Class of '45 remembers The Rahway Theatre

by Daniel M. Costigan
Special to the Rahway News-Record

The young men and women who were graduated from high school in June 1945, could not know, at the time, that they stood on the threshold of an exciting new era. In less than four months, the end of World War II would usher in the "atomic age."

Commercial TV had not yet arrived, and movies were therefore the only widely available and inexpensive form of visual entertainment. Theatres thrived as their audiences filled to capacity at every performance. Audiences rose from their seats and sang the National Anthem with patriotic gusto as Old Glory waved proudly on the big screen at the start of each show.

Members of the Rahway High School class of '45 fondly remember those times and some of them watched with sadness as their neighborhood theatre the RAHWAY on Irving Street underwent the inevitable demise. After struggling for several years, the Rahway finally closed its doors in November 1981, and, for a while, faced an uncertain future.

But, a little over a year ago, it was purchased by a non-profit organization, Rahway Landmarks, Inc. for restoration and reopening as the Union County Arts Center. When the Committee for the 40th Reunion of the class of '45 decided to "do a little something for a worthy local cause," the Arts Center project came immediately to mind, according to June (Bathmann) Sylvia, one of the committee members.

The "little something" was a donation of $250 to help further the work of Rahway Landmarks in revitalizing the "old Rahway." Ruth (Garber) Kiger, another committee member, acknowledged that nostalgia certainly had something to do with their modest but heartfelt gesture.

"I especially remember the Saturday serials, like 'Flash Gordon,'" Mrs. Kiger reminisced. "We thought nothing of waiting a half hour in a line that stretched around the corner onto Central and up Main Street," she added.

Bob Bieza's recollections center more on the adventure features, like the high seas "swashbucklers," in which someone like Errol Flynn or Tyrone Power would assure us that right invariably triumphs over might. "Yes," says Bob, "there are many fond memories of those days."

Rahway landmarks has, as its "life blood," several hundred dues-paying members from Rahway and surrounding towns and cities. A representative proportion of them attend public meetings in the partially restored Rahway Theatre lobby the fourth Thursday of each month to hear reports on how the project is progressing.

At the January 23 meeting, Eric Ricketts, a past president of the Rahway Chamber of Commerce and currently Rahway Landmarks' voluntary Funding Coordinator, read the brief letter accompanying the class of '45's $250 donation. The applause that greeted the gesture was no less enthusiastic than that which has greeted the news of much larger unexpected donations.

"It's really the gesture that counts," says Rahway Landmarks President Sandra Sweeney (Rahway class of '65). "Whether it's $5 or $5,000, it's someone telling us that they agree with what we're doing and that's what we like to hear."

Council opposes County budget

McLeod: "Amnesty period" for scofflaws

by Pat DiMaggio
A letter in protest of the Union County Executive Budget proposed by Acting Union County Manager Robert Doherty was drafted by the Rahway City Council at the regular meeting held on Feb. 10.

The letter, based on a resolution by the Linden Council, called for the $149.9 million budget to be reduced "to be responsive to the financial difficulties of the municipalities in Union County."

The proposed budget shows an increase of more than $21 million and has drawn opposition from surrounding communities.

An ordinance allowing the impoundment or immobilization of motor vehicles having outstanding parking and traffic warrants was approved on second reading. Councillman Walter McLeod proposed an "amnesty period" to allow persons a chance of having their car impounded the opportunity to pay their fines.

The ordinance will take effect March 31 to give a 3 week grace period and was approved 6 in favor.

Councillmen Jerry Coleman and George Wagenhoffer opposed, and Councillman Harvey Williams absent.

Approved for first reading were an ordinance restricting the two hour parking restriction on Jefferson Ave. from Inman Ave. to Lake Ave., and an ordinance amending the Revised Ordinances, City of Rahway, establishing a Construction Fee Schedule. In other business the council:

Approved a resolution authorizing the Mayor and City Clerk to enter into an agreement with Winfield Park to provide health services.

Approved a resolution awarding a bid for repaving at the Fire Headquarters to DiIollo Roofing in the amount of $7,350.

Approved a resolution for cancellation of reserve for tax badge deposits per mental trust fund.

Approved a resolution requesting Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders to dredge Little Pond in Rahway River.

Approved a resolution for the 1986 Supplemental Fire Services Program.

Approved a resolution authorizing refund of permit fee to the Rahway Board of Education.

Approved a resolution authorizing refund of permit fee to the Housing Authority of the City of Rahway.

Approved an ordinance to amend an ordinance creating no parking Wednesdays from 8:00 a.m. to 12 Noon on Montgomery St.

