City newsrack ordinance to get public hearing

by Pat DiMaggio
An ordinance providing for the regulation of the use and maintenance of newsracks was approved for first reading by the Rahway City Council on August 11. A public hearing will be held on Sept. 8.

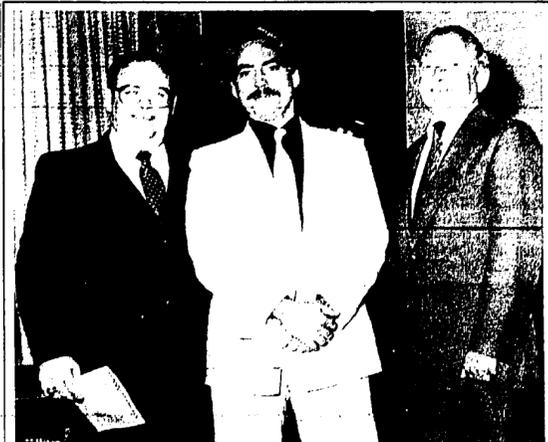

"I've been looking around the City of Rahway and I've seen a proliferation of newsracks. It's getting to be a nuisance and an eyesore," said Councilman Max Sheld in commending the actions taken by the council.

The ordinance provides that newspaper vending machines may be maintained in Rahway subject to the following: No person, firm or corporation may install, use or maintain any newsrack which projects in to or over any street; a newsrack may not block any sidewalk or right of way to endanger the safety of persons, property, public utility purposes, public transportation purposes or government use. The newsrack must not interfere with pedestrian or vehicular traffic.

Newsracks in the city must comply with the following standards: they shall not exceed 5 feet in height, 30 inches in width or 2 feet in depth; they shall only be placed near a curb or adjacent to the wall of a building; they shall not be chained, bolted or otherwise attached to any property that is not owned by the owner of the newsrack; they may be chained or attached to one another, however, no more than 3 newsracks may be joined together; no newsrack shall be placed or maintained on a sidewalk opposite another newsrack.

Any person or corporation maintaining a newsrack shall register his name, address, phone number and location of the newsrack and must pay an annual fee of $25 each. Violations carry a fine of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 or imprisonment for a period of not more than 90 days. This ordinance will take effect on Jan. 1, 1987.

Fulcomer: Resource recovery negotiations authorized for two N.J. firms

Union County Freeholder James J. Fulcomer, the freeholder liaison to the Union County Solid Waste Advisory Council, announced this week that the Board of Chosen Freeholders has authorized preliminary simultaneous negotiations with Research Cottrell of Somerville, N.J. and Ogden Martin Systems of Paramus, N.J. to develop and operate the Union County Resource Recovery Facility in Rahway. The Board, in a resolution sponsored by Freeholder Fulcomer, narrowed its choices for negotiations from a field of four competing vendors. The Rahway freeholder reported that the two vendors eliminated from this stage of the selection process were Foster Wheeler of Livingston, N.J. and Blount of Alabama. Only if negotiations fail with the two top vendors, will negotiations be held with Foster Wheeler or Blount.

"This is an important decision in the progress of our selection process for a vendor. Not only are we adhering to our schedule to complete the facility by 1990, but with a little luck and much hard work negotiations for a vendor may be completed by December. First, a month ahead of schedule," said Freeholder Fulcomer.

Freeholder Fulcomer said that the major factor in making Ogden Martin and Research Cottrell the top choices is the fact that the life cycle (LCC) costs for their proposals were less costly to the taxpayers. For public ownership, for example, he said that the LCC over the first twenty years are estimated as follows: Research Cottrell, $88,675,000; Odgen, $97,755,000; Foster Wheeler, $127,900,000; and Blount, $134,867,000.

Based on an economic analysis by Drexel Burnham Lambert, the freeholders' financial advisor, based on a desire to give the public greater power over environmental concerns, and based on a desire to have greater public bargaining power over negotiations when the contract is renewed in twenty years, Freeholder Fulcomer said that the freeholders choose public ownership over private ownership of the facility.

