Police probing crash fatal to five

By JIM OSTROFF

SEA BRIGHT — State and borough police are continuing today to piece together the final seconds before a grisly head-on collision of two cars on the Sea Bright side of the Highlands Bridge on Rt. 36 yesterday that left five persons dead and two badly injured.

Listed in critical condition in Monmouth Medical Center's Intensive Care Unit are Gregory Garley, 22, 164 Bingham Ave., Rumson, and Kevin Gulrich, 18, 10 Lincoln St., Red Bank.

The five who were pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital were Julia Smith, 19, 172 Green Oak Blvd., Middletown; James C. Stahl, 19, 133 Locust Point Road, Locust; Richard Finnegan, 19, 33 Mount Ave., Atlantic Highlands; Jeanne Hedberg, 19, 140 Statesir Place, Middletown, and Thomas E. O'Brian Jr., 21, of Radnor, Pa. He was also reported to have been living recently in Monmouth Beach.

It had originally been reported by authorities that all five fatalities were in one car, but it was later determined that Mr. O'Brian was a passenger in the car driven by Mr. Gulrich.

The other four victims, as well as Mr. Garley, one of the survivors, were in the vehicle operated by Miss Smith.

The crash was described by Ronald Early, chief of the borough First Aid Squad as "the worst multiple car collision I've seen in my 16 years on the squad."

The impact was so great that it took rescuers about an hour after the 1:50 a.m. crash to extricate the victims from the cars.

As of last night, the borough police, working jointly with the State Police Death by Auto Squad, issued the following preliminary report.

A compact car, a 1975 Ford Pinto driven by Miss Smith, was traveling north toward Highlands when it collided with the larger car, a 1969 Dodge Polara traveling in the opposite direction and operated by Mr. Gulrich.

The police would issue no further information pending completion of the investigation, which borough Police Chief John Carmody said could take "several days."

However, First Aid Squad members and firemen who responded to the early morning alarm gave the following account.

Miss Smith's car was negotiating a broad curve that Rt. 36 makes at the entrance to the bridge.

Mr. Gulrich was traveling south, toward Sea Bright, at an apparently high rate of speed and veered into the opposite lane into the path of the other vehicle.

The impact reportedly pushed the Pinto about 75 feet backwards upon impact.

Police and firemen faced a grim scene as they arrived on the scene. The Pinto's front windshield was completely shattered in the crash and its engine, located in the front, was rammed into the passenger compartment.

For more pictures on the fatal crash, please turn to page 34. For individual obituary material on four of the five killed, please turn to page 3.

Borough First Aid Squad members on the scene were thwarted in removing the five people in the Pinto, Mr. Early said, since "gasoline was everywhere and we were afraid that our own (electric) saws could ignite the fumes."

A call went out for the Long Branch First Aid Squad's "Jaws of Life" extricating machine, but Mr. Early said his men eventually ripped through the tangled front end with an air chisel and a cutting shears.

Dr. Stanley Becker, county medical examiner, released autopsy results on two of the five dead yesterday afternoon. He reported that both Mr. Finnegan and Miss Hedberg died as a result of numerous fractures and internal injuries.

Yesterday morning, though, after the two cars had been towed to a local gas station, residents filed by the the Pinto in small groups. Some, like Ed and Sue Noonan, 22 Bayonne Ave., Monmouth Beach, cringed at the interior.

"I knew Rich Finnegan. I used to live across the street from him," Mr. Noonan said. "What was he, maybe 19 or 20?"

As others circled around the Pinto they stared into its exterior, which gave stark testimony to the force of the crash.

The dashboard was knocked out. In its place lay shards of metal and a protruding engine block. A single girl's shoe lay upside down on the driver's side, along with a pack of Merit cigarettes.

Perched precariously on the remains of a seat was a paperpack book, "Checkmate," by Anthony Dunnett. Two bottles of Miller High Life beer, one quarter full, were on either side of the front seat.

There were several colorful brochures that extolled the beauty of "Singer Island, Vacation Paradise" that lay in both front and rear compartments. In between were several maps of the Northeast, as if someone had just come or was planning to go somewhere.

But for Mrs. Gerri Wilbanks, the accident conjured up memories of Gregory Garley, who she had last seen this past summer.

"He worked for about two summers as a 'porch boy' for my husband," Mrs. Wilbanks recalled. Her husband, Guy, is manager of the Sea Bright Beach Club.

"(Gregory) would set up for parties or whatever we had going on out on the porch," Mrs. Wilbanks said.

A literal pall seemed to descend on Mater Dei High School, New Monmouth, as word spread about the death of Miss Smith, a 1975 alumnus.

For Kevin Attridge, a theology teacher at the school, Miss Smith's death was "a personal loss."

"I coached her for four years in cross-country, basketball and track. She was an outstanding athlete," Mr. Attridge asserted.

"But there was more too," he noted. "She was constantly involved. She played the lead in our school play, 'Oklahoma' and sang.

"Whatever she put her mind to she always did well, whether it be athletics, acting, or academics."

Mr. Attridge also recalled Mr. Stahl and Miss Hedberg from 1971 when he taught them theology at Red Bank Catholic High School.

"Well, like Julie, they were very personable and had a lot of talent, academically and in music," he said.

"And the one thing that really struck me about Julie," he added, "was that no matter how busy she was she always took the time to be concerned about other people. She cared for other people."

Examiner reversal: Homicide now suicide

TINTON FALLS — Dr. Stanley Becker, county medical examiner, has reversed himself and ruled the Tuesday shooting death of Mrs. Bernice Mackey, 1415 Shafto Road, a suicide.

Wednesday, Dr. Becker had called the incident a homicide, but issued the new ruling yesterday morning.

"Because of the unusual circumstances, there was some question," Dr. Becker said. "This was a very unusual wound to have been self-inflicted."

The bullet wound, from a .38 caliber pistol owned by Mrs. Mackey's husband Richard, was in an "unusual" location, Dr. Becker said, lodging in the upper left shoulder.

"We didn't think it was possible for a wound to be self inflicted in that manner," he said. "But we now believe it is possible that the wound could be inflicted by holding the gun upside down in the left hand and pressing the trigger with the thumb."

He said the victim had been under a physician's care, and Capt. Andrew Manning of the county detectives said Mrs. Mackey, a secretary at Fort Monmouth, had been depressed about employment problems.

Dr. Becker said a note was found "which was rather confusing but could be regarded as a suicide note."

The contents of the note were not revealed.

The Tinton Falls Police and First Aid Squad were called to the Mackey home at 4:45 p.m. Tuesday by Mr. Mackey, who said he had just returned home from work and found his wife lying in the bathroom with a gunshot wound in the chest.

The gun was found nearby.

Dr. Becker said the victim's clothing is being sent to state laboratories for tests and that his investigation will continue into the incident.

Psychic aids in search

By BOB COHN

MANALAPAN — A woman alleged to have psychic powers has been aiding the township police department in its search for 15-year-old Brian Timmerman, missing since May 9.

Patrolman Michael Rumola, the officer in charge of the search, said last night that Dorothy Allison of Nutley, came here last Saturday and is scheduled to return tomorrow.

Mrs. Allison, known as a 'medium,' according to Patrolman Rumola, has helped other police departments in searches, and aided the FBI when it traced Patty Hearst to a Pennsylvania farmhouse in 1974, he said.

"I think some people are gifted with ESP (extra sensory perception), or something," Patrolman Rumola said, "and I believe she's one."

He said that he and Mrs. Allison drove through the area for four hours Saturday, and although they found no traces of Brian, she gave indications of possessing some type of psychic powers.

"We were driving down a road and she asked, 'A doctor lived here, right?'." Patrolman Rumola said. "We didn't know, but we checked later, and found out that a doctor had lived there 65 years ago."

He explained that her method does not entail the actual specifying of locations, but rather, the mentioning of clues. All conversation is recorded, he said, and if she says anything of importance, "I can take it from there."

"We get along very well," he said. "I think we work well together. It's a matter of piecing things together, but it

110 passengers, crewmen rescued as ice sinks ferry

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — All 110 passengers and crewmen of the ferry William Carson were reported rescued early today from ice floes and lifeboats after heavy ice punctured the 8,300 ton ship and it sank off the Labrador coast of northeast Canada.

The 88 passengers and 22 crew members of the Canadian National ferry were reported in good condition. Helicopters took 42 of them to Mary's Harbor, Labrador, and St. Anthony, Newfoundland, and the government icebreaker Sir Humphrey Gilbert rescued the rest, a Canadian National spokesman announced.

The Carson left St. John's, at the southeast corner of Newfoundland island, Tuesday night on its first scheduled run of the season along the Atlantic coasts of the island and Labrador.

The car-and-passenger ferry was bound for Goose Bay, in Labrador more than 500 miles northwest of St. John's.

The ship sent out an SOS at 9:43 p.m. yesterday reporting ice had ruptured its hull near the Square Islands, 18 miles off the Labrador coast. Thirty minutes later another message said the passengers and crew were abandoning ship.

The ferry sank about three hours later. With it went 1,000 tons of general cargo, including 4,432 cases of beer.

George Pike, a crewman among those taken to the nursing station at Mary's Harbor, said there was time for everyone who had gone to bed to dress and there was no panic.

Pike said despite heavy ice in the area, the air temperature was moderate and there was a full moon.

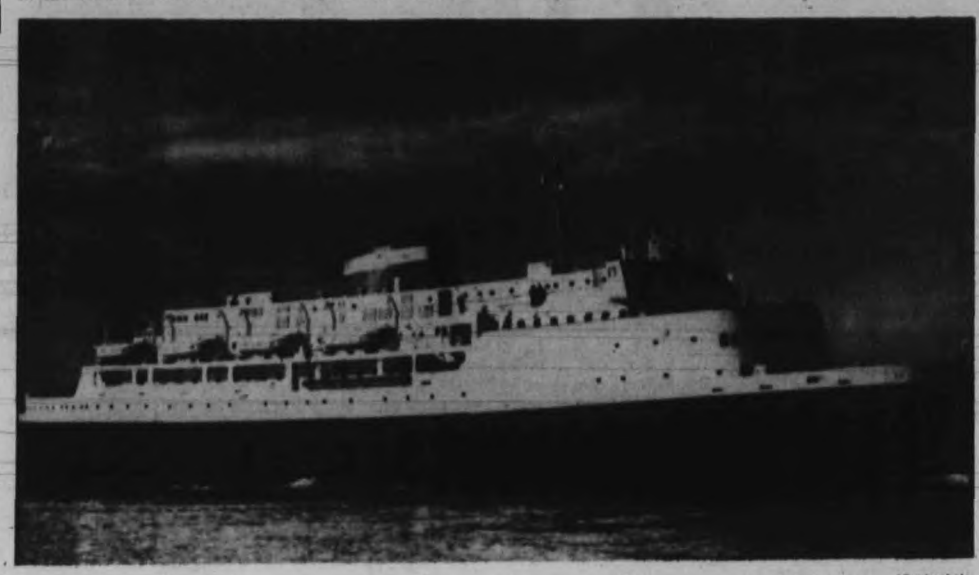

The first helicopter arrived after midnight, he said. Some of the stranded crew members lighted flares, and two Canadian Air Force planes from Prince Edward Island arrived to illuminate the area with searchlights and flares for the rescue.

The icebreaker arrived about 3 a.m.

The Carson was Canada's most prized icebreaking car ferry when it went into service in 1958 in the Cabot Strait between Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. In 1961, it was caught in the heaviest icepack in the strait in 75 years, and it took it a week to make the 90-mile trip.

The ship was shifted last year to the Canadian National's northern service to Labrador.

The village of Goose Bay, 130 miles inland at the head of Lake Melville, exists because of its radio station, used by transatlantic commercial flights, and the lumber industry. It has no road or rail connection with the rest of Canada and most supplies reach the village by coastal ship.

Congress pulls plug on Carter

WASHINGTON — Congress is pulling the plug on the Carter administration's proposal to give the head of a proposed new department of energy sweeping powers to set fuel prices.

Even though congressional enactment of the new Cabinet agency is expected, both houses have agreed to limit sharply the authority of the new energy secretary, expected to be presidential energy adviser James R. Schlesinger. Some members claimed the original Carter proposal would give Schlesinger and his successors too much power, turning them into "energy czars."

Mr. Lion roared; Mrs. acted

DENVER — The male of the species was more appreciative. He slowly circled the department store mannequin, which was dressed in $1,700 worth of original fashions. Then the male lion sniffed, growled, roared and walked away.

The mannequin was in the lions den at the Denver zoo. A local department store was taking pictures for a magazine advertisement. When the photo session with the male lion was finished, a lioness was set free in the den to see what her response would be. Within 30 seconds, she attacked the $500 mannequin, ripped it apart and reduced $1,700 worth of original fashions to shreds.

File suit in Kentucky fire

CINCINNATI — A $21.5 million damage suit was filed in U.S. District Court here yesterday on behalf of two victims of a Kentucky nightclub fire that claimed at least 161 lives.

The suit was filed in behalf of Ronald Shuman, and the estate of his wife, Rosalee, of Bright, Ind. Shuman remained in serious condition at Cincinnati General Hospital. His wife died in the fire which destroyed the Beverly Hills Supper Club last Saturday night.

Folger cuts its coffee price

NEW YORK — Folger Coffee Co. dropped the wholesale price of its ground coffee 20 cents yesterday, its second price cut in a week. The nation's second largest coffee roaster said the new price of $3.98 per pound was effective immediately.

Coffee future prices have been declining for seven straight days on the New York coffee and sugar exchange. Last Thursday, Folger, a division of Procter & Gamble, lowered its coffee prices by 25 cents to $4.18 per pound.

Looking for some good news

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration is looking for some good news about inflation for a change as the government releases its monthly report on wholesale prices.

Disagreement already has developed between the Carter administration and the Federal Reserve Board on whether inflation is getting out of hand again, or whether the recent price surge is only temporary.

Administration economists hoped today's Labor Department report on May wholesale prices would provide an indication of an improving inflation rate.

. . . then go have a beer

SUPERIOR, Wyo. — It started with a minor brush fire. But eight female firefighters have quit, disgusted with their male counterparts who, they say, ruined $800 worth of equipment. And except for the quick work of a bystander who commandeered the vehicle, one of the town's two fire trucks would have gone up in flames. The driver, a man, had parked it downwind from the brush fire.

The equipment damage occurred when a nozzle and lengths of hose were not stowed away and bounced along the pavement on the trip back to the firehouse.

Midge George, one of the women who quit yesterday, said the men don't take their jobs seriously. "It's a big joke to put out a fire, then to go have a beer and talk about it," she said.

Vesco safe during shooting

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — A presidential candidate told Robert L. Vesco and national television he was coming, wrapped himself in a Costa Rican Flag and fired dozens of shots yesterday at the fugitive financier's home, yelling "I want to die for Costa Rica on camera. No one was injured, and there were reports an "anonymous millionaire" offered to post bail for the gunman.

Gerardo Wenceslao Villalobos, a 34-year-old independent candidate, stood across the street from the American millionaire's compound and fired 40 shots from his .38 caliber pistol. The action was broadcast live on national television. Vesco was safe inside the house.

Trudeau says he won't quit

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, whose marriage broke up and left him in charge of three small sons, yesterday defended his wife as a "fine person" and said he had no plans to quit politics.

Margaret Trudeau, his 28-year-old wife of six years, is now pursuing a career as a free-lance photographer in New York, where a U.S. immigration official said Thursday she will need a work permit.

Students protest Rosalynn's visit

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — In the first hostile demonstration of Rosalyn Carter's Latin American tour, about 150 students a block away nearly drowned out the U.S. First Lady as she conferred with Ecuadorean officials.

"I heard some noise, but I don't know anything about it," Mrs. Carter said yesterday afternoon as she left the Legislative Palace after a discussion of the ruling military junta's plans to return the Ecuadorean government to civilian control next year. She said she thought it was "a local problem."

The students threw stones and bricks, set fire to police barricades with gasoline bombs, and shouted into an amplifiuer, "Go home, bloody Rosalynn!" and, "Yankees just want to reinforce imperialism."

About 25 riot police silenced the loudspeakers and dispersed the demonstrators with tear gas.

Two American reporters traveling with Mrs. Carter said they were hit but not hurt by rocks when they left the palace to investigate.

Mrs. Carter received an enthusiastic welcome at the Working Boys' Center of Quito, where 500 persons waved paper Ecuadorean and U.S. flags and cheered her.

The First Lady told a news conference the three military leaders who took over the government last year asked her to explain the U.S. government's refusal in February to let Israel sell Ecuador its Kfir jet fighter, which is powered by an American engine.

Mrs. Carter said she replied that the U.S. government does not want to help introduce such sophisticated weapons into countries that don't have them. She said Vice Admiral Alfredo Poveda told her Ecuador already has such sophisticated planes. She said she told the junta she would mention that to President Carter but made no promises concerning arms sales.

At a banquet in Mrs. Carter's honor last evening, Poveda said their talk had been "beneficial and constructive."

Mrs. Carter goes today to Lima, Peru, the third stop on her seven-nation, 13-day tour.

Bloustein says leaders needed

NEW BRUNSWICK (AP) — Rutgers University President Edward J. Bloustein told about 9,000 graduates yesterday a democracy without leadership cannot survive.

"A democratic people must recognize that it cannot govern itself directy if democracy is to succeed. A democratic people must delegate responsibility freely and without undue restraint or impatient clamor for results," Bloustein said at the university's 211tha commencement ceremonies here.

He said he believes "an elite is necessary to the success and survival of the democratic state."

"Above all," he said, "we require leaders who will dream great dreams, aspire to large goals and deal in hope once again."

The state university awarded honorary degrees to five persons representing the fields of law, science, the humanities and business.

They were: social psychiatrist Robert Coles, author of the Pulitzer Prize winning "Children in Crisis"; attorney Sol M. Linowitz, co-chairman of the National Urban Coalition; physics professor Philip Morrison of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; sociologist Talcott Parsons; Richard B. Sellars of Johnson & Johnson; historian Henry R. Winkler of the University of Cincinnati and women's rights pioneer Alice Paul.

About 800 graduates of the university's Newark campus were to receive degrees in ceremonies last night and today. U.S. District Court Judge Constance Baker Motley was to deliver the commencement address.

Separate commencements for the university's various divisions began yesterday afternoon following the ceremonial conferring of degrees to representatives of all schools in the morning.

About 500 Cook College graduates heard Dr. Charles Hess, first dean of the college and now an administrator at the University of California at Davis, warn of growing attempts by legislatures to regulate scientific research.

Referring to California's attempts to regulate genetic research, he said, "Although the concern may be justified, I hope that in the zeal to alleviate concerns, we do not overreact and seriously limit free inquiry."

Rutgers College Dean Dr. Richard P. McCormick told 1,600 graduates, "I fear that we have tended — students and faculty alike — to demean ourselves, to sell the college short.

Colts Neck gifted child plan slated

COLTS NECK — Shoko Sasaki will begin intelligence screening tests on Monday of 61 students here from Kindergarten to seventh grade in preparation for a gifted child program which will be initiated in the fall.

Dr. Roy Unger, school superintendent, told the Board of Education last night that the total number of gifted children is expected to be winnowed down to 40 when the screening tests are concluded at the end of July.

Two teachers will be hired to teach two supplemental classes, with one class running from kindergarten through fifth grade while the other will encompass fourth through eighth grades.

Each screening test will cost the board $30, and will last about one to 1½ hours for each student.

The board also introduced a code of ethics which will be used a a guide to govern the behavior of individual school board members. The guide requires that school board members uphold school board policies and by-laws. The guide has been recommended for adoption by the N.J. School Boards Association.

Carter administration ends 16-year break with Castro

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced today that it will exchange diplomats with Cuba for the first time in 16 years.

"We have agreed with the Cubans to exchange interest sections," State Department spokesman John Trattner said.

He said the Carter administration would make a formal announcement later today and would provide additional details on the first exchange of diplomats between the two countries since Dwight D. Eisenhower sat in the White House.

Exchange of diplomats in a major step toward renewing ties with the Marxist government of Fidel Castro that were severed in 1961, largely on the grounds that Cuba was exporting revolution in the Western Hemisphere.

The State Department was chosen by President Carter to make the formal announcement. The administration already has eased some travel and spending restrictions for Americans and has reached a maritime boundaries agreement with President Castro.

Carter decided to proceed with the diplomatic exchange even while Cubans are involved in the internal affairs of Africa. Only a few days ago the State Department confirmed that 50 military technicians had been sent into Ethiopia. A large Cuban force remains in Angola.

The American diplomats will set up an "interest section" within the Swiss embassy in Havana, with a counselor heading the delegation. An equal number of Cubans, probably less than a dozen, will be housed in the Czechoslovakian embassy here.

Since the break in relations, the Swiss flag has flown over the former U.S. embassy in the Cuban capital and the Czech flag over the two Cuban buildings here.

Although formal relations may be a long way off, the diplomats will be in charge of a full range of activities between the two countries. U.S. officials said one objective of the exchange is to reunite families who became separated in the 16 years of hostility between the two countries.

Avert cop strike in Newark

NEWARK (AP) — Police union negotiators reached a tentative contract with the City of Newark early today and a threatened noon strike by police officers will probably be averted, a police union official said.

The salary package was to be put to a ratification vote by rank and file members of the Newark Policemen's Benevolent Assocation at 11 a.m. today, Ronald Gasparinetti, PBA president, said in a telephone interview.

The agreement was reached at about 4:45 a.m. after a marathon negotiating session over Thursday night and this morning at the Gateway Downtowner Hotel here, Gasparinetti said.

The PBA president said he and the union's executive board would recommend ratification of the package at the rank and file meeting today.

During a negotiating break earlier this morning, Gasparinetti said he was almost certain the city's 1,600 police officers would strike at noon.

Vietnam releases 20 names

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnamese government gave the United States a list today of 20 more missing Americans whose remains it said had been found in Vietnam.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke, who resumed negotiations with Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hien yesterday on establishment of diplomatic relations between their governments, said the families of the men on the list "are being informed by their respective military services."

He said there would be no public announcement of the names until the U.S. Army's central identification laboratory in Hawaii confirmed the identifications supplied by the Vietnamese.

A vigorous effort to help trace hundreds of Americans still listed as missing in action in the Vietnam War was the chief condition made by the United States for the establishment of diplomatic relations with Vietnam.

'A time of terrible stress'

By JIM OSTROFF

SEA BRIGHT — "After all, it was a time of terrible stress and these things can happen," said Eli Herman at home yesterday, repairing his electronic camera flash.

Hours earlier, Mr. Herman, who serves as borough police photographer, had darted to the scene of the tragic two-car crash on the Highlands-Sea Bright Bridge, only to have his flash gun and camera knocked from his hands by an irate ambulance driver.

"Hell, it was a stupid thing for him to do," said Mr. Herman, 11 Village Road. "But it was a terrible time and many of us let our hearts get ahead of our heads."

The list price of his Metz-402 flash unit is $299 and $130 for its bracket, he said.

But he stated that "price didn't matter."

"The ordeal began at 1:45 or 1:50 a.m.," recalled Mr. Herman, a salesman for Bell, Howell and Mamiya Co., Chicago, who said he receives no pay for his work as the borough's police photographer.

"I got a call to go to the Highlands Bridge for some very bad accident. But when I got there it was horrendous," he said, vividly recalling the sight of twisted bodies inside one of the cars.

"Well, as I usually do, I started to look around and began to take a shot of one of the youngster's being extricated from the car.

"Just then, one member of the Sea Bright First Aid Squad yelled at me to get away," he added, "and then knocked the flash unit to the ground damaging it and the holding bracket."

Mr. Herman says he doesn't know who took a swipe at him, "and frankly doesn't care."

"I mean, what difference does it make?" he asked. "Sure, this guy owes me an apology, whoever he is. I think it shows again that people should think before they act."

But Mr. Herman said he has been able to fix most of the flash unit himself and doesn't intend to file a complaint against the borough.

"All I'm really interested in now is just making sure I can go out again for the next police assignment.

"I don't get paid for this work," he said, "but I enjoy being able to help out and the notoriety too, I guess."

Borough police say they have "no idea" who the First Aid driver was, nor the extent of damage done to Mr. Herman's flash unit.

DeRose would KO state tax and T&E

By SHERRY CONOHAN

EAST ORANGE — He is unalterably opposed to the state income tax, would abolish the "thorough and efficient" education law, favors a return to the basics in education and would like to see minimum sentences established for those found guilty of crimes of violence.

He is Ralph DeRose, a lawyer, former state senator, member of the Waterfront Commission of New York Harbor and — for the second time — a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"Public life is attractive to me. It's an opportunity to write your name across a corner of a page in history — make a contribution," the 48-year-old Mr. DeRose said in explaining why he was again seeking to be governor.

