Rap Police Leadership In Middletown's Force

MIDDLETOWN—"There are dedicated law enforcement people in the employ of the Middletown Police Department who earnestly desire to give the best service possible.

"With proper leadership . . . the police department can give the community a realistic sense of security which is urgently needed."

This is the sum and substance of a department survey prepared by the International Association of Chiefs of Police which was presented to the Township Committee last week.

The 70-page document covers every aspect of the department, and makes recommendations for improving the operation of the force.

Officials who prepared the report stressed that "in a survey of this type, weaknesses are of necessity emphasized and the strong points . . . mentioned little if at all."

In discussing the organization and size of the force, the report states that the present department "appears to be incapable of providing the level of police service to which the township is entitled."

Noting that the department is undermanned, the report notes that adding of more men alone will not improve the operation of the unit.

The survey recommends that the leadership of the unit be improved.

The report goes on to state that there is a "significant amount of dissension in the department which is symptomatic of the lack of leadership in the unit."

Dissension Evident

The report states that this dissension is evident to all in command and that there is a lack of understanding as to what is expected of both supervisory and line personnel.

"The absence of effective supervision at the line level caused conflicts in interpreting and implementing patrol procedures."

The report goes on to point out that a lack of systematic dissemination of information has caused "petty arguments and dissension among supervisory personnel."

The report goes on to state that the chief has failed to "establish a fair and uniform disciplinary policy," which makes it difficult for division commanders to develop and enforce standards in their own areas of responsibility.

'Word of Apology'

The report cited cases where men were sent letters advising them that disciplinary action was pending and the content of the letter contained a "word of apology that the action had to be taken, as though the chief's original desires had been overruled."

The report also says there are cases where an allegation of misconduct was made without any indication of subsequent action or disposition.

It also states that there is a need for a better training program and system of keeping records.

The report notes that the state Civil Service Commission bars the township from recruiting qualified personnel from outside the community.

It urges that the township and other communities band together to get this Civil Service residence requirement repealed so that the best possible men be recruited for police service.

The report also was critical of the use of special officers who are used to equalize manpower on various shifts.

Kennedy to Confer On Berlin Situation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy confers today with West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder on Allied plans for meeting a possible new Communist thrust against the Western position in Berlin.

Schroeder is understood to have warned administration officials that the East German regime, with Russian backing, may try to impose new control over civilian traffic moving into Berlin from West Germany.

Allied Support

Schroeder, here since Sunday, is seeking Allied support for rejection of such a move.

It is not yet clear what retaliatory action West Germany and its allies could take. Officials indicate there has been some talk of an economic boycott if the East Germans demand regular diplomatic visas for travel to Berlin across their territory.

The meeting is the first in a series of talks the President plans on the Berlin situation. He will receive Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Thursday. Then on Nov. 7, the day after the congressional elections, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will open consultations here with Kennedy.

Meanwhile, Foy D. Kohler, the new U.S. ambassador to Moscow, conferred Tuesday with Khrushchev in the Russian capital. It was believed certain Berlin was high on the agenda.

A brief communique issued after the session said the talk was held in an atmosphere of sincerity and mutual understanding. "They touched important international issues and also questions of Soviet-American relations," the communique said.

State Department officials in Washington are now studying Kohler's report.

Kennedy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara all foresee the probability of extremely dangerous East-West confrontations over Berlin by the end of the year, though they are not quite sure how the crisis may develop. One possibility is that Khrushchev will sign his long-threatened separate peace treaty with East Germany and claim that this gives the Red German regime sovereign control over the supply lines to Berlin. It is in this connection that the so-called visa issue becomes most significant.

Van Brunt Quits Council Post

LONG BRANCH — Councilman Carlton H. Van Brunt, from the Fourth Ward, resigned unexpectedly last night. The action cut the authorized nine-member council to seven and was the second resignation since the new governing body took office in July, 1961.

Mr. Van Brunt, who has been under a doctor's care for a heart condition almost since his election, submitted a letter of resignation "for reasons of health" to council at a caucus meeting. It is effective immediately, though won't be formally received until a regular council meeting next Tuesday.

The resignation had two immediate effects in current business of the council which has been sharply divided on policy matters in recent weeks:

1. It broke the back of any new move, such as the one a week ago, to oust City Manager Richard J. Bowen.

2. It opened the way for a broad investigation of the city Housing Authority's $7.5 million Shrewsbury Riverfront redevelopment project.

Mr. Van Brunt was one of four councilmen who backed a surprise resolution early last Wednesday morning, at the end of a five-hour meeting, to remove Mr. Bowen on grounds he has been an unsatisfactory manager.

The author of the resolution, Councilman Samuel Marks, had planned to renew it on Tuesday in hopes of collecting a fifth vote which City Attorney Louis Aikens has ruled is required for dismissal. The resolution last week, though it had four votes in favor, three against, and one abstention, failed because it lacked a clear majority of a full council.

Now, unable to produce even four votes from the original group, Mr. Marks is believed resigned to dropping any immediate new effort to force the manager out.

On the riverfront probe, Mr. Van Brunt provided the fourth vote last week to create a 4 to 4 tie on a resolution by Councilwoman Lucy Wilson. This resolution did not require a majority of a full council but lost because of the tie vote.

Mrs. Wilson said today she had planned to move Tuesday to have Mr. Van Brunt's vote of last week declared out of order because he is a member of the Housing Authority and should have been disqualified.

In the light of his resignation, however, Mrs. Wilson said, she will simply present her resolution again.

Among its goals is a study of all contracts in which the authority is involved, a study of the ability of Lionel K. Levy, the development contractor, to carry through with the $7.5 million program of garden apartments and single family houses, and a study of whether the program may be renegotiated to provide for greater and more diversified construction.

City Manager Bowen said the vacancy created by Mr. Van Brunt's resignation can be filled by the appointment of a fourth ward resident by a majority—five votes—of council. It is too late, he said, to have the post filled by election Nov. 6.

Voters will fill the first vacancy Nov. 6 in a city-wide test. This opening was created by the resignation last July of Dr. Alexander Vineburg, a councilman-at-large. There are seven candidates in the field to complete the term which expires June 30, 1964.

All ward council terms expire next June 30. Elections for the six places will be held in May. Therefore, a replacement for Mr. Van Brunt would serve only eight and one-half months.

Illness has forced Mr. Van Brunt to be absent from several council meetings and to leave others earlier than adjournment. It was one of several reasons cited by critics several weeks ago in an unsuccessful move to recall him from office.

Sponsored by the Taxpayers and Voters Association, the recall failed when petitions submitted to the city clerk were found to have lacked about 40 percent of necessary signatures to put the question on the ballot Nov. 6.

AIR PROBLEMS — Roland Pierson, River Plaza, captain commanding the Civil Air Patrol in Monmouth County, talks over plans for use of Colts Neck Airport as a base with Gordon Donald, Jr., Eatontown, president of Shore Air Services, who now is busy with plans to build up the field.

Airport On Its Way Up

COLTS NECK — Private aviation is expected to come into its own right here. The operation could be big.

Gordon (Duff) Donald, Jr., 40-A Eatoncrest Dr., Eatontown, president of Shore Air Services, has taken over Colts Neck Airport and says "easily, soon, a half a million dollars or more could be spent here. This airport is on its way up."

Mr. Donald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon D. Donald, Clover La., Rumson, piloted a two-engined Piper Apache plane in giving a newsman and a photographer a birds-eye view of the airport and demonstrating its close proximity to Red Bank Airport and Monmouth County Airport, at Wall Township, both of which appear to be within hand's reach from the sky.

While, at present, there was little talk of financing, or just who was to put up the money, the evidence was right below, on the field itself, — located near Colts Neck Inn, off the Freehold Road — that this was no dream. Grass on the main runway had been cut and bulldozers were busy mowing the rest of what was pictured to be between 500 and 600 acres of land which will be utilized in the total operation.

Full lighting for night flying is being installed.

CAP Plan Studied

Roland Pierson, 300 Half Mile Rd., Middletown, a captain in command of the Monmouth County Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, who operates a real estate agency, was there. He was working out details for a proposed shift of the CAP from the Red Bank Airport at New Shrewsbury to this location. The CAP now has taken over the main air search-rescue operations from the U.S. Air Force in this area.

"We will be getting into negotiations very quickly now," he said.

Mr. Donald, his wife, Joan, secretary, and a number of temporarily unidentified associates, are renting the airport from Dr. Armand Hammer, former owner of the Shadow Isle Farms, where many of the nation's famed Angus black cattle were bred, raised and sold.

Mr. Donald and his wife says they expect to see the early construction of a fly-in, drive-in motel, a restaurant, a swimming pool and other "facilities of comfort" built at Colts Neck. They, themselves, are not planning such construction. "It will be by a sub-leasing arrangement for part of the property — and we have enough of that," said Mr. Donald. Also projected are facilities for horse back riding, creek fishing and picnicking.

Planned directly, however, is the extension and paving of the present 2,500-foot main runway

Court Upholds Fine of $100

TRENTON, (AP) — The Appellate Division of Superior Court yesterday upheld a $100 fine against Albert Loux of 1 Burlington Ave., Leonardo, on a charge of storing boats on his property in violation of the Middletown Township zoning ordinance.

Loux was fined in Middletown Township Court on grounds his property is in a residential zone where boat storage is forbidden. He appealed, contending boats were stored on the property before the zoning ordinance was adopted in 1950. The Appellate Court said the evidence indicated Loux was wrong.

Rumson's School Is Approved by Voters

RUMSON — Voters last night approved by a margin of 214 ballots a Rumson Board of Education plan to build a 10-classroom elementary school.

In what was characterized as an exceptionally large school election turnout, 766 residents voted in favor of the $395,000 proposal. A total of 552 ballots were cast against the plan.

A total of 1,328 taxpayers voted, but 10 ballots were declared void following the counting last night. The number of votes cast in the special referendum was said to be more than twice the number usually balloted at school elections.

The board plans to locate the new building adjacent to the Forrestdale School. The plan is that the new structure will accommodate students in kindergarten and first and second grades.

The success at the polls of the board's building plans is considered to eliminate any hope for a joint building program involving the local board and the Fair Haven and Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High School Boards of Education.

Both the other two boards, which are in the process of developing building programs, sought the co-operation of the Rumson Board for the planning of a regional junior high school.

The local board declined to consider the proposal, due to what Elliott W. Sparkes, president of the local board, called a "conflict of philosophy between the (regional, superintendent and the board."

Philip H. Roy, president of the Fair Haven board, has made it clear that the Fair Haven school unit would make an effort to develop a co-operative building program with the regional board. The possible avenues of approach to a combined plan involving two boards will be explored during a joint workshop session of the two units Oct. 30.

The Fair Haven board proposes to build an $850,000 "middle school" for grades six through eight. The regional board predicts a need for an expansion of the high school by 1965, and had proposed a regional junior high school as a solution to the crowding student population problems in all the three districts.

Police Say Scout Saved Girl's Life

MIDDLETOWN — A 14-year-old Boy Scout's first aid training was credited by police yesterday with saving the life of a 10-year-old girl on Saturday.

The girl, Melissa Jeremy, 29 Michael Dr., was struck by a car on Tindall Rd. The girl had just gotten off a bus and was running across the street when the accident occurred.

Police said Alfred Woodward, 1 Hillyer Dr., a member of Troop 35, a passenger in an auto passing by, immediately rushed to the girl's side and began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The girl was unconscious and not breathing.

Used Shirt for Bandages

He also used his shirt for bandages to dress the girl's injuries.

The youth, a freshman at the high school annex, was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. George W. Sincox, Kingfisher Dr.

She said she had a car full of children returning from a local football game.

Mrs. Sincox said everyone saw the accident happen, and were dumbfounded as the Woodward boy immediately jumped out of the car and raced to the girl.

When first aid units arrived, oxygen was immediately given to the girl. She was taken to Riverview Hospital, where she is reported to be in critical condition, but improving.

Okay Sewer Ordinances

KEANSBURG — After a one-hour public hearing, Borough Council last night unanimously adopted two ordinances authorizing the expenditure of $380,000 for the Palmer Ave. sewer extension project.

Most questions from the audience centered around the borough engineer's estimate of assessments costs for sewer mains.

The top estimate is $13.40 per lineal foot, but engineer Robert Greenberg said he expects bids to come in at $10.50 to $11.50 per foot.

Residents noted that two years ago, a preliminary survey put the figure at $6.40 to $7.50 per foot.

Mayor Louis T. Collichio said these figures were "unrealistic" and had resulted from an incomplete study.

He and Councilmen Martin C. Lohsen and T. Edward Kinlin assured spectators that if sewer job bids come in too high, they will be rejected.

The project will be in two phases: $200,000 for mains, and $180,000 for plant enlargement, the mains to be paid for by assessment of property owners, and the plant, through general taxation.

Mr. Greenberg reported that under new federal legislation, the borough might be able to obtain a federal sewer grant for up to 50 per cent of project costs — both mains and plant work.

Under the old law, a municipality could get only one-third of costs, for plant projects, and no funds for sewer main installations.

Council authorized the preparation of an application for the federal aid.

An ordinance was introduced creating a five-member housing authority to promote construction of dwellings for senior citizens, as part of the urban renewal program. Public hearing on the proposal wil be Nov. 7.

Cut Off Pay

It was announced that council will cease payment of salary to Police Chief Alphonsus McGrath as of Tuesday. Mr. McGrath, who is retiring, is presently on disability leave.

Council was to have stopped his salary Sept. 1, but extended the time to give Mr. McGrath an opportunity to settle with the state the question of his retirement benefits.

The governing body voted to start condemnation proceedings against the Waackaack Creek property at the foot of Charles St., in order to clear title to the land.

Later, council plans to sell the parcel to private interests for construction of a boat basin.

Mr. Kinlin declined to itemize a current (1962) expense voucher for $118.40 — as requested recently by the mayor — until Mr. Collichio itemizes his 1961 expense voucher, which totaled $210.

Mr. Collichio said he will have his list at the next meeting, and told Mr. Kinlin, "I expect you to have yours by then."

The mayor announced that there will be a crackdown against hot-rodders in the borough.

Charge State Aide Accepted $800 Bribe

TRENTON, (AP) — A high official of the New Jersey Highway Department was awaiting grand jury action today on a charge of accepting an $800 bribe from a contractor.

Isadore J. Friedman of 20 Stokes St., Freehold, principal engineer of the department's Electrical Division, is accused of accepting the money as payment for potential favors.

State Police arrested him Thursday after he accepted $800 in marked bills from an electrical contractor, Assistant Atty. Gen. John J. Bergin said.

The Highway Department announced suspension of Friedman, a 25-year-employee, yesterday.

Highway Commissioner Dwight R. G. Palmer said an investigating staff attached to his office turned up wrongdoing on Friedman's part and called in the Attorney General's Office.

Bergin said John Hahn, an officer of the Gerald Construction Co., Deptford Township, co-operated with the Attorney General's Office set up a meeting with Friedman on a highway job in Gloucester County.

Friedman, who draws an annual salary of $8,900, had overall supervision of electrical work around the state but had no part in inspection and was not in a position to do a favor, Bergin said.

Borough Candidates To Speak at Forum

NEW SHREWSBURY—All eight candidates for borough offices will speak at a forum sponsored by the New Shrewsbury Taxpayers' Association Monday at 8 p.m. in the Tinton Falls School auditorium, association president Edward F. Stashak has announced.

The Taxpayers Association is a non-political organization, Mr. Stashak stressed, and the meeting is being held as a public service, "to provide the opportunity for all the voters of New Shrewsbury to intelligently evaluate all candidates."

"The campaign chairman of each party has agreed to accept the invitation to appear at the forum for the following candidates: for mayor, Democrat Karl Baron and Republican John E. Lemon, Jr., and for council, Republicans Daniel J. Arnold, Robert F. Henck and Edmond J. Norris, and Democrats John D. Crowley, William T. Wichmann and Harold Sherman," Mr. Stashak said.

Each candidate will be allotted 10 minutes for his speech, and a question and answer period is planned to follow the addresses.

Each party has been asked to state its views on three subjects:

"The New Shrewsbury debt limit and its relation to asessments;

"Possible revision of zoning toward the end of attracting ratables, as well as their views toward low-cost housing development;

"Economy in government."

The Monday forum is the only one scheduled in this borough in which all candidates will appear on the same platform.

"The association believes the forum will result in an excellent opportunity for appraisal of the candidates, and sincerely hopes it will stimulate a larger representation of voters at the polls," Mr. Stashak said.

To Disclose Cost Of Reopening

WOODBRIDGE — Executives of the New Jersey Highway Authority tomorrow are expected to disclose cost figures related to the temporary reopening of the Telegraph Hill Park access roads to the Garden State Parkway.

The entrance and exit roads were reopened to public traffic following a recommendation by Dwight D. Palmer, state highway commissioner.

The authority's consulting engineers, Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas, had estimated the cost of roadwork needed to make the facility "safe" for extensive public use to be $20,000.

The authority had announced that the facility will remain open until the completion of the Red Hill Rd. interchange, now under construction on the parkway at Red Hill Rd., Middletown and Holmdel.

Bowen to Eliminate 10 Long Branch Jobs

LONG BRANCH — City Manager Richard J. Bowen announced to council last night he is going through with his controversial plan to cut out 10 jobs in the public works department. He estimated the annual savings at $45,000 a year.

The move, first indicated a week ago in another Council caucus, irritated at least some of the four councilmen who later in the week sponsored a resolution to remove Mr. Bowen from office. In a statement yesterday, Mayor Thomas L. McClintock charged that this was the basic reason for the ouster effort.

In a prepared statement, Mr. Bowen said dismissals at this time are required because anticipated "normal attrition"—retirements, resignations, etc.,—in the last year to cut the labor force naturally, has not occurred.

When the 1962 budget was prepared, he said, he expected 10 vacancies would have occurred and that these positions would not have been filled. He has contended the jobs are not necessary.

The city manager said letters to the affected employees will assure them of re-employment rights, in order of seniority, whenever the city hires again.

Mr. Bowen also disclosed he has an appointment today at 2 p. m. with County Prosecutor Vincent P. Keuper at Freehold to discuss 14 instances of alleged interference with the city manager's duties by the four councilmen who tried to oust him.

"I make no charge of law violation," Mr. Bowen said. "However, I will present my information and leave it to the prosecutor to decide."

The manager added fuel to his running battle with the forces seeking his removal with a statement that he has a witness to a conversation last December in which, he says, he was told to "quit or be fired."

The message was delivered, he said, by former Councilman Alexander Vineburg, who resigned in July, and was said to have come from the four councilmen who sponsored his ouster last week, Samuel Marks, Vincent Ronca, Walton Fisher, and Carlton H. Van Brunt. Mr. Van Brunt resigned last night.

Dr. Vineburg has denied the conversation took place. Mr. Bowen said today he has a witness and will produce him if Dr. Vineburg's memory "needs refreshing."

The oust-Bowen move got support, meanwhile, in a statement from the Voters League of Long Branch, of which Anthony Pingitore is chairman. The league was active in 1960 opposing the change of government from Commission form to Council-Manager, and labored in 1961 in support of Council candidates in several wards. Among those it supported were Mr. Marks and Mr. Van Brunt.

In its newest statement, the league said the ouster attempt was justified. It criticized the manager for exceeding budget amounts for beach operations and for suggesting last winter that police be required to salute members of City Council. The latter, said the league, held the city up to ridicule throughout the country.

Late News Briefs

By The Associated

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy dashes back to the political wars today, and the big question is whether he will decide to shoot it out verbally with his predecessor, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Kennedy was scheduled to leave in mid-afternoon for Connecticut, where he will say kind words for his former welfare secretary, Abraham Ribicoff, who is running for the Senate.

But since kind words are traditional on such occasions, of far more interest is this:

Will there be unkind words of reply to Eisenhower? The former President, in a tone unusally bitter for him, said Kennedy has what he called "a dreary foreign policy."

HONOLULU — The United States is wasting no time trying to redeem its slumping nuclear prestige by scheduling another high-altitude shot in the Pacific this weekend—just four days after the latest flop.

A low-yield nuclear device with a punch of less than 20,000 tons of TNT is set to be touched off at an expected height of 20 to 30 miles near Johnston Island. As in previous tests, it will be carried aloft by a missile.

But this time, the vehicle probably won't be a Thor, the cause of four previous failures in the trouble-plagued 1962 Pacific nuclear series.

NIGERIAN BID

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Backed by 20 other nations of Black Africa, Nigeria makes a bid in the UN General Assembly today to kill the 16-year-old "gentleman's agreement" allocating Security Council seats.

Nigeria is contesting with Morocco for the council seat heretofore held by a Middle East—or Arab—nation. But most delegates expected Morocco to muster the two-thirds majority needed for election in the Assembly voting this afternoon.

The voting follows a week of bitter wrangling that has split the 53-nation Asian-African group and ranged the Arabs against the black Africans.

TAX REVISION

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy has signed into law a tax revision bill that carries a $1-billion, incentive to businesses that modernize.

The bill, Kennedy said in a statement accompanying yesterday's signing, "makes a good start on bringing our tax structure up to date and provides a favorable context for the over-all tax reform program I intend to propose to the next Congress."

Meanwhile, he said, the bill "will stimulate the economy and provide a greater measure of fairness in our tax system."

Must Obey CD Drills, Court Rules

TRENTON (AP)—New Jersey's civil defense law applies both to practice drills and actual air raids, the state's second highest court ruled yesterday.

Practice drills are designed to insure order during actual emergencies, the court concluded, and people must take shelter during practice drills when directed to do so by authorized civil defense personnel.

Maximum penalty for refusing to take cover is a year in prison, a fine of $175, or both.

The Appellate Division of Superior Court, in a 17-page written opinion, affirmed a lower court conviction of two college students for refusing to take shelter during an air raid drill last year.

Lois Congdon and Neal Mosher, then students at Drew University, were fined $50 and costs in Morris County Court.

They appealed their fines on grounds that there is no legal authority for civil defense personnel to compel the general public to take shelter in the course of an air raid drill.

The conviction grew ont of an April 28, 1961 practice drill conducted by the New Jersey Department of Defense. The drill was known as "Operation Alert."

New Jersey law states that any person refusing to obey lawful orders of any air raid warden or any other person authorized to perform any acts or functions during a threat of danger or any emergency shall be adjudged a disorderly person.

The students said use of the word "during" means the law does not refer to drills, only actual emergencies.

The court answered that reasonable interpretations must be based on the legislative purpose contained in the framework of the law, that the legislature has clearly stated the "purpose of this act is to provide for the health, safety and welfare of the state of New Jersey and to aid in the prevention of damage to and destruction of property. . . ." The court said a key word in the statute is "prevention."

New Hearing In Hoek Case

TRENTON (AP)—The case of Floyd G. Hoek, former secretary-business manager of the Asbury Park school system, has been sent back to Education Commissioner Frederick M. Raubinger for a second hearing.

Hoek was fired by the Asbury Park School Board in 1958 after forty-one charges were brought against him, accusing him of diverting school property to his own use and other irregularities.

Twenty seven of the charges were brought by Asbury Park attorney William Novogrod, a member of the school board. Hoek was eventually found guilty on nine charges, all brought by Novogrod. Court records show that Novogrod cast the deciding vote on seven charges.

Airport

another 950 feet and the building of three or more so called T-hangars, each large enough to house 20 private planes. Beyond that there will be a large "tie down" area for planes that are not put into the hangars.

Ready Room Set

Already, construction has started on a combined "pilots' ready room" and public recreation room. These should be finished in a matter of weeks.

"Private flying is already so popular in this section of the country that as soon as they found out we were serving coffee pilots began dropping in on us every day, in increasing numbers," said Mr. Donald.

Colts Neck Airport has been a landing facility for a number of years. But pilots normally stopped there only on weekends. Now it is to be opened on a seven-day-a-week basis. But it is expected by the operators that it will be two to three years before the airport is put into shape to fit the requirements of a master plan.

