Honoring veterans

For the past 50 years, America has had a turbulent relationship with the veterans of its armed forces. During World War II, when nearly every able-bodied young man, and many women, protected this country from Hitler and Tojo, they were considered heroes. The fact that almost every person knew someone in the armed forces endeared the public to the military. And victory over these definable enemies fostered a positive feeling. However, the Korean and Vietman conflicts caused a shift in the relationship between the military and civilian worlds. Vietnam especially contributed to a public distrust for men and women in uniform. The lack of public recognition led to a decline in morale which, in turn, contributed to an erosion of our military strength. Today, the situation has improved significantly. The growth in the defense budget under the Reagan administration resurrected the status and morale of America's armed forces. Successful military actions in Grenada, Panama, the Persian Gulf, Somalia, Haiti, and today's peacekeeping mission in Bosnia are examples of this country's renewed commitment to a strong military presence. While it is important to note the significance of a strong national foreign policy, that is not the focus of Veterans Day. Instead, Nov. 11 gives us the chance to acknowledge the individuals who contributed their time to all military operations, whether they were successes or failures. All that Veterans Day requires is a simple thank you to all those who have given of themselves to protecting those freedoms outlined by our founding fathers. We thank all veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces for their contribution to our including the United States. Flu is often called a respiratory disease, but it affects the whole body. The virus causes fevers, chills, weakness, loss of appetite and an aching body. Dry cough, nausea and hurning eyes may also occur. Fever mounts quickly, but usually subsides after two to three days, leaving the patient feeling exhausted. While most people with the flu recover in about a week; the elderly often suffer complications from the flu which can be fatal.

"The flu is a contagious type of virus that can cause serious illness is well as complications and even death in certain people," says Alvin Goldstein, D.O., clinical chairperson for the Department of Family Practice for Saint Barnabas Medial Center, Livingston, "Those ove or those who have ailments such diahetes, kidney disease, chronic eart or lung disease or HIV shoul e among the first to receive the accine. The present vaccine is ry effective." Those who could be most helped by flu vaccines include seniors ag 5 and older, health care workers, id those with chronic health conlitions. However, many people in igh-risk categories do not receive lu shots because of doubts about eir effectiveness and fear of side effects. An article in the Archives f Internal Medicine in 1994, escribes flu shots as "effective, educing serious complications of nfluenza by about one-half." The American Lung Association finds he vaccine to be 75 percent effective in preventing flu. Regarding to made from highly purified egggrown viruses that have been endered non-infectious. "It is very important that the vac cine be given at such a time so that the body can produce antibodies

acid goes a long, long way

WORRALL NEWSPAPERS

Each month, about 12,500 babies will be born in this country with birth defects. Sometimes, these birth defects just happen regardless. But some of these birth defects, serious birth defects of the brain and spine called neural tube defects, can be pre vented if a woman consumes 0.4 milligrams of folic acid prior to and dur-

In September 1992, the United States Public Health Service recommended that all women of childbearing age take folic acid to prevent spina bifida and other neural tube defects. During 1991, the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation had already begun a national health education effort about the importance of consuming folic acid. More than four years later, those recommendations have gone largely unheeded.

It wasn't developed in a laboratory and it's not a miracle drug. But what folic acid does is a miracle. ## reduction defeated

By Chris Suswal Managing Editor It doesn't seem like much - less than half a dollar, really. But City Councilman James Ful comer had vowed to pass it and Mayor James Kennedy has vowed to veto

"It" is a reduction in water rates that was defeated at last Tuesday's council meeting. The ordinance, sponsored by Republican Fulcomer, would have reduced water rates from $13.49 to $13 for every thousand cubic feet of water used. This applied to all customers of the Water Departthose who share their water supply. According to Fulcomer, "because water rates are too high for the amount of money spent on the Water Department every year." The Water Department was one of the city's departments that the Republicans on the council have tried to cut

during the budget process for this

Democratic Councilman Sal Mione strongly objected to the ordinance as Rahway High School plays a tight battle to the findid Democrats Nancy Saliga, Chester ish during the championship game of the Union County Tournament as the RHS Indians fell short to Westfield 1-0. ## Water rates | Senior citizens center gets funds for systems

By Sean Daily Staff Writer

The renovations continue at the senior citizen center on Esterbrook On Wednesday, the City Council voted to add even more money to the enovations, which have been budgeted for $480,000. This money will be used to upgrade the heating and cooling systems at the center. The bond ordinance will pump an extra $51,500, including $49,000 in bonds, into the senior citizens center to upgrade the heating system from oil to natural gas and to install a central air-conditioning system. Such systems are "standard for all senior citizens facilities that I've seen in the state," said Councilman James Fulcomer.

According to Fulcomer, a co-sponsor of the ordinance, the present heating system at the center is "antiquated" and "more appropriate for the 1930s." In addition, there is "no real cooling" system at the center. He added that the heating system is not heating "the way it should be, ment except for Merck & Co and and we have received some complaints."

> Fulcomer did not know when the job would be going out for bid and Tom Connel of the Housing Authority could not be reached for comment. The heating and air conditioning upgrades are just one of the repairs and upgrades that are being made at the center. The center had to close in 1995 as a safety precaution. Part of the roof had collapsed and it was feared that a forecasted eight inches of snow the week of the closing might cause further collapse.

The council has since pumped an initial $480,000, including $313,000 in bonds and more than $150,000 in federal community block grants, into the center for repairs and upgrades. The center reopened Sept. 21 with a new electrical system, a new sprinkler system, upgrades to the windows and repairs to the roof.

According to Mayor James Kennedy, a number of items still remain to be repaired or improved, such as the acoustics in the center and "little things: a gate here, a railing there."