The freeholders also selected three Rahway residents to serve on the newly created nine member County Utilities Authority which will oversee the development and operation of the facility. The newly appointed Rahway residents are Freeholder Fulcomer, the freeholder representative; Rahway Business Administrator Joseph M. Hartnett and Councilman Harvey Williams, the City of Rahway representatives.

Members chosen to regulate Utilities Authority for resource recovery facility

by Pat DiMaggio
Members of the Utilities Authority, formed to regulate Rahway's planned Resource Recovery Facility, were named at the Union County Freeholders meeting last week in Elizabeth.

Rahway Councilmen James Cadigan and Max Sheld and Business Administrator Joseph Hartnett attended the meeting and found that Fourth Ward Councilman Harvey Williams and Hartnett, host community representatives, were originally slated to fill the shortest terms on the authority.

"When we got the agenda for the evening we found that the Rahway contingent were being given the shortest terms," explained Sheld. Williams and Hartnett's terms were to expire on Feb. 1, 1988.

Sheld said he spoke at length and informed the Freeholders that unless the Rahway representatives received the longest terms, Rahway might change its mind about hosting the facility.

"I reminded the Freeholders that the Memorandum of Understanding between the county and Rahway provides that we agreed to host resource recovery only if a satisfactory agreement is signed," said Sheld.

After discussion by the freeholders a vote was taken and the resolution was amended giving Williams and Hartnett the longest terms, five years.

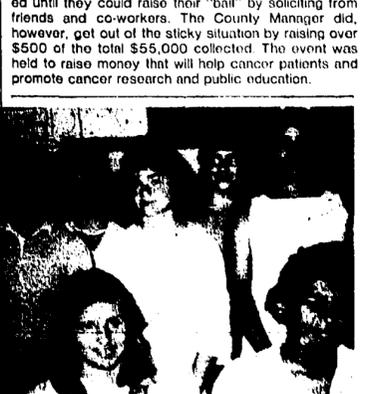

Freeholder James Fulcomer, also a Rahway councilman, was given a one year term.

Other members chosen were Frank Capone and Louis Santagata, four year terms; Richard Hatfield and John E. Buecheler, three year terms; Banasiak and MacRitchie two year terms. Joseph Hartnett was designated as chairman of the authority.

Although not included in the budget at present, a proposal was approved to pay members of the authority $4,000 with the chairman to receive $5,000.

COUNTY MANAGER 'JAILED' FOR CHARITY ... Donald F. Anderson, Union County Manager, was put in "jail" at the recent Jail-A-Thon, held at the Union County Courthouse, for the benefit of the American Cancer Society. Anderson was one of many "arrested" and jailed until they could raise their "bail" by soliciting from friends and co-workers. The County Manager did, however, get out of the sticky situation by raising over $500 of the total $55,000 collected. The event was held to raise money that will help cancer patients and promote cancer research and public education.

Residents celebrate birthdays at capacity-filled Geriatrics Center

by Pat DiMaggio
The Rahway Geriatrics Center, Inc. is filled to its 120 bed capacity with a continuous waiting list. As of May, 24 percent were private nursing residents, 74 percent Medicaid and 2 percent Medicare.

A bus is being used for day trips for residents and accommodates both ambulatory and wheelchair-bound participants who enjoy short trips around the City. And a special friend to all, Parker the dog, is still in residence.

Plans are underway to move the beauty parlor from its present first floor location to the floor above. City Council liaison Max

Sheld said this would give easier access to residents in wheelchairs and allow for greater security monitoring. "Nothing seems to work such magic for many of the elderly women, that when they have a problem they get their hair done. It's like a magic potion," said Sheld.

Birthdays for the months of June, July and August were celebrated by residents at the Rahway Geriatrics Center. They include the following: Mary Smith Thomas, June 23, 1898; Marie Bonhardt, June 25, 1899; Julia Pacheco, June 13, 1920; Marjorie Freeman, June 30, 1901; Laura Kaplan, June 10, 1894; Effie Pittius, June 28, 1919; Irma Williams, June 11, 1899; Elizabeth Clapp, June 13, 1895; Margaret Dursee, June 24, 1903; Henry Gross, June 11, 1896; Pauline Trzyna, June 28, 1896; Sophie Molnar, June 17, 1895; Mary Trzyna, June 24, 1893; and Frieda Ziesemer, June 18, 1911.