Mr. Donald said he believed the facility "will mount in importance to executives in this area — those of Bell Laboratories and Lily Tulip Cup Corp., among others — who need a conveniently-located modern airport to serve their businesses.

Mr. Donald, a former Air Force instructor pilot and a member of the New Jersey Air National Guard, was called into active service when the Berlin crisis mounted to boiling point more than a year ago. He has been flying in England, Africa, Switzerland, Spain and other sectors of the European theater, returning only recently. He is a graduate of the Rumson Country Day School and attended Princeton University before joining the Air Force. His wife is the former Joan Kerekesh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kerekesh of 53 Amelia Cir., Little Silver.

It was early this month that Mr. Donald began to devote his full time to efforts to develop the Colts Neck Airport. "I saw my future here and do intend to make this a fine airport, a credit to Monmouth County. I'm putting in 18 hours a day on it."

Jack M. Esten, 48 Cloverdale Cir., New Shrewsbury, a training officer with the CAP, said he also felt that the Colts Neck Airport will be "just about ideal for our purposes." In the CAP are 66 cadets. They range in age from 14 through 18 years. Most are too young for pilot training. But they do study the theory of flight and space orientation. The group meets Friday nights in the Murphy Street School at Middletown.

However, as a flying organization, the CAP has been charged with a major public service in the air search and rescue field since the Air Force largely has deactivated its own services in this specialty in New Jersey. In the state are 32 CAP squadrons, regularly called upon. They operate in so-called "grid areas," blocked out on maps throughout the state. Operations until now have been out of Red Bank Airport.

CAP has one co-operative aircraft of its own and can draw on many private planes owned by members. Calls for assistance mounted 60 per cent in the past year.

As an airman, Mr. Pierson put in considerable service with the First Marine Air Wing in the Pacific Theater in World War II. He devoted much time also to air search and rescue operations, from a base at Cherry Point, N. C. He learned to fly later.

Church Unity Is Topic of Report

OCEAN CITY (AP) — Rev. Nicholas J. Burggraaf, pastor of the Bethel United Presbyterian Church of East Orange, presented a report on church unity yesterday at a session of the 140th annual convention of the New Jersey Synod, United Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

In his report, Rev. Mr. Burggraaf said he had established communications with the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey, and with both the New Jersey Conference of the Methodist Church and the United Church of Christ.

The delegates will hear committee reports today on the last day of three-day meeting and were expected to vote on resolutions dealing with church affairs.

The synod represents 440 churches with a combined membership of 211,000 persons.

FINAL CLEAN-UP

SHREWSBURY — Monday will be the final day for general collection in the borough's fall clean-up program. The regular trash collection schedule will resume Tuesday.

Hackensack Mayor Dies

HACKENSACK (AP) — Peter A. Frapaul, 60, mayor of Hackensack, died yesterday in Hackensack Hospital after the last of a series of heart attacks.

Frapaul, who also headed one of the state's largest road building firms, the Frapaul Construction Co. of Rochelle Park, entered the hospital Oct. 5.

The mayor, who lived at 515 Summit Ave., won office here in 1957, when he polled the highest vote in the council elections. He turned down the mayoralty at that time.

He was ousted in a recall election of 1959, but two years later again topped all the vote-seekers for council seats and was elected mayor.

He leaves his brother John of Saddle Brook, co-owner of the construction company; a brother Samuel of Hackensack; a sister, Mrs. Theresa Pepe of Hackensack; three daughters, Mrs. Rita Mulholland of Fair Lawn, Mrs. Audry Davis and Mrs. Emma Mells, both of Oradell, and two step-brothers, Daniel and Joseph Viggiano of Hackensack.

Federal Workers' Lobbyists Are Highly Successful in 1962

WASHINGTON — Federal employee lobby groups reported spending a total of at least $182,467 to influence legislation in the first half of 1961, a modest expenditure when you figure they won a billion-dollar-a-year pay raise for their members.

It is a classic example of successful lobbying. Scores of representatives of government employee organizations came to Capitol Hill to testify before committees and buttonhole congressmen.

Result:

An estimated $504 million pay increase in fiscal 1963 and $1,049,000,000 in fiscal 1964 for persons covered by the Classification Act, Postal Field Service Act, Foreign Service Act and Medicine and Surgery Salary System of the Veterans Administration—in other words, most federal employees.

All this costs money. Agents must be brought in from around the country. Competent testimony must be prepared, office space maintained.

The United Federation of Postal Clerks (AFL-CIO) reported spending the largest amount of any group reporting under the Federal Regulation of Lobbying Act for the first half of 1962 — $84,006. The National Post Union reported $12,127; the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, $18,380; the National Assn. of Postal Supervisors, $14,644; the Government Employees' Council (AFL-CIO), $15,461.

Retirees Successful, Too

The $14,487 reported spent in the first six months by the Retirement Federation of Civil Service Employees of the U. S. Government also seems to have been a prudent investment. The provisions of HR 7927, the postal rate-federal pay bill, included an authorization of 5 per cent increase in annuity benefits for persons under the civil service retirement and disability fund. The bill also authorized an automatic increase in benefits if the cost of living index rose 3 percent in a year.

To all these special efforts in behalf of the federal pay increase bill must be added part of the $70,703 reported in the January-June 1962 period by the AFL-CIO. The pay bill, of course, was only one of the issues pursued by lobbyists for the AFL-CIO, which was the third highest spender for the period.

Second was the National Committee for Insurance Taxation, which successfully lobbied for a change in the tax law permitting certain tax deductions for mutual fire and casualty companies. They reported spending $81,203 in the effort during the first half of this year.

Other top spenders reporting for the first six months:

American Medical Association, which had distinct sucess in stopping medical care for the aged under Social Security. Top spender last year, the A. M. A. reported $67,386 for the first half of this year.

United States Savings and Loan League reported $62,082 which produced mixed results. While they stopped withholding of taxes on interest, they were unable to keep out of the tax bill a provision limiting the amount of money that mutual savings and building and loan associations may transfer to tax-free reserves to cover bad debts.

The American Farm Bureau Federation was pleased with the results of its lobbying, which they reported cost $559,567. The bureau was especially pleased that the supply-management concept was not applied to feed grains. The National Farmers Union was fairly encouraged with farm legislation this year, for which it spent $48,552. The Farmers Union said they were highly pleased by the wheat plan in this year's farm bill which authorized a long-term supply-management program for wheat in 1964 and thereafter.

Total Spending

Altogether 273 lobby organizations reported spending $2,007,866 in the first six months of 1962. This does not necessarily represent all spending for lobbying however, because the lobby law of 1946 is vague and many groups, such as the National Association of Manufacturers, simply do not report.

Of those reporting, 149 business groups listed a total of $820,756 spent to influence legislation; 36 employee and labor groups, $475,542; 44 citizens groups, $262,202; 21 farm groups, $211,036; 17 professional groups, $170,133; and 6 military and veterans groups, $68,195.

Red Guerrillas Blasted By 4 U.S. Helicopters

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Four U. S. Army escort helicopters poured rocket and machine-gun fire into a concentration of Communist guerrillas yesterday, apparently with deadly effect in the jungle war north of Saigon.

The helicopters, recently sent from the United States, are designed to help neutralize the increasing Viet Cong guerrilla ground fire that has downed at least two planes in two days with the loss of three Americans.

The four heavily armed helicopters were accompanying lightly armed helicopters bringing out a battalion of Vietnamese soldiers 55 miles northwest of Saigon.

The Vietnamese had been landed to protect a U. S. helicopter forced down by mechanical trouble. It was necessary to destroy the helicopter, and lurking Viet Cong opened fire as the Helicopters began lifting out the Vietnamese.

The late model helicopters swooped into action, their 16 powerful rockets and two .30 caliber machine guns blazing.

Reports said the helicopter fire hit a column of about 75 guerrillas.

Farther north, a civilian spotter plane crashed yesterday in the central highlands where increasing guerrilla ground fire had shot down two other planes.

Officials were tight-lipped about the nature of the plane or the identification of the pilot injured in the crash.

The craft was one of a fleet of unmarked planes performing intelligence work in South Viet Nam. They include a variety of light planes and L28s, DC4s and DC6s.

Reports recently have told of hotter fire from the jungles and hills in Central Viet Nam, and a Viet Cong guerrilla antiaircraft team was said to have arrived in the area.

U. S. planes this week have been supporting a big government drive on Communist guerrillas who reportedly had established a position 220 miles north of Saigon near Ban Me Thuot, where many U. S. advisers are stationed.

First to fall victim to the Communist ground fire was a U. S. spotter plane that went down Monday, killing the three American military advisers abroad.

They were identified as Air Force Capt. Herbert W. Booth, the pilot, of Sarasota, Fla.; Army Capt. Terry D. Cordell of Sanford, Fla., and Air Force T. Sgt. Richard L Fox of Estero, Fla.

Their deaths brought to 24 the number of Americans listed here as killed in action, although Washington puts the total at 16. The discrepancy may be due to differing opinions as to whether some were killed in accidents or in action.

Massey Boy Is Subject Of Confab

LITTLE SILVER — Magistrate Richard D. Porter will confer today with representatives of the Board of Education in an effort to set a course of action in the case of Mrs. Ethel M. Massey, 40 Sycamore Ave., who has declined to send her son to Red Bank High School.

The local school board, in charge of this sending district to the high school, last week gave Mrs. Massey five days to comply with its request that the boy be enrolled in the sophomore class. The time period ended Monday.

Magistrate Porter said a possible outcome of today's meeting would be the issuing of a complaint against Mrs. Massey signed, as a complaining witness, by a representative of the school board.

Lance Massey, 15, has not attended school since the term opened Sept. 6. His mother said he is subject to a blood mechanism response failure which has caused absences in the past.

Mrs. Massey added that her falling-out with the local Board of Education stems from the board's refusal to provide tutors during her son's absences and the board's lack of co-operation with tutors she has hired.

Battle Reds With New Helicopters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist guerrilas in South Viet Nam have begun using more powerful weapons against U. S. helicopters informed sources said today.

This was understood to be one reason why the Army has sent some of its latest model helicopters, armed with rockets and machine guns, to cover the slower "Flying Banana" choppers which have been carrying South Vietnamese soldiers on raids against Communist strongholds.

When the U. S. helicopter operation started early this year the Red guerrillas had little more than rifles and other light weapons to fire at them.

But the Communist Viet Cong have recently been bringing heavier firepower to bear on the troop-carrying helicopters, the sources said. It was indicated these newer weapons may be .50 calibre machine guns suitable for antiaircraft work.

A Defense Department spokesman confirmed yesterday that the Army is arming its helicopters and that the Vietnamese Air Force is flying cover missions to protect the troop carriers.

"Because of increased attacks on our helicopters it has become necessary to give them additional means of protecting themselves," the spokesman said.

He did not elaborate on the increased attacks, nor did he go into detail on the armament.

To Inspect Development Sewer Work

EATONTOWN — New housing developments, including garden apartments, must have pumping stations and force mains they construct inspected by the Sewerage Authority consulting engineer and pay inspections fees to him before such installations will be accepted by the authority, it was decided last night.

The Sewerage Authority, in a review of its policy on new sewerage connections for developments, decided that installations and piping on private property will remain the responsibility of the owners for maintenance, just as in the case of any private dwelling.

Pumping stations and force mains, however, must be accepted and maintained by the authority, the body said.

The consulting engineer, A. J. Lanning, said:

"No developer wants to pay a cent for inspection fees. However most municipalities have begun to require inspection by their own inspectors because of some of the slap-happy work that has been done in the past few years."

In many cases, he said, inspection fees are based on a percentage of the cost of installations. Here, however, inspections fees are based on a $50 a day charge by the inspector.

School Bus, Car Collide, Pupil Cut

MIDDLETOWN — An eight-year-old boy suffered a minor injury yesterday when a car and school bus collided at Rt. 35 and Apple Farm Rd. Michael Stratton, 18 Corn La., was treated for a cut lip at the scene by Dr. Harold Chaflkin.

Michael was one of 35 children on the bus.

According to police, Joseph Wilk, 64, of 58 Grove St., Keansburg, driver of the bus, said he was going through the jughandle onto Apple Farm Rd., when the car came through a red light and hit the bus.

Mr. Wilk told police he had a green light to move.

Driver of the car, Martin Poto, 49, of Belleville, told police he was traveling north on the highway and that the bus went through a red light, resulting in the crash.

Both drivers were issued careless driving summonses by Patrolman Robert Lanno.

Shellfishing Statement Is Issued

TRENTON (AP) — The New Jersey State Health Department has released the following statement regarding the closing of shell fish harvesting areas:

"There have been no significant closings of shellfish harvesting areas in New Jersey since April 9, 1962, the New Jersey State Health Department reported today.

"Raritan Bay has been closed to the harvesting of shellfish since May, 1961.

"A story in a Philadelphia afternoon paper on Oct. 15 gave the impression of significant recent closings.

"The greater part of the long-time shellfish harvesting area in New Jersey is still open.

"Most of Sandy Hook Bay and the Navesink River are open in the north-central part of the state and in the southern part of the state almost all of the long stretch from Mantoloking Bridge in Ocean County to Absecon Inlet. In addition numerous areas in Atlantic and Cape May counties continue to remain open.

"Shellfish from approved areas in New Jersey are safe for human consumption, the department stressed. The department added that oysters from Delaware Bay are reported to be the finest in years."

Reached at home last night for comment, a spokesman for the Health Department said the April 9 closings were in areas south of Absecon where pollution had been found. The only other closings since April were a few "of no significance" around some marinas in July, he added.

Successful Investing

Stop Buying Slow Growers; Concentrate on Better Buys

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q) "I am 27 years old. My investment program consists of placing $150 every month in one of three stocks: Winn-Dixie, Procter & Gamble, and Pitney-Bowes. A total of $600 is invested every year in each stock. Should I continue with this program?" R. C.

SPEAR

A) I should like first to congratulate you for initiating a very intelligent thrift program.

All the stocks you mention are high-quality situations, and their selection does you credit. I believe, however, that growth has slowed down for Pitney-Bowes and also for Winn-Dixie. Each of these stocks is selling at a relatively high earnings multiple—about 25 for Pitney and 18 for Winn-Dixie.

I would continue to buy Procter & Gamble, but I would end my accumulation of the others. Instead, I would start new plans with shares that have a better growth outlook and a lower multiple. In their place, I suggest Arizona Public Service selling at 20 times earnings, and FMC Corp., with a multiple of 16.

Q) "I am alone and if my present income continues, I will save more. I now have Chemway and Northern Indiana Public Service. I have $700 in savings. Should I buy more stocks as a protection against inflation? Would Controls Co. of America or Tastee Freez be right for me?" A. H.

A) I sincerely hope that your present income continues and that you can save more. If that is so, I believe you should build up your savings account at least to $2,000 before undertaking any further stock investment.

As we have seen this year, and as you have observed with Chemway, stocks fluctuate too widely in price to be a dependable source of cash in emergencies. Both Controls of America and Tastee Freez are reasonably good stocks, but I don't think they're the right choices for you.

With your limited capital, I would aim for the best and strongest stocks available, with sufficient growth to offset dollar devaluation. I suggest Texaco and Sears Roebuck.

(Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer all questions possible in his column).

Sluggish Day As Market Dips a Bit

NEW YORK (AP) — A depressed and uncertain stock market backed away from a slight early gain and ended a bit lower yesterday in sluggish trading.

Symptomatic of the market's mood was that Tennessee Gas Transmission, which cut the dividend Monday, was the most active stock, off ⅝ at 16⅜ on 160,700 shares.

The dividend cut by Tennessee Gas was disturbing to a Wall Street which has been told to "get back to fundamentals," such as earnings and dividend yield, rather than to focus on "pie in the sky."

Other pipeline issues were depressed. Third most active was El Paso Natural Gas, off I at 17 on 56,000 shares. Northern Natural Gas dropped ⅞, Texas Eastern Transmission ½, and Southern Natural Gas ⅜.

Second place on the list of volume leaders was taken by Howe Sound, which rose ⅛ to 14⅛ on 57,900 shares as it continued to respond to a $15 a-share offer by Pechiney Enterprises.

Polaroid, one of the fast-stepping "growth" stocks, was next most active, off 3 at 123¼, followed by Sperry Rand, off ⅛ at 11⅝. Twelve of the 15 most active issues fell and three rose.

IBM lost 9½, Xerox 3, Korvette 3¼, and Texas Instruments 3¾.

Ford, Chrysler and American Motors all dropped fractions and Studebaker was unchanged. General Motors added ⅜.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a minor loss of .34 at 589.35.

Volume was 2.86 million shares compared with 2.64 million Monday.

Of 1,250 issues traded, 396 advanced and 574 declined. New highs for the year totaled three and new lows 35.

Gov. Hughes To Address County Rally

LONG BRANCH — Gov. Richard J. Hughes brings his campaign to elect more Democrats to Monmouth County Friday at 8 p.m. He will speak at a major rally at the Paddock Lounge, former Mayor Paul Kiernan, Democratic candidate for sheriff, announced.

The governor will share the platform with Mr. Kiernan, Congressional candidate Peter J. Gannon, and Freeholder aspirants David T. Buck and Victor Gerdes.

Though talks will be confined to those of the county ticket, Mrs. Katharine Elkus White, state committeewoman who will be toastmaster, said local candidates will share the spotlight.

"We expect to see major gains at the local level," Mrs. White said, because here is the source of strength for the victories we look for higher on the ticket. Therefore, we want the municipal candidates to know even before their election of our pride and confidence in them."

Other rallies on the schedule in the next few days are as follows: Friday, Regular Democratic Clubs of Matawan Township, VFW Hall, Cliffwood; Saturday, Raritan Township Democratic Clubs, annual dance, Cabin In The Sky, Atlantic Highlands, and Atlantic Highlands Democratic Club, dance, Conner's Hotel, Highlands; Sunday, a tea at the home of Mrs. Eva Clark, Liberty St., Long Branch, honoring Mr. Kiernan.

The annual candidates tea of the Women's Democratic Club of Monmouth County will be held Oct. 27 at the Berkeley Carteret Hotel, Asbury Park. The Middletown Township Democratic Clubs will conduct a dance the same night at The Oaks, Rt. 35, Middletown.

Wants Action On Plans For Shop-Rite Store

SHREWSBURY — Borough Council last night heard pleas for action in the matter of the Shop Rite Market proposed for Broad St. from Raymond H. Stillman and Councilman Francis J. Bolduc.

Mr. Stillman, owner of the proposed building site near the Shrewsbury Shops, said he has been trying to put the land to use for 20 years. The present application has been pending for eight months, he said.

The JJJ Corporation, Freehold, the applicant, has been referred from the Planning Board to the Zoning Board of Adjustment where a request for a package sewer plant is now being considered. The plans have not yet been submitted to the governing body.

In asking for a speedy termination of the matter, Mr. Stillman pointed out that he is the borough's largest taxpayer and pays approximately $8,000 per year in taxes on the property in question alone. He added that about $30,000 has been spent in legal, engineering and architectural fees.

Mr. Bolduc also said he would like to see the matter "brought to a head," and asked that council be kept better informed on pending applications.

Mayor James W. Bly said he would obtain a report on the status of the application today, and council agreed to meet in a special session as soon as the building plans are received for its consideration.

MEET TOMORROW

KEYPORT — A meeting of Keyport High School Parent-Teachers Association will be held tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Use of Latin in Mass Due for Council Discussion

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The use of modern languages instead of Latin in the mass is one of the major topics the 2,700 Roman Catholic prelates of the Vatican Ecumenical Council will discuss in daily sessions that start next week.

The question of the language of the mass is one that has repercussions throughout the world particularly in the church's missionary efforts. And it reflects the basic concern of this first Ecumenical Council in 92 years—the place of the church in today's fast-moving, technological age.

Many missionary bishops attending the council favor mass in the vernacular of the people. They cite the difficulties of presenting a meaningful mass in an ancient and classical tongue to natives in the jungles of Africa or primitive islanders in the remote reaches of the Pacific.

Such missionaries argue, for example, that while a mass in Latin might be incomprehensible to a former headhunter in New Guinea, he could find it full of meaning if it were said in his native Papuan dialect.

Traditionalists consider Latin a factor for unity that stands above differences of nationality and local language, a cement that has helped hold the church together for 20 centuries.

Such traditionalists glory in the heritage of Latin and want to keep the mass contained in its cadences.

Neither the modernist nor the traditionalist view is expected to prevail at the council. Church specialists in liturgy express the view that the best advantages of each—Latin and local languages—may eventually be combined.

Arcadio Cardinal Larraona, who Pope John XXIII has picked to head the council's Commission of Liturgy, predicted last June that local languages eventually woud replace Latin in the first third of the mass.

A number of language shifts in Catholic liturgy are already under way in scattered parts of the world.

In South America the ritual for administering sacraments and giving various blessings is being published in Spanish.

Local language rituals are in preparation in South Africa. Such ritual language changes are made on permission from Rome at the request of local bishops. As a rule, the essence of the liturgy is retained in Latin.

No council session was scheduled today as tabulation continued of votes cast by the 2,700 prelates for members of the council's 10 drafting commissions.

The council fathers voted yesterday for 16 members of each of the 10 commissions, and all of the prelates attending the council were eligible for election. Results of the voting were not expected until Saturday, and with so many potential candidates, further balloting may be necessary.

The pope will name eight additional members to each commission.

Msgr. Buchmann Is Consultor at Council

LINCROFT — Msgr. John O. Buchmann, pastor of St. Leo's Catholic Church, Irvington, is one of the three consultors to Archbishop Thomas A. Boland and the archdiocese of Newark at the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Msgr. Buchmann has been a summer resident here 25 years, and has been full administrator and pastor of St. Leo's for 35 years.

The other consultors are Msgr. Joseph Shovlin, pastor of St. Ann's, Jersey City, and Msgr. Julian Szpilman, pastor of Our Lady of Czestochowa, Harrison.

ANNIVERSARY EVENT — Robert Baskin, left, owner of Baskin's Fabric Fair, in Red Bank and the Middletown Shopping Center, and Harry De Samper, manager of the Middletown store, examine fabrics to be featured in the firm's 17th anniversary sale. The Middletown store is also celebrating its fifth anniversary in the shopping center.

To Question Milltown Man in Slaying of Co-ed

NEW YORK — Why was John Covino, a strapping 27-year-old man from Milltown, N. J., masquerading as a woman on an upper Broadway Street? "When I'm drinking I do crazy things," Covino told police after his arrest yesterday.

"He thought he would play Sherlock Holmes," said Covino's father, explaining that his son might have disguised himself to trap persons who had been breaking into his car. Covino was being held today in $50,500 bail on various charges.

Kentucky authorities were informed of Covino's arrest and police said they were on their way here to question the man about a year-old slaying of a pretty co-ed at Covino's alma mater, Transylvania College.

Covino, who is 6-feet-2 without the high heels he was wearing, attracted the attention of police as he sat on a bench on a traffic island at Broadway and 80th St. He wore a gray skirt, hooded shirt and black pumps.

Police said that Covino drew a revolver from beneath his skirt as they approached him. He was seized and later newspaper clippings were found in the glove compartment of his car.

The clippings concerned the slaying of Betty Gail Brown, 19, on the Transylvania campus on Oct. 27, 1961.

The girl, strangled with her own brassiere, was found in a parked car. The murder has not been solved.

Covino's father, who was in court, said his son had been graduated from Transivania College before the slaying and had never returned there.

The elder Covino told police his son frequently came to Manhattan to visit a young woman. On three previous occasions, thieves had broken into his car, and he said he understood his son had put on the female attire as a disguise in an effort to trap the thieves.

The arresting officers quoted Covino as saying that he had the gun to protect himself in case he was "molested."

Police said Covino told them he was formerly under psychiatric care.

Guiney Cleans House But Not Completely

HIGHLANDS — Mayor Cornelius J. Guiney, Jr. is "cleaning house" here with some new faces on municipal boards, but he has no intention of losing some of the senior members, "even if we don't agree politically."

The mayor was referring specifically to the fact that he has asked former mayor Frank J Hall to continue serving on the Housing Authority.

