"Concerned citizens" banding together to fight resource recovery in Rahway

by Pat DiMaggio

A "community meeting" was held at the J.F.K. Center on East Hazelwood Avenue on September 24 to discuss the dangers of the proposed resource recovery facility to be built in Rahway.

Concerned Citizens on the Environment, a group formed six weeks ago and chaired by First Ward Councilman Jerry Coleman, hosted three speakers who discussed health issues associated with garbage incinerators.

"The group stemmed from our desire to do something as a community to prevent resource recovery from coming to Rahway," said Coleman. "We are concentrating on organizations and people in this general vicinity as well as other organizations and individuals outside of town."

Most of the discussion focused on health hazards from pollutants associated with burning garbage at high temperatures.

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) allows pollutants such as sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxide, hydrochloric acid, lead, carbon monoxide, dioxins, PCBs, formaldehyde, heavy metals and dibenzofurans to escape from the facility's smoke stack, said Dr. Jim Hilbert, a Rockaway Township Councilman who holds a Ph.D. in science and environmental issues.

"The state has guidelines but no regulations concerning resource recovery facilities at this time," said Hilbert. "There's not too much experience in the DEP regulating these things," said Hilbert. "Dioxin and dibenzofurans have to be controlled. If a garbage incinerator is built in your neighborhood, they're not going to be controlled."

Hilbert also cautioned against heavy metals resulting from the burning of garbage. "Lead has been shown to cause learning disabilities in children," he said. "Heavy metals are a serious problem and they've been overlooked."

Ash, a by-product of resource recovery, is a hazardous waste, said Hilbert. "In Rahway, not only do you have to find a site to dispose of the ash, but you are also faced with the potential of having hazardous waste trucked through your neighborhood."

Dr. Ted Flynn, from Westfield, is a pharmacologist and received his Ph.D. from the University of Medicine and Dentistry in Newark. "When chemicals get out into the environment and people get sick, then they'll listen. They're not interested in chemicals until someone gets sick," said Flynn. "There are no arguments about dioxins causing a problem and there is nothing older in the study of medicine than the fact that heavy metals cause problems."

Flynn was especially concerned with the effects resource recovery facilities would have on fetuses. "What will happen to the people in the neighborhood who are pregnant," he asked. "Incinerators are the anti-solution to the garbage problem. Maybe we'll not have the health problems, our children will. We should solve it ourselves and not push the problem onto their backs."

Resource recovery facilities are proposed in every county in New Jersey except for Cumberland, Burlington and Hunterdon counties, with one presently being constructed in Warren County, said Madeline Hoffman, of Bloomfield, speaker from the Grass Roots Environmental Group. "An overall policy is pushing throughout this state to construct incinerators," said Hoffman. "We have to think about the effect of all these incinerators, not just the one in Rahway. We don't know what combined effect these chemicals will have on our bodies. We are talking about burning thousands of tons of garbage in a densely populated area that also has a number of hazardous waste disposal sites."

"The State Department of the DEP does not want to come up with siting criteria — what would be a safe place to put an incinerator — because it would delay the process of building the incinerators," continued Hoffman. "The DEP has not issued regulations for pollutants that will come out of the stack and has not issued regulations for ash. The state refuses to determine if ash will be toxic or not. They want to build the incinerators first."

Alternative means to resource recovery facilities were suggested. "We should start recycling in earnest," said Hoffman. "Plastic, aluminum, glass and newspapers should be recycled. We should start composting. Some items can be bun-del for landfills. Then we'd get some control back over our waste stream."

We must seek legal advice and start raising some money," said Coleman at the end of the meeting. "The Freeholders are not listening to us, the majority of our municipal officials are not listening to us, neither is the state. The only way we can continue to fight is to continue the political battle and to continue the legal battle."

The Concerned Citizens on the Environment group will meet again on October 25 at the J.F.K. Center. A Regional Conference is planned on November 21.

N.J. NETS STRATEGY...Tony Pascale, right, a member of the Kiwanis Club of Rahway, thanks guest speaker Tim Bassett, Director of Marketing Relations and Coordinator, Speakers Bureau of the New Jersey Nets. He said, in his opinion, that Wilt Chamberlain was the greatest player in basketball history. He noted that Wilt holds more records than any other player. He also indicated that this year's Nets will be more than competitive with the other teams in the NBA. The Kiwanis club of Rahway meets on Wednesdays at 12:15 at the Columbian Club in Rahway.

Unauthorized 'recyclers' subject to fines in Rahway

Unauthorized picking up of curbside recyclable materials violates city law, according to a statement released by Theodore E. Polnamus, Director/Chief of Police in Rahway.