Approved an ordinance to amend an ordinance creating no parking Wednesdays from 8:00 a.m. to 12 Noon on Washington St.

Arts center to open with "Shenandoah"

A Landmarks, Inc. spokesman has reported that while volunteer crews work feverishly on weekends to satisfy building code requirements at the Rahway Theatre on Irving Street, a group of teachers and students from all over Union County have been converging on the new Intermediate School several nights a week to rehearse a show. If things go according to plan, these two efforts will come together on Friday, March 14, as the opening event at the "new" Union County Arts Center.

The volunteers at the Rahway Theatre are predominantly members of the nonprofit corporation that acquired the 1400-seat Rahway Theatre a little over a year ago for restoration and reopening as the Union County Arts Center.

The group rehearsing the show is operating under the auspices of the 7,000 member Union County Education Association, the musical version of a Civil War drama, which was a movie starring James Stewart in 1965, and a hit Broadway musical ten years later.

There are few spots in Union County that will not be represented at this event in one way or another. The lead role of "Charlie Anderson" will be played by Charlie Roessler, a Westfield resident. His co-stars, Sabrina Prefaida (as "Annie") and Sue Stewart (as "Jennie") are residents of Scotch Plains and Linden respectively. Additional acting/singing roles will be performed by teachers and students from Kean College, Seton Hall, Rahway High, Westfield Junior High, and Winfield Elementary.

The entire production is under the direction of Marsha Watson of Fairwood, a teacher at the Rahway Middle School, with music teacher Ruby Robertson of Plainfield assisting as Vocal Director. Harold Magee, another Union County music teacher, will conduct a 15 piece orchestra made up entirely of musicians representing Union County's schools. Choreography is by Vicki Tripodi, who teaches math in Summit.

All told, 15 school districts will be involved in the show, which will run a total of four weekend nights in March: the 14th, 15th, 21st and 22nd.

All tickets are $5 and are available by mail or phone from Joan Cobbin, c/o UCEA, 524 South Avenue, Clarendon, N.J. 07014. Checks should be made payable to "UCEA." The phone number to call is 276-8743. Tickets ordered by phone will be available at the box office the night of the performance. Curtain time for all performances will be 8:30 p.m.

The Union County Arts Center (Rahway Theatre) is located at the junction of Irving, Main and Hamilton Streets and Central Avenue in Rahway. There is ample free parking on several surrounding streets and in municipal lots.

February designated as Black History Month

by Pat DiMaggio
On Feb. 10 Mayor Daniel Martin designated

February as Black History Month. A resolution paying recognition to the historical contributions of black Americans was presented by the Mayor to three representative organizations: Mr. John Robertson, of the Rahway Chapter of the N.A.A.C.P.; Mrs. Walter McLeod, National Council of Negro Women; Councillman Jerry Coleman, accepting for the Study of Afro American Life and History.

The resolution called attention to the "importance of studying the accomplishments of different racial, ethnic, minority and age groups that comprise the Rahway community. The appreciation and study of Black History affords all Americans the opportunity to understand and appreciate the uniqueness and common heritage of the diverse people of different races, national origins and creeds that work together to make America great."

Rahway Hospital recently awarded the following area junior volunteers for 100 or more hours of service: Clark residents Linda Cosmas, Karen Ebert, Debra Schenmann, George Allen, Christa Candon, Karen Dashevsky, Denise Favor, Sherry Frynt, and Carol Shive.

Residents of Rahway awarded were: Susan Palmucci, Patricia Prezioso, Donna Abrants, Robin DiAnno, Susan Farrar, Carolyn Komar, Laura Barrowski, Caroline Dunning, Michelle Banasak, Maria Chios, Chasman David, Kim Faughnan, Srihari

Gopal, Laura Guidi, Michelle Harris, Joseph Karch, Melinda Lamb, Jacki Linberry, Judy Madis, Brenda Martin, David Martinez, and Theresa Shupp.

Susan Haber of Linden was the top winner for her 800 hours of service since she began volunteering two years ago.

Junior volunteers give invaluable service to the hospital performing jobs such as delivering flowers, making beds, running errands, helping to feed patients, and doing office work. Some junior volunteers are at the hospital at 6 p.m. on week ends to deliver newspapers.

A VALUABLE VOLUNTEER... Susan Haber of Linden was the top award winner for over 800 hours of service since she began volunteering at Rahway Hospital two years ago. She usually works at the information desk.