Mr. Hall has been a member of the housing body for six years. His term expires Nov. 22.

'Has Brains'

"He may not be on my side, but he has brains and he's willing to work hard," the mayor declared.

The mayor told The Register that Mrs. Rosemary Shields, borough clerk, has asked to be replaced on the Housing Authority because of ill health.

He noted that, to date, nobody has shown an interest in serving on the housing body.

And Mr. Hall is still thinking over the offer.

"This is an important committee right now," the mayor stated, "and it's going to be difficult to find somebody who is willing to put in the time that will be demanded."

The Housing Authority is considering urban renewal for an area south of Bay Ave. and east of Miller St., running all the way to the Highlands bridge.

Many Hours

At a recent meeting to discuss the proposal, Mr. Hall pointed out that preparation for such a project would require many hours of work by members of the housing body, the planners, and citizens' groups.

Some of the new faces on borough boards this year are:

George O. Dinkelacker and Gilbert Parker, on the Planning Board; Michael Kovich, Zoning Board of Adjustment, and Robert Rich, Housing Authority.

"I think we have some good new people here, but we can't afford to discard the standbys who know the ropes," the mayor declared.

In May, Mr. Guiney complained that too many members of various boards were "just taking up space and doing no work." He said then he planned to "clean house" during the ensuing year.

Two Codes Adopted By Health Board

SHREWSBURY — The Board of Health Monday adopted two codes, one providing for the removal of nuisance plants and the other regulatory refuse collecting.

The nuisance plant code establishes ragweed, poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac as nuisance plants and prohibits any property owner from allowing them to exist within 10 feet of the property line or 20 feet of a public way.

A fine of not less than $2 and not more than $100 can be levied against offenders.

The refuse collecting code calls for a $5 license for any contractor collecting in the borough. It also gives the borough health inspector the right to inspect vehicles used for refuse-collection.

Continue Search For Boatman

MIDDLETOWN — Authorities reported yesterday that there still is no trace of John Horan, 56, of Jersey City, who been missing since Oct. 7 after a boat he was in overturned in the bay.

The body of Stephen Lasch, 27, of 50 Tindall Rd., Middletown, who was with Mr. Horan was found Saturday by the breakwater at the Atlantic Highlands yacht harbor.

The pair were taking Mr. Horan's aluminum outboard from Rumson to Leonardo.

Authorities said they would continue the search for the missing man.

Driver Gets Summons

RED BANK — Russell W. Drewes, 44, of 48 Lake Ave., Fair Haven, was charged with leaving the scene of an accident last night by Police Sgt. Emerson R. Williams.

Sgt. Williams reported that Drewes' car collided with one driven by Walter A. McCoach, 59, of 20 Forrest Ave., at Lake Ave. and River Rd.

Drewes was stopped at Spring and East Front Sts. after a short chase, Sgt. Williams said. After first disclaiming any knowledge of an accident, he told police the other car had struck him.

The left side of the McCoach car was damaged. Neither driver was hurt.

Nine Substitute Teachers OK'd

WEST LONG BRANCH — Nine names were added to the 1962-63 substitute roster for schools here by the Board of Education last night.

The list includes Mrs. Faith Radler, Long Branch; Roderick MacCloud, Oceanport; Mrs. Marion Seitzman, West Long Branch; Mrs. Gladys Feldman, West Long Branch; Michael Rekeda, Oakhurst.

Also, Michael Caffyn, Eatontown; Miss Marguerite Forman, Long Branch; Frederick Page, Jr., Red Bank, and Miss Elizabeth Demetrowitz, Eatontown.

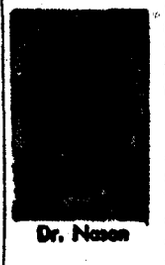

The board also announced that parent conferences will take place at the Wall Street School Monday night, and at the Frank Antonides School Monday, Oct. 29.

Monmouth College requested and received permission from the board to use the gym and locker room facilities at the Antonides School Monday and Wednesday evenings from Nov. 5 through May 2 at a rental fee of $11 per day.

Nason on Education

Mid-Semester Slump

About this time each year, both students and teachers go into what educators call "the mid-semester slump."

Dr. Nason

Resolutions made at the beginning of the semester have worn thin. The first major tests are over.

Teachers are disillusioned about their students' work. They try to combine remedial and advanced work.

Many a student drifts easily into the doldrums. It's more pleasant to think of other things than lessons.

Yet at no time in a semester can a student gain so much with so little effort.

Eight or 10 weeks of school have filled his mind with bits of information and partial understandings. But his knowledge is not organized. It gives him a frustrated feeling and makes him avoid studying.

A minimum of study will bring about the desired organization—if it is done now.

Now is the time for concentrated effort before the student has to absorb additional information. Now is the time to recheck study plans and start fresh.

Any student with below average grades who stubbornly goes on studying and preparing for tests in the same manner will probably continue to get below average grades.

Mediocre students resist change in their study procedures because they do not know how to train themselves to become better students.

Here is a check list for mid-semester that should help:

Have you analyzed your examination papers and asked yourself: "How should I have studied to be better able to complete the examination?"

Have you revised your plan of study for each course?

Have you talked with more successful students than yourself regarding their study procedures?

Have you made a heroic effort to salvage a low course using these steps?

1. Review the course from the beginning and get an overall picture of what you have covered.

2. Make your review in a period of two or three days. It may take only 10 or 20 hours—a small investment in time considering the value of the course in dollars.

3. Make a record of your work in a new notebook, including problems, sketches, maps, outlines according to the course you review. Indicate any questions and include the partial solution of problems you cannot solve.

4. Make an appointment with your instructor. Leaf through notebook with him. Get help on needed problems and ask for his suggestions.

These suggestions always work for those who try them. They will work for you.

(You may obtain a copy of Dr. Nason's "You Can Get Better Grades" booklet by sending $1 to "Better Grades" Box 2160, General Post Office, New York.)

Police

It goes on to point out that money spent on special officers could better have been spent on a regular, full-time, well-trained officer.

The recommendations in the report are extensive and cover every phase of the department.

General Reorganization

Some of the recommendations deal with technical aspects such as patrol areas, equipment and deployment of manpower.

Since these recommendations are numerous, the main ones will be outlined.

In general, the report calls for a general reorganization of the department's resources and that the chain of command be delineated.

The report urges that the department, now with 31 men, be increased to 37 as an interim measure.

The new men would provide two records clerks the survey feels are needed, and provide a relief shift of men.

Ultimately, the reports recommends that the township organize the department so that there will be patrol, service and criminal investigation divisions.

There currently are patrol and investigative sections.

The service division would be responsible for records, communications and training.

The patrol division would then include a traffic section.

Also recommended is the development of a "positive atmosphere of discipline."

"Failure to enforce ethical standards is likely to open a Pandora's Box in Middletown," it states.

In discussing manpower, the report states that "more men and more money" does not apply to the real problem in Middletown.

It notes that without leadership, the men and money would be wasted.

The report states that salaries are below that of comparable departments in the state.

The Township Committee is studying, and has agreed to raise the pay standards of the department.

The report recommends that 10 cars — four of them unmarked — be provided for the department. The force now has seven cars.

It also recommends that a more detailed record system be established, and space provided for a records section.

It also urges a better system of inspection and supervision of men on patrol, and a better training program.

The report notes that as the department grows, larger facilities should be acquired.

The township has plans for addition to the new executive building which would house a new police headquarters and other facilities.

The Township Committee is expected to meet in conference next week with officials who drafted the report to discuss its contents and recommendations.

The report also noted that the recommendations presented can be easily adopted by the township, and that when adopted would go a long way toward improved service.

The report also notes that representatives of the association received good co-operation from all employees of the township, and that this indicates that the department has the "potential to meet the many challenges presented by this rapidly growing community."

Criticism of Dangler Called Irresponsible

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — Democrats William J. Skelton and John Beekman were guilty of "appalling irresponsibility" in their recent attack on Committeeman Weston L. Dangler, Republican Committeeman Forrest L. Gillespie declared last night.

Mr. Gillespie suggested that "Democratic boss Norman Dorfman" inspired the attack by the two Democratic candidates for Township Committee.

"The whole truth about the Dangler land purchase was there for anyone who wanted it," Mr. Gillespie said. "If the Democratic candidates are not interested in seeing that the people get the whole truth, how can they ask to represent the people as members of the Township Committee?"

Mr. Gillespie spoke at a meeting of campaign workers at the home of Albert Koenig, 1298 Wickapecko Dr., Wanamassa. His running mate, Sidney Leichter, also spoke. Mr. Dangler is not seeking re-election.

26-Acre Purchase

Last month, the Democrats accused Mr. Dangler of having shown favoritism to his brother, Wilton, in Wilton's purchase of township land.

Mr. Gillespie said the Dangler farm, owned by the family for many years, totaled 210 acres. Only 26 acres were bought, for $3,425, by Wilton Dangler from the township. The entire 236 acres were sold for $127,000.

Landlocked Land

"The Democrats neglected to point out that the township acreage was landlocked," said Mr. Gillespie. "It was accessible only from the Dangler farm and was useless to anyone else. The township sold it to Wilton Dangler at public acution — and Committeeman Weston Dangler did not take part in setting the minimum price."

Mr. Gillespie said he found it hard to believe that Mr. Beekman and Mr. Skelton had stooped to making such charges.

"It makes me wonder," he said, "whether they were not misled — whether these ridiculous charges didn't really originate with boss Norman Dorfman. Dorfman has called the tune that a lot of well-meaning Democrats have been dancing to in recent years."

Urban Renewal Study to Start In Highlands

HIGHLANDS — Borough Council and the Planning Board, meeting in separate sessions last night, unanimously approved the initiation of an urban renewal study of a three-block 15-acre area along the abandoned Jersey Central Railroad right of way, south of Bay Ave., and east of Miller St., running to the Highlands bridge.

The approval, in effect, will give the Urban Renewal Agency of the local Housing Authority the go ahead to engage the services of Urban Planning Associates, N. Y.

The company will prepare a preliminary "workable" renewal program—before preparation in detail by engineers—at a fee of $1,000 to $1,500.

Council has appropriated $1,000 to cover the cost of preliminary plans.

Members of the local Urban Renewal Agency agreed Monday night, at a joint meeting with council and Planning Board representatives, to set up a "closed door" conference with the consultant firm as soon as possible to discuss drainage problems in the proposed renewal area, relocation of families, development of the hill and shore sections, and a capital improvements program.

Multiple dwellings, have been suggested for the renewal area.

52d Brigade 'Sees Red'

HIGHLANDS — The uniform of the day at 52d Artillery Brigade headquarters was rolled sleeves, and everyone was "seeing red" when 127 pints of blood were donated to the New York Chapter of the Red Cross by personnel stationed here.

With the gymnasium doors open early, the mobile blood donor unit set up there accepted the first pint of blood from Brig. Gen. Seth L. Weld, Jr., commanding general of the 52d Artillery Brigade.

Following the general's example more than 50 per cent of the eligible personnel stationed here donated a pint of blood.

BOYLE

POOR MAN'S PHILOSOPHER

The Office Grapevine

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Does the company president wear a hairpiece?

Is the executive vice president dating his secretary on the side?

Will the firm give a Christmas bonus this year? Are there plans to move the company to a new city?

Such rumors and reports constantly circulate on "the office grapevine," that unofficial escalator of truth, gossip and wild misinformation which operates in every business organization having more than three employees.

The office grapevine has somewhat the stature of astrology. Most people deny they believe in it, but they are more than willing to hear what it has to say—particularly if it affects them.

For years industrial leaders have regarded the office grapevine as a disturbing nuisance, and some have sought ways to stamp it out—only to find it has more roots than a poison ivy plant.

Now a social scientist arises to say that "Is the most disastrous mistake an executive can make."

Defending the office grapevine as more of a boon than a bane is Dr. Hideya Kumata, Michigan State University sociologist.

"Productivity is greater when there is no grapevine, but is it worth it to sacrifice the employees' identification with the company's aims?" he told a recent leadership conference.

"By attempting to stamp out the office grapevine, you destroy morale."

Dr. Kumata then gave this helpful hint to executives: Make positive use of the existing grapevine by passing on their own ideas to "opinion leaders" within the office.

The grapevine isn't restricted to business firms. It is a characteristic of all social organizations.

You will find it in every army, fraternal lodge, monastery, Boy Scout camp, classroom or PTA.

Whether the grapevine is right or wrong makes no real difference. As long as people like to guess and speculate about possibilities, the grapevine will continue to grow spread its mixed burden of suspicion, hearsay and truth.

Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—For the first time in months, Americans as a whole don't have more spending money in their pockets than they had four weeks before.

This steadily increasing personal income total had been a comforting mainstay of an economy that had faltered a bit in other departments. The leveling off in spending money may help explain why retail sales also dipped unexpectedly. And it ties in with failure of employment to rise as hoped in many manufacturing industries.

The Commerce Department reports that personal income of individual Americans in September didn't rise above the August level.

This is the first time in eight months it hadn't risen. In fact, in the 19 months since the bottom of he last recession personal income had climbed each month except July 1961 and January 1962, when it dipped to the temporary alarm of chart watchers.

The September leveling off of personal incomes may be just as temporary. And the annual rate of $443 billion is still at a record high. Many economists expect renewed increases this month and next, along with a pickup in retail trade, and perhaps better performance by some of the basic industries.

None minimizes the importance of personal income totals in bolstering if not boosting, the economy. This is true both in its current performance and in making the right climate for future growth.

The September faltering in personal incomes was laid to a drop in wage and salary payments, especially in manufacturing. Even government payrolls slipped, though increases in this field usually go on year in and year out.

Offsetting the wage and salary drop was an equal rise in income from dividends, interest payments and government benefit checks.

The manufacturing payroll drop came despite longer work weeks in a number of industries.

Like most government statistics, the report on personal incomes is put forth as the best possible guess and reflects the seasonal changes in the general economy picture.

To Broadcast Programs On Cancer

EATONTOWN — "New Directions in Cancer Research" is the theme of eight public service science documentaries to be presented weekly by Radio Stations WHTG and WHTG-FM starting Sunday at 9:15 a.m.

Though each program will be broadcast simultaneously on WHTG (1410) and WHTG-FM (105.5) on Sundays, they will be repeated the following Friday night at 8 p.m. on the FM outlet only.

The tape-recorded programs form part of the "Men and Molecules" series produced by the American Chemical Society and heard on 140 stations in the United States and on overseas Armed Forces radio and TV stations.

Forty cancer researchers from various parts of the world will report on trends in their fields. Recent findings in leukemia, new anti-cancer drugs, biochemical aspects of cancer, will be discussed.

The programs also center on the relationship between human cancer and viruses, air pollutants, and tobacco smoke.

The aim of the new series is to emphasize the basic chemical and biological research that must necessarily underlie the successful conquest of the disease.

Bridge Column

Don't go to the bank until you have the money ready to deposit. It's not quite the same thing to have a strong feeling that you're about to strike it rich. This applies particularly to penalty doubles at the bridge table.

West thought his ship had come in when this hand came along in a recent tournament in Washington, D. C. He wouldn't have settled for less than 800 points when he doubled two hearts.

When the smoke cleared, however, West was glad to get 200 points. It took very careful defense to defeat South at all.

West started out with three rounds of trumps, trying to reduce the hand no notrump. East discarded the eight of diamonds on the third trump, and West did some thinking.

Diamonds Located

By this time the diamonds were all located. East had doubled two diamonds to show length and strength in the suit. If East could now afford to part with a diamond, he must have started with the missing four cards in the suit.

If South had no diamonds, West had to rely on his own tricks in spades, hearts, and clubs. It would be fatal to lead a diamond, since that would give declarer a trick that he couldn't win for himself.

West's only safe exit from his hand was a low spade. South took two spade tricks and continued with the seven of spades. Now West had to step up with the king of spades and get out safely with his last spade.

By this time West had taken four tricks and needed two more to defeat the contract. He refused to win when South led the king of clubs. The only way to defeat the contract was to sit back with the A-J of clubs and wait for two more tricks.

It was quite reasonable for West to double two hearts, especially after this partner had doubled two diamonds for penalties. But once the play began West had to adjust himself to reality. Any attempt to make a fortune would actually allow South to bring his doubled contract home.

Accept Bid, But State's OK in Doubt

SEA BRIGHT — Mayor and Council Monday awarded a contract for the reconstruction of Front St. to Charles J. Hesse Co., Belford, sole bidder, at $3,117.90, subject to approval by the state highway commissioner.

Council, voting 4-2, expects that the bid will be rejected by the state, which is slated to pay almost 90 per cent of the bill. It is state policy to reject bids where costs exceed the borough engineer's estimate by more than 10 per cent.

Borough Engineer Otis R. Seaman estimated the cost of the project at $2,267.75.

Councilmen William D. Fowler and Samuel L. Diggle cast negative votes because of the almost sure state rejection. Affirmative voters felt the state should have the privilege of rejecting.

Chamber Sets Its Fall Dinner

KEYPORT — The annual fall dinner of the Chamber of Commerce is scheduled for Oct. 24 at 7 p.m. in the Rollo Post House, Six Corners. Frank L. Phillips assistant vice president of the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Profits and Progress".

This will be an open meeting and guests are welcomed.

To Request Federal Aid For Sewers

OCEAN TOWNSHIP—The Township Committee will apply for federal funds for sewer construction here.

The committee Monday night authorized Alvin E. Gershon of Gershon Associates, Trenton, its planning consultants, to file application for federal aid in preparing for a sewage treatment plant, forced mains, sewers and pumping stations in the Colonial Terrace section, and the southerly end of the Industrial Park area.

The total cost of the work has been estimated at $1,282,035.62 by Frederick Ferriss, Convent, the township's consultant sanitary engineer. Application will be made for a $49,331.70 advance.

The township also will seek $51,286.50 toward construction of sewers, laterals, mains, pumping station and sewerage treatment plant in several sections of the townsnip, including the area in which the new junior-senior high school will be built. The total estimated cost is $1,298,082.

Drivers Cut In Accident

FAIR HAVEN — Two motorists were admitted to Riverview Hospital Monday after their automobiles collided at the intersection of Ridge and Fair Haven Rds.

Police Chief Carl J. Jakubecy said Max B. Kabe, 35, of 8 Reed St., West End, Long Branch and Mrs. Arlene A. Hirsch, 37, 57 Ridge Rd. Rumson, will be issued summonses for careless driving returnable in court here Oct. 25.

Mrs. Hirsch suffered a cut on the left knee, and Mr. Kabe a cut on his right leg.

Chief Jakubecy said Mr. Kabe was proceeding north on Fair Haven Rd., and Mrs. Hirsch was going east on Ridge Rd.

The chief investigated the accident with Police Capt. William Robbins.

Men in Blue

Thanks to the efforts of three Middletown policemen, a Port Monmouth woman is alive today.

The woman nearly perished in a fire in her home this past weekend.

Sgt. Elwood Seeley and Patrolmen Harry Sage and Walter Davis, without regard for their own safety, tried to enter the burning house twice. Each time, intense heat and smoke foiled their efforts.

The men finally were able to get inside with the aid of air packs and rescue the woman.

This is not the first time that a Middletown policeman—or for that matter a member of any department you care to name has risked his life to save another.

It's comforting to know, however, that men of such caliber are ready to risk their lives to protect the general public.

Union Beach High School

The Union Beach Board of Education, which had "given up" for a good many years on the idea of building a local high school, because of borough financial limitations, sees a new glimmer of hope as a result of the proposal to develop East (Conasconk) Point into a major tax ratable.

If the $10 to $15 million sports and recreation center becomes a reality at East Point, and the local tax situation is consequently eased, the board fully expects to propose the school.

Now, Union Beach students go to Keyport High School.

Unfortunately, there has been friction between the Union Beach and Keyport school boards for some time—and Union Beach has stated frankly that it would like to remove its pupils from Keyport "at any time in the future when it becomes possible."

Although Keyport claims it has an excellent curriculum, the Union Beach board feels much is to be desired in this respect—and there also have been differences of opinion on the proposed Keyport school building program.

Union Beach will have nearly 500 high school students by next year, and expects the number to continue rising.

The board feels this is enough for a Union Beach high school—even though the state recommends a minimum of 750.

Construction of a borough high school, even if it becomes possible at some future date, may not be the best answer to the municipality's problems, but it is worthy of careful study.

The board should discuss the issue with county and state education officials now to clear the air.

Your Money's Worth:

The Common Argument Among Newlyweds

By SYLVIA PORTER

If you're a typical young married couple in our country today, you quarrel about money. Whether you're low, middle or high income bracket, your fights frequently are about just one thing— money.

PORTER

If you're typical, that 'sense of agreement" about money which you seemed to have during your courtship was mostly surface and it disappeared right after your marriage. You have had to learn a whole new way of managing your money properly and quite possibly, you haven't learned yet.

You have trouble meeting your expenses from time to time. You're not at all unusual if in the past, you have failed to make an installment payment on the due date or an appliance or furniture or a car and have had to ask your creditor for an extension.

And if you're the wife in this typical couple, you probably pay most of the family bills, worry more than your husband about meeting them and have a strong conservative streak which makes you wary about risking any of your nestegg on a speculative venture.

A Detailed Study

The November issue of "Redbook" magazine, to be published next week, will include a detailed study on "What Money Does To Marriage," based on answers to a comprehensive questionnaire from 446 young married couples living all over the United States and Canada. While this may not be a scientific cross section of American families under 35, Mrs. Luise Addiss, home economist for the Community Service Society of New York, the largest family social agency in the country, told Redbook she believes the answers are "representative of most young married couples." From my knowledge of other surveys and hundreds of interviews I've had over the years, I believe they are too.

For instance, the finding that most couples — nearly 60 per cent — quarrel about money rings true. Consider this from a couple living in an apartment development with such thin walls that everyone is privy to family arguments: "We've been here four years, and in all that time I don't think I've heard an argument that wasn't about money, really. It might have seemed to be about the car or presents or dinner out or inlaws, but when you got right down to it, all the fights were about money." That's an astute, observation.

The finding that families who quarrel the most are in the middle-income ($6,000 to $9,000 a year) bracket also rings true. Asks Murray Teigh Bloom, who wrote up the study: "Is this because, unlike couples with no money for luxuries or couples with ample money, these husbands and wives must agree or clash in choosing the few luxuries they can afford?" The answer is implicit in his question — yes.

Financial Conservatives?

Confirmed too by many other studies is the finding that wives are financial conservatives. When asked "if someone you trusted gave you an admitted long shot as a speculative investment, would you take a flyer?", more than half the families said "no" and in families divided on this, the wives who were against taking a flyer outnumbered those in favor five to one. Every profile of the woman stockholder has underlined her general conservatism in investing and the fact that women are the dominant owners of such traditional blue chips as American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, duPont pinpoints this characteristic.

In some of the answers there are significant guides. As one illustration, nearly half the families questioned reported that each partner had a personal money allowance that need not be accounted for. This does help make a successful marriage. As another illustration, a survey surprise was the disclosure that 70 per cent of the wives in addition to 95 per cent of the husbands carried life insurance. This is a common sense move to protect the children.

Of course, there was a question about budgets, and again ringing true was the finding that almost 50 per cent of the couples had tried budgets and given them up. But many have budgets without realizing it; their very fights about money reveal their awareness of spending plans.

In sum, the results indicate, as Mrs. Addiss says, that young couples are "doing a responsible job in managing their money, spending it wisely and on the whole doing a remarkably thoughtful job. Someone ought to congratulate them." Herewith, I do.

LETTERS

BATTLE OF SHREWSBURY
23 Garden Rd.
Shrewsbury, N. J.
Oct. 11, 1962

To the Editor:

Enclosed please find copy of letter which I would appreciate your including in your "Letters to the Editor" column if you find it appropriate.

Very truly yours,
William J. Glading

Dr. R. Salm
22 Silverbrook Rd.
Mr. John W. VanBrunt
222 Beechwood Dr.
Shrewsbury, N. J.