The police department has been receiving calls from citizens complaining about their materials being collected by people not associated with the recycling program implemented by the City of Rahway.

City ordinance states that once material is placed at curbside by Rahway residents, the material to be recycled becomes the property of the City of Rahway.

Those persons found in violation of the ordinance are subject to a $500 fine for each offense.

The ordinance does not prohibit residents from selling or donating glass containers, aluminum cans or newspapers to individuals or organizations, but the materials cannot be picked up at curbside.

Any Rahway resident who violates this ordinance is subject to denial of any refuse collection by the City of Rahway, as well as other legal remedies available to the City of Rahway, according to the statement.

The award, given annually to the outstanding boy and girl enrolled in the Rahway Recreation Department Summer Playground Program, was presented by Miss Ruth Stein in memory of her brother, who gave his life

A REAL LIFESAVER...The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders recently honored Angelo Marinelli, secretary to the director of the Division of Buildings and Grounds, for his efforts in aiding co-worker Mary Lenahan, right, after she began choking on her food while eating lunch at her desk in the Courthouse Complex in Elizabeth. Marinelli, center, a 25-year county employee, applied the Heimlich Maneuver which enabled Lenahan to regain her breath, saving her from serious injury or death. "I am very proud of Angelo, and it is extremely important that we have employees like him that are aware of emergency, life-saving techniques," said Michael Lapolla, Union County Freeholder, pictured at left. Lenahan has been a secretary in the buildings and grounds division for 21 years.

Merck finalizes plans for Readington move

Merck & Co., Inc. has announced that, after careful consideration of long-term growth plans, preparations have begun for the construction and occupancy of a major new office site in Readington Township, New Jersey.

The facility will be located on a previously purchased 456-acre tract in Hunterdon County that is located just west of Exit 24 (Whitehouse) of I-78, between Route 22 and I-78.

The company has selected the architectural firm of Roche, Dinkeloo & Associates of Connecticut to develop the site plan. Assuming timely approval of the plan by the Merck Board of Directors and the Readington Planning Board, construction could begin in 1988 with completion scheduled for early 1992.

The company expects that 1,400 employees mainly from its Rahway site will occupy the Readington facility initially.

Overall employment at Rahway most probably will remain the same after these employees move, since personnel working in leased facilities in Woodbridge can occupy the vacated office space.

Throughout the planning process for the Readington site, the company has kept the governor's office, local legislators and the Readington mayor's office fully informed.

"The establishment of the Readington facility reaffirms Merck's commitment to the state of New Jersey," said Merck Chairman P. Roy Vagelos, M.D.

Coast Guard promotes Butkowski repair of gasoline, turbine and diesel engines, hydraulic systems, auxiliary machinery, refrigeration and air-conditioning equipment. His other studies included blueprint reading, welding techniques and job-related safety procedures.

A 1985 graduate of Rahway High School, he joined the Coast Guard Reserve in June 1987.

THE word
BY JO & JOHN JACOBSON
The Big Apple

New York is definitely a big league city (Yankees, Mets, Giants and Knicks) and, as such, deserves a big league apple. At the time of the Big Apple is one of the early centers of jazz.

According to "Safire's Political Dictionary," "Cah Calloway defined apple as the 'big word' in the main stem, Harlem." Safire indicates that in a 1976 interview with this great jazz band leader, "Mr. Calloway explained that the 'Big Apple' name was a name of a Harlem night club in the Hudson until the mid 70s. At the time, the New York City Convention and Visitors Bureau, tiring of the 'Fan City' nickname, reached down into the deep barrel of New York's history and culture and pulled out this appetizing name for the greatest city on earth.

One question remains to be answered: If you can make it there, why in heaven's name would you want to make it anywhere else?

Clark Municipal Council raise still protested

Recently in this column, a leading Democrat in Clark made reference to me about my accepting the all-union 30 percent raise voted by the majority faction on Council in a lean year after I had voted against it.

I am sure the penman of that letter realizes that the portion of the pay I consider excessive cannot be returned to the Township treasury without creating chaos in the accounting procedure.

"Uncle Sam sees only that my employer the Township has issued W-2 information attesting to having paid me $3,600 per year. Uncle Sam wants taxes on that amount."

"The minutes of the June 15, 1987 meeting, page 11, has an entry as follows: 'Councilman Crutani said, 'President, he (that is I) has plans which are a little more complicated for him (me) because of the tax bracket problem it creates... but you will find that his money will be returned in one way or another for some purpose.' (either poorly written or poorly spoken, but it explains my position). This was the second time I had publicly stated at a Council meeting that I had intended not to keep the increment."

