Summit Spade Work Needed

DeGaulle States Preparations Necessary

President De Gaulle

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle said last night there should be no more summit conferences until the way to agreement is paved by "methodic diplomatic work."

After reasonable preparation by all four powers, De Gaulle said in a TV-radio report to the French nation, France would be ready to play host again to a top level meeting.

"Methodic diplomatic work is worth more than tumultuous exchange of public speeches or the feverish debates of delegates at the United Nations," he declared.

De Gaulle was the last of the Big Four leaders to report on the breakdown of the summit parley here two weeks ago.

Despite the collapse of the talks, he said, France is determined to do her part to seek an easing of world tensions, controlled disarmament and East-West co-operation "devoted to the service of man."

Stayed Home

Commenting on Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's demands on President Eisenhower over the U2 spy plane incident, De Gaulle suggested that the Russian leader might better have stayed home rather than come to wreck the parley.

He termed the U2 flight 15 days before the meeting "untimely" but said it was "not sufficent motive for refusing to open at the summit discussion of the world's affairs."

It was too much, he added, for Khrushchev to demand public apologies from Washington just after Moscow had launched a new space ship which was passing 18 times a day over the West.

Organized Place

While waiting for organized peace, De Gaulle continued, France is determined to be ready to defend herself.

"That means first that she remains an integral part of the Atlantic alliance," he said. "The recent testing has shown the

Manville Is Named To Board Post

MATAWAN — Alfred R. Manville, 43, of 38 Little St. was appointed to the Board of Education last night.

He replaces Duncan F. Black, who recently moved out of town.

Mr. Manville got the nod over two other candidates, Ernest C. Weigel, 28 Beechwood Ter., Matawan, and Vincent duBeau, 772 Pinehurst St., Cliffwood Beach.

All three of the men were interviewed by the board, privately, at the high school last night.

Mr. Manville, who was named chairman of the board's athletic committee, is vice president of J. Livingston and Co., New York.

Born in Carbondale, Pa., he has lived here six years. He is the father of five girls and two boys.

Mr. Manville was graduated from Rutgers University with a BS degree in electrical engineering. He is a member of Trinity Episcopal Church, a New York Boy Scout official, and a veteran of World War II. He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Matron Now Keeps Locker Room Clean

RED BANK — The girl's locker room at Red Bank High School, once described by an angry parent as "scurvy," now has a matron to keep it clean.

In a special session last night, the Board of Education voted to hire Mrs. Violet Orfinada, Red Bank effective last Thursday, for the remainder of the school year.

Salary Set

Her salary was set at $1.15 an hour. Dr. M. Gregg Hibbs, superintendent of schools, said Mrs. Orfinada will have other duties in addition to seeing that the locker room is kept clean.

The other duties will be established later, he said.

Dr. Hibbs said the Parent-Teacher Association has requested a matron in past years.

At the request of Leon F. Rosenfeld, 3 Brown Pl., the board turned over to William Pazicky, River Street School principal, the problem of possibly changing the location of the eighth grade graduation.

Mr. Rosenfeld said the school auditorium is too hot to hold the ceremony there.

Rejected Before

Dr. Hibbs said the problem had been "thoroughly investigated" two or three years ago and a proposal to have the graduation in the high school gymnasium or at the athletic field "was not approved."

He said the feeling at that time was that a ceremony at the athletic field would be an "over emphasis on promotion."

The graduation now is slated for June 15 at 2 p. m. in the River Street School auditorium.

The board voted to hire Mrs. Doris C. Bugnolo, New York City, as a kindergarten teacher to replace Mrs. Hazel Jeffrey. Mrs. Bugnolo holds a master's degree from Columbia University Teachers College. She has seven years of teaching experience. Her salary was set at $6,100.

Promote Janitor

Armando Canonico was promoted from panitor to maintenance man with a $100 salary increase to $4,150 a year.

Ortho Lovelace, Monmouth St., Red Bank, was hired as a janitor at River Street School as of July 1 at $3,100, and Felix Binaco, River Plaza, was hired as a janitor at $3,100 when the new salary guide goes into effect July 1. Mr. Binaco's employment is effective last Tuesday.

The board awarded bids for athletic supplies and physical education equipment to Sherwood's, Red Bank, and ATSCO, New York.

Also awarded were contracts for a number of janitorial supplies.

Girl, 3, Is Saved From Drowning

PORT MONMOUTH—A three-year-old girl nearly drowned yesterday after she wandered into Raritan Bay while playing on the beach here.

The girl, Noami Astacio of Beach Ter., was pulled to safety by her father, Jose Astacio. Unconscious, the girl was revived by her father and taken to Riverview Hospital, where she was treated for shock and immersion and released.

Police said her father saw her struggling in the water and raced from the house to bring her to safety.

The girl was taken to the hospital by the Port Monmouth First Aid Squad.

The Astacio family lives in Jamaica, L. I., and rent a summer bungalow here.

Boggs Quits School Board

KEYPORT — Harrison R. Boggs today will end 4½ years of service as a member of the Booard of Education.

Donald A. Hill, board secretary, announced that he received the resignation of Mr. Boggs, effective today, listing demands of private business as the reason for his action.

Mr. Boggs served as vice president of the board last year and currently has been serving as chairman of the school curriculum and guide, athletic programs and Holmdel-Union Beach-Keyport Regional School survey committees.

The board is expected to accept the resignation at its meeting Tuesday and possibly act on filling the vacancy at that time, Mr. Hill said.

Driver's Warrant Is Issued

NEW SHREWSBURY — An arrest warrant was issued here yesterday for John Caproni, Trenton, on charges of causing death by auto and reckless driving.

The warrant was issued yesterday morning by Magistrate Marvin E. Schaefer on a complaint filed by Patrolman Robert Cartwright. Caproni also was charged with reckless driving.

Caproni's car was involved in a collision Sunday night with one driven by George Crowell, 37, of 440 Prospect Ave., Little Silver, in which a passenger, Mrs. Blanche Lesh, 77, of 44 Irving Pl., Red Bank, suffered fatal injuries.

Police Chief James A. Herring last night said that charges against Caproni include one that he was in the act of passing "on the right hand shoulder, a moving line of traffic" as he proceeded westbound on the Rt. 66 overpass across the Garden State Parkway.

The Caproni car ended up in a headon crash with the auto driven by Mr. Crowell.

The Register stated erroneously yesterday that another passenger in the Crowell car was Councilman Eugene Magee of Fair Haven. Mr. Magee was not in the car. His name was included in an Associated Press report.

According to the councilman's wife, Mr. Magee's name got into the news because he, a nephew of the deceased woman, visited Fitkin Hospital to take charge of the arrangements after the accident.

Chief Herring said of Caproni las night that "we believe we can pick him up when he visits his wife in the hospital."

Mrs. Caproni was one of the persons injured in the crash.

Patrolman Cartwright also said that, contrary to reports, Caproni, himself suffered head injuries in the accident.

Others hurt were Mr. Crowell's wife, Elizabeth, 37; their daughter, Elizabeth, and son, George, and Mrs. Elizabeth Magee, of 44 Irving Pl., Red Bank.

Murder Case Lead

Accused Killer to Be Questioned

NEW YORK (AP) — Henry Roy Purcell, accused of shooting a drugstore clerk to death while the latter's nine-year-old son looked on, will be questioned today in a New Brunswick, N.J. quadruple slaying.

Purcell, 30, who is being held here in the killing of Abraham Hymowitz, 49, during a holdup attempt, has told police he escaped from a Colorado mental institution.

Purcell's girl friend, Susan Winters, 21, got a stay of sentence on a prostitution charge yesterday from a magistrate who noted that she was willing to "cooperate with the authorities in an unsolved crime."

Plan Questioning

Later, Edward J. Dolan, prosecutor of Middlesex County, N.J., said he planned to question Purcell in connection with the slaying of four persons last January at the North Brunswick Township, N.J., home of Dr. Francis Clarke.

Found shot to death at the Clarke home were the doctor's wife, Mrs. Edith Clarke, 50; her housekeeper, Dorothy Moore, 66, a maid, Mrs. Cora Thaddies, 29, and a cab driver, Maurice Michaels, 56, who apparently drove the killer to the Clarke home.

There has been speculation that the killer was looking for narcotics. Purcell has been described by police here as a longtime narcotics user.

Work of 'Madman'

Dolan said authorities in New Jersey believe the quadruple slaying was the work of a "madman," and he said the description of Purcell doesn't quite match that given by witnesses who saw the New Jersey killer.

NASA's Role in Spy Flight Being Studied; U2 Probe Continues

ARRIVES FOR U2 PROBE — Allen Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, arrives in the New Senate Office Building for a closed-door hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations committee on the circumstances surrounding the ill-fated U2 flight over Russia. Agency Aide Quiz Set Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The role of the National Acronautics and Space Administration (NASA) as a cover for U.S. espionage flights over Russia was studied today by a Senate committee.

The Senate Foreign Relations committee summoned Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, NASA's deputy administrator, as it continued its inquiry into the U2 spy plane incident a month ago.

Dryden faced questioning about two statements concerning the "weather mission" it issued after the U2 had been brought down over Soviet Russia two weeks before the collapse of the Paris summit meeting.

His testimony, like that of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter last Friday, was to be made available to newsmen as fast as the transcript can be censored.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), refused to tell the committee yesterday the nature of the information the U2 sought on that flight.

Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn) pressed Dulles to say what was so important about the mission as to justify it so close to the summit meeting.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), reporting that, said Dulles had replied he preferred not to comment on the question.

Little Comment

And that was just about all Fulbright would say about Dulles' testimony, which the latter refused to release for publication even in censored form.

Fulbright said Dulles had no part in the decision of President Eisenhower to accept full responsibility for the flight, a decision Fulbright said he was convinced was "unwise."

Fulbright said he previously had the impression Dulles had offered to accept this responsibility.

The chairman said the decision apparently was made by the

Reverse Position

Offer Contract To Superintendent

MATAWAN —The Board of Education last night reversed its position and offered Russell A. G. Stetler, school superintendent, a full-year contract for the 1960-61 school year.

At a budget hearing Jan. 31, the board revealed plans to dismiss Mr. Stetler in February of next year.

Accordingly, the 1960-61 budget, which was approved by voters here Feb. 9, provides only $5,040 fro Mrs. Stetler's 1960-61 salary.

On a pro-rata basis, the $5,040 figure would carry the superintendent through February, 1961.

At the same budget hearing, the board announced plans to hire a new superintendent this summer, at a salary of approximately $12,000.

Pay Hike

But, last night, by unanimous vote, the body agreed to offer a new 12-month contract to the superintendent—at $7,360, an increase of $300, his first hike in several years.

Although it had been kept hush-hush until early this year, and discussed only in private, the board and Mr. Stetler have been feuding for a number of years.

The decision to keep the superintendent for another 12 months was made in executive session last night.

Board members were hesitant to discuss the matter after the meeting.

The board also voted 1960-61 pay raises for its other administrators.

Three of them will receive higher salaries than the superintendent.

Asbury Park Youth Stabs Stepfather

ASBURY PARK — A 15-year-old boy, Amos Washington, who awoke at 3:30 a. m. yesterday to see his stepfather smash a bottle over his mother's head, ended the fight by plunging a kitchen knife into the father's back.

Though the wound was not serious, it halted further battling and brought police to the scene at 1252 Springwood Ave.

"I pleaded with him to stop beating my mother," the boy said "When he didn't, I got the little knife and cut him."

Amos' 16-year-old sister, Margaretta, ran into the street in her nighclothes and walked four blocks searching for a policeman. Sgt. Horace Pride, on patrol duty, saw her and went back to her home where the fight had been broken up.

Magistrate Eugene Capibianco, later in the day, turned the boy over to juvenile authorities to determine if he should be charged with juvenile delinquency.

The stepfather, James Henderson, 35, a laborer, and his wife, Rosetta, 36, were fined $50 each for fighting. Henderson was treated in Fitkin Hospital, Neptune, and released.

Girl Missing

MIDDLETOWN — Yvonne Huntley, 12, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Huntley, Powell Ave., Hillside, has been missing since Thursday, police reported yesterday. The child is five feet, five inches tall, 135 pounds, black hair, and wears black-rimmed glasses.

Death Toll Reaches 367

CHICAGO (AP) — A final tally shows that 367 persons were killed in traffic accidents over the three-day Memorial Day holiday.

The record for a three-day Memorial Day period is 371, set in 1958. The fatalities also fell short of a pre-holiday estimate of 375 made by the National Safety Council.

However, the over-all toll of 579 deaths, including traffic and those resulting from boating, drowning and miscellaneous accidents far surpassed the previous three-day Memorial week-end record of 504 set in 1947.

Strategy Session Set by Big Three

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Western Big Three strategy meeting was arranged for late today following the second secret session of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter invited Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foregin Minister Maurice Couve de Murville to the private meeting, for which detailed plans were not disclosed.

The Western foreign affairs chiefs were expected to conduct a private post mortem on the summit conference collapse and scan the future for what the Communists might do over the next few months.

They are here for sessions of the SEATO Council of Ministers, which includes also the prime ministers of Australia and New Zealand and the foreign ministers of the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan.

Both Lloyd and Herter were to address the council, completing a round of speechmaking, before the delegates got down to more concrete details in the four-day session.

Yesterday's speakers were said to have agreed in blaming Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev for the summit blowup. They spoke about the danger of a Red Chinese push now in places under SEATO's defense umbrella, such as the tiny kingdom of Laos in Southeast Asia.

The delegates were reported in accord too that the communist threat must not be fought by defense alone, but also through measures to improve the lives of the impoverished millions who comprise most of Asia's population.

The Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan were said to be interested in more economic help from the others. The economic questions were expected to come up for discussion later. But Western officials gave no evidence of proposing a big stepup in aid.

Among the Big Three, the feeling prevailed that now in the wake of the summit fiasco is no time to start considering a future get-together by the East-West chiefs of state.

UrbanRenewalPlan

HIGHLANDS — The new council-appointed Urban Redevelopment Agency and members of the Planning Board met last night with John Zvosec and Carl Lindbloom, representatives of Community Planning Associates of West Trenton.

The redevelopment of an approximate area extending from Second St. to the waterfront, and including Cedar St. over to Cornwell St. was discussed.

Mr. Lindbloom outlined a procedure to obtain federal aid for the conversion of the blighted area into taxable land under a grant aid program.

He told the group that the local redevelopment agency must first apply to the state for the appointment of a member of the Department of Conservation and Economic Development to serve on its committee.

The agency can then apply to the West Trenton firm for a field representative to assist in a feasibility study. The federal government advances $5,000 for the study, cancelling out the debt if the complete project is not carried out.