Gentlemen:

After reading the local newspaper reports concerning your appearance before the meeting of the Shrewsbury Board of Education on Oct. 8, 1962, it would seem that the people of Shrewsbury must be sharing the feelings of frustration experienced by Alice and her friends in Wonderland. You appear to have created a most confusing situation. While acknowledging the inherently non-political nature of the Board of Education and while professing to be interested in protecting the board from political implications, you have apparently created a "political controversy" where none theretofore existed and thus precipitated a regrettable situation which might easily have been avoided.

It should be obvious to everyone that if "politics" (and I almost hesitate to use the word since you seem to attach to it some aura of evil) has for the first time sullied the heretofore unmarked slate of the Board of Education, then the hand that held the chalk is yours and not Mr. Fred Messina's. I believe that it was noted for the record that you are not in the habit of attending Board of Education meetings and it might be inferred from all of the circumstances that you had a particular purpose in mind on this occasion. Based on the reported facts, the conclusion is inescapable that it is you and not Mr. Messina who has injected political overtones into the deliberations of Shrewsbury's Board of Education.

There is obviously no relationship whatsoever between the objective expressed by the Independent candidates with reference to the future development of recreational facilities at the school site, and the autonomous determination of policy by the Board of Education. If there had been any doubt, it was presumably resolved by the answer given to Mr. VanBrunt's similar question at a prior meeting of the board. Also, Dr. Salm's completely irrelevant demand for Mr. Messina's resignation was deliberately misdirected and leaves little room for doubt as to his true motivation. Doctor, you made your point some time ago and Mr. Messina gave you his answer then.

It should also be noted that proper parliamentary procedures would support Mr. Messina's efforts to control your proffered remarks at this recent meeting. In fact, it should be said that, as president of the board, Mr. Messina would have been justified in utilizing more drastic procedures than merely gaveling for order. From all reports, your irrelevant commentaries at this meeting presented quite a different situation from that which existed at a Borough Council meeting not too long ago when Mr. VanBrunt, as a council member, was reported to have objected so vigorously to comments from a member of the public.

Under all of the circumstances, it does seem that you gentlemen would deem it appropriate to offer your apologies to the Shrewsbury Board of Education, to the people of Shrewsbury and, if you really believe in your own profession of principles, to Mr. Messina and his family who are understandably unaccustomed to and visibly distressed by your tactics in this matter.

Very truly yours,
William J. Glading

Dear Mr. Glading:

Copy of your letter addressed to Dr. Raymond Salm and the writer dated October 11, 1962, is acknowledged by the writer. Unfortunately I cannot agree with you on any point made in your letter, and as I have no active interest in municipal affairs at this time, can see no reason to continue this controversy by further expression on your comments. I shall be present at future Board of Education meetings, as I have been in the past, to question points I believe perti-

These Days:

The Search for Humaneness

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Ecumenical Council, now being held in Rome, will not solve all human or even religious questions immediately. Nevertheless, it is a glorious effort on the part of a courageous and humane Pope, who denies exclusivity and seeks a path to human brotherhood in an era of rising hate.

SOKOLSKY

The Second Vatican Council, as it will be called, meets to survey three great problems and to find, if possible, a road to a solution of each:

1. The problem of unity in the Christian world—if not final dogmatic duty, at any rate, an avoidance of anger in dissent and a posture of gentleness to all who believe in Christianity. Under such a Pope as John XXIII, this could be extended to all who accept God, the Natural Law and the hope for redemption, namely, the Jews and the Moslems. Against such a union of forces, the poison of atheistic Marxism would be dissipated;

2. The reformation within the Catholic Church—not dogma but customs and rituals which no longer fit the times. In this respect, many reforms have already taken place and more will undoubtedly come out of the studies that are being made by various commissions. The Christian Churches existed mostly in rural communities or in cities which were principally market-places. Today, with laborers working around the clock, with the automobile altering the homelife, with secular education taking the place of church-controlled schools, with families in big cities being unable to support or to house large families, with the increasing demand for the use of the vernacular in ritual, so that laymen may follow the mass, and the additional demand for more lay participation in church affairs—these are only indexes to the changes which will undoubtedly be considered.

All May Not Be Popular

Some of these changes may not be popular with all the clergy, particularly with those who always reject change of any kind. The Council will therefore not be altogether peaceful, although it is doubtful whether the public will know what goes on in the committees and commissions.

This much is certain. The Council would not have been called at all were not some bridge to be erected which would make it easier for the schismatic churches if not to return to the fold, at any rate, to be in harmony with it. A secretariat for this purpose has already been established.

Some of the less understanding Roman Catholics, particularly of this country, who have been taught to believe that their Church is the only true one, may be very puzzled at what Pope John is doing. They may wonder what Protestants are doing at this Vatican Council, even as observers. Their Pope realizes that an institution that is 20 centuries old occasionally needs refurbishing and the removal of cobwebs and barnacles.

Pope John XXIII is following a wise tradition in calling this Council at the moment of the life and death struggle between Commuinsm and Christianity, between materialism and idealism, between enslavement and freedom. He is meeting his age as the Council of Trent (1545-1563) met its age.

Scientific and Invention

3. Finally, the human mind cannot reject a century of scientific invention and discovery. We not only know the whole of the Earth but we know beyond the Earth into space. We shall soon sit on the moon and perhaps on other planets. We know more about genetics and many accepted notions about the nature of Man are really primitive.

We also experience a curious phenomenon—one very difficult to understand, namely, that the more we know about the physical sciences, the less we know about Man and how Man is to govern himself individually and collectively. We can cure many forms of cancer and have wiped out numerous diseases, but more human beings than ever before suffer from various mental and moral disturbances. Peace and order are disappearing from the face of the Earth. Immoralities, which horrified less knowledgeable societies, are accepted in our era as mere deviations from the normal, and shameless exhibition of improprieties is accepted as a mark of liberty.

The Council cannot avoid noticing these manifestations. Social science cannot replace Moral Law nor can humanism replace God. As materialism is an exaggeration of certain values, so may freedom become such a rot as to destroy not only the individual but society if unrestrained by morality.

The Council's dicta on these matters may be totally revolutionary.

JIM BISHOP: Reporter

It's Not 79; He's Going on 80

Next week, John M. Bishop Sr. will begin his eightieth year. The difference between this man and the one of long ago is considerable. When he was a police lieutenant, he weighed 254. Today he is 150. He used to swing his arms and take long steps with his chin high. Today, the head is bowed, the hair snowy, and the step is a hesitant shuffle.

BISHOP

He spends his time in a small room at my sister's house. In it are pictures of my mother, a few holy pictures, a gold clock, a hospital bed which he never uses, a big chair, a portable T.V. set, a hassock, a bridge table, hosts of newspapers, a small library, and bottles of pills. When he gets it all straightened out, there isn't room to escape to the bathroom.

The mind is quick and sure. He reads everything, loves conversation, and appears to slip only on names. He shoots an excellent game of pool, loves to go to sea on the boat, complains of his "wind", adds up his great-grandchildren and comes up one short. Sometimes he winks at proper ladies and when I asked him why, he said "That's what I've got left."

He lives in North Bergen, New Jersey, but the geographical love of his life is Florida. He insists that there is no place in the world like it, although he has never been west of Chicago, nor east of New Hampshire. He comes alive in Miami, although he almost died there of a sleepy heart last spring. On occasion, when I mention the name of Dr. Martin Belle, my father lifts his hat and bows his head. He was saved by the Belle.

He cannot bear to see a child punished for any infraction, although he was a pretty tough cookie in my time. He believes in ghosts, spirits and the Little People of Ireland, although he smiles derisively at anything which is not "scientifically logical."

My father thinks that the Russians are a good people with a bad government. If we had knocked them flat on their droshkies in 1945, my father feels, we could now be putting them on their feet and dusting them off, as we do for so many other nations. We also missed the bus in Cuba, he feels, but in that matter he feels that a few divisions of U.S. Marines would help them to see the light.

He has opinions on everything and everyone. If you do not agree with him, he will explain patiently and in some detail. If you still do not understand, you are beyond hope and should be playing short for the Bloomer Girls. In his world, there are two seasons: one in which baseball is played, and the dull season. Christmas is a milestone because it is 110 days until the opening at the stadium.

At one time, he loved winter and deep snows and muffled hoofbeats and the sparkle of a streetlight on a drift. Now, if the temperature rises ten degrees, he wants his air conditioner on. If it drops that much, he'll holler for heat. When he forgets the names of the women in this family, all the females become "Sis."

His sense of humor is enormous. If the doctor tells him to strip, and bursts into laughter at my father's skinny figure, John Bishop bursts into laughter too. In his night prayers, he tries to remember all of his friends who have departed, and, as he gets older, the list grows interminably long and he fights to remain awake until he murmurs the last name.

He cannot understand a policeman who will not do a minor favor for another policeman. Nor can he abide politics in a police department. He still feels—with good reason—that he should have been chief in Jersey City, but that he was kept down to assist chiefs who had little talent.

He likes two highballs in the evening because we won't give him three. John enjoys food, and likes to flatter the cook. Years ago, he used to love a salt herring for breakfast, or yesterday's beef stew. He is meticulous about his person and his morning ablutions require considerable time. He comes to the table sparkling—even the shoes.

Long ago, he was afraid of age and didn't like to face it. Now he tries to pretend he's an ancient who has outlived everybody. When I say he'll be 79 next week, he corrects me: "I'm going into my eightieth year." In other years, he was a champ at playing euchre and pinochle, and used to come home from card games with prizes. Recently, my wife introduced him to Gin Rummy and knocked his ears off.

He enjoys an automobile ride for its own sake. At night, he waits until everybody is in bed, then he starts to read books. He will read until 3 a.m. Sometimes he writes reminder notes to himself. Before he retires, he lays out tomorrow's pills in a special bottle, as precisely as he lays out fresh underwear and shirts, and goes to bed in a chair thinking about all the wonders he gleans from books.

John Bishop is a romantic, a sentimentalist, a logician—terms which are not always compatible. He's the greatest of them all, and the best I can say is: Add multos annos . . .

Waiting For The Other Shoe

neat, and I hope your friend, Mr. Messina, will permit open comment from the public as is the rule with other governmental bodies.

As for the distress suffered by Mr. Messina's family in these discussions, I can sympathize with them, for I had similar situations with my family while in public office. I did not, however, have a friend demand apology from anyone expressing opposition to my views.

It is my hope that you will respect my rights to question governmental action, and I assure you, I will defend and respect yours.

Yours very truly,
John W. Van Brunt

Mr. William Glading
23 Garden Rd.
Shrewsbury, N. J.

Dear Mr. Glading:

You and Mr. Messina may consider seeking public office an "Alice in Wonderland" tea party, but I prefer to deal in facts, not fantasy.

Fact 1. A "regrettable situation" has occurred, as you state, but one Mr. Messina must have foreseen and could have avolded.

Fact 2. A resignation from the Board of Education at the time of announcing his political aspirations would have saved the board from this "regrettable situation."

Fact 3. While sitting on the Board of Education, Mr. Messina promises to have our school playground turned over to municipal use.

Fact 4. I regret that Mr. Messina is "unaccustomed to and visibly distressed by" public criticism—so much so that he refuses to discuss the "regrettable situation" his platform has created.

Fact 5. I shall continue to discuss this as long as the residents of Shrewsbury are interested in facts—not fantasy.

Sincerely,
Raymond W. Salm, Jr.

SAYS ELECTION WILL BE CLOSE

41 Third Ave.,
Long Branch, N. J.

To the Editor:

I'll venture you and any other objective observer will agree with me when I say that the election this fall looks to be in Monmouth County the most closely contested in 20 years.

The Republicans' great talking point has been that there is "no substitute for experience" and that they present only such candidates. But it is different this year. Only half their ticket has experience. Sheriff Wolcott and Freeholder Sherman, who were towers of strength, are missing from the lineup.

Then Paul Kiernan for sheriff is the man with experience—two terms of it as under sheriff, with a record of five terms in the City Commission of Long Branch, two of them as mayor, when he made such a record that he was elected four times heading the field by huge majorities.

Then David Buck, prominent business man, has a platform saying what he would do to save 10 per cent on county spending. There are no national or state candidates to aid in keeping voters in party lines. And still worse is the use of the Eisenhower recent statement in South Carolina warning voters if they want to keep their independence, freedom and security to avoid association with any one party set-up. There may be dynamite in that.

Harry Lane.

4-H Group Has Insect Program

HAZLET — At its regular meeting last week, "The Shutterfans," a local 4-H Boys group, had as their guest speakers Peter Jerkowicz, and his son, Douglas.

Mr. Jerkowicz, an amateur entomologist, lectured about and showed his extensive insect collections.

Douglas, an amateur taxidermist, explained the art of trapping, skinning and stuffing animals. He brought examples for the children to examine. Douglas also demonstrated how artificial fish lures are made.

Other 4-H groups attending the meeting were "Busy Little Beavers," "The Buffalos" and "4-H Queens."

The 4-H Queens and the Shutterfans made a field trip Friday morning to the Atlantic Tile Manufacturing Co., Matawan. They were given a guided tour through the factory.

Mrs. Otto Ledig, leader and organizer of the local 4-H groups, said the trips have been so successful that many more are planned for the future.

Students Visit Restored Village

RUMSON — Under the leadership of Floyd DeNicola, chairman of the social studies department at Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High School, 130 members of the junior class recently participated in a day-long field trip to Old Sturbridge Village, Mass. The trip was planned as an integral part of the 11th grade course in United States History.

Travelling by bus, the students spent nearly a full day exploring restored Sturbridge and observing New England culture as it existed in the early 19th century. Included in the tour were many examples of early New England home life as illustrated by the houses, exhibits and demonstrations of home industries. The students also were able to observe craftsmen at work in their shops and mills.

In addition to Mr. DeNicola, the group was accompanied by Robert Kasten and Barry Bradford, history instructors; Mrs. Bradford; Michael Barno, a practice teacher at the high school, and the following mothers of students: Mrs. Dorothy Bennett, Mrs. Albert P. Brogle, Mrs. Edwin Lichtig and Mrs. Wilson Rich.

... By George!

(Write to George for hard answers to easy questions.)

Dear George:

When we were first married my husband, who barely made ends meet, didn't smoke. Then for years, still with a poorly paid job, he smoked cigarettes—but at least I could understand him when he talked.

Then he switched to a pipe and moved on up in the business, but I could hardly understand him at all, what with all the puffing and pipe-lighting.

Then he switched to cigars. He is now president of the firm, but never takes his big expensive cigar out of his mouth and he just mumbles and I can't understand a word he says.

What should I do? Besides, I don't like the smell.

Coughing

Dear Coughing.

Quite obviously, your husband becomes more successful in direct ratio to how incoherent he is Now that nobody can understand him at all, he is a success.

You can, therefore: (A) Have him quit smoking and be the most coherent man in the relief-check line, or (B) Encourage his cigar-smoking and be able to afford a diamond clothespin for your nose.

A third alternative would be to switch him over to chewing tobacco, where nobody could understand him, and run him for Congress.

Confidential to Prince Rainier: Maybe if you bought her a home movie set . . .

By MILLI HRUSKA

I promised you here last week that I would tell you Army won last Saturday's game against Penn State. It did.

The day was more beautiful than any words could describe.

The game was a thrilling spectacle and everything exciting that happened in it seemed to happen right in front of us. We were in the fifth row on about the 10 yard line on the Penn State side.

The cruise aboard Henry Stadler's Philljean up the Hudson River to West Point was a breathtaking panorama of fall in all its blazing colors. (The Philljean, by the way, is an 80-foot Diesel-powered cruiser.)

David Doran owner of The Quay, Sea Bright, was host aboard the Philljean for the weekend which began with breakfast on board at eight o'clock Saturday morning and progressed through the golden hours of the day and a night made golden, too by the light of a full and brilliant harvest moon. After a very few hours sleep we began the sail back to Atlantic Highlands Yacht Club marina, arriving shortly after 5 in the afternoon.

Dave's meticulous attention to his guests' pleasure included lovely lavender chrysanthemum corsages for every lady aboard.

His guests included Peter Wingerter of Red Bank, Chuck and Evelyn Gordon of Lincroft, Bob Kirk of Navesink, Chris Quinnell of England, Flo Glenn and Jimmy and Adeline Theise of Sea Bright, Carolyn Graezer of Brenton Woods, Barbara Wojie of South Amboy, Wendy Ireland of Trenton and her fiance, Jimmy Godshall of Highlands (they will be married Nov. 24) Frank Pearson of Monmouth Beach, Vernon and Lois Edwards of Fair Haven and Tony Quaglia of Ideal Beach and Washington, D. C.

A bouquet of orchids to Henry and Dorothy Stadler of Atlantic Highlands; David Crowell, their son-in-law, and Bob Wallace of Fair Haven whose superior talents made the weekend especially luxurious.

The Monmouth Players' membership cocktail party early Sunday evening in the Rumson Hotel was fashionable and fun.

Tino and his Guardsmen of Keyport played for dancing.

Among those present were Vera and Matty Cascella, Eleanor and Vincent Pace, Ken and Katie Friede, Bob and Frankie Nagle, Elsa and Chet Hammann, Lee and Ronnie Graves, Larry and Sylvia Taylor and Jinny Logue of Rumson, the Peter Edwardsons of Eatontown, Helen Donoghue of Atlantic Highlands and Ben and Joy Edelstein, Carol Koch and Kay Gladding of Asbury Park.

Also, Emily Richardson of Oakhurst, Al and Sheila Stone, Pat and Jack Collins and Murray Silver of Little Silver, Steve and Virgie Nester of Keyport, the Bob Goodmans of Navesink, Harold Estey and Frank and Maryrose Contey of Locust, Elvin and Ruthie Welch, Jean Reed, Niki and Grace Vuyosevich, Mary and Evan Baker, the Berkeley Caters, Dr. and Mrs. C. Douglas Hoyt, Joan Dillon and Bob and Marjorie Preston of Fair Haven, Sam and Aggie Smith of Monmouth Beach and Marilyn and Bill Barnes of West Long Branch.

"Witness for the Prosecution" will be the Monmouth Players' first production of the 1962-63 season. It will be presented in the Navesink Library theater the evenings of November 1, 2 and 3 and 9 and 10. More about this later.

Lee and Ronnie Graves leave by jet tomorrow for a 19-day tour of Europe.

The trip is being sponsored by the Antique Automobile Club of America. They will visit Switzerland, Italy, France, Germany, England, Belgium and Holland.

Roger Wingerter of Red Bank spent the weekend in Paris.

Tennis star Helen Jacobs is the houseguest of Sarah Ackroyd-Moore at Cobble Close, Middletown.

Miss Jacobs is working on a book titled "Women in Athletics" for Dodd Mead Co.

She will remain here for the Hunt Racing Association meet at Amory L. Haskell's Woodland Farm Saturday.

This will be the biggest weekend of the season for parties before and after the meet and on through Sunday, from milk punch parties in the mornings to brunches, luncheons, cocktails and dinners.

Adam and Eve

Lonely Hearts Club

(Do you have a personal question or problem? Send it to Adam or Eve Lowell or both, as you prefer. For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Mail to ADAM & EVE, c/o The Register.)

DEAR ADAM AND EVE:

You receive many letters from lonely widows. Well, what about us lonely girls? I'm only 16, but I often experience that awful "dateless" feeling. It happens even when some of us girls go to a public dance in desperation. The guys all crowd together like old ladies at a tea party, while the girls stand around waiting to be asked to dance. It's plain disgusting to pay 75 cents admission (sometimes more) for what? To stand on your feet half the night.

Personally I think something should be done about it. Perhaps public dance halls should include a burly ringleader who would stand in the middle of the dance floor with a bull whip, if that is what it takes.

Lisa

DEAR ADAM:

Maybe you can help me. I am a grocery clerk 22 years old, five feet 10 inches tall and weigh 145 pounds. I was graduated from high school some years ago and live with a buddy in a small efficiency. I'm not a Jimmy Stewart in looks but I guess I'm not Schnozzola Durante either. Anyway, here's my problem: dates. Girls turn me down and I don't know why. I'm really a very nice guy. Even when I go to a dance hall, girl after girl refuses my invitation to dance, but the next moment they accept someone else. It can't be my dancing, because I shake a fast pair of feet. I'm thinking of joining the Foreign Legion if this keeps up. Any ideas?

Unloved

Dear Unloved: Yes. Lisa's waiting for you.

Adam

Ask your buddy, who knows you better than we do, what's wrong. Maybe it's the way you dress, talk or act. If he knows and won't tell you, get another buddy.

Eve

Joining the Foreign Legion won't solve your girl problem. There are no girls in the Legion!

Adam

DEAR ADAM AND EVE:

I am happily married (my second marriage) to a woman who at the time of our marriage had both a single and married daughter by a previous marriage. I am quite sure that both daughters love and respect me, but whenever we meet they call me by my first name. I wouldn't mind that at all except that it is very embarrassing to me, especially when other relatives and friends are around.

I've never discussed this with my wife because I feel that she might possibly defend their action by saying they have minds of their own and are old enough to know what they're doing. But don't you think I deserve the dignity of being called "Dad," even though I'm not their natural father? I've helped make their lives more comfortable with financial help and many other ways.

Perplexed

Dear Perplexed: It isn't a matter of dignity or respect, so don't make an issue of it. You say they do love and respect you, so let well enough alone.

Like many other children, they are simply unable to call a foster parent "Dad." Not now, anyway. In time they may, but don't worry about it: their affection for you is far more important than their style of addressing you. Be glad they don't call you "Mister."

At Conference

FORT MONMOUTH — Two members of the U. S. Army Signal Radio Propagation Agency are attending the annual meeting of the International Scientist Radio Union which commenced Monday in Ottowa, Canada.

Frederick H. Dickson, scientific director of the agency, will represent the U.S.A. National Committee. He is accompanied by Richard A. Silberstein, supervising electronics engineer of RPA, who is a member of the vital Commission 3 of this international conclave, which is concerned with ionospheric radio research and phenomena.

Eliot's 'Cocktail Party'

Off-Broadway on Broad Street

RED BANK — When the Ministry of Music and Fine Arts of the Red Bank Methodist Church presents its dramatic reading of "The Cocktail Party" by T. S. Eliot this weekend, it will bring a touch of "off-Broadway" to Broad St.

The work, rather than being done as either a straight play or a straight dramatic reading, will be a combination of the two forms of presentation.

The set, designed by Donald Curry and Herbert Burtis, is in the center of the Fellowship Hall of the church and consists of three acting levels.

The audience will sit on all sides of the acting area. The actors will use books as in dramatic readings, but will move through their parts in regular dramatic action. Something similar to this was done last season on television with the reading of "Don Juan in Hell" by George Bernar Shaw.

Act one takes place in the living room of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chamberlayne, played by Charles Jaceion and Hazel Stodter. The living room set is on all three levels.

Act two takes place in a doctor's office during which time only a part of the tri-level set is in use. By means of different lighting and a shift on furniture, the office is reproduced in the same area formerly occupied by the living room.

Guests at the cocktail party are Celia Coplestone, played by Carol Hoslet; Peter Quilpe, played by Ian Dunipace; Alexander MacColgie Gibbs, played by Chester Crabtree, Jr.; Julia Shuttlethwaite, played by Jean Fowler, and an unidentified guest, played by Kerry Robb. The part of the nurse-secretary will be played by Thelma Lowden, and Mr. Burtis will appear briefly as a caterer's man.

"The Cocktail Party" is possibly one of the most devastatingly Christian plays ever penned. It deals with human beings and their destinies and points up the fact that we often have the choice of our destiny. This is dramatically portrayed in the lives of Celia Coplestone and of the Chamberlaynes.

This is the first theater-in-the-round presentation attempted by the Drama Group. Because of the space needed for the acting area, seating will be limited to only about 75 persons each night.

Tickets will be on sale at the door, but only if there are vacant seats left on the evening of the play. Requests for tickets should be addressed to: The Ministry of Music and Fine Arts, First Methodist Church, 247 Broad St., Red Bank.

