Rinaldo urges Justice Dept. to act against dial-a-porn

Rep. Matthew Rinaldo (R-NJ) is urging the new U.S. Attorney General, Richard Thornburgh, to reconsider a Justice Department decision to delay action against companies that offer pornographic messages over the telephone.

Rinaldo, the ranking Republican member of the House Subcommittee on Telecommunications and Finance, is a sponsor of a new law effective July 1 that made such so-called dial-a-porn operations a federal offense.

"The outrage is that dial-a-porn services have sold their pornographic messages indiscriminately to teenagers and children," Rinaldo said. "Horrible parents have paid the price for these calls not only in their telephone bills but in the emotional damage to their children that resulted from exposure to this obscene material."

The Justice Department has delayed enforcement until court challenges to the new law filed by dial-a-porn operators in New York and California are resolved.

"I'm angry that these dial-a-porn services are still conducting business as usual," Rinaldo said. "And I'm disappointed by the passive stance the Justice Department has taken."

Rinaldo said the court argument is not over the issue of obscenity by wire, which courts already agree is illegal, but about what constitutes indecency.

"Meanwhile, these services continue to market pornographic talk over the telephone with little regard to who is listening at the other end," Rinaldo said.

Rinaldo said he has received reports from officials at American Telephone and Telegraph that three complaints involving minors and a dial-a-porn service have been forwarded recently to the Federal Communications Commission for investigation.

"Any delay in enforcing the law against dial-a-porn means more damage is done to children and to families," he said.

"The result of such a wait-and-see attitude with regard to dial-a-porn is that while the courts mull over a legal technicality, the law is disregarded and the crime continues. That is intolerable," Rinaldo said.

Council OK's fire, recycling contracts

by Pat DiMaggio

Rahway's Municipal Council approved a contract with the City's Fire Department and renewed a contract for their recycling program at a special meeting held last week.

The City agreed to a three-year contract with Rahway's Fire Department granting a six percent increase in the first year, a 4-1/2 percent increase in the second year and a 6-1/2 percent raise in the third year, according to Councilman Max Sheld.

The City tries to negotiate three-year contracts with their labor unions when possible, Sheld said.

The council also renewed a contract with the Union County Utilities Authority (UCUA) for the recycling program throughout the City. Glass, aluminum cans and paper are picked up and handled by the Occupational Center of Union County.

Third Ward Councilman Sheld also asked residents of his ward to register for the November 8 elections by October 11 at the clerk's office in City Hall. If residents are unable to do so, Sheld asked that they contact him at 381-2691 for assistance.

Frankie Fame has started performing again and the resident of Rahway has lost none of his wit and sass.

A veteran of swing and blues style drumming, Fame backed the likes of Bob Eberly, Pee Wee Russell, Ella Fitzgerald and even Christine Jorgensen (remember that name?) during the heyday of his career in the 1950's.

Fame, who's real name is Famular, grew up in Jersey City where he first performed in his high school's production of "Ziegfeld Follies." "I sang my favorite song 'Poor Butterfly' to a little girl on stage," said Fame.

When he heard Davey Tough perform on Duke Ellington's "Song of India," Fame decided he had found his niche in the performing world and decided he would take it upon himself to meet Tough. "He was on a binge when I first contacted him," said Fame, who's father owned a pharmacy in Jersey City at the time. "My dad helped him get off drugs."

Tough was known as the "drummer's drummer" and had performed with Tommy Dorsey. Fame studied with Tough and credits him with introducing him to the world of professional drumming.

Famular's Pharmacy, on Grand Avenue, was owned by Fame's father from 1933 until the mid 1950's. A resident of Rahway since 1933, Fame also travelled with Billy Eckstine and Dick Haynes. He toured in a production of "South Pacific" and had a small role in "On the Waterfront" with Marlon Brando and in "Turk 182" with Robert Urich and Timothy Hutton. He has recently been cast in an as-yet-unnamed movie to be shot in New York City.