If the study proves the project to be physically and financially feasible, the $5,000 becomes part of the total project cost, of which the borough pays one third.

'An Honest Mistake' Gets Variance for Post Office

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — "An honest mistake," declared chairman Anthony DeMaio when the Zoning Board of Adjustment last night approved a variance to allow construction to continue on the $44,000 post office at Hazlet Ave. and Rt. 35.

The "mistake" was the issuance of a building permit by the building inspector for construction of the post office with a 30-foot setback from Hazlet Ave. Township zoning specifies a 50-foot setback.

Construction was halted when the mistake was realized by the zoning inspector. A variance was necessary to allow construction to contine.

'Embarrassing'

"This could have been very embarrassing if anything other than a post office," secretary Fred F. Iverson said as he cast an affirmative vote.

William Cahill, the only other member of the board present at the special session, also voted for the variance.

Plans and specifications for the building were prepared by the Post Office Department and showed only a 30-foot setback from Hazlet Ave. It was for these complete and detailed plans that the permit was issued.

John C. Giordano, Jr., representing Shore Gas and Oil Co., Inc., Oakhurst, stressed that the application for the building permit was made in good faith and was duly issued.

He said the structure was substantially started and represented an expenditure of a large sum of money.

According to Louis Shapiro of the oil company, an expenditure in excess of $12,000 has been made, including legal fees, engineering costs, payments to the sub-contractor and for material on the property.

The time element for completion of the post office building also was stressed. The completion date set by the government is Sept. 30.

Mr. Giordano also said the post office endeavors to help good planning and felt the 30-foot setback wouldn't affect development to the rear of the property, add traffic hazards or congest conditions in the area.

"Many months have been put to the cause of getting a post office for this township by former Mayor Harry P. Seamen, and it is not the intention of this board to take away what has been accomplished," declared Mr. DeMaio.

On To The Suburbs

NEWARK (AP) — America's march to the suburbs has cost Newark, the state's largest city, and Hudson, New Jersey's second biggest county, more than 40,000 persons each during the past 10 years.

Preliminary U.S. census figures released yesterday on the population of the 10th, 11th and 12th Congressional districts (Essex and West Hudson counties) showed Newark now has 395,033 residents compared with 438,776 in 1950. This was the city's smallest recorded population since the census of 1910.

The West Hudson figures, added to figures previously reported for the rest of the county, give Hudson a 1960 population of 606,801. In 1950 the county had 647,437 persons.

Population Loss

Hudson is the first of the 16 New Jersey counties that have reported so far this year to show a population loss. But Newark's story is shared by most of the state's other large cities.

Jersey City, Trenton, Elizabeth and Camden all declined in population during the decade.

Essex County's two outermost suburbs showed the greatest proportional increases in the county. Livingston rose from 9,932 in 1950 to 23,062 this year. North Caldwell went up from 1,781 to 4,165.

County Increased

The county as a whole increased from 905,949 to 912,440. Six of the 22 Essex municipalities lost population. They are Newark, Maplewood, Orange, East Orange, Montclair and Irvington.

The three West Hudson communities — Kearny, Harrison and East Newark — also lost slightly. Ten of Hudson County's 12 municipalities declined in population. The exceptions were Secaucus and North Bergen.

By a margin of 6,801 persons — the excess over 600,000 — Hudson remains a first-class county and is not required to reorganize its county governmental structure.

But, a number of officials of Essex County municipalities have challenged the preliminary figures.

East Orange Mayor James Kelly, Jr., faced with a reported 3,000 decline in his city, said yesterday: "It's ridiculous. I want a recount. There is no possible way our population could have decreased."

Mayor William Lovell of Irvington, which showed an appriciable gain in residents over the past decade, said:

"It's completely astonishing. We are not accepting the census figures at the moment."

In Newark, the state's largest

Tiros I Gets Shove From Radio at Fort

FORT MONMOUTH — A ground station here has given the Tiros I weather satellite a gentle shove by radio to speed up its turns.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said yesterday tiny rockets aboard the 270-pound satellite had been fired by remote control to set the Tiros spinning briskly again.

The satellite had been slowing down in its turns of late, the NASA said, dropping from 10 to 9.4 revolutions per minute.

The gentle spinning motion helps the satellite maintain stability in its circular orbit.

At 4: 33 P. M. EST Friday, during the satellite's 819th orbit, a ground station at Fort Monmouth sent the radio command that successfully turned on the solid propellant rockets.

Information sent back by radio telemetry during the weekend indicated that the rate of spin has been stepped up to about 12.85 revolutions a minute, NASA said.

This is slightly more than the calculated new spin rate, and should maintain stability for a longer period than initially planned, an official said.

The rockets blasts did not affect the satellite's speed, which averages 16,750 miles an hour. Tiros I circles the earth every 90 minutes.

The satellite, in orbit at altitudes between 433 and 465 miles, has taken more than 20,000 pictures of the earth's cloud cover and sent them back to the ground since its launching April 1.

THE SERVICE CLOSES — Mrs. J. Lester Rigby, superintendent of the Sunday school, left, stands beside Mrs. Sarah Scott, the oldest member, after Rev. R. L. Mowbray, right, preached at the final service of Tinton Falls Methodist Church Sunday. Mrs. Scott had attended the church 48 years, served as a trustee and as Communion steward. Tinton Falls members will join the congregation of the Eatontown Methodist Church, now building a new edifice on Wyckoff Rd.

Breakout Foiled

TRENTON (AP) — A state prison breakout failed last night when guards trapped two convicts on the roof of a prison building.

Warden George Goodman said the two prisoners were George Ames of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Edward Sheffield, 30, of 114 Pennsylvania Ave., Newark. They were serving terms for assault and robbery.

Guards discovered the men missing at 9:30 p.m. count and traced them to the roof of the four-story building. The pair was preparing to let themselves down onto city streets with a rope slashed from an elevator.

Goodman said the two prisoners had apparently followed this route:

Working in the cook house, they squeezed through a ventilator to the roof. Then, they picked their way over the prison's rooftops to the administration building. There, guards seized Ames and Sheffield before they could descend.

No Outside Contact

Goodman said the escape attempt appeared to have been a spur of the-moment idea and the two had no contact waiting outside. No others in the prison were believed to be in on the escape attempt, officials added.

Ames is serving a total of 9-to-12 years on charges of atrocious assault and possession of a dangerous weapon with intent to use it illegally. He has been at the prison since Feb. 21, 1958.

Sheffield is serving a total of 30-to-45 years on several consecutive sentences for robbery. He came to the prison Oct. 20, 1959.

The roof of the administration building has been the target of escape attempts in the past.

A guard house there was removed during renovations on the century-old prison several years ago.

The prison board of managers has requested funds for a new guard house but has failed to win approval of the money in the state budget.

Burned Out Family Needs Funds, Clothes

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — An appeal has been issued for clothing and funds for the family of Joseph J. Machanska whose home was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning.

The plea for clothing and funds was issued by Joseph Jacobitti, employer of Mr. Machanska.

The Machanska's have six children—three girls and three boys, ranging in age from 10 to 18.

Anyone interested in donating either clothing or funds is asked to contact Mr. Jacobitti at his home, 81 East Lincoln Ave.

Entry, Theft At Lumber Yard Probed

MIDDLETOWN — Police are probing the entry into the American Building and Lumber Supply Co., Rt. 35, early Sunday and the theft of a small amount of cash from a soda vending machine.

According to Capt. Raymond T. Walling, detective bureau head, the would be thieves were in the process of chopping a hole in the wall of a small room at the firm's office where the safe is kept when they were scared off by police making a routine check of the doors.

He said a hole, several feet in diameter, had been chopped in the cinder block wall when the thieves were scared off.

Capt. Walling said the amount of change taken from the vending machine has not been determined.

Entry to the structure was gained through a rear door.

city, City Council President Michael Bontempo refused to go along with the indicated drop of 43,743.

"Our school population is up, I can't believe it," Bontempo said.

George A. Bernard, district census supervisor, told Newark Mayor Leo P. Carlin in a letter released yesterday that the city's preliminary census figures are expected to be accurate "within a fraction of 1 per cent."

The official National Census figures are expected to be released some time in the fall, a Census Bureau spokesman said.

Unreliable Methods

Meanwhile unreliable methods of determining the number of residents cause most cities to overestimate their population, the Census Bureau said.

The bureau said only a house-to-house canvass could provide an accurate evaluation of population.

City planners who use the mail box or electric meter method of estimating population usually estimate too large a number of persons per unit and frequently include units serving businesses and units outside city limits, the bureau said.

Most errors are made, the bureau added, because city officials and planning boards fail to consider the fact that old houses—those standing at the time of the 1950 census — lost inhabitants during the past 10 years.

And in Trenton, Gov. Robert B. Meyner has asked for a study of the effect of U.S. census results on a bill designed to allow a pay raise to Trenton's city commissioners.

The Legislature has passed a bill sponsored by Sen. Sido L. Ridolfi (D-Mercer) to allow the pay raises. The bill does not mention Trenton by name. It specifies cities between 120,000 and 200,000 population.

The bill was introduced before preliminary census results showed Trenton's population was just above 114,000.

Meyner told a news conference yesterday he would have its personal counsel check to see if the census figures make the bill academic now.

The department submitted a request to Washington for $34,525. If approved, the municipalities will match federal and state funds to prepare a master plan for community growth.

Given the state approval were Belmar borough and Keansburg borough, Monmouth County; Avalon borough, Cape May county; Denville, Morris County; Lacey Township, Ocean County, and Salem City, Salem County.

Group Wants Kishi Out

TOKYO (AP) — Socialist Party members decided today to resign from the lower House of the Japanese Parliament in a desperate, last-ditch move to oust Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and block ratification of the U. S.-Japan Security treaty.

Socialist Executives tonight began gathering the resignations of the party's 125 members of the lower House, nearly 30 per cent of the House membership.

Submission of the resignations was left to the judgment of party leaders.

They were expected to hand them in about June 6 or 7, after an emergency party convention gave final approval to the step.

Meyner Signs Housing Bill

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Robert B. Meyner has signed the first of several bills aimed at increasing housing for people of average incomes.

The bill he signed yesterday would make limited dividend housing projects more attractive to municipalities and investors. There is such a project now in Jersey City and they are contemplated in Asbury Park, Trenton and Paterson.

Municipalities now can waive taxes on the projects and take 10 per cent of the annual gross rents instead. The ceiling was raised to 15 per cent.

The maximum annual return for investors was raised from 6 to 8 per cent.

The bill was sponsored by six Democratic Assemblyman from Union, Hudson, Essex and Mercer counties.

Several other housing bills have been passed by the assembly and are pending in the Senate. They include one measure to float a self-liquidating $25,000,000 bond issue to interest private contractors in building housing around the $10,000 price.

deep solidarity of the Western powers."

But De Gaulle repeated his determination to keep French forces independent of NATO control and at the same time his demand for an equal voice with the United States and Britain in determining Western policy.

"That means," said De Gaulle, "that France, too, must have her nuclear armament, since others have it; that her means and her territory depend only upon herself; in brief, that her destiny, while associated with her Allies, remains in her own hands.

"It is obvious that such an autonomy involves a closer association of the powers of the Western world both in policy and strategy."

NASA

State Department and the White House, and not by the CIA.

On the other hand Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis) said Dulles' testimony reinforced his conviction that Eisenhower acted properly in accepting responsibility for the spy flights.

Told the Truth

"The President indulged in telling the truth," said Wiley, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Fulbright said Dryden was to be questioned about NASA's role and about conflicting statements put out by NASA after the incident.

On May 3, two days after the U2 was downed over Russia but before this government knew its fate, NASA announced that a U2 weather research plane based at Adana, Turkey, had been missing since May 1.

On May 5, the day Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev announced the missing U2 had come down over Russia, NASA put out another statement outlining the plane's weather flight plans in detail and elaborating on its weather-sampling mission.

Two days after that Khrushchev announced that the plane had been brought down by rockets, and that the pilot, Francis S. Powers had been captured and had confessed he was on a spy mission.

Future Report

The hearings are expected to end tomorrow, and presumably the committee will put out a report at some time in the future.

Fulbright said he will call its members together after they have had time to digest the testimony to see if they can agree on conclusions.

If no report is issued, Fulbright said he would make his own conclusions public in some form, perhaps in a senate speech.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt) said he thought the committee could get together on a bipartisan report and that it would have mostly "historical significance in tying the various events together."

Pasternak's Death Told

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet public was told today of the death of Boris Pasternak some 36 hours after the Nobel prizewinner succumbed at his home outside Moscow.

The brief announcement in the newspaper "Literature and Life" said:

"The Board of the Literary fund of the U.S.S.R. today announces the death of the writer, Boris Pasternak, who was a member of the fund.

"The death took place on 30th May in his 71st year after a severe and long illness."

The announcement made no mention of the condemnation which Soviet writers and the Soviet press heaped on the author of "Doctor Zhivago" after he was named for the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1958. Pasternak declined the award and thereafter lived mostly in seclusion.

Steamer Strike Drops Business

Salaries Told Of Assistants

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took 56 persons who were paid over $60,000 to handle the office work of New Jersey's senators during the first three months of this year.

A list of Senate employes made public yesterday showed that Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ) paid his 27 employes about $29,800 during the period compared with the $31,200 Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D-NJ) paid his 29 employes.

Payrolls of each senator must be made public quarterly under a resolution adopted last year by the Senate.

Case listed his highest paid employe as Samuel Zagoria, his administrative assistant, who received $4,074.99 — the maximum allowed — for the quarter.

Williams' highest paid employe was Wallace B. Edgerton, his administrative assistant, who received $3,761.19.

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP) — With more than a million dollars in tourist business estimated lost over the Memorial Day Weekend, residents of this island and nearby Martha's Vineyard are mad enough to toss a harpoon into the golden dome of the state house in Boston.

Folks whose ancestors waited four years for whale ships to return from world voyages are fed up with waiting six weeks for the steamers to come from Cape Cod.

The islanders have been cut off from regular steamer service by a strike since April 16.

Three ships serving the islands are operated by a state-chartered steamship authority. A total of 150 officers and crewman represented by five unions walked off the ships seeking higher wages and other benefits.

Leo J. Convery, hotel owner and president of the Martha's Vineyard Chamber of Commerce, said "The strike cost the Vineyard nearly a million dollars over the holiday week-end in unrented cottages, vacant hotels, half-empty stores and restaurants and a thousand other smaller losses."

Business Off

John L. Hardy, Nantucket innkeeper and former selectman, estimated business was off 50 per cent on a week-end that normally would have kicked off the summer season. "The long-term dollar cost might be close to a quarter million," he added.