Mr. DeRose first sought his party's nomination for governor in 1973, but lost to Gov. Brendan T. Byrne who subsequently appointed him to the Waterfront Commission, a $33,000 a year part-time post.

Although a late entry in this year's race for the nomination, Mr. DeRose quickly rose to become one of the top contenders with the backing of both Essex County Democratic Chairman Harry Lerner and Jersey City Mayor-elect Thomas F.X. Smith, the new political power in Hudson County. The two counties together delivered about 40 per cent of the votes cast in the 1973 Democratic gubernatorial primary and Mr. DeRose expects to do well in them in this year's election next Tuesday.

If he pulls 40,000 votes in each county, which most political analysts believe he can, he is certain to be one of the leaders in the election in which possibly 500,000 votes will be split among 10 candidates. And if he pulls the 50,000 votes or more in each county that he believes himself capable of garnering, he becomes the man to beat.

The cornerstone of Mr. DeRose's campaign has been his opposition to the income tax. He has called for replacing it with a plan by which 40 per cent of the local property taxes of new businesses and industry that start up in the state would be paid into a state fund earmarked for financing public schools. That way, he says, the entire state can share in the benefits from new ratables while at the same time meeting the state Supreme Court mandate on school financing.

The problem the court enunciated in its mandate, Mr. DeRose explained in an interview in his law office here, is the need to stop the erosion of the tax base in urban centers so that they can adequately finance their schools.

"We're only talking about new development now. We wouldn't touch what's there," he stressed in outlining his plan for all schools to share on a per capita basis in the benefits of new ratables. The proposal, he added, is a takeoff on a law in Minnesota, only the money there is distributed in revenue sharing rather than plowed into schools.

Mr. DeRose also has bemoaned the quality of education provided in the schools and would substitute minimum standards for the present "thorough and efficient" education law, the language of which he calls "mind-boggling" for its complexity.

Ralph DeRose

"To me 'thorough and efficient' is when a 12th grade student graduates he or she can function at the 12th grade level," Mr. DeRose said.

"We have to get back to basic education," he continued, saying he personally liked a system in use in California which restricts teaching in the first three years of school to almost exclusive reading, writing and arithmetic.

"They make sure the kids get the survival skills," he said.

In the same vein, Mr. DeRose said he would like to see the money that is spent on education going more into salaries for teachers than for administrators. He said the pay system should be revamped so that the highest salaries go to the best classroom teachers. Under the present system, he asserted, a teacher must leave the classroom and go into administration in order to move up the salary ladder.

Mr. DeRose also has called for minimum sentences for those who commit crimes of violence in an effort to make neighborhoods safer and has pledged to make sure that all minorities and ethnic groups are represented at all levels of government, from the governor's cabinet on down. He charged that New Jersey's eastern and southern European communities, particularly those of Polish extraction, have been systematically excluded from state government and that Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has reneged on a promise to increase minority participation in government "just like he hedged on the income tax."

Although a Byrne appointee on the Waterfront Commission, Mr. DeRose and the governor had a falling out in 1975 when the governor tried to fire him from the job. Mr. DeRose filed suit to block the dismissal and won.

Gov. Byrne's action followed a controversy over a $10,000 a month legal contract Mr. DeRose held with Porter and Ripa, a Morristown engineering contract to design a $300-million Camden County sewer system and Mr. DeRose, with political connections in Camden County, was signed on as Porter and Ripa's legal counsel. An investigation was conducted by the state, but nothing improper was found.

More recently Mr. DeRose found himself at the receiving end from another of his rivals for the gubernatorial nomination. When Jersey City Mayor Paul Jordan withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last month and endorsed Gov. Byrne, he said one of the reasons he was doing so was to head off Mr. DeRose, whom he described as "a man without any qualifications and unsavory connections."

Mr. DeRose called the mayor's remarks a "cheap shot" and said he hadn't been disturbed by them at all.

"It was kid stuff. He was repudiated by those who know him best and after he went to Brendan Byrne he took a shot at me because he knew I was the strongest candidate," Mr. DeRose said.

Mr. DeRose lives in South Orange. He received both his undergraduate and his law degrees from Rutgers University and served as legislative secretary to former State Sen. Donald C. Fox of Essex County before being elected a senator himself for the 1972-73 term. He also served on the New Jersey State Reapportionment Commission and the Democratic Policy Council.

Eatontown aims at Museum site

EATONTOWN — Borough Council has asked its attorney, Richard L. Bonello, to begin negotiations toward acquiring the Harriet Read property at 75 Broad St. for a muncipal historical museum.

The house, which members of the Eatontown Historical Committee believe is one of the oldest structures in the borough, is situated between the municipal complex and the St. James Memorial Episcopal Church, recently designated for inclusion in the state Register of Historic Places.

The historical group has been looking for a permanent home for its extensive collection of books and historical mementos for several years.

Last year, council designated $12,000 in federal revenue sharing funds toward acquisition of a museum and has carried the funds over to this year's budget.

Council and the historical society expect to work out a long-range minimal lease arrangement for whatever property is eventually acquired, with the society taking on responsibility for fund-raising to cover rehabilitation and operating expenses.

"We're going to make a special effort to get this museum," said Mayor J. Joseph Frankel. "We've had a lot of good reaction and people are really interested in beginning a museum."

In other matters on the workshop agenda, council decided to reject a suggestion made in a letter from Maxine Boff, president of the Board of Education, that council designate a liaison to the school board.

Mr. Bonello told council that the two bodies were "separate and should remain so."

At its regular meeting on Wednesday, council expects to approve purchase of a strip of land on the northerly side of Wampum Lake from Anthony Piccola for its assessed value of $1,000.

The strip of land, measuring about seven feet by 300 feet, will allow public access by borough residents around the entire perimeter of the lake.

The municipal body will also introduce an ordinance increasing fines for overtime parking from $2 to $5.

The hike is expected to act as an additional deterrent to overtime parking in the municipal lot behind Borough Hall, usually crowded to capacity by borough employes, students attending schools at 1 Main St., shoppers at the Village area stores and residents with short-term business in the municipal building.

The worsening parking situation in the borough lot has been the subject of much recent discussion before council and the traffic advisory board.

Borough officials have reported that more cars are now using the lower lot, off Throckmorton St., freeing spaces in the borough hall lot for short-term parking.

While council agreed to investigate further a new state program allowing property owners in "blighted" areas to defer taxes for five years on improvement on their homes up to $4,000, Mayor Frankel said he opposed the idea.

"It's a bad idea psychologically," the mayor said. "This whole idea of redlining is not oriented to a town like Eatontown."

Although Mr. Bonello said that the tax break would encourage improvements to substandard dwellings, Mayor Frankel said the plan could have a negative impact on resale value of homes in areas designated as blighted.

really gets the mind working."

Patrolman Rumola said they intend to work together tomorrow, and that they have "a strategy worked out," but he said he would rather not reveal it right now.

In December, 1974, she assisted Mr. and Mrs. John Carlucci in a search for their missing daughter, Doreen.

Doreen Carlucci and her friend, Joanne Delardo, were subsequently found strangled to death in an area off Pergolaville Road.

Commenting on the present search, Patrolman Rumola said that although no solid leads have turned up, "I'm still very optimistic."

He said a nationwide alarm has been issued, along with notification of the FBI. He noted that he is hopeful of locating the boy in this area because "in most cases of this type, they remain within five miles of their residence." Brian had been living with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Beth Timmerman, Tennant Road.

Brian is suffering from hypoglycemia, a disease that restricts his learning abilities. Although standing six feet, two inches, and weighing 200 pounds, the boy,police say, has the mental capability of an eight-year-old.

Still, they have not discounted the possibility that he may have found work, and they have been checking farms, amusement parks and carnivals.

who resides at home, and two married sons, Lawrence Gonnello of Rumson and Anthony Gonnello Jr. of East Aurora, N.Y.

It was Judy who took the call when The Register called the Gonnello residence with the good news — and Mrs. Gonnello, who frequently enters contests, says she thought her daughter was kidding her when she told her that she had won.

She notes that although she often enters, she seldom wins and she has to her credit only a small prize from a bazaar.

Mrs. Gonnello is employed part-time at Freedman's Bakery, Little Silver.

John Famulary, The Register's advertising director, says there were 1,378 entries in the contest. Those who participated were from throughout the entire circulation area, spanning Ocean Township to Cliffwood and Sea Bright to Freehold.

Some of the entries came in envelopes decorated with four-leaf clovers and other good luck signs. And one artistic participant drew grocery carts laden with food. He didn't, however, come up with the proper number of coupons.

The right numbers, Mr. Famulary says, were 56 and 63. He explains that there were two because there sometimes are zoned inserts in The Register and not all subscribers receive all coupons. All entries with correct numbers were placed in a container and the winner was selected by drawing.

Seventy-eight entries were disqualified because they were postmarked later than the deadline and other participants were disqualified because they failed to follow all the contest rules.

Some headaches

EAST ORANGE (AP) — The New Jersey Council of Churches issued a formal statement yesterday protesting the alleged displacement of poor Atlantic City residents from their homes as a result of increased real estate values.

"The citizens of New Jersey were promised that the style of the gambling industry in Atlantic City would be to stabilize the community with social and economic development," the statement said.

"If any systematic expulsion of population groups is allowed to continue," the council said "it will be clear that casino gambling will be exploiting New Jersey's citizens, rather than helping them."

The council called the legislature's failure to provide for an equal opportunity officer as part of the Casino Control Commission a "poor omen for the future of minority employment in Atlantic City."

Rev. Paul L. Stagg, council general secretary, said the council hopes the state will go ahead with plans to develop new housing and rehabilitate present dwellings in the city.

3 of 4 respond

JERSEY CITY (AP) — Three of four gubernatorial candidates, responding to a survey released yesterday by the Coalition for the Arts and Humanities in New Jersey, say they support increased funding for the arts.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, Rep. James Florio, D-N.J. and Ralph DeRose were the only Democrats to respond to the survey.

Thomas Kean, the lone Republican to answer the survey, did not call for increased appropriations, instead he recommended changes in the composition and duties of the New Jersey Arts Council.

Board to review high-rise plan

LONG BRANCH — The Planning Board will review an application at its Monday workshop session for a proposed 150-unit senior citizen high-rise on Ocean and Pavilion Aves. — down the street from the site of a similar project planned by the city's Housing Authority.

The application proposes a 14-story, 150 one-bedroom unit structure to be constructed for housing for the elderly. The building would be called the Oceanview Tower Apts. Estimated cost is $3 million.

The applicant is listed as Forest City Dillon Inc. of Cleveland, Ohio. Co-developers are Alex Derechin and Sons.

The Housing Authority has secured department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) approval for 100 units at the former Frank L. King Memorial Home site on Washington St.

The eventual inavailability of this site prompted HUD to grant a time extension to the authority so that alternate locations for the proposed 10-story high-rise could be found.

According to Richard Kiernan, authority executive director, a site at Ocean and Morris Avenues was selected and proposed for a "turnkey" development.

Under this arrangement, a developer provides the site and builds the project according to HUD guidelines and then turns it over for an agreed-upon price to the authority for operation and management.

Mr. Kiernan said that Alba Construction Co., Paramus, is the developer who plans to institute this project. HUD final approvals are now being awaited.

Mr. Kiernan said that the project planned by the Jewish War Veterans is "totally different and separate" from the one planned by Alba Construction Co.

He added that the close proximity between the two projects would have no bearing on either's status with HUD or HFA.

"We anticipate that our 100-unit project will cost $3.6 million to build," he said.

"This includes complete land acquisition and full taxes," he said.

Several years ago, the B'nai Shalom Foundation of Philadelphia received required approvals for a senior citizen high-rise on the same lot site as now proposed by the Jewish War Veterans of America.

The plan died, however, when a group of neighboring residents hired a lawyer and took their objections to the courts.

The project is in a C-4 zone and is a permitted use.

A variance will probably be required because of insufficient parking space for this project, indicated Planning Board member, Philip J. Hayes.

The ordinance controlling parking for senior citizens' apartments now requires .80 spaces per one-bedroom unit and 1.25 spaces per two-bedroom units.

Mr. Hayes said that the planners recommended to council before the final adoption of this ordinance that only .75 spaces per one-bedroom unit and 1 space per two-bedroom unit be the formula approved.

"An error may have appeared in the ordinance which would have to be amended. It is my understanding that the council intended to honor the Planning Board's opinion on this point," said Mr. Hayes.

He noted that with "off the top of my head arithmetic" the applicant would still be shy the number of parking spaces required, even if the ordinance were amended.

The applicant offers 75 spaces and under the existing ordinance must supply 150 spaces.

Desposited check triggers Shrewsbury Twp. dispute

SHREWSBURY TOWNSHIP — Verbal sparring between Township Committee and the township clerk, and a revelation from former Mayor Clarence Moore as to why he resigned 19 months ago, highlighted last night's regular Township Committee meeting.

The dispute between the clerk, Mrs. Anne C. Switek, and Mayor John P. Fertig centered around a check for $95,000 from the Shrewsbury Arms Complex to be paid to the township.

The money, part of a settlement in a suit brought by the township against the county tax board over the question of whether the apartments should be on the tax rolls, was deposited in an interest-bearing account as agreed.

However, Mrs. Switek, who also serves as township tax collector, said she wasn't told what had happened to the check.

Mayor Fertig said the check had been given to the township treasurer, Mrs. Carol McLean, to deposit, adding, "The communication between this committee and the tax collector (Mrs. Switek) is ridiculous."

Mrs. Switek held the post of township treasurer for more than 20 years until January 1976, when the committee decided to replace her with Mrs. McLean.

"I was told to deposit it," she said after the meeting. "Then the mayor told the treasurer to deposit it and I didn't know anything about it."

Committeeman Jamie Mullenax, however, said Mrs. Switek "was sitting right at the table when the decision was made."

Mr. Mullenax also said "we have had some lapses in communications in several matters," but didn't specify particular problems.

The committee did say it had complaints about the reporting of the minutes of each meeting, and voted to purchase a $200 tape recorder to record the minutes.

"We're doing this to make it easier for Anne, so she won't have to sit and try to remember everything that's said," said Committeeman Richard Pavao.

During the public portion of the meeting, former Mayor Clarence Moore broke a 19-month public silence as to why he resigned from office in November of 1975.

A "partial" reason, he said, is the arrangement whereby the Alfred Vail Mutual Association pays the township's utility bills.

The association is a private organization which administers part of the township and owns most of the housing there.

"That's one of the reasons I quit," Mr. Moore said. "I think it's deceptive for a private corporation to assume the charges for the municipal facility."

"One of these days the boom is going to be lowered," he added.

Mayor Fertig said he has been unable to schedule meetings with the mutual association's board of directors but hoped to meet soon after the association has an election next month.

City man is accused of assault

WEST LONG BRANCH — A Long Branch man was arrested Wednesday after allegedly threatening a borough woman with a hunting knife and demanding she give him money, police report.

Robert Ficalora, 30, of 177 Morris Ave., Long Branch is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with infent to rob, police said.

According to police, Gladys Deaver, here, said she had let Mr. Ficalora into her home, and he allegedly pulled out a knife, held it to her throat, and demanded money.

Detective John Demaree arrested Mr. Ficalora at the North End Motel on Ocean Ave., in Long Branch, later that night.

Lawyer's daughter struck by car, hurt

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — Caroline Ansell, 12, of Surrey Lane, here, is in satisfactory condition at Monmouth Medical Center after being hit by a car on Wednesday.

She is the daughter of Richard B. Ansell, an Asbury Park attorney.

No one was charged in the incident, which occurred when Miss Ansell was struck by a car heading north on Wickapecko Drive, according to police.

A witness to the accident said the girl ran in front of the car, according to police.

Tennis courts work nearing completion

OCEANPORT — Mayor Clement V. Sommers said last night he is hopeful that the new tennis courts at Blackberry Bay Park will be open within a month.

The tennis courts were supposedly completed a month ago, but the borough refused to accept them because of what it said was improper grading.

Mr. Sommers said the courts will be resurfaced shortly and should be ready for play in about three weeks.

In other business, the council adopted an amendment to the salary ordinance setting the pay for newly appointed Borough Administrator Laurence Kenyon at $18,450 a year.

Also adopted was an ordinance allowing school crossing guards to be paid twice a month instead of monthly.

The council awarded six contracts totalling $76,000 for the construction of a 1,000-square-foot addition to the Port-au-Peck Chemical Hose Co. Fire House, now under construction.

The new firehouse is being built at a cost of more than $400,000 under the federal public works program, and the addition was authorized because the borough found it had money left over which could be used to expand the original plans.

The council awarded a $2,495 contract to the Harder Equipment Co., Englishtown, for a street department roller.

W.Long Branch appoints new patrolman, prosecutor

WEST LONG BRANCH — The borough gained a policeman and a prosecutor at last night's Borough Council meeting.

Patrolman James C. Tice, 22, of Asbury Park, was sworn in as a patrolman. A graduate of Manasquan High School, Patrolman Tice has served for the past two years with the Ocean Grove Police Department.

Michael B. Kirschner, a borough resident and an attorney with a Wall Township law firm, was named as the borough's first municipal prosecutor. Previously, the prosecutor's duties had been carried out by the borough attorney.

Unlike past meetings in which the prosecutor had been discussed, the appointment drew little comment from council. Only Republican Councilman Robert Shirvanian voted against the appointment; the four Democrats on council voted in favor of it. Councilman Richard Demaree was absent.

Mr. Shirvanian and Mayor Henry J. Shaheen, also a Republican, had argued heatedly in past meetings against creation of a separate prosecutor post. Both maintained that the salary paid for prosecutor's duties — $1,800 — would skyrocket if a separate person was appointed to it.

For this year, at least, hiring Mr. Kirschner should not cost the borough an extra penny; his salary will come out of the compensation paid to Arnold Levin, borough attorney, when fulfilling the prosecutor's duties.

Although some Democrats have admitted that the salary may be raised some time in the future, money is regularly budgeted for the prosecutor, and has in the past merely been paid to the borough attorney.

Democrats on council, who had strongly supported the measure, noted that past and present municipal judges, borough attorneys and the police chief, have recommended that a prosecutor be named.

As prosecutor, Mr. Kirschner's primary duty is to prosecute in municipal court two days a week.

Council last night also heard James Flanagan, a former councilman, reiterate his complaint about dangerous conditions at Pinewood and Beechwood Aves.

Dr. Flanagan maintained that the view-obstructing hedges at the intersection violate ordinances.

After Dr. Flanagan had drawn council's attention to the situation at its last meeting, a policeman had been sent over to the intersection to right the situation, Police Chief Ira White said last night.

Dr. Flanagan maintained that the dangerous conditions still existed, and that a car had to advance 6 to 8 feet into the intersection in order to see around the hedges.

Chief White promised that the intersection would be re-examined.

Council also announced that June 25 would be the next paper, glass and aluminum collection by the Environmental Commission at the borough Community Center of Locust Ave.

At the commission's last collection, 17,140 pounds of paper, 1,760 pounds of glass and 61 pounds of aluminum were amassed.

'This 55 m.p.h. limit is killing me.'

Pinelands control panel

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has created a new committee to oversee and regulate the expansive Pine Barrens of South Jersey. In what he appropriately termed a "dramatic decree," the governor also announced the commitment of $10 million in state funds to buy land for the preservation of this priceless and vital resource.

Named by the governor to head the panel being delegated land use control powers was former State Supreme Court Justice Frederick W. Hall. The committee's responsibility will be to see that the vast and unspoiled Pinelands remain, as the governor put it, "preserved as a balance" against the concentration of population in the rest of the state.

The committee, which will have Cabinet-level status, will review state projects and any private ventures either receiving state funds or subject to state review. Any that are not environmentally suited to the "protection of the unique resources of the Pinelands" will not be approved. Serving with ex-Justice Hall on the review unit will be the state secretary of agriculture and the commissioners of the Department of Environmental Protection and Community Affairs, plus other non-public members.

The executive order also calls on the Division of State and Regional Planning to define the boundaries of the Pine Barrens and to designate those areas which call for special treatment. Of the total area, which may comprise as much as 1.2 million acres, only 340,000 acres are now designated as subject to development plan review by the existing Pinelands Environmental Council. That agency, with which the governor has been at odds, apparently is being sidestepped by creation of the new panel.

The governor also ordered development within a year of a formal land use program designed to save open spaces and insure development "compatible with preservation of unique environmental resources." The plan would be drawn on the basis of considerations of local political, environmental, agricultural and recreational interests after public hearings.

Gov. Byrne has taken the definitive action needed to prevent further inroads and irreparable damage to an asset which is, in many areas, quite fragile. Time is growing short, and we trust the land use program will be drafted within the stipulated deadline and then quickly implemented.

Nixon's ultimate punishment

For six hours in four televised interviews with David Frost, former President Nixon has given his version of the historic events which culminated in his resignation and exile in California.

Those performances will leave him richer monetarily by from $600,000 to $1 million, but whether they have enriched his reputation is another matter.

In a public career that has impinged upon most of the major events of the last 30 years, Mr. Nixon has never fed his audience Pablum. His personality is such that it arouses strong loyalty or deep antipathy.

For that reason, a consensus reaction to his interviews would be impossible. His appearances will have confirmed the prejudices of Nixon-haters, who might well agree with one observer's comment that Mr. Nixon was pardoned for more than we had known.

But Nixon loyalists, of whom there are many, will feel that the interviews contributed substantially to his vindication.

Our view is that Mr. Nixon had fallen so low there is no way for him to go but up, the interviews could do nothing to hurt his public image, and that they probably contributed to more sympathy than he has enjoyed since he left the White House in disgrace on Aug. 9, 1974.

But, as we have noted before, there is little that anyone, including Mr. Nixon, can do for him. He has undergone a uniquely traumatic experience which constitutes the ultimate in punishment. As he put it succinctly in the final scheduled interview, "No one can know how it feels to resign the presidency of the United States."

No, we don't know, and we hope no one else will experience it. But we can well imagine what it would be like and for that reason we must feel compassion for Richard Nixon even though he, like all of us, brought his troubles upon himself.

Carter softens hard line

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON SCENE

President Carter declared after taking office that he would never retreat from his unequivocal stand on human rights. But he now is quietly asking Congress to weaken national policy on the human rights issue.

Carter received international acclaim for his moral battle against repressive regimes as he slashed American military aid to Argentina, Uruguay and Ethiopia. Both conservatives and liberals in Congress applauded his actions, and the House quickly responded by cutting military aid to Nicaragua and the Philippines.

The House also passed a bill requiring American representatives at world lending institutions to vote against loans to countries that flagrantly violate human rights.

In the last few weeks, however, Carter's foreign policy advisers have been getting signals from abroad that the president may be pushing his human rights offensive too far. Comsequently, Carter has had to backtrack from his aggressive stance.

On May 19, for instance, he met privately with a group of congressmen at the White House, and soon found himself under tough questioning on human rights by Rep. Louis Stokes, D.-Ohio.

As one of the participants recalls, Carter said that if Congress cut off funds to human rights violators, it "would seriously handcuff us in terms of our relationship with other countries."

Speaking persuasively, Carter said his policies already had convinced authoritarian Paraguay to admit a human rights task force from the United Nations. The president added that his wife's visit to Peru could help induce that nation to follow up its release of some political prisoners with still more human rights gestures.

Some of those present strongly felt that Carter was dodging the question, they later admitted. But Carter, apparently sensing their uneasiness, assured them: "I'm not going to betray America."

According to one source, he continued: "I hope that Congress isn't going to tie my hands." The president described America's problems with such issues as immigration quotas before asking for greater "flexibility" from Congress.

Stokes was so convinced by the president's argument that he cast the key vote to continue U.S.-sponsored training of Argentine troops in the Panama Canal Zone. The foreign troops are taught such techniques as psychological warfare, urban counter-insurgency, and other skills for suppressing opposition to dictatorships.

A number of Stokes' colleagues, however, are bitterly grumbling that Carter is no longer willing to back up his tough talk by cutting off aid or loans. Some congressmen believe that Carter's private plea for compromise is part of an emerging pattern to move U.S. relations with foreign tyrants back to a business-as-usual basis.

Both publicly and privately, officials at the White House, Pentagon and State Department have called for greater "flexibility" — the administration's code word for "softening" — on the human rights issue.

State Department human rights coordinator Pat Derian, regarded as one of the most militant administration officials on the issue, recently said: "I would like to see us place stronger emphasis on positive action as a preferable way to increase respect for human rights, rather than rely too much on aid cuts, public denunciations and other of the more negative approaches."

ANDERSON

Such words might have come from the great compromiser, Henry Kissinger, who preached quiet persuasion on human rights with a notable lack of success in such countries as Chile, Brazil and Argentina.