CHECKING THE COURSE — Members of the Monmouth County Hunt Race Committee survey the Woodland Farm steeplechase course where the 32d annual program of races will be run Saturday. Autumn Backdrop for Hunt Meet

MIDDLETOWN — Autumn foliage will provide the background for the 32d annual steeplechase races to be held here Saturday on Mr. and Mrs. Amory L. Haskell's Woodland Farm.

A benefit for local charities, the annual event offers five steeplechase races, pony rides for children, martial music by the Hamilton Township Band and a luncheon for the farmers and landowners over whose property the Monmouth County Hunt rides.

Woodland Farm gates will open at 11 a.m. for family picnic groups. The racing program will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Many of the nation's leading cost and rail, brush and hurdle performers will compete in the win-featured Monmouth County Hunt Cup, a rugged three-mile test over post and rail fences, and the Monmouth County Gold Cup, a two-mile race over brush barriers.

Leading steeplechase riders from the metropolitan tracks and the national hunt meeting circuit will be on hand to participate in the five-race program which includes a one and three-quarter mile event over hurdles and two flat races on the turf course.

The Hunt Race Committee is headed by Amory L. Haskell, president. Assisting him are Mrs. Amory L. Haskell, Jr., secretary-treasurer; Richard G. Metcalf, chairman, members' luncheon committee; Mrs. Alfred King, Jr., chairman, farmers' luncheon committee, and Edward J. Brennan, chairman, racing committee.

STYLISHLY WARM

Fashion forecasts point to a good winter for frozen turnips. Big this year will be the muffled effect of scarves, stoles, hoods and collars, and the covered-up look for evening wear. Long sleeves are back on coats, suits and dresses.

Dr. Blaisdell Is Off To India

LONG BRANCH — Dr. C. Byron Blaisdell, senior attending physician on the staff of Monmouth Medical Center and twice president of its medical board, has been named a member of the United States Committee of the World Medical Association and leader of one of the two committee units representing the United States at a world convention in New Delhi, India, in mid-November.

Dr. Blaisdell and his unit left by air for London on the first leg of their journey. Prior to the meeting in India, the U.S. Committee will spend four days in Czechoslovakia and two weeks in Russia inspecting health and hospital facilities, exchanging ideas and views on world health problems, and volunteering health information from the association.

Non-political in personnel and purpose, the United State committee is one of 64 representing as many nations who will participate in the New Delhi meeting. While there is a professional travel director, Dr. Blaisdell will service as official spokesman for his unit which includes 14 other medical men from the eastern half of the United States. The second unit includes physicians from the western part of the nation.

Following the meeting in New Delhi, which will last from Nov. 10 through 16, the group will visit Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan and Hawaii. In Thailand, the group will be conducted on an official tour of country's health facilities, and in Hong Kong the discussions and visits will center on the health problems created by the vast influx of refugees from China.

Dr. Blaisdell, who resides in Deal and practices in Asbury Park, is a member of the American Medical Association's Council on Legislative Action for the area including New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware. The United States Committee of the World Medical Association was elected by the general membership of the AMA.

Other members of the State Library Survey Committee are Miss Viola Maihl, director of the Linden Public Library; Miss Veronica Carey, director of the Trenton Free Public Library; Neal Harlow, dean of the Graduate School of Library Service, Rutgers University, and Frederick H. New Jersey News Briefs

By The Associated Press

SAYREVILLE — A 32-year-old school teacher was killed yesterday when his car ran off Pulaski Ave., struck a house and burst into flame. Police said Christian A. Herrel of 3 Beryl St., South River, who was alone in the car, died almost immediately. Herrel was a fifth grade teacher in the Samsel School, Sayreville. The car failed to make a turn and struck the house at 172 Pulaski Ave., coming to rest underneath the porch, police said. Firemen quickly extinguished the car fire, which did not cause serious damage to the house.

UNION CITY — Joseph Borrin, who celebrated his 100th birthday last March, died yesterday in his home at 819 18th St. Borrin, who was born in Italy and came to the United States in 1897, was a textile worker until his retirement eight years ago. He leaves two sons, John Borrin of Cliffside and Peter Borrin of Union City; a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Canale of Union City; three grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

NEWARK — Fireman Salvatore Vacca, who was killed Saturday while trying to rescue a man from a burning apartment, was buried today with honors accorded to a chief. About 600 off-duty firemen attended a mass for the 29-year-old fireman this morning in St. Joseph's Church in East Orange. Vacca, who had served on the department for three years, died when he attempted to save Charles Lee from a fire in a third-floor apartment at 278 S. 11th St. Lee also perished in the blaze.

ELIZABETH — There were scrambled eggs at Rahway Ave. and Cherry St. yesterday morning. William Woodson, 29, of 218 Academy St., Hightstown, had his truck loaded with eggs when he tried to drive under a low bridge at Rahway Ave. The top of the truck was sheared off. Traffic was backed up for several minutes before a wrecker could dislodge the squeezed vehicle. "I can't understand why I didn't make it," Woodson told police. "I've been driving under that bridge two or three times a week."

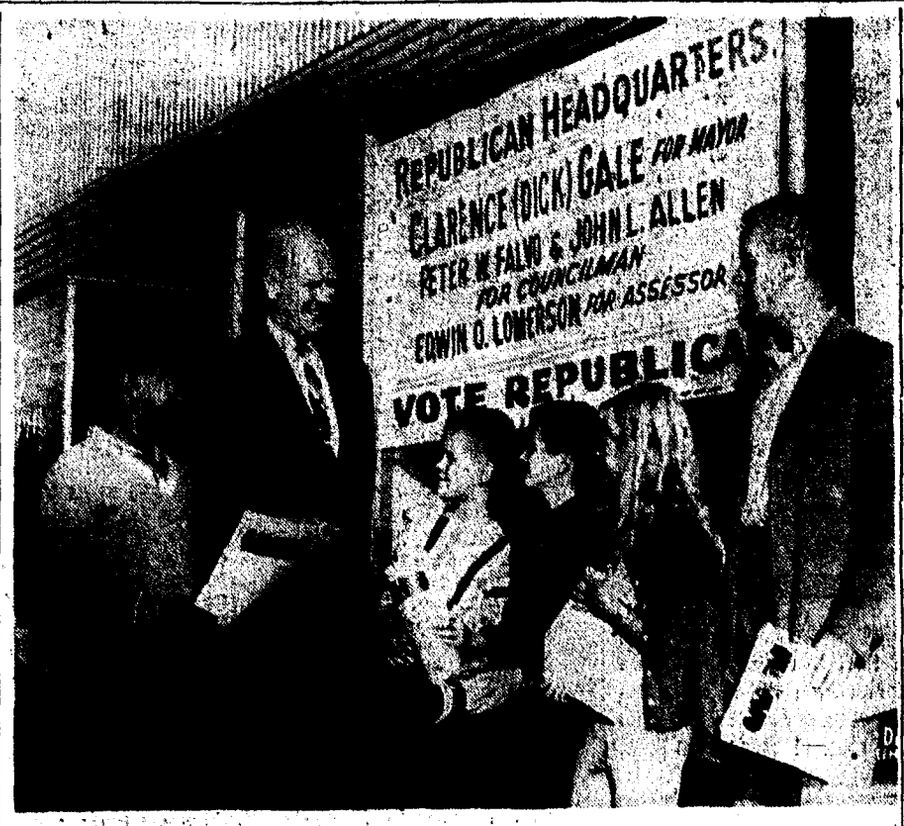

TRENTON — The Archbishop of Canterbury said tonight the readiness of the Ecumenical Council to deal with certain difficult questions would determine whether it can produce any real Christian unity. "I think the Vatican Council is summoned with a spirit of unity in the heart of the Pope," the Anglican church leader, the Most Rev. Arthur Michael Ramsey, told a news conference. But he added that greater church unity would depend in part on the council's treatment of such matters as the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church toward mixed marriages and rebaptism of converts. Asked if he felt Christian churches would eventually unite, he said: "I think that ultimately there will be one Christian Church." This church, he said, would embrace national churches which would retain many of their individual characteristics. On the question of whether there would be an eventual union of the Roman Catholic and Anglican Churches, the British archbishop said there would have to be some giving in on both sides to effect such a union.

CALDWELL TOWNSHIP—The Township Council has received a petition bearing 50 signatures protesting the midget auto races that were held this summer at Pine Brook Stadium in adjacent Pine Brook. James Birbiglia presented the petition at the council meeting Monday night. He said the races made so great a noise that area residents "can't even stand in their own backyards." He also said visitors to the races and some contestants raced down Clinton Rd. to get to the stadium.

NEWARK — President Kennedy's pre-election pledge to restore what he termed the declining prestige of the United States abroad has turned into a tragic joke, former Connecticut Gov. John Lodge said yesterday. Lodge, a Republican who also served as ambassador to Spain, told a luncheon of Republican women that on a recent trip around the world, he found American prestige had suffered tremendous damage as a result of the Cuban situation. Lodge criticized the current administration policy toward Cuba, claiming that "as we sit here . . . Cuban communism is being slipped into Santo Domingo and Brazil." He said the President had been too flexible with Communist leaders and too severe with leaders of friendly nations.

Gale, candidate for mayor; Peter MacDonald, 68 Wallace St.; Donald Magee, 35 Irving Pl.; Pamela Gale, 16 McLaren St., and Mr. Raynor. Prizes were awarded to each of the children.

Federal Funds Sought

HIGHLANDS — Borough Council was in a letter-writing mood last night.

In an attempt to obtain a share of the $900 million accelerated public works program funds recently authorized by Congress, council directed letters to federal and state agencies to find out how to apply for federal aid for repairs to the borough's sewerage system under the new law.

August Postel, borough engineer, told the governing body that all eligible projects must be under way within 120 days of approval and must be at least 51 per cent completed within a year.

Funds From Government

Although Councilman William McGowan claimed that funds for eligible projects are allocated on a 90-10 matching basis, with the federal government picking up the greater portion of the bill, the borough engineer and Mayor Cornelius J. Guiney, Jr., disagreed.

They contended that federal grants are awarded on a 50-50 basis, and in some cases, 75-25.

Another piece of correspondence — to Rep. James C. Auchinchloss, R-3d Dist., and Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., — called for federal assistance in a borough flood and erosion control program, and urged dredging the Shrewsbury River entrance channel from Highlands bridge to Atlantic Highlands.

The county Board of Freeholders was requested, by mail, to take over the maintenance of Bay Ave. and Linden Ave., which borough officials contend are county roads.

Maintained Since 1928

The roads have been maintained by this municipality since 1928, Mayor Guiney said.

Mr. Postel was authorized to make application to the state Highway Department for construction aid on repairs to Grand Tour, one of the access roads to the new Henry Hudson Regional School.

The governing body withheld decision on the sale of 12 100x145-foot lots located below the Twin Lights until Oct. 30.

George McGowan, local plumber who lives on Kay St., was high bidder at $13,000.

The lots, which were put up for sale in bulk, are located in a rectangular-shaped area bounded by New Rd., Buena Vista Ave., Hillside Ave., and Fairview Ave.

In 1957, the borough attempted to sell the lots to G. V. Kadenbach, Sea Bright, for $10,101, but an error in the deed prevented the sale.

Clear Title

It has taken the borough almost five years to obtain clear title to the property.

Earlier this year, Mayor Guiney estimated that the borough would realize approximately $30,000 from the sale of the property.

There are no borough access roads to the lots, and no water and sewer lines.

In other action, council adopted an ordinance vacating an area between the northerly line of the right of way of Rt. 36 and Navesink Ave.

Okay Loans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy signed a measure Tuesday permitting the Secretary of Agriculture to make disaster loans to oyster planters.

Previously, such loans could be made to farmers or ranchers but not to oyster planters.

Warns About Leaf Burning On Streets

SHREWSBURY — Councilman Hadley S. King, road committee chairman, said last night that a borough ordinance prohibiting the burning of leaves on streets will have to be enforced if co-operation is not forthcoming from residents.

He pointed out that fires on the streets will melt and drain the bituminous material from the crushed stone used in street construction here.

Mr. King said the borough has acquired a vacuum leaf loader, but again asked residents to use discretion when placing leaves at the curb. The machine can not pick up cans, bottles, tree branches or shrub clippings, he said.

Authority Introduces New Rate Schedule

EATONTOWN — The Sewerage Authority last night introduced a new rate schedule which will make only one change in present sewer bills. Public hearing and final action on the measure was scheduled for Nov. 20 at 8 p. m. in the borough hall.

A new classification, for businesses with more than 100 employees, will result in a new method of billing the Bendix Aviation Corp. plant on Rt. 35.

The Bendix sewer bill will henceforth be based on number of employees, rather than on an estimate of effluent based on water consumption.

Same for Homeowners

Homeowners and all other users will continue to pay at the current rate for sewer service—$66 a year per family unit, $66 for each four employees in businesses employing less than 100 people, $66 for each 10 students in schools, and $16.50 for each room in motels and boarding houses. All rates are per year, except the charge for trailers, which is $1.27 per week per trailer.

The new rate schedule will charge large businesses the standard $68 a year for each four of its first 100 employees, and reduce the rate for all employees over 100 to $66 a year for each 10.

The new rate will give the same sort of reduction that other utilities offer to quantity users, Borough Attorney Henry Saling explained.

"There is justification in setting a rate to encourage large industry," Mr. Saling said.

He also pointed out that when plants pass the 100-employee mark, shift work is usually employed, which reduces the load per hour on the sewerage processing plant.

The new rate applies, of course, to any industry employing more than 100 workers. At present, the only such industry in this borough is the Bendix plant, which employs well over 1,000 people.

The authority at the same meeting passed a resolution to sign a contract with Bendix based on the newly established rates, to cover the next three years.

The new billing rate will result in a reduction of the sewerage bill currently being paid by the industrial plant. Bendix authorities, for some time, Mr. Saling said, have been protesting the plant's sewerage bills, and have, in fact, installed effluent meters to show they are being billed for more than the plant produced.

To Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—New Jersey's Republican Senator, Clifford P. Case, has accepted the invitation of the state's Democratic Senator, Harrison A. Williams, Jr., to debate the merits of the 87th Congress.

Williams suggested Tuesday that he and Case hold the public debate on the recently adjourned Congress and Case said he would be glad to accept.

Manslaughter Trial Ends In Acquittal

FREEHOLD — A Monmouth County jury here yesterday found Charles Wiggs, Rt. 537, Freehold Township, innocent of a charge of manslaughter.

Assistant Prosecutor John W. Applegate represented the state. Wiggs was charged with causing the death of Oscar Lane of 1105 Adams St., Asbury Park, July 30.

Wiggs testified in the trial, held before County Judge Edward J. Ascher, that he struck Lane with his fist in self defense as Lane was coming after him with a bottle.

Wiggs said that after the blow, Lane fell and struck his head on the sidewalk in front of Lane's home. Lane died later in Fitkin Hospital.

Wiggs said he did not know Lane had died until Asbury Park police arrested him.

At the trial, Wiggs was represented by a court-appointed attorney, Edmund J. Canzona, Red Bank.

Gale Says O'Hern's Criticism Is Absurd

RED BANK—Clarence S. Gale said yesterday he would have received an "unfair advantage" if the Republican administration had appointed him mayor following the resignation of George A. Gray in May, and said that Democratic references to it are absurd.

He found support for his point of view in a personal letter he has received from Canon Charles H. Best, rector of the Trinity Episcopal Church.

Mr. Gale, the GOP nominee for the post, said an appointment "possibly would have influenced the voting public in a manner inconsistent with my own personal ideas of honesty."

Democrats have charged that Mr. Gale was not appointed to the position, now occupied by former Councilman Peter W. Falvo, because he did not enjoy the confidence of his party colleagues.

In a letter Oct. 2, Father Best told Mr. Gale an appointment would have "weighted your cause through occupying the position of interim mayor."

"May I take this opportunity," the letter continues, "to commend you most highly on your forthrightness, your intellectual and political honesty and your very evident faith in, and concern for, the people of Red Bank, now and in the future."

Mr. Gale said he was reluctant to make public "such a personal communication, but under the circumstances, I requested and received his permission to do so."

In the letter, Father Best surmised that "your real reason for not having accepted the position of interim mayor was that you felt that the people of Red Bank should truly be the electorate and have their opportunity to choose between you and your Democratic opponent without any predisposition toward you through your having filled the office of interim mayor. . ."

Mr. Gale said he thought the office of mayor should be filled on an interim basis by a member of the Borough Council "who have previously been elected by the people to participate in the business of running the local government."

The candidate said he considered "ridiculous" Democrat Daniel J. O'Hern's statement earlier in the campaign that the local Republican party lacked confidence "in my ability." "What political party would select a candidate for such high office without having confidence in his ability?" he asked.

"These are indeed absurd charges."

Mr. O'Hern and Joseph McFadden are Democratic candidates for the council. Benedict R. Nicosia, their running mate, seeks the mayoralty.

Mr. Gale is a member of Trinity Episcopal Church. Father Best, his rector, said in his letter that he is certain that if elected, Mr. Gale "will fill the office. . .as a people's mayor, one who is truly one of the people of Red Bank, elected without prejudice by the people of Red Bank and motivated by a profound concern and sense of obligation to the people of Red Bank."

'Mystery' Is Solved

GOP Club Sent Unsigned Letter

SHREWSBURY — Bernard J. Marx, president of the Shrewsbury Republican Club, said last night the GOP club is responsible for mailing a letter to residents last week in which the Independent candidate for mayor, Frederic Messina, was criticized.

The letter quoted two Register stories concerning a controversy between Mr. Messina and incumbent council candidate Dr. Raymond W. Salm, Jr., over an Independent platform promise to convert playground facilities at the public school into a recreation field.

Ask Investigation

Mr. Messina, who is president of the Board of Education, was also rapped for his actions at a recent school board meeting at which he called Dr. Salm out of order. The letter was unsigned, except for a post office box number.

The Independent candidates have called for an investigation of the matter, charging that the letter violates election laws. State law requires that material pertaining to election candidates must be signed.

Mailed Here

John M. Gawler, chief of county detectives, said yesterday the source of the letter is under investigation by the county prosecutor's office.

Fred Crine, Red Bank postmaster, said he has referred a copy of the letter to postal inspectors in Philadelphia.

The letter was mailed in Shrewsbury, which is a branch of the Red Bank post office.

Rooke Asks Why Barn Still Stands

SHREWSBURY — Robert M. Rooke, 126 Elm La., asked Borough Council last night why a barn at the end of his street has not been burned or demolished.

The barn was designated a health hazard after fire destroyed an adjacent chicken coop in July.

Permission has been granted to the borough to burn the barn, Mr. Rooke said, but due to a technicality, Shrewsbury Hose Company has not been able to supervise the job to date.

Councilman Francis J. Bolduc promised to investigate and report the status of the barn to Elm La. residents today.

In other business last night, council awarded a contract for the repair of shoulders at the east end of Trafford St. to Thomas Farrell of this place.

It was announced that council's next meeting will be Nov. 7 instead of Nov. 6, Election Day.

Callman Isn't About to Quit

RUMSON — Mayor Charles S. Callman said yesterday he does not intend to resign.

Resignation rumors got started here last week when a letter mailed to residents by the Republicans was misunderstood by some of its readers.

The letter stated that Councilman Francis E. P. McCarter is seeking the seat held by Mayor Callman. Mr. McCarter was appointed Jan. 1 to Mayor Callman's unexpired term when the latter was sworn in as mayor. Mr. McCarter is seeking re-election.

Students Aid Fund Drive

RUMSON — For the ninth consecutive year, Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High School is participating in the Community Appeal Week program which is now in effect in both Rumson and Fair Haven.

The kick-off for the high school contributions took place Friday during the school's assembly program.

Dr. John Kinney, Jr., regional superintendent, addressed the students and stressed the meaning of the Community Appeal. Students at Regional were urged to contribute, but out of their own money—not their parents'.

Howell George, regional supervisor of assembly programs, arranged for a film entitled, "Three Mighty Minutes," prepared by the Newark City Appeal.

The Student Government Association of the Regional High School coordinates the collections for the school and turns the funds over to Mrs. Jessie L. Muegge, administrative assistant, who acts as custodian for the funds. Student co-ordinators appointed by the Student Government Association are President James W. Greene and Margaret White, Fair Haven, and Nicholas Adamson, Rumson.

In announcing these selections, Dr. Kiney stressed that donations by Fair Haven students would be turned to the Fair Haven Community Appeal, while Rumson students' contributions would be given to the proper authorities in that borough.

BACK TO SCHOOL night for parents was held last night at Markham Place School, Little Silver. Left to right are Mr. and Mrs D. H. Woodward, 4 Garden Rd.; Mrs. Leon Turkington, kindergarten teacher; C. David Vanderhoof, superintendent of schools, and Douglas Horan, principal of Point Road School.

Stage Offers Career For Radio Veteran

By HARVEY PACK

On a Sunday night early this month an era ended. There was no publicity or ballyhoo as CBS closed up the last two dramatic programs on radio, the long-running "Suspense" and "Johnny Dollar."

Gone are the days when our imagination could paint the scenery and visualize the faces of our heroes as Lamont Cranston became "The Shadow" or the creaky door transported us into "The Inner Sanctum." For many actors it was comparable to vaudeville giving way to silent films and silents to talkies.

I decided to celebrate the passing of dramatic radio by talking to an actor who reaped a golden harvest in radio's heyday and often starred in as many as four shows a day. I found this actor, Larry Haines, at Broadway's Eugene O'Neil Theatre where he is making his stage debut as Jason Robards Jr.'s brother in the long-running comedy hit "A Thousand Clowns."

"It's been over for me for years," said Larry when I informed of the final demise of radio drama. "There are some of my colleagues from radio's inner circle who are still sitting home waiting for it to come back. I got the message several years ago and was lucky enough to step into a running part on CBS' 'Search for Tomorrow.' I've been Stu Bergman on that show for so many years that when I walk on the stage in 'A Thousand Clowns" I can hear the ladies whispering . . . 'Look, there's Stu.' "

I asked Larry whether he misses the "good old days." "Are you kidding?" he replied. "Those of us who were 'in' had a ball. I could do my soap opera in the morning then rush out and log a lead in two nighttime shows on the same day. I once appeared on two shows at the same time in two networks . . . live. My wife waited for me in a car in front of NBC while I did the first 15 minutes of one show and then rushed me over to CBS where I arrived in time to appear in the last half hour of a one hour play. Can anybody do that in TV?"

Although "A Thousand Clowns" is his Broadway debut Larry is no stranger to live audiences because he appeared in many of the big radio shows where the stars read the scripts in front of an audience. "I was actually in the show where Orson Welles pulled his legendary stunt," he remembered. "The director sat on stage and cued the actors like a conductor. It was all part of the big show for the theatre audience. The guest stars were introduced on the air.

"They came out of the wings, accepted their applause, bowed, and walked over to their microphone. Orson came out, bowed, took his script out of his pocket and threw it up in the air. The director went out of his mind. He jumped off his conductor's stool and crawled all over the stage gathering up the papers. Orson watched him for a second, then calmly went to the mike and took the real script out of his pocket and proceeded to do the show."

Larry feels that people took their radio as seriously as they do TV. Once he played a man about to go the chair on "Gangbusters" and after the show he received a phone call from the condemned man's mother abusing him for his wicked portrayal of their wonderful, clean living son.

Haines actually had very little trouble breaking into radio. He was born in Mount Vernon, New York, and while attending college in Yonkers he was advised to go study acting. A few months in the dramatic school and his instructors thought he was ready so they set up an audition at CBS. He caught on immediately and became one of radio's most sought after voices.

"Of course the arrival of TV was a blow and when I did my first TV show . . . I think it was 'Big Story' . . . I was scared to death but I did it," he said. "From there on in I did as much radio as I could but kept my foot in the TV door. It made the gradual transition easy."