The message left behind

Dear Editor,

We are still reeling from the shock of the "challenge" of the unbelievable became believable. It took the nation 24 hours for the shock to wear off and reality to set in. It wasn't even possible that in front of millions of viewers a catastrophe of such devastating proportions could take place.

The seven heroes, Christa, Ron, John, Mike, El Gier and Frank were chosen for intelligence, courage, fortitude and scientific knowledge for this remarkable journey into space.

President Reagan likened their struggle to the pioneers who so gallantly went forward to found a new frontier on earth.

Were the astronauts aware of any danger seconds after take off? Can anyone's eyes were not in the split second of the 2nd second of the explosion, the first warning of upheaval, if any, is lost to oblivion.

The nation mourned, people bowed close together. Their vulnerability to the reality of the event in front of their very eyes caused the public to stop and reevaluate. Left to ponder it all, and in the beliefness of it all, no comfort in one another. It wasn't fair, was the general feeling. That our seven heroes were gone in a split second and we are left to find answers. Answers to the question: Why? Why? Why?

President Reagan took special effort to comfort the nation and the astronauts' families in his speech at Houston, Texas. We saw how humane and caring the President and First Lady, Nancy were.

We all felt a sense of family as President Reagan spoke. He cared and loved his nation, his people, and most of all he cared for the astronauts who were the seven heroes as he called each by first name in his eulogy.

Christa said, "Reach for the Stars." If we look up to the stars, we perhaps could see the heroes of the challenge left as a legacy. We are all heroes and recipients of that legacy. For every nationality, race and creed can look up to the stars, and know we all together live on earth as one. We all have the same view when we look up to the sky. This may be the message the seven left us. Then, they will not have died in vain, but that the precious legacy they left behind will live on, and families here on earth.

The beloved seven must be up in heaven and we thank them and God bless them.

U.S. Senator for NJ

Getting down to business

Sen. Frank R. Lautenberg, D-N.J., was appointed on Feb. 7 to the House Senate Conference Committee that will draft the final Superfund Reauthorization bill.

Other conferees drafting the non-tax titles of the bill are: Sens. Robert Stafford, R-Vermont, Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, John Chafee, R-R.I., Peter Domenici, R-N.M., Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., George Mitchell, D-Maine, Alan Simpson, R-Wyom., Max Baucus, D-Mont., and Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H.

Conferees drafting the tax provisions are: Sens. Robert Dole, R-Kansas, Russell Long, D-La., William Roth, R-Del., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas.

"I'm very pleased that conferees have finally been appointed and we can get to work," Lautenberg said. "Reauthorization of the Superfund program is long overdue, and the program is about to be shutdown. As long as Superfund money is a top priority here on the Hill and within the administration."

Lautenberg is the author of amendments to establish a community right-to-know program. This would require companies handling certain chemicals to provide people in surrounding communities, safety officials and EPA with inventories of chemicals stored, produced or handled at facilities. PHOTO ALBUM

Scientists and inventors of the 18th and 19th centuries drew heavily upon Latin and Greek words to fashion new words to describe the products of their creation. The evolution of the photograph is an excellent example of the scientific community's penchant for creating neologisms, i.e., newly coined words, phrases or expressions. Photograph combines two Greek elements, phos, light, meaning light and grapho, meaning drawing or writing.

Stuart Flexner, in his book, Listening to America, has provided some excellent detective work about who coined the words associated with photography and how the inventors might have been influenced in their creation of these words. According to Flexner, Englishman Sir John Herschel first introduced the words photography and photograph in a paper entitled "Notes on the Art of Photography," which he read before the Royal Society on March 14, 1839. On the backs of two of the 23 photographs presented, he wrote "photographed February 17, 1839."

Herschel may have been influenced by William Talbot's Lithium, another photographic pioneer, who introduced the word photogenic in his own paper, which was read before the Royal Society in January 1829. Photogenic may also have been influenced by photogen, from the Greek phos - sun + gennao - writing, which was coined by a French scientist, Joseph Nicéphore, to describe his photographic process developed in 1824. By 1862, photograph was shortened to photo.

There you have an etymological snapshot of the development of photography. We hope you got the picture.

Rahway Hospital to hold sibling class

If your family is expecting a baby and you want to prepare your other children for the event, then Rahway Hospital's Sibling Preparation Class can help. Children ages 3-9 whose mothers are expecting are invited to attend the class on Saturday, March 15 from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m.

The class was designed to help children cope with the many questions and fears they have about the birth of a new baby. It consists of a tour of the maternity unit and the nursery, practical hints on how to hold a baby and change a diaper, and gifts for both the new baby and older sibling. Punch and cookies will be served.