Fame's schedule includes a concert in Hamilton Park, Jersey City, on September 24, and a show at Town Hall in New York City in November. He will then leave for a tour of Texas and an engagement in Las Vegas.

One of Fame's more famous sayings is "I hear ya." "If you ever see a guy walking around saying 'I hear ya,' that's Frankie Fame," he said. And don't be afraid to say "hello."

Rahway's own Frankie Fame — on the road again

Gen. Alfred M. Gray

Rahway to host nostalgic return of General Gray

If nothing happens to change the present plans, General Alfred M. Gray, Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps, will make a nostalgic return visit to his native Rahway to attend next year's Memorial Day Parade.

As Rahway resident Bill McBride tells it, he was put away a couple of brews down at the VFW hall after participating in this year's parade with American Legion Post 5, and got to reminiscing with some of the boys "about years gone by and other good parades."

During the gab fest, General Gray's name came up. Somebody asked if anyone remembered Al Gray when he lived in Rahway.

Bill did. "I told them I played baseball often with him at Riverside," he said, also reading out from his memory a dozen or so other names of guys who made up the teams.

"Charlie Beans, Ed Johnson, Fred Bedman — they've passed away," Bill said, wondering what became of some of the others.

In the midst of these reminiscences, the idea began to jell of the possibility of getting General Gray to participate in next year's parade, and maybe even rounding up some of the other guys who used to hang out together — like Roy Vagelos, now CEO of Merck & Co., and Tom Kelly, manager of the world champion Minnesota Twins.

Anyway, the upshot is that Bill was elected to write to the General, inviting him to next May's Parade — which he did, and in reply received the following:

"Dear Bill, I've just read your letter for the second and third times. Each time, I enjoy it more and more. You really forced me to shake out a few cobwebs, but I want you to know that I remembered everyone you mentioned. I'm really pleased you took the time to remind me of all these great guys."

"My calendar can get filled up fast, but I've put out the word that when Rahway has their parade, we will do everything possible to be there. I would relish seeing all the ball players and the members of Post 681. I will have my Aide-de-Camp, Major Bart DeForrest, contact you or whomever you suggest to work out the details."

"Thanks again for the letter and kind words. I look forward to the parade next year and reminiscing about the good times past."

Sincerely,
A. M. Gray
General, U.S. Marine Corps
Commandant of the Marine Corps

General Gray was born in Rahway June 22, 1928, the son of a Penn. Railroad conductor, and resided for many years in one of the row houses on Bryant Street. According to school records, he attended Rahway High for only three months, during which Earl Hoagland was his baseball coach.

He attended schools in Point Pleasant Beach and spent his summers in Rahway.

Between now and next May, Bill McBride has the task of rounding up as many of the former ball team as he can. Readers of this article can help by contacting Bill at 1636 Church St., Rahway 07065, if they have information on the whereabouts of any of the following:

Bobbie Madison, "Wats" Ridenour, "Twee" Taylor, Howie Toms, Johnnie Bopp, Kenne Bedman, Ed "Junior" Cook, the Murthas and the Williams.

Decline of dogwoods evident in county

Native and planted dogwoods continue to exhibit symptoms of decline throughout the state at this time, according to Stephen Bachelder, Jr., Agricultural Agent of Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County.

The primary problem has been environmental stress with extensive drought in the early 1980's and now again in 1988, added to severe winter weather during the last few years.

Weakened trees are later subject to attack by borers, scale, and other weakly pathogenic," Bachelder said.

"Most adult beetles in this group, including Japanese chalcids, European spruce sawflies, and various other stress-related fungi," he added.

"Symptoms may include extensive lower branch dieback, clusters of water sprouts on the main trunk and noticeable leaf spots and blotches," Bachelder said. "If decline continues, branches may proceed to dieback from the ground upward and affected trees eventually die."

The best results to combat this disorder, he said, is to remove the dead or cankered branches during dry weather, control borers and maintain optimum growing condition to increase tree vigor.