"The only time you really know your tax bracket and the effect on the income taxes you pay when your income comes from multiple diverse sources, such as mine, is at the end of the year when you fill out your 1040."

I hereby wish to assure your penman that, as a symbol of my protest, I will donate the net proceeds in my Council pay beyond last year's reasonable level, less extra states and other expenses, it causes me to pay, to some deserving charity or to some public service group permitted to take donations from individuals.

As to recyclables collection at the curbside, your penman might find out from Mr. Monaco and Mr. Eckel that I was one of the originators of the idea.

Golden memories I will never forget

Due to many health problems for the past 22 years, I have golden memories that will stay with me until my last day on this earth because of Rahway Hospital's staff, past and present, including its volunteers.

I also have praise for several roommates I had, including one of them that recently passed away, Herbie Laycock, a police auxiliary from Cranford. Herbie, as long as I am alive, you are alive. You made my stay very pleasant and less painful.

I am a 1946 graduate of the police academy, attending with Lou Guadagnoli, the father of the current Police Chief of Cranford, and with Harry Page. I saw many tears from fellow police officers at Gray's Funeral Parlor where Herbie was laid out.

Frank Camerata was a roommate at Rahway Hospital. We worked together at a shipyard in Kearny over 40 years ago.

Now I say with deep love in my heart, I would like to thank the following for making it possible for me to still be around: Dr. Gerard, who 22 years ago put me on a breathing machine, and the wonderful care given me by Doctors David, Paul, Chin, Guarino, Parino, Nicara, Hochner, Smith, Wexler and Whang. My love also goes to Dr. Stan Choi. Also, I would like to thank former Rahway Hospital employee Martin Sabu.

God's blessings to all of you.

Hospice concern appreciated

We would like the public to know of our sincere appreciation and admiration for Freeholder Brian Fahey whose leadership and concern for the Hospice movement in Union County has been more than outstanding.

Hospice cares for the terminally ill and provides, through a team approach, the services of physicians, nurses, home health aides, social workers and clergymen to ease the physical and emotional stress of the patients and the patients' families during the last stages of their illness.

Freeholder Fahey has been in the forefront as a dedicated public official sensitive to these needs and we are most grateful to him.

Russo calls for tougher laws to stop ocean pollution

Senate President John F. Russo told a Congressional subcommittee recently that tougher laws are needed to protect the beaches, including a ban on all types of ocean dumping.

Senator Russo, in testimony before the Subcommittee on Oceanography, outlined a series of steps that must be taken by both the federal and state governments to stop the coastline devastation that is killing dolphins and ruining New Jersey's $11 billion tourism industry.

"New Jersey and its neighboring states, particularly those to the north, have been using the ocean as a huge dump for too long," Senator Russo said. "In the short run, ocean dumping is cheap and easy, but the long-term cost — as we are seeing — is enormous."

Senator Russo called on the federal government to stop all uses of toxic waste, to ratify the MARPOL Treaty, which would regulate the ocean disposal of refuse from ships and the disposal of plastics in the sea. Numerous countries, including the Soviet Union, have already signed the treaty. Ratification by the United States would bring the treaty into force internationally.

On the state level, Senator Russo said he intends to introduce legislation in the Senate on Tuesday that would prohibit the disposal of all waste in state waters by 1990.

The proposal would be companion measure to one Senator Russo has already cosponsored with Sen. Leonard Corrado, that would impose a tax on New Jersey sewage authorities that dispose of sludge in federal waters off the state coast, where only EPA-approved sludge is allowed.

"Who would want to vacation in a cesspool?" Senator Russo asked. "Who would want to spend the money on a trip to the beach and then try to explain to the children that their swim in the water?"

Cookie sales make Girl Scouting possible

A trip to the Renaissance Festival, performing in a winter carnival on ice, and a weekend at Camp Hoover — these are some of the opportunities ahead for Girl Scouts this year which are made possible by the sale of Girl Scout cookies.

Girl Scouts from Clark will be selling cookies as part of the Washington Rock Girl Scout Council's annual fall cookie sale.

The door-to-door part of the order taking sale begins today and will continue through October 18. Cookie deliveries will be made by the troops from November 16 through December 6.

The Girl Scouts will be selling six varieties of cookies and one cracker selection. All products are baked by the Barry-Lit Company in Elizabeth.

The cookie sale is the primary fund-raiser for Clark's Girl Scout troops and the Washington Rock Council. Each box of cookies sells for $2.50 and generates a $.78 contribution to Girl Scouting.