Similar statements also have been made by Undersecretary of State for Latin America, Terence Todman; U.S. Ambassador to Argentina Robert Hill; Undersecretary of State Lucy Benson Wilson, and many others.

One high administration official argued forcefully that Carter had not wavered on the human rights issue, but conceded at the end of a long talk: "Let's face it, the problem is implementation ... He (Carter) is just as committed. He's just not as purist."

Footnote: Carter's opposition could kill the legislation, which is now stymied in the Senate, to bar international loans to repressive countries. The president believes he can more effectively influence other countries by retaining the option to personally oppose the loans.

WHO'S NEWS — With a stroke of the pen, Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps has turned over responsibility for running her department to her undersecretary, Sidney Harman.

In a private memo to department heads, Kreps wrote: "For the moment, I have asked him (Harman) to take responsibility for 'running the shop,' with all that phrase implies."

Our sources confirm that Kreps is not really running the show at Commerce. But a department spokesman insisted she is making the policy decisions while delegating the administrative details to her second in command.

The true artist saddles a runaway imagination. He rides his dreams to eternity blending poetry and logic. It seldom works. Almost never in business.

Irving Cowan did it. Some of us smiled when the Jewish Cowboy married the attractive teenage daughter of Samuel Friedland. Her father originated the Food Fair supermarket chain. Cruelly, a few thought: It pays to marry the boss' daughter.

That depends. The dark and handsome boy had been riding the range at a small cattle ranch. He didn't appreciate the smell of beef on the hoof. He didn't ask his father-in-law for a job as an officer of Food Fair.

He wanted to be a butcher. In that way he could find out what cattle are like when they stop smelling. Artist? To family friends, Irving Cowan seemed more like a bank teller. He had good manners and he was a master at listening.

I was old enough to be his father when we met. We exchanged dreams. The difference between us was that I told everybody. He confided only in Margie. Irving wanted to run a big hotel. Not just run it, but mold it into a creation.

Friedland built the Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood, Florida. He had a top-flight team running it: Gene Suits, Irving Tillis, John Monahan. They knew that the only dreams connected to a hotel are nightmares.

Cowan studied the hotel business. He wondered how a man could hook up good taste with good business. He studied 14 hours a day every day. He wanted no gift from Friedland. Two years later, the snowy fox of Florida, Gene Suits, said to me: "The kid is ready."

Friedland wanted to believe it, but couldn't. Family is family, but business is business. With a shrug, he took a long chance. So too did Cowan. The hotel was a successful operation. What could he do to make something good into something spectacular?

I bet on artistic dreamers. Cowan was bucking all the lavish hotels on the Gold Coast of Florida. He took over, not as a martinet, but as one who would take advice from the doorman. He wanted to know of customer complaints. In Florida, tourists complain about the weather.

He developed his own team; his own style. Kelly and I knew Debbie and Cindy when they wore long flowing nighties and had to kiss everybody good night at 8 p.m. The little girls were taught to understand responsibility, not privilege.

The seasons are moody. They run swiftly in highs and lows.

Twenty years fled like a gang of thieves. I went back to share coffee with the Cowans. Time is a terrible tyrant. Margie hasn't changed. She is still the smart young matron. Irving is heavier. There are frown lines on his forehead.

BISHOP

His dreams have come true. The hotel is bigger, better than ever. Debbie is 19, a psychology major whose average is 3.67. Cindy is 18, and doesn't know whether she wants to major in psychology or pre-med. There is a baby, Jonathan. This is called family planning.

They have their own business interests at Royal Palm Beach Colony; an apartment development in Bradenton, Fla.; he's building houses in Royal Highlands, Fla.; an industrial park near Atlanta; he owns a huge citrus grove somewhere; he built condominiums before developers reached the saturation point.

Together, they book expensive acts for the Diplomat: Ben Vereen, Shecky Greene, John Davidson, Liza Minnelli, Sammy Davis Jr. This part of the hotel business is risky. To get into the Diplomat, a star requires two votes: Margie and Irving.

He doesn't have to dream anymore. But he does. Annexes have been built on the hotel. The complex is now a city. Cowan thinks that legalized gambling must come to the Gold Coast. He smiles. "Miami Beach went down about 15 per cent in business last winter. Who wants to throw the dice one more time?"

I saw Samuel Friedland in a locker room. He's 80 and keeps fit playing golf without a scorecard. We said hello, how's the family goodbye.

Of the two men, Friedland is lucky . . .

Paying for free dental care

By ROBERT YOAKUM

ANOTHER LOOK

There was a story on CBS-TV news the other evening about people on welfare getting inexpensive dental care — fillings at $5.00 each, for example — at the University of Illinois Dental School.

The news item brought back painful memories of the inexpensive work I had done at a university dental school. I won't identify the school, or the central figure in this tale, who is now a practicing dentist. I'm afraid of alarming his patients.

This friend — we'll call him Ed Carys — had been an undergraduate classmate. He had gone on to dental school and I had gone on to do graduate work at another university in the same city. One day Ed called to ask whether I would like to be his patient.

"It's a good deal," he said enthusiastically. "I need patients to work on and I might as well use friends. The work is free. You have to pay only for the filling materials."

His enthusiasm was contagious, and I was hard up, so I agreed. I had to have dental work anyway, so why not let a friend do it for nothing?

I soon found out why not.

My first feeling of apprehension came when I met Ed for an examination. We walked past 20 or 25 small cubicles, each of which contained a student dentist and patient. The noises were low and ominous: drills, which were slower back then; the muffled voices of teachers talking to students, and, worst of all, occasional groans or yelps from injured patients.

As I feared it would, Ed's examination revealed enough cavities to keep him busy for many weeks. Then the professor came in, conducted his own exploration, found several more cavities, and admonished Ed to look harder next time.

My unease increased. What if Ed wasn't a good student? Would all my fillings fall out in a year or so, perhaps in the middle of a romantic steak dinner? Would he slip and drill into a root, or a lip?

On my second visit, Ed went to work. In those days (and perhaps still, for all I know) dental students had to isolate the afflicted tooth with the aid of a rubber dam. This uncomfortable object, which was simply a mouth-sized patch of rubber with a tooth-sized hole cut in it, was designed to keep the tooth dry. It also occasionally served to keep the slightly inept Ed from dropping gold inlays down my gullet.

YOAKUM

It took Ed many minutes to anchor the dam, but even so the thing kept snapping back, causing me to jump and Ed to curse. I grew to loathe the dam nearly as much as the drilling.

The drilling went on forever. And I can still feel it. Hour after hour, eon after eon. Having laboriously prepared a cavity for filling, Ed would summon a professor. The professor would examine the excavation, shake his head reproachfully, do a little remedial drilling himself, and then write something down on a card where Ed's equipment lay.

On my fourth or fifth visit I sneaked a look at the card. Ed was getting C-minuses on my teeth!

By then I had already agreed to let Ed remove two impacted wisdom teeth. The date was set, and I couldn't think of a way to avoid the operation. Anyway, it had to be done and I couldn't afford a real dentist.

The operating area — one large room with about a dozen writhing, blood-spattered patients — reminded me of the way Hogarth would draw an 18th-century dental school. I made another futile effort to think of a more pressing engagement.

I don't know what grade Ed got on the extractions, but it felt like a D-minus job. If I ever again sought the free services of a dental school, I would demand an A student.

It may be that with all the intervening years of experience, Ed is now a grade A practicing dentist. Just the same, I'm glad he isn't practicing on me.

'Excuse me — I think you dropped something.'

Charges traded in Manalapan

MANALAPAN — Mary Pantozzi, candidate for one of the Democratic Township Committee nominations, has denied charges by her opponent, Steven Pitiak, an incumbent, that she has continued serving on the Planning Board while she resided outside Manalapan.

"I never established residence anywhere else," Mrs. Pantozzi said yesterday. She explained that she and her family moved to her mother's house in Matawan for four months in 1976, while awaiting construction of a new home in Manalapan.

"The intent was never to leave town," she said. "We still received mail here and owned property. As far as I'm concerned, I was a citizen of Manalapan."

Mr. Pitiak, earlier in the week, asked for Mrs. Pantozzi's resignation as secretary of the Planning Board. He cited state statute that bars a non-citizen of a municipality from serving on any of its boards or commissions.

Mrs. Pantozzi was appointed to the Planning Board in 1975. She is teamed with Mayor Rodman Kober in Tuesday's primary.

Mr. Pitiak, is also running and has been locked in a fierce primary battle with his opponents, a campaign marked by name-calling and various charges.

In asking for Mrs. Pantozzi to resign from the Planning Board, Mr. Pitiak also called for her withdrawal from the campaign.

He also has said he will ask the Township Committee to investigate the matter, and has indicated that he will call for a public hearing if Mrs. Pantozzi doesn't step down from the board.

Mr. Pitiak's actions followed charges by Mayor Kober that Mr. Pitiak's "conduct does not warrant his reelection."

The fact that Mr. Pitiak is receiving unemployment compensation while being employed as a township committeeman, Mayor Kober says, "raises a serious question."

Mr. Pitiak said he is receiving partial unemployment, to supplement the $4,000 salary he receives as committeeman. A heavy equipment operator, he said he has been out of work "the last seven or eight months."

Mayor Kober has also blasted Mr. Pitiak for voting against appealing a court order which would require garden apartments, small lots and small houses in the township.

Mr. Pitiak responded, saying, "In no way would the appellate court overturn (Superior Court Judge Merritt Lane Jr.'s decision) because the state Supreme Court has already set rules. It's a money-making ripoff for attorney fees."

Mrs. Pantozzi, meanwhile, also called Mr. Pitiak "unfit for office," saying "he has consistently voted no (on the committee) without offering alternatives."

She claimed Mr. Pitiak "voted against the replacing of 10 to 15-year-old road equipment without giving any reason for doing so."

To that charge, Mr. Pitiak said the bond ordinance that would have financed the acquisition "had a lot of frills," in that there were expenditure provisions "for things that had nothing to do with road equipment."

Courts said in crisis situation

TRENTON (AP) — Citing unprecedented caseloads, judicial vacancies and lack of adequate funds, Chief Justice Richard J. Hughes declared a crisis situation yesterday for the $89 million a year New Jersey court system.

As a partial remedy, Justice Hughes strongly endorsed the concept of unifying the county and state courts under one jurisdiction in the annual report of the Aministrative Office of the Courts.

Despite its problems, however, Justice Hughes said the New Jersey court system has remained a national leader since it was revamped by the 1947 state constitution.

"There it has remained despite vicissitudes unknown in earlier years, including a towering increase in litigation unmatched by a sufficiency of judges, adequate financing and the court unification not finally reached even by that fine constitution," Justice Hughes said.

The report showed there has been an 18 per cent increase in pending cases since 1972 with a total of 153,942 by the end of last year.

"The unacceptable increase in backlog would have been even higher had the number of dispositions per judge not also increased," the report said.

In the same period, the report said the 263 full time judges in the state disposed of 26 per cent more cases.

Judicial vacancies, meanwhile, increased 60 per cent while the number of full time judges in offices increased by only 6 per cent, according to the report.

Gov. Brendan T. Byrne has called for "speedy trail" standards that would assure a trial within three months of the indictment for those accused of violent crimes, the report said.

But Justice Hughes said it is "futile to talk in terms of mandated speedy trial programs unless the physical and financial resources are available to attain the desired goals."

Byrne is firm on P.A. veto

TRENTON (AP) — Routine actions of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey still won't win the approval of Gov. Brendan T. Byrne until the authority adopts a firm schedule for mass transit projects, Byrne said yesterday.

Gov. Byrne vetoed routine business at the authority's May 12 meeting, and he refused yesterday to withdraw the veto. He vowed to veto other business so that the authority is "compelled to immediate and decisive steps toward the fulfillment of the objectives for which it was established."

Authority Chairman William Ronan asked Gov. Byrne to withdraw the veto in a letter dated May 27.

Mr. Ronan thanked the governor for not vetoing the authority's decision to appeal a Federal Highway Administration decision that would bar the use of authority bridge tolls for other purposes, such as mass transit.

Mr. Ronan warned that if the decision is allowed to stand, "the future viability of the Port Authority and its utility as a major interstate agency would be seriously impaired."

Mr. Ronan also said the Port Authority commissioners have directed the staff to proceed with plans for the Port Authority Trans-Hudson rail line extension to Plainfield and other mass transit projects that were to be funded by the May 1975 toll increase on Hudson River bridges and tunnels.

"The objective," he said, "is to come forward as quickly as practicable with solid projects, realistic estimates of cost and a realizable schedule for their implementation."

He asked Gov. Byrne to withdraw his veto because of this work being done, but Gov. Byrne called the response "inadequate." The governor said he would continue to restrict the agency's actions until the project schedule is complete and adopted by the authority.

Reservoir probes continue

LEBANON (AP) — A small submarine continued searching yesterday for the bodies of six persons believed drowned in Round Valley Reservoir, but state police said the crew has found only two old sneakers.

The submarine team, which began searching the 185-foot deep reservoir last week, was hampered by five-to six foot visibility, a state police spokesman said. "The problem is murky water. Visibility is very poor."

The sneakers had "no tie-in with the drawings," he said.

Identification experts had checked to see if the sneakers belonged to any of the six men who have died in the reservoir in the past four years.

The spokesman said the search would be discontinued until Monday. If none of the bodies is found, the submarine team will stop search Tuesday, he said.

International Underwater Contractors Inc. of New York began the search last week. The company was called in after state police scuba divers were unable to reach the bottom of the reservoir.

New lottery game planned

TRENTON (AP) — The state yesterday announced a new lottery game that will allow players to pick their own four-digit number for a weekly drawing.

Acting Lottery Director Gloria A. Decker said the weekly version of the daily Pick-it game in which players pick their own three-digit numbers will produce bigger prizes.

She said players in the "Pick-4" game will be able to bet between 50 cents and $5 on each ticket.

Mrs. Decker said there will be two ways to win in the four digit game.

The second way to win is to match the winning number in any combination.

Unlike the daily three-digit Pick-it game there will be no payoffs for front and back pairs of numbers.

Mrs. Decker noted that the daily numbers game marked its second anniversary May 22 and that in two years it has sold about $150 million tickets.

She said the new game will go on sale June 9 and the first "Pick-4" drawing will take place June 16 with regular weekly drawings to follow every Thursday.

The prize payout will be determined by the amount bet on the weekly winning number, Mrs. Decker said. The state expects substantially larger prize payouts for individual winning tickets than in the Pick-it game in which the average winning 50-cent ticket has paid $86.

Since there will be 24 different possible ways to win on a combination bet the payout for those prizes will be a 24th of the prize for a full straight bet.

Sheeran: Protect college students

TRENTON (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner James J. Sheeran said he wants guidelines established for the sale of life insurance to college students.

A public hearing has been scheduled June 30 on the proposed regulations to prevent "an unwarranted implication that a particular insurance policy has the approval of a college or that it's sale is somehow officially related to the college," Sheeran said.

Income tax dominant issue of gubernatorial campaign

By CARL ZEITZ

TRENTON (AP) — The future of Democratic Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, continuance of the year-old state income tax, and chances for the New Jersey Republican party to reclaim its lost political punch await a decision in New Jersey's primary election Tuesday.

A campaign that began as soon as the curtain came down on the 1976 election has seen the first use of television advertising in a New Jersey primary contest and the accumulation of massive financial debts by many of the candidates.

Byrne, suffering the lowest approval rating of any governor in the modern history of the state and blamed by opponents for the unpopular income tax, is fighting a multi-candidate challenge in the Democratic party. In all, 10 Democrats are seeking the nomination with six of them past or present officeholders.

On the Republican side, two of the GOP's ablest state legislators are the major contenders for the nomination for governor in a field of four candidates.

Democrats and Republicans alike agree that the GOP candidate initially will be the heavy favorite to win in November once the primary is past.

The overriding issue in the campaign is the tax because it was adopted with a clause providing for its expiration on June 30, 1978 unless extended by the next legislature.

On the Democratic side Byrne staunchly defends the tax he signed into law. He says it could be better and he would try to improve it in a second term.

Most of his opponents disagree.

Among the major Democratic candidates, positions boil down to outright opposition or lukewarm endorsement of the income tax and pledges to sharply revise the program.

All four Republicans have taken an anti-tax stance, including the two key GOP candidates, Sen. Raymond Bateman and Assemblyman Thomas Kean. Neither voted for the present tax although both voted for other income tax legislation in the past.

Byrne's future looked bleak in January. Almost no one in his party thought he could win the nomination.

The governor's chances have improved measurably since his formal announcement of candidacy in late April.

He is using the advantages of incumbency, some say for the first time, and appeared to be the chief beneficiary of an upset in local politics in Jersey City.

The city is the political heart of Hudson County, renowned for generations of boss rule under Frank "I am the Law" Hague and John V. Kenny, and still considered the surest Democratic stronghold in the state.

Reform Mayor Paul T. Jordan of Jersey City announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination in February, counting on his hand-picked successor to keep City Hall and thus secure his political base in Hudson County.

Jordan's man lost on May 10 to a candidate backed by the remnants of the old-line Hudson Democratic machine. The mayor found his support crumbling around the state and endorsed Byrne a week later.

The end of Jordan as the dominant force in Hudson pushed another candidate to the forefront.

Former Sen. Ralph DeRose, who finished third to Byrne in 1973, entered the contest this year with the personal blessing of Harry Lerner, chief of the Essex County (Newark) Democratic organization and the last certifiable big city political boss in New Jersey.

DeRose is now backed by the resurgent Hudson regulars as well as Essex. It is a combination that for years has been considered unbeatable in the New Jersey Democratic party.

This year, however, with the field so big and the conservative DeRose pictured by liberals as a certain loser in November, no one has conceded his selection in June despite the Hudson-Essex axis.

Although Jordan backed Byrne, many of his supporters failed to follow and were moving in the direction of two other candidates, former Commissioner of Labor and Industry Joseph Hoffman and congressman Robert Roe of Passaic County.

Hoffman, a favorite of organized labor, left the Byrne administration last September under duress when it became apparent his ambition was to unseat his boss, the governor.

Roe, chief sponsor of the 1976 and 1977 federal public works laws, also has substantial labor backing and has run up a $359,000 debt, including $140,000 in loans from a bank founded by his brother. His debt is half the outstanding campaign obligation of all the Democrats and Republicans.

One other Democrat, Camden County congressman James Florio, an ambitious 39-year-old who has never lost an election, is rated a possible chance of winning.

On the Republican side Bateman, a public relations executive and veteran of the legislature, started early putting together a traditional campaign built on key party endorsements and support from recognized GOP financial angels.

He failed to take into account the possibility that Kean, the millionaire scion of a politically inclined family with big banking and public utility holdings, would enter the race and spend his own money. Kean also gathered a lot of political credits last year when he guided former President Gerald F. Ford's campaign to its only victory in a major Northwestern state.

To date the Keans have put $140,000 into the campaign. Much of it went for an early television blitz that narrowed the race. Kean says it put him in the lead and Bateman admits his early big advantage has disappeared.

As the contest moved into its final week, the consensus among the politicians and the people who watch them was that the GOP and Democratic races were too close to call.

Reading inadequacy cuts graduating class in half

CHICAGO (AP) — More than half the eighth-graders in an inner-city school district are being held back from graduation because their superintendent insists that they be able to read at a sixth-grade level.

Superintendent Albert A. Briggs of District 9 said 678 of the 1,289 eighth-graders in 16 schools failed to score at least 6.5, the high school cutoff level he imposed.

Briggs said yesterday that there had been virtually no adverse reaction from parents to his edict of a year ago. The district includes many high-poverty neighborhoods.

Officials say the national norm is 9.8 on the reading comprehension portion of the Iowa Test of Basic Skills. Last year the average for eighth-graders throughout Chicago was 6.8.

Briggs said he originally announced his reading-score standard after examining reading levels at Crane High School, the largest in District 9.

He said he was shocked to find that none could read at the high school freshman level and only 18 per cent had scores at the seventh-grade or eighth-grade level. Many could not read well enough to function in daily life, he said.

"I have been talking with parents all year. I didn't just spring all this on them," Briggs said. "They were overwhelmingly with me.

"We have 'Project Higher Achievement' going and are getting more parent involvement. The parents are trying to help."

Briggs said those pupils who will graduate have made substantial progress because their parents have become involved in their education and the pupils have been encouraged to feel worthwhile.

"The theme we want our teachers to stress is 'You can do it,' " he said.

Briggs has set up a center where 141 eighth-graders now are getting special work to raise their reading levels. He plans to test these pupils after 10 weeks of school this fall and those with 6.5 reading scores will be sent to Crane in the middle of the term.

He said he will raise his standard even higher — to 7.0 for the Class of 1978.

RUMSON OAKS

PATIO HOMES IN RUMSON?

In recent days a great deal of interest has been generated in the Rumson area by Gene Miltenberger's proposal to construct "patio homes" on the Lovett tract on Ridge Road, Rumson, but unfortunately it has also produced some misinformation. By answering here the questions which have been asked most often, everyone interested will be equally privy to what is going on, and will not have to rely on rumors.

Q. What are "patio homes"?

A.: "Patio homes" are detached, single-family dwelling units located on individual parcels of ground, but part of a larger residential community of similar homes.

Q.: Are these the same as condominiums?

A.: No. Condominium dwelling units have common walls and roofs, whereas patio homes are each separate, privately-owned homes.

Q.: Will there be an association of homeowners?

A.: Yes, such an association is necessary to own and manage the grounds, roads and landscaped common areas.

Q.: But aren't the houses connected?

A.: Not really, although they are designed to give that appearance. Between each home is a trellis-covered patio, thus the name "patio homes".

Q.: How large will each unit be?

A.: The 4 models will range from 1200 to 1600 square feet on the ground floor, with 3 of the models having additional second-floor space available if desired.

Q.: What will a patio home cost?

A.: Prices will range from about $50,000 to $85,000, with the average cost probably about $65,000.

Q.: How will Rumson Oaks affect taxes in Rumson?

A.: Taxes should be lowered because about $200,000 in net revenue will be generated for the town.

Q.: How can this be?

A.: Because Rumson Oaks will be restricted to persons 52 and over, with no children under 18 permitted, and thus not a penny more need be spent for school costs.

A.: No, for patio homes are consistent with Rumson's image as a fine community of privately owned, well-kept, single-family dwellings. By providing smaller, high-quality homes, less expensive to maintain, many residents will be able to continue to live in Rumson when they reach the "empty nest" stage of their lives, and many who have already been forced to move to condominiums in surrounding towns will be able to move back.

Q.: Who will build Rumson Oaks?

A.: Eugene F. Miltenberger, Jr., for 30 years a builder of quality homes in Rumson, Fair Haven, Locust and surrounding towns.

Q.: Where is Rumson Oaks to be built?

A.: On the 26-acre Lovett tract on Ridge Road, across from the 75-acre Fair Haven Fields Park, where Rumson, Fair Haven and Little Silver adjoin.

Q.: How many entrances and roads will there be?

A.: There will only be two entrances, both on Ridge Road, with connecting internal streets privately maintained.

Q.: What approvals are required before Rumson Oaks can be built?

A.: As only single-family houses on 1½ acre lots are permitted in the zone where the property is located, the Board of Adjustment must grant a variance. Before it acts, the Planning Board must also give site plan approval and report to the Board of Adjustment concerning the project.

Q.: Do I have any say in whether Rumson Oaks will be built?

A.: Most certainly. Although the Board of Adjustment is guided by legal precedent in reaching its decision, both it and the Planning Board will be interested in what the people of Rumson want for their town. If only those opposed speak out (and there will be some), the Boards will not get a true idea of how Rumsonites feel, thus those who recognize the need and place for Rumson Oaks must also be willing to voice their opinion.

Q.: When will I have a chance to be heard?

A.: At the Planning Board meeting scheduled for next Monday, June 6th, at 8 p.m. at the Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High School, or later at the Board of Adjustment hearings.

Patio homes is an idea whose time has come for Rumson if its residents are willing to recognize it. Rumson Oaks has been designed as a community in keeping with Rumson's character which will meet the needs of all residents, either in providing housing for them or in the form of a valuable ratable.

SINGING TONIGHT — New Hope, an internationally known musical group based in Los Angeles, will present a concert at 8:30 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church, Red Bank.

Few voters know names of aspirants for governor

As the Tuesday primary election approaches, more than half of all New Jersey residents have heard or read something about the primary, but far fewer can name any of the gubernatorial hopefuls.

The latest Eagleton Poll, just concluded last week, finds that 51 percent of those questioned report having heard or read anything about the primary, which will decide the major party candidates for governor and other offices in the upcoming November elections.

