PLAN LACKS SUPPORT — Democratic Majority Leader Sen. Matthew Feldman is surrounded by newsmen in the hallway of the State House in Trenton after caucus yesterday. Feldman, speaking for the majority said that the statewide property tax may be abandoned on Monday.

Fading support seen for property tax plan

By JAMES H. RUBIN

TRENTON (AP) — A proposed statewide property tax to solve New Jersey's school funding crisis is floundering and may be abandoned on Monday by Senate Democrats.

Senate Democratic leaders said yesterday the proposal was still alive but did not hold any real chance that it would win approval.

"It's still in the oxygen tent. It hasn't died," said Assistant Senate Majority Leader Joseph P. Merlino, D-Mercer, who supported an income tax.

The plan was submitted to the legislature this week by a bipartisan legislative committee headed by Senate President Frank J. Dodd, D-Essex.

After a Senate caucus on the program yesterday, Dodd avoided newsmen waiting in a State House hallway by taking another exit from the meeting room.

But Senate Majority Leader Matthew Feldman, D-Bergen, who had said he was prepared to support the plan, told reporters there was no significant support for the plan. He said a conclusive meeting on the proposal will be held Monday.

"The patient is still alive," Feldman said. But he added that senators were taking a new look at the concept of an income tax as an answer to New Jersey's huge fiscal needs.

Last summer, the Senate blocked Democratic Gov. Brendan T. Byrne's proposed $1 billion income tax after the measure barely passed the Assembly.

The legislature is now confronted with a Jan. 1 deadline from the State Supreme Court to riase money to pay for an overhaul of school funding. In addition, the Byrne Administration has forecast a budget deficit next year ranging between $350 million and $640 million.

The worsening financial picture has revived talk of an income tax plan, scaled down from Byrne's proposal, which might get some Republican support.

For example, Sen. Raymond H. Bateman of Somerset County, one of the most prominent GOP legislators, said he could support an income tax proposal to raise about $300 million a year. He said he expected the legislature to move in that direction.

Dodd's proposal for a uniform statewide property tax had encountered immediate and strong opposition, particularly from critics who said it would force property taxes upward in most communities. Sponsors of the plan said the property taxes would only go up in less than half the communities, particularly suburban districts which would pay a bigger share of school costs in poorer cities and rural areas.

In another development, Sen. Anthony Scardino Jr., D-Bergen, said the legislature should petition the Supreme Court for an extension of the Jan. 1 deadline.

"I call up my colleagues to stand up to the implication that the legislature has done nothing to meet the court's decision," Scardino said. The senator maintained that the legislature's willingness to study the problem demonstrated its good faith.

He said the legislature should be permitted to resolve the problem "free of deadlines and scare tactics."

The legislature has had all year to solve the problem without reaching any agreement thus far.

Citizens anti-pollution suits get approval of legislature

By JOHN T. McGOWAN

The bill passed the Senate Thursday, 30-6.

The Senate, the only house that met, received Gov. Brendan T. Byrne's nomination of Mrs. Virginia Annich of Pennington as director of the Division of Consumer Affairs.

Meanwhile, Sen. John J. Fay, D-Middlesex, said he was delaying confirmation of the governor's nomination of Mrs. Penelope Kuykendall of East Brunswick as director of the new Division of Women until she explains why one of her checks bounced in a supermarket.

The bill authorizing citizen suits passed over the objections of some senators who said it would cost jobs in a state already suffering from high unemployment.

Majority Leader Matthew Feldman, D-Bergen, said the bill was not offered as a choice between pollution and jobs.

He said industries that want to pollute are not welcome in the state.

The bill now goes to Byrne, who has already said he supports it.

Sen. Thomas G. Dunn, D-Union, who led the opposition to the bill, said it would chase some industries out of the state, and he called it environmental overkill.

He said it invited whimsical suits.

Dunn said the bill had been amended to strike a provision for suits to stop potential pollution. He said another provision was inserted assessing legal costs against people who bring a suit and lose.

"This is no invitation for cranks, lunatics and nuts to go to court and have a field day," Feldman said.

Also passed were a package of bills extending medical benefits coverage to newborn babies. These, too, had previously passed the Assembly but will require further action there because of Senate amendments.

The amendments were made to include the financial protection for unwed mothers.

Sen. Alfred N. Beadleston, R-Monmouth, said that under some policies babies are not eligible for inclusion in medical plans until a week or more old. He said he knew of one family hit with medical bills in excess of $5,000 for an infant less than a week old.

"It was a crushing blow from which they have never recovered," he said.

The Senate approved and sent to the Assembly a bill that would permit the assessment of condominium apartments for tax purposes on the same basis as private homes.

Both houses return to Trenton Monday.

Slowdown in U.S. economy cooling the rate of inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The slowdown in the nation's economy seems finally to be cooling the rate of inflation, the latest government figures show.

Although most prices continue to rise, there is a definite easing in the rate of price increases for industrial commodities and non-food consumer items. And some other prices actually show signs of declining.

However, public perception of this phenomenon may be blurred somewhat by a decrease in the individual's real spending power.

The government's Consumer Price Index released Thursday showed that prices of non-food consumer goods increased six-tenths of one per cent in October, the second consecutive monthly slowdown in the rate of rise and the lowest increase since last December.

There were actual declines during the month — on a seasonally adjusted basis — in prices of women's and girl's apparel and in gasoline and motor oil.

The Wholesale Price Index last week showed a 1.1 per cent increase in wholesale prices of industrial commodities during October, which was less than half the rate of increase during most of the previous nine months.

All this does not mean a general decline in prices is around the corner, but government economists say future increases will be smaller and less painful to consumers.

One economist with the President's Council of Economic Advisers also cautioned yesterday that the rate of increase could pick up again in months ahead. But there was general agreement the size of price rises will be down.

The cost of this slight improvement in inflation has been high, especially in terms of lost jobs.

Virtually everybody, including President Ford, says the nation either is in a recession or entering one. The nation's jobless rate hit 6 per cent in October and is certain to rise higher because of widespread layoffs in the auto industry and the adverse economic impact of the coal strike.

In addition, food prices have shown little slowdown and are unlikely to because of poor crops. The increase in food prices during October was 1.3 per cent.

The overall increase in October consumer prices, including both food and non-food items, was nine-tenths of one per cent, down from 1.2 per cent in September and 1.3 per cent in August.

Simply put, the economic slowdown is working to restrain inflation because people are buying less, either because they can't afford to or because they are discouraged by the already high prices.

The overall increase in the cost of living during the first 10 months of this year is 10.6 per cent compared with an 8.8 per cent increase during all of 1973.

A worker's real spending earnings — which are earnings after taxes and after compensating for inflation — were down three-tenths of one per cent in October, and 4.9 per cent in the past year.

Less buying means producers are having more trouble selling their goods and they are buying less of the materials they need to make the goods, such as steel or lumber. The result is lower demand throughout the economy, and less pressure on prices everywhere.

The government's tight money and high interest policies of the past year are partly responsible for the slowdown in buying, especially in the home building industry. Fewer new homes means a decline in purchases of building materials, appliances and household goods of all kinds.

In recent months, the Federal Reserve Board has relaxed its credit policies and some improvement in the housing industry is expected by spring. The board evidently feels it has tightened the screws on credit about as tight as it could in its effort to control inflation.

New figures released yesterday by the Commerce Department on orders for durable goods, such as furniture, appliances, automobiles and industrial machinery, show the effect of the business slowdown.

Defense to cut jobs of 7,500

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department has decided on economy measures that will eliminate more than 7,500 civilian jobs, congressional sources say.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger scheduled a news conference today to announce details of the cutbacks. The Associated Press obtained information about some of the planned reductions in advance.

The economy measures include the closing by the end of fiscal 1977 of Philadelphia's Frankford Arsenal, which employs 3,800 civilians, and elimination of jobs in at least 10 other installations, most of them in California.

The reductions on Army installations are expected to save $115 million annually.

No Navy facilities were expected to be reduced, but Schlesinger was expected to announce some Air Force reorganizations and consolidations and some changes in the Defense Supply Agency.

The Lexington-Blue Grass Army Depot in Lexington, Ky., will be cut from a civilian work force of about 4,200 to about 1,600.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., said the cutbacks would cost a total of 1,252 civilian jobs in California with 883 of them at Sharpe Army Depot at Lathrop.

Tunney said other jobs will be eliminated at the following California installations: Sacramento Army Depot, Alameda Defense Supply Agency installation, the San Francisco office of the Defense Contract Administration Service, the Air Defense Radar Station at Boron, Edwards Air Force Base and Castle Air Force Base.

The Savanna, Ill., and Pueblo, Colo., Army depots also will lose employes, but it could not be determined how many.

Additional jobs will be transferred from one installation to another. In one of these moves 1,119 civilians will be transferred from the Rome Air Development Center in Rome, N.Y., Rep. Donald Mitchell, R-N.Y., said.

One congressional source said about half of the employes given transfers could be expected to quit their defense jobs rather than relocate.

The Army indicated its actions will eliminate marginal facilities, reduce overhead costs and use resources more efficiently.

Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway told members of the Kentucky congressional delegation yesterday that Congress and the Ford administration are putting pressure on the Army to cut its budget.

He told the congressmen, who had asked him to withdraw his recommendation for reducing the Lexington-Blue Grass Depot, that no personnel changes were expected before mid-1975.

The Department of Defense program for stability of civilian employment will help employes thrown out of work find new jobs. And the President's Economic Adjustment Committee is to help communities hard hit by the cutbacks to get back on their feet.

Jury to weigh chimp case

By WILLIAM J. ZAORSKI

FREEHOLD — A jury is expected to decide today whether Mr. Jiggs, billed as "the smartest chimp in the world," so frightened an Ocean Township woman in a Bergen County restaurant that she should be compensated for injuries she allegedly suffered from that confrontation.

While Mr. Jiggs, an 11-year-old full grown chimpanzee, is not a direct party defendant in this personal injury suit, his owner, Ronald A. Winters is. Also a defendant is Jack Fricke, owner of Fricke's Old Hook Inn, Emerson.

The civil action was brought by Mrs. Joan Hemmer of 1512 Garden Drive, Ocean Township, who, through her attorney, George M. Chamlin of West Long Branch, maintains that Mr. Jiggs so frightened her when he appeared without warning at the table where she was dining with a friend that she leaped from her seat and smashed into a wall behind her, injuring the left side of her face and body.

Mr. Jiggs made a court appearance Wednesday dressed in a Boy Scout uniform and wearing bright red roller skates. At that time, Mr. Jiggs, who stands four feet tall, roller-skated up the aisle to the witness stand and sat down on a step in front of it. He then scampered off and paused briefly on a seat at the defense table before leaving the courtroom.

Mr. Winters testified he attempted Feb. 27, 1972, to enter the restaurant through a side door which led to the banquet room but that it was locked so he entered through the main door, first bringing in a small motorcycle for Mr. Jiggs and then returning for the animal.

The witness maintained that as he walked through the dining area, he said out loud, "Pardon me, coming through. Showtime," to clear the aisle.

Irwin and Smith to lose authority seats

TRENTON — Gov. Brendan T. Byrne yesterday nominated Salvatore Bontempo of Florham Park, former Democratic state chairman, and Robert Jablonski of Clifton, to replace Joseph C. Irwin and Sylvester C. Smith on the New Jersey Highway Authority.

Mr. Irwin, Monmouth County freeholder director and a Republican, has been serving for the past four months as a holdover. Mr. Smith, an Essex County Democrat, has been serving in a holdover capacity since 1973. Terms on the authority are for five years.

The nominations contradict earlier reports that the two holdover members would continue to serve indefinitely.

A spokesman for Gov. Byrne had said the governor would not consider appointments to the authority until he learns the fate of a bill which would increase the membership on the authority from five to at least seven members.

At least one Monmouth County Democrat had formally applied for the authority post. However, he subsequently said he didn't want it. He is Richard Bonello, a Long Branch lawyer and Democratic fund-raiser.

Mrs. Anne D. Campbell, Fair Haven, the vice chairman of the state Democratic party, said she knew of no other people from Monmouth County who have formally asked to be appointed to the authority.

Mrs. Campbell works in the Secretary of State's office and is in charge of screening applicants for patronage jobs.

Richard T. O'Connor, a Freehold lawyer and former county Democratic chairman, was reportedly also interested in the post, but had not formally applied for it.

A spokesman for the Secretary of State's office, which handles patronage for the governor, said there was virtually no possibility that Mr. Irwin would be reappointed by the state Democratic administration.

Pending ratification of the appointments, the authority is dominated by the Republicans, who hold three of the five seats. The only GOP seat which can be changed is that held by Mr. Irwin.

However, the two remaining seats held by Republicans expire in 1975, and Gov. Byrne could then appoint Democrats, giving the Democrats a 4-1 majority on the authority.

Reading, math test scores down again

TRENTON (AP) — One and one is two, and an M is not a W.

But the State Department of Education said yesterday that it doesn't come out that way often enough on public school pupils' test papers.

The department released yesterday its analysis of the latest series of basic skills achievement tests given public school pupils.

The result: more of the same from 1972 when the first statewide tests were given. The department said many marks in basic reading and mathematical skills were clearly unsatisfactory, and satisfactory was as good as any of them got.

However, department officials said New Jersey pupils are not unique in this regard. They said testing in other areas of the country has produced similar results.

The tests were given last November to fourth, seventh and tenth grade pupils. The first statewide tests in 1972 were given in the fourth and twelfth grades.

Tested were such things as measurement, vocabulary, identifying vowel sounds, interpretative skills and use of fractions.

The results officially released yesterday had leaked out and resulted in stories emphasizing the low scores.

But Education Commissioner Fred G. Burke, while saying that unsatisfactory performance was legitimate cause of concern, said, "We must not . . . concentrate unduly on the negative areas which led to lower scores."

"These reports are not an end-point," he said. "Instead, they are the beginning of the educational improvement process."

He said the tests should be useful to educators in pinpointing needs in their classrooms.

"It now becomes the responsibility of all educators and the friends of education to move rapidly to meet these needs," he said.

Burke said the tests were not designed to compare schools to see which has done better. But he said they should prove useful in helping the legislature decide what will satisfy the state constitutional mandate for a "thorough and efficient education."

Other than commenting on the lower scores in city schools which educators said could be partly explained by large non-English speaking populations, the report made no comparison of schools or school districts individually.

The report said there are little marked differences in pupil performance statewide.

Bill sets study on beaches

TRENTON — State Sen. Herbert J. Buehler, D-Monmouth, introduced a bill yesterday, co-sponsored by two other county legislators, which would create a legislative commission to study any new regulations involving public access to beaches in the state.

The bill's cosponsors are Sen. Alfred N. Beadleston, R-Monmouth, and Sen. Eugene Bedell, D-Monmouth.

Mr. Buehler said the commission would be authorized to study the impact that any new regulations would have on communities which now operate municipal beaches.

He said he and the other two county senators are particularly concerned about a bill that Sen. John Fay, D-Middlesex, is about to introduce governing public access to beaches.

A spokesman for Sen. Fay said his bill would generally require that municipalities operating beaches not charge a discriminatory fee. The spokesman said the bill would require that the fee charged be the same for residents and non-residents alike. He also said the bill would require that fees not be excessive.

The spokesman said the bill does not define what is an excessive fee.

The county's senatorial delegation is afraid that under the Fay bill, many shore municipalities that operate beaches might be required to lower their rates.

"We want to be sure that Monmouth County officials and citizens can have a chance to give input into the bill," said Sen. Buehler. "Some shore towns could be adversely affected by this bill in terms of the revenue they receive from beach use. They rely on this revenue to hold down their tax rate," he said.

He noted that municipalities will still have the responsibility of maintaining the beaches and supplying lifeguards. "If these towns are forced to lower their fees, they will run into financial problems," he said.

Under Sen. Buehler's bill, the legislative commission would hold public hearings on any legislation involving beach access.

"A bill such as Sen. Fay's would dramatically change our coastline and we want a chance to respond intelligently to it," said Sen. Buehler.

The bill now goes to committee and Sen. Buehler hopes the Senate will act on the measure before the new year.

Lee Roos

Roos files recount petition

NEW SHREWSBURY — Leo Roos has filed a petition asking for a recount of votes cast in the Nov. 5 election in which he was defeated by Mrs. Ellen Brann, a Republican, in a race for a Borough Council seat.

The recount of machine-cast and absentee ballots will take place Monday at 2 p.m. at the Board of Elections office, Freehold, after Superior Court Judge Louis R. Aikins instructs the parties involved at 1:30 p.m. on recount procedures.

If the recount proves Mr. Roos, a Democrat, the winner, the council will be split 3-3 along party lines with Mayor-elect Gabriel E. Spector, also a Democrat, in a position of being able to break tie-votes.

On election night, Mr. Roos appeared to be the winner of a full-term council seat, until absentee votes were tallied. Totals, including absentee ballots, indicated Mrs. Brannin drew 1,000 votes, while Mr. Roos received 986 votes.

In his petition to the Board of Elections, Mr. Roos said he has "reason to believe an error has been made in the counting and declaring the vote of said election in each of the (borough's) six districts."

Tonti wins parole, gets out Wednesday

NEWARK — D. Louis Tonti, the former executive director of the New Jersey Highway Authority has won parole after serving 20 months of a three-year prison term for extortion, officials have confirmed.

He is scheduled to be released on Wednesday from the federal prison at Allenwood, Pa.

Tonti is the fourth imprisoned public official in New Jersey whose parole was announced this week. Former congressman Cornelius E. Gallagher is scheduled to be released today; former Newark Council President Louis M. Turco was released on Wednesday and former Atlantic City Mayor Richard S. Jackson's parole was announced yesterday.

Tonti, who had been working as a nurse's aide at the prison hospital, received several months off his sentence for good behavior; officials said.

Tonti, 56, pleaded guilty in January 1973 to one count of an indictment charging he extorted more than $200,000 from three firms doing business with the highway authority, which operates the Garden State Parkway.

The charge to which he pleaded said he received $120,000 in kickbacks from one of the firms and negotiated for an additional $130,000 to be forwarded to a Swiss bank.

Two previous requests for parole had been denied.

Jury decision is expected today in chimp damage suit

He added that restaurant patrons were laughing as he went through pulling Mr. Jiggs who was on roller skates. He maintained that Mr. Jiggs did not stop at any time as they went through the dining area and did not put his face into any of the booths there.

Mr. Winters said he did hear a sound as he passed the booth where Mrs. Hemmer was seated but that no one came over to him and he continued on. He said he later learned from a waitress that there might be some problem.

Dr. Irving H. Strouse, an orthopedic surgeon, said his office had treated Mrs. Hemmer for injuries she suffered from an automobile accident in 1971 and that she was rehospitalized Feb. 14-19, 1972, because of a painful mass in a muscle in the left shoulder.

The doctor said she was next seen March 2, 1972, in the emergency room of Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch, for an acute neck strain, noting that the report said she was injured when she was scared by a chimpanzee in a restaurant.

Dr. Strouse also stated that Mrs. Hemmer had sustained medical bills totaling $309 since March, 1972.

The doctor said he believed that the restaurant incident aggravated her condition but he could not say whether her condition will change or whether she still required treatment, adding that he last saw her last May.

Mr. Fricke maintained he had no knowledge that Mr. Jiggs would appear that evening to entertain a Cub Scout dinner. He also stated that the banquet room had a separate entrance and that the door should have been open.

Thomas F. Heaney Jr. of Asbury Park, representing Mr. Fricke, maintained that the restaurant was not negligent that day and questioned why Mr. Winters had not asked a restaurant employe to open the banquet room door so he could bring in Mr. Jiggs.

J. George Ivler of Patterson, representing Mr. Winters, suggested to the jury in his summation that Mrs. Hemmer and her friend stayed at the restaurant after Mr. Jiggs had passed by them and later decided to say the injury was caused by the chimpanzee's appearance. He maintained that Mr. Winters gave adequate warning as he passed the dining area.

Mr. Chamlin argued that the test in this case was not whether Mr. Winters had Mr. Jiggs by the hand as he testified he had, but the fact that the chimpanzee was there in a restaurant.

The attorney told the jury that his client was in poor health that day in 1972 and was a "nervous wreck" because of the injuries she suffered from.

"She has gone through hell as a result of this man (Mr. Winters) who loves that chimp so much that he has it wired with an electronic device to shock it should it misbehave," adding that the device was not dissimilar to that used on an electric chair.

Superior Court Judge Andrew A. Salvest, who has presided over the trial now in its third day, will explain the law to the jury and the panel will then decide the case.

Palestinians hijack airliners

CAIRO, Egypt — A British airliner hijacked by three Palestinians in the Persian Gulf sheikdom of Dubai refueled in Tripoli, Libya, today and then took off for an undisclosed destination.

Officials in Dubai said there were 47 persons aboard the plane, including 27 passengers, 10 crew members, seven cleaning men and three airport caterers.

Officials at the Tripoli airport refused to say whether any were allowed to get off there.

An Indian stewardess and Pakistani porter were wounded as the hijackers stormed on board the plane early today at Dubai, "shooting submachine guns in all directions," one witness said.

The Dubai hospital said the wounded pair were in critical condition, but later a hospital spokesman said the young woman was off the critical list.

A spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization, which is recognized by the governments of the Arab world as the representative of the Palestinian people, condemned the hijackers. He said they were "elements planted by enemies of the Palestinian people in a desperate attempt to defame the struggle of the Palestinian people and their armed revolution."

The hijacked plane was denied landing permission in Jordan, Syria and Lebanon as it flew westward over the Middle East.

The flight originated in London and was en route to Calcutta, Singapore and Brunei, on the island of Borneo.

Ford visits U.S. troops in Korea

SEOUL, South Korea — President Ford saw the biggest crowd of his life in South Korea's capital today, then traveled close to the frontier with Communist North Korea to visit enthusiastic American troops.

The Korean national police estimated about 2 million flag-waving, confetti-throwing Koreans turned out for the American President's arrival. American newsmen estimated the crowd at a million or more, roughly equivalent to the turnout for President Johnson in 1966.

President Chung Hee Park mobilized a heavy security guard to prevent opponents of his dictatorship making trouble during Ford's visit. But twice during the 10-mile drive from the airport into Seoul, Ford emerged from Park's armored limousine with his host in tow and mingled with the crowd.

Asked at one stop if he had ever seen anything like the Korean welcome in Grand Rapids, Mich., his home town, Ford jokingly replied: "Yes, but on a smaller scale."

Meanwhile, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger responded for the first time to critics of the visit who argue that Ford's presence lends moral support to Park's dictatorial government.

Kissinger told newsmen aboard Air Force One that Ford in his meeting with Park undoubtedly would "call attention to the impact of Korea's domestic politics" on American opinion. He added, however, that the U.S. government has only a "very limited capacity" to effect political changes in South Korea.

Irish blamed in British bombing

BIRMINGHAM, England — Anti-Irish feeling ran high in Birmingham today after a terrorist bomb blitz that police said killed 19 persons and injured at least 202 in the heart of the industrial city.

The explosions last night wrecked two bars crowded with young people.

The public blamed the Irish Republican Army, whose bombs have killed at least 30 other persons in England in the past two years.

The death toll was the heaviest in any bombing in England or Northern Ireland since the war between Roman Catholic and Protestant extemists began in Ulster five years ago.

Gangs of youths took to the streets of Birmingham, shouting, "Irish bastards" and "We hate the Irish!" A gasoline bomb was thrown through the window of a Catholic priest's house.

Mayor James Eames said the terrorist attack would undoubtedly build up hate and prejudice against Birmingham's sizeable Irish population.

Committee OKs tax cut bill

WASHINGTON — The House Ways and Means Committee has approved a bill to phase out the oil depletion allowance and reduce individual income taxes by about $2 billion per year.

If the bill clears the Rules Committee, it would be brought to the House on Dec. 4. If the House passes it, the measure would still face a lengthy, and perhaps fatal fight in the Senate during the waning days of this congressional session.

The Ways and Means Committee vote was 16-6, with oil-state representatives on the committee leading the dissent.

Some congressional sources said the legislators will not finish work on the bill before the end of this session. That would mean the 94th Congress arriving in January will be forced to start all over again.