The Vineyard, five miles from Woods Hole on Cape Cod, has a winter population of 8,000 and upwards of 40,000 in summer. Nantucket, 25 miles from Hyannis, the nearest mainland port on Cape Cod, has 3,640 winter residents, five times that in summer and probably 100,000 one-day excursionists in the warmer months.

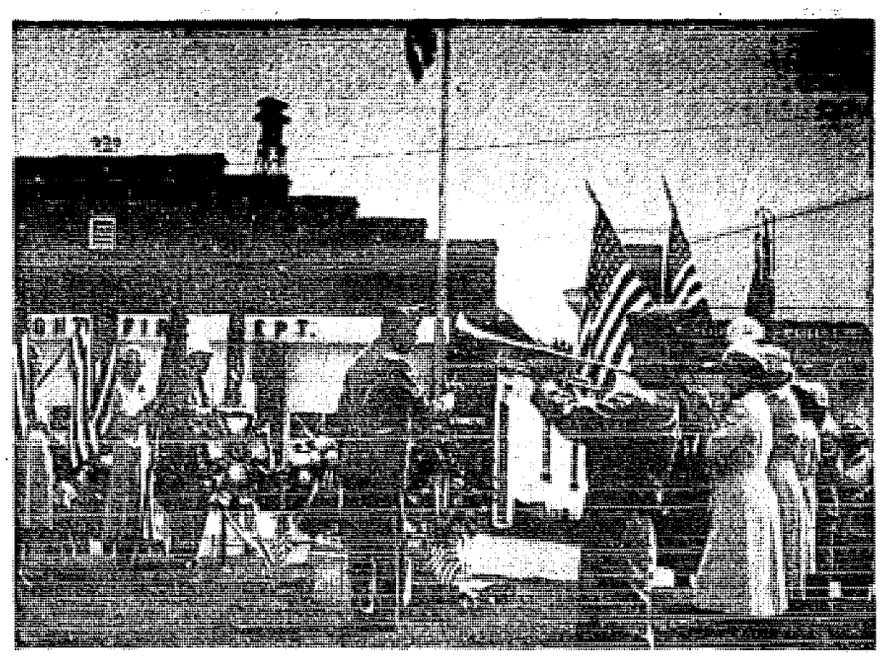

A dozen small vessels are plying between Woods Hole and Martha's Vineyard to substitute for the strikebound ferry islander. Nantucket, harder to reach across sometimes stormy Nantucket Sound, has had to depend upon larger vessels from Hyannis to fill the gap. The bottleneck at both islands has been the lack of auto transportation.

Carrying Cars

Barges have been carrying cars for upwards of $25 each, three times the steamship rate. Rental cars are virtually unobtainable on either island and most auto dealers have sold out their stocks of second hand cars. Bicycle shops on both islands report a booming business from tourists forced to leave their cars on the mainland.

George Woods, Vineyard hotel owner, has started a suit, scheduled to begin in Superior Court June 14, to force the authority to restore steamship service to the islands.

Nantucket Selectman John Meilbye says the steamers are "Nantucket's state highway, and nobody has a right to block the highway."

SOUNDING OF TAPS — As members of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 6902, Highlands, and its auxiliary, formed an honor guard, Councilman Neils Jacobsen, center, wearing the uniform of a lieutenant colonel in the Ground Observer Corps, placed a Memorial Day Wreath at the war memorial in front of Borough Hall in Sea Bright. Playing taps was Kirk Neely, 11, of Boy Scout Troop 5, Long Branch..

Navy Sinks, Saves Sub

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii, (AP) — A U. S. submarine was deliberately sunk off the island of Maui, in Hawaii, on May 10.

The Navy in the announcement yesterday said it was the first time in U. S. Naval history that an unmanned submarine was sunk and salvaged for the purpose of training.

The submarine rescue vessel USS Greenlet sank the submarine. As soon as the hulk settled on the ocean bottom, the Greenlet went to work. Her mission was to rescue "personnel" aboard the sub and attempt its salvage.

As the submarine lay in 150 feet of water, a rescue crew of four went down in the Greenlet's diving bell, opened the after torpedo room hatch, and entered the submarine. Deep sea divers performed salvage work. No further appraisal of the operation was given.

Consider Future Is Mayor's Plea

LITTLE SILVER — Mayor P. Paul Campi Monday called upon fellow Americans, in remembering the past, to "consider what the future holds in store for us."

The mayor, in conducting Memorial Day services at the honor roll monument Monday morning, spoke in hope that United States' leaders learn from the people their will that such observances "will be limited to those heroic deaths which wars have caused up to now and not to any innocent victims of any holocausts visited upon unsuspecting populations."

The text of Mayor Campi's address follows:

This holiday commemorates a war which happened almost a hundred years ago.

Since the idea for a Memorial Day was conceived, the honored dead of the Civil War have been joined by their sons and their descendants who have fallen in other great wars — each and every one of them fighting for the ideals of a great nation dedicated to peace among nations and the Four Freedoms to be enjoyed by all people.

It has been traditional in the observance of this day of memorials to hear recitals of the Gettysburg address, eloquent orations of things gone by and events long past.

On this solemn day, however, we must, and should, examine our positions anew and consider what the future holds in store for us and what courses of action we can pursue to help shape our destinies.

In these days of constantly recurring international crises we should look to the leadership of our statesmen and evaluate its adequacy and quality.

Since ours is a representative government we enjoy the privilege and share the responsibility of adding our voices to the counsels of those advising our leaders in the area of foreign affairs.

For those among us who feel satisfied regarding the adequacy of our leadership in foreign relations I urge you to make your feelings known by written word of encouragement. This will certainly be appreciated.

By the same token, those among us who feel that there may be something lacking in the handling of our foreign affairs should not hesitate to let their feelings be known by written word of constructive criticism. Even criticism can be appreciated when submitted in constructive form.

Regardless of political considerations, we should admonish our national leaders so that in their handling the shaping of our destinies future observances of Memorial Day will be limited to those heroic deaths which wars have caused up to now and not to any innocent victims of any holocausts visited upon unsuspecting populations.

As the immortal words of Lincoln's Gettysburg address remind us to be ever watchful that these honored dead shall not have died in vain let us, too, be equally observant and guided by the motto always currently before us on this monument, "Lest We Forget."

MEDICAL MEMOS

By H. L. Hershenson, M.D.

Mechanics and others working in automobile garages are oftentimes exposed to small amounts of carbon monoxide fumes. This may cause symptoms which persist even between the times of exposure.

The usual complaints are loss of appetite, nausea, some loss in weight, indifference, fatigue, headache, dizziness, difficulty in falling asleep and sometimes changes in personality.

The doctor's examination will reveal other and more specific symptoms which point to the possibility of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Even outdoors it is possible to become affected by these fumes. A case is reported of a traffic policeman who was stationed at a busy street intersection. He developed symptoms of carbon monoxide posioning. The symptoms were not recognized at that time, and he was later transferred to the police garage. There, the symptoms became so intensified a medical examination was made and the cause of his trouble was found. He was given another assignment completely away from the fumes and he gradually recovered.

Excellent ventilation is urgent for any area where gasoline motors are running.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

STATES BROTHERS CASE

To the Editor:

Newspapers have been known to be the world's mirrors and the true educators of the common people.

In these times when we are constantly engaged in the fight for the preservation of our ideas, ideals and our American way of life, we look forward with a feeling of complete security in being able, through the medium of a fearless and honest newspaper, to be able to make knowledgeable to the public at large those injustices which seem today to become more and more prevalent in the world in which we live.

I wish to refer in this particular instance to the case involving my brother, Guido Trimboli, an honorably discharged veteran of the last world war, who was apprehended Wednesday for violation of probation.

It is my belief and conviction that the Mayor and Council of Red Bank failed miserably in not realizing that my brother was a very sick man and much in need of medical and psychiatric treatments at the time he was tried and dismissed from the Red Bank police force.

I feel that merely because he is terribly addicted to drink and, in my opinion, was made the only scapegoat in the now celebrated case involving a number of our Red Bank patrolmen and officers, is certainly deserving of some consideration by the proper authorities and should be able to obtain those treatments which can enable him to once again take his place in a decent society.

Because I am sure that there is much good yet left in him, I would very much appreciate your giving this letter some prominence in your truly valuable newspaper, in order that someone, somehow, will find a place in his conscience to help him.

Thanking you for whatever consideration you feel this matter is worth, I am

Very truly yours,
Dominic Trimboli

WE'RE GLAD TO HELP

Director of Welfare
Red Bank

To the Editor:

On behalf of the borough's Local Assistance Board, of the assistant director and myself, I should like to take this means of extending the appreciation of our Welfare Department for your generosity in supplying us with a copy of the Red Bank Register each day.

Your paper has always been of great help in bringing to our attention happenings involving our current and former clients; in giving us leads relative to advertised positions which might spell economic rehabilitation to some of our unemployed clients. It also keeps us abreast of the times as respects the activities and findings of other welfare agencies, of allied welfare-minded organizations and individuals. In the paper, too, we find information of our borough's doings and anticipated projects, in which welfare may play a part or, at least, have a great interest.

In this department we operate a sort of clipping service for the benefit of the department, our work and the completion of our files.

Again we offer our sincere thanks.

Yours very truly,
Director of Welfare

LITTLE SILVER ISSUE

To the Editor:

It has been brought to the attention of the committee in favor of a local Home and School Organization in Little Silver that the information given to the Red Bank Register Tuesday, May 24, was incorrect. The proposed vote, referred to in the article, was whether or not the group should remain a Parent-Teacher Association, or disband and become a Home and School Organization. The article stated that: "A new motion was granted for the voting to take place the second or third meeting of next year." According to the minutes of that meeting, this motion was never made.

At the regular meeting Tuesday, May 17, a point of order was raised in accordance with the standing rules of the state PTA. This ruling states that: "N unit shall be disbanded without a majority vote of its members." Based on this ruling, a motion was made, seconded and passed that: "Necessary funds be appropriated to send a mail ballot to each member, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope, and further that a deadline date be set for return of said ballot, and that a follow-up and teller committees be appointed with both sides represented." The general feeling among those present was that this balloting would take place immediately. Consequently, a motion was made, seconded and passed that the installation of the newly elected officers be postponed until September, pending the outcome of the balloting.

Out of a membership of 500, the monthly meetings averaged an attendance of 35 people. In view of this we feel that perhaps a change in the type of organization would be more beneficial to the welfare of our children and local community. On April 11, an opinion poll was sent to all parents of the Little Silver School System. The results of the ballots indicated a vast majority in favor of a Home and School Organization. The following two PTA meetings were devoted to discussion. Therefore, we feel that an immediate ballot vote of the entire membership is required, so that we may begin in September with an organization better suited to the needs of our children and community.

We feel that these needs will best be met by a local, unaffiliated Home and School Organization. Fewer meetings can be scheduled with a variety of unrestricted programs appealing to a greater number of parents. All funds can be used for local enrichment, and all time and energy channeled into local activities. All national and state legislation pertaining to education would naturally have a prominent place on the agenda. These are but a few of the outstanding advantages by which our Little Silver community could benefit.

Since this is such a vital issue to our community, we sincerely hope that every parent in Little Silver will become cognizant of the facts and participate in the voting. We hope that out of this will evolve a strong and unified organization that will have definite meaning for the community.

Bringing In Industry

There is one way to get potential developers interested in Monmouth County as an industrial area:

Bring them here and show them what we have.

And that's what happened last Thursday when the county's first "Planned Progress Premiere" was held.

Industrial real estate representatives and metropolitan area business leaders were brought to Monmouth and taken on a tour of available industrial sites.

The program was prepared by the county Planning Board's Industrial Advisory Committee and the board's industrial representative, Reid N. Dickerson.

Financial support came from the Jersey Central Power & Light Co., New Jersey Natural Gas Co., Monmouth County Bankers Association, New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., and 13 municipalities.

Obviously, the program was a successful one—for those who attended said they were impressed with what Monmouth County has to offer for industry.

Our county has already come a long way in bringing in new desirable ratables and we predict last Thursday's tour will further aid in what seems to be an aggressive program.

Threat of Boycott

"Economic boycott" is an ugly term which sends chills down the spine of any businessman.

But it seems to work—even the threat of it.

A vacated, partially burned house at Clark and Beers Sts., Keyport, has stood as an attractive hazard for children in neighboring Raritan Township for some four years.

All attempts by the Keyport governing body to "persuade" the owner to tear it down failed.

At a meeting this week, Borough Council needed just five minutes to vote action which had not been taken in four years—a 30-day notice for building demolition, or condemnation by the body.

What happened? A threat by a Raritan civic group of economic boycott of the Keyport business district.

Possibly, such an action could never have been made effective. It is unfortunate, however, that such a threat had to be made to get results.

False Economy

A group of Union Beach citizens, in the name of "economy," has submitted a petition to Borough Council seeking to render inoperative a recently adopted ordinance providing an annual salary of $375 for the mayor and $250 each for councilmen.

The amounts can only be described as a pittance.

The salaries will by no stretch cover the expenses which face members of a governing body in the performance of their duties.

Not only are municipal officials forced to expend their own funds in the process of governing, but they are called on—day and night—by the citizenry, for their time, in many cases time taken from the jobs which provide their livelihoods.

HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks the family dog gets tired of hearing:

"After he's six months old, it isn't good for a dog to eat more than once a day."

BOYLE

"Sit up, Rover, and beg."

"I see by the newspaper that some old maid left $50,000 to her cat. Why is it so few people leave money to dogs?"

"We bought Rover for a watch dog, but we feel sure now that if burglars broke into the house, the only thing he'd do is lead them to the silverware."

"As soon as you let him out, he decides he wants to get back in. Let him scratch at the door for a while."

"Lassie doesn't have a thing on Rover—except size, looks, brains and a bank account."

"I wouldn't say he was exactly afraid of the cat next door. But when she comes into our yard, he's the one that tries to climb a tree."

"Even if your little boy does pull his tail, Rover won't bite. He simply adores children."

"Roll over and play dead, Rover. That's a good doggie."

"When I took him to the kennel club to try to get him registered, the man just took one look at Rover and broke out laughing."

"As near as we can figure it, doctor, Rover first showed signs of an inferiority complex about three days after we pinned up a photo of Rin-Tin-Tin in his doghouse."

"Let him stay outside tonight. According to the weather bureau, it won't go much below freezing."

"No, I wont take Rover hunting again. The last time I took him into the woods, a rabbit chased him all the way back to the car."

"The man at the store said this new canned dog food was much more nutritious than fresh meat, so I bought two cases."