I asked Larry why he never tried Broadway before "A Thousand Clowns." "Who could afford it?" he replied. "If I took a show it meant giving up a fortune in radio income and I simply never thought it was worth it. But now, with only 'Search for Tomorrow' as a regular chore, there's really no conflict and I'm ready for a new career. I love the show and any misgivings I had about doing the same thing eight times a week are completely gone. Every audience is a different experience."

Oddly enough Larry Haines is not the actor listed in "A Thousand Clowns." His name is A. Larry Haines. When asked why he took on airs on Broadway and gave himself an extra initial the radio veteran said, "There's an Equity rule about names and it seems there is an actor named Larry Haines registered in the union so I was told to take another name. I had no intention of doing that, so I said as long as there's another Larry Haines I'll call myself A. Larry Haines. The 'A' stands for 'another.' "

TV Key Previews

Tonight's top television shows as previewed and selected by TV Key's staff of experts who attend rehearsals, watch screenings and analyze scripts in New York and Hollywood.

CAMPAIGN '62: Progress Report. Anchorman Walter Cronkite and eight of his colleagues try to add a bit of illustrative local color to their round-the-country campaign reports. For example, Charles Collingwood found an automatic question and answer machine as background for a report from the East; Hughes Rudd chose Jackson, Miss., as a sound-off place for the South; Dan Rather looks at the race in Texas from a spot on the Mexican border; etc. 7:30 p.m. CBS

PERRY COMO. Lena Horne and Carol Haney trigger the show tonight—Lena with her songs, "I've Grown Accustomed to His Face" and "I Concentrate On You;" Carol with her "Satin Doll" dance; and the two of them with a song and dance to a jazzy "Deed I Do." Also, there's an amusing bit from Don Adams and Jack Duffy on a new jazz beat "Bossa Nova," (it means new beat, incidentally), after instrumentalists Charlie Byrd and Stan Getz introduce it in "Desafinado." (Color) 9 p.m. NBC

DICK VAN DIKE. Another funny, warm episode. Writer Petrie's wife has a separate bank account and Petrie hopes her loot will be used for his upcoming birthday. Actor Van Dyke is very funny shooting about the house in his mile-a-minute style, looking for his expensive present. 9:30 p.m. CBS

TONIGHT. French actress Michele Morgan, duo pianists Ferrante and Teicher, and singer Felicia Saunders join host Johnny Carson tonight. (Color) 11:15 p.m. NBC.

"No Man Is an Island" one of the strangest and most thrilling stories to come out of World War II—a true life adventure that is almost unbelievable, comes to Loew's Route 35 Drive-In Theatre for four days starting Wednesday, Oct. 17. Filmed in color the picture co-stars Jeffrey Hunter, Marshall Thompson, Barbara Perez and Ronald Remy.

Kent Taylor, Lisa Montell and Valentin De Vargas, are co-featured in "The Firebrand," the second feature.

Two mighty adventure-thrill hits, "Son of Samson" and "The Last of the Vikings," both in color, form the double feature show for three days starting Sunday, Oct. 14. Mark Forest and Chelo Alonso are co-starred in the former picture with Cameron Mitchell and Edmund Purdom in the latter.

"Look at that riot of color - and the smell! Wonder how those people in California can stand one season all year long..."

TV Key Mailbag

By STEVEN H. SCHEUER

Question — I sure miss Carol Burnett on the "Garry Moore Show." The show is nothing without her. I can't understand why Moore doesn't get another girl on the show. There must be some talented comedienne who could make a hit if given half the chance. After all, that's how Carol Burnett got started . . . on Garry's show.—Mrs. H. M., Reese, Mich.

Answer — It seems odd that Moore hasn't signed a female regular for his show. At one time, half a dozen singer-comediennes were being mentioned as Carol Burnett's replacement on the show. Carol is scheduled to make at least six guest appearances with her old co-workers this season, in addition to two specials on the CBS network. She also recently signed to appear in a production next Fall.

Question — One of my favorite "meanies" on TV and in the movies is Neville Brand. I think he combines off-beat good looks with good acting. When is he going to have a show of his own? —L. F., Miami, Fla.

Answer—Brand gets more of an opportunity to play good meaty roles on many shows due to the fact he isn't tied down to a series of his own and probably prefers it that way.

Question — Is George Maharis secretly married? My girl friend says she heard that many young stars who make it big on TV with the teenage fans have to keep their marriages a secret so it won't hurt their popularity.—M. F., Santa Clara, Calif.

Answer — George is still a footloose and fancy free bachelor. Being an individualist and as outspoken as George is, I doubt that he would go along with keeping something like his marriage a secret just for publicity purposes.

Question — Who were the two actors who played in most of Maria Montez' movies during the forties? They both were dark and handsome. Also, what has happened to them?—J. N., New Haven, Conn.

Answer — The late Miss Montez most often appeared with either Jon Hall or Turhan Bey, or both. Jon Hall had a TV series "Ramar of the Jungle" while Mr. Bey has turned to directing foreign movies.

Control Yourself When A Headache Makes You Tense, Irritable

Take the Ingredients 3 out of 4 Doctors Recommend for Headache Pain. In Minutes — the Pain Goes, Also Its Tension and Irritability.

New York, N. Y. — It's a medical fact that pain from a tension headache can make people so irritable and highstrung they lose control of their tempers and take it out on those around them.

That's why tense, nervous headaches call for the stronger yet safer medication in Anacin®. Be sure it's Anacin you take because Anacin is like a doctor's prescription. That is, a combination of ingredients. Anacin goes to work instantly to relieve the pain and its tension and irritability. In minutes you feel 'great' — in control again and all without tranquilizers or narcotics of any kind.

Here's why Anacin gives such fast, long-lasting and more complete relief. Anacin is different and contains extra ingredients missing in aspirin and still missing with buffering. Extra ingredients which 3 out of 4 doctors recommend and which many doctors themselves take when they have headache pain.

It's this big difference in Anacin (the extra medication) that makes the big difference in the way you feel. Anacin Tablets contain no narcotics, do not form a habit or leave one depressed. They do not irritate or upset the stomach.

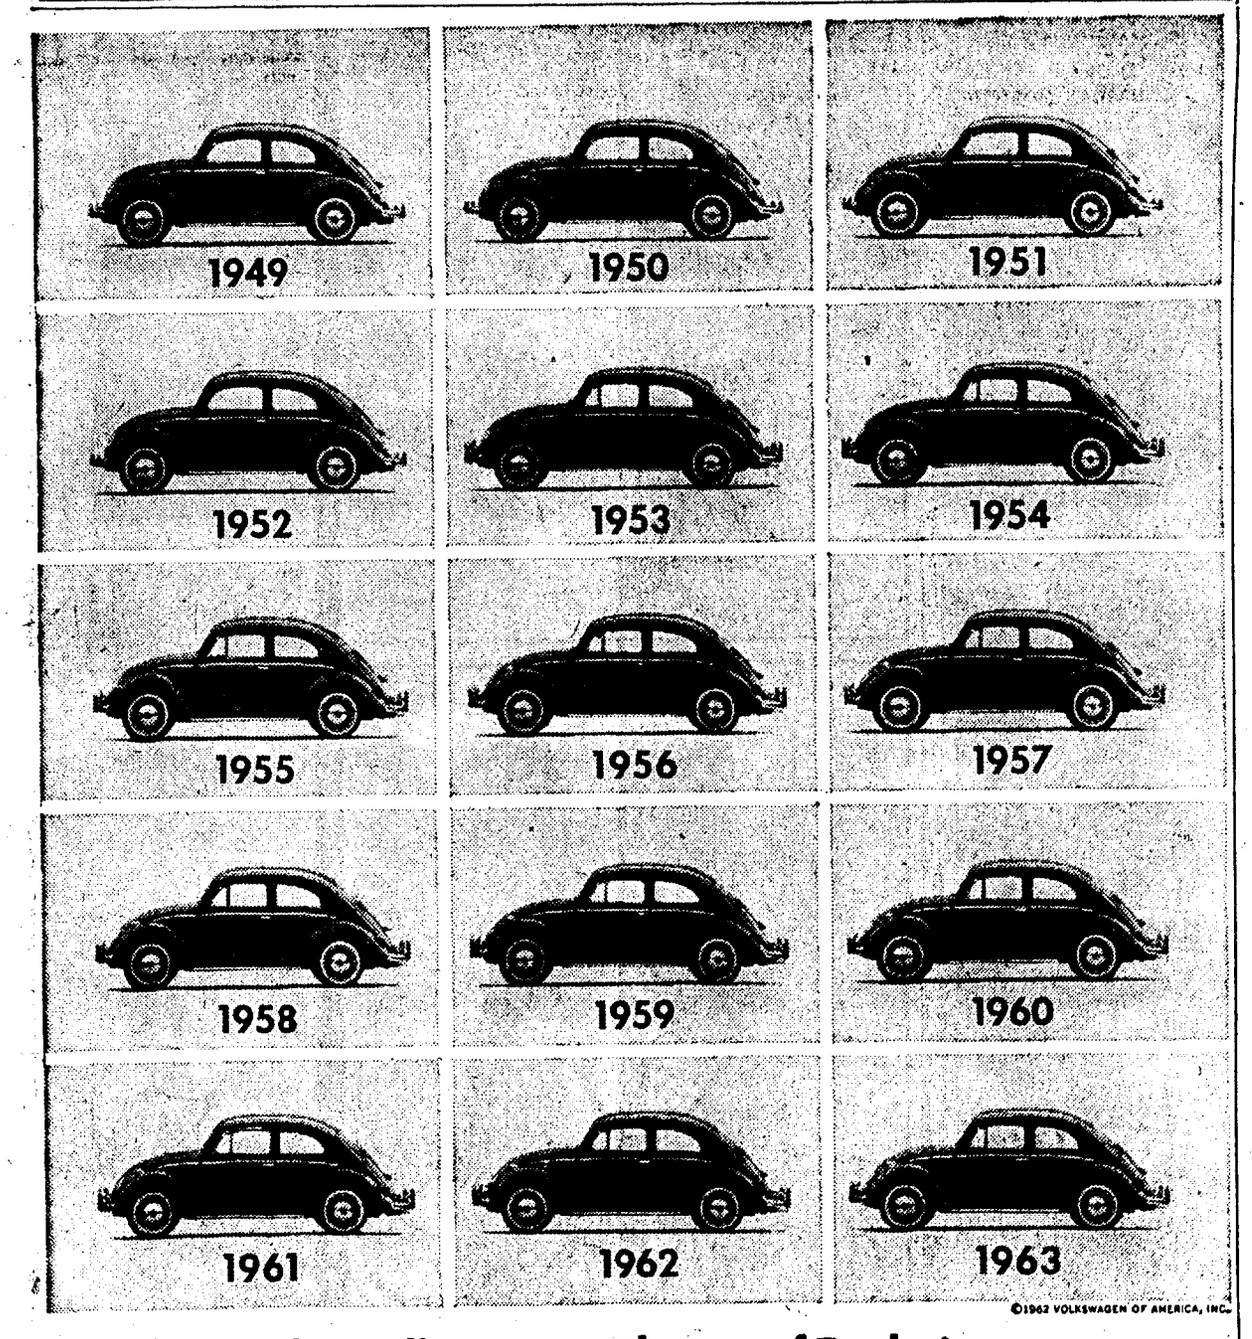

See if the stronger yet safer medication in Anacin doesn't work better for you!

The Volkswagen Theory of Evolution.

Can you spot the Volkswagen with the fins? Or the one that's bigger? Or smaller? Or the one with the fancy chrome work?

You can't?

The reason you can't see any revolutionary design changes on our car is simple: there aren't any.

Now, can you spot the Volkswagen with the synchromesh first gear? Or the one with the more efficient heater? How about the one with the anti-sway bar? Or the more powerful engine?

You can't?

The reason you can't see most of our evolutionary changes is because we've made them deep down inside the car.

And that's our theory: never change the Volkswagen for the sake of change, only to make it better.

That's what keeps our car ahead of its time. And never out of style.

Even if you aren't driving the most evolved VW of all.

Our '63.

Students and Schools Get Together Through College Clearing Houses

By G. K. HODENFIELD

There is a college crush. But no high school graduate who really wants to go to college need yet throw up his hands in despair.

Three nonprofit clearing houses have been established solely for the purpose of getting youngsters into colleges which have room for them. They are:

The College Admissions Center, 610 Church St., Evanston, Ill.

The Catholic College Admissions and Information Center, 500 Salisbury St., Worcester, Mass. This is operated primarily for Catholics but will help any non-Catholic interested in attending one of the 240 Catholic colleges in the country.

There also are a number of private counseling services designed to help students get into college. The great majority of them are ethical operations, such as Clarence E. Lovejoy, 1745 Broadway, New York City, and The College Clearing House, 799 Broadway, New York City, both of which offer counseling service in helping match student and college. Unortunately, a few fly-by-night operations designed primarily to separate the worried parent from his money have given the private firms something of a black eye.

Of the three nonprofit clearing houses, the College Admissions Center in Evanston is the largest and least expensive. Joe Jefferson, director of CAC, expects to process between 7,500 and 10,000 applications during the 1962-63 school year.

How CAC Works

The high school senior, or graduate, applies to the center. He is sent a registration form to be filled out and returned, along with a $10 fee, his high school transcript and two personal ratings, one each by a teacher, principal or counselor.

The registration form includes the applicant's preference as to type, size, and location of college, the academic program he wants to follow, his race, church preference and extracurricular activities.

This information is transferred to business machine punch cards, and matched with the specifications set forth by colleges which have notified the center they have or will have openings.

The result; the colleges get a made-to-order list of the type of students they want and can take.

The next step is up to the college. It writes the students it is interested in and invites them to apply for admission. This does not guarantee admission, but it does guarantee that the applicant's credentials will be made available to colleges that have space available.

The center does not provide individual counseling, nor does it tell students which colleges have room to spare.

Impressive Results

The 1961-62 figures, when availcenter had 2,387 applicants, and only 16 of them failed to get a bid from at least one college. Some heard from 50 or more. The 1961-62 figures, when available, probably will not be so impressive, said Jefferson.

"We had a larger number of applicants who had already flunked out of one college and were looking for a second chance," he said. "These are the least attractive youngsters to any admissions officer."

The smaller, lesser-known colleges find this type of placement service particularly helpful. But institutions using the center also include the University of Pittsburgh, Columbia University school of engineering, DePauw, Marquette, New York University, the University of Miami and St. John's College of Annapolis.

The College Admissions Assistance Center in New York operates on a somewhat similar plan, but is smaller, slightly more expensive, and requires better high school records of its applicants.

"ASTRO-GUIDE" By Ceean

For Thursday, October 18

Present—For You and Yours . . . This has been, and continues to be, a confusing week, with aspects swinging back and forth from favorable to adverse nearly every 24 hours. Today's outlook is on the bleak side, but your downhearted mood will pass quickly. Keep busy and think of others rather than of yourself.

Past . . . Life insurance took many forms in bygone years. One of these was an Italian association of 1650, called the Tintines. The group's members each contributed a sum of money to be distributed among survivors after a stated number of years.

Future . . . Three small electronic tubes could be the heart of a future spaceship-to-spaceship radar-communication system which would be immune to detection from earth. Super high frequency would give security to the system.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) Give in to a whim to buy something impractical. It'll boost your morale!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Gaiety is denoted, but don't try to "hog the show" at a party tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make amends for trouble you caused a friend. You are your own worst enemy.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) Even though your opinion is based on fact, don't try to convince others today.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Attend to personal matters—credit, buying, selling, etc. The outlook is excellent.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your emotions could mislead you again. Think twice before making a change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It isn't the amount of work you do that's valuable; it's the quality you turn out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Practice self-control, as wrong words or attitudes could cause hard feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If your job entails contacting the public, you should have fine results today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The accent is on work progress. Stay overtime on the job if necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Proceed with confidence. You can cope with any obstacles that arise now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Aspects are fine for making short journeys, calling on old friends, etc.

Thomas Leaves Recreation Post

LITTLE SILVER — Mayor Charles W. Stephens Monday announced the resignation of Philip Thomas, chairman of the recreation committee, and asked Borough Council to consider a replacement.

Mr. Thomas had asked to be relieved of his duties because of business pressure earlier this year, but was persuaded to remain in his post through the summer, Mayor Stephens said.

One of the first tasks facing Mr. Thomas' successor will be the consideration of an ordinance creating and governing a recreation committee. Such a measure is being studied by Borough Council.

Recreation Unit Plans Are Listed

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — The Township Recreation Committee plans to build a municipal swimming pool at the new Recreation Center on West Park Ave., Republican Committeeman Forrest L. Gillespie said yesterday.

Mr. Gillespie told fellow Republican candidates at a picnic at the center that the Recreation Committee had been exploring the idea of a municipal pool for several months. Democrats who called for a municipal pool in a campaign leaflet distributed last week apparently were trying to steal the recreation unit's thunder, Mr. Gillespie said.

Mr. Gillespie's disclosure came at a picnic sponsored by the township Republican Club primarily for newly registered voters.

Some 150 persons attended. On hand to greet them were Rep. James C. Auchincloss and the four township GOP candidates—Mr. Gillespie and his running mate, Attorney Sidney Leichter, Assessor Florence E. Moor and Deputy Clerk Marie K. Jones, who is running for township clerk.

Mr. Gillespie said it was no secret that the Recreation Committee is planning for a pool at the center. He noted that this was mentioned Saturday in a speech by George Ovitt, committee secretary, at ceremonies dedicating the center.

Blame GOP For Lack Of Sidewalks

MIDDLETOWN — Martin V. Lawlor, Democratic candidate for Township Committee, charged yesterday that the Republican administration is "derelict in its duty in not providing sidewalks on all major roads in the community."

Mr. Lawlor said a program has been started to construct sidewalks only at the insistence of Earl Moody, the lone Democrat on the committee.

The candidate said there was no valid excuse for lack of sidewalks, and said the cost of such a program could easily be met in one budget.

He charged that the taxpayers must now bear the cost of such a program when the township should have forced developers to build the walks when such projects abutted major roads.

He said the land subdivision ordinance now requires sidewalks, but that this was a typical case of "too little too late."

School Heads Invite Buyers To Make Tour

FAIR HAVEN — School officials of New Shrewsbury yesterday told members of Multiple Listing Associates of Monmouth County of their municipal area's educational advantages and invited visits by prospective residents.

The associates, staff members of leading real estate organizations, heard talks by George C. Malone, superintendent of schools, and Louis A. Steinmuller, secretary of the Board of Education of the Tinton Falls Schools.

Today, the associates will be addressed by J. Lester Rigby, head of Rigby Associates, a New Shrewsbury real estate firm, and the borough's former mayor, on the advantages of New Shrewsbury as a place to live.

In yesterday's talks, Mr. Malone and Mr. Steinmuller contended that the Tinton Falls district, encompassing schools in New Shrewsbury that also serve the pupils of Shrewsbury Township, has stabilized a school system as good as can be found anywhere in the area and said that the system requires high standards of preparation on the part of its teaching staff.

Mr. Malone said the present enrollment of 1,660 pupils is due to rise by 120 by 1965. While some 500 pupils now study on split-session periods in the schools, all will be in single-session classes before the end of the year because of the construction of 12 new classrooms at Swimming River School. Even now, he said, there are no educational fundamentals being missed as a result of split-sessions.

Mr. Steinmuller said the curriculum in New Shrewsbury's schools is rated as excellent on the state level. He invited anyone to visit the schools at any time and witness both the high standards of teaching and the high morale shown by members of the teaching staff.

Schirra Gets Merit Badge

ORADELL (AP) — "You're the first person ever to get this difficult award."

So said Boy Scouts Ronnie Neilson and Allan Gilbert as they presented Walter M. Schirra, Jr., the man who orbited the earth six times, with an astronaut merit badge Monday.

That apparently made Schirra's feat official.

The Scouts also presented Schirra with troop neckerchiefs in a ceremony at a new borough park named after the astronaut.

Bell Heads Troop 32

RIVER PLAZA — The committee for Boy Scout Troop 32 met last week at the home of Sidney Bell, Carpenter St., who has accepted the role of scoutmaster for the balance of the 1962-63 season.

Junior assistant scout leaders appointed were Charles Wilber, William McKinnon and Michael DiVernieri; senior patrol leader, Guy Safino, and patrol leaders, William Long, Thomas Thompson, Emmett Walling, Bernard Homefield and Ray Rebscher.

John Fenton, committeeman, is in charge of arrangements for a trip to the Princeton-Colgate football game Saturday.

Mr. Bell announced that an overnight camping trip to the troop's campside at Cassville will be held soon.

Meetings are held each Thursday at 7 p.m. in the all-purpose room of the school.

Cincinnati Surveys Its TV Teaching

CINCINNATI (AP) — Television teaching hasn't enabled Cincinnati to cut down on the number of teachers it needs, according to a research study of TV teaching made here.

"However," says Wendell Pierce, superintendent of city schools, "we view television as a plus value in the classroom.

"Looking at the future of education and the vast amount of knowledge to be acquired, mechanical devices will have to be used if we are going to have quality education."

Pierce said the study nailed down three ways classroom TV can help teachers:

1. In some science classes, chiefly biology and chemistry, it gives the student a better view of demonstration experiments.

2. It can show classes things not readily available — like an atomic airplane.

3. TV can help show teachers how to do a better job, and how to develop certain skills in instruction.

Pierce said television teaching was most effective in classes

2. TV can help show teachers how to do a beter jo ,band how

The research started in 1956 to compare TV-taught pupils with those given regular classroom instruction in science courses and driver training.

Analysis showed a few surprises. Pierce said:

"The older pupils at higher grade levels and the most capable ones at all grade levels did better in the TV classes — but they preferred conventional instruction.

"Younger pupils and less capable ones in all grades liked television, but they achieved more in regular classes."

Pierce said televisio nteaching was most effective in classe where pupils were grouped by ability and had telecasts designed expressly for them.

He noted, however, "Pupils generally preferred to listen than to participate when questions were asked by the television teacher during the telecast. The most capable students strongly preferred inactive viewing."

Pierce said pupils from TV-taught classes recalled about the same amount of subject matter as those from conventional classes when tested two years later.

On Panel At Congress Of Surgeons

LONG BRANCH — Dr. George T. Whittle, an associate physician in Monmouth Medical Center's department of urology, is a panelist at the annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons in Atlantic City this week.

Dr. Whittle spoke Monday on "Ureteral Injuries and their Sequelae: Diagnosis and Management."

Dr. Whittle is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a diplomate of the American Board of Urology. A graduate of Princeton University and the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, he has offices in Asbury Park and this city and resides here.

Newark Man Fined $175 on 2 Charges

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Thomas Sloban, 63 Poe Ave., Newark, drew $175 in fines from Magistrate Irving B. Zeichner Monday on charges of disturbing the peace and resisting arrest.

He was fined $125 for resisting arrest and $50 for creating the disturbance. The complaints were signed by Patrolmen William McLaughlin and Richard Davis. He was arrested in Charlie's Bar, First Ave., on Sept. 30.

Mrs. Alice Knowles, Homestead Inn, this place, was fined $200 and had her driver's license revoked for two years on a charge of drunk driving.

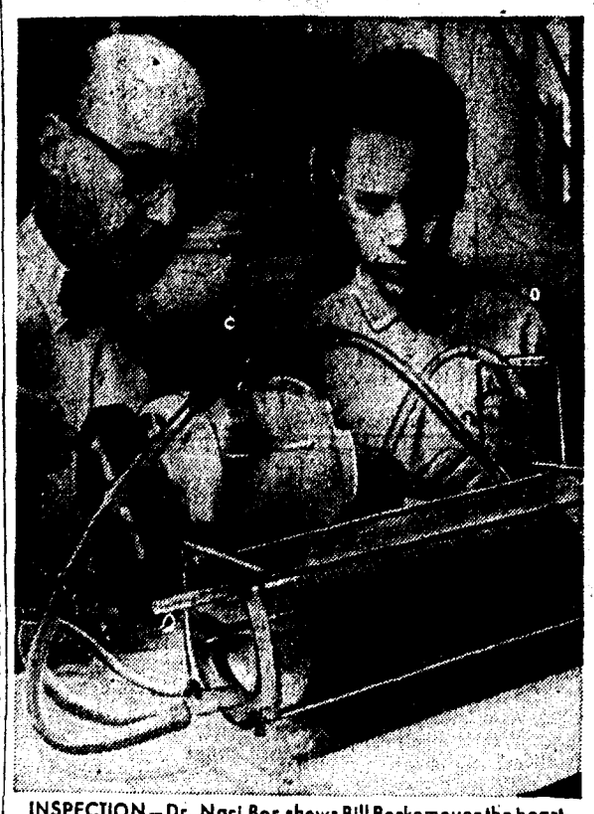

She was arrested on Aug. 15 and was examined by Dr. Francesco De Robbio, Leonardo, who ruled that she was under the influence of alcohol and unfit to operate a car.