The bill also would impose a "windfall profits tax" on the oil producers but would allow oil companies to escape the tax by reinvesting profits into the search for new energy sources.

The legislation would cut individual taxes by increasing the standard deduction from 15 to 16 per cent and the maximum that can be deducted this way from $2,000 to $2,300.

U.S., Israel suffer UN defeat

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The United States and Israel faced another defeat at the United Nations today on a vote endorsing the Palestinians' claim to nationhood at the expense of Israel.

A resolution on Palestinian rights introduced last night by 38 Arab and Third World countries was assured of approval in the vote late today in the General Assembly.

The resolution affirms the Palestinians' rights to self-determination, independence and sovereignty. It also affirms their right "to return to their homes and property from which they have been displaced and uprooted" by the formation of Israel.

In addition, it recognizes the Palestine Liberation Organization as the "representative of the people of Palestine" and declares the Palestinians "a principal party in the establishment of a just and durable peace in the Middle East."

This was a direct hit at Israel's refusual to negotiate with the PLO.

Teachers deny 'reign of terror'

By JIM McCORMICK

FREEHOLD — Dr. Ronald A. Whyte, Freehold Regional superintendent of Schools, said yesterday most teachers at the high school here consider charges by parents that a "reign of terror" exists at the school completely unfounded.

Dr. Whyte closed school here at 1 p.m. yesterday so that he and Charles Figg, school principal, could meet with the 78 teachers in the school.

He said that many teachers thought at the beginning of the meeting that it was called to criticize their performance in what some parents allege is the constant harassment of white students by blacks in the school.

Dr. Whyte emphasized that the meeting, which was closed to the public, was held to advise teachers of charges made by parents at the school board meeting Monday.

Dr. Whyte said many teachers felt that the accusations were "completely unfounded."

"They are a very proud faculty, with a great deal of pride in their school," he said.

"They strongly indicated to me that they feel their pride has been hurt and that they work with the situation daily and understand it," he said.

"Many teachers also feel that there are people on the outside who make comments on things inside without full knowledge of the situation," Dr. Whyte said.

Dr. Whyte said several faculty members were telephoned at home by parents and were "taken aback by charges that these things were going on in the school without their knowledge."

"In fact, the incidents which occur in the school are identical and similar in nature with instances that occur in the other high schools," the superintendent said.

"Several teachers spoke about their long association with the borough school and said they have been through difficulties in the past and are very capable of facing any difficulties in the future," Dr. Whyte said.

One "positive outcome" of the meeting, Dr. Whyte said, was that teachers want to be "better informed by the building administration of what is going on in the school."

"The teachers also want to know what the community feels about the school and they feel that the building administration should do more in that area," he said.

Dr. Whyte said many teachers were concerned that the media reported several charges made by parents at the board meeting Monday and "accepted them at face value."

"To some extent, I share their concern," Dr. Whyte said.

"The teachers felt that the accussations that were made were completely unfounded, and are based on hearsay," the superintendent said.

Many Red Bank merchants are supporting the canathon. Food will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Plan demonstration in plea for helistop

By GREG BORAK

LITTLE SILVER — Zoning Board of Adjustment members will view a helicopter landing and takeoff at the home of William F. Kelly before acting on his application for a use variance to have a helistop on his property.

After the demonstration, tentatively set for Dec. 7 at 11 a.m. at Lochmere, Mr. Kelly's estate on Seven Bridges Road, the board will act on the application at its Dec. 19 meeting.

At last night's meeting, K. Edward Jacobi, who chaired the zoning board session, said members were primarily concerned about the amount of noise the proposed helistop would cause and its effects on nearby homes.

Howard Cobb, marketing manager for Ronson Helicopters, a division of Ronson, Inc., Woodbridge, who testified on behalf of Mr. Kelly, said a helicopter flying about 400 feet away from two people would produce noise slightly louder than their voices in conversation.

He distinguished a heliport from a helistop saying the former was a facility used solely for helicopter landings and takeoffs, while the latter was for purposes other than occasional helicopter flights.

Since the helistop would be used by Mr. Kelly two or three times per month, based on a yearly average, said Howard E. Roberts, a Middletown lawyer representing the applicant, there would be "little change, if any, from the present use" of the property.

Mr. Kelly's 13-acre estate lies in an R-1 residential zone. The helistop, Mr. Roberts said, would constitute an accessory use to home, which was necessary to Mr. Kelly's business.

The applicant is president of Frank Briscoe Co., Inc., a construction firm, and at times needs a quick means of air transportation to various construction sites, Mr. Roberts said.

The helistop would be located on a 75-foot square tract along a bulkhead on the Shrewsbury River on Mr. Kelly's land. Its only physical characteristics would be a landing marker and a wind sock about two feet high, said Gerald Moran, a pilot for the Briscoe company.

According to Mr. Cobb, the nearest home to the proposed helistop is about 400 feet away. State requirements demand that two approach-departure paths be planned for the helistop and helicopter pilots would use the one which would least disturb residents.

In any case, a helicopter would not be in the area of Mr. Kelly's home for more than two minutes with its engine running while landing or taking off, Mr. Cobb said.

The helistop would be limited to use by Mr. Kelly alone in conjunction with his business, Mr. Roberts said, and no helicopters may land at the site without his permission.

A five-passenger Bell Jet Ranger 206 Model B with a 400 shaft horsepower turbine engine is planned for use at the helistop on a charter basis, he said, and no helicopters or fuel will be stored on Mr. Kelly's property.

Report municipal building near collapse in Marlboro

MARLBORO — The old house serving as the township municipal offices is in danger of collapsing, according to Pieter Van aartrijk, township engineer.

Mr. Van aartrijk detailed the structural deficiencies of the building in a letter received yesterday by the Township Council.

Council President Lawrence S. Grossman made passing reference to the letter after council last night authorized Mrs. Mary T. Denton, township business administrator, to negotiate for office space in a professional building across Rt. 79 from the municipal building.

The negotiations, however, would only be for space to house the township clerk's office and for a council meeting room. Mrs. Denton said that is the only space available in the building.

Mrs. Denton said during a recess that the township had an opportunity to rent the entire building last year before it was occupied.

She said the owner then would have allowed the township to rent the building for three years with an option to buy. The rent would have gone towards the purchase price, she said.

But council never took action the matter, and now very little space is available there," she said.

The only office building with sufficient space to house the municipal offices is in the Grasso Professional Building, Rt. 9, which was recently finished, Mrs. Denton said.

Back on June 13, Council thought it adopted a $759,000 ordinance for the construction of a municipal complex at Rt. 520 and Gordons Corner Road. The vote was 3-2 in favor.

However, it was announced at the June 27 council meeting that the bond ordinance was defeated because passage required four affirmative votes. No action was taken on the ordinance since then.

The hearing on the ordinance was very stormy because of the insistance of several residents that the funds be used to acquire recreation sites.

Mr. Van aartrijk wrote that the entire building, including the foundation, is deteriorated in such a manner that extensive settlement has occurred resulting in sagging floors and ceilings."

The engineer also said the electrical wiring is substandard and a fire hazard. He said his office was on the second floor, which could collapse "at any time."

A 110-acre land donation, with a large farmhouse and several large barns, was included in a site plan approved last night by council. The applicant for the 208-home subdivision was U.S. Homes.

Bernard Chodis, representing U.S. Homes, said the deed would not be transferred to the township until after April. He said the township might be able to rent the buildings from the current owners until the township assumes ownership of them.

Firearms taken in home entry

MIDDLETOWN — Police are seeking the person or persons who broke into a house at 115 Manor Parkway, Lincroft, Saturday night and removed an assortment of firearms.

Detective Capt. Robert M. Letts said the house had been vacant between 3:45 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday night until its owner Walter Laudenslager returned. "An extensive list" of rifles and handguns had been taken from the house after the burglar gained entry through a cellar door, Capt. Letts said.

Gun shots reported

MARLBORO — Reports of gun shots in the area of Tennent Road and Rt. 79 are being investigated by police.

Residents there, who notified police at about 2:18 a.m. Wednesday, said it sounded as if the five or six shots were from a .38 caliber weapon fired from a dark brown vehicle with one headlight out.

Mayfair Theater razing ordered

By BOB RUBIN

ASBURY PARK — An eleventh-hour bid to save the Mayfair Theater by buying it has apparently failed.

However, the Committee to Save the Mayfair "will make other offers" today, according to its chairman, Michael E. Frankel of Interlaken.

Reached by telephone late last night, Sheldon Gunsberg, president of The Walter Reade Organization, Inc., which owns the Mayfair and the adjoining St. James, also slated to come down, said Reade and the committee had "failed to come to terms" and that demolition will proceed.

Attorneys for both groups met all day yesterday after the committee offered to buy the theater for $100,000 beginning with a $10,000 down payment, according to Mr. Frankel.

Mr. Gunsberg said that Reade was considering the offer, but that the committee was unable to meet their minimum conditions, which include complete indemnification of the Reade organization against expense caused by the delay of demolition.

He stressed that Reade wants to save the Mayfair, but pointed out that the company will soon become liable for 1975 taxes and default payment on the demolition contract with C. A. Lertch, Wall Township. Under state law, a real estate assessment can only be eliminated if substantial demolition occurs before Jan. 1, 1975. Lertch's contract expires Dec. 1, and he says Reade would still be liable for the cost of the agreement if work was not begun by then.

Mr. Gunsberg explained that Reade attorney John C. Giordano telephoned him at 6 p.m. yesterday at the conclusion of the session and said that an agreement had not been reached.

"Based on the latest information I have," he said, "demolition will proceed."

Mr. Frankel is not so sure.

"As far as I'm concerned, we have other offers to make to them (Reade)," he said after being told of Mr. Gunsberg's statement. "One of our lawyers will be in contact with the Reade New York office first thing in the morning."

He said he had "something in the works, that he was not at liberty to divulge," adding only that it was not in the form of surprise legal action.

The committee made the offer to buy the Mayfair after Frankel was informed Monday afternoon of the decision by Reade officials to go ahead with the delayed demolition of both theaters.

According to Mr. Frankel, designation as a national historic site will follow within a month, making matching federal funds available for renovation. However, designation as a historic site does not empower any individual or agency to restrain Reade from commencing demolition.

The Moorish-style movie palace, built in 1927 at a cost of over $1 million, is structurally sound, according to knowledgeable sources. However, much of the decorative work has deteriorated.

Wisner seeks zoning delay

MIDDLETOWN — An ordinance providing zoning for some 2,200 units of multi-family housing will probably be introduced by the Township Committee before the end of the year, Committeeman Wilford L. Wisner said yesterday.

The ordinance would be the first of a series of measures implementing provisions of the township's new master plan. It would provide for 1,500 garden apartment units and 700 town houses, Mr. Wisner said. He added that the measure may be split into two ordinances, one dealing with site plan regulations, the other with zoning map provisions.

Mr. Wisner said it is his hope the ordinance will not be adopted finally until some time next year, after ample time has been allowed for expression of public opinion on it. He added that he does not think he or any other lame duck committeeman should participate in final adoption.

Mr. Wisner and Committeeman William E. Schell were unsuccessful in their bids for reelection and will step down from their Township Committee seats Jan. 1.

Mr. Wisner said he will probably vote against introduction of the multi-family dwelling ordinance, even though it conforms quite well to his thinking. "I'm not sure the public thinks as I do," he explained.

He added that the proposed ordinance contains one new site, the 50 or so acres now occupied by the Cong Jones Riding Academy on Newman Springs Road in Lincroft, where zoning for town houses is planned.

Bonus number is drawn

WAYNE (AP) — The winning number in this week's New Jersey Lottery is 190394.

Lottery officials said today that for the first time in 203 weekly drawings no one purchased a ticket with the exact six-digit number to win the $50,000 top prize.

Since "We like to have a $50,000 winner," lottery officials said they drew a bonus number for the top prize. It was 190394. Lottery officials emphasized that the bonus number applied only to the $50,000 first prize and said there would be no other prizes awarded in conjunction with the bonus number.

Here is a list of winning weekly lottery numbers from other Northeastern states drawn this week.

Board unveils plans for school expansion

WEST LONG BRANCH — Plans for a $3.34 million addition to the Frank Antonides School on Locust Ave. were unveiled last night by the Board of Education at a PTA meeting that drew an audience of about 300 parents and teachers.

Robert Tarantolo, board secretary, said the expansion, which would house manual arts, music and home economics classes and a multimedial center, would cost the taxpayer an additional 48 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The owner of a $30,000 home would pay $1,506 in property taxes, an increase of $144 over the $1,362 he now pays or $4.54 per $100 of assessed valuation. The owner of a $40,000 home would pay $192 more in property taxes.

Peter C. Sandilos, superintendendant of schools, told the audience that under the expansion plans, the Wall Street Elementary School would be closed and students transferred to the Antonides School, which would accommodate them with the increased space.

The state Department of Education recently requested that the "school board put $500,000 worth of repairs into the elementary school or shut it down," said Mr. Sandilos.

In order to meet the state's minimum health and safety standards, the board would have to make improvements in at least 20 areas, including providing toilet facilities on each floor, access to all floors for the handicapped, ventilation and heating regulation and fireproofing of all stairways and hallways.

The new wing of 60,000 square feet would not contain extra classrooms. It would provide more space for special activities, classes, an auditorium, an enlarged gym, a cafeteria, meeting rooms for teaching staff a media center and an enlarged library.

Mr. Sandilos said that only three additional teachers would be hired to give classes in home economics, typing and industrial arts.

Frank Tomaino, of Moger-Tomaino Architects of Deal, who designed the addition, pointed out the difference in cost between repairing the Wall Street School while providing for these new activities at the Frank Antonides School and building a wing for both was "only $350,000."

The architect said the brick-faced building which was given preliminary approval by the state would take 18 months to construct and if voters approved the project by referendum, construction would begin in the late springs.

Several parents criticized the board for not coming to the public armed with statistics on the future population growth in West Long Branch.

"I haven't seen any figures that mean anything," said Al Bornstein of 10 Harbor Court, after questioning the board on whether it had made provisions for a population explosion.

"We can handle 1,000 children here without any problem whatsoever," said Robert Weston, a board member, "as far as I know there have never been more than 900 children in the school."

As some parents clamored for statistics to back the board's contentions, others accepted the poject as is.

"I can feel a sense of tension ripping us all and making us miss other crucial points," said Rabbi Joseph Goldman, of Temple Beth Miriam, Elberon, "I feel that the idea of a media center is progressive, in the sense of providing children with an efficient education and it looks like the new facilities will offer quality education," said Rabbi Goldman.

Mrs. Judith Garifine, an arts teacher at Frank Antonides School, told the parent that their children "need these other activities provided for in the addition just to be human beings."

"Your kids are really missing out on a lot of things," said Mrs. Garifine. "The boys don't know how to hammer a nail, how to use a wrench because up to now there has been nowhere to show them how to use these tools," she said.

A retired music teacher from Shore Regional High School lauded the board for "moving away from the multi-purpose room and back to old traditional auditorium."

As she listened to parents demand more statistical information and express doubts about what they called "the real need" for the new wing, one parent said she felt it was "all a matter of money."

"People are just not speaking their minds about the rise in taxes and the possibility of a state property tax," said Lucille Feldman, "They're hedging."

During the discussion, Mr. Sandilos told the audience that he was "advised in Trenton not to wait around for when and if a state property tax is passed."

He said a community like West Long Branch, classified as a "Minimum Aid District" or a affluent one, may get less state aid then it is now.

After the meeting, Mr. Sandilos told reporters he was "pleased with the meeting and parents' response."

Mr. Weston, a board member, voiced reservations about the response, adding that it would "take all the parents from kindergarten on canvassing and turning out in strong numbers for the referendum next year" if the project is to pass.

If it doesn't pass Mr. Weston said it would be on the ballot again in 1976. In the interim, he added some repairs would be made on the Wall Street School, which would remain open, but the "full $500,000 would not be funnelled into it," he concluded.

He also noted that as a result of inflation, construction of a new wing would become more expensive every year.

Keansburg citizens board to conduct public meeting

KEANSBURG — The first public meeting of the Citizens Advisory Board is scheduled in Borough Hall Tuesday, Councilman Walter M. Roeseman announced.

All aspects of parking in the borough is the first topic to which the advisory board has addressed itself, the councilman said. Public opinion on the topic will be solicited at the meeting.

The board's initial session took place Nov. 11, with Mr. Roeseman, Mayor Eugene Connelly and Eugene J. Bedell, borough manager, attending. Tuesday's hearing will be the first of a series of public sessions on all phases of parking.

Borough wins case

David Zolkin, borough attorney, reported a success for the borough before Superior Court Judge Merritt Lane Jr. which saved the borough at least $40,000.

Judge Lane found for the borough in the case brought against it by Waackaack Marina and Boatel. The complainant sought to have declared invalid an easement purchased for $40,000 in 1949 by the borough from previous owners of the marina.

"If we had lost, we might have had to purchase the easement all over again," Mr. Zolkin said.

In addition, Judge Lane ruled invalid the complainant's claim that the assessed valuation of the marina should have been $67,000 instead of the $145,000 now on the assessment roll. If the finding had been against the borough, a substantial tax refund could have been claimed, the attorney explained.

Outfall leaks

Robert Greenberg, borough engineer, reported a letter has been sent to the Monmouth County Bayshore Outfall Authority asking it to check its line near Main St. for leaks. A puddle has accumulated there for the past several months in dry weather and wet, Mr. Greenberg said. The borough has inspected its own water and sewer lines in the area and found no leaks, he added.

Adopted unanimously was a resolution authorizing the borough clerk to receive bids for aniaml control service at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 18, in Borough Hall. Pending permanent arrangements, the borough is enjoying temporary free dog warden service from Associated Humane Socities of N.J. Inc. of Newark, which is acquiring a tract in New Shrewsbury for construction of a modern animal shelter.

Also adopted was a resolution continuing life insurance, hospitalization and medical-surgical insurance for all borough employes and officials, full-time and part-time, on a non-contributory basis.

Fire truck bids

Mr. Bedell announced that Hahn Motors Inc. of Hamburg, Pa., was lowest bidder on a new borough fire truck. Council adopted a resolution awarding the Pennsylvania firm a contract to supply the pumper at $67,500.

Mr. Bedell announced approval of a $5,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Labor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, which provides funds for employment of the underemployed, the unemployed, the employed living below the national poverty level and veterans. Council adopted a resolution asking state approval of insertion of the $5,000 plus a matching amount in the 1974 budget.

Many applications are already on hand for jobs in the borough under the program, Mr. Bedell said. The positions under CETA are temporary, funded only until July 1, 1975.

Resignation

Accepted with regret was the resignation from the Planning Board of Thomas Grant. Salvatore Rinaldi of 108 Highland Blvd. was appointed in his place.

Two ordinances were adopted unanimously after public hearing. There were no objectors. The measures classify positions of municipal employes and elected and appointed officials under Civil Service codes and set salary ranges accordingly.

Leone will seek school board seat

KEYPORT — Councilman George L. Leone has confirmed a report that he will seek election to the Board of Education in February.

Three school board seats will be filled by the voters in the 1975 election. The seats are now held by Mrs. Helen Pote, Jay Baker and Paul J. Walling, board president.

The incumbent board members have yet to announce their intentions regarding the race.

"Although I haven't put together a formal platform yet, I will certainly run," declared Mr. Leone, who is circulating a petition to be placed on the ballot.

"Maybe I can help the school board control their budget a little bit better, he added.

Mr. Leone was reelected to Borough Council as an independent in the recent municipal election and was top votegetter. He insists he will not resign from Borough Council if elected to a school board seat.

"I can't see where a conflict of interest would be involved and I don't think the voters here in town will see a conflict either," he said.

During the last municipal election, however, Mr. Leone stated that George Bolte, a member of the Board of Education who ran for mayor as a Democrat, should relinquish his school board post if elected mayor.

'Sure, I knew the rich were getting richer and the poor were getting poorer — but I thought I was one of the rich ones.'

Legislature's dangerous stall

The legislature's Education Financing Forum Committee this week released its recommendations for tax changes needed to meet the Supreme Court mandate to assure a thorough and efficient education for each child in the state.

Public schools are financed, principally, by municipal property taxes. The court ruled that the system is unfair because wealthy school districts can pay for adequate education, but the majority of the districts are shortchanging youngsters because voters will not approve higher taxes on real estate.

Beyond the subject of education, there has for many years been a statewide cry for property tax relief. It is a legitimate plea that comes from tenants as well as homeowners and it covers senior citizens, young married couples and just about everyone in between except the extremely wealthy.

Because of severely high real estate taxes, home ownership—one of the basics of Americanism—is being denied citizens who have spent most of their lives in houses they and their families thought they could call their own.

The "Forum" ignored those facts of life in 1974 by asking for a statewide, unclassified property tax. We cannot understand how the committee could have come up with such a plan. Instead of tax relief or tax reform, it is asking homeowners and tenants to take the heat off municipal officials and place it on some unknown state bureaucrats.

Most of the Monmouth legislative delegation is unhappy about the committee's report. Assemblyman Morton Salkind says he'll actively oppose it and Assemblyman Gertrude Berman predicts it will be cast away because there is no support for it among the Democrats who control the Assembly.

The legislature as presently constituted soon will mark its first anniversary. When its members were sworn into office, they knew that the public school financing problem was theirs to solve prior to Dec. 31.

It hasn't been solved because of a series of stalling tactics that the legislators inherited from previous lawmakers. Gov. Brendan T. Byrne and his predecessor, Gov. William T. Cahill, submitted bipartisan recommendations for new legislation which would bring long needed tax reform to New Jersey. Because both of those proposals were based on a statewide income tax, they were rejected.

When will our representatives in Trenton admit the inevitable? State government must be financed on its citizens' ability to pay, and that money can only be collected via income taxing. Because federal income tax laws — with loopholes, special considerations, et cetera — are faulty and unfair is no reason to believe that New Jersey cannot enact a measure that would be a model in fairness.

'Pike toll hike called off

It was good news to thousands of New Jersey motorists — as well as many transients — when the New Jersey Turnpike Authority called off a proposed 37 per cent increase in turnpike tolls that was scheduled to take effect Jan. 1.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, who announced postponement of the plan, apparently was instrumental in getting the boost set aside after the authority had approved it. We commend the governor on his action. It seemed most unfortunate that a new expense should be heaped upon the state's motorists in a time when almost all their other costs — and especially those for fuel — have zoomed.

The latest action was announced as a postponement and it is not to be expected that it will amount to cancellation. New action to increase revenue from the turnpike no doubt will be forthcoming. When it does, we would hope that all phases of the need will have been explored and that only a hike that is fully justified will be imposed.

Preparing for changeover

The county Board of Freeholders in January will have a membership of three Democrats and two Republicans, changing the political makeup from the GOP. Freeholder Director Joseph C. Irwin, one of two Republicans who was not reelected on Nov. 5, has invited the two successful Democratic candidates, Thomas J. Lynch Jr. and Ray Kramer, to join him and the other freeholders in preliminary budget conferences.

We are impressed by the manner in which Mr. Lynch and Mr. Kramer are learning the intricacies of county government. By accepting Mr. Irwin's invitation, they'll benefit from his expertise and thus assure an orderly transition to start off 1975.

How to create an oil shortage

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON SCENE

In defiance of Congress and without a whimper, the Administration has quietly given the oil industry the means of creating a costly natural gas and oil "shortage" in the next few months.

The "shortage" last winter was used by Big Oil as an excuse to keep motorists in gas lines, homeowners shivering, prices up 50 per cent or more and oil profits even higher.

To prevent a recurrence, Congress passed a law requiring the Federal Energy Administration to conduct a "complete and independent analysis of actual (domestic) oil and gas reserves . . ."

But the FEA survey, which is supposed to give a true picture of whether there is a "shortage," has instead been run for the benefit of the oil men, not for the benefit of the public.

Last August, the survey forms were sent out to the oil industry for suggestions, but the views of consumer advocates were not solicited. As a result, the oil companies were successful in modifying the forms pretty much to their whim.

