The students of Roosevelt School joined their voices in sending the message of peace to the world by participating in the global torch relay of the First Earth Run sponsored by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) honoring the 40th anniversary of the International Year of Peace on December 11, 1986. The runners, athletes from all over the world, were welcomed by the students with the singing of the "Earth Run Anthem," waving of handmade doves and signs of welcome with the message, "Give The World A Chance: Children Need Peace."

Another resource recovery brawl

Harnett nixes legal fees to Malgran

by Pat DiMaggio
Union County Utilities Authority Treasurer Joseph Harnett has refused to "execute the proposed contract with former Freeholder G. Richard Malgran to serve as authority general counsel" or "approve any vouchers or payments to Mr. Malgran."

Harnett advised the authority of this by letter. At a press conference held on Tuesday, at City Hall, Harnett accused Malgran of a "conflict of interest" in seeking and accepting the position of general counsel to the authority.

Malgran resigned from the Board of Chosen Freeholders last week to accept the appointment. The position includes fees of up to $50,000 for the first year.

The City of Rahway instituted litigation last fall, charging the county and the authority with improper procedure in formulating the Union County Freeholders-appointed Utilities Authority. The UCUA would oversee construction and operation of a resource recovery facility that would be built on a 21 acre site in Rahway near Route 4.

Later charges also included conflict of interest when Mayor Daniel L. Maibach released a statement saying County Counsel Robert Doherty and Freeholders Richard Malgran, Paul O'Keefe and James Fulcomer formed an "illicit conspiracy" where Fulcomer would become authority chairman and Malgran general counsel. Fulcomer is also a Rahway councilman.

An agreement was signed settling the dispute, and granting Rahway the right to the position of authority chairman, treasurer or secretary as long as the recovery facility was based in Rahway. Harnett, a Rahway business administrator, was chosen as UCUA treasurer, with a term expiring Feb. 1988.

To explain his actions, Harnett charged Malgran with obtaining copies of confidential documents about contracts for resource recovery. "It appears this was being done secretly because his name surfaced on only one of many transmittal letters," said Harnett. "In investigating this matter, we were told that Mr. Malgran requested this confidential information so he could be 'up to speed', presumably 'up to speed' for accepting the general counsel position."

"What possible explanation can there be for Malgran to get this confidential information," Harnett added. "A project of this nature and of this magnitude requires the utmost confidence of the public."

"My record, Rahway's record and the City's record for sixteen years has always been one of integrity," said Martin in support of Harnett's actions. "Anything that touches us as close as resource recovery touches us is something we cannot sit back for and let individuals do things that are not in the public interest."

The conflict of interest question will be settled with a hearing of the Advisory Committee on Professional Ethics in March.

In response to Harnett's refusal to sign or approve any vouchers or payments, Malgran said, "I believe Mr. Harnett is in dereliction of duty by failing to sign a contract, and that he is also in violation of the spirit and content of the court order entered last fall, wherein he was named as treasurer and was expected to perform the duties of the treasurer."

"He cannot refuse to sign the contract and he cannot refuse to pay me," Malgran said. "I'm sure the appropriate court will order him to sign whatever checks are necessary. The authority can name an alternate treasurer or they can say he failed in his duties as treasurer and remove him."

Fulcomer accused Harnett of "trying to take the public's attention away from his big salary grab as administrator. He is understandably embarrassed by this legal raid on the treasury of Rahway and hopes this personality attack on Mr. Malgran will take that attention away," said Fulcomer.

"The public recognizes that under the by-laws of the utilities authority the responsibility of the treasurer is to sign contracts, checks and documents," he added.

"If Harnett refuses to sign, he is committing non-faisance. Under the laws of the State of New Jersey, non-faisance is grounds for removal from office. He is engaging in a silly temper tantrum that brings discredit to the City of Rahway."

Sheld polling users of cable TV service

by Pat DiMaggio
Rahway Third Ward Councilman Max Sheld is asking residents to write him their opinions on Suburban Cablevision services and whether the City's contract with the East Orange based cable television company should be renewed.

Sheld said the Board of Public Utilities has notified the City that if Rahway does not wish to renew its present contract with Suburban Cablevision, or if significant changes are to be made, the company must be notified in writing by February 20. The current contract expires June 27, 1989.

