Rahway Hospital nurse saves life with CPR

Audrey Watkins of Rahway, a registered nurse at Rahway Hospital, recently saved the life of a 12-year-old girl at a picnic she was attending, using the cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) skills she learned at a recertification course taught at the hospital.

"Ms. Watkins is to be praised for her efforts," said Deborah Wenson, RN, Nurse Educator and CPR instructor. "She responded in the field, unassisted and without the usual resources she would have had at the hospital," she said.

CPR courses are taught at the hospital for employees as well as community members. "The community CPR program at Rahway Hospital has become quite popular. More and more people are interested in learning how to save lives," Mrs. Wenson said.

According to Mrs. Wenson, the American Heart Association, after performing research, recently updated its standards, and now CPR is easier to learn.

If interested in taking a CPR course, call the hospital's Nursing Education Office at 381-4200, ext. 2270.

Essex Street site of racial confrontations

A group of Essex Street residents appeared before the Rahway City Council to complain of racist remarks from another neighbor and to ask help in alleviating the problem.

One resident, as spokesperson for the group, said that racist slurs and obscenities were directed at her and her children and other residents by one neighbor, and that the problem had been going on for over six years. She said police had been called on numerous occasions and complaints had been filed, but the problem continues.

First Ward Councilman Jerry Coleman said that he met with residents on two occasions and on inspecting the situation, was confronted with remarks by the individual. Coleman said Essex Street residents have an interest in their community, they agreed to be taxed for street repairs to improve their neighborhood, and that except for this one neighbor, they were "a cohesive community."

After the regular meeting, the council went into executive session to discuss possible actions.

Councilman Coleman said the city attorney would look into possible legislation to prohibit obscene language by any individual.

Councilman Coleman also suggested counseling for the neighbor and promised subsequent meetings in the area.

"By bringing this problem to the attention of our elected officials it allows us to take action in stemming the activity in the neighborhood," said Coleman.

The council also approved a recommendation from the Mayor to nominate Councilman Harvey Williams and Business Administrator Joseph Hartnett to serve on the Union County Utilities Authority.

In other business the council: — Approved a bond ordinance to authorize the making of the 1986 Road and Street Improvement Program and the acquisition of equipment, to appropriate the sum of $380,000 and to authorize the issuance of bonds to finance such appropriations.

— Approved a bond ordinance authorizing the reconstruction of East

Milton Ave., to appropriate $70,000 and to authorize the issuance of bonds to finance such appropriations.

— Approved an ordinance restricting two hour parking on Upton Place and Lufberry St., and restricting parking on Paterson St., Montgomery St., Bond St. and Upton Place between Rutherford and Paterson Streets.

— Approved an ordinance restricting parking on the south side of Washington St. between the intersection of Rutherford and Paterson Streets.

— Approved an ordinance creating a one-way street of Brady Court to travel northbound from the intersection of Washington St. to the intersection of Grand Ave.

— Approved an ordinance prohibiting parking on Witherspoon St. on Wednesdays between 8 a.m. and noon.

Purolator will move to Edison site

Plans to relocate the company's headquarters offices from Rahway to nearby Edison have been announced by Purolator Products, Inc.

David R. Paridy, president, explains that the planned move is another step in strengthening the position of Purolator Products as a leader in the manufacture and national marketing of automotive filter products.

The relocation will follow the firm's establishment earlier this year of a new Engineering and Research & Development facility as a complement to its Fayetteville, North Carolina, manufacturing operation.

Purolator Courier Corporation, the parent company of Purolator Products, approved the capitalization plan for the relocation at its Board of Directors meeting in late June.

The move will be into a modern office structure in the Metroplex Corporate Center in Edison. The company has signed a 10-year lease involving approximately $6 million. The plan calls for significant tailoring of the facility to meet Purolator Products' business requirements.

Thomas F. Plocnik, Senior Vice President and General Manager of the company, states that the redesign and occupancy of the new headquarters facilities are scheduled for completion by year-end and represent a continuing commitment by Purolator Courier to the modernization and strengthening of the company's Automotive Group which also includes Stant, Inc.)

