Springfield Autoland Senior Master Ford Technician William Georgaras was recently recognized by Ford Motor Company as a Master Technician. Michael D. Jordan, executive director of the North American Ford Customer Service Division, presents Georgaras with a plaque and hand-crafted pewter statue of a technician.

Georgaras has been a technician at Autoland for 14 years and he used his pursuit of knowledge to motivate and train other technicians. His list of completed training classes through Ford Motor Company is among the largest in the country.

Autoland Ford service manager, Michael D. Jordan, executive director of the North American Ford Customer Service Division, recognized Georgaras' achievements with a plaque and hand-crafted pewter statue of a technician. The presentation was made on behalf of Ford Motor Company.

It's finally here — the electric car

Toyota Motor Corp. recently announced the launch of the Prius, a five-passenger sedan powered by a unique hybrid drive system that combines a battery-powered electric motor with a small 1.8-liter gasoline engine and generator. The combination results in an electric vehicle that never has to be plugged for recharging. The Prius gets twice the gas mileage of a conventional car its size — up to 66 miles per gallon — and reduces the emission of harmful pollutants — CO, HC and NO<sub>x</sub> — by 90 percent. In addition, carbon dioxide emissions — which are blamed for global warming — are cut in half. The Toyota Hybrid System is a "parallel" system in which both the electric motor and the gasoline engine can drive the car. The engine can also recharge the batteries while powering the Prius. The Hybrid System blends the power of the motor and engine through a computerized power splitter with a planetary gear set that acts as an infinitely variable transmission. At start-up and under light loads, the electric motor provides all the drive power. The engine starts instantaneously when needed and automatically shuts down when the car is stopped or coasting. Regenerative braking converts the motor to a generator when the vehicle is slowed, helping to further charge the batteries. When it's running, the engine is kept within a narrow rpm range where it is most fuel-efficient and least polluting. If extra power is required for acceleration, the electric motor supplements it. Other fuel-saving features of the Prius include:

- A high-efficiency air conditioner and insulated body structure.
- Electric power-steering assist that does not require engine power.
- Nickel-metal hydride batteries that are more efficient than conventional lead-acid batteries.
- Low-rolling resistance tires.

This combination of gasoline and electric power offers the best of both worlds — long range, freedom from recharging, exceptional fuel economy and drastically reduced emissions.

Memorial Day parade honors fallen heri

They came from all over for the Rahway Memorial Day parade. The people in the parade marched to the periodic blast from a cannon belonging to American Legion Post No. 102 from Linden and a rifle salute from the James M. Smith Co. 400. There were five trucks from Rahway, several from Linden, and even Merck & Co.'s private fire department, an old ladder truck from the Union County Fire Academy, the Union County Hazardous Materials truck and various Department of Public Works vehicles, all making their flanking, noisy way to City Hall. Cash Scouts, Girl Scouts and Brownies rubbed shoulders with the Department of Recreation's band, the Rahway High School Marching Band and the Rahway All City Elementary School Band, who rubbed shoulders with the Knights of Columbus, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts. When asked how her daughter looked, Jester just said, "She looks good, real good."

"Parade's real good," said John Duncan, who was there with his two sons, Timothy and Sean. "Yeah. We don't get many parades in town, so it's important to come out," said Pat Duncan. This is at least the 51st year that Rahway has had a Memorial Day parade — going back to 1946, with only one cancellation, last year. The parade this year wound its way down West Milnes Avenue to Irving Street, then turned onto West Main Street and Main Street, passing a reviewing stand set up in front of City Hall.

There were no figures as to how many people there were watching the parade. When asked this, Bob Madlady, Executive Director of the city's Veterans Central Committee, said, "I have no idea, son, but it was good."

"I think it's one of the very important holidays because it's people who deserve to be remembered for what they did for their country," said Jesse Knochen, a student in Rahway High School's Junior Reserve Officers Training Course.

Pat was there when a "truckload of veterans" — at least that's what the people on the reviewing stand called it — drove by on West Milnes Avenue. "Semper Par!" he cheered. "God! Have a nice holiday!" called back the doves.

The veterans who marched in the parade appreciated the people coming out.

What we like is the community spirit," said Bill Duffy of Veterans Veterans of America Post No. 688. "They're out there, they're clapping for us. It's shows we didn't get 40 years ago and we're getting it today."

Janusz raises questions on new UCIA contract

Say you just read about the UCIA incinerator. It does give the city $2.2 million a year.

But, according to Councilman Frank Janusz, Rahway could be in danger of losing this money in the future.

That's because the Rahway City Council approved amendments to the Host Community Agreement with the UCIA on May 11. This Host Community Agreement is how the city gets an annual $2,198,899 in Host Community Fees — money paid by the UCIA to the city simply for the privilege of having its incinerator in Rahway.