This figure represents a substantial increase of 15 percent from mid-April, when a similar poll showed 36 percent of those questioned reported having read or heard something about the primary. Even more significant, this 51 percent figure is about twice as high as that found at a similar point in the 1973 primary campaign, when only 26 percent of the state's residents reported having read or heard something about the election.

The increased public awareness of this primary election does not carry over to knowledge of the gubernatorial hopefuls. When asked to name the Democratic and Republican candidates in the race for governor, 55 percent could not name any of the Democratic candidates and 83 percent could not name any of the Republican candidates.

Among the Democratic contenders, Governor Byrne is by far the best known, though only 34 percent of New Jerseyans name him as a candidate. The second most frequently named Democratic candidate is U.S. Congressman Robert Roe, cited by 13 percent of the state's residents.

The recognition rates of other Democrats hopefuls are all below 10 percent. James Florio and Ralph DeRose are named by 6 percent of the New Jersey electorate, followed by Joseph Hoffman, who is mentioned by 4 percent of all New Jerseyans. The remaining Democratic contenders are each named by fewer than 1 percent.

Best known among the Republicans in the race is State Sen. Raymond Bateman, who is named by 12 percent of the state's voters. Thomas Kean is second with 9 percent mentioning him. These two are followed by Robert Sarcone and William Angus who are each named by 1 percent of all New Jerseyans.

Asked to explain the difference between public awareness of the 1973 primary and the 1977 primary, poll analyst Scott Taylor singled out the competitiveness of this year's election along with the candidates' use of campaign advertisements on radio and television.

"At this point in the 1973 campaign, only the Republican primary winner seemed to be in doubt," said Taylor, "since Byrne was the clear front runner among the Democratic contenders. This year, it's a horse race in both parties, and as a result the campaign has generated a good deal more enthusiasm."

"Furthermore," Taylor noted, "this is the first year in which candidates for governor have invested a substantial portion of their campaign funds on television and radio advertisements, and many New Jerseyans have heard them." Poll results indicate that 44 percent of New Jersey's eligible voters report having seen TV advertisements for a candidate, and 32 percent say they have heard radio advertisements for candidates.

Among the Republicans, Bateman is named by 15 percent of those who have seen advertisements, as against 6 percent of those who haven't. And for Kean the recognition rate is 14 percent among those exposed to advertisements, and 4 percent among those not exposed.

The Eagleton Poll is conducted regularly throughout the year by the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University. The latest poll was conducted between May 14 and 24, when a scientifically selected sample of 1207 adults, 18 years and older were interviewed by telephone.

Archeology, dig offered by college

LINCROFT — Brookdale Community College will offer an opportunity for novices to learn about, observe, and dig in a working archeological excavation. Lectures on the subject will be given from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Tuesday evenings from July 12 through Aug. 2. Field trips to the site will take place on Saturdays, July 16 and 23.

The area being excavated is a small campsite which has been inhabited by people of various cultures since 6000 B.C. Many objects have been uncovered there, including items used by Europeans in trade with the Indians, and recently a Paleo Indian point. Research is presently underway on food remains from early levels. The course is an introduction to American archeology which will provide participants with an appreciation of American cultural heritage.

John Cavallo will instruct. Mr. Cavallo's writings have been published in the New Jersey Archeological Society Bulletin. He was responsible for the design and the graphics of the "Indian Arts of the Americas" exhibit at the Monmouth Museum.

Expect 950,000 voters to go to N.J. polls

TRENTON (AP) — A neutral political observer predicted yesterday that next week's New Jersey primary election would bring a record number of voters to the polls.

Steven Salmore, polling director for the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University, said he expected 950,000 voters to cast ballots in the Republican and Democratic primaries, which would be an increase of 13 per cent over turnout of 838,000 voters in 1973, the last gubernatorial election year in New Jersey.

Salmore's prediction runs counter to the views of some persons involved in the campaign, particularly on the Democratic side.

There is general agreement among observers and politicians that the Republican turnout will increase by 10 per cent or more over 1973, when 381,000 votes were cast.

But some predictions in the Democratic race anticipate a low turnout, possibly under the 456,000 votes castin 1973.

One Democratic candidate, Congressman James J. Forio of Camden County, says he expects up to 550,000 Democrats will vote next Tuesday.

Salmore said heightened interest in the 1977 campaign would bring more voters to the polls. He said in 1973 26 per cent of the Eagleton poll respondents were aware of the primary election by May that year.

He said this year 51 per cent said they knew about the upcoming elections.

Salmore said increased public awareness could be attributed to the highly competitive Democratic contest and to the use of television advertising for the first time in a New Jersey primary campaign.

He also noted that the number of registered voters has jumped from about 3.5 million in 1973 to nearly 3.7 million now.

Salmore predicted there would be 530,000 Democratic votes and 420,000 Republican ballots cast in the election.

In other political developments Thursday Assemblyman Thomas Kean, R-Essex, who is trying for the Republican nomination for governor, got some kind words from the man whose campaign he directed last Fall in New Jersey.

A spokesman for Gerald R. Ford said the former president was "very pleased to know Tom is seeking the office because of the personal assistance he gave to his campaign last year and the great job he did."

Kean directed the 1976 Ford campaign to victory in New Jersey, the only major northeastern state won by the former president.

But the Ford aide, Bob Barrett, said in a telephone interview from Palm Springs, Calif. that the former president has a long standing policy against making endorsements in local and state Republican races.

Kean did pick up an endorsement Thursday from former Bergen County GOP Chairman Walter Jones.

Jones said he chose Kean over his leading opponent, Somerset County Sen. Raymond Bateman, because Bateman is supported by another former Bergen Republican chief, Anthony Statile.

Statile is attempting a comeback this year to regain control of the important Bergen Republican organization. He is supporting Bateman while Kean has the backing of Richard Vander Plaat, the outgoing Bergen GOP chairman, who is Statile's chief rival.

Jones said, "I believe that Ray Bateman is insensitive to the Republican party needs of Bergen County. Tony Statile is a divisive force in the Republican party."

Bateman issued a statement charging that the Democratic administration in Trenton has cut career and vocational education budgets and thus "jeopardized the productive future of New Jersey's students."

On the Democratic side Byrne picked up an endorsement from William Macchi, the loser in last month's mayoral election in Jersey City.

Macchi was the candidate of Mayor Paul T. Jordan and when he lost Jordan's campaign for governor started to crumble. The mayor withdrew from the contest and threw his support to Byrne.

Congressman Robert Roe of Passaic County issued a statement noting that Byrne was signing the Atlantic City casino legislation Thursday.

Roe said the signing was "the first step in a long and hazardous journey," and called for state government to involve itself at all levels to see that the casinos are run honestly and that the interests of the tourist industry and the residents of Atlantic City are balanced.

Roe did not attend the casino bill signing, but his chief campaign strategist, Daniel Horgan, was in Atlantic City with more than 100 sign-waving senior citizens, high school students and young women, trying to attract attention from television cameras covering the event.

Roe also had three airplanes towing advertising banners circling the ceremonies. Emory Zold, another Democratic candidate had one airplane and for the Republicans, Bateman had a large balloon and some young women.

Attendance Poll

Kennedy 1st, Bedell last

Register Statehouse Bureau

TRENTON — Assemblyman Brian T. Kennedy, R-Monmouth, scored the best rating and Sen. Eugene J. Bedell, D-Monmouth, earned the worst for attendance by Monmouth County legislators of their committee meetings during 1976, according to a study prepared by New Jersey Common Cause and released yesterday.

Mr. Kennedy, of Wall Township, was given a perfect score of 100 per cent for attending all nine meetings of the Appropriations Committee last year. He was one of 20 members of the Assembly and three senators to post a 100 per cent score.

Mr. Bedell, of Keansburg, finished dead last among Monmouth County legislators and second last among all senators with an attendance record of 58 per cent for the two committees he serves on — the Senate Labor, Industry and Professions Committee, of which he is chairman, and the Appropriations Committee. Common Cause reported he attended 18 of the 31 meetings of the two committees. The only senator who attended fewer meetings, percentage-wise, was Sen. Anthony Imperiale, I-Essex, who attended only five of the 17 meetings of the two committees on which he served for a score of 29 per cent.

Other Monmouth County legislators were rated as follows:

— Assemblyman Walter J. Kozloski, D-Monmouth, 94 per cent for attending 17 of 18 meetings of the Assembly Agriculture and Environment Committee. He was excused from the one meeting he missed.

— Assemblyman William E. Flynn, D-Monmouth, 92 per cent for attending 11 of the 12 meetings of the County Government and Municipoal Government committees.

— Assemblywoman Marie A. Muhler, R-Monmouth, 92 per cent for attending 11 out of 12 meetings of the Assembly Education Committee.

— Sen. Herbert J. Buehler, D-Monmouth, 85 per cent for attending 23 of 27 meetings of the Senate Transportation and Communications and State Government committees. He is chairman of the Transportation Committee.

— Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth, 83 per cent for attending 20 of 24 meetings of the Assembly Taxation and Appropriations Committee. He is chairman of the Taxation Committee.

— Sen. Alfred N. Beadleston,l R-Monmouth, 78 per cent for attending 14 of 18 meetings of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

— Assemblyman Anthony M. Villane Jr., R-Monmouth, 75 per cent for attending 12 of 16 meetings of the Assembly Labor, Industry and Professions Committee.

Say chief beat wife

MORRISTOWN (AP) — Stanhope Police Chief John R. Curtin is scheduled to be arraigned here Monday on charges he beat his wife during a marital argument in which she shot him in April.

A Morris County grand jury indicted Curtin for atrocious assault and battery yesterday. The 42-year-old chief is charged with hitting his wife, Maureen, on the face and arm.

The grand jury declined to indict Mrs. Curtin for shooting the chief in a hand with his service revolver during the spat. The panel said the shooting was accidental.

Curtin has been chief in Stanhope, a Sussex County community, for nine years. He immediately was suspended with pay until a special borough meeting Wednesday to decide whether to reinstate him or continue the suspension until the criminal case is completed.

Drowning victim's body is located

BELVIDERE (AP) — Authorities have found the body of a Phillipsburg teen-ager who had been missing since Sunday when the canoe he was riding in overturned in the Delaware River.

Authorities said the body of Alex Levy, 18, was discovered in the river Wednesday about 200 yards from where the canoe overturned in this Warren County community.

Board won't tell the why of firing principal

By DAVID J. GRAULICH

HIGHLANDS — The Henry Hudson Regional Board of Education has formally refused a demand by Atlantic Highlands Mayor Richard C. Stryker to publicly explain its role in the controversial firing of school principal Louis G. Alexander.

In a two-page letter hand-delivered to the mayor's office around 10:30 a.m. yesterday, the board told Mr. Stryker "it will not accede to your request" that the board appear before the Atlantic Highlands council at a special meeting June 13. The letter was signed by board president John E. Schlapkohl.

The letter repeated the board's position that personnel matters couldn't be aired in public, and stressed the separation in powers between the school board and the council.

"The Board, as a whole, is both dismayed and concerned by your request," the letter said in part, continuing later: "Surely you are aware that the courts of this state have decreed that the legislative intent is clear that a school district of our type should be totally independent from intrusion by the municipal governing body."

Mr. Stryker said yesterday the board's action was "similar to what I expected," and that the council had taken its action "because we felt the citizens of Atlantic Highlands were entitled to the information" surrounding Mr. Alexander's dismissal.

"If it seems the board won't meet with mayor and council, the only alternative is for the replacement of members of the board one by one in the next election," Mr. Stryker said.

The mayor said a decision would be made today if the special meeting will still be held to discuss Mr. Alexander's dismissal. He made the demand to the board during a regular council meeting on May 24.

The wording of the letter's fifth paragraph was significant, in that it apparently acknowledged six reasons for Mr. Alexander's dismissal. The six reasons, made public by Mr. Alexander's attorney, Michael Schottland, at a May 18 school board meeting, range from Mr. Alexander's alleged failure to conduct teacher evaluations to his supposed lack of "visibility" in the school. The school board had previously made no comment on the six reasons.

School superintendant Joseph L. Isch yesterday declined to comment on the implication of letter's fifth paragraph, saying, "I'll let the paragraph stand as is. If that's your interpretation, that's fine." He said the board considers the matter closed and that a search procedure for a new principal had already begun, with advertisements taken this week in The New York Times and The Newark Star-Ledger.

Patricia Gross, a school board member whose husband, Paul J. Gross, is an Atlantic Highlands councilman, said yesterday the school board was unanimous in its backing of the letter. She said the general content of the letter was discussed at a closed meeting Tuesday night, after which a draft was drawn up by the board attorney, Paul Kalac. The final letter was read over telephone to each board member for approval Wednesday night, Mrs. Gross said.

"I am still in favor of Mr. Alexander," said Mrs. Gross, who voted on May 19 for the principal along with board member Joseph B. Hawley. "But we don't feel we have to explain our actions in any way to the council or to the mayor. There's nothing the council can do."

Mrs. Gross said the six reasons referred to in the letter "are the only reasons (For Mr. Alexander's dismissal). I've heard other people say there is some reason we're afraid to tell people. There is nothing else."

Mrs. Gross, who originally voted against Mr. Alexander, said she reversed her vote because "the six reasons aren't sufficient after the community support shown for Mr. Alexander." She described her experience at the tumultuous May 19 school board meeting as being "a very frightening evening. It took me over a week to come down from it."

The school board first voted on April 20 to dismiss Mr. Alexander. It voted again to fire him in an unusual action taken on May 18 after an enormous show of support for Mr. Alexander from students, parents, and teachers.

Mr. Alexander plans to appeal his dismissal, either through the courts or directly with the state commissioner of education.

The complete text of the school board's letter to Mayor Stryker follows:

Dear Mayor Stryker:

I am in receipt of your letter of May 26, 1977 regarding the Principal of the Henry Hudson Regional High School. The letter has also been reviewed by all members of the Board of Education. Needless to say, the Board, as a whole, is both dismayed and concerned by your request.

The "problem," as you phrased it, has been handled by the Board of Education in accordance with the pertinent statutory procedures, mandates of the Commissioner of Education and administrative rules and regulations issued by the State Department of Education.

From statements made to the press by the Principal and his attorney, the Board expects that this matter may ultimately be litigated. Consequently, it has no intention to air this matter any place other than the proper forum.

At its meeting of May 18, 1977, the Board made every attempt to comply specifically with the provisions of the Open Public Meetings Act and still remain within the ambit of the various decisions of the Commissioner of Education which clearly indicate that matters of this type should not be aired at a public meeting, even if the person directly affected so requests. The Board is of the opinion that it complied with both.

In any event, it is difficult to conceive that the Mayor and Council are unaware of the Board's reasons for the action taken in this matter, particularly in view of the fact that the Principal elected to make those reasons public at the Board's meeting of May 18, 1977.

What is of major concern to the Board is the fact that the Mayor and Council would attempt to intrude in the affairs of the Board of Education by requesting the Superintendent and Board President to attend a workshop session to discuss a matter which is solely educational in nature.

Surely you are aware that the Courts of this State have decreed that the legislative intent is clear that a school district of our type should be totally independent from intrusion by the municipal governing body.

That same legislative scheme which dictates the complete separation of the school district from the municipal governing body has, for one of its principal objects, the very sound public policy of keeping politics out of the administration of local public education as far as possible and to preclude political involvement.

The Board feels strongly about the foregoing. Consequently, it will not accede to your request.

Very truly yours,
John E. Schlapkohl
President
Henry Hudson Regional Board of Education

If kids were councilmen, there would be better . . .

By ROBIN GOLDSTEIN

WEST LONG BRANCH — If kids were councilmen in West Long Branch, there would be better recreation programs, more traffic lights, cable TV — but no rock concerts at Franklin Park.

These were some of the — wishful — changes that 13 eighth grade students from the Frank Antonides School made when they switched places with borough officials last night as part of Youth in Government Day.

The students ran a highly decorous mock council meeting immediately after council adjourned its slightly less decorous real one.

"Where are you going to get the millions of dollars you need for all these projects?" queried Mrs. Joan Day, mother of "Councilman" Ronald T. Day.

"We'll float a bond issue," Dani L. Weinstein, another student councilperson, replied, practically.

As student mayor, Joseph J. Perri, would allow no breach of council rules — not even for his counterpart, Mayor Henry J. Shaheen.

"Can I say a word?" Mayor Shaheen called out from the audience during the new business portion of the meeting.

"You'll haved to wait until we open the meeting to the public," Mayor Perri reprimanded.

As councilpersons, Mr. Day, Ms. Weinstein, Anthony J. D'Apolito, Debra R. Furman, Alan J. Langlois, John K. Park and Kenneth L. Walters Jr. all introduced resolutions for council consideration. Gerard F. Davies, as borough clerk, kept the meeting moving smoothly. Assisting were John W. Primavera as judge, Dennis M. Conway as police chief, Ronald J. Guidetti as fire chief, and Joseph C. Divento Jr. as director of public works.

A plan to improve summer recreation programs, another to build a recreational complex, the cleaning and restocking with fish of Franklin Lake, institution of cable TV in the borough, and placement of traffic lights at Locust Ave. and Broadway and Locust Ave. and Wall St. were among the suggestions to receive "council's" nod.

A proposal to hold monthly rock concerts at Franklin Lake was voted down overwhelmingly, however.

The students and their adviser, Michael Galbavy, spent all of yesterday examining the workings of the borough. They went to municipal court in the morning, toured Monmouth College and Electronic Associates Inc., visited both firehouses and rode a fire truck.

They capped the day with dinner at the Old Orchard Inn with borough officials, after the council meeting which was held early in the evening for Youth in Government Day.

The student councilmen, the mayor, and four other students acting in various official borough capacities ran their own mock council meeting after yesterday's real one. "Councilman" Alan J. Langlois, 14, left, doesn't blink an eye as the gavel hits the block.

By BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — A Superior Court jury is slated to begin deliberations today in the atrocious assault trial of two of the owners of Shadowbrook Restaurant, Rt. 35, Shrewsbury.

Robert Zweben, 28, and Samuel "Sandy" Zweben, 35, are charged with assaulting a producer of dinner theaters for the restaurant. In the incident which allegedly occurred in the Zwebens' office at the restaurant, on April 30, 1975, Edward Schiff of Brick Township, the theatrical producer, suffered a broken nose and other head injuries.

The trial which is being conducted before Superior Court Judge Louis R. Aikins, began Tuesday.

Yesterday, the Zweben brothers each testified in his own defense. Both acknowledged that a scuffle took place in their office early in the afternoon of April 30, 1975. However, the two brothers insisted that Schiff was the attacker, and any injuries he received were the result of their attempts to repel his assault.

Both brothers said that Schiff came to the office enraged because of $20 deducted from his pay for the previous week. The $20 was deducted to compensate for a Tensor lamp and a candelabra that Schiff allegedly borrowed to use as stage props in a production of "I Do, I Do" and which now allegedly were missing.

The brothers acknowledged that after Schiff threatened to take his theatrical company out of the restaurant, Robert Zweben told a secretary to stop payment on the $1,625 check issued to Schiff the previous day for the company's performances the previous week.

Robert Zweben testified that Schiff then said he would stay if the brothers increased his share of the dinner theater proceeds from $4 to $5 a head and if they assumed the costs of royalties and theater advertising which until then had been paid by Schiff.

"I said, 'Ed, (Schiff) you're nuts' at this point Ed grabbed me and slammed me up against the wall," Robert Zweben testified. "I bounced off the wall. Sandy got up from his desk and tried to pull him off me. Ed pushed him and released his hold on me."

Robert Zweben said, however, that after a brief conversation Schiff struck Robert Zweben on the side of the head, pushed him up against a wall and began repeatedly banging his head on the wall and then the floor while choking him and repeating threats to kill him.

Robert Zweben said that during the scuffle he did strike Schiff on the nose, kicked him and pushed him.

Sandy Zweben testified that he came to his brother's aid, and that between them they managed to push Schiff off Robert Zweben. The brothers said they then escorted Schiff from the office and down a back staircase to the parking lot.

Both brothers denied under cross examination by Donald W. Peppler Jr., assistant county prosecutor, that Robert Zweben attacked Schiff, had him in a headlock, fell to the floor with him, and that the Zwebens then attacked Schiff when he tried to stand up.

The brothers also denied that Robert Zweben pushed Schiff down the back stairway or that Schiff fell down several steps to a landing.

The brothers and a former bartender at the Shadowbrook all testified that they saw no injuries to Schiff after the scuffle except for a slight bleeding from the nose.

Robert Zweben also insisted that he suffered bruises and bumps to his head and scratches and irritation to his neck.

State sues to move sludge 106 miles out

By SHERRY CONOHAN
Register Statehouse Bureau

TRENTON — The State Department of the Public Advocate filed suit in federal court yesterday seeking to move all sewage sludge dumping in the ocean off the New Jersey coast to a temporary dumping site some 106 miles out to sea off the continental shelf.

Contending that pollution from sludge dumping is contaminating the state's coastal waters, hurting both the fishing industry and public recreational interests, the suit demands an end to dumping of sludge in the present federally designated dumping site 12 miles off Sandy Hook.

Public Advocate Stanley C. Van Ness, in filing the suit, said the department fully supports the 1981 federally imposed deadline for an end to all waste dumping in the ocean, but fears four and a half years is too long to wait.

"Last summer's fish kill and reports of contaminated waters off the coast this year lead us to believe that the adverse effects of continued sludge dumping are potentially disastrous to our coastal resources," he said. "We are also aware that as a practical matter, land-based sludge dumping alternatives may not be ready by 1981."

The issuance of an injunction against close off shore dumping might spur earlier development of land disposal methods, he added.

Names as defendants in the suit are the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle and Region II EPA Administrator Gerald M. Hanslaer.

The plaintiffs, in addition to the Public Advocate, include the Belford Seafood Co-operative Association, a marketing firm of 60 fishermen and boat owners headquartered in Belford, The Fishermen's Dock Co-operative Inc., a similar firm of 30 fishermen and boat owners headquartered in Point Pleasant Beach, the New Jersey Hotel-Motel Association, Lawrence and Katherine Kiebitt, owners of the White Sand Beach Motel in South Seaside Park, the American Littoral Society and Eugene W. Geer, a sports diver from Matawan.

Mr. Van Ness said the department decided to go to court after a six-month effort to have the EPA conduct an environmental study of the feasibility of the 106-mile site proved unsuccessful. The suit asks that the EPA be compelled to designate a temporary dumping site 106 miles out to sea and charges that the agency has "violated" and "ignored" a four-year-old federal mandate by continuing to dump sludge in the New York Bight 12 miles off Sandy Hook.

An estimated eight million wet tons of sludge are now being deposited annually at the site off Sandy Hook, according to Mr. Van Ness. He said the municipalities generating that sludge in the New York and New Jersey metropolitan areas are expected to produce at least twice that volume of sludge by 1981.

"More and more sludge is being dumped into New Jersey waters and more and more evidence is accumulating that this sludge is contaminating coastal waters and marine life," he said. "We believe the continuing degradation and pollution is hurting one of the richest fisheries in the United States as well as our public recreational interests and tourist enterprises. The dumping which is taking place just 12 miles from our beaches ought to be stopped now."

The suit alleges that organic and inorganic contaminants in the sludge, including pathogenic bacteria, toxic and heavy metals and great volumes of nutrients, are causing the destruction of marine life, particularly shellfish. It notes that one large area off the coast already has been closed to shellfishing by the Federal Food and Drug Administration and contends that the clockwise motion of the lower ocean currents off the coast is likely to carry sludge effluents to still healthy shellfish harvesting areas and to New Jersey bathing beaches.

Such contamination, it asserts, could — despite processing — have the potential of resulting in such diseases as hepatitis in epidemic proportion.

The filing of the suit came just two days after the Public Advocate's office, the state Department of Environmental Protection and Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., called for moving the present sludge dumping site off Sandy Hook to a deepwater area 106 miles offshore during a public hearing held by the EPA in Toms River.

The hearing centered on proposals under consideration by the EPA to move both the Sandy Hook sludge dumping site and another used by Philadelphia, located in the Atlantic 40 miles east of the Delaware-Maryland state line, farther offshore as an interim measure until all ocean dumping is scheduled to end in 1981.

Assistant Deputy Public Advocates Sandra T. Ayres, who represented the Department of Public Advocate at the hearing, and R. William Potter are handling the suit for the department.

Holmdel postpones Bell decision

HOLMDEL — The Planning Board postponed a decision on two proposed projects by Bell Telephone Laboratories until it can inspect the project sites.

Acting on a suggestion by member Ralph Green, the board said it would visit the Bell Lab grounds off Crawfords Corner Road this Sunday morning before ruling on the two projects. The company revealed its plans last night to build a 30-foot diameter aluminum dish antennae for satellite transmission, and an experimental project known as an "ocean simulating facility."