Indeed, the FEA quietly issued a "Justification Statement," admitting that the original reporting forms had been "modified to incorporate virtually all the suggestions" from the indsutry.

One industry suggestion adopted by the FEA has now made the survey virtually meaningless. It would allow the oil companies to report only oil that is easy to pump out, and to ignore oil that is harder to recover.

Thus, if a well produces 500 barrels that could be recovered at $5 a barrel, but contains another 200 barrels that would be difficult to recover, the oil company need only report the first 500.

What this means to the unwitting consumer, of course, is that the 200 can be withheld from the market while Big Oil cries "Shortage!" and jacks up prices accordingly. When the prices have skyrocketed again, the 200 can be drawn from the ground and sold at the new higher prices. The same principle applies for natural gas, which is primarily controlled by the oil industry.

In addition, the big oil companies send in their survey forms to the American Petroleum Institute, the industry's powerful Washington lobby. There, they can be checked before the FEA is allowed to see them.

The FEA's survey director, Dr. Daniel Rathbun, poohpoohs the suggestion that routing the forms through the petroleum lobby is a slap in the public's face. At first, he also insisted that under-reporting is impossible to avoid.

But under questioning by my associate Jack Cloherty, Rathbun admitted that the major oil companies had data and could report how much oil remained in the ground if ordered to do so. It was only small companies that would have trouble, he conceded.

Despite the gigantic loophole in his survey, Rathbun insisted the FEA was working on other means to find out how much oil is really in America.

ANDERSON

National Committee, has been given the bitter choice of pleading guilty to a minor charge or of facing a felony indictment and a costly, painful trial.

Dent, architect of President Nixon's successful "Southern Strategy," was given the ultimatum a few days ago by Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff during secret talks in Washington. According to friends, Dent is now gloomily mulling over the "offer" in his native South Carolina.

Under Ruff's proposal, Dent would plead guilty to the misdemeanor of "aiding and abetting" the illegal "Operation Town House" which raised $3 million for Republican candidates in 1970.

Although lodged in the basement of a private town house, the funding operation was set up by White House aide H. R. Haldeman and contributions were personally earmarked for candidates by ex-President Nixon.

Nixon, of course, has been pardoned. But his former lawyer, Herb Kalmbach, is serving a 6-to-18 months sentence growing out of the "Town House." A second ex-Nixon aide, Jack Gleason, has pleaded guilty to running "Operation Town House" and faces a possible year in jail.

Dent's involvement is the most ironic of all. He learned "South" politics at the knee of his old boss, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. But Dent, like his mentor, is personally regarded as honest, even by his enemies.

His candor led him privately to denounce the White House "dirty tricks" operators and to quit the Nixon team in favor of his current job. Prosecutors concede his role at the "Town House" was minimal.

Footnote: "Operation Town House" was illegal because it was not registered as a political committee. Oddly, the senators and representatives who got money from the "Town House" and its Democratic counterparts have all been spared prosecution.

Fulbright's myopic views

By MILTON VIORST

THE NEW POLITICS

Sen. J. William Fulbright has for 30 years been a bright star on Capitol Hill — but for those who feel a commitment to the state of Israel, he has, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, also been a dark cloud.

Last spring, Arkansas' voters refused Fulbright renomination in a party primary. Many greeted the decision equivocally: With regret over the loss of reason in the contemplation of foreign policy; with satisfaction over the departure of the callousness with which he considered Israel's situation.

It's not that Fulbright's policy recommendations were so bad. They were clever enough, in an abstract way. I surely reject the view, sometimes expressed in Jewish circles, that they were the product of a veiled anti-Semitism.

But they always showed more concern for Arab aspirations than for Jewish fears — and they invariably asked more of Israel than of those who have historically vowed its annihilation. They were not so much malicious as pitiless.

Early this month, Fulbright delivered his valedictory at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., on the rostrum that Churchill made famous by his "Iron Curtain" speech. He tried to sound statesmanlike. Instead, he sounded querulous and cold.

Fulbright is clearly worried that Israel's retention of the lands won in 1967 threatens another round of war in the Mideast — and thereby seriously jeopardizes detente between the United States and the Soviet Union. He proposes Soviet-American cooperation to resolve the Mideast crisis.

Fulbright has ample reason for putting detente at the top of the priorities list, but he fails to note that the Soviet Union effectively provoked the 1967 war by pouring unprecedented quantities of arms into the Arab states.

He would be a more persuasive partisan of detente if the Soviet Union showed an equivalent enthusiasm for it. But Moscow prefers to keep its hand in the Middle East — and does so now by provoking instability with renewed shipments of arms to Syria.

Somehow, Fulbright also maintains that Israel is to blame for the oil crisis — for if it were willing to negotiate outstanding territorial issues, he said, the Arabs in turn would treat Israel's Western patrons more charitably.

There is "excellent reason," Fulbright said, to believe that oil prices would go down after a Mideast settlement. But he doesn't share this "excellent reason" with us — and he even admits that prices are kept up chiefly by Venezuela and Iran, which are not Arab at all.

Almost in passing, Fulbright mentions that any settlement must include the Arabs' "explicit" acknowledgment of Israel's right to exist. But there's the rub. Doesn't he know that, while a few Arab states have implicitly resigned themselves to Israel, none has shown the remotest willingness to do so explicitly?

VIORST

King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, whom Fulbright extolled at Fulton, has been the most intransigent of Arab monarchs about recognizing Israel; and the Palestinians, whose rights Fulbright champions, retain the Jewish state's destruction as part of their official platform.

It is precisely this Arab unwillingness to admit Israel's existence that most scares Israelis — and stands as a psychological barrier to their giving back the territories that currently provide their military security.

I cannot imagine Israel ever getting "explicit" Arab guarantees, and I think it should explore the possibility of long-term de facto recognition. But if Fulbright thinks such "explicit" acknowledgment is possible, why doesn't he lean on his friend Faisal to make a declaration? I suspect the Israelis would respond unhesitatingly.

Not for a moment do I suggest that Israel's policies are above reproach. But Fulbright, while disparaging both Israel and its American supporters, seems to find the Arabs irreproachable. Fulbright knows that Mideast settlement is a two-way street — but he seems able to explore it in only one direction.

What women go through

By JIM BISHOP

THE REPORTER

If it appears that I am irritated, listening to Advice-to-the-Lovelorn columns read aloud at the breakfast table, it's only because I am. The words maketh my coffee taste like hot Draino and the toast assaults the taste buds like burned cardboard.

The news on page one may state that 400,000,000 persons are starving to death, but my ladies to not see it. They flip through the Women's Section (has anyone ever published a Men's Section?) to read every line of Abby and Ann and a few of the local menopausal matrons who specialize in How to Get that Man; How to Keep Him; How to Sock Him for his last dime in court.

My dissident growl evokes hysterical laughter. As a male chauvinist pig I cannot be expected to understand problems peculiar to the female. Perhaps. But my wife and four daughters must concede that I have a lot of experience in misunderstanding women.

I was moved to read the Lovesick stuff to see if I was missing a unique form of justice and logic. After 30 days, I will concede that the slick, glib, witty advice is unique. If it is related, even by animadversion, to logic and justice, then I have lost comprehension.

As the male pig, permit me to concede that all of these columns are more widely read than anything I write. A female dispenser of heartthrob counsel who is published in less than 600 newspapers isn't putting her sweet little heart into her work.

Fifty years before anyone heard the phrase, "Women's Liberation," my mother organized it. She was president and the only dues-paying member. No matter how horrifying the crime committed by any woman, Momma compressed her lips and said, "Some man drove her to it."

She would smile sadley, but bravely, as she patted my little head: "If you only knew what we women go through," Now, too late, I have applied myself to the meandering words of the Sob Sisters and I think I understand what women go through:

They cheat. They lie. They fake their faces and figures with artifacts designed to gull the male. They flirt with the wrong men to keep in practice. When they are caught in acts immoral or criminal, they conjure hysteria. Failing that, they blame their husbands for their behavior and punish him by withholding the merchandise.

Miss Van Buren, Miss Landers and I have been part of a mutual admiration society for years. This column may wreck it, but truth is seldom

Landers published a letter recently in which "Uncertain Lady" said she had sustained four unsuccessful marriages and five nervous breakdowns, but now she has found a good psychiatrist and true love.

The man happens to be younger — but no matter. Uncertain Lady said she has told him "everything." His name is Ray. She has two youngsters and is expecting a third, but isn't sure that Ray is the father.

No matter. "All he wants is a chance to be by my side and give me love and emotional support." In my ignorance, I would suggest that she send the new knucklehead to her old psychiatrist. Miss Landers says: "Grab him."

Forget the fact that you are a four-time loser. And who cares which of how many men may be the father of the baby. "Grab him." I read it twice. My women voted 4-to-0 that the counsel was wise and logical. Poor "Uncertain Lady" deserved a break.

I lose hard. By listening, I found that problems concerning a man, or lack thereof, are not part of the game; they're the whole thing. Only through a man can a woman find love, marriage, respect, security, a car, a fur coat, and a chance to lie on the couch all afternoon nibbling chocolates and reading Cosmopolitan magazine.

When my wife phones her girl friends, she lights a cigarette and draws up a chair. Does she discuss Kissinger, Nixon or the potential millionaires who play football for the Dolphins? The hell she does. It's the love life—or lack of it—of a third woman.

My girls crouch on a bed for 40 minutes, whispering into a phone with a girl they saw in class an hour ago. They draw blueprints of everybody's love life — what girl should stop seeing what fellow; which one is depressed because nobody asked her to the prom; how to hold a one-handed driver off in an automobile.

Sometimes, they even feel "vibes," whatever the hell that is. I had a notion that when you marry the girl, the struggle is over. To the contrary, it has just begun. If anything awful happens in this family, remember Momma was right: I drove her to it. . .

'It's beginning to look as if something is amiss.'

143 Woodgate Road
Middletown, N.J. 07748

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne
State House
Trenton, New Jersey 08600

The Hon. Gov. Byrne:

Under the court's deadline for a change in the base used to fund the state's educational structure, the legislature, as usual, has not come forth with any creative proposals, and your administration, Mr. Governor, has fumbled along proposing rehashed political hacks' proposals.

With your broad mandate given by the electorate because of your background and reputation for honesty and courage, now would be the time for a fresh reappraisal of the entire tax structure of our state.

Your predecessor's proposal, on which he blamed his "untimely" defeat, wherein the state would levy both a realty tax and an income tax was as transparent a ploy as could be conceived. To Mr. Cahill's dismay, even his own party would not ask him to run for a second term, a most unusual defeat for an incumbent. Imagine giving politicians two new bases to continue draining the purses of the state's taxpayers.

There is only one honest, fair and realistic method to accomplish the desired goal, and it will require strength and courage, not to sell it to the people, but to convince the politicians. On the premise that taxes are necessary to maintain the services provided by the state, a corollary should be that taxes should be paid by those who can afford to pay at any given point of time. The only tax meeting these two basic conditions is a graduated income tax. All other taxes, state and local, must be eliminated, including sales and real estate taxes.

FROM OUR READERS

The latter, at an all time high throughout the state is causing local tragedies daily. The elderly are forced to leave their homes because of insufficient income to cover realty rates and now with the nation in a fiscal crisis and unemployment rising rapidly, how many others, regular taxpaying wage earners will lose their equities and all their savings because of this same regressive real estate tax.

Truly, a single tax based on one's ability to pay is such a common sense basic solution that its lack of being on the statutes defies comprehension.

Safeguards in legislating this program are obviously necessary, such as the maximum total to be levied in combination by state and local authorities. While the state must set minimum standards, each community should still be allowed to set its own standards for services and tax itself accordingly while the county and state can add their fractional requirements to each community's base. The state could then collect and distribute the funds in the same fashion as New York state collects and distributes sales taxes.

It would certainly be a comforting thought, to everyone I'm sure, that in unfortunate times one would not have to lose his total savings and homestead.

There are other salutary benefits, such as finally reaching the untold numbers who maintain luxurious residences in New Jersey who have not contributed one cent to support the state. And how much would be increased by collecting taxes from our people who are taxed by other states where they work? If New Jersey had its own income tax certainly the other states would enter into reciprocal hands off agreements not now available. Would not the elimination of realty taxes be a stimulous to the building industry which action in itself would help employment today and income tax revenue tomorrow?

The recommended program is easily implemented. Taxes could be deducted from weekly pay checks by employes who are doing it now for all other tax agencies, collected quarterly and distributed quarterly. For only one brief transition period might there be an interruption in needed cash flow.

As earlier indicated, this would take courageous action but it is truly the only farsighted measure that will withstand all the test of future requirements.

One last word, Mr. Governor. Please do not misconstrue the proposal as an endorsement of an imposition of income tax on top of all other existing taxes. It is not and to reiterate that transparency has been vetoed by the taxpayers repeatedly.

Respectfully,
Paul Rosenthal

Congregation B'nai Israel
Rumson, N.J.

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Congregation B'nai Israel I want to thank you and your staff for the excellent coverage The Register gave to The Jewish Folk Festival '74 sponsored by the synagogue. There is no doubt that the publicity received prior to the show was instrumental in the enthusiastic response it was given.

Once again, The Register has indicated their cooperation and support of activities by providing the local organizations with the much needed publicity to assure the success of their programs.

May I also take this opportunity to express congratulations on your beautiful new "home." May this be another beginning for a newspaper that is near and dear to the hearts of their readers.

Best wishes,
Sincerely,
Walter Leibowitz

Peter Dellera

44 Horicon Ave.
Oceanport, N.J. 07757

To the Editor:

Citizens of the borough of Oceanport, having received campaign literature from an ex-Republican councilman and from the Republican campaign chairman, F. Edward Waitt, have become irate and confused over the nonsense in the fliers. Both Republicans and Democrats in the borough are asking the same question. Why did they want Pete Dellera out so badly — what was the reason? Were these men so filled with hate and jealousy because all you hear in the borough is "ask Pete — he's the only councilman that will try and help at the first call." Is this because no other councilman has the time or wants to be bothered with the taxpayers of the borough or is it perhaps that Pete knows too much about the conditions and operations of the Borough Council?

Whether the Republican or Democratic organizations realize it they have sold both parties down the drain. Did they realize that it was the voters of the borough who voted Councilman Dellera in last June even though the Mayor and Council schemed for months to try and get Pete out? Schemed to the point where Republican councilmen changed party lines in the June primary.

Yes, Councilman Dellera lost this election, but he won the respect of the people, both Democrats and Republicans alike and if I know Pete, he will be back.

War resisters

To the Editor:

Now that elections are over, President Ford should promulgate a new affirmative amnesty policy for those Vietnam War resisters who had to flee America in order to live with their consciences. These men should be permitted to return to the United States without prejudice. After all, they were right.

Court costs

27 Monroe St.

To the Editor:

Congratulations, Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Sicilano! Unknown but new faces with new ideas to improve the administration of justice in our town. Our thinking must be dynamic and we must experiment and search constantly for better ways, always remembering that our objective is fairness and justice.

The appointment of a judge which is controlled by local elected officials is under critical attack because of the political pressure from local government. The American Judicature Society, conducted by Seton Hall Law School Dean John Irving, found that such judges are practicing attorneys who spend every night of the week sitting on a different municipal court bench earning more at night than they could hope to earn practicing law — as long as the right party continues to occupy the local seats of power. These same judges are expected to play a cozy alliance with police and politicians to fortify their position on the local bench.

A judge is a person to try or pronounce sentence upon a person in a court of justice, "a capable man not a political figure." He is not supposed to be a judge who "improperly transfers cases," "disqualifies himself as biased and prejudiced" and cannot make a decision against the men who appoint him, a la recent sewer case concerning Middletown's town hall. Maybe we can lift some of the burden from Judge Ronald Horan's shoulders because everytime he disqualifies himself it costs the taxpayers of Middletown $75 to call in a competent judge.

Most municipalities are concerned with keeping costs down in operating the municipal courts, which generally are a lucrative source of revenue. The hiring of a local prosecutor also is an added expense which 54 per cent of our New Jersey's municipal courts do without, and Middletown might consider such a move. Instead, we could educate the police in proper charging practices.

Good luck in your many decisions on all matters concerning the people of Middletown.

Sincerely yours,
Marion B. Dunlevy

Abortion, laws

New Jersey
Nurses for Life
430 Iron Bridge Road
Freehold Township, N.J. 07728

To the Editor:

The recent exoneration of the Pennsylvania physician accused of letting a baby die after it reportedly survived an abortion he performed, has clearly indicated how totally incongruous our laws have become.

According to our judicial system, it is a punishable crime to allow a child to die after it has been delivered alive. But to cause that same child's death while it is still in its mother's uterus is sanctioned by our courts. So, in effect, the law states that before the umbilical cord is cut, that child is fair game; when the cord is severed, the child is to be protected by society.

This is absolute insanity!

The child has not changed — it is the same baby before delivery as it is after delivery. Yet, this child is protected only if he—she is extra-uterine.

The doctor maintains there's nothing wrong with abortion. There's plenty wrong with a procedure that methodically and deliberately ends the life of a human being, born or unborn.

There's plenty wrong with a society that would legalize this inhumane act and protect the medical misfits who perform abortions. And, finally, there's plenty wrong with a doctor who finds satisfaction in destruction.

With reverence for life

To the Editor:

On behalf of participating members of the Fair Haven Business Association and the many volunteers for the Red Bank Auxiliary for Retarded Children, many thanks for the generous space alloted to our two-day sales event on November 14 and 15.

Cent-A-Mental Days has represented a mammoth effort which in addition to helping the retarded children, has brought a great sense of unity to Fair Haven businessmen and their patrons.

Thanks again.

Very truly yours,

CALL IT THE WAY YOU SEE IT.

SAMPLE WEEKEND 3-MINUTE RATES (tax not included)
	Direct Dialed	Operator Assisted	Person-To-Person
LOS ANGELES	70¢	$1.40	$3.55
CHICAGO	50¢	$1.10	$2.40
MIAMI	65¢	$1.20	$2.65

Just think. By asking an operator's assistance, a three-minute weekend call to L.A. will be twice as much as if you dialed it yourself. And calling person-to-person is over five times more costly. For example:

You want to say "Happy Birthday" to Aunt Mary in Los Angeles, but you can't see spending the person-to-person premium rate. And you don't want to call collect, or charge it, or make it a third number billed call, or a coin phone call (all of which cost extra because they involve an operator). So, you take the least expensive option of all: get the area code from the front of your phone book and dial Aunt Mary yourself.

Remember, the next time you're calling people dear and far, look over your options. Then make the call that makes sense to you.

Yes

We want you to get the most out of your phone service.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

By SYLVIA PORTER

Q. If you were an elderly couple living on what the U.S. government has decided is a "modest but adequate" food budget today, how much would you spend?

A. $1.92 each, per day.

Q. What do the Washington statisticians figure the two of you spend for total medical expenses each month — including Medicare deductions, prescriptions, dental bills, physical exams, etc.?

A. $19 per person, after Medicare doctor bill insurance premiums have been paid.

Q. And if you were 75 and over, how much would you be spending for food at this "moderate" level?

A. $12.70 a week if you were a man, $9.90 if you were a woman.

Q. And what is the total for your overall cost of living if you were a retired couple at various income levels?

A. $3,763 a year on the "lower" level budget, $5,414 on the "intermediate" budget, $8,043 on the "liberal" plan.

These are merely a sampling of the figures I selected from recent reports by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. What's more, the budgets are based on prices in the autumn of 1973 — a full year ago — are only 9 per cent above the 1972 budgets designed to pay for all "those goods and services that are necessary for a healthful, self-respecting mode of living," are only 21 per cent above 1970's costs.

Knowing what has happened to prices since the fall of 1973, I doubt if you need me to pontificate on how tight an "official statistical belt" the authorities place on a real-life elderly American in today's real-life world.

Try to put yourself in the place of these tens of millions of Americans. This is what your "moderate" cost budget would actually buy:

Food costs would have to be restricted to $133.25 per month; housing to $153.25; transportation to $38.50; clothing to $25.08; personal care to $13; medical care to $38; other family consumption to $23.08; and other items to $27.17, per month.

Could you manage a "healthful, self-respecting mode of living" on those totals? I'll confess, I couldn't.

Yes, there are some luxuries in the budget. You would be permitted to eat out in a restaurant about once every two weeks, to have guests in for dinner once a week, to have a household helper once every other month. It assumes you, the couple, own a car — but it's a used car and the assumption is you won't replace it for at least six to eight years. Also you could spend a grand total over an entire month of $38.50 to cover gas and oil, repair bills, auto insurance, depreciation, registration, inspection.

You would have virtually no leeway for out-of-the-ordinary medical expenses, drug bills, extra costs of eyeglasses, hearing aids, dentures. A mere $38 a month wouldn't begin to cover even the costs of drugs for a chronic illness or a special diet.

Nor is there provision for life insurance premiums — although many in this age bracket (with or without sound reason) do continue to pay premiums for life insurance.

You would be alloted under the category of "other family consumption" only $23.08 per month to cover all costs of reading, recreation, tobacco, alcoholic beverages, any miscellaneous.

At this point, you're ready for the budget Washington figures would give an elderly couple "a minimum or subsistence level of living." And remember:

Food costs would have to be restricted to $98.50 per month; housing to $106.33; transportation to $19.83; clothing to $14.83; personal care to $8.83; medical care to $37.75; other family consumption to $13.83; and other items to $13.50 per month.

If you were an elderly woman, that would give you $1.15 a day for food — in this era. Who's out of touch with decency and reality?

Developing a pension plan

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q — My wife has a small selling business, netting $1,000 to $1,500 annually. How may she take advantage of the new pension provision to set aside some part of her profits in a Keogh plan? Most of the mutual fund prospectuses which we have sent for do not explain the mathematics. It seems to me they are missing a good selling point. — E.M.

A — Most mutual funds are now in the process of preparing brochures to explain the extensive and complicated changes of the new pension reform act. I suggest you write to the fund or funds of your choice requesting any new material they may have available.

Should your wife elect to sart a Keogh, she may set aside, tax free, a minimum of $750 of earned income, whichever is less. In her case, it would be $750, or 50 to 75 per cent of her annual profit. Before initiating a plan for her, you should also investigate the advantages of your setting up an Individual Retirement Account (IRA), assuming you are not already covered by a pension plan where you work. Beginning with the 1975 tax year, people will be able to start IRA plans, contributing up to 15 per cent of earned income, but not more than $1,500 annually. Significantly, your wife may also contribute up to $1,500 (100 per cent of her earnings). Thus, together you could put aside as much as $3,000 toward retirement in a tax-sheltered plan.

Q — I hold at present 50 shares of Bohack Corporation, which I purchased at $20 each. I know the stock is no longer quoted in the newspapers. What is happening and what is the best course of action to take? — M. C.

A — Trading in Bohack was suspended by the American Stock Exchange late in July. Subsequently, the company filed for reorganization under Chapter XI of the Bankruptcy Act. Merger negotiations which had been terminated with Shopwell, Inc. were resumed in October and should be effective following confirmation by Bohack's creditors. The stock has been trading OTC at $1.00 bid and $1.38 asked. Hold.

(Mr. Sargent cannot answer all mail personally, but will answer all questions possible in his column.)

Added responsibilities given to Peter Hogan

ORANGE — Cooper-Jarrett, Inc., long distance motor carrier, announces that Peter J. Hogan, previously vice president-eastern region, has had added to his responsibility the nine terminals of C-J's northeast region, for a total of 16. He will be known as vice president-eastern division.

Mr. Hogan's career in transportation included a vice presidency at Global Terminal and Container Services, Inc., an intermodal service company division managership at a major eastern motor carrier, and a term as executive assistant to the president and board chairman of Maher Terminals.

He holds a juris doctorate degree from Brooklyn Law School, and a degree in industrial management and marketing from Fordham University. He and Mrs. Hogan, the former Bernadette Munson, have seven children and live at 7 Sheraton Lane, Rumson.

Keansburg board moves go unexplained

KEANSBURG — The Board of Education and some faculty members were involved in some unusual moves last night and no explanation was given for them.

Voting unanimously, the board accepted the resignation of Peter Peltz from the $365 post of chairman of the high school social studies department.