According to Mayor James Kennedy, who is also chairman of the UCIA Board of Commissioners, this agreement is better than the previous one. The old agreement would have run out in 16 years, while the new one will run for 25 years, giving the city an extra $19,790,091 over the life of the agreement.

But, according to Janusz, the city is now vulnerable to losing part or even all of this money.

This is because a deficiency agreement with the UCIA that the UCIA Board of Commissioners passed at their meeting last Thursday.

The new Host Community Agreement and the deficiency agreement are only two of several pieces of legislation about the UCIA that have been written up.

This is because the UCIA is leasing the incinerator to Oglethorpe. The lease will be for 25 years, in return, Oglethorpe will pay $175 million of the UCIA's $294 million in bonded debt.

According to Kennedy, the new Host Community Agreement differs from the old agreement only in length and where the Host Community Fees will come from. Part of these fees — $850,000 a year — will be paid by Oglethorpe; the rest will come from the UCIA.

The deficiency agreement, on the other hand, is how the county will get rid of the UCIA's bonded debt. The county will be responsible for 11,000 tons of this.

Frederick Chairman Daniel Sullivan said at the meeting that the deficiency agreement contains nothing that affects the Host Community Agreement.

Travel the Net for historic information

A treasure trove of New Jersey history is now available on the Internet. A.W. Mansoff, president of the Institute of American Historic Technology, announced. More than 400 photographs of New Jersey history can be downloaded by computer users worldwide by way of a new website, www.almanoff.com.

The photos were taken between 1918 and 1952 when the last street-running trolleys were removed from service and accepted by the Public Service Coordinated Transport Co. as a part of the New Jersey Transit.

This historic treasure includes hundreds of street scenes in Essex and Hudson counties, together with fascinating supporting text. Most of the photos were taken by A.W. Mansoff and Charles Weger, Jr., D.D., during their years from 1940 to 1948. Older photos are from various sources, private and public.

Both photos and text may be downloaded and reproduced at no cost for non-commercial purposes only. The photos and text include on volume of a 5-volume series of books titled "Trolley Treasures: The Writings Years from 1940 to 1948. Older photos are from various sources, private and public.

Also available on the site are articles of New Jersey transportation history including the old Public Service trolley terminal in Newark and the great elevated structure built by the Hudson County Railroad at Westfield in the 19th century.

Essex County photos include, among others, the Newark City Subway before the present PCC cars entered service in January, 1954; scenes from along the Bloomfield line, the Orange and the Central line, and photos of the transfer by flatbed truck of 55-ton railcars out of storage at the Pacific Wharf to the old Roosevelt Car House at 14th St. Newark in preparation for the old service.

This remarkable collection, Mansoff said, is dedicated to the people of New Jersey, for teachers, historians and researchers and for kids who have never seen a trolley car. The site was prepared to commemorate the opening of New Jersey's first new trolley line in more than 50 years—New Jersey Transit's waterfront line along the Hudson in Hudson County and the Bloomfield-Elizabeth route in Essex County.

Like his predecessor, this Goddill is the result of atomic bomb testing, this time in the French Polynesian islands. A team of American scientists is assembled to study the effects of the bomb on the local ecosystem. In the process, they discover that the Goddill is a mutant creature that has been created by the bomb.

Chaz steals the show in 'Bullets Over Broadway'

By Jim Riffel

Woody Allen exhibits his amazing depth of human understanding and filmmaking talent in his 24th feature film, "Bullets Over Broadway."

Written-director Woody Allen, who has been called "the most prolific and successful filmmaker in the world," returns to the screen with a back story to the stage-stopping performance of Chaz Palmer.

Palmer, a "Bullets Tale" plays Chaz, a mad kingpin's right-hand man who acts as a bodyguard to the kingpin's girlfriend after she is cast in a Broadway play backed with the mob boss' cash. Chaz's accomplices, played hilariously by the appealing Jennifer Tilly, to dress rehearsal, sitting in the back of the empty theater as the cast and crew run through their scenes. John Cusack plays David Shayne, the writer and director of the play, who, at first, is unwilling to change a single word of his "masterpiece." But after seeing Helen Sinclair (Julia Roberts) in the role of the play's heroine, he is won over by her beauty and talent.

During one afternoon, Olive gets in an argument with Shayne over one of her lines. After Shayne verbally abuses her, Chaz, baying from the back of the empty theater, stands up. "This is ridiculous," he shouts. "She's right, the line stinks." Shayne is stunned. Chaz calmly continues, "In fact, the whole scene doesn't work." Shayne storms off the stage and the whole day is ruined.