The planning board expressed concern that the projects could be eyesores to neighbors, and that the antennae could reflect glaring sunlight onto nearby homes. Chairman Henry Parcell said that after the board's Sunday site inspection, a ruling could be made by June 16.

Armand Nardi, a Bell Labs supervisor, said after the meeting the proposed antenna would be used for experimental voice transmissions to the Comsat space satellite and, if approved, could be in operation by October. The "ocean simulating facility would be in a 3½ foot underground trench and would test the strength of underwater cables, he said.

Mr. Nardi declined to estimate the costs of the two projects.

In other business, the board delayed action on a request by H.J.A. Associates, Edison, for a variance in a zoning ordinance. The company hopes to build a retail tire store and warehouse on a vacant lot near the Centerville School on Route 35, Holmdel. The lot is about 2 acres large, while the zoning ordinance requires at least five acres for such a project.

Mr. Parcell said the board would give the matter further study and would reconsider the matter at its next meeting July 7.

Tour of century homes Sunday

TOUR START — The fourth annual Red Bank tour of century homes starts at 2 p.m. Sunday from the Red Bank Woman's Club, 164 Broad St., the former Anthony Reckless mansion. There will be five homes on the tour, plus several others which will be designated as "Century Homes." In case of rain the tour will be June 12.

RED BANK — The borough's fourth annual tour of century homes will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday. (The rain date is June 12.)

This year, five homes, all well over 100 years old, will be open to the public. In addition, several other century homes which have been authenticated by the Historical Society, will be awarded brass Century Home plaques.

The tour will begin at the Red Bank Woman's Club, 164 Broad St., where participants will be given an illustrated tour booklet and map. At the end of the tour refreshments will be served at the Tower Hill Home of Mrs. Katharine Elkus White, former borough mayor, and former U.S. ambassador to Denmark.

Highlights of the tour will be the former home of Anthony Reckless (now the woman's club building); the Thomas Morford House, 89 W. Front St. and the old Episcopal Rectory at 31 Rector Place.

The Reckless mansion, built by the prominent Red Bank merchant, who also was the organizer of the New York & Long Branch Railroad, was once the centerpiece of one of the area's grandest estates.

The house is Italianate in style and was moved approximately 100 feet south of its original location to make room for the present Reckless Place which was carved out of the old estate in the early 1900's.

The Thomas Morford House, currently an interior decorating shop owned by Burson Wynkoop, is thought to have been an inn serving the borough's river trade from colonial times.

Old records indicate that the Morford family built a home at or near this spot prior to 1687. At that time there was a river inlet near the house referred to in old histories as "Jude's Gully."

Rector honored

The old rectory was built about 1866 by the first rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Front St., and shortly thereafter Rector Place was named in his honor.

The old rectory is acknowledged as one of the best examples of Gothic Revival architecture, and it is the only century home of brick construction.

Also on display will be the two-story Victorian-styled home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ansorge, 18-20 Spring St. It is one of the homes to receive a century plaque.

George Ward, tour chairman, said he hopes this year's event will spark further interest in restoring Red Bank's older houses.

"People," he said, "are beginning to realize that Red Bank's ornate old homes are a very important part of the town's visual character," Mr. Ward said, "at a time when people are flocking to restored villages, such as Mystic, Conn., we feel that Red Bank's old time flavor is one of our biggest attractions as a community."

ONCE AN INN? — The Thomas Morford House, 89 W. Front St., Red Bank, is an interior decorating shop, but once was thought to have been an inn serving the river trade during colonial times. The original home dates back to 1866.

VICTORIAN STYLE — This two-story Victorian home owned by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ansorge, 18-20 Spring St., is one of the new homes open on the tour this year, and is one of the homes to receive a Century Home plaque. The tour starts at 2 p.m. Sunday and ends with refreshments served at Elkridge, the Tower Hill home of Mrs. Katharine Elkus White, former U.S. ambassador to Denmark.

FIRST RECTORY — This building at 31 Rector Place, Red Bank, was built by the first rector of Trinity Episcopal Church about 1866. It will be on the fourth annual tour of borough Century Homes Sunday. It is the only century home in Red Bank of brick construction.

Gift of God defined

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing regarding your recent column "Ten Rules For Raising Children." I would appreciate an explanation regarding Rule No. 1: "Remember that a child is a gift from God . . ."

Do you truly believe that the good Lord sends a "gift" to the abusive mother, the prostitute, the unwed teenager, not to mention the millions of disadvantaged who can't feed the children they already have and certainly don't need another "gift"?

Do you also believe that He deprives the multitude of individuals who so dearly want this "gift"?

Perhaps you should set your readers straight and tell them that Nature plays the greatest role in determining who is to have and who is NOT to have children. I feel confident that God would not waste His time sending "gifts" to those who do not want them. — One Who Has Been There

Dear One: I do not believe God gift-wraps babies and sends them via United Parcel to individuals whom He wishes to favor.

I do believe, however, that the miracle of life in itself is proof that there is a God. Only a greater power could have dreamed up something so unique and so biologically perfect as Man and Woman.

Just imagine — of the billions of people who have been born since the beginning of time, no two humans were exactly alike!

When I say, "Remember that a child is a gift of God," I mean there is the magic of God in every human — yes, even if his mother was a prostitute, or unwed or disadvantaged. People need to be reminded that every new life is a miracle.

Dear Ann: Two weeks ago my husband came home from the office at 10:30 p.m. He is usually home by six. Wait, there's more. He was plastered.

His explanation: A man from the office went to celebrate the birth of a son after five girls. He lost track of time and ended up at a roadside tavern with five others — one, a blonde secretary with whom he "danced a lot."

Yesterday he came home and handed me a package, gift-wrapped. He said, "The nutty blonde gave this to me. Open it." It was a Don Ho album of love songs with a card that read, "This could be us if you weren't such a coward."

I handed him the note. He laughed and asked me to write her a thank-you note from the family.

Do you think something is going on that I'm too dumb to see? — The Mrs.

Dear Mrs.: Nothing is going on. Only a man with a crystal-clear conscience would hand his wife a gift from a woman and ask her to open it. Write the thank-you note from "the family." She'll pull in her net pronto.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers's booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Bay leaf has exciting flavor

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Calorie-free flavor. If there's one ingredient that meets that definition, it must be the bay leaf. Calories are next to nothing to begin with, but they're not even eaten. Most times bay leaves are removed or set aside . . . only the flavor remains.

Bay (or laurel) is a widely loved seasoning, starred frequently in many cultures, including African, Cuban, French, Greek, Italian, Jewish, Mexican, Polish and Spanish. Because bay leaves are such potent flavor-adders, most dishes use them with caution.

Today, however, we've got a trio of dishes where bay leaves are added with abandon, permeating lean meat, fish or poultry with flavor and perfuming the air with heady fragrance.

SLIM GOURMET

TURKISH-STYLE SKEWERED STEAK

1 and one-half pounds boneless sirloin of beef
5 tablespoons bottled Italian low-calorie salad dressing
12 bay leaves
2 lemons, thinly sliced
2 large onions, peeled and cut in chunks
3 green bell peppers, seeded and cut in 1-inch squares
2 large tomatoes, cut in chunks or 12 cherry tomatoes
1 tablespoon olive oil
optional: few drops smoke seasoning

Trim fat and cut meat into one and one-half inch cubes. Combine meat with salad dressing and smoke seasoning. Marinate at room temperature 30 minutes. Drain meat and reserve marinade.

Alternate onion chunks and pepper squares on another set of skewers.

Assemble tomato chunks or cherry tomatoes on a third set of skewers.

Combine the reserved marinade with one tablespoon olive oil and brush the marinade mixture over the vegetables.

Broil or barbecue the meat skewers and onion-pepper skewers about 4 to 5 inches from the heat source for about six minutes, turning frequently.

TURKISH-STYLE BAKED SEASTEAKS

7 or 8 bay leaves
1 or 2 garlic cloves, finely minced
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel (optional)
2 pounds fresh cod (or swordfish) steaks
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon olive oil (omit for swordfish) salt and coarse-ground pepper
paprika

Put the bay leaves, garlic and lemon peel under the fish steaks in a shallow nonstick oven-proof pan. Sprinkle fish with lemon juice, oil, (if used) salt, pepper and paprika. Bake in a preheated 425-degree oven only until fish flakes easily, 15 to 25 minutes, depending on thickness. Don't overcook! Baste occasionally with pan juices. Garnish with fresh lemon slices, if desired. Serves only eight, 197 calories each with cod, or 137 calories each with swordfish.

'Aida' inspires Egyptian make-up

OFF-STAGE make-up is the "Egyptian Look" created by Glenn Roberts of Elizabeth Arden with the hair style by the hair salon, as a suggestion for those attending "Aida" at the Garden State Arts Center.

STAGE MAKE-UP by Glenn Roberts of Elizabeth Arden for the New Jersey State Opera production of "Aida" at the Garden State Arts Center, June 11. Jewelry by Kenneth J. Lane.

America is in the throes of "Egyptiana" in fashion, home furnishings, the decorative arts, and now make-up.

On June 11 at the Garden State Arts Center in Holmdel, the summer season will open with a gala benefit of the opera "Aida" performed by the New Jersey State Opera, under the baton of Maestro Alfredo Silipigni. Dinner will be served first in a tented area for purchasers of benefit tickets. Honorary chairmen of the benefit are Gov. and Mrs. Brendan T. Byrne and Helen Boehm, chairman of Edward Marshall Boehm Inc., and Commissioners of the New Jersey Highway Authroity.

In honor of "Aida," Glenn Roberts of Elizabeth Arden has designed the stage make-up for the women's chorus, but he also has designed an "Egyptian Look" makeup which can easily be adapted by the women attending the opera performance. He softens the Egyptian eyes used for onstage make-up; he shortens the eye markings that go to the temples; and the Arden Hair Salon retains the braided hair, complete with the Egyptian fashion of holding the braids intact with gold.

The Egyptian jewelry is by Kenneth J. Lane.

The well-known fashion photographer, Ed Pfizenmaier, whose studio is in New York, is another New Jersey State Opera fan. He lives in Martinsville.

Views on impotency

By Dr. JAMES M. LONG

"Dear Dr. Long:
"Our problem is in the bedroom. Within the last year, my husband has shown little interest in our sex life. When I mention this to him he says that I don't turn him on and that I have changed. I think his feelings are related to my new view of myself as a woman. I refuse to be put into a role of the dutiful wife. I want my satisfaction in the marriage and especially in the bedroom.
"I really believe that my husband is finding it difficult to perform sexually. Could you discuss the male's sexual problems — especially impotency?"

A male's sexual performance is an indication of how he feels both about himself and his relationship with his partner. When a problem exists between the two there is a good possibility that it will find expression in the bedroom. Fortunately, the new treatment therapy for sexual dysfunctions eliminates the need for lengthy therapy and concentrates on trying to remove the symptoms rather than the cause.

FAMILY COUNSELOR

At one time or another, every man has a potency problem. But, as with any highly emotional subject, it is difficult to estimate the true incidence of chronic impotency. Many knowledgeable sources have estimated that approximately 50 per cent of adult males are chronically impotent. Within the group, primary impotency, and premature and retarded ejaculation are among the major forms of sexual dysfunctions. In primary impotency, the male is unable to perform, while premature ejaculation terminates his performance, and retarded ejaculation renders him unable to complete the sex act.

In the majority of cases, the cause of impotency can be attributed to psychological reasons. In the few cases where there are physical difficulties, the problems are, of course, attributed to poor development or damaged sex organs. In these cases medical treatment can be helpful.

Problems of physical fatigue are obviously related to poor performance and a disinterest in sex. Once mental tensions or fatigue are eliminated, the male can return to a more active sex life. Temporary malfunctions in sex can and do occur at any age. For example, the bridal bed is frequently far from an ideal place for a satisfying union. The anxiety, physical fatigue, and possibly too much to drink can interfere with love making and turn the occasion into an evening loaded with anger.

Although it is possible to identify the different forms of impotency, it is far more difficult to categorize the causes of sexual dysfunction. In the majority of personality problems there is usually some form of sexual malfunction. However, in some specific instances, the major complaint or concern is that the male's sexual performance is inadequate. In cases where lack of performance plays a specific role, there are accompanying personality difficulties.

In general, these difficulties are traceable to a wide range of subjects that involve anxiety, guilt, or fear, all of which may interfere with a male's performance. There also may be other unconscious conflicts about sexuality, and those who have ambivalent feelings about women are possible candidates for unhappiness. The group of men who have confused gender identification are frequently confronted with problems of inadequacy. Unresolved parental problems in the form of too much or too little love and control also can cause impotency.

It is possible that many of the cases of impotency can be helped. But first, the male must accept the fact that his sexual failure is a problem and not an indication of his masculinity. He should also recognize that professional help should be sought. As a result he will be assisted to recognize and understand the emotional conflict which is the basis for his sexual problem.

The treatment of sexual dysfunction is made much easier with the assistance of an understanding spouse. She can be helped to realize that the problem may not be an expression of his rejection of her, or in any way related to her poor performance, but rather it is a result of her husband's unresolved conflicts.

County gets SLEPA aid

Register Statehouse Bureau

TRENTON — Three grants totalling $92,000 in Federal Crime Control Act Funds have been awarded Monmouth County agencies by the New Jersey State Law Enforcement Planning Agency (SLEPA) Governing Board.

They were part of more than $3.2 million in federal grants awarded by the board to various bodies including 20 municipalities, 17 counties and two state government agencies.

The Monmouth County awards include a grant of $50,000 to the Police Department of Long Branch for salaries of five security officers over an 11-month period in order to continue its housing security project within the Housing Authority of Long Branch.

A grant of $22,048 was awarded to the Monmouth County Youth Detention Center to supplement the center's education program. The grant will provide the salaries of two full-time teachers, supplies and equipment.

The Monmouth County Board of Social Services was the recipient of a $19,980 grant to provide a full-time coordinator and part-time teacher and audio visual equipment to continue the county JINS program.

Villane is scored

Register Statehouse Bureau

TRENTON — The opposition by Assemblyman Anthony M. Villane Jr., R-Monmouth, to a bill restoring state employe increments in the state budget yesterday was labelled a "malicious attempt to snatch away one of the major benefits of state employment" and one of the major guarantees of employe productivity.

The charge was leveled by Ben A. Valeri, president of the New Jersey State Employes Association, and Edgar G. Samman, executive director. They directed their objection at remarks in which Dr. Villane asserted that Gov. Brendan T. Byrne and other legislators were bowing to "pressures from special interest groups" after they indicated they would support a pending bill restoring the increments.

Dr. Villane, in a statement earlier this week, said the proposed restoration of the increments represents an "unconscionable breach of faith with the public to whom we pledged only last year that government would live within its budgeted means." He referred to the budget caps, adopted at the time the state income tax was enacted, to limit spending by the state, counties, municipalities and school districts.

"State workers comprise a large segment of the 'public,' and the greatest breach of faith would be not to restore state employe increments, since increments have been a condition of employment — a promise of annual raises based on merit — within the Civil Service merit system for the past 69 years," Mr. Valeri countered.

"What does Villane want? To see the Civil Service merit system crumble so state employment will be totally based on corruption?" Mr. Samman asked. He said more than 10 per cent of all state workers already are receiving food stamps, welfare or both because wages are too low.

Mr. Samman also said he felt Dr. Villane's caps argument was invalid since the governor and other legislators had shown that the funding for increments was available without hampering the state's intentions to live within its means.

"Fortunately, Villane's uncalled for attack on state employes is a minority viewpoint," Mr. Valeri said. "Most of our lawmakers, including the governor, recognize that to abandon the Civil Service merit system in mid-stream would crumble the integrity of state employment and drive away many valuable and talented state workers who would be forced to seek employment in other states or private industry."

Dismissal upheld

Register Statehouse Bureau

TRENTON — The State Civil Service Commission upheld the dismissal 16 months ago of George R. Soares as an institutional attendant at Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Soares, of Red Bank, was removed from his job on Jan. 26, 1976, according to Civil Service records. Hearings on his appeal of that dismissal took place last June 21, July 7 and this past Jan. 6 in Newark.

In upholding the dismissal, the commission accepted the findings of hearing officer, Raymond T. Bolanowski, who concluded Mr. Soares' conduct on the job was not proper for an institutional attendant and constituted neglect of duty, inefficiency, insubordination and conduct unbecoming an employe in public service. Specifically, he found that Mr. Soares had failed to remain with patients in the dining room and elsewhere, was inattentative during the training course he was required to attend and was late on numerous occasions.

Crocker endorsed

TINTON FALLS — The former president of Brookdale Community College in Lincroft has endorsed the candidacy of Clinton Crocker, who is seeking one of the two Democratic nominations for the Assembly in the 11th district in Tuesday's primary election.

Dr. Ervin Harlacher, founding president of the college who is now chancellor of a four-college district in Kansas City, Mo., said in a prepared statement he was not surprised by Mr. Crocker's political aspirations.

"Clinton Crocker is an ambitious dedicated person who is very influential in Monmouth County," Dr. Harlacher said. "He has always had exceptional political sense, and I know he will make an excellent legislator regardless of party affiliation."

"I look at Clint as one of the pioneers of Brookdale who helped develop and make a significant contribution to the community service programs," Dr. Harlacher said. "He has a wonderful philosophy and is dedicated to the enlightment of our citizens. I enthusiastically support him and wish him well."

Health bill is signed

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Brendan T. Byrne yesterday signed legislation providing health insurance benefits for the treatment of alcoholism.

Gov. Byrne signed a package of four bills sponsored by Assemblyman John Bornheimer, D-Middlesex, requiring that all health insurance contracts include coverage for alcoholism treatment if it is prescribed by a physician.

Peonies very dependable flowers in perennial garden

Peonies are among the most dependable flowers in the spring perennial garden, flowering year after year with only a little care.

If your peonies are not flowering well this year, possible causes are:

They may be planted too deep. The "eyes," or buds on the crown, should be no deeper than 2 inches beneath the soil surface.

They may have been recently transplanted. It often takes peonies two or three years following transplanting to recover enough to flower.

If buds develop to the size of a quarter or larger, then fail to open, the problem may be bud and flower blight. Control for this disease comes earlier in the season and is described in a Rutgers peony bulletin you can get from your county agricultural agent.

Peonies planted near trees or shrubs which shade the plants and compete for moisture and nutrients may not flower well. Select a sunny, well-drained location for planting peonies.

Plants may be undernourished or too dry. Apply 5-10-10 fertilizer in early spring at 1 pound to 30 square feet of garden area. Water peonies well in dry periods, especially while buds are developing.

Other information on peony types, varieties and culture appears in Rutgers Extension Bulletin 336, "Peonies in the Garden." Ask your county agricultural agent for a free copy.

Bedding plants care

There is still time to plant petunias, geraniums, and other bedding plants.

A little extra care in planting will get these plants off to a good start. Be sure there is good contact between the roots and the soil.

If plants are in peat containers, moisten the pots before planting. Peat is very dry and is difficult to wet. Extremely dry pots may form a barrier between the roots and the soil.

Press the soil firmly around the roots, leaving a slight depression at the base of the plant. This will concentrate the water in the root area when you apply water.

Protect plants from sun and wind as much as possible immediately after planting. Planting late in the evening helps.

Tall plants with small root systems can be shaded with branches or baskets until they are established.

Don't get into the habit of following the same route each time you mow your lawn.

Such a routine can make a lawn less attractive as the tracks tend to become fixed. High and low spots may become worse, and there may be a tendency for the lawn surface to develop a wavy appearance.

Change your pattern of mowing if you want fewer irregularities and a more uniform and neater lawn. Lawn clippings will be distributed better and there'll be less packing of soil if the wheels don't find the same tracks time after time.

One way to change the mowing pattern is to mow crosswise to the direction you used the last time. If this is impractical then alter the pattern somehow so you don't go over the same tracks.

It is better to follow a back-and-forth pattern rather than the around and around routine.

Be sure to overlap the previous swath or cut by a fourth or a third of the width of the mower.

Whatever pattern you use, your lawn will look better and be healthier if you keep your mower sharp and adjusted.

Roses have will to grow

Roses are gluttons for punishment. They grow and flourish in every conceivable climate of the United States and Canada. They withstand humid days and night, the desert's highest temperatures and strongest winds, and the chilling fog blown in from the sea.

Roses have a strong will to grow, and they will — unless something is "bugging" them.

What "bugs" them most are aphids, spider mites, leaf rollers, and a host of other creepy crawlies.

Learn to recognize these garden spoilers on sight and take immediate action to control them when they first appear. Four of the more common garden variety of insects that can play havoc with rose bushes are:

Aphids. This six-legged, antennaed garden pest comes in assorted sizes and colors, including red, green and brown. They suck plant juices, stunt growth, pucker and curl leaves, deform buds and make a general nuisance of themselves.

Spider mites. Not really insects, these creatures belong to the spider, tick and scorpion family. They suck sap from lower leaf surfaces, causing the top surface to turn pale or yellow, and become covered with tiny yellow specks.

Turn over suspicious-looking leaves and examine for webs, dark specks of excrement and discarded skins. Use a magnifying glass, if necessary.

Leaf rollers. These caterpillars feed and hide in the rolled-up leaves of the host plant, causing considerable damage. They develop into moths which lay eggs and continue the damage.

Leafhoppers. A wedge-shaped insect measuring ⅛ to ½ inch in length. It is easy to spot and hops away quickly when it is discovered. The leafhopper pierces and sucks sap from the undersides of leaves, causing a loss of color and a stippled, wilted appearance.

A simple, one-step method of controlling these and other garden insects and diseases is Ortho's new Rose & Flower Jet Duster. It is best to apply in the early morning or late evening when the air is still and the temperature low.

Several one-second bursts of dust will penetrate in and around foliage and cover all exposed plant parts. A seven-ounce can will treat as many as 33 average-size rose bushes.

It is also recommended for chrysanthemums, iris, and other garden flowers listed on the label.

Local man develops a plant feeder

Ernest Whelan, of 47 James St., Shrewsbury, has developed an invention which he is now introducing to manufacturers.

His invention constitutes a vegetation mulch which uses completely natural materials for plant feeding and mulching. It dispenses protein, at a conditioned time rate, to the root systems of potted plants and plants and trees growing in outdoor soil. Natural wood chips, preferably of pine bark, are impregnated with natural protein from a soybean solution. The chips can be placed under the plant roots and on top of the soil.

While the mulch acts as a mulch, it also feeds root systems gradually, in nature's way.

Taiwan Methodists are undercut

By Rev. LESTER KINSOLVING

INSIDE RELIGION

According to the national headquarters of the United Methodist Church, there are some 3,000 residents of Taiwan who, like the late Chiang Kai-shek, are members of the United Methodist Church.

These Chinese Methodists should be infinitely more grateful to a certain Southern Baptist than to their denomination's Board of Global Ministries.

For President Carter on May 13, told a press conference that while he is eager to normalize journalistic relations with Peking, the American people as a whole do not want the Chinese on Taiwan "to be attacked or punished."

No such concern or compassion whatever is anywhere evident in the resolution passed by the Methodist Board of Global Ministries, which asks not only for diplomatic relations with Peking but the ending of U.S. support for Taiwan.

Methodist headquarters in New York conceded that there is no organized Methodist church that is known to have survived the same Maoist regime with whom it is now urging diplomatic relations — along with Taiwanese abandonment.

Refugees still pour into Hong Kong from the alleged Communist paradise on the mainland — with no similar movement of any escapees into Red China.

New York Daily News editor Michael O'Neill, who recently visited mainland China, reported that all but a few churches have been converted to schools, community halls, or warehouses. And reporter Wayne Brittenden, writing in Peking, interviewed Father Fu Tin-shan, one of a few Catholic priests still functioning, who says he loves Mao Tse-tung more than God.

Why the Methodist Board of Global Ministries would resolve (though not by a unamimous vote) to support what is obviously the Maoist religion — while abandoning the Methodists on Taiwan — would seem to be a question that U.S. Methodists should be raising. Loudly.

A concert by New Hope, an internationally known musical group based in Los Angeles, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. today.

The Rev. David L. Fish, pastor, says the public is invited to attend. There will be no admission fee, but an offering will be received.

As a branch of the Continental Singers organization, New Hope has traveled throughout the United States and 12 foreign countries. In 1975, the group went to communist Poland and sang for 30,000 people during a 10-day tour. It was one of the first Christian groups ever allowed to freely present the Gospel in that part of the world.

During the latter part of that year, New Hope spent three months singing in the Republic of South Africa. Cam Floria, president of Continental Ministries, comments "An evening spent with New Hope is more than a concert ... it is a total worship and praise experience."

The latest of the group's three albums is "New Hope."

Youth Sunday will be observed this weekend at a service which will feature music by Shining Light, the church's traveling youth choir. David Hooten will preach and Glenn Campbell, Laura Moore, Leslie Moore, and Jeff Schubert will assist.