"I am surprised that they would require so much advance notice," said Sheld. "One of the things that has happened is that the cable television industry has been deregulated. This is good in some respects and bad in others. One of the bad aspects is that the company can now go out and level such charges as they see fit," he explained. "On the good side, we might be able to get another company to underbid this one now that it's a free market."

"Before we make any decision as to whether or not we want to discontinue this company, I am seeking information from citizens of Rahway as to their experiences with Suburban Cablevision," Sheld said. "Are they satisfied or dissatisfied? Do they feel we are getting all that we should or should programs be added or discontinued."

"I am asking the residents of Rahway to drop me a line so that I may know their reaction to the present company. We have had approximately seven years of experience with this company and I feel this is time enough to give an intelligent evaluation of their performance."

Residents can write to Councilman Max Sheld, City Hall, City Hall Plaza, Rahway, NJ 07065.

Spay/neuter program expanded

New Jersey pet owners who can prove that they adopted their animal from a licensed non-profit animal shelter or municipal, county or regional pound and that the animal is duly licensed are eligible for a low-cost spay/neuter program under which by Governor Kean, secretary of the Department of Health, Dr. Reynolds believes that "extending our program to everyone adopting a pet from a shelter or pound will help to reduce the population of feral and domestic animals that are producing an abundance of pets that have no hope of finding a home. Preventing the birth of unwanted pets and decreasing the number of animals that must be put to sleep are the humane facets of the program."

All veterinarians performing the spays and neuters must be registered with the N.J. Department of Health. Interested pet owners should contact the Animal Population Control, Biological Services Program, State Department of Health, C.N. 364, Trenton, N.J. 08625.

The amendment is designed to further reduce the number of unwanted animals. The program, which is funded by a surcharge on the licensing of unneutered animals, is expected to benefit 30,000 animals per year.

Congressman Bernard Dwyer Reports

Congressman Bernard Dwyer reports that the House of Representatives will consider the Surface Transportation Act of 1987. The bill, which is the first priority of the new Congress, will provide significant funding for highway and mass transit programs from 1987 through 1991. It strongly supports the crucial transportation bill, which will be particularly helpful to our district.

According to the U.S. Federal Highway Administration, failure to immediately enact this vital highway legislation would have catastrophic effects on the country. The agency estimates that as of January 1, 1987, 25 states will have completely exhausted their Interstate highway construction funds.

Efforts were made in the last session of Congress to enact the necessary legislation, in fact the House approved a highway reauthorization bill on August 15, 1986, but it was vetoed by President Reagan.

Consequently many states are now in a state of financial crisis. The House is now working on a new bill to reauthorize the Highway Trust Fund. This fund is composed of road-user fees such as the gasoline tax.

H.R. 2, the Surface Transportation Assistance Act, authorizes a total of $91.6 billion for highway programs from 1987 through 1991. It would also provide funds for mass transit programs, highway safety programs and railroad modernization activities.

In New Jersey, a state with overburdened highways and extensive mass transportation systems, this legislation is especially important. State highway officials have indicated that although the state had been prepared to receive federal funds for construction on Routes 1, 18, 27, and Interstate 287, all of which run through our district, Sections of 1287 are considered by the Federal Highway Administration as being among the most critical highway sections to complete nationally, and would be directly affected by any significant delays in approving this legislation.

Immediately after the adjournment of the Congress in October, the Chairman of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee stated his intention to reintroduce the highway reauthorization bill in January. H.R. 2 was introduced on the first day of the 100th Congress with wide bipartisan support. The bill is identical to the legislation approved last August by the House, and which I supported.

Transportation plays a critical role in the economic well-being of New Jersey. It is essential that our transportation network keep pace with the remarkable growth that our district is displaying. I strongly support H.R. 2, because it will provide critical transportation funds to our area.

The Trial Lawyers Notebook

"More Than Money"

During the last two years we have all observed the battle being fought in our legislature and in the court of public opinion over the role of the tort system in American society. Those who wish to limit the right to sue for civil wrongs argue that the tort system pays excessive compensation to both victims and their lawyers. Supporters of the right to sue argue that full and adequate compensation to seriously injured users of defective products and recipients of carelessly or recklessly rendered professional services is necessary, as we have understood that term through two hundred years of American history, to be achieved.

Those of us who regularly represent victims understand that loss in the discussion of whether victims receive too much or too little compensation is the fact that our tort system contributes to the state's budget beyond just compensating victims. This point was recently and vividly demonstrated by Ralph Nader in testimony before our State Senate's Judiciary Committee on September 4, 1986.