Then, again voting 9 to 0 in favor, they appointed William Boyington, vice president of the Keansburg Teachers Association, to that position.

The board then went on to approve Mr. Boyington's resignation from the post, again voting unanimously. Finally, coming full circle, they voted 9-0 to reappoint Mr. Peltz.

In similar moves involving the chairmanship of the high business department, the board voted unanimously to accept the resignation of Mrs. Fran Ciuba as business department chairman and to appoint Samuel C. Capalbo, president of the KTA, in her $365 post. But there was no resignation offered by Mr. Capalbo, and no reappointment of Mrs. Ciuba.

Asked why Mr. Capalbo failed to follow his KTA colleague's example in submitting an immediate resignation so Mrs. Ciuba could be reappointed, Joseph R. Bolger, school superintendent, smiled and said, "No comment."

George W. Preston Jr., board president, added, "These moves will probably be better explained in the next few weeks. We will have a public statement. It's an example of our desire to cooperate with everyone down to the lowest man on the totem pole."

Mr. Preston would not comment further.

A controversy between the board and the KTA started in August when, acting on recommendations of Mr. Bolger, the board appointed Mr. Peltz and Mrs. Ciuba to the chairmanships which had been occupied by Mr. Boyington and Mr. Capalbo. A third chairmanship, that of the high school English department, which pays $405, was given Robert Waldron, displacing another KTA officer, Robert Currie, the association's corresponding secretary.

The board's action brought angry protests from the three KTA officers and from John A. Molloy, field representative of the N.J. Education Association, who charged the three chairmen were replaced at Mr. Bolger's instigation merely because they are KTA officers.

Mr. Capalbo delivered to the board in August an official KTA letter charging the failure to reappoint the three chairmen was a violation of the KTA contract, illegal and unethical. The letter warned the KTA would "use whatever means are considered necessary and appropriate if these issues are not resolved satisfactorily."

Later the KTA issued a statement proclaiming it had taken a vote of no confidence in Mr. Bolger and charged the superintendent "acted to weaken the association's effectiveness in negotiating for the district's teachers."

The KTA statement quoted Mr. Capalbo as saying, "It is union busting and it's got to stop. Flagrant violations of the contract, favoritism to non-members, violations of board policy and intimidation of KTA officers have characterized the administration of Mr. Bolger, and the vote (of no confidence) merely reflects our members' concern."

The KTA also protested the board's failure, again on the superintendent's recommendation, to offer tenure to Richard Dooley of Rumson, a distributive education teacher, alleging Mr. Dooley was terminated without the required formal evaluation of his performance.

While the squabble with the KTA leaders was going on, the board concluded an agreement on a 1974-75 salary guide with the teachers, apparently with little difficulty. Guides for secretaries and custodians, also represented by the KTA, were agreed on as well.

Throughout the dispute, Mr. Preston has refused to comment, but has insisted the board is always ready to meet with KTA representatives on the issues.

Keansburg board seats new member

KEANSBURG — Sworn in as a member of the Board of Education last night was James R. McCollough of 32 Lakewood Ave.

Mr. McCollough takes the place of James E. Moran, who resigned because of the press of business and family affairs. He will serve until February, when he will seek a full board term.

The new board member is a systems analyst consultant with Programming Methods Inc. of New York City. He had previously taught school.

Authority to accept report from auditor

MIDDLETOWN — The Sewerage Authority will meet in special session tonight in its Belford office to accept the Nov. 13 report on the authority's bond refinancing submitted by its auditor, Charles D. Fallon.

"We'll just accept the report and forward copies to the various agencies," Willard G. Foster, authority chairman, said last night. "It'll be only a five-minute affair," he said of tonight's meeting.

The authority members voted last month to refer Mr. Fallon's findings to state and federal agencies in the hope of a reconciliation between them and the projections of Halsey, Stuart Co. Inc., New York City investment firm which floated the authority's refunding bond issue.

The Halsey, Stuart firm projected a saving of $12 million to township residents through refunding the bonds. Mr. Fallon's first report, revealed Oct. 22, indicated no saving, but a deficit of $494,795. A revision of his initial report, submitted by Mr. Fallon Nov. 13, indicated the loss may be as high as $2,202,740.

Frederick A. Eldridge, former authority chairman under whose leadership the refunding issue was floated, and Evan R. Beecher, the other remaining Republican on the Democratic controlled body, insist the Fallon report, revised to take into account several errors alleged by Mr. Eldridge, still contains substantial inaccuracies.

"In reviewing the Nov. 13 report, we still find a number of arithmetical mistakes and we still find very grave mistakes in comprehension made by Mr. Fallon. We will not, however, through the press point out these mistakes in detail for fear that Mr. Fallon will take these mistakes as he did in our previous report and again misuse them," Mr. Eldridge and Mr. Beecher stated.

The two Republicans scored the Democratic authority majority for refusing to grant their request for a full public hearing of the Fallon reports, alleging the authority plans to discuss the reports with Mr. Fallon in caucus after the brief public meeting tonight.

"The proposition of holding a caucus meeting for Mr. Fallon's explanation can only be construed as a further attempt to mislead the public and perpetrate a cover-up. This country has seen the ordeal of a 'Watergate' situation and we do not feel that the people of Middletown should be subjected to a 'Foster-gate,'" Mr. Eldridge and Mr. Beecher said.

Mr. Foster confirmed the authority plans to discuss the reports with Mr. Fallon tonight in caucus "if he's available."

The two Republicans still demand a public meeting on the Fallon reports "with ample notice so we can have all our experts present."

Driver hurt in asphalt truck blast

COLTS NECK — A malfunction in the heating system is believed to have caused the explosion of an asphalt truck on Rt. 18.

Thirty-one members of the Colts Neck Fire Department were at the scene for about 1½ hours, using water and foam to fight the resulting fire, which kept re-igniting because of the volatile fuel involved.

Colts Neck State Police identified the operator of the vehicle, which is owned by the Stavola Contracting Co., New Shrewsbury, as R. Hendrickson. He was transported to Freehold Area Hospital, Freehold Township, where he was treated for burns on his head, face and arms.

The truck was being used to complete the eastern portion of the new road from here to the shore.

Five pumpers and a tanker were at the scene Tuesday morning and assistance was received from Earle Naval Ammunition Depot. The truck was destroyed.

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Your horoscope, birthday

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 22 — Born today, you possess many talents and a variety of interests to go with them. It will not be easy for you to decide upon which of many possible goals to set your sights, for you will be attracted to many at the same time that you will realize that you are not one of those who can follow more than one bent at a time. Indeed, unless you do make such a selection, you will see many of lesser talent than you possess passing you on the road to success. And, once made, the decision must stick; to change your mind could mean to forfeit success after all.

You possess phenomenal powers of memory, particularly when it comes to knowledge gained about other people. You have been known to impress, shock, and surprise people by your ability to tell them about themselves. Even so, it is to be hoped that you also are wise enough to know when to keep what you know to yourself, for there are times when to display too much knowledge about another can be more damaging than not, particularly when it is another's vanity that comes into play.

Because it is easy for you to acquire knowledge, whether through books, experience, or word-of-mouth, you may have less than a tolerant attitude toward those who find the learning experience a difficult, perhaps even an impossible one. You would do well to spend some time developing your natural compassion — an aspect of your character which may have been overlooked in the race to make gains in other areas.

SATURDAY, November 23

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — A weekend project may be in difficulty because of an early morning problem. Solutions may well be found where you least expect them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — A little effort is all that is needed to set things right with children. Don't make demands upon the young which you know they cannot meet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Take care not to overdo things on a physical level. You can exert yourself as much as you please where mental exercise is concerned.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Make sure that you get your quota of rest and relaxation today. This is no time to demonstrate to others how energetic you can be.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — The wise Aries will not attempt to separate his life according to the activities each level requires. For a new experience, mix things up a bit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Too much activity on the social side may cause you discomfort late in the day. If you must celebrate, do so with care and good sense.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Keep calm. Confusion may cause you more than a little concern early in the day, but with applied reason, all comes right in the end.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Optimism is one thing, pride is another. Don't allow the latter to mislead you into thinking you can accomplish more than you really can. Be realistic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Take care that you are not confiding too quickly — and therefore rashly — in a stranger. Keep your plans to yourself for the time being.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — If you insist on beginning a new at-home project at this particular time, you must be prepared for quarrels with loved ones. The wise Virgo will wait.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — New contacts are the results of a brief journey today — and these contacts can lead to a new lease on life! Keep open to suggestions for gain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Though Saturday, there is considerable activity in business or profession. Associates may cause you some alarm where profit is concerned.

Sheinwold's bridge advice

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Don't fall over just because somebody points a gun at you. Maybe the gun isn't loaded. This is our piece of wisdom for the day, and we have a bridge hand to prove how true it all is.

West opens the eight of hearts, dummy puts up the ten and you (East) cover with the queen. South plays low and smirks. "That's the Bath Coup," he announces smugly.

And so it is. If you continue hearts, he can let the trick ride around to dummy's jack.

Sly switch

Perhaps you hit upon a sly switch to spades. If South takes the finesse he will go down. West will win with the king of spades and lead his remaining heart. Now you will set up your other heart trick before the ace of clubs is knocked out.

But South should put up the ace of spades instead of trying the finesse. He leads a club immediately to force out the ace. This allows him to discard a heart on one of dummy's clubs, and he gives up only one heart, one club and one trump.

Now go back to the second trick. Don't despair just because South has made a clever play. Just lead back the three of hearts.

Declarer will let this ride to dummy's jack, of course, but it won't help him. If declarer knocks out the ace of clubs, you will lead a third heart to give West a ruff. And if South takes the trump finesse before touching clubs, West will put you in with the ace of clubs to give him the heart ruff.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: S-7 H-K Q 9 7 3 D-Q 9 6 2 C-A 10 7. What do you say?

Answer: Pass. This is not quite worth an opening bid in first or second position. You would open if the queen of diamonds were changed to the king or even if one of the low clubs were changed to a heart.

Montedoro defense in youth slayings based on insanity

By SHERRY CONOHAN

FREEHOLD — The murder trial of John P. Montedoro, who is accused of the shotgun slayings of two Bradley Beach youths on April 4 in a wooded section of New Shrewsbury, opened yesterday with defense attorney Charles Frankel asking the jury to acquit Montedoro because he was insane at the time and still is today.

Montedoro, 21, of Bradley Beach, is charged with two counts of murder in the fatal shooting of Daniel Hernandez, 18, and his nephew Julio Hernandez, 10, both of whom lived at 523 Main St., Bradley Beach. The bodies of the youths were found in a wooded area off Shafto Road in the Reevytown section of New Shrewsbury in the early morning hours of April 5.

Mr. Frankel, in his opening remarks at the trial, stressed that he wasn't admitting Montedoro had done anything but asserted that he was insane on the day the murders were committed, had been for some time before then, and still is today.

"If ever there was a brutal killing committed, this was a brutal killing," Mr. Frankel told the jury. "No man in his right mind — no person in his right mind — could commit these acts." He asked the jury to find that "John is not guilty by reason of insanity and that insanity continues and he should be confined until such time as he is cured."

Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor John A. Ricciardi, in his opening statement, said evidence presented during the trial would leave no doubt that Montedoro was guilty of the double murder and told the jury he felt it was sufficient for a finding of first degree murder.

The evidence, he added, will include a tape recorded statement from Montedoro which will be played in court.

"This issue here is going to be the insanity issue," Mr. Ricciardi said. He told the jurors that in determining whether Montedoro was insane they would have to weigh the testimony of "lay witnesses — police officers and others who had contact with him (Montedoro) that day," against the testimony of psychiatrists and psychologists who will be called by the defense.

"If this defendant is absolved of guilt because of insanity . . . then so be it," the prosecutor said. "It's an ominous burden you have — to absolve someone of a double homocide."

The trial got underway after a jury of nine men and five women was seated to hear the case. During the selection of the panel, Superior Court Judge Patrick J. McGann Jr., who is presiding over the trial, informed the prospective jurors the defense would be insanity; told them there is specific law on this issue and asked them if they could accept his instruction to them on this law.

The trial was scheduled to resume this morning with a continuation of testimony in presenting the state's case.

At the outset of the trial yesterday, Mr. Ricciardi said the evidence would show Montedoro shot the Hernandez youths after picking them up at the Bradley Beach Lanes and taking them to the woods where an argument ensued. He said Montedoro accused Daniel of "fooling around" with his girlfriend. Daniel, who had recently arrived in this country from Puerto Rico, couldn't speak English so 10-year-old Julio was interpreting for them during the argument, the prosecutor said.

Mr. Ricciardi said Montedoro finally went to the trunk of the car and got out a shotgun which he had placed there earlier in the evening "for the sole purpose of doing what he was going to do." Montedoro also got out a shovel, he continued, and ordered the Hernandez youth to dig a grave.

A little later Montedoro aimed the shotgun at Daniel "and shot his head off," Mr. Ricciardi charged. He said the shot also took off part of one of Daniel's hands which he apparently had raised to protect himself. The watch that Daniel was wearing was found at the scene later with the time stopped at 16 minutes before 11, he added.

"Julio, seeing what happend, tried to run away," Mr. Ricciardi told the jury. He said that Montedoro stopped him though, put the shotgun to the back of his head, and shot him too.

Montedoro then drove home, carefully cleaned the shoutgun and put it away, and returned to the Bradley Beach Lanes about midnight. He went there, Mr. Ricciardi said, to ask a friend, Bradley Beach Patrolman Robert DeNardo, who was working at the lanes that night and was about finished, to go drinking with him at Kelly's. He said Mr. DeNardo agreed to do so and while at Kelly's the two of them ran into other off-duty policemen who were friends of theirs. The whole group then went on to the Brookside bar where Montedoro stayed until about 2 a.m., the prosecutor said.

Mr. Ricciardi said Montedoro said he was going home when he left, but was stopped and questioned by a New Shrewsbury policeman in the Reevytown woods about 45 minutes later. The officer thought Montedoro might have been drinking, but decided to let him go, then, moments later while turning around his patrol car, spotted the bodies, he said.

Patrolman John DeMedici of New Shrewsbury, during his testimony on the witness stand, pointed to Montedoro in the courtoom and identified him as the young man he stopped for questioning at about 2:45 a.m. April 5 in the Reevytown woods moments before the bodies were found nearby. He said he had let Montedoro go on his way after giving him a sobriety test and searching his car, then, while turning his police car around to leave, spotted the bodies of the dead youths.

Patrolman DeMedici said he subsequently called the Monmouth County police radio network and put out a request that Montedoro be picked up for questioning. He said that before stopping Montedoro's car he had radioed New Shrewsbury police headquarters to report the vehicle's license number. He learned Montedoro's name, he continued, when he looked at his driver's license and automobile registration while questioning the youth.

Montedoro was arrested a short time later in Bradley Beach.

Patrolman DeMedici said Montedoro told him he came to the woods to finished drinking a bottle of vermouth because he wanted to be alone after having been hassled all night by a girl. The officer said he saw a bottle of vermouth in the car.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Frankel, the patrolman admitted that in the report he filed on the night's occurrences, he said that when he questioned Montedoro again after his arrest Montedoro was speaking rapidly and "wasn't making much sense."

Patrolman LaDean White of New Shrewsbury told how he arrived at the murder scene as the backup man for Patrolman DeMedici after the other officer had radioed that he was stopping a youth on a dirt road in the woods for questioning. He said they asked Montedoro to perform a "finger to the nose" sobriety test because they thought he was under the influence of alcohol.

In reply to a question from Mr. Ricciardi, Patrolman White said Montedoro seemed to understand the questions put to him and responded accordingly. He said that after Montedoro left, he started back down the dirt road behind him, en route to Shafto Road. When he heard Patrolman DeMedici report his discovery of the bodies on the radio, the policeman continued, he tried to catch up with Montedoro but was unsuccessful and returned to the scene of the murders.

At the request of Mr. Ricciardi, Patrolman White then identified four expended red 12 gauge shot gun shells which he said he found in the vicinity of the bodies.

Mr. Frankel, in claiming that Montedoro was insane, told the jury that the young man had a long history of drug abuse. He said Montedoro began sniffing glue when he was 14 years old and started using marijuana and heroin when he was 16. He had been under the care of a private psychologist several years ago and was confined several times to Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch, and Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital because of drugs. He also had been taken to drug centers, he added.

"He was so strung out on drugs he couldn't be in his right mind," Mr. Frankel said. "He was freaked out all the way."

Defense witnesses, he said, would include expert testimony as to Montedoro's state of mind and a description by his mother of attacks he had made on her with a knife and a mop.

"John Montedoro was not in his right mind on the night of April 4, 1974," he asserted. "He hadn't been for some time before and isn't today as he sits in court."

School test result to be made known

FAIR HAVEN — Robert Chariter, superintendent of schools, says the detailed results of the state educational assessment program will be available for public review by the end of the week.

Mr. Chartier said the individual student results will be made available for inspection by parents as soon as the Board of Education receives official permission from the state Department of Education.

"I expect the letter by Friday," Mr. Chartier told the board last night.

Also to be made available will be the test data and a report on what will be involved in correcting deficiencies found through the testing program, conducted statewide earlier this year.

Two teachers who are conducting an experimental language program in grades seven and eight told the board that the program appears to be successful.

The program, started in September, provides both French and Spanish as a major subject with class sizes held to 12 to 14 students. The teachers are Miss Jill MacLean, who teaches French, and Mrs. Tracy Lutz, a part-time Spanish teacher.

Four students from Walter Scott's fifth grade mathematics class, presented a program for the board on uses of calculators in learning mathematics.

Mr. Scott stressed that the calculators were not being used as a crutch to make mathematics easier for the students, but only to increase their math skills.

Taking part in the demonstration were Marie Tzannetakis, Brian Grazzini, Scott Nabors, and Lisa Downing.

INTRODUCING

YOUR 1926 FORD DEALER

IN AN AGE OF RAZZ-MA-TAZZ, COME IN FOR SOME REFRESHINGLY OLD-FASHIONED SERVICE.

The mid-nineteen twenties. It was a time in this country when a friendly hello and good, honest service were commonplace. But that was a long time ago. And things haven't been quite the same since. ¶ Your Ford Dealer thinks it's about time to turn back the clock. If we don't give you the kind of courtesy and service you can't get from the guy down the street, we know we can't expect to sell you a 1975 Ford (much less any other car you buy from here on in). ¶ Sure. We've got a great line-up of '75 Fords—from our sporty Pinto right through to our Maverick, Mustang II, Torino, Elite, LTD and Thunderbird. And we've even got a luxurious new car—the Ford Granada. ¶ But that's not enough. ¶ You deserve the same refreshingly old-fashioned treatment your grandfather got when he came in for his Ford. You deserve a 1926 Ford Dealer. And you'll get one with every 1975 Ford.

Kennel expansion proposal to get additional study

NEW SHREWSBURY — Planning Board hearings on a site plan application by the Associated Humane Societies of N.J. to expand facilities at Granderson's Kennels will continue on Dec. 18.

Carl Wheeler, board engineer, said the society, which now owns Granderson's Kennels at 2945 Shafto Road, near Hamilton Road, must submit a revised site plan indicating more drainage information.

The board is also requiring an environmental impact statement or a response to criteria guidelines.

According to plans for the 2.2-acre tract, the society proposes expanding existing facilities at Granderson's to 120 individual kennels. The 30 kennels in the present building would be reduced to 22.

One proposed addition measuring about 38 by 100 feet would contain 50 kennels, while a second addition measuring about 38 feet by 92 feet would house another 48 kennels.

Plans also show the existing parking lot capacity would be doubled to 20 parking spaces.

Lee Bernstein, the group's executive director, said, "Our main purpose is to provide a haven for unwanted animals. While we may have to destroy some unwanted animals, our objective is to try to find homes for them."

In addition, the kennel would have education programs in animal care for school children and would assume responsibility for the care of injured wildlife, Mr. Bernstein said.

The society, a nonprofit organization, could also provide dog control service to the borough at cost based on a 40-cents-per-capita rate, he said.

Councilman Arthur E. James, a member of the board, said the borough now pays between $20,000 and $3,000 for dog control service from another organization.

Donations would be asked from people wishing to board their animals at the kennels, Mr. Bernstein said, but the society would not charge anyone if called upon to pick up a stray animal.

He doubted that neighbors of the kennel would be bothered by barking dogs. "Dogs are basically quiet unless they are disturbed by something," he said. All animals would be locked indoors at night.

Animal waste would be disposed of in a manner suitable to the board, but would not be transferred to the sewer system, Mr. Bernstein said.

The board carried a site plan application by Elberon II proposing a small shopping center behind the Chevron station at Tinton Ave. and Water St. until a special meeting Dec. 4.

At that time, the board expects to have another lawyer represent it since Chester Apy, the board's attorney, disqualified himself since his firm has represented the applicant in other matters.

Edmond J. Norris sent a letter to the board announcing his resignation from the Planning Board effective immediately. Edward F. Stashak, board chairman, said a letter of appreciation will be sent to Mr. Norris for his services to the borough.

Mr. Norris' resignation must now be accepted by the Borough Council, which has the power to name his successor.

Wants more help for food stamps

NEW SHREWSBURY — Freeholder Philip N. Gumbs complained Wednesday that the county welfare system isn't serving food stamp patrons efficiently.

Speaking at a meeting of the Monmouth County Welfare Board, he noted that only 48 employes were processing food stamp applications as opposed to 233 in the social service section. Mr. Gumbs told the board he felt the emphasis should be on food stamps.

"I've received numerous calls about the food stamp problems," he said. "The people we should be serving are the discouraged and the frustrated who wait and wait to receive their food stamps." He also pointed out that 6 employes hired in the social service section should have been added to food stamps.

According to the board's monthly report, it registered 2,254 applications last month in addition to 296 cases it had pending. It approved 1,956 applications and denied 145 and ended the month with 11,103, or 1008 more than it had on its rolls at the end of September. The food stamp load represents more than half of the total 21,368 case load.

Robert C. Wells, welfare director, told the board that he could not simply switch his employes from one section to another. "What you're talking about would be a retraining process. People are not interchangeable parts."

Louis Armour, assistant director, noted that they had "just about caught up with new applications" and that the waiting time had been cut to 5 days. "Nobody suffers because of it," he said.

Atlantic Highlands tragedy stirs outpouring of help and kindness

By HILDY McCORMICK

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — When tragedy strikes a family in a small town such as this, there seems to be no limit to the outpouring of assistance and kindness from residents.

The entire borough appeared still to be in a state of shock over the tragic deaths Wednesday morning of Mrs. Mary Ellen Sheehan, 36, and her 3-year-old son Jamie, who were overcome as they tried to escape their burning home on Fourth Ave.

Residents here and in neighboring towns were stunned by the awful event, but as they tried to recover from their own shock, they also began to work out ways in which they could assist the surviving six members of the Sheehan family.

Both Mrs. Sheehan and her husband, John A. Sheehan, were active in the Democratic Club here. Mr. Sheehan was a Borough Council candidate in the election earlier this month, and Mrs. Sheehan was a committeewoman for the First District for six years.

Democratic Club headquarters on First Ave. seemed to be the focal point as gifts of clothing for the five surviving Sheehan children and Mr. Sheehan began to pour in.

Club headquarters are sometimes the scene of happiness over election victory, and other times the scene of sadness over an election defeat. But not in recent years has the scene there been as somber as it was Wednesday.

About a half a dozen people were there, trying to recover from their own personal shock and grief. Evidence was also there that residents wasted no time in donating clothing to the survivors. Tables were piled high with clothing, and a coat rack was filled with still more outerwear.

But the people in club headquarters were quick to point out that this was not all due to the efforts of Atlantic Highlands residents.

Middletown and Highlands, they said, also came through with assistance.

They described the response of people everywhere as a genuine outpouring that crossed community and political lines.

The Democratic Club is being joined by the local Republican Club in a clothing collection for the surviving family members. Each club headquarters is expected to be open for donations.

There is no doubt the clothing will be needed. The only clothes Mr. Sheehan and his family have at the moment are those they were wearing Wednesday when they left their home to go to school and to work.

A victory celebration planned by the Republican Club for tonight was postponed.