15-Year-Old Builds Heart-Lung Machine

ATLANTA (AP) — Bill Beckemeyer's heart-lung machine, with its washing machine motor, may never be used in major surgery, but it will be no insult to Bill.

The 15-year-old boy, who put together the marvelous machine with odds and ends and the guidance of an Emory University professor, says he just like to build things.

Dr. Naci Bor, an assistant professor of physiology at Emory, says Bill's machine functions properly. It was built for less than $100, and Bor said Emory University has a commercial heart-kidney-lung machine which cost about $10,000.

INSPECTION—Dr. Naci Bor shows Bill Beckemeyer the heart-kidney-lung machine at Emory University. Bill, who is 15, built a heart-lung machine from odds and ends, with Dr. Bor's advice.

Bill fascinated with machinery, went to Emory five or six times, but most of his conversation with Bor was on the telephone. He built the machine in his father's workshop.

"I guess I have a right unusual family," says Bill. "We all like to build things and we all have hobbies. We don't even have a television set. We're just too busy to watch."

At W. F. Dykes High School where Bill is a sophomore he is taking a course in general biology and making mostly Bs and Cs. "I guess I'm just an average student," he says. "I don't do real outstanding, but I don't have too much trouble with my grades."

Bill met Dr. Bor at a high school science exhibit at the Southeastern Fair Atlanta. Bor said that of more than 700 youngsters who visited the exhibit, Bill was the only one to ask questions.

"I asked him how he would like to build a heart-lung machine," Bor said. "I suppose I was really half joking, but Bill called me the next day. I certainly enjoyed working with him."

Bor said he only gave advice, and Bill did all the work.

AUTOMATIC controls are easily set for exact cooking results. Simply put in the food, then forget it. Your electric range will have your meal ready on time, precisely as you planned it.

COOL cooking comfort is the rule with a flameless electric range. Practically all the heat is concentrated on cooking utensils and retained in the oven.

ECONOMICAL—electric precision cooking saves vitamins and minerals, saves cleaning time and money, and cooking costs are low—the average for a family of four is only $2.00 per month.

CONTROLLED heat for electric surface cooking, baking, broiling and roasting insures the best results every time.

CLEAN flameless electric cooking creates no fuel grime to foul up the range, utensils, or settle on curtains and walls.

FAST—surface units are as fast as heat itself but without flame. Broilers and ovens attain desired temperatures almost at the setting of the controls.

FLAMELESS—no flame or fumes to worry about, no burners to get out of adjustment, no pilot lights to blow out.

Allen-Scott Report

George Ball Being Criticized

By ROBERT ALLEN AND PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON—The way Undersecretary George Ball is proceeding, his tenure as the No. 2 official of the State Department is likely to be as short-lived as that of his predecessor — former Connecticut Governor Chester Bowles.

Allen

In high congressional and administration quarters, Ball is incurring increasing criticism and disapproval.

Congressional leaders are wrathy because of his persistent soft-pedaling of the huge Russian military build-up in Cuba — despite the growing mass of indisputable evidence to the contrary.

Influential administrationites are souring on Ball because of his bossy and opinionated preachments and methods. This has caused sharp clashes between him and members of the White House staff; in one sizzling instance with Myer Feldman, deputy special counsel to the President and one of his most trusted aides.

Scott

The last of Ball's wrangling with Congress over Cuba is far from over. So far this has been largely backstage, but the next round may be public fireworks.

Representative Paul Kitchin, D-N.C., chairman of a special committee investigating Soviet arms shipments to Cuba, plans to further interrogate Ball about that. At a previous meeting, his blandly soothing account of these massive shipments was caustically challenged, particularly by Representative James Fulton, R-Pa., who had just returned from a first-hand trip to the Navy's big base at Guantanamo.

The Kitchin probers are assembling a large and detailed file on what the Communists are doing in Cuba, and Ball is slated to be grilled on that.

Heartily backing Kitchin are two of the most powerful leaders in Congress — Representative Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee that writes all revenue legislation, and Senator Harry Bird, D-Va., head of the Finance Committee that has jurisdiction in his chamber over these measures.

They sardonically refer to Ball as "the world's foreign trade ambassador with headquarters in Washington."

It was Ball's brusque meddling in a foreign trade bill overwhelmingly passed by Congress that caused the angry row between him and "Mike" Feldman, who was a member of the President's staff long before he went to the White House.

British Bicycles

This measure plugs up a tariff loophole under which British middleweight bicycles are flooding the U.S. to the serious loss of domestic manufacturers, a number of them in the President's home state. Although the bill was enacted by Congress without a single dissenting vote, it had no sooner reached the White House than the State Department strongly recommended a veto.

This was urged on the ground the legislation would hurt relations with Britain. The British ambassador vigorously supported this stand with a formal protest of the bill.

The President instructed Feldman to obtain the views of Representative Mills and other congressional leaders.

Mills pointed out the legislation is entirely corrective for the purpose of plugging a tariff loophole that the British are using to unload thousands of medium-weight (over 36 pounds) bicycles in this country. Mills cited an earlier tariff ruling that gave Britain a big advantage in exporting light-weight bicycles.

Told To Back-Pedal

"The sole intent of this measure," declared Mills, "is to afford some safeguard for the American bicycle industry. When Congress votes unanimously for legislation of this kind, there obviously is urgent need for it."

Agreeing fully with Mills, Feldman advised the President to sign the bill.

This recommendation had hardly been made, when Ball phoned Feldman and demanded, "What do you think you're doing in telling the President to sign the bicycle meaure? You couldn't be more wrong. You've got to backpedal on this one."

"I don't see it that way at all," replied Feldman. "The entire U.S. bicycle industry is at stake. I've gone into this matter very thoroughly, and I am convinced of that. I don't propose to see that industry destroyed in order to increase British bicycle sales. The plain fact is the British are distorting our tariff law to their benefit."

An Angry Roar

"But you must consider the British situation in the light of the European Common Market problem," argued Ball. "There is a great deal at stake in those negotiations. If the President signs this bill, those negotiations will be much more difficult. As you know, the British ambassador has filed a very strong protest against this measure."

"I know," said Feldman, "and I also know it's about time you started looking at some of these problems from our point of view for a change. In fact, I might ask when are you going to apply for American citizenship?"

This blistering sally brought an angry roar from Ball, followed by his slamming down the phone. Feldman hasn't heard from him since.

The President has until next Monday to act on the bill.

SIGNIFICANT WARNING — Senator Byrd and Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Hubert Humphrey, Minn., have bluntly warned Ball they expect the State Department to fully protect U.S. interests in the forthcoming negotiations on trade agreements under the new trade liberalization act Congress passed at the President's behest. Said Byrd, "We expect our negotiators to protect the interests of our country and not those of 'world interests'." And Senator Humphrey told Ball, "In considering the interests of other countries in negotiating trade agreements, it is essential that our negotiators keep always in mind that their first interests are those of American producers and farmers."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that will conduct an investigation of foreign lobbyists after the Nov. 6 election, has a report showing Ball received more than $270,000 as lobbyist for Cuban sugar growers and mill owners — making him the highest-paid foreign sugar lobbvist on record. The report, compiled by the staff of the committee from oficial records, reveals that Ball hired more than a score of other lawyers in his massive lobbying drive in Congress some eight years ago.

Yankees Win 20th World Series

Ralph Terry Magnificent In Beating Giants, 1-0, in Finale

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — Ralph Terry, home run ball goat of 1960 in Pittsburgh, pitched the proud New York Yankees to their 20th world championship yesterday with a magnificent 1-0 four-hitter against San Francisco in a tingling seventh game.

The battling Giants struggled to the final out when Willie McCovey lined a sizzler to Bobby Richardson with men on second and third.

Terry a boyishly handsome young man from Big Cabin, Okla., retired the first 17 Giants he faced until Jack Sanford, his pitching rival for the third time, singled to right center with two out in the sixth.

This was the same Terry who threw the home run ball to Bill Mazeroski in the final game at Forbes Field in 1960. The 26-year-old right-hander was superb in this blue ribbon effort. Going into the ninth he had a two-hitter.

The 43,948 fans at wind-swept Candlestick Park rose to their feet and chanted "Go, Go, Go" in football style as the Giants came up for their last fling in this first World Series in San Francisco history.

Matty Alou, pinch hitting for relief pitcher Billy O'Dell, dropped a beautiful drag bunt toward Bobby Richardson and beat it out for a base hit. There was that big run, sitting on first base with nobody out.

Felipe Alou, Matty's older brother, tried to bunt once but fouled the first pitch, swung on the second pitch and finally struck out. The missed bunt proved fatal.

After Chuck Hiller struck out Willie Mays came through with a smash to the right field corner, good for two bases. Matty Alou raced to third and — taking no chances — stopped when Roger Maris' throw to Richardson was relayed promptly to Elston Howard at the plate.

Ralph Houk, the Yankee manager, came out to talk to his pitcher with McCovey, a 6-4, 200-pound left-handed slugger, next at bat. McCovey had hit a towering home run off Terry in the second game.

McCovey swung from his heels and delivered a long foul that the wind helped swerve into the right field stands. Terry, pitching carefully, threw once more. The ball rocketed back at Richardson, almost toppling the little second baseman, but he held on and the ball game was over.

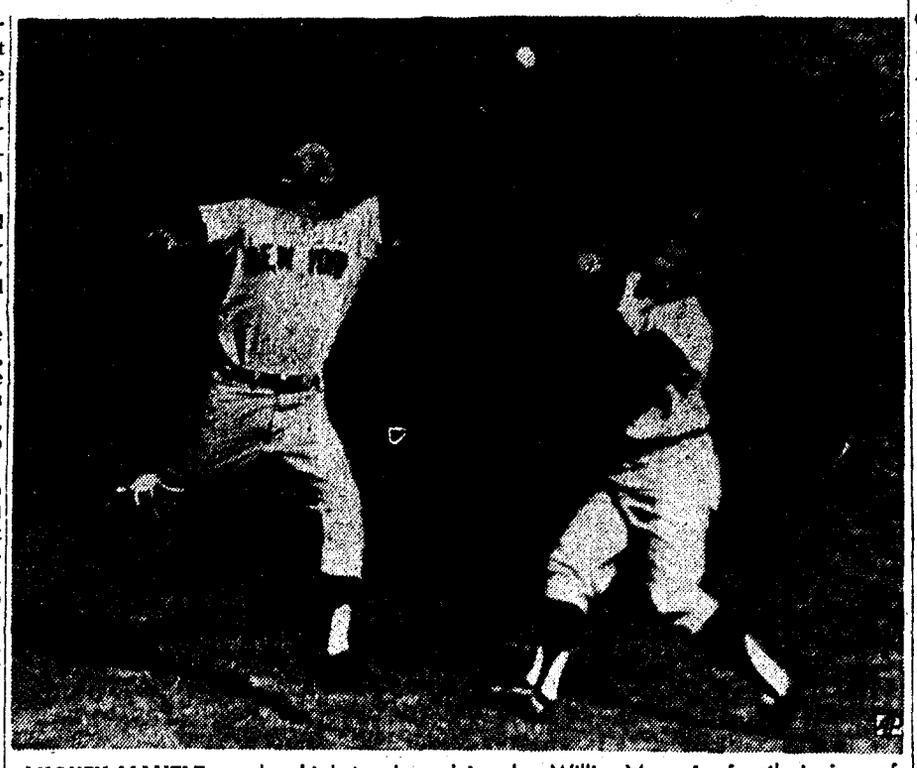

A foot — or maybe six inches — either way — and they would have been dancing in the street at Market and Power last night.

The lone run of this well-pitched final game was scored in the fifth with Bill Skowron coming home while the Giant infield completed a double play on Tony Kubek's smash to short.

Sanford had been throwing goose eggs, too, although his control was off and he was struggling. In the third the Yanks had men on first and second with two out but Sanford escaped when Tom Tresh grounded out.

Skowron opened the fifth with a ground single to left, the second Yankee hit. Clete Boyer promptly followed with a single to left center, moving the Moose to third.

Sanford then made his fatal error, walking Terry on four straight pitches. That loaded the bases with nobody out. If he had retired Terry, the subsequent double play by Kubek would have eased him out of the inning instead of yielding the only run.

MICKEY MANTLE reaches high to glove drive by Willie Mays in fourth inning of seventh World Series game. Coming in to assist is right fielder Roger Maris. (AP Wirephoto)

The Yanks finally got rid of Sanford in the eighth when a bad throw by Jose Pagan on Richardson's grounder, a single by Tom Tresh off Pagan's knee, and a right field single by Mickey Mantle loaded the bases with nobody out.

Alvin Dark, Giant Manager, sent for O'Dell, a lefy, and he turned in a brilliant relief job. O'Dell made Roger Maris force Richardson at the plate and then got out of the inning on Elston Howard's double play grounder to Jim Davenport. O'Dell needed only five pitches, all strikes, to escape.

The stiff wind, between 25 and 35 miles an hour blew all afternoon while the Giants lofted fly balls into the gale. Of the 27 Giant outs, 19 were on fly balls, including five fouls, and four struck out. There were only four ground ball outs.

The victory meant a difference of about $4,000 to each Yankee and Giant. Although official cuts are not announced until later by the office of Commissioner Ford Frick, on the basis of 30 shares for each, a Yankee would take home about $12,000 and a Giant about $8,000. There was $362,578.32 to be divided among the winners and $241,718.88 among the losers, a difference of $120,859.44.

This was the Yanks' 20th World Series triumph in 27 classics and the Giants' 10th defeat in 15 series. Not since 1922 have the Giants beaten the Yanks, who hold a 5-2 edge in their private rivalry that used to be a "Subway Series" but now means a coast-to-coast jet run.

Proving once more that baseball is a game of inches, a sensational running catch by Tresh on Mays' curling wind-blown drive to left save the ball game in the seventh. The next hitter, McCovey, then lashed a long triple to deepest center.

Tresh said he caught the ball in the web of his glove.

After Tresh made contact with that ball he disappeared from view of the press box in the foul corner in left. Umpire Ken Burkhart, working the foul line, gave the "out" sign.

Terry Thanks God for Second Opportunity, Praises Yankees

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Thank God for the second opportunity. Seldom does a man get a second chance. I'll be eternally grateful."

Ralph Terry's hazel eyes welled up and his voice choked as he spoke with deep feeling of his brilliant four-hit 1-0 World Series triumph over the San Francisco Giants yesterday which brought another World Series championship to the New York Yankees.

"I'm the luckiest man in the country," said the 26-year-old right-hander. "This has to be the greatest game I have ever pitched. More than that, this is a personal triumph for me. It wipes away two years of worry, two years of doubt."

The reference was obvious to most of the reporters crowding around the good-looking, slender Oklahoman. Terry has never forgotten his "goat" role in the 1960 World Series. It was he who threw a home run ball to Bill Mazeroski in the ninth inning of the final game that gave the Pittsburgh Pirates the world championship.

"I've tried to forget it, but people just wouldn't let me," he said. "People were always reminding me of it.

"Only this morning I got an anonymous letter from a fan in Pittsburgh. He reminded me of that home run ball I threw to Mazeroski and said he was looking for me to throw another one like it today."

Terry said even so he had almost forgotten that fateful afternoon of Oct. 13, 1960, when Mazeroski caught hold of his fast ball and drove it over the left field fence in Pittsburgh, only to be reminded of it by the fans this afternoon.

"I could hear people yelling at me in the stands, especially late in the game," he said, "One fan shouted, "Hey, Terry, where's the home run ball?' Then I heard another yell, Watch out, Terry, here comes Mazeroski."

If the taunts bother him, Terry gave no indication. As a matter of fact, they may have made him more determined.

The slender, frail-looking pitcher who carries 180 pounds on his 6-3 frame, was magnificent as he mowed down the first 17 batters to face him. It was not until Jack Sanford, his rival moundsman, singled with two out in the sixth that he allowed a Giant runner to reach base.

"I was aware I had a perfect game going for me," Terry said. "In fact, I even got to thinking, in the back of my mind, of Don Larsen's perfect World Series game a few years back.

"But I tried not to think too much abut it. When I came out to pitch the sixth inning, I said to myself, 'Forget the no-hitter. Keep your mind on the game. The game's the thing.'

"I didn't want to become hit conscious. When you get that way, you tend to become too careful and you wind up walking the hitter. I could hardly afford that, with only the barest of leads."

Terry credited his fast ball and slider with keeping the heavy Giant hitters at bay through most of the game. It was not until the ninth that the Giants were able to threaten seriously. In that inning, the Giants had runners on second and third with two out when Willie McCovey drove a liner right into the glove of second baseman Bobby Richardson to end the game.

A leadoff bunt single by pinch hitter Matty Alou and a two-out double by Willie Mays had Terry in trouble and brought manager Ralph Houk out of the dugout.

"Houk asked me if I still had my control and I nodded," said Terry. "Then he said: 'first base is open. Cepeda follow McCovey. Who would you rather pitch to?' I told him I felt I could get McCovey out."

Terry made two pitches to McCovey. The left-handed slugger drove a long foul on the first pitch and ended the game on the next.

"The first pitch was a curve," explained Terry. "He didn't hit it very good. Then I tried to jam him. He hit a good pitch good. The rest was in somebody else's hands.

"I was lucky. Had he lifted it, it might have gone out of here. but I want to stress, I got the pitch where I wanted it. It was a good pitch. Not like the one I threw Mazeroski. That was a bad pitch. I wanted to keep the ball low then, but I got it high, right across the letters."

Terry heaped credit upon his teammates for their defensive support.

"I'm grateful to Tresh (left-fielder Tommy Tresh) and to Maris (right-fielder Roger Maris) for their help," He said. "Tommy made a great catch of Willie Mays' drive to the left field corner in the seventh and Maris made a great play on Mays' double in the ninth. If Rog hadn't fielded the ball as quickly as he did, that guy (Matty Alou) would have scored."

Baltimore Slices Roster to 35

BALTIMORE, (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles cut their roster to 35 Monday by assigning five players to Rochester of the International League.

Two pitchers, John Papa and Steve Cosgrove, were sent down last night. Earlier in the day, pitchers Dick Luebke and Jim Lehew and shortstop Mickey McGuire were assigned.

Papa, 22, spent most of the 1962 season on a six-month hitch with the U. S. Army. He joined the Orioles on his release but pitched only one inning.

Cosgrove, 19, worked out with the Birds in spring training but spent the season at Appleton, Wis., in the Class D Midwest League.

Montclair State Overcomes Monmouth in Soccer, 5-3

WEST LONG BRANCH —Montclair State College overcame a 3-2 Monmouth College lead in the final 24 minutes of play to defeat the Hawks, 5-3, in soccer on the losers' field yesterday.

The victory evened Montclair's record at 3-3 while the setback was Monmouth's fifth straight this season.

Monmouth moved out to a 1-0 lead in the first quarter as Vin Irazzi rammed home a goal from 20 feet out with 9:15 gone.

Montclair bounced back with two goals in the second quarter for a 2-1 lead at the half. Sam Turner tallied the first at the 19:43 mark on a penalty shot and Dave Rapel scored 12 seconds later from five yards out.

Irazzi tied it up for the losers with a marker at the 13:15 mark in the third stanza. Approximately three minutes later Monmouth took its second lead in the match on a 10-footer by Bob Johnson.

Turner came back with his second goal for the winners with less than two minutes left in the third quarter. His goal came on a free kick.

Burt Wasserman provided the winning tallies for Montclair in the final 22 minutes of action. He rammed home his first last period goal with 1:22 gone, scoring from 15 feet out. His final goal came on a 12-foot boot with approximately one minute left in the match. His second tally iced the win.

Sterling Moss Set For Eye Operation

LONDON, (AP)—Stirling Moss is set for an eye operation in another step back to the motor racing circuit.

The 33-year-old British speed ace, seriously injured in a racing crash last April, said Monday "one eye needs to be lifted a little because it is further down in its socket than the other.

"When it is lifted, both eyes will be on the same level, and it will be easier to look to the left and right."

He did not say which eye will be lifted.

Moss is driving automobiles again but said recently he is not ready yet to race.

MARSHALL RELEASED

PITTSBURGH, (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said Monday they have given first baseman outfielder Jim Marshall his outright release so he can play with the Chunichi Dragons of the Japanese Central League.

Marshall, obtained from the New York Mets earlier this year, appeared in 55 games for the Pirates and batted .220.

Hawk Sailors Runner-up to Princeton

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS—The host Monmouth College Sailing Club placed second behind Princeton University in a Middle Atlantic Sailing Association intercollegiate regatta on Sandy Hook Bay Sunday.

The regatta was originally scheduled for Oct. 7, but was postponed until Oct. 14 due to high winds and dangerous conditions on the original date.

Princeton scored 36 points to take over-all honors. The Hawk sailors were second with 31 points. Rutgers was third with 25 and Manhattanville, fourth, with 20 points. Iona College was entered, but did not compete.

Monmouth's A Division skipper was Chuck Gunderson, with crew Bob Chuy. The pair tallied 18 points.

Cathy Isakensen skippered the B Division entry, with Joan Spaeth as crew. The "B" team totaled 13 points.

The races were sailed in Jet 14's furnished by Monmouth.

The West Long Branch college will next see action Oct. 21 when they travel to Princeton to engage in a New Jersey Area regatta on Lake Carnegie against five other Garden State colleges.

Monmouth hosts a hexagonal regatta on Sandy Hook Bay Oct. 28. Lehigh, Manhattanville, Swarthmore, Villanova and Webb will test the Hawk sailors.

Undefeated Timber Chasers In Monmouth County Hunt Meet

MIDDLETOWN — Luring the best field in recent years, the 32d running of the Monmouth County Hunt Cup highlights the annual fall racing program sponsored by the Monmouth County Hunt Racing Association.

Scheduled Saturday on estate of Mr. and Mrs. Amory L. Haskell, the one-day charity meeting is open to the public. Gates open at 11 a.m., with a 2:30 p.m. post time set for the first of five diversified races.

Making a racing debut at Fair Hill, Md., in September, Sir George won the $2,500 Cecil County Steeplechase and later followed with a victory in the Western Pennsylvania Hunt Cup during the Rolling Rock session at Ligonier, Pa. An Irish-bred 'chaser, Flying Cottage was victorious in the Sandhills Cup at Southern Pines, N. C., last spring and an easy winner of the Rose Tree Hunter Challenge Cup at Media, Pa., last Saturday.

Others named for the gruelling race with a record purse of $2,000, due to financial assistance from the United Hunts Racing Association are Edmund G. Miller's Box Turtle, Unionville, Pa.; Randolph D. Christian Brothers Edges Marist in X-Country, 25-30

ELIZABETH — Sophomore Johnny Eager led the Christian Brothers Academy, Lincroft, cross country team to a 25-30 victory over a stubborn Marist, Bayonne, squad yesterday at Warinanco Park here.

The win gave the Colts a record of six wins in seven meets. The lone defeat came from St. Peter's, New Brunswick, which is rated the top Catholic school team in the state.

The Marist team, paced by ace Russ Dorn, was in contention all the way. At the mile mark, the field was tightly bunched with less than 10 yards between the front runner, CBA's Jim Francfort, and the 12th man.