Life in the last lane

While all you people have been sweating for the past two weeks, I've been vacationing in the woods. With no trees in the back yard, I've had to go to Florida, or a cruise, or even two weeks down at the Jersey shore. Taking out, sleeping in. This year my husband suggested renting a cabin on Vermont. Just he and I, our two sons and my 79 year old crocheting father.

When the lady said we would be in the woods, she meant in the woods. The sun never touched our faces. We were so far under the trees we had to light our way. We had to walk all the way down to the end of the dirt road to see the sky was blue. But I shouldn't complain, at least we had light.

WHICH TITLE FOR MARRIAGE?

When you buy a new home, you'll have to decide what form of ownership you'll want.

The most common way for husbands and wives to own property by joint ownership, either in the form of joint tenancy with the right of survivorship or tenancy by the entirety.

Under either form, if one spouse dies, the other joint owner becomes sole owner of the property. This happens automatically, bypassing probate, avoiding delays and usually resulting in the cost of getting the estate.

The two kinds of joint ownership differ in some respects, and many states don't recognize tenancy by the entirety. You may want to have your lawyer's advice before you take title. He will probably point out some reasons why, such as one spouse not being able to dispose of the property, but also reasons that are in the joint owner's interest. If you live in a community property state, state law will affect the form of property ownership you use.

Rahway Hospital offers CPR training

In September, Rahway Hospital will be offering two community CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) courses: one for those who would like to receive certification in basic life support, and another for those who are already certified but who would like to train to become CPR instructors.

The general CPR course will be held Mondays and Wednesdays, September 15, 17, 22, and 24 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the hospital's 2E classroom. All four classes must be attended for participants to receive certification. There is a fee of $25 for adults and $15 for students.

The CPR course for becoming certified as an instructor will be held Thursdays, September 11, 18, 25, and October 2 from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the hospital's 2E classroom. Participants must have a current basic life support card. All four classes must be attended to receive certification as a CPR instructor. The fee for this course is $40.

Polls show "false beliefs" connected with colon cancer

Two recent Gallup surveys show that most Americans aged 40 and over don't know that New Jersey's leading form of cancer can be cured if detected and treated early.

Results of the 1986 polls, conducted for the American Cancer Society, conclude that 53 percent of those surveyed have little faith that anything can be done to cure colorectal cancer. In addition, 55 percent of the respondents said they did not know that men and women are equally likely to get it.

This year, 5,500 new cases of colorectal cancer will be diagnosed in New Jersey, an increase of 100 cases over last year. Colorectal is New Jersey's leading form of cancer, followed by cancers of the lung and breast. Unlike lung cancer, however, colorectal has an extremely high cure rate if detected and treated in an early, localized stage. The five-year survival rate is 90 percent for colon cancer and 80 percent for rectal cancer. And even when the cancer is advanced, prospects may still be good if proper surgery is done.

Unfortunately, the Gallup polls revealed that most Americans 40 and over pay little attention to these organs and have them checked infrequently by their physicians. Most people have the false notion that the disease is usually found in an advanced stage when survival chances are slim. Many also erroneously regard a permanent colostomy as a normal result of colon and rectum cancer. On the other hand, those surveyed were receptive to accurate information about the disease and expressed a willingness to practice early detection procedures.

Since a cancer-related health checkup is the first line of defense against cancer, the ACS recommends the following guidelines for men and women without symptoms of colorectal cancer.

- If you are over 50, you should have a stool blood test once a year.
- You should also have a Proctosigmoidoscopy, or "procto" exam every three to five years. (New, more flexible and comfortable scopes are currently being used.)
- If you are over 40, you should have a digital rectal examination once a year.
- If you have a possible symptom such as abnormal bleeding, call your physician immediately.

The New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society offers free literature published both in English and Spanish. For more information, call or write your local Unit of the American Cancer Society and ask for "Facts on Colorectal Cancer." "Colorectal Cancer: Go for Early Detection," and "Your Colorectal Health Check." There is a Unit in each of New Jersey's 21 counties. They're listed in the white pages under American Cancer Society.

Editor's note: The Gallup surveys were taken for the ACS in early 1986. They deal with public attitudes toward colorectal cancer and colorectal cancer tests.

One survey was based on telephone interviews with 1,718 respondents; the other survey was based on telephone interviews with a nationwide sample of 807 respondents.

Both of the surveys were conducted with men and women who are 40 years old and older.