Adequate watering and an occasional spring fertilization are also important aspects of control, he said, adding that Kousa dogwood (Cercus Kousa) does not seem to be affected by this problem and therefore may offer a viable alternative to flowering dogwood (Cercus Florida), where decline has been troublesome in the past.

Grub-proof that lawn

Late August to early September is the most effective time to take measures to control grubs, announced Stephen Bachelder, Jr., Agricultural Agent of Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County.

Women and alcohol in the work force

What is happening to the 42 million women in today's work force? An increasing number of women are penetrating the work force. Factors contributing to this influx include: women postponing marriage for careers, increasing number of single parent households, and more women returning to work after children are born because of economic pressure. Women today are leading stressful lifestyles which is reflected in the changing patterns of female drinkers.

A few statistics: In 1980 almost 50% of those employed in the U.S. were women according to the U.S. Census.

Alcoholism strikes at least one out of 10 people and half of these are women, which amounts to a minimum of five million alcoholic women in the U.S.

Over half of the 84 million women in the U.S. are working outside the home meaning that at least 6-12% of the total female work force is alcoholic.

Problems with a chemical dependency can result in poor job performance which can eventually result in loss of employment. Employee Assistance Programs (E.A.P.) have been designed to retain employees by helping them help themselves.

In most cases the threat of employee seeking treatment, however, EAP Counselors have noticed with many female alcoholics the threat of job loss will not motivate them to seek treatment.

Some women are working well below their abilities and potential and, therefore, do not get discovered for job performance problems. Some women bring in the second income in their families and will therefore quit before they get fired.

EAP Professionals need to make reaching female alcoholic employees a priority issue, and acknowledge that traditional EAP's have not been effectively identifying the female employees at risk or in trouble. A successful EAP Program can often make the difference between a human tragedy and a productive contributive employee.

For more information call the Union County Council on Alcoholism at 233-8810.

Playpen maker offers kit to cure hazards

According to the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs, C&T International, Inc. of Moonachie, N.J., is offering a free modification kit to owners of its mesh-sided playpen. The playpen, identified as Model No. 585, "Circus America," presents several potential hazards.

Some of the playpens have been sold without proper warning about possible suffocation if an infant is left in the playpen with one of the sides down. All of the playpens present a finger-crushing hazard in the drop side locking system.

Additionally, when the playpens are folded for storage it is possible for a child to remove the small plastic feet, creating a choking hazard.

A number of infant deaths and injuries from folding mesh-sided playpens have been reported to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and while none of the playpens involved were manufactured by C&T, this model presents similar hazards.

The C&T playpen contains a removable floor mat and four plastic rings on the inside. It retails for about $89.99.

C&T International will provide a free modification kit to New Jersey consumers who call 896-2555. Out-of-state consumers may call 1-800-537-1922.

Consumers with questions or complaints about these or other products or services may contact the N.J. Division of Consumer Affairs by writing to Room 504, 1100 Raymond Blvd., Newark, NJ 07102 or by contacting their county or local consumer affairs offices.

If DIVORCE is the answer ...

You deserve immediate protection of your legal rights

At the initial consultation we will discuss these topics, and more:

- No law requires separation for an uncontested New Jersey divorce
- An uncontested divorce means resolving all issues by out-of-court settlement, not by a judge's decisions.
- Fault or separation usually will not affect your settlement; the issues involve your children, finances, and division of property, not your marital problems.
- If you want to separate, you can walk out without giving up your right to a fair settlement.
- If you do separate, beginning settlement negotiations immediately helps protect your legal rights.
- Immediate legal protection, if a permanent breakup is probable, often reduces financial and emotional cost.
- Your lawyer will help you negotiate and reach an out-of-court settlement.
- The Early Settlement Program in the county courthouse can recommend a settlement.
- The day you settle, a Superior Court judge can sign final uncontested divorce papers.
- The final divorce papers will not reveal why the divorce came about or whether you had separated.