A concert by Aslan, a Christian rock group, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Sunday.

Members of the group, Dusty and Bill Neergard and Lynn Ann and Craig Bogard, sing of their Christian beliefs and teachings and run a voluntary center for youth at Interfaith House, Apple St., Tinton Falls.

The four urge young people to attend the church of their choice, but also offer a non-denominational approach to Christian teachings. The name Aslan is from "The Chronicles of Narnia," a children's allegory by C.S. Lewis, in which Aslan is a large, furry lion which represents Christ.

The group began doing summer tours in 1969 and moved to 110 Apple Orchard Drive, Tinton Falls, in 1975. In 1970, while in their native New Mexico, they recorded an album. Since then, Mr. Bogard has written and arranged 30 songs for the group.

Church stand on sex is disputed

NEW YORK (AP) — A special Roman Catholic study committee on human sexuality disputes the church's condemnation of various sex acts as evil in themselves and says their morality depends on circumstances and conscientious intent.

But the offered guidelines emphasize that sexual acts are right only in genuinely committed, faithful and caring relationships, and not in casual, superficial liaisons.

"The final level of moral evaluation is the individual concrete decision," the report says. "It is here that personal conscience finds its sphere of competence and must be respected."

To judge merely by predetermined rules is to "deny that God-given freedom of response essential to human dignity and lying at the core of Christian morality," the report says.

It already has stirred criticism even before its official publication June 24 in a 332-page volume being issued by Paulist Press, "Human Sexuality, New Directions in American Catholic Thought."

The result of a four-year study by a committee of the Catholic Theological Society of America, the report rejects the church's blanket prohibitions of artificial insemination, sterilization and contraception.

The report also condones common-law marriages, particularly among the elderly, marriages with intent to remain childless, and oral sex. But it finds "swinging," "mate-swapping" and communal sex destructive and alienating.

Of pre-marital intercourse, the report notes that it is not prohibited outright in the Bible and says the practice cannot be considered immoral in every case.

However, "sexual intercourse calls for durability in a relationship," the report says, adding that a "lack of commitment either to exclusiveness or durability" demeans sex and leads to promiscuity.

"Sexual relations that do not represent the whole person, that do not have the possibility of a lasting relationship . . . are simply forms of exploitation . . .," the report says. "There exists an essential relationship between sex and marriage."

The report was produced by a five-member committee headed by the Rev. Anthony Kosnik, professor of moral theology at Sts. Cyril and Methodius Seminary at Orchard Lake, Mich. He says of the report: "It's faithful to the fundamental values of Christianity throughout the centuries."

The Catholic theological society's board of directors, in accepting the report and authorizing its publication, specified that the society neither approved nor disapproved the contents.

Some Catholic theologians already have registered dissent, calling the conclusions fallacious and partisan.

The president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Cincinnati, said he has not read the report and that theologians have a right to seek "deeper understanding of the church's authentic teaching, but it is this teaching that is normative."

The report says the traditional church approach of judging specific sex acts as either moral or immoral by predetermined rules is "woefully inadequate," and fails to consider circumstances and human intentions.

"It implies that morality can occur apart from personal intention and human decision and that moral evaluation can be made of specific acts viewed in this isolated way," the report says.

"Human sexuality is simply too complex, too mysterious, too sacred a human experience for such categorization Tentativity is inevitable in the attempt to discern the objective significance of such a mysterious and many-splendored reality."

Declaring that to be moral, sexual acts must enhance "creative growth and integration of the human persons," the report cites seven qualities as necessary for that purpose in sexual conduct, namely:

That it is "self-liberating" truly self-expressive and not fearful or anxious, "other-enriching" concerned for the well being of the other, "honest," "faithful," "socially responsible," "life-serving" and "joyous."

Barber shop singing contest this weekend

ASBURY PARK — The Asbury Park Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. (SPEBSQSA) will host the north-central division of the mid-Atlantic district quartet and chorus contests in Convention Hall in Asbury Park tonight and tomorrow.

The quartet contest begins at 8 o'clock tonight. There will be 18 quartets competing to qualify to sing in the district contest in Ocean City, Md., October 7-9. Among the quartets participating will be the Asbury Park "Soft Touch" with Ed Moran, tenor, Lincroft; Vic Acquaviva, Jackson, lead; Dave Evans, Tinton Falls, baritone; and Ivan Cermak, Shrewsbury, bass.

Tomorrow at 1 p.m., 12 of the division's best choruses will compete in Convention Hall to qualify to sing in the district contest. The size of the choruses will range from 25 to about 100, including the Montclair chorus, the 1975 international qualifier.

Also at 8 p.m., the weekend will climax with the "Festival of Harmony" when the winners of the contests will appear. There will be entertainment by the "Sound Revival", the 1976 district champions and another quartet, the "Sussex Counts", the 1977 district champions. Then, to close the show, the Livingston "Dapper Dans of Harmony" chorus, which won the International Championship in 1970, will put about 100 men on the stage, to thrill the audience with a whole show of its own.

The SPEBSQSA is a non-profit, charitable organization founded in 1938. The society has more than 37,000 members in over 700 chapters in this country and Canada. It is the largest all-male singing organization in the world. It has as its service project the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kan., which is dedicated to correcting speech defects in children. Over a period of 10 years, the society has contributed more than $2,000,000 to Logopedics. A percentage of the proceeds from all of the Asbury Park chapter's paid performances goes toward maintaining the institute. These contributions give rise to the society's motto, "We Sing That they Shall Speak."

Casting for play begins at college

LINCROFT — Casting for a children's musical, "Sleeping Beauty," will be in Brookdale Community College's Performing Arts Center at 7:30 p.m. tonight and Monday. Eighteen adults are needed to play the parts.

Barbara Guba of Highlands will direct the children's summer musical to be presented several times between July 9 and Aug. 14 at Brookdale's theater. Mrs. Guba is the choir director and organist at St. Mary's Catholic Church in New Monmouth.

Terrarium care

Terrariums need water from time to time, and routine maintenance to remove spent growth and trim fast-growing plants.

Retired director urges change

By HILMI TOROS

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Frank Capra, Hollywood's grand old director who once caused a sensation by removing Clark Gable's T-shirt, says films should be used as a vehicle to spread decency and steer away from quickie and profitable nudity.

The son of Sicilian peasants who emigrated to the United States 74 years ago, Capra marked his 80th birthday with an investigative "roots" trip to his native Sicily and the rest of Italy.

He made it clear even in Italy that he's not through with the cinema yet — at least as far as lecturing goes.

After 40 films and three Academy Awards for best director, he has been out of the directorial spotlight for 15 years, lately devoting his time and seemingly endless energy to a dialogue encouraging the young to go into the movie business and try to change its direction.

In his Palm Springs, Calif., home or his native village outside this Sicilian capital, his theme is still "the best medium."

"I'm an optimist, an idealist and I believe in human comedies," he remarked in an interview. "There are indications among students of the cinema that they want to return to human comedies, my type of films. 'Rocky' is an example of that."

He said he wished he had made 'Rocky,' chosen by the Academy he once headed as the best film of the year, because "it's about simple people succeeding, like President Carter for instance."

It's also like Capra himself — born in the rugged hills of Sicily, taken to the United States at 6 and an example of an immigrant who beats the odds and vaults to fame in competitive Hollywood.

As he tells it: "I was short, born in a foreign land, and son of poor and illiterate peasants. But in the cinema there is no formula for success except perhaps for creativity."

A chemical engineering graduate from Cal Tech, Capra said he entered the film business, answering an ad in the paper, to make money while waiting for a hoped for job as a science teacher.

With Columbia and other picture companies, he was noted for spreading optimism in the bleak 1930s, also aiding the careers of Clark Gable in "It Happened One Night," James Stewart in "It's a Wonderful Life," Barbara Stanwyck in "Miracle Women" and Bette Davis in "Pocket Full of Miracles."

He has always shunned pornography and now calls it "animated French cartoons." His rare concession to it was to portray Gable without a T-shirt in "It Happened One Night," which won him an Oscar.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" earned another and "You Can't Take it With You" a third.

The years have not tarnished his optimism and interest in future generations of directors, pushing him to speak at 75 universitites in the last five years. "The greatest films have yet to come," he said.

"It'll be made by the young, maybe those not even 30."

At times also a realist, Capra acknowledges: 'My films didn't revolutionize or turn stones. Instead of changing society, I tried to elevate the moral tone of the times — and to make people smile and enjoy themselves."

One of his innovations, still in effect, was to make the film director's name an integral party of the title and, for that reason, his autobiography was titled "The Name Above the Title."

Medieval program scheduled

RUMSON — To benefit the Monmouth Arts Foundation's scholarship program, a "Concert of Medieval Dance, Music and Song," followed by a reception, will take place at 8:30 p.m., tomorrow at Northgate, the Paul E. Marcoux country estate, here.

Maureen Deakin's Modern Dance Ensemble will dance to Benjamin Britten's "Ceremony of Carols." And a Middletown High School North choir, directed by Richard Ludium, will sing Britten's carols which are based on original medieval songs. Ingrid Rehwinkel, Anthea McGlincy and Patrice Lovekin will sing the solos.

Marjorie Mollenauer will play the harp; Alicia Rowe, the flute; Tony Sloan, the classical guitar; and Billy John Fansler will read.

The dancers are Betsy Avati, Debbie Caroli, Cheryl Dobrosky, Debbie Hitz, Linda Hubka, Carol Penn, Heidi Putnam and June Wilson. Chrissy Dorko and Sue Edwards.

Donations to MAF will provide scholarships to artistically talented high school seniors pursuing further education in fine arts. Mrs. Harrison Rowe of Rumson is in charge of reservations. A foundation spokesman said yesterday that tickets are still available.

'A Sensitive, Passionate Man' airs on NBC Monday

JOB TROUBLES BREAK UP MARRIAGE — Angie Dickinson and David Janssen playing the roles of wife and husband in the TV movie, "A Sensitive, Passionate Man" turn in their best performances to date according to reviewers. It's a family torn apart when the husband loses his job and refuses to take a job of lesser stature.

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael and Marjorie Delaney were an attractive, successful and happy couple with two children, the kind of family you see in a home magazine.

At a surprise anniversary party, Michael recites a poem from their college days and gets a little loaded. Later, playing tennis, he keeps a pitcher of martinis handy.

Among the happy home life, the camaraderie of his chums, the first seeds of disaster are innocently planted. His drinking. Suggestions that his job as a scientist may be in jeopardy because of cutbacks in the aerospace industry.

By accident, Marjorie learns that her husband was fired two weeks earlier. The charade of going to the office over, he sleeps late, refuses to take the kids on a promised trip to the zoo and smashes the TV set when a commentator talks about the American dream.

"A Sensitive, Passionate Man" is the story of the disintegration of the lives of the Delaneys. The two-hour movie will be aired on NBC at 9 p.m. EDT Monday.

David Janssen is Michael Delaney, a loving husband and father who sinks into alcoholism when his world collapses. "I won't take a lower job," he shouts. "I worked for the PhD. after my name." Marjorie reminds him he's not the first man to lose a job, and he cries,

"It's not a job! It's my life!" Janssen delivers a powerful performance, giving an air of unsettling reality to his torment and self destruction.

Angie Dickinson is Marjorie, struggling to hold their life together, frustrated by her inability to help her husband, humiliated by the alienation of their frineds, demeaned by a sleazy divorce lawyer and a motel manager on the make. It is Angie Dickinson as you've never seen her before and she is brilliant.

Todd Lookinland as their eldest son, whose humiliation turns to resentment, and Mariclare Costello as Marjorie's best friend, alienated by her own embarrassment, turn in excellent performances.

It is a powerhouse production, written by Rita Lakin from the novel by Barbara Mahoney and directed by John Newland. Miss Lakin has written a literate script that allows the characters to emerge as flesh-and-blood human beings, and Newland has a fine hand on the direction as he builds tension between the facade of the happy home and lurking disaster.

WE'LL GET BY: The theme of the 31st annual Tony Awards show on Sunday is survival — survival of the theater, people and New York City. All have had hard times, one way or the other.

Indicative of the fact that the theater is suffering is that most of the performers on the awards show are more identified by the public with television than with the theater. Jean Stapleton sings "Climb Every Mountain" from "The Sound of Music"; Buddy Ebsen sings "September Song" from "Knickerbocker Holiday"; Bea Arthur sings "Don't Rain on My Parade" from "Funny Girl", and Damon Evans sings "You'll Never Walk Alone" from "Carousel." Leslie Uggams will also do a special number.

You'll also see production numbers from the four nominated Broadway musicals, "Annie," "Happy End," "I Love My Wife" and "Side by Side by Sondheim."

Three special Tony awards will be presented for Broadway solo performances by Barry Manilow, Diana Ross and Lily Tomlin. Manilow will sing his composition, "New York City Rhythm," Miss Tomlin will do her sketch about a woman who dreams of being a waitress but is forced to work as an actress, and Miss Ross will perform a selection from "The Wiz," in which she will star in the movie version.

SIGHT UNSEEN, I recommend that you catch the Tony Awards on ABC at 9 p.m. EDT Sunday. It's always been the class act of the awards shows, and producer Alexander H. Cohen and writer Hildy Parks are behind this year's show again.

Verdon novel in the making

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK -Bdwy"s First Lady of Taps Gwen Verdon's time-stepping a novel and a Bdwy play; Gwen's is one of Bdwy's (and H'wood's) most articulate minds, so don't dismiss her efforts as just The Old Soft Show... Central Park South's most exotic Nirvana Restaurant, which found brickbats raining on its customers' heads when the Park Lane Hotel started peeling concrete, will fling back a blockbuster suit, and not blue serge. Craftsmen have been laboring around the clock seven straight days to repair just the brick-mortar damage... John Ringling North's most beautiful ex-fiancee (John's an Early American David Frost — he's got a million of 'em), Dodie Heath, now is a London play producer. Dodie also has perfected a simple woman's intimate-hygiene invention which might make her richer'n Circus-Croesus John.

"Roots" is sprouting: "The Fight Against Slavery" is a BBC-made Time-Life-financed mini-series sponsored by five separate (but equal) competitive airlines". Barbara Walters' Special (interviewing the Bing Crosbys, Bob Hopes and Redd Foxxes) was the best she's ever done, including her heaviest (Nixon, Ford, Sadat, etc.) geopolitical talking-heads heavy ones ... Bing's charm and character were astounding, Bob Hope and his Delores endearingly content, Redd Foxx peculiarly unhappy with his sudden geriatric-millionaireship.

It seems only a quick couple of TV seasons ago Joey Bishop was giving thenbusted Redd all the inter-racial help an old friend could dream which would have been a rosier memory than the cavalier mistreatment slung Redd's way by NBC's cheapveeps; it's sad to see a fiscal late-bloomer like Redd resenting sleazy treatment from a showbiz level famous for its cynical stupidity but that's the way these top-brass network kookies crumble in and out of their always-movable feasts.

Redd Foxx

Barbara Walters could have told Redd about the drab lowblows she rec'd from NBC's press-opinion-molders amid the false tales they wagged in her wake as she left NBC for her own $5,000,000 talkathrone; that would make still another gossipy Baba-Redd mini-special ... Except La Wawa's never a sore winner and shrugged off the cheap sniping; temporarily.

The American Federation of Musicians closed a fantastic new contract for TV-radio commercials with the nation's top advertising agencies; it hiked "cartage" (meaning expenses to lug them to work) for HARPS from $20 to $24! Zounds! It must have been great news for the shades of Harpo Marx and Casper Reardon and first stringers Adele Girard and Eaphne Hellman ... Other details include a raise for all musicians to $50 an hour ... Plus payments for re-use (reruns) at 71 per cent of the original performance; Canadian capering brought musicians similar raises ... Never forget — you listeners and viewers ultimately pay the piper; and the harpists' "cartage." Black beauty Jeanne Bell, who romped with Richard Burton between his reunions with Liz, plans a book about it and other experiences, Sepia Mag reports ... If you wonder why Rosalynn Carter's assistant Madeleine McBean suddenly is a pianoaficionado blame David Daniels' arpeggios at the York River Club; Mad'l'n digs them, and Dave ... Necklinescoop! We now may reveal the true first name of traditionally one-named N.Y. Fashion Hall of Fame genius Kasper; Herbert, the triple-Coty Awardee confided.

Your horoscope, birthday

Friday, June 3 — Born today, you are one of those persons of high integrity who clings to his beliefs regardless of the incentives other people or circumstances may offer you not to do so. An earlier times, you would have been a Crusader or a martyr to your principles, holding to your standards against all odds, including death. In modern times, you will be a fighter for your own rights and the rights of others. You will know no rest until you have gained for all the benefits you see gleaned by the few. Idealistic and thoroughly honest, you may find it difficult to get ahead in a world that often seems to reward those who are quite the opposite of you. But in the end, idealism and honor, with the help of hard work, win out.

Yours is a personality of force and effectiveness. You seldom speak or act without the kind of results you were after in the first Place. You are quick to change your mode of attack when you discover that the one you are using avails you less than you think it should. On the other hand, nothing will make you use dishonest means to gain your ends, no matter how quickly or how surely you could prove a "winner" were you to do so.

Saturday, June 4

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Take care that the influence you attempt to employ in another's favor is the kind of which you can be proud. Belittle no one's effort.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — An opportunity to change your life for the better arises early in the day. Make yourself known to those with influence for good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You would do well to keep your motives to yourself for the moment. Behave in such a way, however, that no one can accuse you of favoritism.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Begin at once to plan for the changes you see revealed on the horizon. Be prepared to swallow the pill of truth late in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Don't blame he day's confusion on others. It may be that time will tell more of a tale than you would like it to.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Seek out the heart of the present problem on the home front -- and do something to set things to rights without further delay.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — If possible, cut through the red tape and get straight to the issues involved in present at-home situations. Relax at evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Work some system into your daily labor. Unless you can come to grips with a new and somewhat difficult personality, much may be forfeited.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Don't retreat into a world of dreams. Meet circumstances head on; you may be able to change them and thus change the situation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You can make your own opportunities today. Whether you can also take advantage of them is another story! But you can certainly try.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Be wise in your interpretation of another's actions. You may be seeing what you wish to see, not what's really there.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You can do another tremendous good today if you will but try. Don't take time to reconsider; first impressions are valid.

Sheinwold's bridge advice

by Alfred Sheinwold

We have seen this week that both sides may find it very effective to refuse a trick. But how long should you hold up? For the defenders, this question is answered by signalling play.

West's deuce of spades is covered by the jack, king and ace. South returns a low heart, and West plays the nine, signalling that he has an even number of hearts. (If West had an odd number he would play his lowest heart.)

In this case East knows that West has two or four hearts. South must have whatever is left: four or two hearts. If South has four hearts, East cannot shut out dummy's suit. But if South has only two hearts, East must refuse the first heart trick and must win the second.

When East refuses the first heart, declarer switches to diamonds. The ten of diamonds loses to the jack, and back comes a spade.

BAD BREAK

South wins the spade and leads the ace of diamonds. The suit breaks badly, and South cannot afford to continue it. He leads another heart, hoping that the opponents will hold up just one more time.

If East refuses the second heart trick, declarer would have nine tricks. But East knows enough to take the ace precisely at this time. And now South goes down.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: ♠9532 ♡9653 ◇KQJ8 ♣10. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. Many experts, playing with expert partners, would bid one heart. In the average game, however, bidding so weak a suit is asking for trouble.

Rev. Dr. Gerald S. Mills

Rev. Mills to take part in seminar

CARLISLE, Pa. — Dr. Gerald S. Mills, senior minister of First Presbyterian Church, Red Bank, N.J., will participate in a national security seminar at the Army War College here, Monday through Friday.

The school, which has 7,500 U.S. Army officers as its students, annually invites guests to lead discussions on issues of importance to national security.

The guests, according to information sent to Dr. Mills, are "widely representative American citizens who have achieved much in their field of American life. There is a cross section of age, sex, race, religion, region, experience and contemporary interest and views."

The seminar provides a forum in which leaders of the government discuss their views on national security with students and faculty from the War College, and with the invited guests.

The program will conclude Friday with an address on the future of the U.S. Army by the Army's chief of staff.

The college stands on grounds that were established as an Army post in 1757. Of the 7,500 students, 1,900 are generals. The college was established here in 1951.

Sex stand of church disputed

that has brought them forth is wholesome and moral," the report says.

But it says sex is "seriously abused" whenever it is personally self-destructive, manipulative, enslaving of others, deceitful, inconsistent and unstable, indiscriminate, "ungenerous and un-Christlike."

"Christians must be encouraged to embrace their sexuality joyfully and in full consciousness," the report says.

Rejecting the church ban on contraception, the report says the decision on whether it is "morally disruptive or preservative of greater values" ought to be left to the conscience of those involved.

Of oral sex, the report says "no physical expression of s sexuality, including oral sex, provided it be mutually sensitive and acceptable, should be judged as morally wrong or perverse."

Yankees bomb Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Although there are four months left in the season, New York Yankee Manager Billy Martin admits he's looking at the scoreboard already to see what the other clubs are doing.

"What was the score of the Baltimore-Chicago game," Martin asked last night immediately after the Yankees bombed Minnesota 10-3 with a 14-hit assault.

Martin could be forgiven for looking around a little anyhow since the Yankees piled up a 7-0 lead by the fifth inning to the dismay of Minnesota's largest crowd of the season, 30,412.

"We've got some guys who can really hit the ball," continued Martin. "This is what we're capable of doing all the time."

Lou Piniella knocked in three runs with a sacrifice fly and two-run homer, while Thurman Munson and Craig Nettles each produced two-run doubles. Chris Chambliss, Reggie Jackson and Mickey Rivers also drove in runs for the Yankees, who closed to within ½ game of the division-leading Orioles in the American League East.

Although he was mostly ineffective, righthander Ed Figueroa was credited with the victory and hiked his record to 7-3. Figueroa, who pitched out of bases-loaded jams in the first and third innings, walked six and surrendered nine hits before leaving.

"I couldn't get my pitches across," admitted Figueroa, who said he couldn't adjust to the Minnesota mound. "I was never comfortable the entire time I was out there."

Sparky Lyle, who mowed down 10 straight hitters in a brilliant relief performance, notched his ninth save of the season.

The Twins, whose lead slipped to two games over Chicago in the American League West, open a three-game home series with Boston tonight while the Yankees move into Chicago for a three-game set against the White Sox.

Mets 7, Expos 4

MONTREAL (AP) — Lee Mazzilli admits there are several things he still must do to become a good hitter, but he did enough last night to help the New York Mets gain their third consecutive victory for new Manager Joe Torre.

Mazzilli drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly as the Mets downed the Montreal Expos 7-4, handing the Expos their 18th defeat in 23 games.

"I've got a lot of things to learn and I'm not going to learn them overnight," Mazzilli said. "Joe said to me it is just a matter of time. He feels I can be a .300 hitter.

"It's hard work. I think I can hit. I was hitting well a couple of weeks ago but then I went into a bad slump. I think I'm coming out of it. I feel much more confident now.

"Tonight I felt like I swung the bat as well as I have all year. I was hitting the ball hard."

His homer went over the left field wall after John Stearns had walked leading off the second inning against Montreal starter and loser Dan Warthen, 2-3.

After the Expos got a run in the bottom of the second, the Mets scored twice in the fourth and the fifth and once in the eighth with Montreal getting single runs in the fourth, fifth and ninth innings.

But perhaps the turning point for the Mets came in the seventh inning after winning pitcher Jerry Koosman, 4-5, got himself into a jam by giving up a single to pinch hitter Sam Mejias and walks to Dave Cash and Chris Speier.

Reliever Skip Lockwood came in and got Ellis Valentine to hit into an inning-ending double play, then went on to record his sixth save of the season and his second in two nights against Montreal.

"Our starters have been struggling a little bit, but our bullpen has been super," Torre said.

"But that's the way this game has got to work. You have got to have guys picking each other up. Lockwood just did a super job. He's one of the best in the business."

Roundup

Art Howe's third consecutive double drove in two runs in the 11th inning, snapping a tie and lifting the Houston Astros to a 6-4 victory over Cincinnati Thursday night.

The defeat ended the Reds' five-game winning streak and dropped them 10 games behind Los Angeles in the National League West.

With one out in the 11th, Bob Watson, who slammed a game-tying three-run homer in the ninth, singled and so did Enos Cabell. Howe doubled, scoring both runners, and came home on a single by Cliff Johnson. The Reds scored in the bottom of the inning on singles by George Foster, Dave Concepcion and Dan Driessen.

