The second week's exhibit and special solling of new 1915 furs has started with added interest. Everything as represented. THE STYLES are faultlessly correct. They will remain so, as the world's fushion directors before adjourning settled the styles for the coming winter. PRICES are more than reasonably low for the reliable qualities offered. While the difference in price generation given us by the makers and our narrowed margin of profit go to our customers to create active August business. We know that furs of same grade will not be bought at lower prices later in the season; in fact the exigencies of the European War is bound to make far prices soar very high. As an example of our range we quote the following