Freeholder Cohen seeks liability guidelines

Freeholder Neil M. Cohen (D-Union), Chairman of the Inter-Governmental Relations and Legislative Committee, expressed his concern for the exposure of Union County taxpayers to increase taxes in cases where a municipality's liability insurance does not provide adequate coverage.

The criteria established should include a review of the municipality's prior claims history for severity and frequency, its total budgetary requirements, its financial ability to self-insure, in whole or in part, the probability of future claims in light of the municipality's size and other factors.

Cohen's concerns come as a result of the recent Federal Court verdict against the Borough of Kenilworth for a sum which exceeds its insurance coverage by several million dollars.

Cohen suggested that to avoid potential taxpayer tax

Dunscombe takes over UCC's cross country

Bill Dunscombe of Plainfield, formerly of Clark, will have his hands, as well as his feet, full this fall. In addition to teaching biology and serving as the chairman of Union County College's Biology Department, he will coach the varsity cross country team, as he had done for many years. But this year, Dunscombe will take on another task — this time as coach of the varsity cross country team. Both teams are scheduled to perform during the fall semester.

Dunscombe's appointment as coach of the UCC cross country team was announced today by Athletic Director Fred Perry of the school.

"Slow and steady wins the race," he said, noting that his philosophy is that a youngster may excel at cross country simply by keeping pace with himself.

"There's not 15 other people that you have to worry about, no particular place where you have to practice — you can do it any time, any place in your own solitude."

Dunscombe himself runs 20-to-40 miles per week on a regular basis, as well as cross-country skiing. He has been an athlete and a coach for many years.

Under Dunscombe, the varsity team will have its season opener on September 13 at Raritan Valley Community College, Branchburg, while the cross country squad will face Gloucester County College, Middletown, on September 13. Regular season games will be played on September 28.

"Live in two worlds — one doing one thing and one doing another — and I assure anyone who is interested in breaking down the communication barrier and developing understanding regarding the debt culture, that it can be done."

'Play Ball' is heard by all but the umpire

Skylands Bike Trek begins Sept. 9

The American Lung Association of Central New Jersey is currently recruiting participants for the third annual Skylands Bike Trek sponsored by PruCare of New Jersey from The Prudential. The Skylands Bike Trek is a benefit for the Lung Association and is scheduled for September 9-11.

Participants in the Trek can expect to spend three days this fall touring the scenic countryside of Hunterdon, Morris, Warren and Somerset counties. The routes for the 125-mile tour were designed by the Western Jersey Wheelmen to provide cyclists of all levels with a safe and challenging cycling experience while taking in the breathtaking landscapes of the Skylands region of New Jersey.

"We really try to concentrate on the needs of cyclists during the Trek weekend," says Kathy Tokar, Trek Director for the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey. "We want them to come, relax and enjoy a mini-vacation of cycling. We supply all meals, accommodations and entertainment during the weekend. It works out really well for people who are usually too busy during the week to ride as much as they want and to visit so many lovely areas in the state."

AHA says cycling can condition heart, lungs

You don't have to be an Olympic athlete to enjoy the benefits of cycling. Millions of Americans have discovered bicycling to be a great way to keep fit and have fun.

"The key to a successful exercise program is choosing an activity that you will enjoy," says James Kennedy, president of the American Heart Association, Rahway/Clark unit.

Bicycling is an aerobic activity that can condition the heart and lungs. It is important to remember that exercise alone probably will not prevent or cure heart disease, but it can help. Regular exercise is important. When you stop exercising, you lose the progress that you worked so hard to achieve. To help you stick to a cycling program, choose a regular time and place for riding. And find someone to ride with you and plan to ride at least three times a week.

Each riding session should begin with a warm-up by stretching, walking your bike or riding slowly.

"Exercise is only one factor in a total program of cardiovascular health," says Kennedy. "You can control the primary risk factors of high blood pressure, high cholesterol levels and smoking."

For more information on exercise, contact the AHA, New Jersey Affiliate at 370-3636.

Clark on Keam Team

Charles Whitman, a 190-pounder from Clark, is on Keam College's 1988 football roster, which contains about 90 players. The team is preparing in earnest for its season-opener with visiting Looming College of Williamsport, Pa., this coming Saturday, Sept. 10.