A small group gathered outside of Democratic Club headquarters on First Ave. Wednesday. One of them was Donald T. Loftus, the party's municipal chairman, and a close friend of the Sheehan family.

"The response in the few hours this afternoon was fantastic," he said. "People are beautiful. Regardless of party, when the chips are down, everybody comes through, I don't care who it is," he said.

While the first step in piecing things back together again concerns getting clothing for the family, the second will be to get them settled again and into a house.

Plans along those lines will, necessarily, take a white.

But one person, who asked to remain anonymous, in the light of the awful tragedy expressed some optimism.

That optimism came right back to people.

"It's one hell of a thing to be born in a small town," he declared.

After Wednesday's initial response, he has a good point.

Byrne makes promise to strikers

TRENTON — Gov. Brendan T. Byrne is urging striking teachers at eight state colletes to return to work with a promise the state would negotiate in good faith over salary raises.

Byrne said yesterday that wages "will be negotiated and amendments in the budget will be made as appropriate to accommodate negotiated settlements made subsequent to the submission of the budget."

However, he stressed the state's current financial plight which includes administrations projections of a budget deficit ranging between $350 million and $640 million.

"A response to wage demands in the public sector must be balanced against the public's willingness to pay through taxes and the equities involved in wage demands," Byrne said.

The strike began on Monday and attempts to begin negotiations Wednesday to end it were unsuccessful.

State negotiator Frank Mason said that no talks over salary increases would take place until early next year.

Rental discrimination suit filed

NEWARK — A black Mississippian has filed suit in federal court here, charging a New Milford realtor with racial discrimination when he sought to rent a house in Bergen County.

The suit was the third in as many months sponsored by the Fair Housing Council, a private organization trying to force integration of housing in the county, where about five per cent of the residents are black.

Charles East of Moss Point, Miss., a quality control engineer for General Electric said in papers filed yesterday in U.S. District Court that he was transferred to a project at the Curtiss-Wright Co. plant in Wood-Ridge and wanted to rent a home in Bergen County near his work. East, who earns $19,300 a year, said he applied to the Mainstream Real Estate Agency for a home in the $375-a-month category in New Milford, but that the firm discouraged him from pursuing the matter.

PUC plan eliminates Bell charge

NEWARK — The state Public Utility Commission has approved a plan that will eliminate New Jersey Bell monthly charges for answering devices made by other companies.

Under the plan submitted by the phone company and approved by the PUC yesterday, safety devices to protect the phone system from possible electronic damage will be installed in the answering machines.

Bell Telephone has been leasing the safety devices to customers at monthly charges of $1 to $8, the PUC said.

PUC President Anthony J. Grossi said New Jersey is the tenth state to approve an arrangement of this type, which a PUC staff member described as related to the federal antitrust suit filed this week against American Telephone & Tele graph Co.

AT&T is the parent company of the state Bell companies and of Western Electric which makes telephone equipment. Critics have said the interconnect charge for non-Western Electric equipment was designed to steer business to Western Electric, a practice they said is in restraint of free trade.

Conflicts law goal of bar groups

HAMILTON, Bermuda — The goal of a statewide conflicts-of-interest law for New Jersey local government was announced here yesterday.

The administration of New Jersey Gov. Brendan T. Byrne and the New Jersey State Bar Association said they would join in striving for such legislation.

Endorsing the idea at the association's mid-year meeting were New Jersey Attorney Gen. William F. Hyland and Bernard Kuttner of Newark, chairman of the the association's conflicts of interest committee.

The association's president, Stanley S. Brotman, declared, "We fought for a tough state conflicts-of-interest law, tougher than the one adopted by the legislature in 1971. More recently we supported campaign financing reform and new, augmented procedures for investigating ethics complaints against attorneys."

Meningitis kills college student

TRENTON — One student has died and a second is critically ill in an outbreak of meningitis at Trenton State College, the New Jersey Department of Health disclosed yesterday.

A third student recovered from the disease, the department said in announcing that it will offer free vaccinations to the 10,000 students, faculty and other employes at the college.

The department said the three cases occurred within the last month.

The disease is a bacterial infection of the brain coverings. It frequently starts as a respiratory tract infection and may be followed by fever, headache and stiff neck.

Dr. Joanne E. Finley, state commissioner of health, said the vaccine would provide protection. She said the only persons who should not receive it are pregnant women. "There has been no experience with the vaccine among pregnant women," she said.

Grand jury gets Grossi records

TRENTON — A published report says that a state grand jury investigating alleged corruption in the garbage industry has received the financial records of Public Utility Commission President Anthony J. Grossi.

According to the report Grossi's accountant, Joseph Thieberg of Paterson, has been interviewed by officials of the state Division of Criminal Justice, but he has not been called before the grand jury.

The records, which had been in Thieberg's custody, were reportedly delivered to the grand jury here yesterday.

Grossi has said that Thieberg acted as his intermediary in his 1966 purchase of 10 per cent of Hudson Jersey Sanitation Co. and when Grossi sold his share of the company in 1968.

Jersey City Mayor Paul Jordan has charged Grossi with conflict of interest for owning the share of the company because the PUC regulates the garbage industry, although the PUC did not have that power when Grossi had an interest in the company.

Hyland asks better lawyer ethics

TRENTON — Attorney Gen. William F. Hyland said yesterday that the vast majority of cases involving unethical conduct by lawyers and public officials is beyond the reach of the law enforcement authorities.

"The criminal law is a poor tool for reaching the vast majority of situations of questionable propriety," Hyland said. He called upon lawyers to help in raising standards of integrity.

Hyland's remarks were delivered to the New Jersey Bar Association convention in Bermuda and were made available here by his office.

He said that reliance on criminal prosecution to catch corruptors "has driven many potentially criminal situations underground."

As a result, Hyland added many public officials and private citizens are afraid of seeking advice "for fear of exposure to criminal investigation and prosecution, even though their activity . . . has not yet risen to the level of a crime."

Investigation of fatal fire is continuing

By HILDY McCORMICK

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — As local and county fire officials continued investigating the cause of a tragic fire here Wednesday which claimed the lives of Mrs. Mary Ellen Sheehan, 36, and her 3-year-old son, Jamie, efforts got under way to relocate the surviving six family members.

Approximately 30 people spent all or part of yesterday painting, hanging curtains, moving in furniture and installing lights to make a house at 119 Center Ave. into a home for John A. Sheehan and the five surviving Sheehan children.

The house, vacant for less than a month, was for rent after its owner, George Collins, was transferred to California.

A relative of the Collins family took the necessary measures to obtain the house for the Sheehan family.

The two-story, three bedroom frame house is only a few houses away from St. Agnes Catholic Church where the Sheehan family worships.

As friends and neighbors of the Sheehan family worked through the day to fix up the new Sheehan home, workmen were boarding up the gutted house on 15 Fourth Ave. where the Sheehans had lived.

Michael P. Cardner, first assistant fire chief, said he is being assisted by Frank L. Wilgus, county fire marshal, in investigating the cause of the fire. He said no cause has yet been determined.

"It's pretty hard to tell," he said, adding that the investigation thus far revealed only that the fire began in a closet underneath a stairwell leading to the second floor. That was the area of the "most intense heat," Chief Cardner said, explaining that fire caused the stairs to break and drop away from the side wall leading to the second floor.

Chief Cardner ruled out the possibility that the fire had started in a furnace. He said the furnace was located in a half-basement in another area of the house.

At the new Sheehan home a telephone was installed early yesterday, and people not only from Atlantic Highlands, but from Middletown, went back and forth carrying in clothing and furniture.

"We are trying to make it like a home so that when they come here everything will be set up," said one family friend. "It is great to see people pitch in when something like this happens," he added.

Donations of clothing and household effects were being accepted at both Democratic and Republican Club headquarters on First Ave.

Mr. Sheehan and his wife were active in Democratic activities here for several years. Mr. Sheehan was a candidate in this month's Borough Council election, and Mrs. Sheehan served as a First District committeewoman for the past six years.

Members of Middletown Helps Its Own also became involved in reconstructing the home life of the Sheehan family.

In addition, a close family friend from Middletown was overseeing the loading of trucks with donated household furnishings and clothing.

This same friend was instrumental in obtaining donations of bedding and clothing from Sears Roebuck and Co. in Middletown.

Individual donations of furniture, a kitchen set and a complete set of dishes were received yesterday. Funds were also donated to purchase underwear and shoes for the Sheehan children.

Donations are expected to continue pouring in until the house is ready for occupancy, probably Sunday or Monday.

But one spokesman said, "We would still appreciate all the help we can get."

The John A. Sheehan Fund, P.O. Box 138, Atlantic Highlands, 07716, has been set up, for financial donations.

Political party headquarters are receiving other donations.

Close family friends are handling the funeral arrangements. Prayer services are scheduled for tonight, and a Mass of the Resurrection will take place tomorrow at 10 a.m. in St. Agnes Church. Burial will be in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Middletown.

Persons wishing to offer any assistance may call 291-0200.

Students get smoking area

WEST LONG BRANCH — After two months of debate, the Shore Regional High School Board of Education has approved a student outdoor smoking area for a three-month trial period.

Under guidelines set down last night by the board, students will be directly responsible for policing both the area and each other.

According to the regulations, the president of the Student Government Association must designate a General Student Supervisor responsible for setting up rosters of student patrols and duty hours, and for reporting infractions of the rules.

Smoking privileges will be restricted to students 16 or older who must have written parental permission until they turn 18, when they must present written proof of age.

Students must also keep the outdoor smoking area clean and the SGA must provide benches. The school will provide trash receptacles and maintain them.

The smoking area was requested by a three-student delegation in September, who said the students would be responsible for supervision.

Elbert M. Hoppenstedt, school superintendent, had blamed failure of students to uphold their end of an earlier bargain as the main reason for revoking similar smoking privileges six years ago.

Students, board members and the administration agree that the bulk of student suspensions are involved with smoking during school.

The most strenuous objections to instituting the new smoking area came last night from board member Frederick Petschauer, who claimed that existing board policy forbids smoking on school grounds.

Several other members, however, discounted this, pointing out that the previous smoking experiment had been compatible with policy.

Mr. Petschauer, puffing on one of his favorite long green cigars, also objected to approving institution of a federally-funded drug prevention program if the smoking were approved.

"It is ludicrous," he declared, "to on the one hand approve payments by federal funds for a drug program, and then maybe approve smoking."

Board member William Reilly declared that he didn't find "any connection between drugs and cigarettes." The board eventually approved both items, with Mr. Petschauer abstaining from an otherwise unanimous vote accepting the drug program.

Mr. Petschauer, James Delehanty and James Ryerson voted against the smoking area on school grounds.

Mr. Ryerson said that while he was opposed to the smoking policy, he found the guidelines "well set forth."

The board approved several expenditures related to the school's athletic program, including a maximum allocation of $2,500 to build dug-outs on the baseball field.

The athletic director was also authorized to order poles for permanent lighting of the athletic field with a maximum expenditure of $3,300. The board estimated current costs at about $316 per pole, with the price rising quickly.

Authorization to hire a girls' indoor track coach was also approved.

Postal employe arrested

LONG BRANCH — A city letter carrier was being held in Monmouth County Jail, Freehold, after he was arrested here yesterday on mail theft charges by federal postal inspectors.

The postal employe, identified as Albert L. Wade, was apprehended yesterday morning at Washington St. and Hampton Ave. by two postal inspectors of the Newark division as a result of an official investigation. The inspectors, attired in work clothes, handcuffed the uniformed postman when they made the arrest.

Mr. Wade, whose address was not immediately known, was to be arraigned today in Federal Court, Newark. He faces theft charges that are punishable by five years in jail or a $2,000 fine.

TOWN'S 'PET' CAUSE — Residents of Atlantic Highlands have rallied around Herbert Konish III, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Konish Jr., 106 Center Ave., who is scheduled to undergo a heart operation on Feb. 3 at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. To date, $3,400 has been raised to defray costs of transportation, hospitalization, and accommodations for his mother. In the process, Herbie (pictured above) became an honorary member of the Bayshore Companion Dog Club, which sponsored an exhibition at St. Agnes School; more than 400 attended a musical program sponsored by the Auxiliary to the Atlantic Highlands Fire Company, and more than $600 was contributed through a special collection taken up at St. Agnes Catholic Church.

Relocation service increases

MIDDLETOWN — Lee Crawford Realty, here, has jumped into the top 10 among 738 members of Inter-City Relocation Service, (RELO) one of the nation's leading transfereee relocation organizations.

RELO's program covers more than 7,300 cities and their suburbs, as well as many smaller towns. Its function is to smooth the way for a relocating family by bringing them much advance information on their new home town, and by making all necessary advance arrangements for the family's first home-buying trip.

In the first nine months of 1974, the Crawford firm helped over three times the number of families moving out of state as in the comparable period of last year, the company reports.

MAC's Spectrum Series is youth oriented

RED BANK — Youth dominates the Monmouth Arts Center's spectrum series of plays, operas, and concerts as well as its Folk-Jazz-Rock series.

Most of the performers are young, half of the schedule is composed of performances for students. The rock concert performers and audiences are mostly young people, and the series ticket prices are geared for them. Only two of the actors in John Houseman's City Center Acting Company due at the Center on Dec. 2 and 3, are over 30; all but one of the cast of the Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater's production of "La Traviata" which was performed on Oct. 5 and 6 were under 30; the soloists with the Utah Symphony Orchestra on May 21 are two girls in their early twenties; the four sons of Romero of the Royal family of Guitar, performing on Feb. 27 and 28 are all young, and, needless to say the youngest troupe of all is the Joffrey II Company which even calls itself "A New Youth Dance Ensemble." The youngest in this company is only 17.

The council's Student Performance Co-Chairman Sarah McGee explains, "We believe we have a mission to give young people a chance to enjoy the arts both as participants and as spectators. And we include rock music, films, metal sculpture, and guitar playing, not just Shakespeare and Beethoven. The important thing is for people, whether they're young or old, to be involved. Otherwise we will have neither artists, performers nor an audience later on."

She also points out, "We have given young people more freedom and more opportunity to acquire material things in life than any generation has ever had, but we have fallen behind in suggesting fulfilling ways in which they might use their wealth, power or opportunities for self-expression. I think the arts provide at least some ways that can be both satisfying to the individual and useful or enjoyable to the community."

This emphasis on youth is also reflected in the number of performances intended for young people. Each of the companies (except Goldovsky) will give at least two one hour-long, day-time performances especially designed for students from the fourth grade through college.

Also master classes will be held by each company to give interested drama or music students an opportunity to observe or work directly with a professional in their respective field of interest. The classes are in the late afternoon and are also open to interested adults. One may buy a ticket as a participant or a spectator in these lecture-demonstrations.

Tickets and further information on any of the Spectrum series regular or student performances or the master classes may be obtained from the Monmouth County Arts Council, Monmouth Arts Center 99 Monmouth St. Red Bank.

'LUV' scheduled

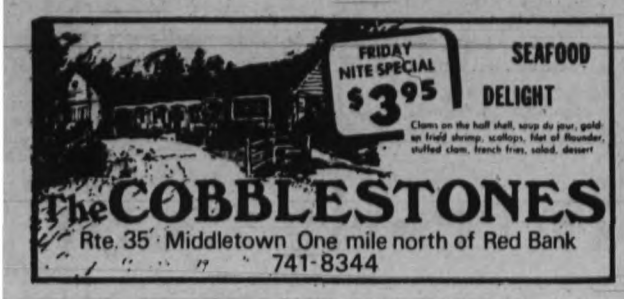

LINCROFT — Theatre 8 has announced its first play of the 1975 season at Brookdale, the Murray Schisgal comedy "LUV." The play will be presented on the evenings of Jan. 3,4,5,10,11 and 12, at Brookdale College, here.

After great acclaim that met Theatre 8's large cast musicals of the past seasons, the group will now challange the small cast comedy. "LUV" has only three people in its cast. Two men about 40 years of age and one woman about 30. "LUV," which was a Broadway hit and an important motion picture, offers a real challenge to the actors and the actress in its cast.

Auditions are open to the general public. The first will be held on the Brookdale campus at Barn "D" at 8 p.m. tomorrow. The second audition will be at 8 p.m. Sunday but held at 122 South St., Freehold.

There are no membership requirements, participation in Theatre 8 is open to all. The only requisite is an interest in good theater.

"LUV" will be directed by Lynn Garrison of Freehold who starred in Theatre 8's "Two By Two" and Holmdel's "Sound of Music"

'Law and Disorder' very disappointing

By BOB RUBIN

ANYTHING GOES

Despite its inspired casting, "Law and Disorder" is a disappointment.

It straddles a humane perspective of the frustrations of harried silent majoritarians beset by big city crime, and a low situation comedy angle on "Death Wish" vigilantism.

Credit for the film's occasional bright spots must go chiefly to durable movie great Ernest Borgnine, who plays Cy, an ex-Marine hairdresser and, to a lesser degree, Carroll O'Connor as Willie, a cabbie. O'Connor sometimes falls back on an expression of Archie Bunker-type boredom.

Male camaraderie, from the "Whaddyawanna do tonight Angie?" pathos of "Marty" to the bust-em-up bravado of "The Wild Bunch," has always been Borgnine's forte. Here it even penetrates O'Connor's thick-skinned Willie.

High point of the film is a beer-drinking spree by the two which culminates in a duet performance of the classical Bronx cheer — surely the most authoritative rendition of the raspberry in screen history.

The film's shortcomings originate in the script, for which three writers, including Ivan Passer, also the director, are blamed.

Everyone in the film, from the oppressed middle-class residents of "Coop Village" to their lowliest assailants (and, of course, the police), is portrayed as such an idiot that the director has difficulty making anyone's vulnerability at all sympathetic — it's just stupid.

The film takes a comic approach to a traditional movie theme: taking the law into one's own hands. The story is the same, only the frontier has backed up to the city.

Tired of flashers, muggers, and other species of New York lowlife, Cy and Willie organize fellow tenants into an auxiliary police unit, complete with uniforms and a mock squad car.

Task formidable

They find cleaning up Dodge City a formidable task, however. Willie's teen-age daughter, for example, is in love with a Puerto Rican youth who feeds her what appears to be IQ-impairing drugs.

Although everybody is treated like morons, the ladies get the worst of it. Some particularly tasteless stuff is worked around Cy's diminishing lust for his wife and her last-ditch efforts toward his arousal.

Two incidental plaudits: Karen Black's by now standard performance, improbable but amusing, as Cy's uncontrollably lascivious assistant, and Arthur J. Ornitz' Panavision panorama of the city — some of the best creative seediness since "The French Connection."

Divested of the language that earned it an "R" rating, "Law and Disorder" would be only occasionally distinguishable from prime time pablum.

Alan Alda has poignant 'guest shot' on Anne Bancroft upcoming special

Have you ever wondered why a star of a television series would spend what little free time he has appearing on another show?

"In my case," says Alan Alda of "M*A*S*H," it was the opportunity of working with Anne Bancroft. She's fabulous."

Alda appears in a segment of Miss Bancroft's special, "Zales Presents Annie and the Hoods," airing Thanksgiving Eve, Wednesday, Nov. 27, on ABC-TV. He and the actress play an aging married couple who reminisce about their life together. It's set to Ogden Nash poetry and is a rare poignant moment in what is otherwise an hour of comedy and music.

"It was different and that's another reason I did it," he explains. "Anne and I both were teary-eyed after each take. It was quite moving."

To appear with Miss Bancroft, Alda took time from a new show he's created, "We'll Get By," which he was working on during a "M*A*S*H" hiatus. If that sounds complicated, it is.

"My family and friends thought I was crazy, but they don't know what it means to an actor to work with someone like Anne Bancroft," he smiles. "I didn't know her and our paths crossed only once, years ago, but I've been a fan ever since 'Two for the Seesaw' and 'The Miracle Worker.' "

Alda was a student at Fordham University when he first met the actress. She had just returned to New York from Hollywood where she had languished in a series of forgettable films. She was invited to appear at a social function at the school and Alda was the student selected to introduce her.

"I don't remember too much about it except she threw roses to the audience," he smiles. "A few months later she was the toast of Broadway."

One of the most sought-after performers in Hollywood, Alda is expanding his interests into the production side of the business. His new series, "We'll Get By," will debut in January. He is co-creator of the show and is writing and directing some of the episodes. He's doing everything but acting in it. Paul Sorvino is the star.

"I'm committed to 'M*A*S*H' and expect to be for a long time," he explains. "I can't take on another series at this time."

Will he continue appearing in specials?

"If I can work with people like Anne Bancroft — sure," he says.

COUNT CATCHES 40 — James Weldon, as Count Dracula, slumbers during the daylight hours in preparation for a whirl of nightlife in the production of the classic thriller being presented tonight and tomorrow night by the St. John Vianney High School Players. The play, with an all-student cast, is being staged in the high school's auditorium in Holmdel.

'Dracula' prowls the boards tonight

HOLMDEL — "Dracula" will be presented by the Vianney Players at 8 p.m. today and tomorrow at St. John Vianney High School, here.

This production is a unique one, for no high school in this area has attempted a dramatization of "Dracula," Bela Lugosi's immortal character based on the 14th century Prince of Romania, Vlad the Impaler.

The title role is played by James Weldon, who effectively portrays the terror and mystery that have become symbolic of Dracula in the minds of theatergoers and movie fans. The supporting cast includes Gail Zaccari as Mina, Ray Carlucci as Dr. Van Helsing, Tom Guardino as Jonathan Harker, Daniel Breen as Dr. Seward, John Breen as Renfield, Peggy Daly as Sybil Seward, Kevin Quidore as Hennesey, George Halo as Wesley, and Eileen Hunter, Alicia Kirchner, and Mary Shaw as the three brides of Dracula.

A great deal of technical work has also gone into the production. Among the technical advisers are Mrs. Linda Delaney, costuming, William Bulman, lighting, and John O'Conner, stage crew and special effects. The director is the Rev. Michael Alliegro and the production manager is Mrs. Jeanne Hatfield.

Kingsley Amis's detailing of a horrendous Christmas party in this blackly funny novel could turn some readers off Yuletide cheer forever. And the tarnish he daubs on the gold in life's supposed "golden years" is sufficient to make one wonder whether crawling out of the crib and proceeding down the years is worth the effort.

As Amis tells it in "Ending Up," five oldsters — three men, two women — have banded together in a rundown house in the English countryside to make a symbolical — and literal — last stand. Unfortunately, this lot not only is ill-equipped to make it from day to day but also the members of the group largely can't stand each other.

Adela Barnstable — 71 and of poor memory — tries to hold the menage together but her efforts consistently are undermined, knowingly, by her brother, Bernard, and, unknowingly, by her only friend, the sometime actress Marigold.

Bernard does his thing by devising rotten jokes involving stink bombs and squirt guns, tiny weapons but large enough to send ominous tremors through the already shaky social structure. Marigold does her thing by being herself — utterly boring and given to saying such things as "checkle-peckle" instead of check and "five poundies" instead of five pounds. She, naturally, drives Bernard up the wall.

So it's only natural the stink bombs are aimed at her and the squirt gun at her cat. In addition to these three, there's Shorty, a most charming drunk, and George Zeyer, an overeducated professor of central European history who, because of a stroke, is unable to speak properly.

Auditions scheduled tomorrow

SPRING LAKE HEIGHTS — Open auditions for plays to be staged at dinner theatres of the Homestead here and the Shadowbrook, Shrewsbury, are scheduled for 5-7 p.m. tomorrow at the Homestead, Allaire Road.

Ed Schiff, producer, says those trying out are requested to prepare one ballad and one upbeat song. Plays to be presented are "The Fantastics," "Man of LaMancha," "Company," and "Dames at Sea."

