, employment, transportation, counseling and numerous other social and health-care services.

One of the key elements contributing to the successful implementation of the Older Americans Act has been the network of service providers it established, consisting of state and area agencies on aging, as well as congregational and home-delivered nutrition providers and other supportive service providers.

"On at least two occasions APL-26 and her two supporting tugs have moved more than 100 miles in a single day over the poorly-charted Delta waters," he added.

APL-26 has come under Viet Cong attack several different times during her Vietnam tour. She has twice been hit by enemy rocket-firing rounds, but in both instances the rounds failed to detonate.

By Ray Hoagland
 The Indians captured the Watchung Conference Track and Field Championship at Hub State Field in Plainfield on May 11.

Gary Satterwhite of the Indians won the 100-meter dash in 10.6 seconds by inches from Tony Tiller of Westfield. He then won the 400-meter run in 47.7 seconds and the 200-meter dash in 21.2 seconds, both by comfortable margins.

Randall Walker of Rahway won the intermediate hurdles in 53.5 seconds and the high jump at six feet, four inches. He also was a close second.

Todd Baskerville was the winner of the long jump with a 22-foot, 10.5-inch jump.

The Rahway girls were sixth with nine points; the winner was Plainfield with 102.

Kelly Brennan of Clark's Crusaders drove in six runs with a homer, a double and a sacrifice fly. Mike Sabba doubled in three runs.

Clark is now 10-4.

LIFTING TEAM SPIRITS...Again showing support for weight room equipment for the Rahway High School football team, Rahway Chamber of Commerce president, Eva Pascale, congratulates Ed Vergatios, head coach, by presenting a check. "This school spirit stimulated by the enthusiasm of the football leaders, soared this past year and unified the entire community with pride in the athletes. The members of the chamber join with the citizens in looking forward to another successful football year!" Mrs. Pascale declared.

HITTING HOMERUNS...Top money raisers in last year's American Cancer Society Hi-A-Thon, Kevin Zipper, left, Michael Raspol and Patay Catino, talk baseball with Yankee Willie Randolph. This year again the ballplayers who raise the most money during the Hi-A-Thon will get to spend a day with Willie Randolph at Yankee Stadium.

Clark Comets down Colonia Cosmos

In Clark soccer the Clark Comets defeated the Colonia Cosmos 3-1.

An aggressive offense with the crisp and accurate passes of Danny Thorne, Joe DeBenedictis, Mike Mentzel and Joe Hoffmann helped teammate, Brett Ashley, bang home two goals. The strong defense played by Brian Schott, Brian Roth and Matt Lucarelli proved overwhelmingly that the odds were against Colonia.

The Clark Angles beat Morristown 5-1, staying undefeated in their first matches. Karrie Bongiovanni and Laura McAvoy had two goals each and Randy Shaps netted one. Sparking the defense were Denise Doolin, Colleen Leonard, Jennifer Caffero and Emily Ferraro.

Playing down two men for half the match the Clark girls routed Metuchen Edison 5-0 on an outstanding hat-trick effort by Steve Wiese and a match point Summit and Rahway at Keary.

Local families needed for exchange students

Would you like to share your family life with a European student for an academic year? Take the chance to discover our country through the eager eyes of a teenager from overseas.

ASSE International is seeking host families in the local area for high school aged exchange students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, West Germany, Holland, Switzerland and England. Each student is filled with the dream of a year in the United States, attending local high school and living as a member of an American family.

All the students, 16 to 18 years old, are fluent in English and are carefully selected for the ASSE program based on their high school performance and language skills. The qualified students have a great variety of talents and interests. One boy, from West Germany, likes to play table tennis, soccer and volleyball as well as being active in cycling. Light athletes, tinkering with models and playing the guitar. A girl from Sweden, who needs a host family like to play soccer as well as having strong interests in gymnastics, horseback riding, skiing, sewing and crocheting.

Robert & Nancy Hood, the ASSE Area Representatives said, "We help the host family choose a student who has some interests in common with the family and will keep contact with the student during the year. The student is accompanied by a local high school and living as a member of an American family.

The ASSE exchange students arrive in August and return home in late January or early July. Each student brings their own air fare and leave their own medical and liability insurance. Pocket money is supplied by their parents. The host family is expected to furnish meals, a room, and bedroom, with separate bath, with separate toilet, may be shared with a family of two of the same sex, and a measure of love.

A Union resident, Edward Wojcik of 187 Parkway Dr., will take part as program book chairman of the festival committee for the festival on Sunday, May 26 in Asbury Park's Convention Center to be sponsored by the New Jersey Polish Heritage Festival Committee.

The day-long festival of ethnic music, singing, dancing, as well as cultural and historic exhibits will underline Poland's more than 1,000 year history of Christianity.

Elizabethtown joins drive to find missing kids

Elizabethtown Gas Company's 200,000 customers will find something important with the gas bill they receive in May...asking them to help find someone special.