For more than two weeks, head coach Glenn Hadden and his staff have been working hard with their team, fully aware of the challenging task that confronts them this fall: the task of defending a first-year conference title in a conference that has long been noted for its competitiveness. Looming, which has never faced Keam before, is coming in off of a 6-2-1 campaign from a year ago, which was the team's 13th straight winning season.

Coached by Frank Girard, who is also the school athletic director, the Warriors entered a 1-0 contest and a 5-2 defense. The game will take place at Zwinger Field, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The honeymoon is over...

by Pat DiMaggio

While most parents are breathing a sigh of relief with the start of school this week, I am a bit disappointed. The honeymoon is over; the kids are home.

My two sons, John and Rocco, lived down the shore this summer. They worked on the boardwalk in Seaside Heights and lived with my mother-in-law, who owns a summer home down there. They left on July 1 and didn't return home until Labor Day weekend.

Now, don't get me wrong. I love my kids (most of the time). But being alone with my husband for most of the summer was paradise. We didn't have one argument. My house was clean, I did one load of laundry a week, I had leftovers and there were plenty of snacks in the house (except when my dad came to stay -- he ate them all).

We were like newlyweds. We went out to dinner and the movies. And we always agreed on which movie we would see. We took walks after dinner and, believe it or not, I even made breakfast for him on Sundays.

Now that the kids are home, our lives are not the same. My house is a wreck. Sneakers in the middle of the floor, socks balled up in the corner. Rock music blasting from bedroom stereos. I have six loads of laundry piled up, absolutely no food or snacks left. I haven't been able to watch one program on television and I've suffered through financial anxiety shopping for school clothes.

I am back in my role of referee: Stop poking, punching, picking on your brother; Stop talking to your sister there first, who left the glass plate/bowl on the table; go to your rooms. Gone are the quiet mornings enjoyed over a cup of coffee, gone are the tranquil evenings spent hand-in-hand in front of the television. Instead I wake up telling them to shut up, pick up and turn down.

I guess I should enjoy the time we have together. John will be off to college next year and Rocco only has three more years of high school before he is out of the nest. I guess I should look forward to family evenings and doing things together. I guess I should be thankful that my boys are not into drugs or hanging out on the street corner late at night. I guess I should remember the quiet times during the summer and look forward anxiously to next summer.

Antique auto festival Sunday

In the last years of the 19th century the first automobile began to appear in the U.S. The unusual contraptions sputtered along frightening many people as well as horses, dogs and chickens.

Some of the early cars had familiar names like Olds and Ford. Many had names that faded into history -- Duryea, Winton, Riker Electric, Stanley Steamer, Pope, Columbia -- just to name a few of about 2000 that have come and gone.

SECOND TIME AROUND... Candy is a spayed 4-year-old Collie mix, who was adopted out by P.A.W.S. and about two years later was found at a local shelter. Giving her a second chance, they called P.A.W.S. to say her time was up and she was scheduled to be euthanized. P.A.W.S. came to her rescue. She is fully inoculated, and has a sweet, calm personality and gets along with people, dogs, and cats of all ages. If you can give Candy, or one of our many dogs, cats, puppies or kittens a good permanent home, then call P.A.W.S. (Pet Adoption Waiting Station) at 498-8300. We are located on Range Rd., P.O. Box 4147, Linden, N.J. 07036. If you can't adopt, then please donate, we need your help. Please help to make our job easier -- spay/neuter your pet. Low cost is available.

them pre-World War II from New Jersey and surrounding states, will be exhibited.

A special attraction at the show will be the presentation by Greyhound Bus of an antique 1954 GMC "Scenticruiser", in excellent condition.

The 4-H club will sponsor an animal petting zoo for the Kiwanis Club of East Brunswick. The National Guard of N.J. will also be on hand with an exhibit of equipment, and there will be a display of new cars by several of the car dealers in the area and a barbershop quartet. A raffle drawing will be held at 3 p.m. for a replica corvette. Raffle tickets may be purchased from Kiwanis members.