According to Mrs. Denise Peterson, community coordinator for Clark, the funds will support troop activities such as trips to the Statue of Liberty, the Camp Hoover, training and insurance for Girl Scout volunteers, and publications.

Profits from the cookie sale will also help pay for programs and facilities at the Washington Rock Council.

Crusaders top Bulldogs, 14-9

by Ray Hoagland
Johnson's Crusaders defeated the Bulldogs of Jonathan Dayton Regional, Springfield, by the score of 14 to 9 on the winners' field in the rear of the Clark school, on Saturday afternoon before about 1,000 fans.
It was the fourth annual Unico Bowl Game, sponsored by the Clark and Springfield chapters of Unico. A trophy was presented to the Crusaders.
Johnson's Brian Power, who was selected for four games last season with a broken ankle, gained 133 yards on 16 carries and veteran quarterback James Bosher accounted for all the points for the winner.
The Crusaders also received a solid defensive effort from tackle Todd Burger (6-3, 240) who is considered one of the better linemen in the area.
Linebacker Chris Kisch played a strong defense for the Bulldogs.
Johnson, who is now 1-0, opened the scoring in the open session. Eric Paparock caught a 21 yard TD pass. Paparock, who had 40 catches last year, took the ball in at the Springfield five yard line.
Linebacker Robert Gallo set up the drive when he recovered a fumble on the Bulldogs' 25.
The next game will be at Nolan Field with Immaculata tomorrow at 2 p.m.

St. Thomas The Apostle Parish celebrates 75th year in Rahway

St. Thomas the Apostle Parish in Rahway will celebrate the 75th anniversary of its founding on October 4.

Like so many others before them, the early immigrants to Rahway and its surrounding area sought to have a church of their own, and in 1912 the parish was organized.

The parish was founded as St. John the Baptist Greek Catholic Church. Rev. Paul Barnyock, Rev. Peter Kustan served as the first pastor from 1912 to 1926. An initial lot purchased for the church site was sold when the parish purchased the German Lutheran Church for their own religious purposes.

The church was blessed by the Most Rev. O'Connor, Bishop of New York, in 1926. The church is now located on Irving Street was the home for the people of St. John's until October 6, 1968 when the new church and parish center were dedicated on St. George Avenue.

With the purchase of the property on St. George Avenue, the name of the parish was changed to St. Thomas the Apostle. Besides the Rev. Peter Kustan, the following pastors have served the parish: Rev. Joseph Jacknick, 1926-32; Rev. Alexander Dolnay, 1932-34; Rev. John Slivka, 1934-44; Rev. Paul Barnyock, 1944-52; Rev. Alex. Viskovsky, 1952-56; Rev. Emil J. Mihalki, 1956-68; Rev. Theodore Chelenda, 1968-75 and Rev. John Zoyack since 1975.

During the pastorate of Rev. Emil Mihalki, the parish was relocated to its present location.

Father Emil was named the first bishop of Parma, Ohio by Pope Pius XII. Bishop Emil was bishop of Parma from June 12, 1969 to January 27, 1984. The parish center was dedicated in October.

The panels of the Mariapoch banner contain flower motifs representative of this area. The panels honor the origins of the immigrants who founded the parish.

Following the Liturgical celebration a dinner will be served in the parish center. On Sunday, September 27, a balloon launch by the children began the celebration.

Memorial Remembrance of the priests who served and parishioners will take place on Sunday, November 1, at 2 p.m.

Robinson Plantation gets a 'lift' from Exxon grants

The Clark Historical Society recently received two Exxon Volunteer Involvement Fund Grants for the restoration of the Dr. William Robinson Plantation, circa 1690, in Clark.

Lloyd Ruef and James Mumford, both of Clark, retirees of Exxon, were annuitants of the Exxon grants, which support community programs and encourage volunteerism.

Herbert Crompton, president of the Clark Historical Society, stated the grants will be used for dust boards beneath the pine floors of the Robinson House, and will also help purchase track lighting to highlight historic features.

Mr. Mumford has been involved in the restoration and operation of the Robinson Plantation since 1974. He is restoration chairman for the Clark Historical Society and has served as its president and treasurer. A skilled craftsman, he contributes many early American replicas made of tin to the Museum Shop of the Plantation.

Mr. Ruef, also a highly skilled craftsman, has supplied the Museum Shop with numerous wood-crafted items since 1977.

1987 Johnson Regional yearbook scheduled for fall release

In a move which may be precedent-setting among public high schools in the state of New Jersey, the 1987 Lance, the yearbook of the Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School in Clark, will be delivered on November 25.