The May bills will contain an insert featuring the photographs and physical descriptions of two missing children. Beginning with the June bills, two different photos and descriptions will appear each month in the company's regular monthly informational bill insert.

"Consumer Pipeline", along with other information on child safety. Elizabethtown's efforts are part of the National Child Watch Campaign, which is jointly sponsored by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, the National Child Safety Council and the American Gas Association.

of which Elizabethtown is a member. Russell Fleming Jr., Elizabethtown's Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, said, "We're proud to join these fine organizations in addressing one of the real tragedies of our time—the abduction of children. We intend to focus our efforts not only on attempting to find children who have been abducted but, just as importantly, on educating parents and children in our area on the avoidance of future abductions."

Fleming continued, "As incredible as it sounds, between 20,000 and 50,000 children disappear each year in this country, according to the National Child Safety Council. These disappearances involve criminal abductions; small children stolen by people who want to raise them as their own; children who are sold for exploitation; and children who meet with foul play or accidental death."

Fleming said that the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children will provide Elizabethtown and other gas companies across the nation with two new photographs each month. "In this way, each pair of photographs receives nationwide publicity in the same month," he said. Fleming added that while the children featured may have been abducted in other states, statistics show that most missing children who are found turn up far away from where they were abducted.

In addition to publishing the photos of missing children, Elizabethtown Gas will also be disseminating information from the National Child Safety Council on protecting children from abductions. "The Council has an excellent brochure, 'How to Protect Your Child', which we will make available to our customers at our various bill-paying locations," Fleming said. "In addition to valuable information, the brochure contains an identification card on which parents can record their children's full physical descriptions and attach a current photo. This card should be kept by the parent and turned over to law enforcement authorities in the event something happens to the child.

"Our gas bills give us direct access to 200,000 homes in Union, Middlesex, Sussex, Warren, Hunterdon, Morris and Mercer Counties," Fleming concluded. "By focusing the attention of all those people on the seriousness of this problem, we can help protect our most precious resource—our children."

Control pressure for your lifetime

May is National High Blood Pressure Month, and the theme for the campaign is "Make Control Your Lifetime Goal." If you have high blood pressure (and one out of every four Americans does), it is important you follow your physician's instructions, reports a Rahway Hospital spokeswoman.

High blood pressure has no symptoms, and for this reason it has been termed "the silent killer." If left untreated, it can lead to heart attack, stroke and kidney failure, she added. Your physician may prescribe medication to help control your high blood pressure. It is important you take your medication faithfully. High blood pressure does not go away, but it can be controlled, the spokeswoman continued.

Research shows some people can lower their blood pressure by cutting down on their salt intake. Table salt is a compound made up of sodium and chloride. It is the sodium in salt that causes the problem. Most of us consume much more than we need. To reduce your sodium intake, you can eliminate table salt from your diet and avoid prepared and canned foods. If you feel food is too bland without salt alternatives such as spices and herbs can be used. However, avoid all seasoned salts such as garlic salt and onion salt. Make sure you read the labels on commercially-prepared mixtures of spices. Many contain a large proportion of salt, the spokeswoman warned.

Weight reduction and exercise can also help to control high blood pressure. Your doctor can advise you about a sensible exercise program, she said.

High blood pressure is often a family affair. Doctors have found there is a chance of more than one member of a family having hypertension. If you know high blood pressure runs in your family, make every effort to have your pressure checked regularly, the spokeswoman cautioned. Rahway Hospital will sponsor a free blood Luck is often the product of attention and ability.

What serves as a lip gloss, makeup remover and a moisturizer—all in one? Petroleum jelly, that's what. The August "Reader's Digest" said it's a great buy.

People-to-People Service

This G stands for gas line, not graffiti!

Idario DiMatteo, Street Inspector

"Call before you dig" prevents accidents

Marking service lines beforehand

I'm out here marking the pavement because this area is going to be excavated shortly. These yellow marks are our way of letting contractors know there's a gas line below. Then it won't be disturbed or damaged and possibly cause an accident or interruption of service.

Call 1-800-272-1000

By state law, excavators are required to call that special central toll-free number 72 hours in advance to notify utility companies and municipalities that digging will take place. Member companies with underground facilities in the area are alerted so they can mark their lines prior to start-up of digging in the area.

You can call, too

If you see any excavating activity in your immediate area, you can call the number, too, to be sure that everyone involved has been notified. In all likelihood, the companies already have done it. And if you are planning any digging on your property (other than routine gardening) such as a swimming pool installation or grading, play it safe and call the central number.

By checking you'll have the peace of mind that there is no danger of accident or interruption of your service. And the service is absolutely free of charge, of course.

That's people-to-people service

Working to prevent accidents is just one way we try to help you use energy more wisely. Look for our "Seal-Up and Save" energy conservation messages with your bill or in your local newspapers.