For those in the process of restoring antique cars there will be a flea market of old assorted automobile parts, and also an opportunity to enter the restored car for judging. Refreshments will also be available.

Cars will be judged in 23 classes, some examples of which are: Model T 1909-27, Production 1930-35, Fire Trucks, Commercial and Custom Cars. The Judges look for original construction, authenticity, quality of restoration, original tools and mechanical working order. Entered cars must be registered the morning of the show for a $5 fee.

Some other features of this year's show will be a display of old farm tractors and some one-cylinder steam motors used for farm work. Admission is $3 for adults. Children are free with an adult. Ample parking is available, and it is free. This is the main fund-raiser event of the year for the Kiwanis Club of East Brunswick. All monies raised from the show will be used on community service projects.

Miss New Jersey is more than the girl next door

Patricia Lynne Bowman has the magic formula for success. In just four short years, it has taken this striking red-head from being the youngest Miss Ocean City in history to the newest Miss New Jersey; from being a high school cheerleader to Trenton State College's news anchorwoman; from being the girl next door to the multi-talented woman of the Eighties.

"It's simple," Patricia says about her successful formula, "To be winner, you have to think like a winner. That means not getting bogged down when things don't go your way. Respect yourself, work hard, and you'll make the opportunities come your way."

In a time when many young adults are confused and lack direction, Bowman's words may sound cliché. But her actions -- especially in becoming Miss New Jersey last June -- turn the cliché into reality.

Patricia Lynne Bowman was born on October 5, 1968, to a schoolteacher father and a realtor mother. She was raised with her two older brothers in Ocean City, a family resort town with old-fashioned values.

"I was like every other girl," she remembers. "My biggest goal was to follow a traditional career as a librarian or an executive secretary."

At the age of 15, though, her goals began to change. A brother's girlfriend wanted to enter the Miss Ocean City Pageant, but wouldn't do it alone. She wanted Patricia to join her. Patricia did -- and won, becoming the youngest Miss Ocean City in history.

That changed Patricia's life forever.

"Winning that pageant made me aware of the qualities I had within me," she relates. "My family always saw the special things in me. Now, I could see them, too."

So she decided to develop the talents she now saw in herself. Patricia developed her budding modeling career; she took acting, singing, and ballet lessons. She began touring in shows along the East Coast as a singer. Eventually, she was even offered a European modeling career -- but turned it down.

"That was my senior year of high school," Patricia recalls. "But my education was very important to me. And there were things like the prom and graduation, once missed, you can never have them back!"

MISS NEW JERSEY, Patricia Lynne Bowman, waves to hometown fans in Ocean City during the resort's annual Night in Venice boat parade.

Patricia says the pageants have taught her a lot about human nature, as well.

"Too many people aren't inspired to be the best they can be. Until my pageant competition, I was the same way. But now I want to get the message out: the sky's the limit. You can achieve your full potential!"

"As Miss New Jersey, I can take that message to today's kids. And as Miss America, I could reach even more people..."

Any way she looks at it, Patricia says, she's already a winner. Now that she has attained personal success, Patricia firmly believes it's time to "give back ... to use my title and my talents to help other people." To that end, Miss New Jersey has been doing a great deal of charity work. One charity, in particular, has had a profound effect on her.

"I've been doing work with the Sunshine Foundation," Bowman confides. "Not long ago, I spent some time with four children who had progeria -- a disease which accelerates aging in these kids. Here were children who would die of old age before they were teens, but they weren't sad. They were enjoying life, every precious moment they had. And that had a very definite effect on my perspective!"

The visit reinforced Patricia's desire to use her communications career and her crown as a way of reaching people.

"There's an inner strength in all of us," Patricia firmly believes. "I want to show people -- kids and adults -- that they can tap that strength if they really search for it. Once tapped, they can accomplish any goal they set ... and really start enjoying life."
