STIFFLING COMPETITION
We hear a good deal of Socialism in these days of conflict between capital and labor, and the majority of us pass lightly over the subject, realizing its importance. But this movement, which is gaining impetus because of the growing unrest among the masses, may sometime become an important factor in our economic and political existence.

Socialism is a doctrine, a philosophy, a way of life. It is a "new Christianity," it means to us a condition in life where the poor man receives equal benefit with the rich, where graft and corruption are suppressed, where all live on an equal basis of life. It is to them a realization of Moore's Utopia. Naturally, the large portion of the Socialistic party is composed of laboring men, for whom Socialistic theories are almost as old as economic speculation itself. It is only since the advent of the modern industrial system that Socialism has taken such a deep hold on the minds of men.

At present, the wage earning class is becoming solidified. Their very progress to a more human standard of life has made them painfully conscious of the inequalities of wealth and opportunity, of crying social evils and misarrangement of justice, and of seizure by individuals of that which seems to them the national heritage. To the mass of men, Socialism is an instinctive cry of anguish, and a vague expression of the demand for social progress.

Yet, with all the inspired ideas, Socialism is one-sided; it exaggerates the possibilities of public action. In his anxiety to escape from the evils of the present, the socialist is willing to trust himself to the fortunes of a dubious future. Impatient of the shortcomings of distribution, he does not realize that his scheme will endanger production. Desirable of eliminating profits, he does not see that he will stifle production. In his eagerness to remove actual inequalities he aims to reduce economic life to the hopeless level of a dull and low uniformity.

This is the danger of Socialism. When we stifle competition, we put a halt on progress. With human nature as it exists today, and promises to exist for an incalculable future, Socialism, if ever realized in practice, would be the death-knell of economic advancement and true social betterment.

SAFE AND SANE FOURTH
The Board of Trade, Rahway's most wide-awake organization is laying plans for a big safe and sane celebration on the Fourth of July. The committee in charge has decided to make a personal notice to every citizen, asking for some contribution towards the affair. In the morning, an athletic carnival will be held in Riverside Park, and no admission will be charged to those desiring to attend. Here is one-way sport lovers can receive entertainment in return for a contribution.

In the afternoon, the Rahway A. A. will meet one of the fastest teams in the vicinity, and a game of football, basketball or baseball is promised. Fireworks will be displayed from the Rahway River at Hazelwood avenue. This exhibition in itself is worth a good admission fee, but hundreds of citizens will view it free of charge.

Rahway is waking up; we have taken our place among the progressive cities of the State, and it now remains for the people to support the leaders who have made this possible.

Give your share toward the Fourth of July celebration.

Daddy's Bedtime Story
The Easter Party in the Banquet.

Daddy was very, very tired. Somehow he seemed to feel more tired than he had for many days. But just the same, with all his weary bones, he was glad he had Jack and Evelyn to tell a story to before bedtime.

With the children the story slowly and very quietly—so quietly that Jack and Evelyn didn't hear him. And that was most unusual. Jack thought he heard a creak on the stairs and told Evelyn about it. But she had heard nothing, so Jack decided it must have been a mistake. And then daddy appeared.

"I was right," said daddy.
"And I was wrong," said Evelyn.
"Right and wrong, who's right, who's wrong?" asked daddy.
Evelyn laughed. "You mustn't pretend you don't know, for you heard Jack saying he thought he heard something on the stairs, and that made you all the quieter. Now, didn't I, daddy?" "Pess up!"

"Well, maybe it did," laughed daddy.
"You're late tonight, aren't you, daddy?" asked Jack.
"Yes," replied daddy. "I had a long day, and then there were a lot of other things to attend to."

Jack and Evelyn looked at each other very knowingly. They knew daddy had been getting little chocolate bunnies and chocolate hens with green ribbons around their necks and fuzzy little yellow play chickens whose heads chimed off. And then daddy was tired.