"Let's get one thing clear, Rover—the day you start paying the rent is the day you can start sleeping on the sofa."

"We'll have to leave him at the vet's during our vacation. He may miss us, but after all there'll be a lot of other dogs there to keep him company."

"Yes, I do think he's part hound—chow hound, that is."

"It's got so he's just like one of the family. The one I have in mind is my mother-in-law."

"Well, most dogs don't like to be patted on the head, but Rover doesn't mind. He's too lazy to mind anything."

"What do I mean by lazy? Well, if I give him a bone, he trots out into the back yard and just stands there—waiting for me to dig a hole so he can bury it."

"I heard that the people who own Fifi, that little French poodle Rover is so crazy about, are moving away. Oh, well, he'll get over it. With him it's only puppy love."

"A guy in the next block is buying his pooch an air-conditioned doghouse. He must be out of his mind. I don't believe in spoiling dogs."

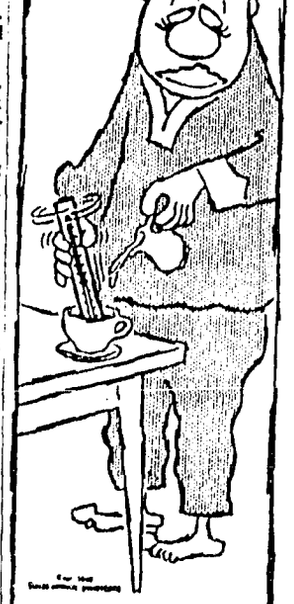

"What a life! He spends five minutes a day eating—and 23 hours and 55 minutes sleeping."

"The folks next door are getting an 85-pound great dane, and I hear he's bad tempered. Do you think Rover will get along with him?"

"Speak, Rover, speak! All right, that's enough. Now shut up!"

"Sometimes his expression is almost human. If Rover could really talk, I wonder what he would say to us."

CARMICHAEL

WRONG TEST THROUGH

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Highway Patrolman Bill Lancaster stopped a motorist going 80 miles an hour at night, far over the legal limit.

The stretch happened to be a "test road" for two types of surfacing and was so labeled.

When Lancaster asked the familiar question "Why are you driving so fast?", the motorist replied: "It's a test road, isn't it?"

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

By SYLVIA PORTER

Buy a "second refrigerator" was the shrewd selling pitch of a couple of European manufacturers who caused quite a stir at the World Trade Fair in New York this month with their display of small-sized refrigerators. Say the promoters, the smaller size of the units compared with the familiar U.S. models makes them ideal for use in a basement recreation room, an office, a motel room, etc.

PORTER

Buy a "second home" is the increasingly insistent message of builders of vacation houses, travel trailers, mobile homes. Douglas Fir Plywood Association, which has been running a series of ads emphasizing that every family should have a second home, reports it has received over 450,000 requests for leisure house blueprints, confidently declares that the day is approaching "when the second home will be as common as the second car." Right now, builders in some areas disclose sales of vacation houses are up 100 per cent over 1959.

Buy a "second telephone" line, invites A. T. & T. The Telephone Co.'s drive is not designed to encourage you just to add an extension, but to make you want to put in an entirely new line.

In view of the explosion in our teenage population and the capacity of the teenager to monopolize the home phone, A. T. & T. has no qualms about the desire of millions of parents for a second phone.

And buy a second furnace, get as much heat for lower operating costs . . . Buy a second kitchen, make outdoor living a pleasure . . . Buy a second car, of course . . . Buy a second radio, second TV set, second air conditioner, second this, second that.

It's a new theme in American advertising to the masses. It's a distinctly new recognition by U.S. manufacturers that millions of middle-income families already have one of each of the familiar items—including an item as big as a house—and that a way to maintain our buying until the bulge in marriages in the mid-1960s sends demand soaring again is to cultivate our desire for two of each of the items.

It signifies the degree to which we are a nation of climbing incomes, increasing leisure time, broadening discretion in spending, expanding awareness of material luxuries, mounting willingness to borrow to upgrade our way of living.

Does the development give you an uneasy feeling that our "affluence" is reaching a danger point? If so, consider these points before you leap to what I suspect will be a popular conclusion.

We are a nation in which the middle-income class is becoming ever more dominant and in which millions of husbands and wives work and earn enough to have money left after the necessities are paid for. We also are being constantly exposed through our reading, TV, the movies to the ways of opulent living. It is entirely natural that families which have discretionary spending power should want to use that power and their credit to add measurably to their comforts.

We are a nation in which leisure time is expanding sharply—through longer vacations, a shorter workday, a shorter workweek. The greater leisure time makes it "practical" to want such luxuries as the second kitchen, the vacation house for week-ends and the once-a-year holiday. The improvement of roads on which to drive the second car to the second house is a subtle but essential spur too.

We are a nation in which the teenager population is ballooning. Teenagers in a house can put the second telephone, second car, almost in the category of life-preserving essentials.

Most important, we are a nation in which industry has managed to build production capacity to a point where stimulation of new demands is important to support jobs and paychecks. This was not true in the 1940s and through most of the 1950s. It is true now.

The trend from "I have one" to "I have two" is in its infancy, but it's a trend made or order for the convenience-loving seekers of status that most of us are. Watch it grow.

WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON—In a neighborhood beer bar in suburban Maryland, 20 men were present and two men listened—at first. Later on, 16 of the 20 were listening.

This correspondent had picked this place to hear President Eisenhower report to the country on the broken summit conference and on what he proposed now to do. Here was a place where one might gain some small impression of what one very, very small section of "the public" thought of the President.

It is not, of course, clear and never can be clear in advance as to how our relationship with the Soviet Union and with the world will now develop. One thing that is all too clear, however, is that the President has been deeply saddened by the failure of a conference toward which, in the twilight of his public life, he had looked so hopefully to crown his administration with a gift of peace to the people of this nation and of everywhere.

Many will argue about what the President said—about the degree of candor and the degree of leadership he showed. But the view of one man—and of one man who has not been enthusiastic about Mr. Eisenhower—is that this was the best speech he ever made. Here was a tired and elderly man saying, as it seemed to me, all that could be properly said of the past, and offering all that could be honestly promised for the future.

The people scattered about the beer bar were first resentful that the juke box had been turned off in order to permit the President to appear on the TV screen in the back of the room. They were at no point wildly elated that this change had been made. But as the speech went on they began to turn, one by one, to the image that now filled the room. At the very end, when the national anthem was played, they shuffled their feet a bit. And then, here and there, a man got up and stood raggedly and in an embarrassed way at attention.

No doubt it did not prove very much. It did not establish that that President's policies had been the right policies. It certainly did not suggest to a watcher that this was a knot of Eisenhower worshippers. It did seem to this watcher, however, that this man on the screen—however wrong, he may have been in some aspects of his world leadership—had carried this small and unimportant room along with what he was trying to say.

In some strange way it seemed that what he was saying had put this country back on the track and that from here on it might be very difficult for those who now wish to destroy him over this issue of the summit. It was not that the people in this shabby little tavern either fully understood or fully approved the words of the President.

Rather, it was a case in which, uncaring and uninterested as they first had been, they began to recognize that we are, after all, not either Republicans or Democrats when crisis is upon us. We are then only Americans, perhaps fearful, certainly hesitant, and perhaps confused, but still Americans whose only real party is the United States.

Beyond question, the President did not appear for political purposes. Beyond question, he gave a summary not of a winning policy but rather of a thus-far losing one. But beyond question, too, unless this correspondent wholly misses his guess, the President also made a profoundly successful address in political terms—because it was not political at all.

The debate about it all will go on and on. The winner, in terms of the next presidential election, may or may not be the Republicans. But there is one absolutely certain winner in the minds of ordinary people.

THESE DAYS

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

On the Soviet South Asian Service, in English, Viktorov, a Soviet commentator, on May 14, said:

"In their own country, the U.S. ruling circles have every right to allow gangsterism, that unattractive ornament of the American way of life. But to make gangsterism a standard of international relations is an insult to the peoples' conscience and a defiance of the most elementary principles of human morality. No one has freed the United States from the obligation to submit to the existing standards of international law and no one will free it of this obligation, just as no society will consent to legalizing banditry no matter how much the criminal may claim that banditry is necessary for him."

SOKOLSKY

It is a psychological curiosity that no one sees himself as others see him. Soviet Russia has regularly engaged in espionage, as Henry Cabot Lodge pointed out in inadequate detail before the United Nations. It is, of course, axiomatic that two wrongs do not make a right; nevertheless how does a country manage without espionage?

It is possible to ignore Khrushchev and to wait until a bomb or a missile knocks us out.

Unquestionably the Russians were and are still startled that an American plane could pierce the Soviet Empire for perhaps 1,800 miles before it was found. As Gromyko asked: What would we say if a Russian plane reached Chicago, Detroit or San Francisco? We would say that our defenses are not in order. Congressional committees would vie with each other to find out who is responsible for the failure and it undoubtedly would become a campaign issue.

There can be little doubt that if this plane pierced the Russian sky for 1,800 miles or any number of miles and its pilot had not defected to Soviet Russia, their defenses are not in order. The external excitement could have been organized to impress the Russian people with the wickedness of the Americans that they should not look too closely at the inefficiency of the Russian defense. This is, of course, a speculative view but so is about everything else brought into this particular discussion.

In this same broadcast — always official — it is proposed:

"The summit conference will be successful only if it is able to continue the sharp about-face in international relations which began to be evident after the meetings of Nikita Khrushchev with Prime Minister Macmillan, President Eisenhower, and President De Gaulle. But for that to take place the U.S. political leaders must resolutely renounce those brink-of-war methods that have been so markedly evident especially in recent weeks—and not only renounce them, but back it up by concrete deeds . . ."

This statement clearly shows that before Khrushchev killed the Summit Conference on May 17, the Soviet radio was already preparing world opinion for its collapse and blaming the United States for it. In a Pravda editorial published two days before the Summit Conference, this appears:

"Today, the Soviet people tell all who are fond of all sorts of military adventures: The USSR will not tolerate such aggressive acts, and, in the event of any repetition, will take most decisive measures in reply. We will go on destroying all aggressors who raise a hand against us."

According to the Russian report, Francis Gary Powers, the plane pilot, said:

"In accordance with the contract which was signed by me with the CIA of the United States, I am pilot of the special air detachment of the United States dealing with the collection of information about operational raid stations and radar on the territory of the USSR, (and) I suppose, about locations of rockets.

"Our air detachment is permanently located at the U.S.-Turkish air base, Incirclik, near the city of Adana, Turkey. I have been serving in this detachment since August, 1956, and each year flew several times in a special U-2 high-altitude plane along the borders of the USSR with Turkey, Iran, and Afghanistan. Besides, in 1956-1957 I made three or four flights over the Black Sea without crossing the (word indistinct) state borders of the USSR. It is difficult for me to recall the numbers of such flights, but I flew repeatedly."

If this is true, many flights were made over Russia. If this is so, and it appears to be, why did Russia select this one trip to make such a fuss?

TODAY'S

Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

Easing trends in the money market in recent weeks is building up expectations today that interest rates may turn down in important sectors of the economy and that the amount of cash stock buyers must put up will be lowered.

Those who believe this is in the cards argue that the money managers may want to give a small nudge to an economy that has turned its back on a once-touted boom. Or at least they may want to end what restraint they have been maintaining to dampen any incipient fires of new inflation.

Those who think the interest rate and stock market margin changes may be delayed argue that the international situation's impact on future U. S. defense spending is still unsettled. This could make the money managers go slow.

The money managers themselves hold to their old position that they follow money market developments rather than initiate them. Easier money conditions thus would be the cause of any relaxation rather than any desire to make money still easier —or to encourage more stock trading.

Margin Requirements

And those who are counting on a drop soon in the margin requirements are warned today that in the last 23 years such a move by the Federal Reserve Board has been followed by a drop in stock prices rather than any sustained rise—although the rise has always come along later.

The present rules on margins call for 90 per cent cash in the new purchases of stock. (There are complicated rules by which old brokerage accounts can be changed under previous cash set ups.)

Many brokers now believe that the Fed will cut this cash requirement to 70 per cent. And some say the cash-credit rule might be on a 50-50 basis.

This would allow persons wishing to buy stock to put up a smaller percentage of cash than at present and borrow the rest from the broker, who usually is financed by the banks. Thus stock traders, if they wished, could buy more stocks with the same amount of money. This would enliven the market and presumably boost prices.

Cut Stock Margins

But one brokerage firm, Arthur Wiesenberger & Co., points out that in the five times that the Fed cut stock margins in the last 23 years the firming of prices was delayed.

The Fed cut the margin to 40 per cent from 55 per cent Nov. 1, 1937. In the next five days the Dow-Jones industrial average dropped from 136 to 122 and after a brief rally sagged to 113 later that month and finally hit 97.5 in March 1938 before starting a 60-point rally.

When the Fed cut the margin from 100 per cent to 75 per cent Feb. 1, 1947, the Dow-Jones index worked up from 181 to 185 in the next 10 days but then subsided to a low of 161 by May 19.

The third cut March 30, 1949, from 75 per cent to 50 per cent saw a long decline from 178 to 161 by June 14 in the Dow-Jones index.

The fourth cut Feb. 20, 1953, also from 75 per cent to 90 per cent, made little dent in a decline from a high of 295 in the index Jan. 5 to its low of 254 Sept. 15, 1953.

The fifth cut, from 70 per cent to 50 per cent Jan. 16, 1958, when the index was 445, saw it decline to 437 April 7 before its long 250-point rise got under way.

The chartists, therefore, argue that margin cuts reflect stock market conditions rather than set them. But there are many in Wall St. who would welcome a cut right now.

Guard Children Against Sunburn

By Dorothy V. Whipple, M. D.
AP Newsfeatures

Warm spring days are here, it's time to begin that suntan, time to soak up fresh air and sunshine, but watch out! Danger lurks in that pleasantly warm spring sunshine. Don't get too much too fast. A severe case of sunburn is a dangerous illness, as dangerous as a bad burn from a fire. Don't let it happen to you or any of your children.

Bear in mind these facts:

1. The younger the child, the thinner the skin and the quicker he burns.

2. Blond people have less natural pigment in the skin than brunettes, therefore burn more quickly than darker skinned people.

3. On any day in the year the sun's rays are strongest in the middle of the day.

4. The strength of the sun's rays is strongest when the days are longest. Many people think that the hotter the day the quicker you get sunburned. This is not true. June 21 is the longest day in the year and this is the day the sun's rays are most vertical and burn the quickest. The sun's rays become more oblique as we move away from June 21 and on Dec. 21 the sun's rays are their weakest.