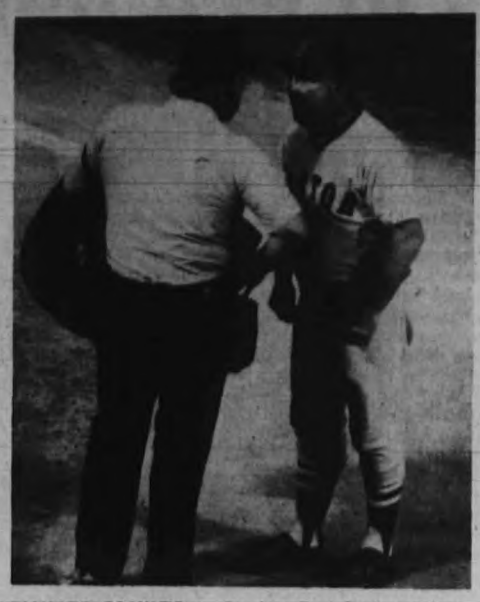

Cincinnati starter Jack Billingham was within two outs of his second shutout of the year when he allowed singles to Jose Cruz and Ed Herrmann. Rawly Eastwick relieved and Watson tagged him for his sixth home run of the season.

Jim Essian's three-run double capped a four-run third inning and led the Chicago White Sox to a 7-4 victory over Baltimore that trimmed the Orioles' lead over the New York Yankees to one-half game in the American League East.

Willie Horton, given new life when Boston shortstop Rick Burleson dropped his foul pop, drilled a two-out, two-run double in the eighth inning to give the Texas Rangers a 3-1 victory over the Red Sox. Toby Harrah homered for Texas' first run and Boston's Bernie Carbo homered to tie it.

Rookie sensation Dave Rozema won his fifth game in seven decisions with ninth-inning relief from Steve Foucault as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians 4-2. Tito Fuentes homered in the first inning off Pat Dobson, 0-5.

ZIMMER ZONKED — Boston Red Sox' manager, Don Zimmer, is thrown out of the game with the Texas Rangers in the ninth inning of play. Zimmer strongly protested the calls of home plate umpire, Larry Barnett, in the latter part of the game. The action took place at Arlington Stadium, last night. The Texas Rangers won the contest 3-1.

Bishops' top grad is Scholar-Athlete

ASBURY PARK — When the Daily Register picked Erol Ceran as its football Scholar-Athlete, he was number one in his class at Monmouth Regional. The basketball award went to Duane Geck of Manalapan, and he was number one at that school.

Now, the first Daily Register Scholar-Athlete Award for girls' sports goes to another who will be valedictorian of her class graduation night.

Dori Gamble of Asbury Park is perhaps best known for her role on two state championship basketball teams, but her greatest achievements may have come in the classroom. Dori ranks number one in Asbury Park's graduating class of 264.

Her class rank and high college boards have helped Dori win a basketball scholarship to the University of Virginia. She plans to major in special education.

The 5-9, Blue Bishop co-captain will continue to play basketball for the Cavaliers, but her days as a cross country and summer track runner seem to be over.

"I just want to go into basketball in college," she said, "but I may take a try at field hockey. I want to study special education because I am interested in working with kids. In our gym classes, we had a few special education students, I often helped the teacher with them."

Dori played varsity basketball for Asbury Park for four years. The Blue Bishops have won three straight state championships, and Dori was a starting guard on the last two.

The talented Bishops have always had plenty of scoring punch, so Dori's main job was playmaking and defense. She scored a career-high 20 points against Monmouth Regional this season.

"I always prided myself more as a defensive player," she said. "Pam Reaves usually did most of the scoring so I didn't have to worry about it. Instead, I usually guarded the other team's high scorer. The toughest I played against this year was Tracy Gunning of St. Rose."

St. Rose was the only team to beat the Bishops in the past two years.

In addition to playing basketball, Dori was on the cross-country team for three years and usually placed in the top 10. However, the team had only three meets this year because of the coaches' strike which got the Bishops off to a late start.

A member of the track and field team for four years, her best events were the high jump and mile run. She was a steady scorer for the Bishops in both.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Gamble of Avon, Dori is a member of the National Honor Society, the Kiwanis Honor Society and is a Varsity Scholar.

DORI GAMBLE

She has won a Scholar-Athlete Award from the Monmouth County Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and has also received an Elks Club Senior Award for Scholarship.

In her spare time, Dori has done clerical work in the school's guidance office and coached Biddy Basketball in Avon.

Finalists for the award, all strong candidates, were Debbie Bartosh of Red Bank Regional, Maria D'Elio of Marlboro, Lauren Geiss of Holmdel, Kathy Lynch of Middletown North, Nancy Scott of Manalapan, Patricia Taterico of Ocean Township and Peggy White of Rumson-Fair Haven Regional.

Shue considering benching McGinnis tonight

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia 76ers Coach Gene Shue is thinking about replacing slump-ridden George McGinnis in the starting line-up for the fifth game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

The 76ers and the Portland Trail Blazers are tied 2-2 in the best-of-seven playoff, each team winning on its home court. The fifth game is here Friday night, the sixth in Portland Sunday, and a seventh, if necessary in Philadelphia June 8.

Shue made it clear that he had not decided on whether to start Steve Mix in place of McGinnis.

DEEP IN THOUGHT — Sixers' coach, Gene Shue, presses thumb to his lips as he considers NBA playoff game against the Portland Trail Blazers.

"I was asked what my thoughts might be in that area and I left it open," Shue said. "I am considering it. It is a possibility."

The thought here is that Shue will stay with McGinnis, a super star forward who averaged 21 points a game in the regular season, but has been in a deepening playoff slump. In the four games with Portland, he is averaging 9.8 from the floor, a poor 33 per cent, and seven for 13 at the foul line, just 53.7 per cent.

An indication of Shue's thinking could be in the words of Sixers assistant coach Jack McMahon.

"The key to our chances is George," a McMahon said. "If George continues to play below par, struggle, we're in trouble. If George regains his form we'll win.

"Here we are 2-2. It's a three-game series now and we have the home court advantage. You would think I would be optimistic. But I'm worried. When George breaks out of it, that's the whole key. And there is no sign of it. I don't know the answer," said McMahon forlornly.

McGinnis, who had spoken freely about his perplexing slump, has decided not to talk about it anymore.

"Now it's time to do it or shut up," says the 6-foot-9 star.

Meanwhile, Shue is trying to soft pedal the 76ers' growing reputation as the Bickersons. He's tired of reading about his players criticizing each other and his strategy. He's particularly displeased with what he calls a poor press in Philadelphia.

"I believe in positive thoughts, also facts," the coach said before Thursday's secret practice session. "I do not believe this team has been given its due by the local media ... The tendency all year has been to make this team controversial.

The most knowledgeable people in basketball around the league, looking from an outside point of view, cannot believe the things they read. This team is so successful."

He doesn't explain, however, what he expects the media to do when Joe Bryant rips Mix. Mix complains about the way he is being used, Lloyd Free and Darryl Dawkins demand to be traded, Julius "Dr. J." Erving criticizes strategy, Doug Collins questions the game plan etc. Should the media look the other way?

Shue says the 76ers seen in the playoffs are a different team than the one that won its conference in regular season play. Then, McGinnis was in form and Free healthy.

"Now we're a team struggling, trying to get the job done with people we didn't use during the regular season," Shue said.

"We expect to come back and play a very good game Friday. Portland has some momentum. But we lost it quickly after winning the first two. I hope the home court edge stands up. I'm looking for a tough game," Shue said.

Erving, who with Collins has carried the 76ers' offensive burden, believes his team's bench strength will be the deciding factor. He notes that Portland's subs came in with a big lead.

"The test of a bench is when they produce in a close game," Erving said. "Our guys will give us a bigger lift. All we have to do is be ourselves and stick with what got us here. There are 20 teams on vacation. We're not."

The Trail Blazers held their usual open practice, a workman-like session under the watchful eye of Coach Jack Ramsay.

Ramsay said he isn't under any illusions because of the Blazers' 129-107 and 130-98 blowouts in Portland.

"They'll be tough, especially on their home floor, but we can win if we do the things we're capable of doing," Ramsay said.

The Blazers, of course, are counting upon Maurice Lucas, who has averaged 20.7 points per game, shooting 47.9 from the field and collecting 41 rebounds, and big Bill Walton, who has scored at a 19.3 clip and rebounded 16.8 a game.

If you're looking for a barometer on this series, be aware that the two teams have played six times this season and each has won three — at home.

Ramsay has insisted, however, that the Blazers will win anywhere if they play to their capability. He claims they haven't done that here yet.

McDonald named aide

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis University named Dick McDonald, former basketball coach at St. Peter's College, as athletic director Thursday.

At a press conference, the Rev. Daniel C. O'Connell, S.J., president of St. Louis University, said McDonald has signed a three-year contract, effective July 1.

Father O'Connell predicted McDonald will bring a "new era of both stability and success" to the school's athletic programs.

"I believe he is the man who can do many things for both the city and the university, not the least of which is ... to convince St. Louisans that college basketball in the 1970s is exciting."

The Billikens have been without a full-time athletic director since Larry Albus resigned to become Metro Seven Conference commissioner in 1976.

Since then, the post has been filled on an interim basis by Gerald Fowler, associate academic president for student affairs.

Both St. Louis University and St. Peter's College are Jesuit institutions. St. Peter's is in Jersey City, N.J.

In the past 10 years Arizona State football teams show a 34.8 points-per-game average.

Wally Pipp was the New York Yankees' first home run champion in the American League. The first baseman cracked 12 four baggers in 1916. He led the following year with only nine.

The New Jersey Nets?

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Boe, president of the National Basketball Association New York Nets, said Thursday he has met with New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne concerning a possible move out of New York.

Boe said the meeting concerned a feasibility study for construction of a 20,000-seat basketball arena to be built adjacent to Giants' Stadium in the Meadowlands sports complex in East Rutherford.

He would not elaborate on the discussions.

The Newark Star-Ledger reported the meeting took place Tuesday and quoted Byrne as saying, "I think they're dying to come over."

The Nets and Boe's National Hockey League New York Islanders both play their home games at the Nassau County Memorial Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y. The Nets' lease with the county had expired following last season but negotiations have been completed for an extension of the agreement for at least one year, a Coliseum spokesman said.

Besides the Giants, the North American Soccer League Cosmos play their home games at the Meadowlands complex which also includes a harness racing track.

A spokesman for the Sports Authority confirmed that a meeting had taken place, but added, "The planning is at ground zero.

"The mountain of details are still to be worked out," he said.

The spokesman said Boe met with Sports Authority officials for two to three hours.

He said, it was "very premature" to assume the arena would be built.

He said the feasibility study would have to be considered by the authority at a monthly meeting.

Gottfried vs. Vilas in French final

FRENCH FINALIST — Brian Gottfried of the United States performing in the French Open earlier this week. Gottfried will meet Guillermo Vails of Spain in the finals.

PARIS (AP) — The seven-year reign of European tennis stars in the French Open Championships is over. The semifinalists this year are a U.S. Davis Cupper, two Latin Americans and an Australian.

The last European to be eliminated, Wojtek Fibak of Poland, predicted that Sunday's final, for a first prize of $38,000, will be between American Brian Gottfried and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

"I have great respect for Vilas, but I wouldn't care to put my money on anybody," Wojtek said after Vilas, the left-hander with the flowing strokes and generous backswing and follow-through, had destroyed him in three straight sets in the quarter-finals.

Gottfried, bidding to be the first American to win this prized slow clay courts title in 22 years, has first to overcome big-hitting Phil Dent of Australia.

Vilas has a semifinal engagement with Raul Ramirez, the man of the hour. In a classic clay courts match Thursday, Ramirez eliminated the defending champion, Adriano Panatta of Italy.

If records mean anything, it looks like a Vilas-Gottfried final. Vilas has played Ramirez seven times and won all seven. Gottfried met Dent only once and beat him comfortably.

But Ramirez, a humorous and philosophical character, warned the fans not to be so sure.

"Since Vilas has beaten me seven times, it must be my turn to win," the Mexican said. "He cannot go on winning all his life."

Patience and skill, rather than big hitting and adventurous net play, win matches on the slow surface of Roland Garros Stadium, where a packed crowd of 12,000 on the center court watched Ramirez dethrone Panatta 7-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Ramirez conducted his campaign mainly from his baseline. Panatta went more often to the net, where the Mexican almost invariably passed him for the big points.

"I study my opponent and I plan my tactics from match to match," Ramirez said. "If I were playing somebody else, I might go to the net more often, perhaps all the time. Against Panatta I thought it was not good strategy."

Ramirez and Panatta were evenly matched up to 6-6 and five points all in the tie-breaker. Then Ramirez won two big points for the first set, and the match went his way from then on.

The Mexican star said that last year he concentrated on winning the Grand Prix, which is run on a points basis and based on the year's tournaments. "Right now I want to win this tournament and then Wimbledon and Forest Hills," Ramirez said.

Vilas hustled Fibak out 6-4, 6-0, 6-4. In one embarrassing spell of one-sided tennis, Vilas won eight games in a row, dropping only eight points.

Janet Newberry of La Jolla, Calif., who won the women's title in the Italian Open and hopes to add the French, was to meet Florenta Mihai of Romania in the semis today. The other semi was between Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia and Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia.

Ms. Marsikova teamed with Pam Teegarden of Los Angeles to win the women's doubles Thursday, beating Helen Gourlay of Australia and Rayni Fox of North Miami Beach, Fla., 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Tardiff gets coaching job

EAST BRUNSWICK — George Tardiff, who helped create the 1971 Red Bank High School football juggernaut and then turned around the football program at Benedictine College in Kansas, will become head football coach at East Brunswick High School.

Tardiff has been offered a contract to succeed Mel Caseiro at the Bears' grid helm, and the board of education is expected to approve the contract at its next meeting. Tardiff, who left Red Bank to become an assistant at Lakewood and then head coach at Freehold before going to Benedictine, will teach health and driver education.

East Brunswick plays in the tough Middlesex Middlesex County Conference, and its schedule for 1977 includes Woodbridge, Colonia, Brick Township, Edison, J.F. Kennedy, Sayreville and J.P. Stevens.

"It is going to test us," Tardiff said. "My goal when I came back from Kansas was to coach at a large school and shoot for the top. If you are going to be the best, you have to beat the best. We are way behind right now, but there is some tradition going here.

"I have met with the staff and am pleased. It is a blend of experience and youth. I will meet with the players next week."

East Brunswick was 2-6-1 last year under Caseiro.

Tardiff was the defensive coordinator, under Bob Strangia, with the 1971 Red Bank team which produced two pro players, John Lee of San Diego, and Lonnie Allgood of New Orleans. After a year as an assistant at Lakewood, he became head coach at Freehold.

He then returned to his alma mater, Benedictine College, and using many players recruited from this area took the Ravens to a bowl game this past season. He left Benedictine to be closer to his family in Point Pleasant.

Holmdel wins CJ Group I

SAYREVILLE — Holmdel High School (17-8), in its first winning season ever, defeated Dunellen High School 1-0 yesterday to win the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association Central Jersey Group I championship.

"Bobby Purcell was outstanding," said Hornets coach Don Sabatini. Purcell(5-4) went the distance pitching a two-hit shutout. Purcell has pitched three two-hitters, one three-hitter and two shutouts. The two hits he allowed were both by Tom Nagle.

Holmdel's winning run in the first inning was scored on a single John Lionetti. George Kangos, who scored, singled and went to second on a sacrifice bunt by Cliff Lubello. He took third base on a catcher's error.

Dunellen's closest chance to tie the score was in the second inning but was foiled by two consecutive strikeouts. There was a man on third base with no outs. Stan Folpanski flied out to centerfield after which Purcell struck out the next two batters.

The Hornets will play the South Jersey Group I champs early next week in the NJSIAA semi-final finals. Sabatini said that his players have high morale and are looking forward to playing two more games. The second game would be the state finals.

Brazilian loses in England

LONDON (AP) — Former Wimbledon queen Maria Bueno of Brazil bowed out of the Beckenham grass courts lawn tennis tournament Thursday, beaten 2-6, 6-1, 6-1 by last year's British junior champion Jo Durie.

In the first set the 16-year-old Miss Durie took a lesson in tennis.

"I was scared stiff and could not think what to do," she said.

A generous Bueno made no excuses. "I may have been a little slow but she played very well," she said afterward.

Tribes' Eckersley goes for record

SEATTLE (AP) — The Cleveland Indians' no-hit pitcher, Dennis Eckersley, will be trying to break a 73-year-old record for consecutive hitless innings when he takes the mound Friday night against the Seattle Mariners.

The 22-year-old Oakland, Calif., native posted 16⅔ consecutive hitless innings Monday night when he completed a 1-0 no-hitter Monday night against the California Angels in American League baseball action in Cleveland.

That put him within 6⅓ innings of the record Cy Young set in 1904 while with the Boston Red Sox.

Eckersley began the string May 25 in another Mariners game when he went 12 innings for a 2-1 victory. He allowed no further hits after infielder Larry Milbourne singled with one out in the fifth.

And since the Mariners scored their only run that night in the third, Eckersley also has an unbroken string of 18 scoreless innings.

The National League hitless record was set by Johnny Vander Meer in 1938, when he pitched 21⅔ innings that included back-to-back no-hitters.

Eckersley, who called his experience in pitching a no-hitter "the max," said later he felt there was an element of luck involved in such a performance and that what he really wanted to do was pitch 20 victories in one season.

As a rookie in 1975, Eckersley had a 13-7 record. So far this season he's 5-3 with an earned-run average of 2.98.

What a Summer heads Regret field

By JOE HINTELMANN

OCEANPORT — Mrs. Bertram R. Firestone's multiple stakes winner What a Summer heads a field of 11 fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and up, in the $28,375 Regret Handicap, at six-furlongs, to be run at Monmouth Park Saturday, June 4. If all start the winner will receive $18,444.

What a Summer, a 4-year-old by What Luck out of Summer Classic has accounted for this year's Distaff Handicap at Aqueduct. Last year she won seven of nine starts, including the Black-Eyed Susan at Pimlico and the Arthur Arundel Handicap at Laurel, with earnings of $87,065.

In addition to her win in the Distaff, the Leroy Jolley-trained filly has to her credit a victory in an overnight handicap at Aqueduct. She finished third in the Gray Flight Handicap on May 2 in her last outing. She carries high-weight of 123 pounds with a rider to be named later.

Another prominent entrant is John H. Stafford's Gurkhas Band, a 5-year-old by Lurullah out of Hot Gossip. The Gil H. Rowntree-trained filly has a victory in the Suzanne Handicap at Garden State. Last year she won seven of 12 races, earning $78,167. Her year was highlighted by wins in the Young Ladies Handicap at Suffolk and the Barlo Handicap at Aqueduct. In her last outing she was third in the Whimsical at Woodbine May 1. She will carry 122 pounds with no rider yet named.

Rounding out the field will be: Rokeby Stable's Ivory Wand, 118; no rider; Hickory Tree Stable's Cast the Die, 11, Don Brumfield; M. R. Clark's Polder Pie, 116, no rider; T. McKinley & A. Parker's Alvarada, 114, Jamie Arellano; Gladwyne Stable's Seven Valleys, 111, David Whited; M. L. Warner's Misukaw, 111, Roger Velez; Fly-Mac Stable's Doc Shah Siren, 111, no rider; Mrs. L.I. Miller's Keep it Secret, 110, no rider; and May-Don Stable's Ali Trace, 110, George Martens.

Fed Funds, never on the turf before, took the lead at the half mile pole and went on to a convincing three-length victory in yesterday's featured eighth race. The winner, trained by Virgil "Buddy" Raines, and ridden by Doug Thomas, substituting for Bill Nemeti, covered the one mile distance in 1:37.4 and paid $12.00, $6.60, and $3.40. Wilderness Bay, under Mike Miceli, was second at $4.60 and $2.80. Turn of Coin, the 3-5 favorite under George Martens, returned $2.20 for show.

The lightly-raced three-year-old colt has now won two of the four starts this year. Last year he won three of five attempts.

Jockey Don MacBeth had a triple for the afternoon. He won with B.J.'s Glory (19.20) in the third, A Little Bold (5.40) in the fifth and Qui Native (7.80) in the seventh.

His mount in the fifth race won because of a disqualification. A Little Bold finished second but Danny Nied couldn't keep a straight with Chief Assagai, the original first place finisher, and that one interfered with Swiss Red in the stretch. Chief Assagai was placed behind Swiss Red in fifth place, giving the win to A Little Bold.

NEMETI, aboard Natural Heritage for the post parade of the fourth race suffered an injury when the head of his horse snapped back and hit him in the head. He had to take off his remaining mounts. This race, won by Sharp Belle, under Larry Saumell, created a minus pool of 86 cents according to Len Titus, Director of Mutuals

Mickey and Karen Taylor's Seattle Slew, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness has been issued the first invitation to the prestigious Monmouth Invitational to be run on Saturday August 6.

"We're flattered and honored to receive the first invitation to this great race," said Mickey Taylor. "Seattle Slew" has had a great racing career so far, but we'll have to let the horse's performance tell us when and where he sould run."

"If he wins the Belmont and the Triple Crown, then we'll get together with trainer Billy Turner and definitely consider the Monmouth Invitational as part of his racing program. We've always loved Monmouth Park. It's a beautiful track and has great racing."

PACE SETTER — Rounding the clubhouse turn in seventh race at Monmouth, Hard Sell (9) is in the lead with jockey Jaimie Arellano aboard. The winner was Qui Native (10) ridden by Don McBeth.

Cormorant skips Slew showdown

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Cormorant, an easy winner of the Jersey Derby last Monday, will bypass another meeting with Seattle Slew and make his next start in the Ohio Derby on June 19.

"That's the race I'm figuring on," trainer Jim Simpson said after Cormorant was returned to home stall at Laurel Race Course. Only if Seattle Slew fails to compete in the Belmont Stakes would Simpson point Cormorant for the last race in the Triple Crown series.

Holwitz makes the 50 pound club

Mike Holwitz of Bradley Beach, who has been fishing for 20 of his 32 years, yesterday achieved the ambition of his young lifetime, a striped bass in excess of 50 pounds.

His prize, hooked at 5:30 a.m. from a flat top jetty at Deal, weighed 54 pounds and 11 ounces, and was still flopping when he dropped it on the scale at Giglio's bait and tackle shop in Sea Bright. It was weighed by Armand Giglio. Later the fish was on display at Tom's Bait and Tackle Shop in Bradley Beach.

Holwitz hooked his monster on a living herring that he had caught on a shad dart in Deal Lake. The big fish fought for 45 minutes to an hour and was very difficult to handle. It took off 200 yards of line on its first run, swimming away steadily for about three minutes. Then it turned abruptly and charged the frantic fisherman who was thankful he had a new high-speed reel to keep slack out of the line.

After that the fish swam off in a circle to the northeast and was eventaully beached between Phillip and Brighton Aves.

Holwitz had a rough time trying to get the fish out of the wash. He said that it appeared to be two feet broad and he gasped the first time he got a good look at it. He finally rolled the fish out on a wave and beached it.

Holwitz was using one of the new model Garcia Ambassadeur 9000C reels which has two gears, one of them a 5½ to 1 high speed. He said that except for that very fast reel he would probably have lost the fish when it charged back to the jetty.

Holwitz said that the striper, probably 25 years old, probably tried the charging tactic deliberately to get slack line to try to work the hook loose. The hook was a 9/0 Mustad tied with a palomar knot to pink Ande 20-pound test line.

The rod, built on a Harnell 540 blank, was made by Chester Podd at Belmar Bait & Tackle. It is eight feet and two inches long.

Of the Ambassadeur, Holwitz said: "It is the best reel made." The fish is being mounted by Wildlife Studio, Manasquan.

Holwitz, who works for the General Motors plant in Linden, had the bass weighed in several other places after Giglio's and got a top reading of 54 pounds and 14 ounces. All the weights were over 54 pounds.

His fish was 54 inches long and 38 inches around. According to Tom Van Note of the Bradley Beach store the fish's stomach was empty. It could easily have scaled several pounds more.

HENRY SCHAEFER

Fishing in the same area on Wednesday morning, Holwitz caught four stripers weighing 38, 28, 20 and 19½ pounds. He said that the giant yesterday was much more difficult to handle than any of the others.

Giglio said that Holwitz' fish may prove to be the largest for the Jersey shore this year. The store, one of the favorite gathering places for surf fishermen on the North Jersey Shore, maintains a "50 Pound Plaque."

The plaque was started in 1965 and up until yesterday morning there were only 10 names on it. Holwitz becomes the 11th man to get his name on the plaque.

Three men achieved plaque immortality in 1974. They were Frank Petillo, Middletown, 54-3; Bill McFadden, Irvington, 50-5; and Gerry Riedinger, Asbury Park, 50-14.