The fee for the course is $10 per family and advance registration is required. Call the Maternity Unit at Rahway Hospital, 499-6090, between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. for further information.

NJEA REPORT ON EDUCATION For Christa

by Donna Giordano, president
New Jersey Education Assn.

Christa McAuliffe was a vibrant person who looked to the future. I never met Christa. But anyone who ever saw a picture of her, who saw her on TV, or who read and thought about her explains how that she was someone who had her eye on the future.

You could tell she had a certain fervor about her. Of course, anyone who would apply for a mission like the Space Shuttle has to have courage, intensity, and had it in great supply.

Well before the fateful flight of the Space Shuttle, Christa McAuliffe had become a symbol to the nation. As educators, we had a special pride in her accomplishment, not for the other reason, perhaps even more important than the one she planned to teach. She taught us to approach life with enthusiasm and optimism just as all good teachers do, she taught us to extend our knowledge ever outward and transmitting what we have learned on to the next generation.

About 11,000 teachers from throughout the nation applied to fly on the Space Shuttle. Many educators applied and one of the potentially dangerous job, all with the knowledge that death was a possibility. They shared the common recognition that three astronauts were to die in a crash landing in 1977, although the Space Shuttle was not yet in the air, the applicants lived with the knowledge as if with the death can come at any time. The odds were in proportion to the odds of the American.

Christa made them - and Christa - different was that they were willing to take the risk in the pursuit of learning and in the spirit of adventure. They were, in this sense, no different from Columbus or any other great adventurer. They were sailing into uncharted territory, their aim was to go where no one else had.

Donna Giordano, a teacher of English in Wayne Twp., in the elected field of 11,000 teachers, is a member of the New Jersey Education Assn.

Out-of-state disposal is "costly and unnecessary"

Union County Freeholder James J. Fulcomer of Rahway announced his strong opposition to a multi-million dollar proposal by the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to send Union County garbage out-of-state, charging that it would cause the garbage disposal cost to increase by 50 to 100 percent.

Postmaster emphasizes winter hazards

Postmaster Joseph P. Rufo is emphasizing the danger of winter hazards that impede mail delivery, according to Postmaster Rufo, are ice and snow on streets. The cost of winter accidents tally high in human suffering. The postmaster stated that when walking and driving hazards are reduced or eliminated, the safety of all members of the community, as well as the letter carriers is greatly improved. He expressed great appreciation for the cooperation of the mail carriers in reducing winter safety hazards.

Historical society to host author

Jean Rae Turner will be guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Clark Historical Society at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, February 26, at the Clark Public Library, 303 Westfield Ave.

Mrs. Turner will give a slide illustrated talk on "Elizabethtown and Union County," which is also the title of the book she co-authored with Charles Aquilina and Richard J. Koles.

A former history teacher on both the high school and college levels, Mrs. Turner subsequently was employed as a reporter by five New Jersey newspapers and was in the public information office at Keas College of New Jersey, Union. She presently is associated with New Jersey Newspapers.

She also wrote "Along the Upper Road, the History of Hillside, N.J.," and she currently is writing a weekly historical column, "Once Upon a Time," for the "Citizen."

ARMDI chapter to discuss goals

Two officers of the suburban chapter of the American Red Magen David for Israel will discuss the group's work and aims at a breakfast meeting Sunday, Feb. 23, at Temple Beth Or.

The speakers, William Waxman, treasurer, and Gladys Helfgott, secretary, are sponsored by the Men's Club of the temple. The breakfast begins at 9:30 a.m.

ARMDI supports the medical ambulance service that functions like the country's Red Cross in peace and war, though it is not an affiliate of the International Red Cross.