"I don't suppose we could please guess where you went, daddy?"
"Oh, I am sure you couldn't," said daddy.
"Of course neither could guess, as it would have spoiled all the fun. We're talking so much," said Jack. "How about the story?"

"Oh, yes, the story," said Evelyn.
"I am going to tell you tonight about an Easter party in the banquet," said daddy. "All the little yellow chickens and the old mother hens and the duck family were the ones who started the party. The little fuzzy chickens and the ducks were most enthusiastic because they were so young. They weren't as much as they thought they were such fun. They even danced all the fun of getting ready."

But at last the mother hens and the mother ducks said that the party was ready and then they began.

"First of all, they played games, but the best part of the party and the part that the little yellow chickens liked the very best of all was the supper, and they asked the mother hens and the mother ducks to give them another dance very, very soon, for they had never tasted such delicious party food before."

Willie had relinquished his position in the big bakery, where he labored in the pie department, and had gone to work in a carpenter's shop for smaller wages. The special investigator heard about Willie's situation.

"Aren't you sorry you left the bakery and came to this shop?" he asked kindly.
"No," Willie answered quickly.
"But you get less money."

"Yes," Willie answered quickly.
"Well, what was the matter with the bakery?" he asked.
"This is the way," explained Willie. "I hurt my mouth. I was in the pie department, and had gone to work in a carpenter's shop for smaller wages. The special investigator heard about Willie's situation."

TIGERS OVERCOME
K. OF ST. PETER'S

The Tiger Field club of Woodbridge took the measure of the strong Knights of St. Peter, of New Brunswick, before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans at Recreation Park, Woodbridge, Sunday afternoon, by the score of 4-0.

Phonon was on the mound for the Tigers and was in rare form, allowing only thirty batters to face him and striking eleven of them out, allowing only three hits. The pitcher of "Buck" Trout, of the Knights, the latter was one of the main features of the game. "Buck" Trout's drive is one of the longest on record for the Woodbridge ball yard. Joe Walsh, the manager of the Tigers, brought out a new man in Klein, for Sunday's game and to say that the fans were well pleased with his play and his team's victory is no exaggeration.

Next Sunday the Tigers have a big challenge in the Grove Department team of the Stinger League.

NO MORE GAMES FOR A. A. S.
There are no more games for the High School baseball team, including for this season, although the Jersey City High game which was postponed, has not been played. It is not known for a certainty whether the game will be played or not.

The High School athletes are now devoting their time to training for the triangular track meet at Summit next Monday afternoon. A goodly band will be sent from the local school to help in the game for the "Buck" Trout, of the Knights, the latter was one of the main features of the game.

The matter was referred to the proper committees, on a joint resolution, to take action.

Councilman Oxman told the board that the streets committee had purchased 13 rubbish receptacles, which would be placed in places where most needed. The Memorial Day committee reported a balance in hand of $3, and was discharged with thanks.

The athletic committee reported in addition to the Fourth of July program of a tug of war contest between teams from the volunteer fire companies and the name of John A. Over-ments according to the peculiar nature of the tendencies or weaknesses of the one whose organism its effects find lodgment. Many a death long before its time, in addition to many a depleted, nervous and general physical condition, is due directly to it. There is, probably no agency that brings out more undesirable results than worry; and this one fact should arouse us to allow it absolutely no place in our lives.—Woman's Home Companion.

Union State of New Jersey
County of Hudson
I, 1914 for the following described work:
work:
A new reinforced, concrete arch bridge over the Rahway river at George avenue, Rahway, N. J. Alternate bids will also be received for steel beam and reinforced concrete arch bridge.
Plans and specifications for this work may be examined at the office of the County Engineer, 120 Broad street, Elizabeth, N. J.
Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $1,000.00, as required by the specifications, as evidence of good faith.
The right is reserved by the committee to contract for any type bridge covered by the plans and specifications, and to reject any or all bids as they may deem best for the interests of the County of Union.