By TUT SIRIANNI
When you buy fish, insist upon freshness. A fresh fish has firm flesh and scales that cling to the skin. The gills are reddish; the eyes bright and full. Be sure that the shells of shellfish are tightly shut. Buy lobsters and crabs live or buy the cooked meat. Fresh fish and completely frozen fish should be equally good if the freezing is done well. Whole fish are marketed directly from the water although you may buy fillets of fish as well.
You will find all the food served at SIRIANNI'S FRIENDLY CAFE & RESTAURANT, 149-151 Brighton Ave., Long Branch, 229-7980 extremely fresh and always delicious. We are a great family restaurant serving both Italian and Sea Food specialties. If you are planning a Christmas Party remember we have banquet facilities. Hours: Mon. - Sun. 5 pm-12:30 am. Howard hits White House 'rapid pace' on oil drilling

WASHINGTON — Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., chairman of the energy subcommittee of the House Public Works Committee, today sharply criticized the Ford Administration for the "dangerously rapid pace" at which it is moving toward leasing some seven million acres of U.S. coastal waters for oil exploration.

"I am acutely aware of America's growing need for oil," Mr. Howard remarked, "but I am also aware of what can happen when oil drilling or transport results in a major oil spill.

"An example of the haste with which the Interior Department is moving toward developing these leases can be seen in the announcement by the Interior Department that hearings on offshore drilling will be held in Trenton today and tomorrow and Saturday," Mr. Howard added.

"There was scarcely a month's lead time for interested parties to prepare for this hearing on such a complex issue as oil leasing," Mr. Howard said.

Rep. Howard has written to Interior Secretary Morton expressing his "complete opposition" to the oil leasing plan because of the "lack of adequate environmental and coastal zone management studies" on the affected U.S. coastal areas. "A complete investigation of the environmental and economic dangers involved is mandatory before any meaningful decision on the oil leasing question can be made," Mr. Howard added.

Action Auction is burglarized

MIDDLETOWN — Police are investigating the theft of an unknown amount of merchandise from the Action Auction, Rt. 36, East Keansburg, sometime Tuesday night.

Detective Capt. Robert M. Letts said the owner of the store, Barry Kaplan of 95 Leonard Ave., Leonardo, reported the burglary at 9:45 a.m. yesterday. The store had been closed from Saturday night until yesterday morning.

Entry was gained by ripping out a vent on the roof.

Capt. Letts said the auction had also been burglarized Nov. 11. At that time a burglar alarm in the store went off. Police chased the suspects through the woods and three men were arrested.

Gift idea offered by center

HOLMDEL — The Garden State Arts Center is of course now closed for the winter season, but a novel, delightful and inexpensive Holiday Gift Coupon is now available for the coming season. According to George M. Wallhauser, chairman of the New Jersey Highway Authority which operates the Arts Center.

"Gift coupons are available now in time for the Chanukah and Christmas gift giving season. The coupon book plus a card in the giver's name will be mailed in time for pre Holiday delivery," Mr. Wallhauser said.

The 1975 professional season will begin in June and run into September. According to the chairman "These gift coupons can be used either for the purchase of season tickets for the recipient or they can be utilized for single attraction shows. Selection of performances can be made as soon as the 1975 season is announced."

He continued, "Only a limited number of gift coupons are being offered, and when they're gone that will be that, we will not print anymore."

MCAC multi-media festival is scheduled at Monmouth

RED BANK — Showcase III, the third annual countywide festival of the arts sponsored by the Monmouth County Arts Council, will be held the weekend of April 12, 13, according to Paul Zigo, general chairman of the event.

Monmouth College in West Long Branch, site of previous Showcases, will once again co-sponsor and host the multi-media fair.

The festival which drew an audience of over 12,000 last year will feature a whole realm of activities designed to entertain and instruct. Spotlighted will be art, drama, comedy, dance, choral, folk, popular and orchestral music programs plus, crafts, photography, and sculpture. A sampling of the audience taken at Showcase II revealed that visitors came from at least 75 towns in the state, 15 other states, and five foreign countries to attend the event.

This year, Mr. Zigo said, the varied program is especially designed to appeal to all tastes and all age groups. Over 75 educational and arts groups, and individuals, will be participating in the show for the benefit of all people of Monmouth County. Some 15,000 visitors are expected to attend.

A nominal admission fee will be charged to cover the cost of the fair. Parking will be free.

Committee chairmen assisting Mr. Zigo, the assistant director of community relations at Monmouth College and member of the arts council, are drawn from various arts groups. They are Mrs. Sarah E. McGee, program; Charles Steiner, operations and Mrs. Jean Erickson, publicity.

All those interested in participating or desiring more information should contact Mrs. Sarah E. McGee at the Monmouth Cocunty Arts Council, 99 Monmouth St.

Bach and Mozart will be featured in Sunday's library concert

SHREWSBURY — Selections from Bach and Mozart will be among those featured for a free classical concert at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Eastern Branch of the Monmouth County Library, Rt. 35.

Performing will be Bernice Silk, pianist; Adam Silk, violinist, and Peggy Schecter, flutist.

The program is to be Bach's "Trio Sonata IV," largo, allegro moderato, andante, and allegro; Mozart's "Sonata for Violin and Piano," Paul Hindemith's "Sonato for Flute and Piano," Louis Haber's "Six Miniatures for Flute and Violin," and Bohuslav Martinu's "Madrigal Sonata for Flute, Violin, Piano."

Mr. Silk is a student at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, and studies violin with Ivan Galamian and chamber music with Felix Galimir and Isadore Cohen. He was concertmaster of the District of Columbia Youth Orchestra and was chosen as a member of the International Youth Orchestra, St. Moritz, Switzerland, in 1970. In 1972, he traveled with the group to perform at the Von Karajan Festival at Berlin.

He was one of the young people chosen from throughout the country by Alexander Schneider for his New York String Orchestra and has played with the group for two series of concerts at Carnegie Hall. He has also been soloist with the Senior Concert Orchestra of New York and has given numerous orchestral, chamber music, and solo performances in the New Jersey area.

Ms. Silk has performed in recital and with orchestras in this country and Europe. She studied at the Juilliard School of Music with Lonny Epstein and privately with Kurt Appelbaum. She has been staff pianist of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and performed as its soloist.

She is pianist with the Montclair Chamber Music Society and recently performed for recitals at Harvard University. She won the Edgar Stillman Kelley Award of the National Federation of Music Clubs and was a finalist in the Naumburg and Levintritt competitions.

Ms. Schecter studied with Julius Baker at Juilliard and went to the Paris Conservatory for a year on a Fulbright Grant. She was presented in solo recitals in the Young Concert Artist Series in New York in 1963, 1964, and 1965. As a member of the Phoenix Woodwind Quintet, she toured Europe on a special grant from the Martha Baird Rockefeller Fund.

She is the co-founder of the Montclair Chamber Music Society and has performed with the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center.

'Saturday Sunday Monday' is weak however you see it

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — "Saturday Sunday Monday" is a play one needn't rush to see on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday either.

There are, to be sure, some spasms of folksy mirth in the story about an excitable Neapolitan family's weekend. But there are longer stretches of yawn permeating the production which opened last night at Broadway's Martin Beck Theater.

More's the pity, because of advance high expectations. Franco Zeffirelli, a man of imposing reputation, has tried to repeat as director-designer the show's London triumph. There he did it first for the National Company and restaged a still running West End version.

The local management has also opened purse-strings to recruit some pretty impressive talents for the large cast of 17, including Sada Thompson, Eli Wallach, Walter Abel and Jan Miner.

Trying to get such a group of definitely Yankee Doodle types to talk and caper like volatile Latins is one obvious problem. Everybody goes around saying "buon giorno" a good deal, about as authentic as a Coney Island pizza.

Another handicap is the Eduardo de Filippo text as translated and adapted by Keith Waterhouse and Willis Hall, a pair of British script workhorses. De Filippo is the author of 46 plays, few of which have ever crossed the ocean and "Saturday Sunday Monday" seems a fine example of why not.

The plot spins mainly around why Miss Thompson, the doughty mama mia of the menage, and Eli Wallach, a sulky, sort of papa, are mad at each other. That, after almost three acts, turns out to be because papa once praised his daughter-in-law's spaghetti Siciliana troppo.

There are a number of other wrangles going on simultaneously, all too reminiscent of afternoon serials on the living room tube. To make such stuff work on stage requires a great deal more style and comic sense than any of the resident ensemble manage.

Miss Thompson, to her credit, scores a couple of lusty turns as an outraged matriarch.

Elite harriers hailed for efforts

The qualities of hard work, determination and courage usually associated with Long Distance running were never more exhibited than this fall by the 10-man All-Monmouth County cross-country team announced today by The Daily Register sports department.

Of course, talent is the over-riding trait of the elite harriers, led by Manasquan's Chuck Ferrell and Christian Brothers Academy's Rich Desmond, the only two Monmouth County schoolboys who have qualified for tomorrow's state finals.

Three runners — Middletown Township's Jim Bush, St. John Vianney's Brian Barrett and Red Bank Catholic's Jim Daly — were named for the second consecutive season.

Chuck Ferrell

Finishing first has become a habit with Chuck Ferrell, Manasquan High School's number one runner and the Monmouth County cross-country individual champion.

Ferrell was the winner in every Manasquan meet this year and led the Big Blue Warriors to a perfect dual season.

When Manasquan lost All-County performer Jim Clayton to graduation in June, coach Bill Bechtloff must have had an inclination that he had a worthy successor in Ferrell because Ferrell and Clayton often worked together in practice.

Now Ferrell is the acknowledged team leader, and the slender 5-10 junior will, of course, be back next season to continue his winning streak.

Ferrell will be running in the state finals tomorrow, one of two area runners to qualify. He has already registered individual triumphs in the Shore Conference Meet, the Monmouth County Championships and the Shore Coaches Invitational.

He holds the Manasquan course record (15:04) and the Shore Conference mark (14:58.6).

Rich Desmond

While touring cross-country courses for the past four years, Rich Desmond of Christian Brothers Academy has had plenty of time to study the land. Maybe that is why the little senior hopes to study geology in college, possibly in New Mexico.

Desmond will be running in the state meet tomorrow in New Brunswick, one of the two county runners to qualify. After that, he will be running winter track and then spring track.

CBA often has two or more runners cross the finish line together, and Desmond was either first or tied for first 10 times this season. He was fifth in the State Parochial "A" Meet and second in the Monmouth County Meet.

Desmond took eight and one-half seconds off the CBA course record this year by cracking the mark of 14:59 set by Red Bank Catholic's Jim Daly, a running mate on the All-County team, earlier in the season.

A dedicated runner, Desmond has run over 1,000 miles the past two summers. He has run a 9:34 two-mile and specializes in that event during the track campaigns. He is a resident of Colts Neck.

Jim Bush

Middletown Township's front-rummer for the second straight year is senior Jim Bush, the top scholar-athlete on the elite 10. Bucknell and Princeton are high on the list of college considerations of the Lion who ranks fifth in his class.

Unfortunately, Bush ran most of the season with what coach Lou Mazzie called "stress fracture" of the lower leg. The injury caused Mazzie to rest his premier harrier in the Monmouth County run, hoping Bush would respond in the Shore Conference and state sectional meets the Saturdays before and after.

With Bush out of the lineup, Middletown settled for a fourth in the county competition, but the bespectacled senior chalked up a third in the Shore Conference Meet. Bush led the Central Jersey Group IV run going into the homestretch accentuated by a hill. There, the nagging injury took its toll, and Bush dropped back to 22nd. As a team, the Lions finished third in the sectional standings.

Middletown went through a 10-4 dual meet season, and Bush failed to finish first only once.

Brian Barrett

Brian Barrett of St. John Vianney is a repeater from last year's All-County team, and the only Lancer who has run varsity cross-country for four years. The Hazlet resident was the first to make the team as a freshman.

In the RVC Meet, he finished second. He was first in the Bernards Invitational; fourth in the Monmouth County Meet and ninth in the Parochial "B" State Meet.

"Brian is one of the most likable runners I have ever had," coach Jack DuBois said. "He is a perfect example of what a kid should be and a very hard worker."

Barrett would like to attend Springfield College, major in physical education, and eventually lend his running experience to coaching track.

Jim Daly

Daly had been an outstanding runner at Red Bank Catholic for four seasons. As a freshman, he won the state parochial cross-country championship, and as a sophomore he was the Parochial "B" state titlist in the mile. Last fall the Casey harrier won the Parochial Conference championship.

This senior year Daly was hampered by a series of painful warts produced by a virus contracted in August.

"It has been an unknown story," said RBC's veteran coach, Jack Rafter, "but Jimmy ran through two and a half months of agony. Still, he managed to run an occasional great race through his courage. He refused to give in but ultimately it caught up with him."

Rafter, whose 12th season at the helm produced a 14-3 dual meet record, referred to Daly's 27th in last week's state meet which was "far off his mark." Before that, however, Daly finished fifth in the Parochial Coaches Association Meet and sixth in the Monmouth County Meet.

Rafter ranks Daly among the five best he has coached and predicts that a full recovery will mean the youngster's domination of the mile next spring.

Jim Seuffert

Consistency is the word for Daly's teammate, Jim Seuffert. The RBC bookends were a tough tandem to beat in dual competition, almost the perfect exacta — one-two, two-one.

Only a junior, Seuffert hit the wire fifth in the Monmouth County championships as the Casey contingent placed third behind CBA and Manasquan. He was 12th in the Parochial Conference competition at Warinaco Park in Elizabeth.

Like Daly, Seuffert's almost three months of intense competitive running took its toll last weekend in the state group finals, but he still managed a 15th place finish in the Parochial "A" run.

"He has been one of the most consistent runners around," said Rafter already looking forward to Seuffert's senior harrier season. "He repeatedly has placed first or second in dual meets and hasn't been far off in invitational events.

Bob Fox

Bob Fox is the first Keansburg runner to ever make the All-County team, yet a clerical foul-up cost him a chance to compete on the state level this year.

Keansburg's application for the sectional meet was mislaid, and the team was not allowed to participate there. That, of course, negated Fox's chances to run in the state meet or Meet of Champions.

Last year, the Titan senior was 10th in Central Jersey, Group I, and 32nd overall in the state.

"It was a personal blow," Keansburg coach Bob Waldron said. "Fox was tremendously improved this year. He is just a dynamite kid — a good student and on the honor roll. Anybody would like him for a son."

Fox had a 12-2 dual record this year, losing only to Seuffort and Desmond, both on this team.

A possible future history major, Fox holds the Freehold Township and Holmdel County Park three-mile course records.

Chris O'Brien

Distance runners seem to grow in clusters at Christian Brothers Academy, and Chris O'Brien is another in a long line. Like Desmond, he comes from Colts Neck, but unlike his senior running mate, O'Brien is only a junior. His best races may still be ahead of him.

In his first year of varsity competition, O'Brien improved in every race. He reached his peak in the Monmouth County Meet and ran his best race of the year, a seventh place finish.

"He is a very hard worker," CBA coach Tom Heath said. "He is just a gutsy kid with lots of dedication."

O'Brien was first or tied for first in seven CBA dual meets this season and was 21st in the Catholic Conference Meet. In the State Paroachial "A" Meet, he came in a strong 18th.

Ron Gale

When Ron Gale was a freshman at Christian Brothers Academy, he ran a 4:44 mile and coach Tom Heath realized he had something. He went on to score a second in the freshman Shore Championships.

Now as a sophomore, he is a member of the All-County Cross-Country team, and his best days are undoubtedly ahead of him.

"He just kept coming and coming, and I wasn't going to stop him," Heath said. "I just didn't even have to coach him. He is one of the best natural runners we have had. Perhaps he has a little less speed than Bill Huntley (former CBA great), but he has more endurance as a sophomore."

Gale, a resident of Morganville, was first or tied for first in five CBA meets. He ran ninth in the State Parochial "A" Meet, and was eighth in the Catholic Conference Meet.

Steve Munger

Disregard Steve Munger's 20th place finish in the Monmouth County meet. The Rumson-Fair Haven Regional senior was seriously bothered by a back ailment.

"Actually, the problem has been haunting him all year," said the Purple Bulldog's second-year coach Steve Beidler.

A few days before and after the county meet, Munger showed his true ability with a fifth place finish in the Shore Conference Meet and a seventh in the Group III sectionals. In the state group finals, he was forced to drop out when the pain became too great to continue.

"He has been outstanding in all ways and a gentleman in every respect," said Beidler of Munger, who holds the school course record.

Pearl triggers Knicks' fifth

By The Associated Press

Earl Monroe scored 28 points last night, triggering the New York Knicks to their fifth consecutive victory, a 101-95 National Basketball Association triumph over the Atlanta Hawks.

After Atlanta drew within 95-93 in the last two minutes, Bill Bradley and Monroe hit key baskets and the New York defense only allowed one basket the rest of the way to snap Atlanta's two-game winning string.

The Hawks led 27-25 after one quarter on Dean Meminger's 11 points but New York scored 12 straight points in the final three minutes of the second period to take a 58-52 halftime edge. Monroe scored 16 of his points in the opening half.

Bill Bradley added 21 points for the Knicks while Tom Van Arsdale led Atlanta with 23 points. Meminger finished with 18.

Lucas, given a shot to start because Barnes has been AWOL for two days, took command last night and scored 21 points to lead the Spirits of St. Louis to a 108-101 victory over the Memphis Sounds.

"We plan to keep him in there," said MacKinnon about Lucas. "He's stepped in there and done a good job for us all along."

"I feel that filling in for Barnes is part of my job," said Lucas. "It's an opportunity to show what I can do."

Barnes, who failed to show for Wednesday night's game with the New York Nets, was discovered last night in a pool hall in Dayton, Ohio, apparently with no intention of returning to the American Basketball Association team.

A spokesman for the star rookie said: "As far as Marvin is concerned, he has no contract with the St. Louis ballclub. He is not playing for them."

The team suspended him without pay.

In the other ABA games, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the New York Nets 116-110 and the Utah Stars beat the Virginia Squires 88-80.

In National Basketball Association action, the Buffalo Braves stopped the Philadelphia 76ers 99-95; the Cleveland Cavaliers trounced the Golden State Warriors 106-74; the Milwaukee Bucks turned back the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 106-96.

Blazers crack Bell, 18-3

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Safety Rickie Harris picked up a fumble and romped 32 yards for a touchdown with less than two minutes gone in the first quarter, sparking the Florida Blazers to an 18-3 victory last night over Philadelphia in the World Football League's first playoff game.

The only other touchdown of the game, which was played before a national television audience and a sparce crowd of 9,712, came in the third quarter when Blazer quarterback Bob Davis of Ocean Township, N.J. hit tight end Greg Latta for a 45-yard score.

Kicker Jerry Warren booted a 37-yard field goal for the Bell in the second quarter, but missed on a 27-yard try and had a 35-yarder wiped out by a penalty.

Blazer kicker Dave Strock hit on a 24-yard boot in the fourth quarter but missed on three other tries from the 47, 37 and 45.

Each player on the 37-man roster of both clubs was to receive about $743 for the game.

The league had said 70 per cent of the gate receipts derived from the game would be split equally among the rostered players on each team, regardless of who won.

Most of the drama in the game was provided by the Blazer defense which stopped a Bell drive to the Florida two-yard line late in the third period.

David A. 'Sonny' Werblin

NEWARK (AP) — The San Francisco Giants baseball team has made no proposal to move to New Jersey, David A. "Sonny" Werblin of Holmdel, chairman of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, said yesterday.

"There have been no formal or informal proposals from the Giants," Werblin said in response to published reports that Giants' President Horace Stoneham was contemplating moving his team to one of four Eastern sites, including a soon-to-be-completed football stadium in the Hackensack Meadowlands.

"The stadium we are now building cannot physically accommodate baseball and we have no plans to build a baseball stadium at this time," Werblin said.

The meadowlands facility will house the New York Giants football team and, like a similar plant in Kansas City, would not be equipped to handle a baseball operation.

"If San Francisco or any other baseball franchise has $50 million to spend on a new baseball stadium, we would be happy to make the space available to them," said Werblin, a former owner of the New York Jets.

On Wednesday, Stoneham said that if low attendance at Candlestick Park continues next season, he'll give serious thought to moving the club. Stoneham, 72, said he has received offers from four Eastern cities he did not identify.

There were published reports yesterday that one of the sites under consideration was the meadowlands project, located less than five miles from Manhattan. But Werblin said no one from the Giants club had contacted officials connected with the New Jersey project.

Bulldog girls edge Howell in gymnastics

The Bulldog lasses (8-2) won the first two events as Valerie Mackin copped in vaulting and Lisa Klem took the balance beam.

However, Howell recovered with Joy Leach's win on the uneven bars and Dawn Perry's victory in floor exercise.

Farley puts frostbite title on line Sunday

By CHARLES H. SCOTT

Defending champion Denis Farley of Middletown will have his title on the line Sunday when the Twin Rivers Frostbite Association competitors meet in the final race program of the first segment of the current series at the Long Branch Ice Boat and Yacht Club.

The club will move the series to the Navesink River on Dec. 1 and will use the facilities of the Monmouth Boat Club, Red Bank for the following four weeks.

Farley, who is commodore of Twin Rivers and has also achieved an impressive record as a Lightning pilot, leads the field with a low point score of 1.0. Behind him is Chris Olivera (1.3), while MBC Commodore Paul 'Sandy' Huntsman and Mo Shaw vie for third place with 2.0 each.

With Rob Nonemaker leading its frostbite series at a low point score of 5.0, the Atlantic Highlands Yacht Club Sunday will conclude its four-week series in the municipal harbor.

Lt. Col. Ron Little of Ft. Monmouth, credited with achieving the impossible Aug. 10 in the Sea Bright Cup Race by garnering most of the event's silverware, is in second place with 7.25

Other low point leaders at ATYC are Arnie Maarberg (8.25), Brucke Baker (8.5) and Mike Fedor (9.5).

Nonemaker, who hails from Sea Bright, is chairman of the club's frostbite activities. He said trophy presentations will be made immediately after the final competitions in the club's headquarters.

Farley won three of the six races sailed Sunday on the Shrewsbury River. Olivera was right behind him with two events to his credit, while Huntsman captured one contest.

Gusty south by southwest winds held the less fortunate AHYC racing skippers down to four races. The remaining two events were called off because three competitors, including series leader Nonemaker, capsized.

Col. Little captured two contests, while Nonemaker and Bruce Baker each took a single.

RICH NICOLETTI

Two of the smallest football teams that Monmouth County has to offer will collide tomorrow, and the noise will be heard all the way to the N.J. State Interscholastic Athletic Association headquarters in Robbinsville.

Keansburg, which has much more than area pride on the line in this game, has hopes of winning a second-consecutive Central Jersey, Group I championship. If the Titans don't win it outright, they may get the opportunity to drive down to Atlantic City and settle things with another Central Jersey, Group I team on the turf in Convention Hall.

Keyport also is shooting for a goal. If the Red Raiders win tomorrow and then beat Holmdel on Thanksgiving Day they will tie Point Pleasant Beach and Boro for first place in the Shore Conference "D" Division.

That's not all. This year the two teams are playing for the newly-inaugurated Mayor's Trophy. Eugene Connelly, the Mayor of Keansburg, will make the presentation to the winning team. The winner will keep the award for one year.

The game promises to be an explosive brawl. Both teams are strong offensively. Keyport, with quartetback Joe Smith, likes to go for the long pass to standout receiver Gil Burlew, while Keansburg has a well-balanced running and passing attack.

"I think we can run on them," surmised Keyport coach Rich Mosca. "I have a couple of steady runners (Dave Humphries and Larry Vecchio) who can do the job on the ground."

Meanwhile, the Raiders have one of the area's top receivers in Burlew, a 6-1, 160-pound senior who has been double covered by the opposition all season long and still come away with 19 receptions for more than 300 yards.

Chip LaBarca, Keansburg's successful coach, said, "We're praying for this game. It has to be a good one defensively because Keyport is an explosive ball club. Don't look at their past scores against some of the weaker teams. They can score and we're just going to have to play our best defensive game of the year."

LaBarca feels that the key to the game is Keyport's running attack. "Stop that, and we win," he said.

Any good passing team needs a steady ground attack to compliment the passing. LaBarca feels that by stopping the Raiders' rush, the passing game will also falter.

Bob Sullivan, Keansburg's quarterback who has thrown for eight touchdowns thus far, has able receivers in halfback Joe Jimenez and tight end Dan Crane. Both have caught more than 20 of Sullivan's aerials to date.