July celebrants were Ida Graunin, July 5, 1907; Rose Argenteira, July 11, 1908; Mary Michulsyn, July 16, 1890; and Mary Poulsen, July 31, 1907. Those having a birthday in August include: Dorothy Morris, August 25, 1915; Helen Ryan, August 22, 1904; Rossina Zirella, August 21, 1904; John Yoder, August 19, 1895; Miriam Kieffer, August 31, 1899; Caroline Coley, August 30, 1900; George Weber, August 31, 1897; and Mable Coll, August 11, 1896.

Water problems addressed

There is a crisis developing that threatens the existence of our existing water. While comparisons are being made between the natural resource crisis and the energy crisis of a decade ago, there is one major difference. It is possible to reduce our dependence on fuel by turning down the thermostat and cutting down car trips. But it is impossible to reduce our personal dependence on water. We must confront the state's tremendous water problems. We have no natural water. We have overused our water. We have allowed our water delivery systems to decay and collapse.

We can't agree on the necessary funding to rebuild and expand our water systems, and we have many projects unfinished.

We are at war with one another over water (state by state). We have battles of water saving pollution problems. Whether the water is undrinkable or unsafe because it is polluted, or whether it is not available in quantities needed, the end result is the same.

It takes bringing people with expertise and wisdom together, in a series of symposiums across the tri-state to discuss our water problems.

Government moves slowly, we need people who know how. Political muscle is bound.

Would that I was a local legislator. I'd show them how.

FLY IN THE OINTMENT

The fly in the ointment atom is a true survivor. In fact, it first appeared in the Old Testament Book of Ecclesiastes (10:1), "dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savor, so doth a little folly that is in reputation for wisdom and honor."

This pungent biblical passage confirms the widely known fact that a tiny defect (such as a dead fly) can spoil something of great value. The ointment atom presently conveys the sense that there is something wrong somewhere or that there is a defect that might come to light in connection with something that looks "too good."

No one knows for certain when this discriminating colloquialism was first uttered. Perhaps, it was born the first time a buyer returned a jar of ointment. But it must have created quite a stink.

Rinaldo: Medicaid benefits to illegal aliens would add $2.2 billion to nation's health care costs

Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo, R-N.J., announced today that he will introduce legislation that would prohibit Medicaid benefits to illegal aliens.

The New Jersey right-to-life committee, which has introduced legislation in the House making unauthorized aliens ineligible for Medicaid, said the bill estimates that $2.2 billion in federal Medicaid benefits would be saved annually.

The bill, H.R. 1000, would prohibit the federal government from paying for Medicaid benefits for unauthorized aliens. It also would prohibit the federal government from paying for Medicaid benefits for unauthorized aliens who are not in the United States.

Rinaldo said the bill would save $2.2 billion in federal Medicaid benefits annually. He said the bill would also save $1.2 billion in state Medicaid benefits annually.

The bill would also prohibit the federal government from paying for Medicaid benefits for unauthorized aliens who are not in the United States.

Medicaid benefits to illegal aliens would add $2.2 billion to nation's health care costs return from the August recess.

The amendment has strong bipartisan support and has been endorsed by the Reagan Administration.

"They share my concern that it would be inappropriate to provide medical services to individuals who have entered the country illegally, and that it would create an enormous drain on the federal treasury at a time when Congress is working to reduce the budget deficit," Rinaldo said.

"The administration agrees that we cannot ask our citizens to accept $46 in essential programs and services and then give billions of dollars of free medical assistance to individuals who have no right to be in the country and should be deported."

While Charles P. Sifton of the U.S. District court for the Eastern District of New York handed down the ruling on a suit brought by nine non-legal permanent residents, he said that the 1986 Medicaid law on "sanctity" of express, resting, and alien disability, and that federal authorities had acted improperly in not legalizing permanent residents.