Take It Easy

If you have a blond baby under 1 year of age, don't give him sun baths between 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. from May 1 to August 1. Keep him in the shade during this time and let him get his sun early in the morning and late in the afternoon.

For an older child, begin with five minute exposure and gradually increase the time in the sun. Insist on his being covered up after the five minutes. And time it with a watch, don't guess. Examine his skin four or five hours after exposure. If it is fairly pink and the pinkness fades in another four to five hours you can safely increase his exposure the next day. But if the pinkness persists don't increase the exposure time.

Sun Lotions

Suntan lotions are useful after the limit of exposure has been reached. But even with lotions don't let a youngster stay in the bright sun more than the allotted time.

Usually about a week of short daily exposures will tan a skin enough so that there is little danger of burning.

The time of day and the time of year is of course the same for every one, but you must judge your own child's ability to withstand sun, remembering that the younger and blonder your child the more careful you must be.

Have the casing removed from Italian salami before it is thinly sliced. Good with deviled eggs and crisp celery for lunch.

Kitty Kelly:

She Believes in Him Despite Jail Record

Dear Kitty Kelly:

I am 17 years old and in love with a boy 20. He has been married three times and has a police record. He says he loves me and wants to marry me. He is determined not to go back to his old habits. My parents beg me not to see him. I love him and believe in him. Will you tell me what to do?—Bewildered.

Dear Bewildered: On the basis of the facts you present, your parents are certainly right. No matter what that boy tells you, his history speaks for itself; three matrimonial crack-ups and a police record at 20! If—knowing all this you still believe in him—talk with his probation officer before taking the final step.

Dear Kitty Kelly:

I am 14 and like a boy 15. You probably think me too young but I'm allowed to go to parties and dances. He knows I like him (I think) but just won't give in. I think you give wonderful advice and know what you're talking about. A couple around the block wrote you and asked what to do about their marriage. They took your advice and are very happy with their three-months'-old baby. I'm their babysitter. I would like to know what to do about this boy.—Hopeless.

Dear Hopeless: There are certain rules which every girl should know if she wants to attract the boys and what girl doesn't. Some play the game by ear; others learn by practice.

Here are the fundamentals: Never make the mistake of being too available. Don't let any boy take you for granted. Keep them all guessing. Date more than one. When it's the one and only, be gay, happy and light-hearted. Compliment him by enjoying yourself. But above all, don't take him or yourself too seriously. There's plenty of time for that in the years to come. Fourteen is a bit young to be dating, but if your parents approve, that's that. I'm happy indeed to hear the good news about the couple for whom you babysit. Give them my regards and thank you for telling me.

Dear Kitty Kelly:

I am a handicapped person, and having no income at all, looking for homework to do. I would appreciate it if you could tell me of some reliable sources whereby I would not have to send money, and which would not require much energy.

Also, if you know of any clothing outlets whereby I could get clothes at a wholesale rate, I would appreciate your information. I am an admirer of your column, having been a reader for quite some time.—M. C.

Dear M. C.: Write the Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at 400 East 34th St., New York, N. Y., attention of Dr. Eugene Taylor. The institute does a marvelous job in helping the disabled to help themselves. A friend of many years, Helen Cookman, the designer, evolved a complete line of really smart clothes for the disabled by working in conjunction with the institute. I've taken the liberty of passing on your query about clothes to her.

Two leaflets written for the benefit of stay-at-homes, "Turn Your Spare Time Into Cash" and "Women at Work" go to you today.

Send your problem to Kitty Kelly: Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her in care of The Register.

South Africa's Dilemma: A Blind Revolution?

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Black men have no voice in South African affairs despite vastly superior numbers. But native leaders feel a terrifying explosion. This is the second of three articles on South Africa today.)

By SAUL PETT

SOUTH AFRICA (AP) — How angry, how restless are the natives of South Africa under the white man's rule?

No public opinion polls cover this part of the world but there are some clues.

A black man working on a railroad or in a construction gang raises his sledgehammer, brings it down hard and, with deep fury, chants in Zulu:

"Abelingo damn biza o Jim."

Translation: "The whites, damn them, they call us Jim."

Or Charlie or Henry or boy or any name the white man chooses except the right one.

"We are ready to fight if guns ever come down from the north", a young native student told me.

"There is no doubt; some day we will have a revolution," said a native teacher.

"And the worst part of the tragedy," said a young native writer, "is that when it comes, we will be blind. We will have to shoot the whites we like and the whites we don't like. There will be no time to distinguish."

But all of them agreed that the great mass of natives are still far from revolt because they are politically uniformed.

We were talking in a smoke-filled, crowded, candle-lit "shebeen," a speakeasy. In South Africa, blacks are prohibited by white man's law from drinking liquor.

This shebeen was in a huge housing development outside of Johannesburg, where the government has replaced the dirty old shacks of metal sheets and clay floors with new larger houses of concrete or cinder block.

More than a dozen natives crowded around me in the dinette of a neat, three-room house run by the "queen" of the shebeen, the woman with the dancing eyes, who sells bootleg beer and brandy.

This shebeen shall go nameless. The names of others reflect the black man's bitter sense of irony. "The Falling Leaves" for a sun-baked place miles from a tree. "The V-Club," for a victory nowhere in sight. "The 400 Club," whose habitues are anything but rich or exclusive.

Like the others, the shebeen I visited had a hepcat flavor. Cool jazz came from a record player in the corner. The Africans assembled wore Western clothes and some had the little beards symbolic of jazz fiends everywhere.

But jazz wasn't on their minds tonight. In perfect English, they told an American reporter of their troubles and hopes.

"With the arrogance of the present government, which we can't even consult," said the writer, "there ultimately can be no other way but revolution. We won't settle for anything less than full equal rights."

"But remember, chaps," said the teacher, "only about three-eighths of our people know what's going on. The rest know nothing. With all our leaders in jail, there is no one to educate or lead them."

"Yes, but an underground is forming," said another man. "We will have a new organization and the day after the state of emergency is lifted, there will be more Sharpevilles, more riots, more bloodshed."

A fat little man, who had been drinking quietly, suddenly grabbed my lapels as though he could keep silent no longer.

"I had a friend, a teacher, I knew from boyhood, he said. "He was arrested for a pass book offense. He was tough and he was brave and he wouldn't be pushed around. They took him to a prison farm where he probably objected to something — you don't object to anything in a prison farm.

"He was killed. He was beaten to death. I know because I saw the marks on his body and I buried him."

Most of the native political unrest comes from the cities. Those in the country hear little of politics. But at one Zulu reserve, I found an exception, a native chief who said, quietly:

"We want to be free of colonialism, we want to own our own land. We want a voice in parliament. We don't want white men making laws affecting us in our absence. We don't want to throw the white man out. We want to share his leadership. But above all, we don't want violence."

The black man, especially those in the urban areas, has come far under the white man's rule. Generally, he eats better, lives better, earns more by African standards, gets more education, more medical attention. But the irony of progress, so far as the government is concerned, is that those who have advanced the most in education suffer the most from the claustrophobia of apartheid or separation of the races.

Apartheid is not new. The white man has been corraling and segregating the black man ever since he came to South Africa 300 years ago. And the segregation is total.

The native of South Africa can not vote or join a union or strike or hold a skilled job in a white area (there's little call for skilled workers in black areas). He can not buy his own home in the new urban housing locations.

He can not use the white man's elevator or train or bus or theater or park bench or wash room or restaurant or even the counter at the post office.

He must carry a pass book of identification at all times and get it signed once a month by his employer or be arrested. He must get permission to change jobs or visit another town or, as in many cases where a couple is separated by different jobs, he must get a special permit to visit his wife for a few evening hours. He can not be out on the streets after 11 p. m. without a special permit. And for all these symbols of white man's permission he must queue up outside government offices and wait in line for hours.

Only among his own people is the black man not segregated. Regardless of economic position, education or taste, they are thrown together in black new housing projects or black slums — but always black. They are jammed together on trains and buses and, what with waiting in line, a 20-mile commuter takes four hours door to door.

The native lawyer with the neat suit, brief case and rolled umbrella (the status symbols of his white conqueror) must ride with the primitive woman carrying a sack of potatoes or wash on her head, her wrists and ankles covered with bracelets. The doctor rides with the medicine man who prescribes hippo fat for good health, the university student with the illiterate gold miner.

The great majority of whites, both English and Afrikaners, support total segregation. But it is the Afrikaner nationalist who resists any change or modification most bitterly. Many English feel they can always go home. The Afrikaner regards this as his only homeland.

For 300 years, he has been proud of his identity. He has fought savages and wilderness and the British and he means to stay here, at all cost, under white rule.

"But the trouble with the Afrikaner nationalists, " said an English editor, "is they are so bloddy stubborn. They insisted on putting something we've had for years (segregation on the statute books and giving it a name for all the world to know.

"But change is coming fast, like it or not. Five or six years ago we read about Kenya and thought it couldn't happen here. Our natives are different and we have more whites.

"We used to say, oh, in 50 years or so we ought to get around to changing things for the natives. But now, good Lord, we may not have six months!"

Tomorrow: Hi-Fi and evil spirits.

WORLD TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — The year 1960 may turn out to be the one which put a damper on summit meetings and presidential trips abroad and at the same time badly damaged American prestige.

If President Eisenhower, on his trip to Japan in June, runs into a riot of anti-American protest it will do neither him nor this country any good. It will make any future president reluctant about a foreign journey.

And Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who ran into anti-American riots on his South American tour in 1958, indicated yesterday that in the future summit meetings for American presidents will be a last resort.

This country's military bases in Japan — a key to defenses in the Pacific — were established under a 1951 agreement which many Japanese have resented.

New Agreement

So a new agreement was worked out to give Japan a position of equality with this country in Asian defense. But this, too, ran into a storm from Japanese Communists, Socialists and neutralists.

They rioted in protest. And they also rioted against Eisenhower's proposed trip to Japan in June. But the pro-Western Japanese Premier, Nobusuki Kishi, approved the military agreement. And Eisenhower yesterday made it definite he will visit Japan on his journey to Asia this month.

The new defense agreement with Japan goes into effect June 19, just about the time Eisenhower arrives there. Kishi probably has assured Eisenhower his government will preserve order when he arrives.

It may not be able to. If, in an attempt to prevent any disturbance, the Japanese police get overly tough with demonstrators, Eisenhower could be walking into the most unpleasnt experience of his life.

He seems to enjoy these trips abroad. But just what tangible benefits this country gets from such journeys is not clear at all. Each one of them has potential danger. For instance, a shot from a crackpot.

A Dim View

Eisenhower took a dim view of summit conferences, favoring instead the older kind of diplomacy in which foreign ministers made the deals and agreements, but only, of course, with the approval of the head man at home.

This always provided the head of state with an out if the foreign ministers' conferences failed or there was some other snafu.

He himself, by staying home, was safe from personal and public ridicule such as Premier Nikita Khrushchev dumped on Eisenhower at Paris.

But when he went to the summit in Paris the blowup there — the only incident of its kind in modern times — finished any chance that Eisenhower would go to another such meeting before he leaves office next Jan. 20.

Showed Reaction

Nixon, who has hopes of taking Eisenhower's place as the new president, seemed to show reaction inside the Eisenhower administration against future summit meetings.

Nixon said:

"While we do not rule out any meeting which might contribute to the cause of peace, certainly the world will now have greater confidence in the traditional method of diplomacy and in discussion by nations than in the summitry on which Mr. Khrushchev has in the past insisted."

Until Khrushchev battered him — and the American government lied about the U2 spy-plane brought down over Russia — Eisenhower had a world prestige unmatched by any present head of state.

That prestige seemed safe from harm until Khrushchev turned on him. If he runs into disorders aimed at him in Asia, he will return a dejected figure.

New Jersey News Briefs

By Associated Press

TRENTON — Superior Court's Appellate division yesterday denied jobless benefits to 138 workers who refused to cross picket lines in Hackensack, Clifton and Jersey City during a 1959 strike against Public Service Electric and Gas Co. The clerical workers and engineering assistants at the company's three distribution offices were members of the Utility Co-Workers Association (Ind). They refused to cross picket lines set up by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers during an IBEW strike from May 15 through June 22. They contended they feared bodily harm if they went to work. But the Appellate Court said, "It is established law in New Jersey that voluntary refusal to cross a picket line constitutes a contributing participation in the labor dispute, and must result in disqualification for unemployment compensation benefits."

TRENTON—Gov. Robert B. Meyner says many industrial programs don't meet the needs of retired workers. Meyner told a news conference that many industry retirement plans result from union demands, that many plans are insufficient, and workers can't always pick a generous employer. The governor replied to a letter from Albert F. Metz, head of the State Chamber of Commerce committee on programs for the elderly. Metz suggested that the state should not get into long-range planning for the elderly, since he said private industry was expanding its role in the field. Meyner commented, "To say industry can take care of it is somewhat like the cry industry raised when workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation and social security were first proposed."

NEWARK—Mason P. Pringle retired yesterday after 38 years as secretary-director of the New Jersey Real Estate Commission. John N. Harkins was named to replace Pringle. Harkins has been chief investigator-examiner for the commission.

ELIZABETH — The Elizabeth Daily Journal changed its name to the Daily Journal today. The newspaper said it was made to reflect "expanding coverage outside the city of Elizabeth." The newspaper said nearly 56 per cent of its circulation now is outside Elizabeth.

FLORHAM PARK — Three bulls, five heifers and four calves went for a holiday outing Monday, wandering onto the Columbia Turnpike in the midst of heavy Memorial Day traffic. Some motorists inched their way through the herd of Black Angus cattle. Others just parked and waited for three policemen to arrive. "We just had to head 'em up and move 'em out," said Sgt. Arthur Hibbard. "All we could do was wave our arms and hats, whistle and shout like cowboys in a Western." The cattle belong to Mrs. Elizabeth Tidy of Ridgedale Ave. They had wandered through a broken fence, over a creek, across a swamp and through a wooded area onto the highway. "We could have done a lot better with horses," Hibbard said.

NEWARK — A Lodi man was arrested by FBI agents yesterday on a charge of interstate transportation of obscene matter. W. W. Burke, special agent in charge of the FBI's Newark office, said agents arrested Anthony Astore, 48, of 77 Prospect St., Lodi, on a warrant issued in New York. Burke said Astore was charged in a Federal Grand Jury indictment returned in U.S. District Court, New York City, with taking film from Lodi to New York City for sale or distribution.

'Doc' Martin Gets Honors

NEW BRUNSWICK — About 700 friends, headed by Gov. Robert B. Meyner, have given a fond farewell to William H. "Doc" Martin, dean of Rutgers University's College of Agriculture and director of the Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service.