While Keansburg may appear to have the better all-around team on paper, you must remember one important fact. The Titans lost their two important previous games to Points Boro and Beach. Keyport came back against both teams and got a tie.

Where does that leave you, gang?

ANOTHER CLASSIC

In another game that means little more than pride, Red Bank Catholic takes its trip to New Monmouth for its annual confrontation with Mater Dei.

Don't let this one fool you either. RBC (4-3) appeared early in the season to be one of the best teams in the county, but the past two weeks have somwhat dampened that illusion.

Meanwhile, Mater Dei, which began the season disasterously with only two touchdowns in its first four games, has sprung to life with a pair of wins in its last three outings.

Mater Dei athletic director Frank Outwater, has announced that his school will present a trophy to the game's top player. The trophy is in the name of Jim Sullivan, longtime Asbury Park Press sportswriter who retired last year.

Giants not licking chops over Cardinal dinner date

JONNI FALK

NEW HAVEN — For many years, the New York Giants licked their chops at the thought of playing the St. Louis Cardinals. No more. The only thing likely to get licked in Sunday's meeting of the ancient foes is the Giants, who carry a 2-8 record against the 8-2 Cardinals.

While the Cardinals seem to be heading for a playoff berth, either as the National East champs or a wild card team, the Giants are heading for a long winter.

That makes Sunday's game meaningless, right? Not so. The Giants have more than desperation to drive them Sunday.

Andy Robustelli, who calls most of the shots as director of operations, and coach Bill Arnsparger shuffled 24 new names into the Giants' roster this season and would probably have no qualms about shuffling 24 or so more next year.

As long as the team is playing in New Haven, it lacks the identity it once had as the pride of New York City anyway. There is only one more year in New Haven to experiment. When the Giants come "home" to the Meadowlands, Robustelli, Arnsparger and Wellington Mara will want a team with character—a winner that will woo the metropolitan area away from the Jets.

There is a lot of chaff in the Giants roster, and there is also a lot of youth. But few of the current 47 players are "untouchables" and that means many jobs are at stake from here through next summer's training camp. Put a guy's job on the line, and he may just play his heart out against a front-runner like the Cardinals.

Who are those "untouchables"? You can get different lists from different people, but from here they are quarterback Craig Morton (if he decides to stay in the NFL), tight end Bob Tucker, defensive tackle John Mendenhall, and guard John Hicks. That adds up to four players.

The Cardinals won their first seven games, lost two, and then came back to beat Philadelphia, 13-3, last Sunday. They are one game ahead of surging Washington in the NFC East, and only Oakland (9-1 in the AFC West) has a better record.

Jim Hart is the NFC's number two passer, and Mel Gray has always had great days catching passes against the Giants. However, Gray won't have cornerback Willie Williams to work on this time.

He most likely will be seeing Jim Steinke, who has replaced Eldridge Small at the right corner for New York.

Terry Metcalfe is the Cards' leading runner, and he is fifth in the NFC. Metcalfe averages 5.1 yards per rush, but he may be even more dangerous as a return man. He is second in punt returns and first in kickoff returns.

Overall, St. Louis is third in the conference in offense and 10th in defense. The Cardinals rank 12th in pass defense, and only the Giants rate lower.

The Giants will have most of the wounded back Sunday. Ron Johnson, Bob Tucker, Doug Kotar, Don Herrmann and John Mendenhall all should be able to play. It will be interesting to see how Mendenhall, a legitimate All-Pro candidate, does after the tirade Robustelli unleashed at him earlier this week.

Arnsparger's Giants need a win to better last year's 2-11-1 season, and they are also looking for their first win at Yale Bowl this year. New York has now played 10 games in New Haven and has one victory to show for its aggravation there.

The Giants, of course, are also playing this game for the Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys. A win helps the Redskins tie for the division lead. A loss keeps the Giants in the running for a number one draft pick, and that pick belongs to the Cowboys.

Two seers pick Keyport over Keansburg, Al Tooze, 14-6, and Chuck Triblehorn, 16-14. Rich Nicoletti and Jonni Falk like Keansburg by scores of 28-20 and 21-12, respectively.

All favor Red Bank Catholic over Mater Dei — Tooze 28-6, Nicoletti 21-6, Falk 14-7 and Triblehorn 21-6.

Similarly, it's Wall Township over Weehawkin: Tooze 20-0; Nicoletti 22-8, Falk 7-6 and Triblehorn 14-6.

Elks to sponsor Pop Warner tilt

KEYPORT — The Union Beach and Keansburg Pop Warner football teams will play at the Keyport High School field on Sunday at 1 p.m. in the Elks Charity Bowl '74.

Antique shotguns are becoming the rage

PAWLING, N.Y. — The outside-hammers double barreled shotgun went out of fashion around the turn of the century after the first hammerless action was invented.

Partically everybody knows this. However, according to Dick Wolff of the Garcia Corp., Teaneck, just about the fastest seller in the firm's line of imported shotguns is the antique appearing Rossi Overland side-by-side doubles which have external hammers that jut up like the ears on a mule.

Wolff answered: "We can't keep them in stock. Everybody seems to want one. They buy them to hang on the wall to look pretty. They buy them for home protection and maybe some people buy them to really use for hunting."

The Rossi is a modern gun in all respects except for the hammers although it looks like an antique. It is available in 12 and 20 gauges with three-inch chambers and can be used with either magnum or standard two-and-three quarter inch shells.

The barrels are only 20 inches long, the same length the 19th century stagecoach guards used when transporting people and other valuables across the country. The 12 gauge is choked improved cylinder and modified and the 20 is choked modified and full.

Possibly the appearance of the gun to the one used by the stagecoach guards and lawmen in the old days accounts for many of the sales. Also, to my knowledge, it is the only gun made today that does have outside hammers.

Wolff suspects that most of the guns are purchased for home protection. Depite the heavy campaign against guns and gun ownership in this country many people are worried and want weapons for home protection.

A shotgun may be purchased with considerable less tape than a revolver or a pistol. It is completely safe provided it is kept unloaded, as it should be.

Nothing short of an avalanche will strike greater terror into the heart of a burglar than a vew of the two big holes in the barrels of a shotgun with both mule ear hammers cocked.

Pheasant hunting on the club grounds in the rolling hills of Dutchess County was good. I had volunteered to bring Donna, my medium range Brittany. I have a great deal of faith in her for hunting with small or large groups, but of course the guide for my group, D. Anthony Salese of Danbury, Conn., had never seen her perform and had his own thoughts about possible chaos in the field.

C.B. "Bill" Colby, camping editor of Outdoor Life, who was in my party, reserved decision but he is the kind of a man who wouldn't have complained if the dog had chased every bird out of New York State. Guin Polevoy of Staten Island, the fourth man on the team, wasn't worried.

In a nutshell, and on the debit side, Ding Dong was tired because of heavy work on previous days and favored a gimpy right hind leg. She didn't quarter the fields in her usual energetic style.

On the credit side, she did find pheasants and had a number of solid points although some were in places where the birds were no longer present.

Speed, experience to propel Monmouth

By CHUCK TRIBLEHORN
Register Sports Editor

WEST LONG BRANCH — In recent seasons, the Monmouth College basketball team has started slowly before coming on strong to continue the school's tradition of producing winning teams.

Take last year when coach Bill Boylan's Hawks flirted with the .500 mark through the first half of their schedule. An underclass club had won the Montclair State Invitational Tournament during the December holiday break, but it still has to surge for its 19-9 record and the NAIA District 31 championship and a berth in the national tournament in Kansas City.

"The past few years we've had a turnover in personnel, so it took the kids a while to begin working together as a team," explained Boylan yesterday.

This year should be different, however. At least Boylan hopes so, as he watches a strong veteran nucleus work together in preparation for next Friday night's opener at home against Mt. St. Mary's of Maryland.

The 1974-75 edition is well-nestled in the Hawks' nest. Only one player, Don Kleber, is graduated from the team Boylan took to a 96-84 first round loss to Missouri Western in Kansas City.

"We have a real good, experienced small team, continued Boylan, "but we are not without problems. I'm not sure how effective we'll be with our lack of height."

One plus over last winter is the return of 6-6, 215-pound senior Jeff Rush, who was dropped from last year's squad after averaging 18.1 points in 10 games. There was what Boylan calls "an attitude problem," but the coach says that's now history.

An even more significant bit of history is Rush's performance as a sophomore the year before when he was named to the N.J. College Division all-star first team. A per game average of 19.5 points and 13 rebounds were big reasons.

Rush is in the thick of the battle for starting berths with at least a half-dozen other full or part-time regulars a year ago. All are underclassmen.

Guards Gary Massa (6-1) averaged 12.7 points a game, while Dwain Talley (5-11) produced at 13.8-point rate after becoming eligible for the final 19 games of the campaign. His efforts gained Talley a berth on the N.J. College Division first team.

A third junior returnee, 6-5 Ron McDowell, scored 8.4 points and hauled in an average of 8.8 rebounds a game.

Three talented sophomores are back in the fold after standout freshman seasons with the varsity. Long Branch's Ernie Bellinger, a 6-2 forward who averaged 8.6 points and a half dozen rebounds, was voted the most valuable player by his teammates last year. Jack Hill (6-2) compiled a 10.7 scoring average, while Bill Terry (6-1) averaged 9.4.

Jeff Rush

Bill Boylan

"My starters will be selected from those seven," Boylan said, "but it will all depend on what type of team our opponent has and how they look in practice the next couple of weeks."

Another returning reserve, 6-1 junior George Krzyzanowski, also has impressed in practice and should see considerable more action in the backcourt than last year when he was hampered with a knee injury.

Additional help in the height department may be coming from Bill Donlon, a 6-8 sophomore up from the junior varsity, and 6-4 freshman Scott Doran, who was a prolific scorer and rebounder at Madison Township High School.

The only other senior on the squad is 5-10 guard Sean McCarthy, a Red Bank Catholic product. Remaining juniors are 6-3 Dennis Gallagher, former Christian Brothers Academy performer, and Marc Merlo (5-9) Sophomore Mike Kenney (6-1) completes the 14-man roster with which Boylan is working.

"This will be an exciting team to watch because of our quickness," said Boylan. "So far, our attitude is good an I'm looking forward to a winning season. But you never can tell. A lot of the team's we're playing also should be up, and eight of those on our schedule knocked off last year."

Sleepwear gets its outing

In anticipation of a long cold winter — as well as of a rather close Christmas — Contessa D'Or of Lincroft and Rumson, which deals primarily in women's tresses, is stocking an impressive collection of women's nightwear.

Larry Eiseman is the man behind the coiffures; his wife Rusty is the woman behind the salon's accompanying boutique where the lingerie, as well as an array of other attractive merchandise, is contained.

The Eisemans, however, are making shopping literally as easy as pie — by serving up attractively modeled designs somewhere between the soup du jour and the dessert during luncheon Dec. 4 at Fisherman's Wharf, Bingham Ave., Rumson.

PEIGNOR perfect, hair just right are the respective concerns of Rusty and Larry Eiseman who do a run through with model Mrs. Joan Duggan, center, preparatory to an informal lingerie showing Dec. 4 at 12:30 p.m. during luncheon at Fisherman's Wharf, Rumson. Mr. Eiseman is the proprietor of Contessa D'Or of Lincroft and Rumson and Mrs. Eiseman is the buyer for the salon's accompanying boutiques.

Doctor warns about little tykes on bikes

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: After a long, hard day at the hospital (I am chief of surgery), I picked up the paper and turned to your column. I read the letter from the woman whose brother committed suicide after he had run over a child who was playing in the street.

This morning I had to tell a mother that her beautiful, blue-eyed four-year-old son died on the table. He, too, was riding a tricycle in the street. His little body was so entangled in the trike that the boy and the trike were laid together on the stretcher.

I can't count the times I've been called to the emergency room to face sobbing parents whose child was playing in the street. May I pose a question to every parent who is reading this letter: "Do you want your child to live to adulthood?" Not one will say, "No." But I warn you, the next time you allow your child to play in the street or take his trike out to ride it wherever he pleases, it might be the last time you will see him alive. Sign me — Tired M.D.

Dear M.D.: Neither of us will ever know how many little lives you saved today. I hope it will help to make up for the ones you've lost on the table.

Dear Ann Landers: You have always taken the position that a young woman need not give her fiance "the names and numbers of all the players." Your advice is, "Keep your mouth shut about past indiscretions. It's nobody's business."

Does this go for an out-of-wedlock child? When I was 15 I had a son and put him up for adoption. I want to do what's right. Please advise me. — Settling Down

Dear S.D.: A live child can hardly be considered an "indiscretion." Your fiance should be told — and the sooner the better.

Confidential to Miss Gorilla: I would not advise a 17-year-old girl to shave her arms. Ask the pharmacist to recommend a gentle but effective bleach.

Ann Landers discusses teenage drinking — its myths, its realities. Learn the facts by reading, "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Barley: a forgotten food

SLIM GOURMET

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Barley is one of those forgotten foods. Americans don't pay it much mind, except for the occasional homemade soup fan who tosses a handful into the bubbling pot.

Barley is a grain, and when cooked, it looks like giant rice and tastes a little like spaghetti. Since barley contains 43 fewer calories per cupful than spaghetti, we thought it might make an interesting "Italian" side dish for dieters. Here's our creation:

BARLEY-ITALIANO

16-ounce can Italian tomatoes, including liquid
2 cups water
½ cup pearl barley
1 onion, chopped
¼ teaspoon oregano
½ teaspoon garlic salt
dash of red pepper
3 tablespoons grated extra sharp Romano cheese

Combine all ingredients in a nonstick two quart saucepan. Cover and simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, for one hour or more, until liquid is evaporated and barley is tender. Add water if needed. Sprinkle with cheese and serve. Makes six servings, 94 calories each.

SPANISH BARLEY

Like Spanish rice? Follow preceding recipe, but omit cheese. Add one chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and ¼ teaspoon cumin. Serves six, 83 calories each.

BEEF AND BARLEY SOUP

2-pound soup bone (½ pound meat)
2 quarts water
1½ tablespoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 cup sliced carrots
1 cup sliced onions
1 cup sliced celery
16-ounce can tomatoes
4 tablespoons medium pearl barley

Brown the soup bone under your broiler, turning to brown evenly. Cut the meat into cubes. Combine bone, meat, water, salt, pepper and parsley in a soup pot. Cover and simmer one hour. Remove bone. Chill soup, skim off all fat that rises to surface. Add barley and vegetables. Cook an additional 1½ hours until meat and barley are tender. Makes about eight servings, 97 calories.

Philosophy of giving

FAMILY COUNSELOR

By DR. JAMES M. LONG

The holiday season is a happy occasion for most of us to enjoy those closest to us because it also gives us an opportunity to strengthen our family ties. It also is a time when most people have an opportunity to receive a personal sense of pleasure out of sharing and giving. Most of the time, however, individuals and groups who want to do something special for other people miss the opportunity to fully realize the potential of their generosity. Giving to charity can have a double meaning: it can have special meaning to the generous donor, and it also can provide the means to a new life experience for others.

There are many reasons that individuals and groups have for expressing their generosity at holiday time. Many feel a need to share their good fortune with others because of a sense of identification. These are the people who have had direct personal experience with difficult times.

Closely related to this group are those who give because they feel guilty. They feel that their success is something they have to pay for, and in order to relieve their guilt feelings they feel they must share their success.

A third group are the individuals or families who consider charitable-giving "a way of life." These families have always provided for others, and it has become a responsibility that each generation has accepted.

Finally, many people give because of the individual personal satisfaction they receive. Regardless of a person's underlying motivations, the fact that someone in need will benefit is the paramount intention.

Another purpose

With a little thought, each gift might serve another purpose. It is in the interest of therapeutic or psychological giving that people need help. Many civic and social groups in the community may decide to provide a holiday basket for a needy family. The basket will, no doubt, mean a great deal to whoever receives it; however, the group fails to use the gift to strengthen family relationships by not considering the human feelings involved. For instance, the donor group may decide to deliver the food basket; whereas, if they could arrange to have the recipient pick it up, the children could then believe that the parents had managed to obtain the basket.

Thoughtful concern should be given by groups who plan holiday parties for children. Sometimes the sponsoring group may want to publicize their good deed with a picture in the newspaper. If the caption reads: "Underprivileged Children" some harm may have been done to the children. After the holidays, these same children will return to school with a "label." Unfortunately, other children may be unkind and the party children will be made to feel different.

If a group plans a holiday party and wants publicity, why not plan to include a few children from their own families? The emphasis would then be on the children's party and would not carry a negative label.

Therapeutic-giving

An interesting form of giving is called therapeutic-giving. This implies a reversal in the usual practice of giving. Many children have not had the opportunity to purchase and give a gift to a brother or sister, or possibly to a parent. Some groups have established a shopping experience for children. The youngster is accompanied by an adult and goes to a local store to purchase a gift for a member of his family. This type of giving carries with it many emotional feelings which will last long after the actual gift has disappeared.

In the majority of instances, donations have become institutionalized. The donor is not directly involved with the recipient of his gift. This is done in order to preserve the receiver's dignity. The donor, however, does not receive the personal appreciation usually derived from giving a gift directly to another individual. A person who prefers to give anonymously has found his personal answer to gift-giving within himself.

TURKEY STUFF — Never stuff the turkey the night before you cook it, reminds Sylvia F. Griffin, Monmouth County Extension home economist. She suggests that it be prepared ahead and refrigerated separately in a flat pan. Put it into the turkey cavity just before the turkey goes in the oven.

New food challenges keep sugar on shelf

Holiday foods are fun to prepare, serve and eat, but it needs to be done safely, too, reminds Sylvia Griffin, Monmouth County Extension Home Economist, Freehold.

When planning menus, consider your refrigerator and freezer space. The back porch is really not a safe place at all to store food. If you find you must have extra chilling room for temporary storage, fill your summer ice chests half full of ice and keep fruits (juices, salads and desserts) there, saving refrigerator space for the more perishable foods. Refrigerate foods in shallow pans or plastic freezer boxes rather than in deep bowls to allow cold air to penetrate quickly. Remember, that at holiday time you are working with larger quantities than you usually do.

NEVER stuff the turkey the night before you cook it. It's OK to prepare the stuffing and refrigerate it separately in a flat pan, but don't put it into the turkey cavity until just before the turkey goes into the oven. Also, remove all the stuffing from the cavity after the bird is cooked and keep it separate thereafter for reheating. Thaw a frozen turkey in the refrigerator, or at room temperature sealed in a brown paper bag (to keep the skin cold while the inside is thawing) or in cold water after sealing it in a waterproof plastic bag.

Avoid food poisoning

Bacteria can cause food poisoning and all they need to grow is the right combination of time, temperature and moisture. Foodborne illness can cause diarrhea, vomiting, stomach cramps which can last for several days. Often, people mistake foodborne illness for a simple "bug" or virus.

To save last minute time and energy many dishes can be made ahead and frozen. These include barbecued ribs, broiled chicken wings, cheese pastries and tiny sandwiches for appetizers. Baked stuffed potatoes freeze well as do some sweet potato casseroles. All home baked breads and cakes freeze well. Pies, except for custard and cream fillings, can be frozen. Pie shells can be baked and kept ready in the freezer.

Main dishes that take much preparation but then wait politely in the freezer are stuffed crepes, chicken or trukey pot pies, sea food scallop, sausage and pepper casserole, lasagne, beef stroganoff and pot roast.

Mrs. Griffin acknowledges the newest food challenge by pointing out that gingerbread, applesauce cake and old fashioned desserts like Indian corn pudding take little or no sugar. Ingenious homemakers can provide festive finishes to holiday meals without taking out a sugar loan at the bank.

INDIAN PUDDING

Corn Meal, yellow, ⅓ cup
Cold Water, ⅓ cup
Milk, 1 quart
Salt, ½ teaspoon
Cinnamon, ½ teaspoon
Ginger, ½ teaspoon
Molasses, ½ cup

Combine corn meal and water. Scald the milk; add the moistened corn meal, stirring to prevent lumps. Cook 20 minutes or until thickened. Add salt, cinnamon, ginger and molasses. Pour into a greased casserole or baking dish (1½ quarts); bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F) for 2 hours. Serve warm with cream. Makes 6 servings.

Apple Indian Pudding: Add 2 cups sliced apples to thickened mixture, add a little sugar depending upon the variety of apple. Bake.

HONEY APPLESAUCE CAKE

2¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup raisins
1 cup broken nut meats
½ cup shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup thick applesauce

Sift 2 cups flour with soda, salt and spices. Mix remaining flour with raisins and nuts. Cream shortening with honey until fluffy. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Add floured raisins and nuts. Add sifted dry ingredients and applesauce alternately in small amounts, beating well after each addition. Pour into greased pan and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Makes 1 (8x8 inch) cake.

CORN SYRUP SPICECAKE

½ cup shortening
1 cup dark corn syrup
3 egg yolks
½ cup milk
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon mace
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon salt

Cream shortening, add syrup gradually, creaming continually. Add well-beaten egg yolks. Beat in half of milk and 1 cup flour. Add remaining milk and fold in remaining flour sifted 3 times with baking powder, spices and salt. Turn into greased deep 8-inch square pan and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Gettings

The Gettings mark 50th anniversary

EAST KEANSBURG — Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Gettings, 81 Monmouth Pkwy., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a Mass of Thanksgiving Sunday here in St. Catherine's Church. The Rev. John B. Cook celebrated the Mass and presented them with the Papal Blessing.

A reception at Buck Smith's Restaurant was hosted by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Farrington, Leonardo, and son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Gettings Jr. of Wichita, Kans.

Mr. and Mrs. Gettings were married Nov. 19, 1924 in St. Boniface Church, Jersey City. Mrs. Gettings is the former Antoinette Bickmann. Mrs. Florence Bickmann Powers and John M. Gettings, their honor attendants, also attended the Mass and reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Gettings have six grandchildren.

Creative Writing Day slated by clubwomen

MATAWAN — The fifth district Creative Writing Day for the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs will take place Monday beginning with registration at 11:30 a.m. at the Matawan Woman's Club, 199 Jackson St.

Mrs. Alfred Townley, Spring Lake Heights, district literature chairman, will conduct the program which will include the reading of original manuscripts by the clubwomen. Federation guests will be Mrs. David J. Secunda, Summit, state literature chairman, and Mrs. Charles Benter, Sea Girt, vice president of the fifth district.

Society honors deceased

RED BANK — St. Anne's Society of St. Anthony's Catholic Church honored five of its deceased members at its fifth Memorial Communion Breakfast here in the church hall. Names added to the society's bronze plaque are the late Antoinette Chiaravalloti, Louise Falvo, Isabella Niro, Elizabeth Trigili and Antoinette Spagnuolo.

More than 225 persons attended the event; which included Mass.

Guest speakers were the pastor, Msgr. Salvatore DiLorenzo, and Mrs. Joseph J. Domas, Flemington, on the topic of the liberated woman and the life of Mary.

Mrs. Geraldine Francesconi, president, an office she has held for 25 years, made a plea for new members to the 79-member organization.

Vocalists were Miss Rose Pignataro and Leonard Porcelli, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Joan Porcelli.

Breakfast committee members were Mrs. Anna Toccaceli, Mrs. Angie Venturino, Mrs. Angie LoPresti, Mrs. Nelli Madure, Mrs. Antoinette Ciaglia, Mrs. Laura Gettis, Mrs. Sophia Makely and Mrs. Gail Caruso.

Other officers of the society are Mrs. Mary Carlucci, vice president; Mrs. Connie Sessa, treasurer; Mrs. Teresa Benincasa, secretary and Mrs. Marie Russo, assistant treasurer.

Scouts help seniors

Mariner Troop 191 is organizing local Junior Scouts, Cadets and Brownies into teams to rake leaves Dec. 8 from 1 to 4 p.m. for senior citizens who requested the service last year. Others desiring the service should call Rumson Borough Hall before Thanksgiving.

In case of inclement weather the raking will be postponed.

Petroleum jelly tips

To avoid paint spatters on window panes, coat an inch or two of the glass adjacent to the window woodowrk with a thin film of petroleum jelly. When paint dries, remove the film with a soft dry cloth. Easier and cheaper than taping, and lots less work than scraping off paint spatters.