Yesterday's monster was the first fish to take a Holwitz bait, also the last. There really didn't seem to be any reason to continue fishing.

However, Holwitz did go back to the jetty just to see whether or not it is real. He found other fishermen there and seven stripers lying on the rocks.

Mike Boehler of Highlands caught a 21-pound striper on an Adams Popper in the surf yesterday morning, weighing the fish at Julian's in Atlantic Highlands. Jerry Sabanskas of Highlands caught a nine and a half pound striped bass on a plug on Tuesday. Jeff Durniak of Middletown caught a 19½-pound striper on a live mossbunker on Wednesday and Joe Avella of Elizabeth caught a 15½ pounder on a bunker spoon at Flynn's Knoll.

SEASON'S LARGEST — Mike Holwitz of Bradley Beach with the 54-pound 11-ounce striped bass he caught on a live herring from a Deal jetty early yesterday. He caught four big stripers the day before.

Last three U.S. entrants ousted from British golf

GANTON, England (AP) — U.S. interest in the British Amateur Golf Championship came to an abrupt halt Thursday when Madden Hatcher, Bill Loeffler and Dick Runkle were ousted unceremoniously out of the last 32 on Ganton's 6,779-yard, par 72 course.

They were the last of a 54-strong U.S. contingent which started play here Monday and they all bowed out in tame fashion to Britons.

Hatcher, a 17-year-old U.S. junior champion from Columbus, Ga., lost 6 and 4 to John Glover; Loeffler, from Englewood, N.J., was beaten 5 and 4 by Sandy Lyle, and Runkle, of Los Angeles succumbed 4 and 3 to Peter McEvoy.

Only Runkle started out as if he was going to make a fight. He was only 1-down at the turn, but both Loeffler and Hatcher had disasters early. Loeffler was 3-down after the ninth. Hatcher, at the same stage, was 5-down. Neither Hatcher nor Loeffler could recoup and Runkle cracked badly coming home.

So the United States was left without any representation in the last 16 for the first time in 10 years.

Hatcher, a high school student over here on a week's special vacation, looked good in his first two matches, particularly in beating Frenchman Philippe Ploujoux 5 and 4 in the third round Wednesday.

But his lack of experience and the relentless accuracy of Glover — himself a British junior champion 27 years ago — wore him down. He got off to a bad start — 2-down on the first four holes and 5-down after nine — and totally failed to bring his game together.

He managed to get back a hole on the 12th when Glover was bunkered and Hatcher hit a good second to within 10 yards of the pin. But he couldn't capitalize on it.

He had bad luck on the par 5 13th, a 524-yarder, when both he and Glover found bunkers. They both recovered to get on the green for three but whereas Glover was down in par, Hatcher's second putt reached the hole then bounced back off the rim.

That put him 5-down, and he followed with a disastrous 14th — 283 yards flanked on the lefthand side by thick gorse. His drive was long, but veered to the left and landed just inside a bush. Another couple of yards and he would have been clear of the hazard within easy reach of the green.

But as it was he had the choice either of picking up and dropping with penalty or trying to hack his way out.

He didn't have much choice and shifted to a left-hand stance. He prodded his ball out a few yards but by then Glover was within feet of the pin in two and Hatcher had to concede.

Lyle, the 1975 English Amateur stroke play champion who beat Lee Davis of Los Angeles 4 and 3 in the previous round, was too steady for Loeffler. The American, who turned 3-down, lost the 11th when he bogeyed the par 4, 403-yard hole. Then, like Hatcher, he came to grief among the gorse on the 14th.

Runkle cracked badly coming in and dropped three out of the first five holes on the back nine.

It was a bad day for heralded Britons, as well. In the two rounds played Thursday the last three remaining seeds were both sidelined — last year's losing finalist, John Davies, and Ian Hutcheon of Scotland lost in the morning fourth round.

Birdies stake Archer to lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — George Archer, on the verge of quitting the tour until he won the Sahara Invitational last fall, birdied his last three holes for a six-under-par 66 that staked him to a one-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Archer, a former Masters champion, said he'd decided to leave the four until that 1976 victory.

"That gave me an exemption for this year and that's the only reason I'm out here now," said Archer, who has played poorly since an operation on his left wrist two years ago.

"It was a disaster," he said.

"It's a long-time thing to get over. It took away my left side and everthing went, putting and everything. I'm still trying to get some distance back. It's coming, but it's slow."

He finished with a rush in the hot, humid weather, however, twice sinking putts in the 20-25 foot range and once hitting a two-iron to within four feet for a birdie-birdie-birdie finish that lifted him in front of power-hitting Jim Dent, big Barney Thompson and Tom Weiskopf, tied at 67.

"I'm feel I'm starting to play the kind of golf I'm capable of playing," said Weiskopf, who hasn't won in two years but managed a nine-birdie, seven-under-par 65 in the last round of last week's Atlanta Classic.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, Kermit Zarley and Don Iverson were at 68, four under par and only two off the lead.

Lanny Wadkins, twice a runnerup this season and the leader through three rounds last week, headed a large group at 69. Defending champion Joe Inman, Hubert Green and Lee Trevino were in a group at 70.

Arnold Palmer had it three under par after eight holes but bogeyed his next two and finished with a 71.

A severe winter, followed by a drought, killed most of the grass on the 7,160-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course and recent storms turned most of the fairways into muddy plains. As a result, officials lined all fairways and players were allowed to lift, clean and place the ball inside the lined areas.

The leader — George Archer of Reno, Nev. checks his score card after making birdie putt on the 18th green to go 6-under par (66) and take the first round lead in the Kemper Open.

Sports Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Promoter Don King announced Thursday that he has signed heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali to defend his title in early July against Italian boxer Alfio Righetti.

No other details were available.

King also reached terms for two lightweight championship bouts.

Esteban DeJesus of Puerto Rico, recognized as that division's champion by the World Boxing Council, will defend his crown against undefeated Vicente Saldivar of Mexico in San Juan, Puerto Rico June 25 in a bout to be televised by ABC.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The financially struggling Indiana Pacers "will either be sold or some kind of a positive step taken" by next Monday, James Hilliard, president of the National Basketball Association franchise, said Thursday.

The money to meet a $100,000 payroll, which was due Wednesday, "is in the city right now, but at the minute it is tied to an option to purchase the team," Hilliard said.

He said the monthly payroll would be met by noon Friday "one way or another." He did not elaborate.

NEW YORK (AP) — Defensive tackle Charles "Tank" Marshall, a third-round draft choice from Texas A&M, has signed with the New York Jets, the National Football League club said Thursday.

Marshall, 6-foot-4 and 261 pounds, twice earned All-Southwest Conference honors.

The Jets also signed wide receiver Frank Russell, a free agent from the University of Maryland who played briefly with Baltimore in the NFL and with Portland in the World Football League.

CARACAS (AP) — The U.S. amateur boxing team scored three victories in the first part of the semifinals Wednesday night in an international boxing tournament.

The semifinals were to be completed Thursday night.

The U.S. victories entitled the team to compete for gold, silver and bronze medals in all divisions except junior flyweight, flyweight and junior welterweight.

Cuba and the United States will clash on Saturday in the heavyweight division. Highlight of Saturday's action will be a bout between Cuban Olympic heavyweight champion Teofilo Stevenson and either Woody Clark or Mitchell Green, both of the United States.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr. Renee Richards, the controversial 42-year-old transsexual tennis player, signed a two-year contract Thursday to play World Team Tennis with the Cleveland-Pittsburgh Nets.

Nets owner Joe Zingale, announcing the contract, said he signed the practicing opthalmologist from Newport Beach, Calif., because she "is a good player" and will be "a tremendous drawing card."

Atlantic City cheers casino bill signing

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Amid much hoopla on the Boardwalk, Gov. Brendan T. Byrne signed legislation yesterday to implement casino gambling here and warned organized crime to "keep your filthy hands out of Atlantic City — keep the hell out of our state."

Several thousand onlookers jammed the famous Boardwalk in front of Convention Hall to watch Byrne sign the bill that was authorized by a state referendum last November.

"This legislation will be a success if we can run the casinos honorably, decently and cleanly," Gov. Byrne said.

"Organized crime is not welcome in Atlantic City," Gov. Byrne said amid cheers by the spectators and scores of state politicians who flocked here for the event.

Mayor Joseph Lazarow said, "This is the beginning of a new future of Atlantic City, we have no doubt. But with this great city comes a great responsibility."

Former state Sen. Frank S. "Hap" Farley, former Republican political boss of South Jersey, called the event a "day of great rejoicing. Yes, this is a new era."

Farley, 75, who had been seriously ill last winter, said, "I feel so good inside. God was good to let me live to see this."

City workers were given a half day off to attend the ceremonies that included a Dixieland band, tap and hoola dancers and a manned balloon from Great Adventure.

Gov. Byrne signed the legislation under the muggy and overcast skies, proclaiming, "This is a beautiful day in Atlantic City." He signed the bill to the music of "Happy Days Are Here Again."

"I believe that if this legislation can restore Atlantic City's vision as the 'Queen of Resorts,' it will be a success," Byrne said.

He warned, however, the resort must "remain a city of all its citizens." He said it needs "decent housing" not just new hotel rooms.

Gov. Byrne apparently was referring to recent claims by Puerto Rican groups that their slum landlords were evicting them to cash in on inflated casino real estate prices.

Strawberries over hoopla

HAMMONTON (AP) — Mayor Russell Clark wasn't being perverse or shy when he decided to shun the big casino gambling signing ceremony down the road in Atlantic City yesterday.

Not that he dislikes gambling. It's just that like most folks here he likes strawberries better.

"They invited me to the ceremony, but I couldn't go," said Clark who divides his time between working his fruit farm and his duties at town hall. "I have a strawberry crop to pick and one of my men had a death in the family, so I'm out in the fields today."

Hammontown is a town of 12,000 people, about 25 miles east of Atlantic City. They share the same county, but have little else in common. With casinos coming in down the road, Hammonton will be to Atlantic City what Mesquite, Nev. is to Las Vegas: same county, different planet.

"It's very quiet here and it will probably stay that way after gambling comes to Atlantic City," Clark said. "The people here were in favor of gambling for several reasons, but it isn't going to change us drastically."

For the past few months, with the fever of impending gambling running through the resort like an epidemic, businessmen and politicians in Atlantic City have been dreaming of tourists and trade and "no vacancy" signs on every hotel door.

Clark dreams of good rainfall for his peach and strawberry crop and a little light industry to make the property taxes go down.

Clark thinks some of the vacant land in town may be developed to the community's advantage as homes for the people who come to work in Atlantic City.

Will people in Hammonton go to Atlantic City to gamble?

"I might go a couple times to see what it's like," he said. "I don't have to gamble at the tables. I've got 300 acres of orchards to gamble with."

Predict fall casino opening

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Resorts International Corp. held its annual stockholders meeting yesterday in its Palace Hotel here and company officials predicted the hotel's casino would open this fall.

James M. Crosby, chairman of the board, told about 200 stockholders attending the meeting that the corporation also will "proceed in earnest" with construction of a new 1,000-room hotel on the Boardwalk.

The meeting was held down the Boardwalk from the Convention Hall ceremony at which Gov. Brendan T. Byrne signed the bill setting up regulation of casino gambling here.

"It's a great day for Atlantic City and it should be a great day for Resorts International," Crosby said.

The Palace Hotel, believed to be the only hotel that can qualify for a casino without construction of a substantial addition, would hold the first gambling spa, Crosby said.

He indicated it might hold a monopoly position for six months or longer.

Resort's hotel, he said, could not open for two years.

The only sign of dissent at the meeting came from Huntington Hartford, the A&P heir and former owner of Paradise Island, Resort International's gambling and hotel complex in the Bahamas.

Hartford estimated Crosby personally clears up to $1 million a year from the bridge tolls. He said the bridge should be the property of Resorts International.

Crosby said that when the island resort was developed Resorts International did not have sufficient capital to construct the bridge so he raised money for it himself and is properly reaping the profits.

Casino plan offered by Las Vegas group

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — The owner of the Las Vegas casino Caesar's Palace announced yesterday it has signed a formal agreement for a 99-year lease on a Boardwalk site here.

It is the first known investment here by a Nevada gambling casino.

Cynwyd Investments Inc. of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., which owns the land, has agreed to lease the property, formerly the Traymore hotel site, at an annual rent that starts at $825,000 and increases over the term of the lease, said officials of Caesar's World Inc., parent firm of Caesar's Palace.

Caesar's officials said they have an option to buy the property for $12.5 million in the 10th year of the lease.

Caesar's announced nine days ago it agreed to lease unspecified property on Boardwalk. Other sources identified the property as the Traymore.

"We believe this site is one of the premiere locations in Atlantic City and in our opinion is an excellent property for investment," said William H. McElnea, Caesar's World president.

He said the Los Angeles firm plans to locate a casino-hotel on the six-acre site. Ceasar's officials said they did not have detailed building plans.

Richard Sheehan, corporate counsel and secretary of the firm, said Caesar's is not negotiating for any more property here.

He denied recent news reports that the Colony Motel, adjacent to the Traymore property, is included in the deal.

The Traymore Hotel, long an integral part of the city's skyline, was razed in 1972. The huge concrete building stood on the Boardwalk between Illinois and Indiana Avenues.

The Traymore's demise symbolized for many the darkest days for Atlantic City. It is now a parking lot with a number of small novelty and food stands on its Boardwalk frontage.

The agreement to lease the property, came on the day Gov. Brendan T. Byrne signed legislation to implement casino gaming here. It came almost three weeks after Nevada Gov. Mike O'Callaghan signed a law allowing casino owners to invest outside of Nevada.

Casesar's Palace president William S. Weinberger announced May 14 he had signed a 10-year contract with Bally Manufacturing Corp. to manage the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel here. The hotel is a block from the Traymore site.

Caesar's World also owns three resort hotels in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania, a condominium-country club in North Miami Beach and computer companies in Woodbury, N.J., and Los Angeles.

The Township of Middletown

Per 24 CFR Part 58.19(c), a project funded under a Federal grant which is a continuation of a previously commenced activity or activities for which environmental review or clearance, including the availability of additional data or advances in technology, have not changed significantly, requires no new environmental review or clearance by virtue of such project's funding under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

Remains of two autos reflect fatal, head-on collision

CRUSHED AUTO — Four of five young persons riding in this 1975 Pinto were killed early yesterday morning when it collided head-on with a Dodge Polara on the Sea Bright-Higlands Bridge. A passenger in the second car was also killed.

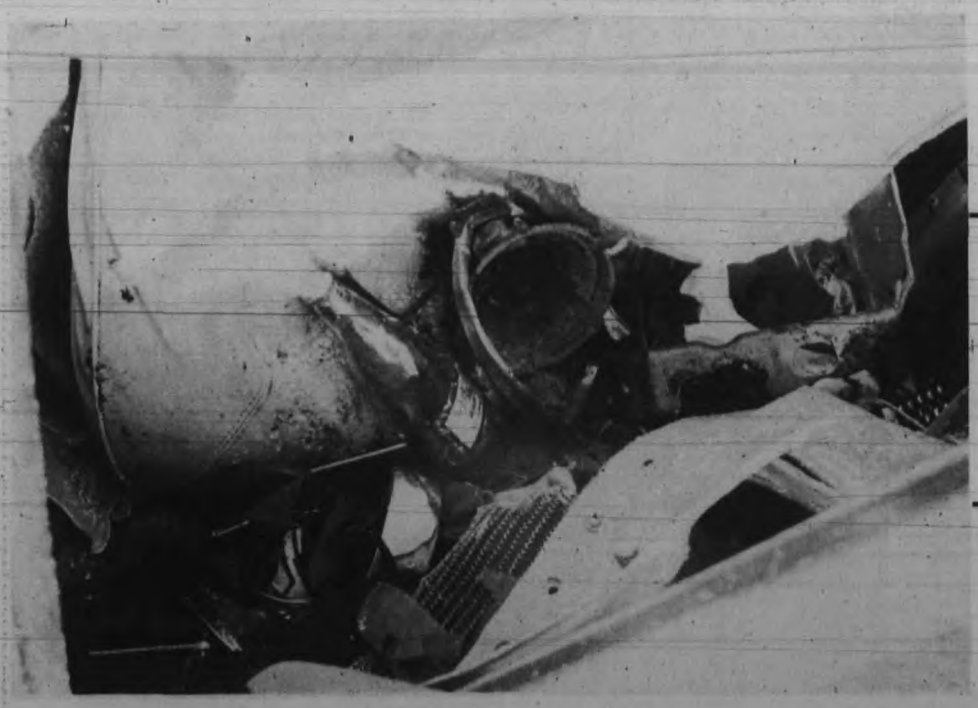

Register photos by Carl Perino

MANGLED INTERIOR — The steering wheel is twisted out of shape and partially embedded in the dashboard in the mangled interior of the Pinto. The keys are still in the car's steering column.

AFTERMATH — The impact of the collision is evident on front end of 1969 Dodge Polara that was towed to a Sea Bright gas station after yesterday's accident.

INSIDE CAR — Two beer bottles were found in the car, but first aid squadmen and firemen could not say the bottles were in car at time of accident.

FROZEN SPEED? — The speedometer on this 1969 Polara was frozen at about 96 miles per hour, but the service manager of an area auto dealership said this is no indication of the car's true speed at time of impact. Police would not comment on the car's speed.

Joe Hoffman stopped them!

As New Jersey's dynamic Commissioner of Labor and Industry, Joe Hoffman cut the red tape that was strangling these companies. And he saved the jobs of 19,000 New Jersey workers. He also brought a half billion dollars of new investment capital into our state. Creating tens of thousands of new jobs. And he did it while slashing nearly two million dollars off his department's budget.

Market in options is broadened

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

By SYLVIA PORTER

Today for the first time ever, you will be able to buy and sell put options on 24 listed stocks at five major exchanges throughout the U.S.

You could trade in listed options before this, of course, but all were "call" options — which, simply stated, give you the right to BUY a stock at a specified price for a period of up to nine months.

You buy "call" options to get a stake in stocks you think will go up in value; you buy "put" options to sell stocks you think are about to decline in value.

It was only as recently as 1973 that trading in "call" options was inaugurated by the Chicago Board Options Exchange — but virtually overnight, gambling, speculating (and investing) in options doubled, tripled, quadrupled and since then trading volume and variety has continued to balloon to a sensational degree. Originally, call option contracts were offered in 16 stocks; today, you can trade listed call options in 220 different issues.

Now, the addition of "put" options is certain to stimulate even more fever in this aspect of the securities industry — for with put and call options, you can contract to sell and buy stocks without owning them and at a fraction of the price.

What's more, the flexibility of both puts and calls should attract more and more conservative investors to the options concept, says Edward F. Keenan Jr., manager of options marketing at Merrill Lynch, the biggest financial services company in the nation.

"Options provide another way for knowledgeable investors to broaden their securities investment techniques," Keenan explains. "They're a complement to a stock portfolio, not a substitute.

"Knowledgeable is the key word," he emphasizes. "You must have a full understanding of the options market and the same current market information as professionals." (A mouthful of massive "musts" disguised in simple language, whisper I).

Q. How do options work?

A. Unlike stocks, options aren't issued by companies, but rather by the Options Clearing Corp., which also guarantees them. They are created by the actual participants in the options market. For instance, an investor who owns 100 shares of XYZ Corp. selling at 50 can write an option offering the right to buy or sell those shares at 55 for a three-month period. In return for the option, the investor collects a premium. All option contracts are for 100 shares, with one of three expiration dates up to nine months in the future.

Q. What are the advantages of options?

A. Options writing gives investors the opportunity to increase their return on stocks they own. Options allow you to have a stake in shares of stock you don't own and you can purchase them at a small fraction of the price of the stock itself. As a buyer, all you risk is the premium you pay.

Q. How can you, an average investor, participate?

First, as a "call" option writer, if you own any of the 220 shares in which options are traded. This may provide you with added income from your shares with modest risk.

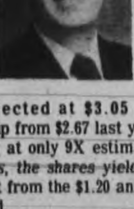

Second, as a "call" buyer, in which case you bet on a rise in the price of the stock in the next six months by buying the call at a fraction of the market price. Your risk is limited to the premiums you pay for the calls.

Third, as a "put" buyer, in which case you buy an option entitling you to sell that stock at a fixed price. If the stock falls, you either can buy the stock at the contracted price or resell the option itself for a profit.

Fourth, as a "hedger." As Merrill Lynch explains in its new weekly magazine on the options market, "Options Alert" ($175), you can use options to protect your stocks against a price drop or take added advantage of a price rise. In short, you can use options to hedge your investments as a kind of insurance.

Most brokerage firms offer booklets on options; seminars are commonplace all over the U.S. If you're sufficiently sophisticated to get into the complexities (and will pay the stiff $175 price asked for the magazine), call Merrill Lynch collect: in New York state 212-766-3900; outside New York state 800-221-4232.

Advice to a youthful investor

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q — I will be graduating from high school this month and wish to make my first purchase on Wall Street. I have roughly $600 to invest. Two stocks that interest me are Louisiana Land & Exploration and Standard Oil of Indiana, both on the Big Board. I would appreciate your opinion of these stocks as suitable invesments for me. R. S. California

A — Both issues are attractive for long-term investment purposes on the basis of appreciation potential coupled with a reasonable current yield. From its original concentration in the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana Land has expanded into Alaska, the North Sea and the Rocky Mountains' Overthrust Belt. Offshore production should be higher and will benefit from the increased gas price of $1.44 per MCF. New drilling in Alaska and the Overthrust should prove rewarding, although results have not yet been announced. Net for 1977 is projected at $3.05 per share, up from $2.67 last year. Trading at only 9X estimated earnings, the shares yield 4.5 per cent from the $1.20 annual dividend.

Standard Oil of Indiana, also derives the bulk of its earnings from its domestic operations. Here the company plans to spend a huge $1 billion on capital and exploration projects this year. Pet*rochemicals, the fastest-growing* segment of its business, will be stressed. Significant recent discoveries in the Overthrust Belt in the Rockies will boost 1977 production. Earnings should reach $6.90 per share, up from $6.09 reported for 1976. Paying $2.60 a share in annual dividends, this issue yields 5 per cent.

Q — We have $25,000 invested in Investors Diversified Stock and Mutual Funds. We will soon need additional income to supplement our retirement income. Should we continue to hold these two funds and go onto a withdrawal plan? Or, is there a better plan for us? H. H., Nebraska

A — Investors Mutual, the higher-yielding of your two funds, should be retained, so that you will have some growth potential. However, all distributions should be taken in cash rather than reinvested. The Stock Fund should be exchanged for IDS Bond Fund. You currently earn a bit over $1,000 annually from income dividends, now being reinvested. By exchanging the Stock for the Bond Fund, your dividend income will increase to just under $3,000 annually.

(Mr. Sargent cannot answer all mail personally, but will answer all questions possible in his column.)

Stock market rally bogs down

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed yesterday, bogging down after the rally of the previous session played itself out.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about 3 points in early trading, closed with a 3.40 loss at 903.15.

Big Board volume continued to set a sluggish pace, totalling 18.62 million shares against 18.32 million on Wednesday.

The Dow had climbed 7.890 on Wednesday for its best showing in more than a month, and in the process reversed a 43-point slide over the last eight sessions in May.

But analysts said traders seemed unimpressed by the light turnover that accompanied the upswing, writing it off as simply a short term bounce that was to be expected after a protracted decline.

In other markets, the American Stock Exchange index was down .06 at 112.25, and the NASDAQ composite index of over-the-counter stocks closed at 95.80, off .06.

No toll increases without hearing

FORT LEE (AP) — The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey will be required to hold public hearings before increasing tolls on its bridges and tunnels or fares on its mass transit facilities under a new law signed yesterday by Gov. Brendan T. Byrne.

Board declares 50-cent dividend

TRENTON — The board of directors of New Jersey National Corporation has declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share. The dividend is payable on July 15, 1977 to shareholders of record at the close of business on June 30, 1977.

New Jersey National Corporation is the parent company of New Jersey National Bank, the state's fourth largest bank, with total assets of over one billion dollars on Dec. 31, 1976.

ASK ABOUT OUR EUROPEAN DELIVERY PLAN

To the engineers at BMW, extraordinary performance—a far more costly automotive achievement than superficial opulence—is the only thing that makes an expensive car worth the money.

The engine of the BMW 530i is a fuel-injected, three-liter masterpiece that never ceases to amaze even the experts with its smooth, turbine-like power. The suspension system is fully independent on all four wheels—and nothing short of uncanny.

So totally impressive is the 530i that after thoroughly considering the subject, the editors of Road & Track magazine flatly declared it to be "...the best sports sedan in the world."

If you believe performance to be the only reasonable criteria for judging a car, call us and we'll set aside ample time for you to drive and consider the 530i.