Shayne begins to question his talent and believes his masterpiece may not be that good after all. In a confused state, he approaches the critic and asks him to elaborate on his earlier opinion. Chaz rewrites the scene and the next day the cast rehearses the new and improved piece.

Day after day, the gangster writes and Shayne, the artist, takes credit for the magnificent changes. And Chaz doesn't seem concerned. "Don't worry, I won't let anyone know that you're not writing this stuff," he tells Shayne. Everyone is so awed by Shayne's genius that the whole atmosphere of the working environment is magical. The cast feels transformed, inspired. Chaz just sits in the back of the theater, watching Shayne and the actors bring his words to life. There's just one little problem.

Chaz didn't have any objections to Olive's raucous performance while she was saying Shayne's lines, but hearing her destroy the words he himself had written, it's like listening to fingernails slide across a chalkboard. This turning point ultimately leads to a serious trouble, for Chaz must witness Olive inflict her poison before hundreds on opening night.

Phyl's is the place to go for classic comfort

By Jim Riffel

Phyl's Place is the quintessential New Jersey bar. Located on Elizabeth Avenue in Linden, the cozy comfort inside belies the nondescript concrete facade.

Proprietor Phyllis Meola and staff strive to please. Staff and customers are friendly, and supportive of local bands who provide rock-and-roll entertainment on weekends. 1 visited Phyl's Place at the end-of-the-summer bash in September. Jersey rockers Jim Kelly and The Cranks provided the entertainment, while guests sampled the buffet, a nice summer special.

Band manager John Colyer said that Meola has been very supportive of The Cranks, as well as other local bands.

"She gave us our first show," said Colyer. "Phyl's was one of the first bars to let us go in there and play. How can you forget that first show?" Colyer said the band first played at Phyl's in early 1996, and has since returned three times.

"I love it there, it's a classic bar," said Kelly. "This bar represents NJ. It's a little bar that sits on the corner, it holds maybe 40 people. It's got a jukebox, it's got a pool table, it's got a small bar, it's got your local hang-out in there. Actually," he added, "when you walk through the front it looks like the front of somebody's house."

Phyl's has the usual bar amenities, and in addition sponsors a shuffleboard and a bowling league. The space is small, but hospitable. Phyl's is located at 636 Elizabeth Ave., Linden. For information, call (908) 925-8990.

Art & Crafts

Writers are invited to join the guild

A new creative home for playwrights is being formed under the joint auspices of the Union County Arts Center and the newly created Rahway Arts Guild. The purpose of the Writers Collective at Union County Arts Center is to offer an environment where playwrights can meet regularly, where they can experiment, hear their craft and explore their art in a safe harbor of like-minded peers. The Collective is not envisioned as a classroom where the basics of the craft would be taught, but rather a workshop where one-acts, full-lengths, children's shows and musicals are created and re-created.

At each session, portions of new work under development will be read and discussed in supportive terms. The writers will be encouraged to create a list of questions that will be discussed in the next session. Although reading will be done primarily by members of the Collective, guest talent may be brought in from time-to-time for specific projects.

The Writers Collective will be facilitated by playwright and journalist Lou J. Salasworth. Salasworth holds an M.F.A. in playwright from Rutgers University and is currently artistic director of PinWorth Productions, a company dedicated to fostering new playwrights and introducing audiences to the experience of plays-in-process.

Shakespeare Festival prepares for new, more expansive season

By Jim Riffel

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival has announced its 1998 inaugural season lineup in its new $7.5 million facility. "The privilege of creating a new theater is a landmark event in the life of this institution and its artists," says Artistic Director Bonnie J. Monte. "The choice of plays for such an inaugural season must equal the occasion. We have assembled an truly epic collection of work from the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th centuries. Our new home also heralds the start of the Festival's 10th anniversary season from June through September followed by two winter offerings in November and December."

Opening the 36th season and the Festival's 10th anniversary season will be one of the world's most flamboyant and passionate classics, Edmond Rostand's 1898 romance included a five-play summer season from June through September followed by two winter offerings in November and December.

A free press is the strength behind democracy.
 At Worral Community Newspapers, reporters learn what it takes to become good reporters. Why? Because reporting for one or more of our weekly newspapers means becoming involved in the communities we serve. From news stories to features, from council coverage to public blotters, from community events to the Board of Education, reporters are the eyes and ears of all of our readers. Worral Newspapers, which publishes 18 newspapers serving 26 towns, has openings for reporters in its Essex and Union County editions. If you think you have what it takes to be a reporter, send resume and clips to Editor Tom Canavan, P.O. Box 319, Union, NJ, 07083, or fax to (908) 686-4169.
 Be part of a company whose mission is to preserve democracy. Worral Newspapers is an equal opportunity employer.