Dr. Martin, 70 this month, will retire June 30.

Gov. Meyner said at a testimonial dinner Thursday:

"Your presence here tonight is the best testimony to the achievements of Bill Martin during the 45 years he has served the agricultural community of New Jersey.

"The benefits of his good work have reached far beyond those directly related to agriculture."

Charles W. Hess of Wayne, vice president, said the board had launched the William H. Martin Scholarship Fund. Cash contributions to the fund from individuals and farm and business organizations now amount to $20,000, and pledges have been made toward the $100,000 goal, he said.

Miss Towney Selected For Girls State

LAURENCE HARBOR — The Woman's Club has announced the selection of Miss Linda Towney as its representative to the Citizenship Institute at Douglass College, conducted from June 20 to 24.

Miss Towney, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Towney, 416 Jefferson Ave., Laurence Harbor, is a junior at Sayreville High School. Selected as an outstanding student from this area, the 15-year-old student intends to attend college and prepare for a career as an elementary school teacher.

She is a member of the choir of St. Laurence Catholic Church and the high school Glee Club. She was first prize winner in an essay contest "Why I Respect The American Flag" sponsored by the Laurence Harbor American Legion Auxiliary while she was a pupil at Memorial School. She also made the graduation presentation speech there in 1957.

Miss Carol Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Thompson, Cliffwood Beach, also a junior at Sayreville High School, was named alternate.

Group to Hear Irwin Talk

LINCROFT — Freeholder Director Joseph C. Irwin will address a meeting of the Lincroft Republican Club in Lincroft Inn at 8 p. m. tonight. He will discuss the set up of the county government and its obligations to local municipalities.

Alton Flanders, president, will discuss the plans of the membership to make a door-to-door "Get Out the Vote" canvass in the municipality well in advance of the November election. Assisting Mr. Flanders is Mrs. Joyce Farrell, Republican county committeewoman.

Area Elementary Schools Have 672 Set to Graduate

Eight elementary public schools in the Red Bank area have 672 candidates for graduation.

The schools will send their pupils on to high school in ceremonies from June 14-17.

The largest elementary school class is at Eatontown, where 150 pupils are slated for graduation June 16 at 8 p.m. in Myer Hall, Fort Monmouth.

River Street School in Red Bank has the only daytime graduation scheduled. An estimated 125 eighth graders are candidates for diplomas. Dr. M. Gregg Hibbs, superintendent of schools in Red Bank, will address the graduates at 2 p.m.

Patrolman Shot By Own Pistol

WALL TOWNSHIP — A patrolman who accidentally shot himself Sunday while on patrol duty remains in fair condition in Fitkin Hospital.

Patrolman Lloyd Goss' pistol holster jammed between the seats in the car and the revolver went off as the patrolman attempted to dislodge the holster. The bullet entered Patrolman Goss' right side and lodged in his left leg.

Albert Graves, a farmer with whom Patrolman Goss had been speaking on Martin Rd., telephoned for aid when the patrolman was unable to use the police radio, Edwin Fletcher, superintendent of police, said.

Airman Camp Ends Lackland AFB Training

He has been selected to attend the technical course for radio and radar maintenance at Keesler Air Force Base, Biloxi, Miss.

Airman Camp is a 1959 graduate of Long Branch High School. Airman Camp was enlisted in April by Sgt. Joseph Soboul of the Red Bank Air Force recruiting office.

Holy Nome Society To Hear About Plan

RED BANK — The proposed urban renewal plan for the central business district will be discussed at a special meeting of the Holy Name Society of St. Anthony's Catholic Church Sunday at 8 p. m. in the church hall.

Francis J. Bolduc, executive vice president of the Community Chamber of Commerce, will outline the plan as presented by Urban Planning Associates, New York. The talk is part of the education program of the speakers' bureau set up by the chamber.

Mitchell Urges Wage Coverage

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Secretary of Labor asked Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union members yesterday to urge Congress to put more people under the minimum wage law.

Secretary James P. Mitchell, Little Silver, N. J., said "The control of Congress rests in the hands of the conservatives and legislation that is for the benefit of the workers has difficulty in passage."

Mitchell told the clothing workers convention that minimum wage coverage is particularly needed by the nation's farm workers, millions of whom are migratory.

Mitchell said he was "jumped on" by 40 or 50 congressmen who criticized him three years ago when he tried to prohibit any state employment agency from recruiting outside labor on terms below those prevailing in the state involved. His critics said in effect "what you are doing is illegal, impractical and immoral."

State Sets Up $102,500 Fund For County's Roads

TRENTON — The State Highway Department has announced allocation of $102,500 in state aid for the improvement of local roads and streets in 25 Monmouth County municipalities.

The allocation from a special $2,100,000 fund provided by the Legislature is to be divided equally among the 21 counties.

Towns granted aid funds must provide 10 per cent of the improvements' total cost.

This fund is one of five that annually provide about $16 million in state aid to counties and municipalities.

The department reviews the preparation of construction plans and specifications, approves or disapproves awards of contracts, provides inspection of materials and workmanship on subsequent projects, and passes upon acceptance of completed projects.

A complete listing of allocations to individual municipalities, showing location of proposed improvements, follows:

Allentown, Broad St. (drainage) $2,000; Ashury Park, Deal Lake Drive, $7,500; Atlantic Township, Phalanx Rd., $5,000; Belmar, 16th Ave., $3,000; Deal, Brighton Ave., $2,000; Eatontown, Clinton Ave., $3,000; Farmingdale, Southard Ave., $2,000.

Freehold Township Jones Siding Rd., $5,000; Holmdel Township, Bethany Rd. (paving), $2,000; Howell Township Maxim-Southard Rd., $5,000; Keansburg, Forest Ave., $3,000; Keyport, Clark St., $4,000; Marlboro Township, Robertsville Rd., $5,000; Matawan Township, Lloyd Rd., $3,000.

Millstone Township, Schoolhouse Rd., $7,000; Monmouth Beach, Riverdale Ave., $5,000; Neptune Township, Highland Ave. $5,000; Ocean Township, Cold Indian Springs Rd., $3,000; Raritan Township, S. Laurel Ave., (paving) $7,000; Roosevelt, Robbinsville Rd. $3,000.

Rumson, Bingham Ave. $3,000; Sea Bright, New and Front Sts., $2,000; Sea Girt, Sea Girt Ave., $3,000; Spring Lake Heights, Ocean Rd., $3,000; Upper Freehold Township, Davis Station-Sharon Station Rd., $5,000; Wall Township, Lakewood Rd., $5,000.

Farmers Win Over Helicopters

ATLANTIC TOWNSHIP — The aviation division of Fort Monmouth has discontinued its use of the Colt's Neck Airport here as a helicopter base following the complaints of local dairy farmers.

Several farmers appeared at last week's township committee meeting to protest the low flying helicopters in the area. They claimed their cows were constantly upset by the noise, and milk production was affected.

Amos Matthews, who operates a farm on Rt. 34, told the committee that the helicopters were "driving the cows crazy and affecting their milk production — they almost jumped out of the barn."

Army helicopters have used the airport for the past eight months to test in-flight communications equipment. These flights will be continued from Monmouth County Airport in Wall Township.

Cut Channel In Circle

EATONTOWN — Work started Saturday in the cutting of an east-west channel through the Rt. 35 circle in an attempt to ease the flow of traffic here.

A spokesman for the New Jersey Highway Department said the improvement should reduce delays as car proceed in and out from the Garden State Parkway spur and Monmouth Park. Completion is set for June 7, three days before the start of the racing season.

Traffic lights will be installed at the northwest and southeast intersections, where the parkway spur meets Rt. 35. These automatic lights will be timed to favor Rt. 35 but can be manually controlled by one policeman at times of heavy east-west traffic.

As many as four policemen have had to be on duty at times of heavy congestion in the past.

Use of the traffic channel was proposed to avoid the more expensive method of putting in an overpass system. Similar channels were installed at Rt. 1 circles at Princeton and New Brunswick.

Highway Department crewmen are doing the work, so no cost estimate was made. The east-west lanes will be 35 feet wide. In the center, the island will be 45 feet wide. There will be no interruption with regular traffic as the change is made, the department said.

2,961 Students Due to Graduate

This area's high school seniors —2,961 strong—are about to take that big step into jet and space age adult life.

It's graduation month, at last. The days are filled with Pomp and Circumstance, broadened by challenges and opportunities worldwide in scope.

From one end of the county to the other, and from east to west, bundles of diplomas are to be handed out in numbers well beyond totals of former years. This reflects Monmouth County's population gains in and since the World War II era.

The student outpouring will mean a big jockeying for position in job-hunting and for college admissions.

Long Branch High School stands at the top with 394 graduates, not far ahead of Asbury Park High, with 350, Freehold Regional, with 340, and Middletown Township High, with 330.

Red Bank High School, with its 260 seniors, and Red Bank Catholic, with 209, are a short distance behind Manasquan High, which will graduate 283.

Totals elsewhere also are impressive: Keyport High, 191, Neptune Township High, 165; Matawan High, 141; Rumson-Fair Haven Regional, 139, Atlantic Highlands High, 74, and Star of the Sea Academy, Long Branch, 34.

There are differences in graduation times and dates.

SHOW TALK — This week-end's Festival of Art is discussed by artists, left to right, Marjorie Alexander and Ruth McMullen and ceramist Jane Drake, who are taking part in the two-day special activities. The outdoor show Friday and Saturday on Broad St., Red Bank, will feature art, mosaics and ceramics.

Months of Planning Provide Red Bank a Cultural Week-end

RED BANK — There have been long months of planning for the second giant Broad St. show — the Festival of Arts — which today is showing signs of preparation activities.

Snow fencing — hundreds of feet of it — is being placed at the southern tip of the business section to await Friday morning's opening rush of exhibits. The overseer will be Mrs. John Parmly, chairman of the art advancement committee of the Monmouth Arts Foundation, the guiding force behind the movement to bring culture to Red Bank.

A journey back into art space reveals that the first successful outdoor art show was held June 6, 1953, in Red Bank's Marine Park.

Started In 1953

It was staged by the Red Bank Junior Service League, with Mrs. Emery Wingerter, Jr., chairman of the innaurgural event. Cash prizes were presented by the league and art achievement medals were presented by Monmouth Arts Foundation.

Students from Red Bank High School, Red Bank Catholic High School and Rumson High School exhibited along with artists from all over the county. Also exhibited were drawings by children in Holland, paintings by patients at Marlboro State Hospital, and 50 children participated at a free play table featuring water colors and clay and manned by League members. There was an award made of an oil portrait to be done by Mrs. Parmly, a league member.

The success of that Saturday set the precedent for the annual show that eventually outgrew Marine Park in magnitude and scope.

Organizations Help

Service organizations that participated in the Marine Park shows in the past are still included in the long list of cooperating organizations which put on exhibits, demonstrations and special displays. There also are familiar names of volunteers who have worked and are still working on making the entire area aware of creative arts.

The June show last year, staged for two days on Broad St., was the first under the auspices of Monmouth Arts Foundation, in co-operation with the Red Bank Community Chamber of Commerce. The league continued to have an active part, and presented a continuous puppet performance and other activities.

Large crowds poured into the borough to view more than 1,500 exhibits displayed by more than 300 artists, innumerable schools, sculptors, photographers, craftsmen and institutional displays. A total of $1,200 in prizes was awarded.

Art critic Michael Lenson, who was a judge last year, praised Red Bank for "stepping up front to take the lead" in what he felt was a "cultural trend." His eyes are still on the mammoth show and his advice Sunday reads: "Other communities, please note."

Unmeasured Sucess

The event was termed an "unmeasured success" because it did make the entire area aware of creative arts and, of importance, too, it gave the merchants a chance to prove that they believed in them.

This week they will prove that again. The festival is open to residents from all over the state to exhibit a wide variety of talents and ideas.

As a commercial organization dedicated to keeping Red Bank at the top as a business, civic and cultural center, the Chamber of Commerce welcomes the festival. It is one more example to point to which proves that Red Bank is more than a shopping area.

Self-styled critics will roam Broad St. before and after the professional judges have gone. Five-year-olds and 80-year-olds, housewives and professionals will help to "make" the show.

Shows to Watch

TONIGHT

10:00—(Ch. 2)—U.S. Steel Hour (Choice Viewing)—Jeff Donnell, one-time "Alice" on George Gobel's show, and Betsy Palmer are co-starred in "Game of Hearts." The girls share a tiny New York apartment, and also share romances and heartbreaks. Arthur Hill and Robert Webber are the men in their lives. A Theater Guild production, rather than the script, should be the plus in this hour.

8:30—(Ch. 7)—Adventures of the Nelson Family—With this rerun, they're changing the series title. After 16 years on radio and TV as "Ozzie and Harriet," the change is in recognition of the greater part Dave (23) and Ricky (20) now play in the series. In this episode, Ozzie babysits in a tree, under the house and in a pond in the park. He's caring for the neighbor's kitten.

9:00—(Ch. 2)—The Millionaire—Two unhappy and lonely out-of-towners meet in the observation tower of the Empire State Building. The girl is Joan Camden, an unsuccessful fashion model about to return to her small town. The boy is Ron Randell, an ex-French pilot now selling antique furniture. When Joan returns to her flat, there's Marvin Miller with THE check. You know the rest.

9:00—(Ch. 7)—Hawaiian Eye—This is the start of the reruns here. "Beach Boy" is all about the son of an heiress who sets off a series of violent actions. The boy (Troy Donahue) claims to be the son of an aged islander, too. Of the new faces introduced in this series, only singer Connie Stevens made a stir publicity-wise.

BURT LANCASTER and Audrey Hepburn study rifle in anticipation of Indian raid in "The Unforgiven," United Artists release at the Baronet, Long Branch, Wednesday thru Saturday, June 1 to 4.

VIEWING TV
With HAL HUMPHREY

TV's New Look?

HOLLYWOOD — Where were television's "new faces" this season? If there was a talent search on for new talent and personalities, it didn't get off the ground.

In past years TV has made famous such comics as George Gobel and Jackie Gleason. Dramatic finds like Rod Steiger, Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward and Eva Marie Saint have been sprung into glory by TV.

This season we have only to glance at the Television Academy's nominations for Emmy awards to discover that the new talents are either still in the coffee houses, or waiting to be flushed out of the bayous. They weren't on TV.

I'm afraid that one of the reasons for this is that TV has become too fat-cat and expensive. The TV producers are afraid to experiment. They want to go in with a big "name" star to insure an audience.

Twentieth Century-Fox may argue that it took the big risk with the unknown Gardner McKay to star in its "Adventures in Paradise." Actually, the producers were and are selling the name of James B. Michener ("Tales of the South Pacific"), who supposedly created "Paradise." They further buttressed it with name guest stars most weeks.