Mr. Nader, our nation's best known and most respected consumer advocate, suggested that those of us who represent victims already know our tort system not only compensates victims, it also performs other critical functions to the preservation and growth of our society. The first of these functions is deterrence. By this, Mr. Nader refers to the fact that defective products such as the Ford Pinto and the exploding fuel tank, the Dalkon Shield IUD and industrial asbestos have ultimately been removed from the marketplace only because of the corporation of lawsuits by victims who have placed a cost on the corporation of the harm they have caused.

The second of these functions is disclosure. By this, Mr. Nader refers to the pretrial aspect of litigation in which trial lawyers obtain information from corporate defendants through the "discovery" process including interrogatories, depositions, and the production of documents. By requiring defendants and corporate officers to provide information and testify under oath, to those of us who are trial lawyers, working on behalf of individual victims, are able to obtain information that normally eludes our overburdened regulatory agencies. Disclosure generally leads to publicity and forces public discussion of problems like the toxic waste crisis and pollution problems, as well as the failure of professional groups to police their own members.

The final function of our civil justice system other than effect of deterrence and disclosure is that it helps compensation, deterrence and disclosure is that it helps even out the enormous disparity in influence and wealth of our society. There is simply no way other than the tort system for working people victimized by those with greater resources to retain lawyers and protect their interests. By providing legal services with fees based only on the ability to obtain a satisfactory result rather than the payment of huge fees "up front," our tort system gives the ordinary people a chance to have no means to fight.

Mr. Nader's testimony about the work of the trial lawyer would otherwise have no means to fight the critical role of the lawyer and the problems that will be created and dangerous precedents set if our civil justice system is destroyed. The beneficiaries of such a decision will be the large corporations and the most powerful quo. The losers will be everyone else.

Bill to protect environment passed

Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden (R-22) says the passage of her Freshwater Wetlands Act by the State Assembly last week is a great victory for our environment, for our legislature, for our posterity and will rank as one of the most significant legislative achievements in the history of the State of New Jersey.

"Passage of this bill in the Assembly and its ultimate enactment into law will be the highlight of my legislative career," said Assemblywoman Ogden.

The bill, which was introduced by Assemblywoman Ogden, will protect the state's remaining 200,000 acres of freshwater wetlands from indiscriminate development.

More than 175 groups, representing virtually every interest group in the state, have supported her bill. The bill now goes to the Senate where it will be assigned to the Senate Committee on Environment and Natural Resources.

Be careful with that cozy fireplace

The following is a public service message brought to you by the Rahway Fire Department, Chief James T. Heller:

A fireplace, with a dancing fire, lends a cozy feeling to any home, especially on a cold, blustery day. Fireplaces and other wood-burning equipment can provide efficient heat, too. But they can spell tragedy if you're not careful. The Rahway Fire Department wants you to protect yourself, your family and your home with these safety tips:

Keep tight-fitting screens or glass doors in front of fireplace openings to prevent sparks from flying out. Keep papers, furniture and other things that might burn away from the front of the fireplace. Don't leave children alone in a room where a fire is burning. And never burn while you are out or asleep.

A wood-burning heating system or device should be safe, economical, efficient, easy to use and attractive to look at. No system is fire-proof. Have your system installed by a reputable professional and have it inspected by the fire department before you use it. Keep small children from being burned by a wood-burning stove by purchasing and installing retaining screens made especially for that purpose.

Although proper installation can help prevent a fire, know what to do if one does happen. Know the signs of a chimney fire: a loud roar, sucking sounds and shaking pipes. Make sure your entire family knows what to do. If you think you have a chimney fire, cut off the fire's air supply by shutting any air intake vents in the firebox. Close the damper. Everyone should leave the house immediately and call the fire department from a neighbor's home or other nearby telephone. Practice fire drills so that everyone knows at least two different ways out of the house.

Dispose of ashes by placing them in metal containers, never in paper or plastic bags or cardboard boxes. Ashes can hold enough to start a fire for several days. Wet the ashes and make sure they are cold.

Keep the home fires burning safely this winter.

Four children, who raised over $100 each, were rewarded with math-a-thon tote bags and T-shirts. They were Richard Polese, Christine Polese, Robert Disko and Joseph Velotti.

Children raising over $50 were Michelle Oberansky, Patricia Miller, Nicole Morris and Tina Rodriguez. Alexis Kelly raised over $40.