At this point, Eager and teammate Tom McKnight took the lead and gradually increased it to approximately 30 yards over Dorn at the two-mile mark. The Colts had Ed Kelsey and Jerry Brown following at a close distance and seemed to be in control of the meet.

Entering the stadium, Eager moved away to win by 50 yards over Dorn, who had passed McKnight. Kelsey and Brown finished strong to take fifth and sixth place, respectively. John Homlisch held on to save 10th place for CBA.

Eager's time for the 2½-mile race was an excellent 12:30.

The Jayvee race was a romp, as CBA took the first nine places for a 15-50 runaway. Joe McGuinness, returning to action after a three-week layoff, won by 200 yards over teammate Bill Seaton with CBA's Kevin Sullivan in third place.

McGuinness' time for the varsity course was 13:40.

"Hy" Spotting Sports

By Hy Cunningham

COMES SATURDAY IT WILL BE TIME TO GET out the color film, dust off the picnic basket, check the full mark on the flask and then hope it doesn't rain. This is always the last day of horse racing for the year in Monmouth County, when the Monmouth County Hunt Racing Association conducts its 32d running of the meet.

Numerous racing fans will attend, but will be unhappy because this is a meet where no wagering is alowed. If there happens to be a "bookie" in attendance, don't get caught being "booked" with him, that is police wise.

The law says "no betting." This certainly seems silly seeing that Monmouth Park, Garden State, Atlantic City and Freehold Raceway are, more or less, huge "bookie" shops. Maybe there is no betting because the state would wind up with most of the profit, and members of the meet run this one for charity. Figure it out, we certainly can't.

Amory L. Haskell — Everett Wilson

Then again there are others attending who probably wouldn't know the difference between a parlay or a show bet. And you can add win or place, too, if you wish. However, this lack of knowledge of pari-mutuel betting won't stand in the way of Hunt Meet fans when it comes time to take off for Amory L. Haskell's estate in Middletown Township to watch the "timber ponies" jump and run.

There are numerous hunt meet fans who will save the afternoon in order to enjoy the beauty of the foliage around the estate this time of the season. The color is truly a sight. There are the fans who will be unhappy about missing the Princeton-Colgate game at the Tiger's gridiron on the same date. Add the Yale-Cornell game at New Haven, plus the Harvard-Columbia game. All will lose a few customers.

The Haskell estate forms a natural setting for the meet. Spectators gather on the hilside just as if they were sitting in the balcony of a huge theater. It is a fine place to enjoy horse racing, and the "ponies" only disappear out of sight for a short time. The course is beautifuly laid out and certainly is quite an improvement from the early days when Mr. Haskell and the late Eddie Feakes walked around the estate and turned a Haskell idea into a reality.

Over the years, the meet has grown in popularity, and not for racing alone. Fans arrive early at the estate. The reason for this is because the estate is a popular picnic ground on this day. Parents load family means of transportation with kids and food baskets and something to keep "pop" from getting thirsty.

Charity-minded Monmouth Park also co-operates in making the show a success. In fact, M.P. personnel make it possible for the racing to be held. An important spoke in the wheel from that keeps his gang busy carting whatever is needed plant is Superintendent Everett Wilson. Wilson from the local race track to the Middletown course. Wilson has the crew busy preparing for, and busy on the cleanup detail. Monmouth's crew is an experienced one when it comes to brush jumps. Monmouth has its own hurdle season.

Suburbanites enjoy themselves, but the farmers have a "ball" all of their own. Mr. Haskell is host to the farmers who allow hunters to chase fox over their lands. These gentlemen and their families beat the racing fans through the gate for their day as honored guests. Members of the hunt association are on hand to greet the hard-working soil toilers in appreciation of the times the hunters crack their timbers throughout the county.

Even the veteran gentleman of horse racing, Edward J. Brennan, Monmouth Park's general manager, is put to work. Mr. Brennan is chairman of the racing committee. Mr. Haskell heads the hunt committee, and Mrs. Amory L. Haskell, Jr., does a tremendous job as meet secretary-treasurer, Phil Iselin, another Monmouth Park official, also pitches in to help make this a successful charity event.

On the Gridiron

By Colonel Earl H. (Red) Blaik

College football, at the stadium or on TV, is bogged down by bookkeeping. Under the present rules, group (two or more) substitutions are restricted to two a period, although wild-card (single) replacements can be sent in at will. It is the checking of the group substitutions, usually three platoons shuttling in and out, that bores spectators, adds 10 to 15 minutes a game and detracts from the spectacle.

All of this could be eradicated, if the rules committee, compromising on the subject for a decade, would restore unlimited substitution, which permits any number of subs to enter any number of times.

In addition to speeding up the show, unlimited substitution, would permit pure two-platoon football, in which a separate unit for offense or defense can be substituted each time the ball changes hands. This permits a coach to keep his best players in action at all times and reduces some of the advantage in skills which the pro game enjoys by drafting the best college players.

Unlimited substitution would permit, of course, three — as well as two — platoon ball, depending on the number of superior two-way players available. They are in the minority on most squads. Pure two-platoon never was intended to prevent the talented two-way player from operating both ways.

There is no excuse for the rules committee not to restore unlimited substitution for 1964. All their arguments against it have long since been knocked to pieces. It is simply ridiculous to have the current three-platoon approach, yet rule out unlimited substitution.

When they outlawed it at their 1953 meeting, they justified their action principally on three points: one, it requires more players and increases recruiting; two, it hurts the small colleges; three, it permits a player to concentrate on what he does best and does not force him to work on his weaknesses, thus removing one of the game's chief character-building values.

So, what has happened?

Today, dozens of teams are using three platoons: one for offense and defense, a second mostly for defense, a third exclusively for offense. Army and others do this by suiting up no more than 40 players. For years, the pros have played two-platoon with squads restricted to 36. (The pros and high schools retained unlimited substitution and two platoons after their originators, the colleges, incomprehensibly discarded them.) Not only two-platoon but even three-platoon ball does not require more players and more recruiting.

The claim that unlimited substitution is inimical to the small colleges was proved invalid by that group itself, when in 1957 they voted to adopt it.

The character-building arguments is equally invalid. A boy who plays football only one way, offense or defense, must still make the necessary sacrifices and work hard. He must still condition himself to learn to block and tackle. He must spend more time trying to perfect certain phases of his game. So he's deriving sufficiently deep character benefits.

If the argument did have substance, however,* would it not be applicable also to three platoons, in which two-thirds are playing exclusively or nearly one way?

I would suggest to the college coaches that they should get the rules committee to return unlimited substitution, with the blessing of the faculty people (who appoint and influence the committee), by concurrently proposing a rule that no more than 40 players be suited up for a game.

No coach is going to recruit a player he can't suit up be it even, as Herman Hickman used to say, for three-platoon ball, with the third platoon to go to class.

Alou Could Not Have Scored-Dark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "No, I don't think Matty could have made it home on Willie Mays' double in the ninth. He would have been out."

Manager Alvin Dark thus echoed the sentiments of the Giants that Matty Alou couldn't have scored from first on Mays' hit in the ninth inning as San Francisco lost, 1-0, to the New York Yankees in yesterday's finale of the World Series.

"That's the hardest line drive a guy can hit," Dark added of Willie McCovey's shot to second baseman Bobby Richardson that ended the game.

Asked how he felt, the Giants manager declared:

"I feel like this club had a great year. I'm as proud of them as I can be of them. They played just great."

National League president Warren Giles came into Dark's office to say, "Alvin, you gave our league great representation, you and your Giants. We couldn't have asked for better.

The Giants dressed quietly and answered questions calmly.

Losing pitcher Jack Sanford sat glumly. Asked if he were missing with fast balls when he walked pitcher Ralph Terry in the fifth, leading to the Yankee's run, he snapped, "Certainly I was, why do you think I walked him?"

Sanford had struck out Terry six of seven times he had faced him previously but the walk filled the bases and the run scored as the Giants executed a double play.

Third base coach White Lockman said he held up Matty Alou in the ninth, "because in my opinion, he couldn't have made it."

Matty agreed, saying "I think I would have been out."

Alou was on first base when Mays rifled a double to the right field corner. Roger Maris, the Yankee right fielder, made a quick recovery and fired the ball to the infield — and Alou stopped at third. McCovey lined out to end the game two pitches later.

Shortstop Jose Pagan, who started the double play in the fifth for the first two outs, said he didn't throw home for the force "Because the fifth inning is too early. If it had been the eighth or ninth, I would have thrown home."

After Tony Kubek bounced into the twin killing with the run scoring, Richardson fouled out to end the inning.

"I just don't feel I pitched well today," Sanford mused.

Dark complimented all his players and said, "Ralph Terry was tremendous for them. He pitched great."

Dark felt Tom Tresh's spectacular catch of Mays' drive to the left field corner in the seventh had to be one of the key plays. McCovey followed with a triple that was wasted.

"He saved them a run, of course," Dark said, "But you don't know how it influenced the outcome. I've never seen such an even pair of clubs in the World Series."

In further explanation of the decision to hold Matty Alou at third in the ninth, Lockman said Maris made a fine recovery of the hit — "If he juggled the ball, I'd have sent in the runner."

McCovey, like many of the other Giants, sat with his chin in his hands. Asked about his drive to Richardson, Willie replied, "I hit it good but it was right at him — nothing I could do about that."

McCovey's triple in the seventh might have gone out of Candlestick Park had the wind not been blowing straight in from center field.

"You can't predict whether the ball would have gone out of here on any other day or not," he commented.

The Giants were to have paraded in downtown San Francisco had they won, but Dark said, "These fellows sure didn't want a parade if they lost."

Nobody blamed the wind for the outcome. Reliever Billy O'Dell, who shut off a possible Yankee rally in the eighth with five pitches after the bases were loaded with none out, declared "The wind didn't hurt us."

Asked if on second guess he would have done anything different in this game, Dark replied, "You do something in a ball game, you do it for a reason. I wouldn't do anything different. "Wait until next year."

Durkac Renamed Cage Coach At Ft. Monmouth

FORT MONMOUTH — Val Durkac, 24-year-old former Army lieutenant, has been renamed head basketball coach at Fort Monmouth, it was announced this week by the athletic department in Post Signal Services.

The ex-Gannon College cager at Erie, Pa., will be starting his third year as coach of the Fort Monmouth Signaleers. In the two previous seasons he combined as player-coach while on a tour of active military duty.

Durkac's appointment preceded another announcement that the Monmouth cagers will open a 40-game schedule early in December. Sixteen of these contests will be league tilts in the East Coast Interservice Conference (ECIC) which starts its second season in basketball.

Originally from Tarentum, Pa., the Signaleer mentor now lives in nearby Long Branch. He is a field underwriter in this area for a New York insurance company.

Durkac climaxed his college playing career by being named captain of the 1960 team, his senior year. He averaged over 15 points a game in four varsity years at Gannon. He was all-sectional center at Tarentum High School.

Last year, Monmouth, after a slow start, finished with an overall 19-18 record. In his first Signaleer campaign, Monmouth compiled a 26-13 season's mark.

Ralph Houk Happy McCovey Hit Ball at Bobby Richardson

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I'm sure glad he hit that ball right at somebody," sighed manager Ralph Houk of the victorious New York Yankees, in the general jubilation of the winning dressing room.

"He couldn't have hit it much better. But I don't care how hard they hit them if they hit them at somebody."

Houk was talking about the rifle shot line drive that Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants hit to Bobby Richardson to end the World Series, with the Yankees on top 1-0 and two Giants in scoring position.

"Phew, what a ball game," Houk exclaimed. "That was really a squeaker.

"We made some good plays. (Tom) Tresh's catch on Willie Mays in the seventh inning saved the game. So did fast fielding by (Roger) Maris on Mays' double in the ninth.

"And the Giants didn't do anything to disgrace themselves either. They fought us right down to the last out of the seventh game."

Ralph Terry, the shy, almost frail right-hander who pitched the shutout for the Yankees, sat in his locker cubicle, leaning his head back against the wall, a dazed smile on his face, and said:

"It was the biggest thrill of my life, but ooooh, I'm glad it's over. What an ending. What a perfect ending . . . 1-0 . . . That's how close the teams were in every respect in this Series.

"They are a great ball club."

Elston Howard, the catcher, said the victory was "The greatest game Terry ever pitched."

"Were we nervous?" Howard asked, "Were we nervous? We were all tight. It was the last game of the World Series."

As the shock of the hair-breadth victory wore off, the Yankees seemed to come to life.

"Terry gave them their "Bye, Bye, Baby," shouted third baseman Clete Boyer, over and over.

"Bye, Bye, Baby," is the theme song of the Giants.

Terry called for champagne, and a glass was handed to him.

With the glass in hand, Terry leaned back again, banged his head against the back of the locker a few times as if to make sure that he was awake and not dreaming, and said, again:

"What an ending."

Many of the Yankees wandered around the locker room, some of them undressed, others in partial uniform. All had sweet smiles on their faces. Even Roger Maris, the angry man of the team, smiled, although he was into the shower within 30 seconds after the team entered the dressing room.

Some of the players tried to manhandle manager Houk into the shower with his uniform on, largely at the instigation of the photographers, but they found a soapy Maris already there and gave up.

Houk retreated to his dressing cubicle, abandoned his tobacco cud, unwrapped a cigar, and asked:

"Anybody got a match?"

Houk was asked if he thought of walking McCovey intentionally in the ninth inning, with Mays on second, Matty Alou on third and first base open.

"I was tempted to put him on," Houk said, "But I talked to Terry and he said he would just as soon pitch to him as the next man (Orlando Cepeda), and he thought he could get him out if he made good pitches."

Houk also said that Matty Alou had no chance to score from first base on Mays' two-out double to right field.

"Roger (Maris) played the ball real good, and Alou didn't have a change. He was a dead duck if he'd tried to score."

Tresh's catch was the decisive defensive play of the game, however. He snagged a ball hit by Mays down the left field line that would have gone for a double. A triple by McCovey followed.

"I caught the ball in the web of my glove,' Tresh said. "I was running so fast I grabbed it with my right hand to hold it in, because I knew I was going to hit the wall real hard and I didn't want to drop it."

Yankee great Joe DiMaggio, who paid a visit to a familiar scene — the Yankee dressing room after another World Series victory — said:

"This was the greatest pitching I've seen in a World Series in all the years I've been playing and watching baseball."

Alvin Dark, the Giants' manager, was quick to make his way to Houk's side, in the Yankee dressing room.

The two managers exchanged a few quiet words, and then Dark left.

Falcons Hand Buccos Sixth Soccer Loss

RED BANK — Monmouth Regional's Falcons handed Red Bank High its sixth straight soccer defeat with a 3-1 decision on the losers' field yesterday.

The New Shrewsbury Falcons moved out to a 3-0 lead before Red Bank's Bruce Connors, outside right, booted home a goal with approximately one minute left in the match to avoid a shutout.

Bob Thorne, Monmouth Regional's junior center forward, scored all three goals for the winners. The Falcons ace rammed home two goals in the second quarter and booted his third marker in the final period.

Thorne's first goal came from the left side, approximately six yards out. His second goal in the second period came on a penalty kick. The fourth period marker came from approximately 12 yards out on the right side.

Caseys Dump Raritan In IV Game, 14-6

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — The Red Bank Catholic High jayvees won their second game in three starts yesterday by posting a 14-6 decision over Raritan Township on the losers' gridiron.

Red Bank Catholic tallied both of its touchdowns in the second quarter for a 14-0 lead at half time. Raritan Township scored its lone TD in the third quarter.

Doug Hill went 50 yards for the opening Red Bank Catholic touchdown. Richie Pezzuti capped a 60-yard Casey march later in the quarter with a 25-yard end run to paydirt.

Wave Booters Post 2-1 Win

LONG BRANCH — Long Branch High's soccer team moved out to a 2-0 lead and held on to post a 2-1 triumph over Toms River here yesterday.

Ernst Gerber opened the scoring for the winners with a goal in the first stanza before Tom Schlegel made it 2-0 with a marker at the 10:01 mark of the fourth quarter.

Shirley Jones is Assigned Top Weight for Vineland Handicap

CHERRY HILL — Mrs. J. O. Burgwin's Shirley Jones has been assigned topweight of 126 pounds for Saturday's $50,000 added Vineland Handicap at Garden State Park.

In four races over a period of less than five weeks Shirley Jones earned $65,948 for Mrs. Burgwin who bought the mare for $105,000 from the dispersal of James O. McCue's Brae Burn Farm at Saratoga, Aug. 11. All together this season she has scored in the Maskette and Margate. She was second to Cicada in her record smashing performance in the Beldame and also runnerup in the Matron and Molly Pitcher.

The queenly 3-year-old Cicada is second high weight under 123 pounds. Last Saturday Cicada romped home in the Jersey Belle Stakes against other sophomore misses and is now definitely re-established as the leader of her age and sex division. She is now 20th among the world's leading money winners, with earnings of $679,993.75. This year she has won the Columbiana Handicap, The Oaks Prep, Kentucky Oaks, Acorn, Mother Goose and Jersey Belle. In the Florida Derby she lost to Ridan by a head, and in the Delaware Handicap she lost to Seven Thirty by a head. She was third to Firm Policy in the Alabama Stakes and third to the surprising North South Gal in the Delaware Oaks.

Now, all under 120 pounds, comes Darby Dan Farm's Primonetta, Bert W. Martin's Rose O'Neil and George D. Widener's Seven Thirty.

Primonetta has captured the Regret and Molly Pitcher this season for her major accomplishments.

Rose O'Neill is a six-time winner and shows winning efforts in the Distaff, Vagrancy, Sheepshead Bay and New Castle.

Seven Thirty received the victor's share from the Black Helen, Bed o'Roses and Delaware Handicap.

D. C. Stable's Linita gets in with 119 pounds. The majority of her winning races came in California including the Milday and Vanity. Moving east she was second to Rose O' Neill in the New Castle and was beaten by a neck by Shirley Jones in the Maskette.

The weights dwindle down to a feathery 107 assigned Elk Hill Farm's Sleepless.

Woolson, Schaffer Win Women's Doubles at R. B.

RED BANK — Barbara Woolson of Fair Haven and Ann Schaffer of Little Silver defeated Dot Gorsuch of Middletown and Betsy Sanderson of Little Silver to win the women's doubles tournament sponsored by Red Bank Parks and Recreation Committee on Marine Park courts. The scores: 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

In the semi-finals, Woolson and Schaffer defeated Nancy Dickson and Mary Long Strong, both of Little Silver, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5. In other semi-finals, Gorsuch and Sanderson defeated Kay Bagwell and Carole Kennedy, Middletown, 6-3, 6-4.

DiMAG IN WRONG ROOM

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP) — Jos DiMaggio, the New York Yankees Hall of Fame star, made a mistake when he went to the clubhouse to congratulate the team on yesterday's World Series triumph.

He went to the Giants' room.

"We're in the wrong room," he quickly asserted and then had to make his way through a crowd of newsmen into the Yankee side.

CBA's Unbeaten Frosh Harriers Squeak by Roselle Catholic, 28 - 29

ELIZABETH — The Christian Brothers Academy freshman cross country team remained undefeated with an exciting 28-29 squeaker victory over a strong Roselle Catholic team at Warinanco Park here yesterday.

Roselle, winner of the Hudson County CYO meet, looked like an easy winner as the race got under way with Tom Garvey and Bob Novak going into an early lead. The CBA trio of George Denis, Dan Rowe and Bill Chandler were in close pursuit, but after them came a flock of green jerseys with Greg DuBois the only CBA runner under 15th place.

Entering the stadium, however, Denis moved up to second place and selzed a two-foot lead coming off the final turn which he held down the stretch to win in 6:53. Rowe's closing rush just failed to nip Novak.

Meanwhile, DuBois came on to pass three men in the last 200 yards to take sixth place. These last second heroics turned defeat into victory for coach Brother Augustine's team.

LAUREL, Md., (AP)—Pardao, one of England's top handicap horses, was named yesterday as the third foreign entry in the $125,000 Washington, D. C. International at Laurel race course Nov. 12.

Other foreign entries lined up for the mile and a half turf race include Takamagahara of Japan and Match III of France. The American selection board has not yet extended formal invitations to owners of American horses.

Stepanow Tallies 3 in Freehold's Soccer Victory

MIDDLETOWN — Freehold Regional's outstanding soccer player, Alex Stepanow, scored all three goals as the Freehold squad dumped Middletown, 3-1, here yesterday.

Stepanow scored two goals in the third period and added his third marker after Middletown scored its lone goal early in the fourth period.

Jim Connolly, center forward, rammed home the goal for the losers on a boot from approximately 15 yards out.

Middletown coach Hal Rogers had special praise for senior goalie Dave Skinner.

The Llons' record is now 3-4 over-all and 2-4 in the Shore Conference. Freehold is 5-1 on the season.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

Prepared by N. J. Taxpayers Association, 143 E. State St., Trenton 8, N. J.

Questions of changes in local governments under New Jersey's municipal charter law will appear upon the ballots of eight more municipalities at the November 6 General Election, reports the New Jersey Taxpayers Association.

New forms of government proposed by local charter study commissions will be considered in four of the municipalities. Woodbridge Township, with a population of nearly 80,000 and largest of the municipalities involved, will vote whether to adopt the mayor-council form of government as will West Milford Township in Passaic County. Variations of council-manager forms of government provided under the optional municipal charter laws will be considered for adoption by the people of Ocean Township, in Monmouty County and Madison Township in Middlesex County.

Cherry Hill Township (Camden County) voters will ballot on a proposal to change from commission to council-manager government. This proposal was advanced to the voting stage in Cherry Hill by petition of the people after a comprehensive study by a citizen group appointed by the municipal governing body.

Three other townships will be taking the first step toward possible governmental change when they decide the dual questions of whether to authorize a charter study and elect a commission of local citizens to make it. They are: Maplewood in Essex County, East Brunswick in Middlesex County and Hanover Township in Morris County. In the first two instances, the ballot question was authorized by ordinances adopted by the local governing bodies while the petition method was used in Hanover Township.

As a result of earlier citizen action, thirty New Jersey municipalities now operate under selected governmental forms provided by the optional municipal charter law. A breakdown of local voter action since the State Legislature in 1950 provided a selection of modern local government forms is set forth together with related background information in "A-BC's of New Jersey's Optional Municipal Charter Law," published by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association. Single copies are available without cost in request to the association at 143 East State St., Trenton 8, N. J.

YOUR GARDEN THIS WEEK

By Garden Reporter College of Agriculture Rutgers—The State University, New Brunswick

Your lawn will stay greener in late fall and early winter if you fertilize it now.

What's more, the benefits will carry over to next spring, as your well-fed lawn becomes resistant to crabgrass and other weeds.

Dr. Henry W. Indyk, extension turf management specialist at Rutgers University, brings up the subject after seeing many lawns that show signs of hunger.

He suggest a 10-6-4 fertilizer, applied at the rate of 10 pounds to 1,000 square feet of lawn area.

In case your acquaintance with fertilizer is only casual, this means a 10-6-4 mixture contains ratios of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium in that order.

If you buy a fertilizer with a different analysis of these elements, choose one with a similar ratio. Dr. Indyk advises. Adjust the rate of application so that your lawn gets a comparable amount of nitrogen.

Organic Safer

Fertilizers differ in the kinds of nitrogen they contain. A mixture that contains organic nitrogen usually costs more than one with inorganic nitrogen but is safer to use from the standpoint of lessening the danger of burn.

Organic nitrogen has a longer lasting effect than the inorganic kind, or as the turf scientists say it's "more slowly available." Dr. Indyk approves the formulas that contain nitrogen half and half in organic and inorganic forms.

Spread Evenly

To avoid burning your grass, spread fertilizer evenly at the recommended rate only when the grass is completely dry.

If you're spreading 10 pounds on a thousand-square foot area that's 20 by 50, you can be surer of even distribution by splitting the application — five pounds in the 50-foot length and the other five in the 20-foot width.

Dr. Indyk cautions that if you skimp in feeding your lawn the proper kind and amount of fertilizer at the proper time, you can't expect anything better than a thin and weedy lawn.
