'...Have To Let The Leaves Lie Till Spring, Dear; The Blower's Leaking Oil'

Ah, the smell of burning leaves in the fall. It's only a mentiory now, but a precious one. Sad to think that my gene: ration may be the last to have experienced that most | School; studied at School of | free literature and other | sublime of autumn rituals.

Here's how it went: Instead of a howling blower, you of Westfield Art Association had a primitive tool called a "rake." You didn't have to fuel it, and it cost only a fraction of what you paid for that pollution-spewing high-tech leaf mover from the local "home MFA from Pratt Institute, Children are admitted free. High School District No. 1 George Obermeier, the and 4 p.m. & garden center." With the crude rake, you gave your limbs | work in collection of the NJ | For more information, call some: healthy exercise, pulling all the dry fallen leaves to- | State Chief Justice - Water- | 322-6240 or 561-8863. geth er into piles. And then - sin of sins! - One by one. | colors. instead of gathering them into bags or pumping them out into the street for your neighbors to mash under their car wheels, you tossed a lit match into each of those leaf piles! 'Then you leaned lazily on your rake, maybe puffed on a pirre if you were a smoker, and got lost in your thoughts - most likely thoughts of autumns past, evoked by that unmistrakable November redolence.

John T. McCutcheon, the noted editorial cartoonist, captured the essence of it in his 1907 two-panel "Injun Summer" classic. Both panels show a bearded old man seated on a log under a tree, rake in hand, puffing contentedly on a pipes, a young lad at his side. Both are staring absently at the sciene before them. In the top panel, the sun is low in the sky and the scene is a simple, idyllic one: a small pile: of smoldering leaves, separ ated by a crude log fence from a field of corn shocks. The lower panel depicts the boy's imagination as dusk falls and the old man presumably spins yarns about his youth on the plains. In the light of the rising full moon, the corn shocks become tepees and, in the smoke of the burning leaves, we see phantoms of American Indians in a ritual dance: around a campfire.

Now, I am as much in favor of pollution control as the next iffuy. But let's look at what's happened. Instead of the smoke from burning leaves (the long-established ritual was bannisd in most communities about 17-years ago), we now have the more acrid fumes from the smokestacks of the factorics that mass-produce those plastic bags we buy to put livot only that, but about the time the burning of leaves was tranned, it became fashionable again to have a wood-burning fireplace in the living room of one's home. Since you can't efficiently heat the house with the darned things, the burning of logs in them is nothing more than a frivolous warm th-evoking decorative touch.

When I let my dog have a run in the backyard on a cold winter's night, he comes back in reeking of smog from the smoking fireplace chimneys that pervade my community. To my nostrils, it's a smell that has a long way to go to match the more pleasant aroma of burning leaves -as I remem-

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION ... in recognition of the importance of the role of the family in sustaining the moral and spiritual strength of our community and our nation, Rahway Mayor Daniel L. Martin has proclaimed Thanksoiving Week, November 21, 1988 as National Family Week in the local community. This timely proclamation emphasizes the importance of the role of the family in our social and moral life. Pictured, left to right are Rahway Woman's Club member, Beverly French, Chairman of the American Home Life Department; Mayor Martin; and Idamarie Eggers, President of the Rahway Woman's Club. The Mayor's proclamation has been endorsed by the N.J. State Federation of Women's Clubs and the General Federation of Women's Clubs.