Every network show, except for a few panel shows, is an expensive hunk of entertainment, so nobody wants to gamble big money with untried or no-name talent. It's rather sad for both the aspiring new performers and the viewers.

Even some of the established TV personalities had trouble nosing their way into the Emmy race this time. Tennessee Ernie Ford and his show weren't even listed in the Television Academy's 35-page "Reminder Bulletin," which logged hundreds of shows to jog the memories of the voting membership.

The Academy disavows any blame for overlooking Ford, claiming that questionnaires went out quarterly last year to all producers and members. If Ford's producer-manager, Cliffie Stone, had filled out any of the questionnaires, the pea-picker at least would have had his name in the Reminder Bulletin.

Groucho Marx and Art Linkletter were left out, too, but in their cases the Academy owned up to an oversight and sent out a correction addendum

Many Academy members didn't bother to vote this year. The 13-month period of eligible shows and performers made it too formidable and time-consuming a task. Besides, most of the Academy members were too busy watching TV.

Martin Gabel pulled a lulu of a double-entendre crack on "What's My Line?" May 22. It was during the questioning of the pretty female dental technician and had to do with where and how she touched the people she served. But CBS insists it received not one card, letter or call of protest. Either the TV audience is becoming tolerant to a startling degree or has quit watching "What's My Line?"

We know that people are still watching TV because NBC reported that over 100 complaints were registered from viewers who thought commentator Merrill Mueller's summary the first night of the U. N. debate on our spy plane was "pro-Russian."

Frank Bourgholtzer took over NBC's U. N. reports after that, but the network insists the switch was planned before the beefs were registered. Let us hope that is true. Reporter Mueller's summary was pro-neutral, not "pro-Russian" and NBC would be infringing on everyone's freedom if it bowed to that kind of pressure.

During the writer's strike some TV film producers have taken a public-be-damned attitude. Not only are they throwing in repeat shows, but they are shooting the same scripts for two and three different series. Before long the only way you'll be able to tell the difference between "Wagon Train," "Riverboat" and "Laramie" is by the names of the heroes — dialogue, shootouts, fights, lynchings—all else will be the same.

The Palmers have four sets of twins and one singleton.

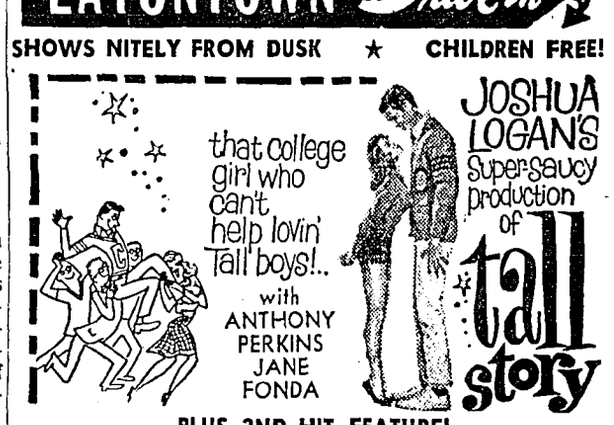

A cynical Doris Day listens to the head of the family, David Niven, lay down the law to their four mischievous youngsters in this breakfast scene from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Please Don't Eat the Daisies," film version of Jean Kerr's hilarious best-seller. Janis Paige, Spring Byington and Richard Haydn co-star in the CinemaScope and color attraction. Starting tonight at the Shore Drive-In Theatre, Routes 33 and 34 Collingwood Circle.

Shore Conference "A" Division in Three-Way Tie

Freehold Defeats Red Bank, 4-0, to Gain 1st Place Tie

FREEHOLD — Red Bank High School tied up the Shore Conference A Division yesterday. The Bucs did it by losing to Freehold Regional, 4-0, on the Colonials' diamond.

Freehold's victory earned the Colonials a tie in the A Division with Asbury Park and Manasquan, all with 8-4 records.

Following the game, Asbury Park officials drew a bye for the playoff for first position. Freehold and Manasquan will play the first game tomorrow and then the Blue Bishops take on the winner Friday for the A Championship.

Ed Henderson, Freehold chucker, tossed a three-hitter to beat Red Bank, with Willie Davis collecting two of the three. Henderson was sharp. He fanned 12 batters and walked only one man.

George Long pitched for Red Bank and despite losing he worked a good game. Long fanned six, walked two and gave Freehold six hits.

Freehold collected runs in the first, fourth, fifth and sixth innings as Long put down each uprising as it popped up.

Larry Drusen reached first on a walk, stole second and scored on Alex Tuyahov's line drive to left field. Ronnie Rupprecht was safe on a fielder's choice, while Tuyahov was forced out at second. Rupprecht went out on the same force play. After Accisano singled, Henderson flied out to center.

In the fourth, Henderson fanned and Harvey Whille singled to left and went to second when Al Dozier bobbled the ball. Howie Jerken was out on an unassisted play by John Gigilo. Berlew was safe on Joe Soviero's error, and Whille got home on the boot.

Tuyahov, who had three for four for the day, opened the fifth with a single to center and advanced to second on a passed ball. Rupprecht walked and both players advanced on a long fly by Accisano. Tuyahov then came home on Long's wild pitch.

Coach Bob Olshan's team didn't have many scoring opportunities, but when they did have them, they failed to make a profit. Jerry Frost reached first on Kane's error in the fifth, and stole second where he stayed when John Newton and John Giglio struck out.

With one out in the fifth, Willie Davis reached first on a bunt, but was erased on a fielder's choice play on Len DiNaples' grounder. Soviero came up and went out on the same play.

In the sixth, Sweeney walked and on an attempted pickoff by Henderson, he made it to second. Long attempted a bunt, but popped to first base. Frost grounded to third, moving Sweeney up a base, and Newton then ended the inning with a pop fly.

Caseys Lose Playoff Berth In Tennis Loop

RED BANK — In a special playoff for fourth spot in the Central Jersey Tennis League yesterday, Lakewood High School defeated Red Bank Catholic, 3-2.

Red Bank Catholic gained the tie with Lakewood by defeating Middletown Friday on the Marine park courts. Lakewood and Red Bank Catholic ended up with 4-4 records in season play.

In the victory for Lakewood, Richard Gaines defeated Paul Naughton, 6-0, 6-1; John Foster of Lakewood defeated Dick Robinson, RBC, 9-7, 6-0, and Mike Hoffman, RBC, defeated Nickie Alpert, 6-0, 6-1.

In the doubles, Gaines and Foster, Lakewood, defeated Hoffman and Robinson, 6-1, 6-3, and Naughton and Barry Nelson, RBC, defeated Alpert and Bruce Kramer in 6-2 sets.

Lakewood will play Princeton today in the semi-final. The winner will face Red Bank Friday for the championship.

Half of Nation's 2 Year Olds Eligible for Sapling

OCEANPORT — Half of the nation's winners of two-year-old stakes this season are eligible for the $100,000 Sapling at Monmouth Park, the East's first big-money extravaganza for juveniles.

At this early date, just 10 stakes have been run for two-year-old colts and the winners of five, led by the jet-like Iron Rail, have been named to the Aug. 6 Sapling. Iron Rail, owned by Donald G. Ford and James Kelty, has won the Cherry Hill at Garden State and the Juvenile at Aqueduct, establishing a track record in the latter, to stamp himself as America's leading two-year-old.

The Sorority, Monmouth's co-feature to the Sapling for two-year-old fillies, has among its eligibles three distaff juveniles who have won all the major events for their sex in the East. The Sorority will carry $100,000 guaranteed purse money, like the Sapling, for the first time this year and will be run July 30.

The leading Sorority eligible to date is My Old Flame, a half-sister to the 1959 juvenile filly champion My Dear Girl. My Old Flame, owned by Mrs. Bruce Campbell of Ocala, Fla., fooled the experts who declined to bid on her in the Florida Yearling Sales because of an alleged wind affliction. She has won the Florida Breeders' Stakes, the Florida Breeders' Futurity and was second in the Rancocas Stakes.

The filly who defeated My Old Flame in the Rancocas, Harriet Robinson's Dream On, is also a Sorority nominee. So is Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Apatontheback, winner of the Fashion Stakes at Aqueduct.

Besides Iron Rail, other stakes winners eligible for the Sapling are Mrs. Herbert Herff's Intensive, hero of the Gulfstream Park Dinner Stakes; Louisville hotel magnate J. Graham Brown's He's A Pistol, winner of the Bashford Manor at Churchill Downs and a full brother to Kentucky Derby winner Venetian Way; and Patrice Jacobs' Hail To Reason, winner of the Youthful at Aqueduct.

Final payment of $125 for each nominee by owners of all Sapling and Sorority eligibles is due on June 15. Pending that date, 378 two-year-olds from an original nomination list of 646 remain eligible for the Sapling. The Sorority eligibility list stands at 329 out of an original 620.

Tony Graff was the most seasoned colt in the 1960 Kentucky Derby. Prior to the race he had been to the post 39 times since Jan. 28, 1959.

State Junior Olympics Set For Chatham

CHATHAM — What might very well prove to be the largest track and field meet for youngsters ever held in the state is scheduled for Saturday, June 11, here.

The occasion will be the 1960 New Jersey A.A.U. Junior Olympics, sponsored annually by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and, this year, by the Jaycees' Summit Area chapter.

Boys and girls of all ages through 17, gathered from every corner of the state, will compete in 44 track and field events for a total of 186 medals and other special awards. The meet is sanctioned by and will be supervised by the state Amateur Athletic Union.

To be eligible to compete in the state meet, youngsters must be winners in their respective local Junior Olympics meets, conducted at key points throughout the state by various Jaycee chapters. There are four age classifications for both boys and girls: 16-17, 14-15, 12-13, and 11 and under. Events in each age group will vary and the over-all program will include all distances from 50 yards to a mile, low and high hurdles, high and broad jumps, shot put and softball throw. A special event will be the state baton-twirling championship for girls 16-17.

Feature of the day-long affair, to be held at the new Chatham High School athletic field on Rt. 24 just west of the business district, will be an invitational mile for New Jersey college runners.

Prizes to be awarded the mile winner, as well as the outstanding boy and girl athletes and the baton-twirling champion, will include a Sacco-Roma, a carry-all bag especially designed for athletes and inspired by the 1960 Olympics in Rome.

Sindle Is Tied In Olympics Sail Race

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Frank Levinson of Clearwater, yesterday won the second event in the Olympic Trials of the Flying Dutchman sailing class to tie for the lead with Harry Sindle of Little Falls, N. J.

Another race was postponed when winds on the Gulf of Mexico exceeded 15 knots. Twenty-four skippers are vying for the lone berth to represent the United States in the Olympics at Naples, Italy, this summer.

Sindle won the opening race Monday in his sloop-rigged 19-foot craft. Levinson came in third in that event.

Frank Bludsworth of Houston, Tex., took an early lead in today's race and was out in front during the first four of the six leg course. Levinson overtook him after the fourth leg and moved ahead. Bludsworth finished second and Sindle came in third.

Mrs. Pat Duane of Delray Beach, the current North American champion of the class, finished third for third spot in overall points, Bludsworth is fourth in total points.

Other contenders yesterday and in the order they finished were: Charles Taylor, Jr., Fort Myers; Jim Schoonmaker, Miami Beach, J. K. Fordyce, Washington, D. C.; Frances Eavy, Clearwater; David Fladlien, Los Angeles, and Ronald Meissner, Racine, Wis.

Cubs Sink Giants, 9-1; Bucs Down Reds, 4-3, for 1 1/2 Lead

ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's with the San Francisco Giants? Don't they know they're back home, where all that good pitching is supposed to really pay off?

They won 14 of their first 19 games at spanking new Candlestick Park. But now the Chicago Cubs have taken two of three there, knocking out three of the Giants' top pitchers and dropping them 1½ games behind the National League leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

After jarring the Giants out of a share of the lead with a split in a Memorial Day doubleheader, the Cubs won, 9-1, last night against southpaw Johnny Antonelli. The Pirates, meanwhile, defeated Cincinnati, 4-3, in 11 innings at Pittsburgh.

Last place Philadelphia cut loose for six runs in the eighth inning and whipped Milwaukee, 12-7. Los Angeles rapped St. Louis, 8-3.

In the American League, Baltimore gained a two-game lead by beating New York, 3-2, while second place Cleveland lost, 6-4, at Chicago. Kansas City defeated Detroit, 2-1, on the three-hit pitching of ex-Pirate Dick Hall. Boston defeated Washington, 5-1.

The Cubs, responsible for three of the Giants' seven defeats at spacious Candlestick, got this one on a pair of doubles by Jerry Kindall, good for three runs, and homers by Ernie Banks and Bob Will.

Glen Hobbie (4-6) was the winner, Antonelli (3-2) the loser.

Roberto Clemente, regaining the NL bat lead at .353, singled with the bases loaded in the 11th for the Pirates. It was Pittsburgh's fourth straight victory, and 14th in the last 19 games. Elroy Face (4-3) won his fourth in a row with two innings of shutout relief, leaving the bases loaded in the 10th and 11th. He escaped by getting Frank Robinson on a short-to-home-to-first doubleplay and striking out Tony Gonzales in the 10th, then retired Gus Bell on a liner to second in the 11th.

Two walks and a bunt single by Dick Groat, who had five of the Bucs' 13 hits, set up Cal McLish (2-4) for the loss McLish was one of eight Redleg pitchers, a one-game total that tied the NL record.

The Phils tagged the loss on Lew Burdette (3-2), working in relief, while handing Milwaukee a fourth straight defeat. Bobby Del Greco and Pancho Herrera each drove in three runs for Philadelphia. Del Greco's two-run single was the clincher in the eighth, which Herrera capped with his second triple. Rookie Chris Short (2-0) won it in relief.

A tie-breaking bases-loaded home run by Norm Sherry, his first Major League slam, won it for the Dodgers in the sixth against Ron Kline, (2-4).

'Baby Birds' or 'Kiddie Korps' Hurlers Winning for Orioles

ASSOCIATED PRESS

You can call 'em the Baby Birds or the Kiddie Korps, but what those Baltimore Oriole pitchers are doing to the rest of the American League these days is spelled M-U-R-D-E-R.

The five kid hurlers—Steve Barber, Chuck Estrada, Jack Fisher, Milt Pappas and Jerry Walker—all barely old enough to vote, have packed away 16 of the front-flying Birds' 25 victories.

Walker, the last to become a winner nailed his first decision with a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees last night. The 21-year-old right-hander had a no-hitter for six innings, then gave way for ninth-inning relief by Barber, also 21.