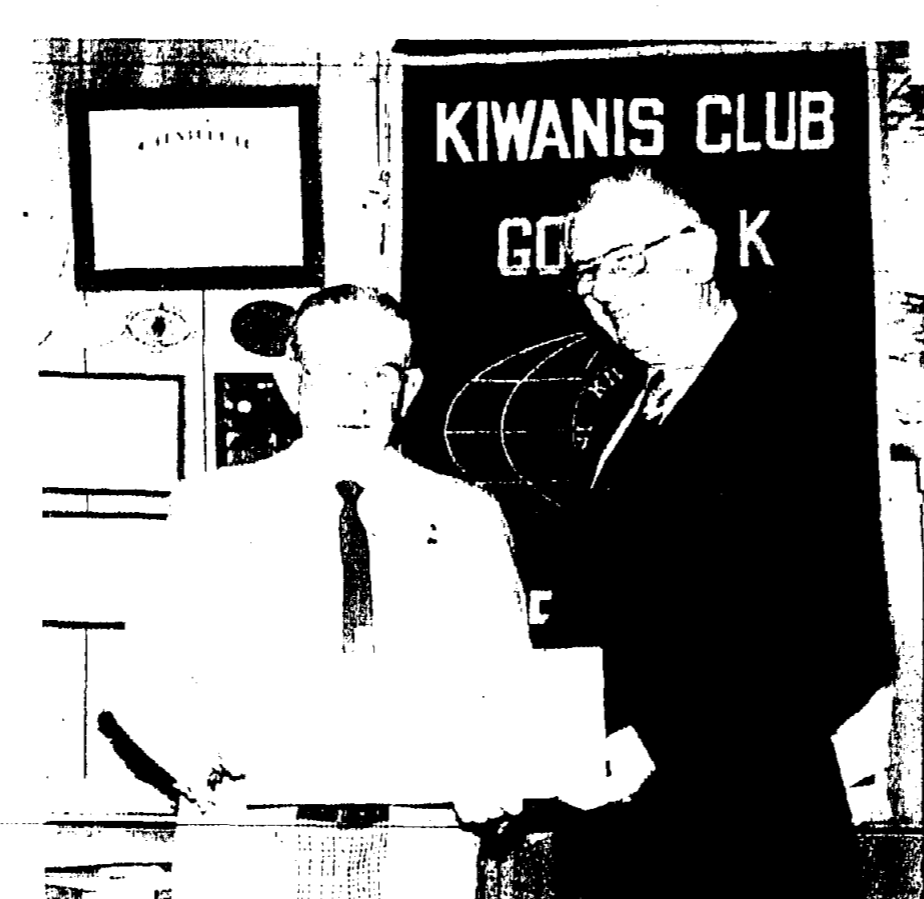

MIA, founded in a dilapidated hut in Tel Aviv in 1930 with one small truck converted into an ambulance, has grown into a public medical field service with over 640 vehicles, including 570 ambulances, 30 mobile intensive care unit vehicles, 21 mobile field first aid units for mass disasters and 22 bloodmobiles.

Following the breakfast session, and starting at 12 noon, Men's Club's office will hold its raffle drawing under the supervision of Dr. Richard Olin, vice president for ways and means.

Prizes for the winning tickets include a $1,500 vacation trip, a 19-inch color television and a VCR.

Albert Reich, Men's Club president, will preside at the breakfast meeting.

BOULDER IN THE SUN SETS WINTER ON FIRE... Pledging his love before leaving for war, Moses Armstrong Jackson (Michael Smith Gurnea) enforces Clara Mason (Gwendolyn Hicks-Spencer) he will return for her in Newark Symphony Hall's exclusive production of "Boulder in the Sun." The drama, written and directed by Newark playwright Wayne Slippy, is a tale of young people in love and the decisions which captivate everyday people into the realm of heroes. The production comes to life Thursdays through Saturdays, 10 P. M., with a special matinee Saturdays at 3 P. M., now through March 1. Ticket information may be obtained by calling the Newark Symphony Hall box office at 201-643-4550.

Revised school program gives students futuristic view

Rahway Intermediate School students in the eighth grade are engaged in a new social studies program called "Introduction to the Social Sciences."

In Rahway, as in many communities, the elementary social studies program is built upon a progression of learning which takes the child from self through family, neighborhood, community, state, nation, and finally the world. Following the spiral of learning, Rahway students have an opportunity to explore new ideas in the eighth grade.

The purpose of this new program of studies is to introduce students to the many facets of what is commonly called "social sciences." The course begins with an introduction to psychology where students learn about themselves and how the mind works. Next, they move on to sociology where they learn about the concepts of groups and social organizations. They continue through the year exploring the remaining disciplines which include anthropology, geography, history, economics, and political science.

This course is designed not only to meet the needs of young adolescents to understand themselves and their place in the world, but also to bridge the elementary experience to the more specialized studies at the high school level.

In addition to an examination of the seven social sciences, the students study specific skills to improve their reading, study, research, and writing skills.

The final unit in the course provides the opportunity for the student to look at the future in a more scientific manner. They are expected to employ in this unit the knowledge and skills acquired throughout the year.

The students in these classes have been engaged in enthusiastic discussions as they learn about the many aspects of social sciences. They are expected to verify what they have learned by experimenting, analyzing, and inventing.

This revision in social studies in the Rahway Public School is another step in the long range plan for improvement of social studies education.