While Judge Sifton's ruling applies only to New York State, Rinaldo said it would spread to other states before Congress is in session.

Rinaldo said he expects to obtain increased federal Medicaid assistance.

Veterans' coverage should be reviewed

The Veterans Administration is once again warning veterans of the Second World War not to be misled by advertisements for a nonexistent special life insurance dividend. There is no law in force that provides for a dividend, which has been planned by the Veterans Administration for more than 40 years.

Since 1948, this "phantom" dividend has generated more than a billion inquiries of the VA. The application forms for the claim are often poorly reproduced and are sometimes directed to a nonexistent Captain Prosser at the VA Insurance Center in Philadelphia. The forms claim that dividends are available for the VA insurance policy in force. They also state that Congress has recently passed a law authorizing the VA to pay these benefits. There is no such law.

In 1950, the VA made a one-time dividend payable to veterans of World War II called the 1948 Special Dividend. Over $3 billion was paid to over 16 million veterans.

The cost of processing these false claims has placed a financial burden on the VA. Before 1970, the VA was required to conduct a search on the validity of each claim. However, to counteract the misleading publicity about this dividend, the VA recently passed a law that provided that no claim will be processed by the VA, unless the claim is received within 6 years after the declaration of a dividend. Currently, the VA will return any application form for this bogus dividend to the claimant with a copy of the law.

However, the volume of the mail received on this matter makes even this limited response an expensive endeavor.

The VA does operate a number of valid life insurance programs. Dividends are paid to veterans who have continued their life insurance in force. Dividends on these policies are usually paid on an annual basis and are normally distributed on the anniversary date of the policy, in an amount to be added to the death benefit.

The federal government has been administering life insurance programs for veterans with the establishment of the War Relocation Authority in 1942. Today there are two major insurance programs administered by the VA: Servicemen's Group Life Insurance and Veterans' Group Life Insurance.

AFL-CIO will collect funds locally, make donations from local treasurers, and to forward all donations to the state office to be mailed and then presented to the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

Committee releases Swedish Festival bill

The Assembly's State Government Committee has released a bill sponsored by Assemblyman Robert D. Franks, who represents Clark in the General Assembly, that would authorize the creation of a commission to plan, promote and celebrate the 150th anniversary of the settlement of the Swedish-Americans in the Newark area.

The bill, A 2081, would establish the Bicentennial Commemorative Commission in the Department of State. The commission would be comprised of 29 members, including both private and public sector.

An appropriation of $50,000 is included in the bill for the commission to plan the celebration.

In 1678, Swedes and Finns built Fort Elizabet and a settlement near present-day Salem, Franks said.

"From these Delaware Valley beginnings, and continuing anglications, emerged Scandinavian America in New Jersey, an ethnic community known for self-sufficiency, adaptability and citizenship," Franks added.

One of the main projects in the legislation is the creation of a replicated 17th century Swedish colonial village in South Jersey.

Other projects included in the 1988 celebration are publications, museum exhibits, ethnic heritage and musical performances.

The committee released the bill with a vote of 5 to 0.

RAY'S ROUND By Ray Hoagland

Rutgers University has named Kevin MacConnell as its Director of Sports Media Relations. Bob Smith will remain the University's Sports Information Director.

Attendance at college basketball games fell last season for the first time in 10 years, according to the NCAA Statistics Service. Attendance at 1,265 colleges and universities was 31,644,786, down 411,887, or 1.28 percent, from the previous year. The statistics service speculated that a larger number of games on television and a poor economy in some parts of the country may be responsible for the decline. The service said the decline would have been greater, but the Division I tournament and games at neutral sites set records.

Tom McLaughlin, who has coached the Union County College Women's Soccer Team for the past two seasons, has been named to the national coaching staff of the school's men's soccer coach.

McLaughlin replaces Tom Durkin, now the soccer coach at Newark Rutgers. McLaughlin had a 12-1 record with the women's team.