It was the fifth victory in six games for the Orioles and it gave them a two-game edge over Cleveland. Chicago's defending champion White Sox shook their slump and beat the second-place Indians, 6-4.

Kansas City spilled Detroit, 2-1, behind the three-hit pitching of Dick Hall. Boston escaped the cellar while plunking Washington in, defeating the Senators, 5-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati, 4-3, in 11 innings and took a 1½-game lead over second-place San Francisco beaten, 9-1, by Chicago's Cubs. Philadelphia rapped Milwaukee, 12-7. Los Angeles whipped St. Louis, 8-3.

The Orioles beat left-hander Whitey Ford (2-3). The clinching run came off reliever Ryne Duren in the eighth inning on three walks and a sacrifice fly by Clint Courtney.

The White Sox broke their losing string at four and reclaimed third place from New York, 3½ games behind Baltimore. A two-run homer by Gene Freese tied it 2-all in the fourth off loser Gary Bell (5-3) and Al Smith's solo homer triggered a winning, three-run sixth. Billy Pierce (4-2) was the winner.

Kansas City swept the three-game series with Detroit for a five-game streak although also managing just three hits. Southpaw Pete Burnside (2-1) lost it, giving up two hits in his seven innings. Andy Carey homered for the A's first run, in the sixth, and they got the winner in the seventh on a walk, a sacrifice and a pair of infield outs.

Boston Manager Billy Jurges received a vote of confidence from club owner Tom Yawkey a few minutes before game time and the Red Sox then chipped in with their fourth victory in 18 games, winning two in a row for the first tme in that span. Tom Brewer (4-4) won it with a four-hitter and a squeeze bunt that beat Bill Fischer (0-2) in the second inning.

The Elm Lanes Junior League wound up a 33-week season last Saturday afternoon with the presentation of trophies, donated by the alleys. This league consisted of 16 teams—four to a team—with two games being rolled each week. In all there were 112 of these future bowling stars, of which three managed to attend every session. These three were: Christine Collins, Jim Allen and Tony Rapolla.

Bobby Demaree and Gene Camoosa supervised bowling each week and are very proud of the league's accomplishments. Chief among the accomplishments was the winning of two inter-lane matches, one with Coast Lanes and the other with Shore Lanes.

Other events were the awarding of special gifts at Christmas time, Valentine's Day and Easter; free ice cream for all at Christmas, valentines for all on Valentine's Day, a belt and bowling buckle each week for the high game with handicap, and trophies for the top keglers at the end of the season.

"Honey" Baer was the top kegler in all departments. Honey rolled at a 146 clip for the season, had a 233 single effort and a 388 series. High for the boys was Ralph Tanguay with a 143 average and a 202 high game. Allen Heyman collected the most pins in two games—358.

The Werewolves were the best team for both halves of the season, and included: Barry Evert, Allen Heyman, John Romano and Ralph Tanquay. The top team of girls was the Peacocks with Gail Thompson, Peggy Collins, Christine Collins and Bobbie Ellen Kaufman. Henry Kranzler was the most improved bowler, going from 45 to 84.

Every bowler in the loop rolled at least one game over 100 except Billy Lees, who averaged 50 for 34 games. Billy did roll a 76 in his first year at the game and is expected to go above that 100 mark next season.

While we are on the subject of junior bowling we cannot forget the 257 rolled by John Springstein at the Red Bank Recreation in a special match between the junior guys and gals of the Lincroft Recreation League. This is rolling that big game when it counts.

Summer leagues have been increasing the past few years. What the main cause of this is, besides the growing interest in bowling, can only be guessed at. However, this would-be kegler believes it is the installation of air conditioning in most of the establishments. It is now cooler while bowling than elsewhere during the summer.

In the northern section of the county, or in 12 establishments that include 206 lanes, there are 84 leagues in operation, with a few more being organized. Upon examination we find that Wednesday is the most popular day for summer bowling. Of the 84 leagues 22, or slightly better than 25 percent, roll Wednesday. Tuesdays and Thursdays are next with 17 each, followed by Monday with 14, Friday—11, Sunday—two and Saturday with one.

Last Thursday night the Boncore Memorial Classic league got under way at the Red Bank Recreation, this year with 14 teams at the foul line. Bob Korona, a new comer to the loop, got off on the right foot. Bob rolled a 278 in the opening game. He came back with 180 and 200 for a 658 night's work. Both these scores will be tough to top in the next 14 weeks. Bob's partner is Angelo DePonti, and between them they managed to take all three games from the John Acerra-Joe Hobko, Jr. duet. The Rupy Bros. team—Bill Rupy and Ken Wilson—was the only other team to sweep its match, this one over the Sunny Acerra-Harold Young combo.

To show the vagaries of bowling the Fischer-Kull team rolled the highest set for the night—1,187 — and could only take two games from Hembling-Tonsola. In all there were three 600 sets rolled. Besides Korona there was a 616 by Ken Wilson on 190, 225 and 201, and a 608 by Rudy Fisher on 213, 182 and 213. There was one postponed match so this means that there were three double century sets out of a possible 24. A very good average!

The highest single game was 449 by Korona-DePonti and a 422 by Fischer-Kull. All these teams will have sponsors. Any one wishing to aid these fine keglers can do so by contacting Sunny Acerra or your truly.

SOFT TOUCH — The greenskeeper might object, but this golf car can be parked on a green without leaving any more impression than a man's footsteps. The gimmick is the tires by Goodyear, and they provide high flotation, which means they almost "tip toe" over the fairways.

Aqueduct Sets Betting Mark

With Aqueduct setting a World record of $5,560,628—the second five million dollar day in racing history—a total of $24,785,147 was poured through mutuel machines in 15 race tracks around the country over the holiday week-end.

Besides Aqueduct, Garden State Park, which handled $4,006,249, and Suffolk Downs, which registered $2,175,836, set all-time track records.

Aqueduct also led in attendance. A crowd of 70,410 witnessed the program.

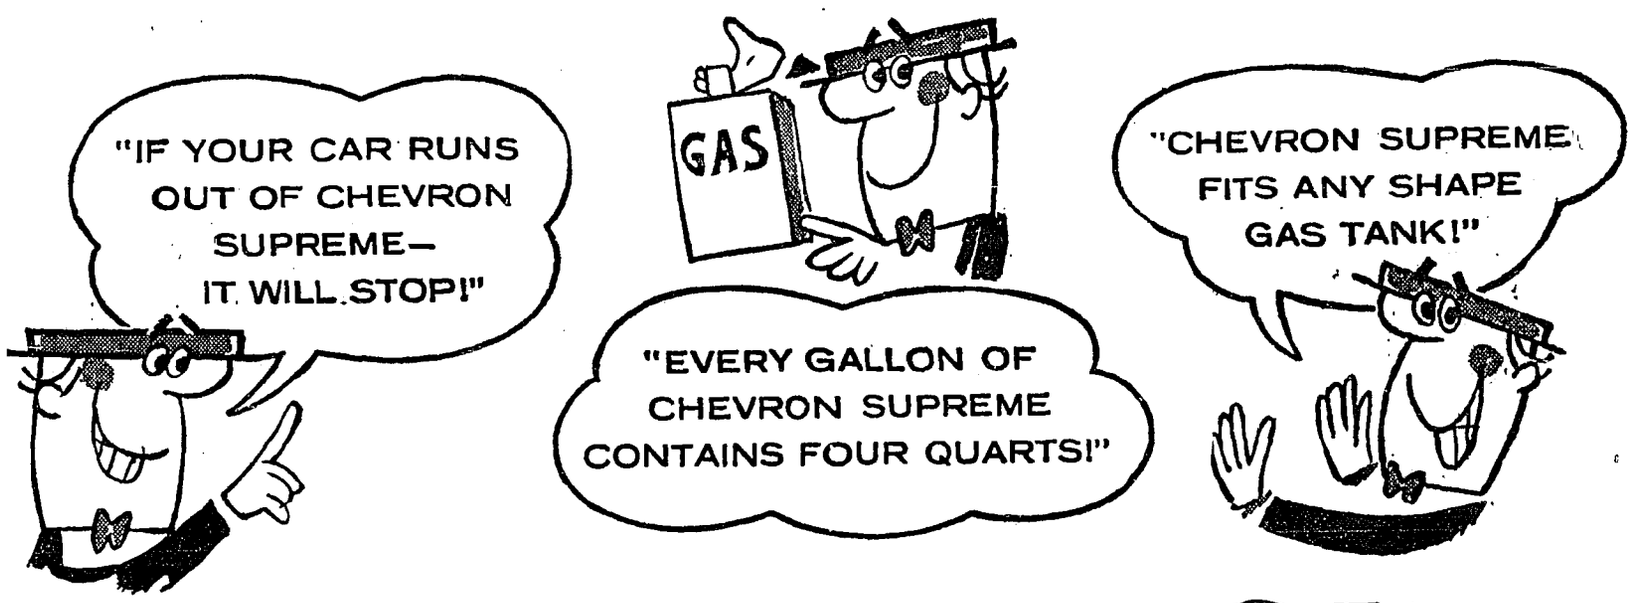

Saturday, the first day of the Memorial Day week-end, 270,322 spectators sent $19,023,852 through the mutuels.

Attendance at Garden State Park was 50,200.

You must sometimes double an opponent for lack of anything better to do. When you have a strong "defensive" hand, there is no great virtue in making an offensive bid; double the enemy to see what your partner thinks about defending.

Only a fine player would consider doubling two diamonds with the West hand. West doesn't have a trump trick, but his penalty double is very shrewd.

West can afford this kind of double when he has a fine partner. East should accept the double with two or more cards in the enemy's suit, but should take the double out if he has extreme shortness in the doubled suit.

This style of doubling works best when the doubled contract is two diamonds or some lower bid. Even if the contract is made, declarer will not score a game. If the double goes sour, it won't cost too much.

Badly Hurt

South is badly hurt if the defense is accurate. East wins the first spade trick and shifts to the eight of hearts. West wins a finesse and leads his other spade. East wins and leads his other heart.

West leads a third heart for East to ruff. East leads a low club to the king, wins the club return with the ace, and then leads a third round of spades.

By this time South's hand has been picked clean, and he is down to his six trumps. He cannot shut out the jack of diamonds, and the opponents therefore collect a penalty of 800 points, less 100 honors for South. East and West are glad to get 700 points net expecially sinme, left to their own devices, they would have played the hand at a part score contract.

Even if the defense slips slightly, they should still collect 400 points net. This would still be better than a part score.

The light penalty double pays big dividends when you can trust your partner to accept the double or take it out, depending on the nature of his hand.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player doubles. You hold: Spades—K 10 9 4 Hearts—J 10 7 4 Diamonds—8 6 Clubs—Q 10 9. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three spades. This jump, after a takeout, promises good trump support but very little else.

"ASTRO-GUIDE" By Ceean

For Wednesday, June 1

Present—For You and Yours . . The outlook is cheerful, with happiness and well-being accented. If children seem unruly, charge it up to their high spirits. Try joining in their activities yourself! This is a good time for employment interviews. Consider long-range as well as immediate benefits before making a decision.

Past . . . A tense audience at Anthony Street Theater in New York City, watched Madame Adelphe of Paris walk a tightrope suspended above the stage on June 1, 1819. It was the first such theatrical exhibition in America.

Future . . . The toothbrush will not only clean your teeth, but entertain you at the same time. When the brush is manipulated up and down, the handle will pass over a set of reeds, producing musical notes.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19)
Someone may try to influence you with a hard-luck story. Don't be taken in!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
A physical examination is advisable. You'll want to enjoy the summer ahead!

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)
Irritation at incompetence upsets you. Laugh it off.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)
Social prestige is accented. Entertain business acquaintances.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)
Hold tight to your money when tempted to splurge on a trip you can't afford.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)
Honesty as a policy is a rule that applies to yourself as well as to others!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
Tone down inflated ideas of your own abilities and you'll be happier.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
A sudden turn of events may benefit you financially. Don't spend foolishly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
Never mind what the neighbors say if your conscience is clear.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Now is a good time to buy essentials, but save a bit for a rainy day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
All that glistens is not gold, so don't be dazzled by an offer until you've checked it.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)
Emergencies arise, but you can cope with them if you remain calm.

Mrs. Skakandy Is Installed By Junior Club

WEST LONG BRANCH — Mrs. Jack Skakandy was installed for a second term as president of the Little Silver Junior Woman's Club at the 10th annual mother-daughter banquet held Thursday night at Joseph's Restaurant.

Mrs. E. R. Weaver, junior club adviser, conducted the installation ceremonies and also installed Mrs. Edward Carroll, vice president; Mrs. Robert Fouratt, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Wade, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Michael Bivona, recording secretary, and Mrs. George Curchin, corresponding secretary.

High point of the evening was the presentation of a check for $1,000 by Mrs. Carroll, escrow building fund chairman, to Mrs. M. R. Stoecker, president of the senior club, for the senior clubhouse which is under construction.

The award for the outstanding club member of the year went to Mrs. Robert Fouratt. It was presented by Mrs. William Gardella, membership chairman. Mrs. Gardella also introduced the seven members who joined the club during the past year, Mrs. G. Donald Apgar, Mrs. Robert King, Mrs. Robert McCallum, Mrs. John Rodowski, Mrs. Charles Rose, Mrs. Kenneth Spreen and Mrs. Gerald Tramitz.

Mrs. Skakandy announced two additional awards received by the club at the junior state convention in Atlantic City in May. Mrs. Carroll won second prize for an embroidered quilt, and Mrs. Herbert Swanson won second place for her flower arrangement at the convention. These awards are in addition to the two already announced — Mrs. Spreen's "best actress" award for her portrayal of Queen Elizabeth, and the drama department's second place drama award at the state tournament last month in Spring Lake. As part of the program Thursday night, the drama department, under the direction of Mrs. John Antliff, chairman, presented the award-winning play, Maxwell Anderson's "Mary, Queen of Scots."

Mrs. Weaver presented Mrs. Skakandy the president's gift, and Mrs. Skakandy, in turn, presented a gift to Mrs. Weaver for her service to the club.

Thursday night's flower arranging competition contest was won by Mrs. Herbert Swanson. Mrs. Kenneth Walker, Jr., presented an award to Mrs. Swanson. Judges for the competition were Mrs. Joseph Carroll, Mrs. Anthony Trufolo and Mrs. Stoecker. The banquet was under the chairmanship of Mrs. Tyler Stewart, with Mrs. Joseph Ulan in charge of tickets and reservations.

This month's meeting will take place Monday, June 13, at 8 p.m. at the offices of the First Eastern Investment Corporation, Broad St., Red Bank.