Before putting away garden tools for the winter, help to retard rust and corrosion by rinsing each tool off, drying thoroughly, then coating all metal surfaces with petroleum jelly.

When storing products that tend to crystallize or accumulate resins, coat rim of jar with petroleum jelly. This will make it easier to re-open the container when needed. Try this also on the threads of balky caps on tubes of household cement or glue.

By LESTER KINSOLVING

BOSTON — "Deep differences of opinion on what news is fit to print" is the only official explanation offered as to why the editor of S. J. News was fired.

S. J. (Society of Jesus) News is the monthly newspaper of the Jesuit Province of New England, which has in recent months been perhaps the most newsworthy of all the Jesuit provinces in the world.

The fired editor, the Rev. James G. Hietter, S.J., has, quite conscientiously, tried to live up to the S.J. News title — by reporting the actual news, whether good or bad.

This apparently won him the enmity — although, to be sure, the (furious) interest — of both conservatives and liberals.

The liberals were incensed when Father Hietter raised the perfectly legitimate question as to whether the Rev. and Hon. Robert Drinan, S. J. (D-Mass.) still has the required ecclesiastical permission to serve in Congress.

But editor Hietter quotes Boston's Archbishop Humberto Cardinal Medeiros as saying, "I have made it very clear that I don't approve of priests in political office."

INSIDE RELIGION

And while Medeiros' famed predecessor, the late Richard Cardinal Cushing, had given Father Drinan his enthusiastic consent to run, editor Hietter cited Canon 139, in which the bishop's permission is required for a priest to run for political office.

(The issue is further clouded by Drinan's congressional district including parts of both the Boston Archdiocese as well as the Diocese of Worcester — whose bishop, Bernard Flannagan, has no objection to Drinan in Congress.)

Priest-editor Hietter infuriated the conservatives as well as the liberals by breaking the story that Provicincial Cleary ordered Father John McLaughlin, S. J., to leave his White House post. Shortly after reporting this news in the S.J. News, Father Hietter was fired by Provincial Cleary.

"Father Cleary has the authority to fire me," acknowledged Hietter during a telphone interview with this column, "although it may be that he should explain precisely what are these deep differences regarding what news is fit to print. Since both Drinan and McLaughlin were originally given permission to serve in Washington, I felt the people had a right to know all about these newsworthy priests."

Then the fired editor concluded: "You can't have a free press, or an interesting press, that is controlled."

One reason why so many local, regional, or national religion house organs are either so deadly dull or basically untrustworthy (at least when they deal with the denominational power structure) is in failing to realize or implement the truth of this statement.

One significant document which seems to bear out Father Hietter's conclusion was published in 1971, a 20,000-word pastoral instruction entitled "The Media, Public Opinion and Human Progress." Among the conclusions of this Vatican document, approved by Pope Paul VI, was: "The safety of newsmen should be assured because of the service they render to man's right to know what is happening."

But priest-editor Hietter, who tried so hard to implement "man's right to know what is happening," remains at this writing fired, with no other job offered him by the Society of Jesus.

Interestingly, the Jesuit magazine America reported from the recent Synod in Rome the following statement by Father Pedro Arrupe, general of the Society of Jesus, who is also known as "The Black Pope":

"The Church can offer positive help to those involved in the mass media in several ways: by sincerity and openmindedness in giving exact and complete information, by promptness in furnishing information; by accepting criticism with humility and loyalty; by understanding the conditions under which newsmen must work, exposed as they are to the tyranny of deadlines, of popular moods and of the need to break stories."

NEW IMAGE — This is the front page of a new magazine called "Jesus," a supplement in a monthly Roman Catholic magazine edited in Italy by priests. The magazine depicts Christ with a coat and tie and contemporary hair style. A conservative Catholic organization filed suit against the publishing company, claiming the image offends Italy's state religion.

Born in Vienna, Austria, son of Cantor Karl Neumann, one of Europes foremost cantors. Richard Neumann studied composition with Fidelio Finke, a Mahler student, and with George Szell in conducting. He was a private student of Alban Berg in the last years of the master's life. He holds an M.A. in music education.

Mr. Neumann came to the United States in 1937, taught music and conducted choruses, was music director of the Educational Alliance settlement house on the east side of New York. He joined the Army in 1942 and served in Europe during World War 2, became director for music education for Allied Services in Vienna in 1945, then returned and started a career in Jewish music.

His positions have included composer in residence for United Nations, 1950; music director for Hillcrest Jewish Center, 1952-1962; choir director for Congregation B'nai Israel, Millburn, 1963-1974; national music consultant to B'nai Brith Youth since 1964; faculty of Yeshiva University since 1969; director of music education for the Board of Jewish Education since 1972, and faculty member, Queens College, City University of New York.

Mr. Neumann has composed and published liturgical music and directed more than a dozen record albums for Collectors Guild. In the field of general music, he has written numerous works for wood-wind and string instruments, performed throughout the music world.

Highlands churches plan joint service

HIGHLANDS — On Wednesday there will be, for the first time here, a united Thanksgiving service.

It will be held at Our Lady Of Perpetual Help Roman Catholic Church Rt. 36 Highlands.

The Rev. David G. Delezell, pastor of the host church, will bring greetings and lead in the closing prayer. The Rev. John Patterson, priest in charge of St. Andrews Episcopal Church will lead the service, which will be that of the Episcopal Evensong.

The evening's message will be brought by the Rev. William Humphrey, the new pastor of the Highlands-Sea Bright United Methodist Parish. The title of the message will be "All My Dragons Are Lizards," which is based on John 14:22-27.

Thanksgiving service

RED BANK — "I will praise the name of God with a song, and will magnify him with thanksgiving." This passage from Psalms is the Golden Text of the lesson-sermon to be read Thanksgiving Day at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 211 Broad St., here.

The 10 a.m. public service will include reading of the Thanksgiving Proclamation of the President of the United States and a lesson-sermon on Thanksgiving.

Churches vindicated in Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — By a quirk of modern history, some struggling outsiders who received some highly controversial help from the world's churches now are becoming the established insiders.

That is the ironic turn-about of the coming into governing power of the black liberation movements in three African colonies long ruled by Portugal.

Recent events have "moved quickly to vindicate" the churches' efforts, says the Rev. Dr. John Coventry Smith, of Larchmont, N.Y., a United Presbyterian leader and one of the six-member presidium of the World Council of Churches.

It was that council, embracing 263 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches, which four years ago launched its program to combat racism.

THE LADY IS A PASTOR — Members of the Orchards United Methodist Church asked their regional bishop for an experienced minister. Instead, they got one fresh out of seminary school — and a woman. "They received me a bit reluctantly, but graciously," says Mary Ann Swenson, 27, the new minister.

Joint service of thanks is Wednesday

SHREWSBURY — Bonds of affection and fellowship will be renewed through public worship when a joint service of Thanksgiving will be celebrated by the Presbyterian Church at Shrewsbury and The Monmouth Reform Temple of New Shrewsbury on Wednesday at 8 p.m., in the Presbyterian Church here.

The Rev. James R. Steele, pastor, will conduct the service. Dr. Alton Meyer Winters, rabbi, will deliver the message, "The Hearts of the Parents — The Hearts of the Children." Ministerial intern Michael Otte and lay persons from both congregations will also participate in the occasion.

President Ford heading drive to boost Bible use

NEW YORK (AP) — President Ford and a cross-country lineup of congressmen, governors, mayors, businessmen and religious leaders are heading a drive to boost the Bible as a basic source of integrity and idealism.

"This year we need the good book in a very bad way," says the theme for the campaign, the annual interfaith observance of National Bible Week from this Sunday through Dec. 1.

In the eight-day period, specific passages are recommended for reading each day. Also, a blitz of public service advertisements and broadcast spots have gone out for use during the week.

As honorary chairman of the effort, Ford issued a message commending it and declaring his own "special regard for Scriptures as a unifying source of wisdom and inspiration."

He said "greater knowledge, use and understanding" of the Bible can be a "strong force for good in our daily lives," and added: "Bible reading has been a tradition in my family for as long as I can remember."

The President, an Episcopalian, cited his favorite verses, Proberbs 3:5-6: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

Special proclamations for the Bible-reading observance are being issued by more than 400 mayors and 35 governors, most of whom already have done so.

The week is sponsored by the Laymen's National Bible Committee, a New York-based organization of Protestant, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish laity.

Cooperating are agencies of the U.S. Catholic Conference, the National Council of Churches, the Greek Orthodox archdiocese, a Jewish committee, and for the first time, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

Utah's Gov. Calvin L. Rampton, a Democrat and himself a Mormon, is chairman of the governor's committee for the week. He said:

Cochairmen of the congressional committee for the observance are Rep. Sam Steiger, R-Ariz., who is Jewish, and Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., a Methodist.

"The renewal of the nation's moral and spiritual vitality is most important and lessons the Bible can teach us are greatly needed to achieve this renewal," Mondale said.

Indianapolis Mayor Richard G. Lugar, a Republican, Methodist, and chairman of the mayors' committee for the observance, termed the Bible "our basic source of idealism, comfort and perspective."

National chairman for the event, John Riccardo, a Roman Catholic and president of the Chrysler Corp., said the Bible offers "solace in our trouble" and "guideposts for our every action."

About 25 national magazines have accepted the special ads for use in the week. They show scenes tied to appropriate Bible verses, such as one of an Egyptian and Israeli soldier shaking hands under words of Gen. 13:8:

"Let there be no strife, I pray, between me and thee."

Nov. 24: Dan. 3, Matt. 8:5-13; Nov. 25: Ps. 90, Matt. 16:13-19; Nov. 26: Eccl. 3, Luke 5:1-11; Nov. 27: Prov. 22, Luke 10:25-37; Nov. 28: Prov. 31, Luke 23:32-43; Nov. 29: Gen. 22:1-18, 1 Cor. 13; Nov. 30: Gen. 37-41, John 9: 1-11; Dec. 1: Gen. 42-49, Heb. 11.

Poll indicates Brown won't get assessor board seat

By ED [illegible]ARKOWSKI

KEYPORT — A poll of the mayor and members of the Borough Council indicates that the governing body will not appoint Leo Brown, former borough tax assessor, to the new three-man tax assessors board.

Mayor William A. Ralph and four of six councilmen now say they would not vote for appointment.

Local voters, by referendum in the past election, approved the creation of a three-man board and the abolishment of the current one-man assessor post.

Several days afterward, he told The Register that he would consider an appointment to a new tax board if he receives a salary increase from the $3,000 he was earning as assessor to $7,000. He also stipulated that his critics would have to stop harassing him regarding tax decisions.

Mayor Ralph, although he offers no special reasons, flatly states that he would not consider appointing Mr. Brown to the new board.

Says Councilman Harold A. Stout, "I'm definitely opposed to such an appointment, especially after his letter of resignation.

"He just took it upon himself to leave us without a tax assessor until July when the new board goes to work. It's like a councilman, who's defeated in November, deciding not to attend any more meetings during the remainder of his term of office."

"There's no way I'd vote to appoint him," says Mr. Birmingham, who campaigned both last year and this year to put the tax assessor referendum on the ballot.

"He (Mr. Brown) must be kidding," declared Mr. Leone.

"How could he expect to be appointed when the people voted him out?"

Added Mr. Leone, "If council ever appointed him to the new board, I'd resign my council seat."

Council President Donald F. Miller admits "Mr. Brown has the experience to sit on the board, but the people did vote him out.

"I think the voters would want a fresh board with new faces. I don't think I'd vote for him."

Commented Councilman Richard I. Volpe, "I would have to weigh such an appointment very carefully."

He declined further comment.

Councilman Joseph Collins, although he refused to comment on the possible appointment of Mr. Brown, is expected to lean toward offering a seat on the board to the former tax assessor, who is a Republican.

Mr. Collins is council's lone Republican.

Mr. Brown, in a letter dated Nov. 12 to Sidney Glaser, director of the state Division of Taxation, announced that he resigned as tax assessor in Keyport the day before.

He concluded the letter stating, "I can't afford to work for less than $1 per hour any longer."

Holmdel principal granted leave

HOLMDEL — The Board of Education voted 5 to 2 to grant John Nolan, principal of the Intermediate School, an eight-month leave of absence, without pay, to complete requirements for his doctorate.

Stanley Glazer, vice president of the board, and John J. Landers voted against approval, while Wendall A. Smith, president, and Board members C. Lee Maddox, Henry J. Zoubek, George S. Kinkade Jr. and Evelyn Burke voted for it. Archie R. Price and Robert C. Soderlunk were absent.

"While I feel that Mr. Nolan is entitled to continue his education," Mr. Glazer said, "looking at the whole school district, I don't think this is the proper thing to do at this time."

Mr. Landers said he was against the approval for two reasons.

"I'm not sure this school system needs a person with a doctorate in the position of principal of the Intermediate School," he said.

"I also don't see how the classrooms won't be affected by the absence of the principal in the school," Mr. Landers added. Mr. Nolan's leave extends from Jan. 20 to Aug. 15.

Manuel Fernandez, assistant principal, will probably take over for Mr. Nolan, Mr. Glazer said, although the board hasn't formally approved the move. Mr. Nolan will be studying at Columbia University, New York City.

In other business, the board approved, on introduction, policy statements for textbook selection and adoption and curriculum adoption.

Dr. William B. Satz, superintendent of schools, said the policies do not represent a change from past practices but "are more to fill a void" in the board's administrative backup procedures.

Both polices follow the state statutes regarding the subjects.

The policy states that the selection of textbooks and the adoption or alteration of a curriculum will be subject to a "recorded roll call majority vote of the full membership" of the board. In addition, the board accepted a procedure to be followed in requesting approval for new courses.

Ideas for new programs or courses may originate with the teacher, department chairman or administrator, along with parents, students and board members.

A school administrator, the procedure says, will submit in written form to the superintendent the goals of the program or course and an outline of how the goals are to be achieved, proposed methods of instruction, unit titles and required materials, special facilities required for the program, and the time proposed for the program.

After a final staff recommendation is made, the superintendent will submit his recommendations to the board.

The procedure also states that no regularly established program or course may be discontinued or modified without the prior approval of the board, after approval by the superintendent, and these programs are not to be discontinued during the semester or quarter without the superintendent's consent prior to the preparation of student registration materials.

Before it accepted the procedure, the board had agreed to make a change in it suggested by Mr. Landers.

A clause requiring that the justification and need for the proposed course be included in the superintendent's form to the board was deleted.

The board agreed to consider another suggestion from Mr. Landers relating to absenteeism of teachers in the system.

Substitute teachers are paid $24 a day, Mr. Landers said, while the days they work are less productive than the regular teachers' day, he added.

Mr. Landers suggested that the superintendent prepare a quarterly or monthly summary on absenteeism to check on repeated sick days taken by teachers.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Administrator of *the Township of Holmdel for Land*scaping at the Holmdel Pool - Tennis Court Complex in the Township of Holmdel, Monmouth County, New Jersey at Township Hall, Crawfords Corner Road, Holmdel, NJ at 10:00 am Prevailing Time on Thursday, December 12, 1974 at which time they shall be opened and read aloud.
Work consists of furnishing and planting approximately 287 deciduous trees, evergreens, hedges and shrubs and appurtenant landscaping.
The Plans, Specifications and other Contract Documents for the proposed work, prepared by Leon S. Avakian, Inc., Consulting Engineers, 788 Wayside Road, Neptune, NJ may be examined at the office of the Engineer during business hours. Bidders may obtain one copy thereof upon proper notice and payment of a non-refundable charge of $20.00 to defray the cost thereof. Checks shall be written to the order of Leon S. Avakian, Inc.
Bids must be made on the Standard Proposal form in a manner designated therein and required by the Specifications. They shall be enclosed in an opaque sealed envelope addressed to the Mayor and Township Committee, Holmdel, NJ bearing on the outside the name of the bidder, his address and the name of the contract for which the bid is submitted. Bids must be accompanied by a certificate from a surety company stating that it will provide the specified performance bond and maintenance bond in the event that the contract is awarded to the bidder.
Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for ten percent (10%) of *the amount of the bid, drawn upon an in*corporated bank or trust company, payable to the order of the Township of Holmdel, as guarantee that in case the contract is awarded the bidder, he will, within 10 days thereafter execute such contract and furnish satisfactory per*formance bond. Upon failure to do so, he* shall forfeit the deposit as liquidated damages and the acceptance of the bid will be contingent upon fulfillment of this requirement by the bidder. The checks of all, excepting the 3 lowest bidders will be returned within 48 hours after the opening of the bids and the remaining checks will be returned according to law. No interest shall be allowed upon any such certified check.
The Mayor and Township Committee reserve the right to reject any and all bids or to waive any informality of any bid.

LEGAL NOTICE
INVITATION FOR BIDS

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Trustees of Brookdale Community College will receive sealed bids for Furniture (Tables and Chairs) at 765 Newman Springs Road, Lincroft, New Jersey on December 10, 1974 at 3:00 P.M. Prevailing time, at which time and place said bids will be publicly opened and read.

Contract documents may be examined and copies obtained at the Purchasing Office of Brookdale Community College at 765 Newman Springs Road, Lincroft, New Jersey on or after November 22, 1974.

Bid securities in the form of a bid bond with adequate security thereon, or certified check in an amount equal to 10% of the amount of the bid, not to exceed $20,000 will be required. Bids may not be withdrawn within 30 days after the actual day of the bid opening.

The owner reserves the unrestricted right to reject any or all bids, and to accept any bid which is deemed most favorable. The owner also reserves the right to reject any bid if, in its opinion, the bidder is not considered financially or technically able to carry out the contract as intended, or for any reason in the owner's judgment it is not in the best interest of Brookdale Community College.

All bidders will be required to furnish a performance bond in conformity to the requirements of N.J.S. 2A:44-143 et seq. in an amount equal to 100% of the contract amount. The New Jersey Prevailing Wage Act and any amendments thereto will be part of the contract documents. All bidders will be required to comply with New Jersey Statutes prohibiting discrimination in employment. (N.J.S. 10:2-1 through 10:2-4 and any amendments thereto).

NOTICE

On December 28, 1973 the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) was signed into law. Title II which is part of CETA provides for the establishment of a program of grants to areas of substantial unemployment throughout the nation. The Act authorizes public employment and training programs for unemployed and underemployed persons in areas of substantial unemployment.

The County of Monmouth has been designated as Prime Sponsor for Title II activities.

It is the stated goal of the program to serve the following segments of the population:

1. Special Veterans
2. Young persons — age 18 or older entering the labor force.
3. Persons 45 or older
4. Persons most severely disadvantaged in terms of length of unemployment and whose prospects of finding employment with*out Title II assistance would be* difficult.
5. Persons whose native tongue is not English or whose ability to speak English is limited.

Positions are to be transitional in nature to enable such persons to move into employment or training not supported by the Act.

The Program funding for fiscal year 1975 has been increased by the receipt of $1,120,624 in additional funds from the U.S. Department of Labor. In accordance with Federal Guidelines this additional money will be distributed as follows:

Asbury Park City	135,718
Eatontown Borough	52,288
Freehold Borough	85,907
Hazlet Township	95,601
Howell Township	98,179
Keansburg Borough	59,814
Long Branch City	264,011
Neptune Township	164,594
Red Bank Borough	75,181
Middletown Township	31,228
State of New Jersey	38,103

Middletown Township will act as Program Agent and will utilize the $31,228 to hire eligible applicants who are residents of Census Tracts No. 5 and No. 6 of Middletown Township.

The State of New Jersey will utilize the $58,103 to hire eligible Monmouth County residents into State Government positions. The work sites for these positions shall be included within Monmouth County.

The funding application has been submitted by William M. Lynch, County Manpower Coordinator of the Regional Manpower Administrator, Department of Labor, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. on November 19, 1974.

The application may be examined at the Manpower Department office, Hall of Records, East Main Street, Freehold, New Jersey. Telephone: 201-431-4000 Ext. 470.

This summary is being published pursuant to the provisions contained in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. Comments relative to the program may be made to the Program Agent or directly to the Regional Manpower Administration.

To be given consideration, these comments must be received within 30 days of this publication.

Conover selected for Realtor award

EATONTOWN — Realtor John C. Conover of Allenhurst, has been selected by the Monmouth County Board of Realtors as its Community Service Award winner.

William J. McGowan, president of the Board of Realtors, said Mr. Conover is one of 39 regional winners from the 39 local Realtor boards comprising the New Jersey Association of Realtors who are participating in the program, under the chairmanship of Harry M. Stanley of Wayne.

The Community Service Award program which originated in 1955 under the cosponsorship of NJAR and Midlantic Mortgage Corporation, Newark, honors Realtors for outstanding efforts rendered their communities.

The Community Service Award Luncheon at the 58th Annual Convention of NJAR at the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, Dec. 5, will honor all winners. Arthur S. Leitch, President-elect of the National Association of Realtors, will present each winner an engraved plaque and announce the name of the State Realtor of the Year, who will represent New Jersey at the national convention in 1975.

SHREWSBURY — Kenneth L. Walker Jr., president of Walker and Walker, Realtors with offices in Shrewsbury, Holmdel, and Matawan, has congratulated Gloria Nilson on attaining over $2 million in residential sales since last Jan. 1.

"It is indeed evident that the real estate business is good and sales can be made if a firm and its sales associates have the proper positive attitude" said Mr. Walker.

Mrs. Nilson is a continual leader in sales, and last year was honored by the New Jersey Association of Realtors for her outstanding sales record during the past five years. In 1973 her residential sales volume was the highest recorded in New Jersey.

Mrs. Nilson has spoken before several business and professional groups as well as the New Jersey Association of Realtors. She is a graduate of Goucher College, in Maryland, and she resides in Rumson with her husband and son.

Live downtown in the country.

the problem: you love the city, being near shopping, theatres, good restaurants, commuting buses and trains where you can walk to everything and need the car only for special occasions, but you don't like the constant hassle of city living. You love the country with the fishing, boating, golf courses, horse farms, fruit stands, and parks, but you've got better things to do than take care of a home and spend half your waking hours driving to and fro.

the solution: live downtown in the country, at Grandville Towers.

Welcome to Grandville Towers–Monmouth County's very unique one and two bedroom condominium complex overlooking the shores of the cool blue Navesink River and directly across from the historic and famous Molly Pitcher hotel. Only here, at Grandville Towers can you couple absolute luxury living with prestigious privacy and yet be only a breath away from a buzzing shopping area.

YOUR VIEW . . .

Overlooking the winding and beautiful Navesink River on one side and the quiet Shadow Lake on the other, Grandville Towers provides its residents with an absolutely magnificent view. For the boat watchers Grandville Towers affords the perfect view of powerboat races and graceful sailboat regattas in the summer and in winter you will be in an advantageous position to watch the swift iceboats sweep across the frozen river's face. Sliding glass doors open very impressively to the romantic secluded balcony running the entire length of your condominium home.

FREEHOLD — Some of the white girl students at Freehold Borough High School have commented on the lack of social contact between white and black girls at the school.

Recent incidents at the school have all apparently involved arguments between one white and one black girl which escalated into shoving and pushing or actual assault.

Two white girls, upperclassmen at the school, reported that white freshman girls were afraid of the black girl students. But they noted that with the passing years they themselves were no longer afraid.

"When we came into the school, we didn't know any black girls," one of them observed. "We still don't. But what people say to me is no longer threatening. I just ignore it."

"I only know two or three black girls in my gym class," she continued. "Boys don't have so many problems because they know each other. They have active sports to let out all their agressions. All we have is basketball. We need ways to get together."

The girls didn't think that active sports was the answer for everyone but they saw it as one avenue of communication.

"Boys play together from the time they are eight or nine years old," he noted. "Even if they don't attend the same school, they meet at Little League or on the basketball court or football field. By the time they get to high school they know and accept each other.

"Girls come to high school as strangers to each other. Some from the township have never had black children in their classes. They come to high school filled with apprehensions and fears because of the new experience at a new school and their inexperience with girls of another race just adds to their fears."

"Black kids seem more scared than the whites," she said. "Hardly any black girls ever come into the bathrooms, for example. You may see one or two but that's all. I think they're afraid."

"There will always be kids who are going to fight," she observed.