LOOK AT THE NEIGHBORHOOD

One of the most important things you should do before you buy a house is take a close look at the neighborhood. That's what makes location so important in any house-buying decision. No matter how attractive the house may be, the neighborhood location is of primary importance from an investment point of view.

Look at the surrounding houses to see if they are well maintained. If there are large tracts of vacant land nearby, ask your Realtor to check with the local planning commission to find out what their future use may be. If you're buying a house in an attractive residential neighborhood, an commercial development may have an impact on property values.

If you have children of school age, your Realtor can also help by providing information about the school system. Local Realtors are usually aware of all local conditions that will affect homeowners in the market area. This is just one of many professional services your Realtor can provide.

Insurance agents issue warning on seat belts

With the price of gas down, people are increasingly taking to New Jersey's roads, according to the Independent Insurance Agents of New Jersey (IIANJ), which issued a warning on the need to maintain enforcement of New Jersey's mandatory seat belt law.

The IIANJ reports buckling up increases the chances of surviving an accident by 60%. Often forgotten when seat belts are at hand, the IIANJ points to statistics finding most fatalities occur at low speeds, close to home.

"New Jersey's mandatory seat belt law was enacted to save lives," Paul Iovino, president of the IIANJ's

Union chapter, "Even the best drivers need seat belts, which remain the best defense we have against the drunk driver."

Who needs seatbelts, according to New Jersey law? "All front seat occupants must be secured."

"Children under 18 months of age must be buckled into a federally approved car seat."

"All children under five must also be in an approved car seat if they sit in the front or be secured by a seat belt in the rear."

"If the number of children under five exceeds the number of safety belts, children who are not restrained must ride in the rear seat."

Depression in children — what parents should know

By Paul Kennedy, M.D.
Dr. Kennedy, a resident of Montclair, is a child psychiatrist and medical director of the child and adolescent unit of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey Community Mental Health Center at Newark.

Most people think of childhood as being a worry-free, carefree, happy time of life. Until recently it was believed that children could not suffer from depression in the same way as adults. Today we know that children can be depressed and if the illness is not recognized and treated, the consequences can be very serious indeed. Untreated depression can lead to suicide.

Symptoms reflect a tragic increase in suicides among children and adolescents. Also, a child's social and emotional development can be disrupted by depression. Since depression in children is not that easy to recognize, the illness is often underdiagnosed and undertreated. Parents should be aware that the following behaviors may indicate depression in their child:

- Inability to concentrate, a short attention span and a declining interest in school work and activities are characteristic. Some children who are clinically depressed are misdiagnosed as having learning disabilities; and some children who have learning disabilities become depressed when those disabilities are not diagnosed and treated.
- Eating problems, primarily not eating as much as usual, therefore not gaining weight as they are growing, are indicative of depression.
- Lack of energy. Young children normally want to play outdoors. A depressed child will complain of feeling tired and will not be interested in play.

As in adults, depression in children is often a treatable and curable illness. If you suspect your child may be suffering from depression, help is available at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey Community Mental Health Center at Newark, 455-1411 and at the UMDNJ-Community Health Center in Piscataway, 463-2266. Residents of other parts of the state may call either number for information and referrals.

Here are two progress reports on Diabetes Research. One is available by mail.

10 years ago, this child had less of a chance of being born able to live a normal life.

But thanks to diabetes research, many more babies, women can now have normal pregnancies. And that's just one kind of progress. 100,000 people of all ages have diabetes. Most devastating complications can now be treated, even prevented in many cases.

Maxell's progress has occurred in the eleven years since the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation began funding research, spending over $50 million since 1974.

Our investment is paying off. We can trace the whole story in our 68-page Progress Report. It's good reading. Because it shows research is winning the battle against a disease that with its complications is still our third biggest killer.

Dr. S. announced that finding a cure for diabetes is only a matter of time and money. Happily for children yet to be born — money can buy progress.

THERE'S A CURE, AND WE'LL FIND IT!
Maxell's research on diabetes is the most advanced in the world. It's the only research that's been published in the medical journals. It's the only research that's been published in the medical journals. It's the only research that's been published in the medical journals.