According to Mr. Douglas Felter, a teacher of English at Johnson Regional and the faculty adviser to the Lance staff since the 1981-82 school year, the autumn distribution for the yearbooks marks a first in the 31-year history of Johnson Regional and in the 50-year history of the schools of the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 — Jonathan Dayton, Arthur L. Johnson, Governor Livingston and David Brearley. Mr. Felter also expressed that he "doesn't know of any other public high school in the state" which releases their yearbook during the fall rather than in June.

"The spring delivery of yearbooks is commonplace in high schools located in the New England states and New Jersey," explained Mr. Felter. "But, outside of the Northeast states, it seems like the majority of high schools have gone to fall delivery of their yearbooks."

The decision to switch from a spring to a fall yearbook at Johnson Regional was influenced by several factors but was ultimately decided by a vote of the members of the Class of 1987. After Mr. Felter and members of the Lance staff distributed an information sheet, detailing the advantages and disadvantages of having the yearbook distributed in the fall, to all of the students in the Class of 1987, a poll was taken. The results of the voting, which was taken when those in the Class of 1987 were juniors, indicated that of the 60 to 70 percent of the students who voiced a preference, 55 percent voted in favor of fall delivery of the yearbook. The results of the poll were announced at a meeting of the yearbook staff shortly thereafter and, despite some dissenting opinions among staff members, the final decision to publish a fall yearbook was made.

"With the majority of students who actually favored the fall delivery added to those students who apparently didn't mind either way, we felt that we had some pretty solid backing in making the switch," explained Mr. Felter.

"We laid out all the pluses and minuses for the students," he continued. "On the positive side, we let them know that we could do a great deal more in a fall book and we could do it at a lower price — we have 40 pages of the book in color, more than ever before, yet with the later deadlines and our hard-working students bringing in advertising dollars, we were able to sell the book for a reasonable price. The copy deadlines that we had to deal with this past year were much later than we were accustomed to — with the fall book, we were able to cover the entire 1986-87 school year extensively and in color, which is impossible to do when you have to face spring yearbook deadlines. The students worked a full month into the summer on the yearbook, and the extra time enabled them to be more creative, exercise better quality control and do a more professional job."

There were also some obvious negative aspects of having a fall yearbook and they were explained to the Class of 1987. But, in order to lessen the impact of not having a yearbook to sign as graduation day drew near, the Lance staff distributed a supplement of eight blank pages which could be glued into the yearbook, thereby giving the seniors an opportunity to "sign yearbooks." And, a yearbook distribution party has been planned for Thanksgiving weekend, when most of the 1987 graduates will be back in the Clark area.

"The kids on the yearbook staff were determined to make this thing work," said Mr. Felter. "They put a great deal of effort into making this happen and, in doing so, they became like members of the same family."

HOPE IS FADING. This adorable 4 1/2-month-old kitten is healthy and friendly, but his chances of finding a home are very slim. Unfortunately, due to pet overpopulation, there are very few homes available and people usually want very young kittens. If you can help with a home or have articles to donate for a flea market to benefit homeless pets please call 486-0230 or 276-8995. Fulcomer announces launching of welfare reform program

Union County Freeholder James J. Fulcomer of Rahway announced the approval by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders at their last meeting a pilot program to get able-bodied people off the welfare rolls.

Freeholder Fulcomer, a sponsor of the enabling resolution, said that the new welfare reform initiative called "Reach," standing for Realizing Economic Achievement, would provide a system of job placement, job training, educational services, day care, and other services to move welfare recipients out of welfare into jobs. The program, he said, is supposed to be financed fully by the state of New Jersey, which selected Union County as one of three counties to establish models for the entire state.

"This program conceptually is a very important opportunity to reduce the welfare rolls in our state and to put able-bodied people in meaningful employment. However, from the start it is very apparent that the state has provided insufficient money to support fully the child care needs of the program. We have incorporated this concern and other concerns in our plan to the state," said Freeholder Fulcomer.

"Hopefully, the state will address our concerns in a satisfactory manner. If the state cooperates, this can be a truly successful program benefiting the welfare clients by ending their dependency and benefiting the taxpayers by reducing the welfare rolls," he continued.

Freeholder Fulcomer said that it is hoped that as many as 240 welfare applicants can be processed into the Reach program every month resulting in at least hundreds of welfare recipients being moved from the welfare rolls into jobs every year. He added that the program will target young welfare recipients with young children and will be the first serious welfare reform program since the establishment of the present system. Reach is scheduled to start this month.
