To Name First Narcotics Unit Members Tuesday

By JACQUELINE ALBAN

FREEHOLD—The first members of a county narcotics study committee will be named at Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Freeholders and an organization session will be called soon thereafter.

That was the word last night from Freeholder Marcus Daly, welfare chairman, who reported that he had received names for membership on the committee from all but five of the county organizations approached.

He expects to name nine members to start, with membership left open to those organizations not responding by Tuesday's meeting.

Each of the groups contacted was requested to submit two names for consideration. Mr. Daly said he would choose one to be presented to the Board of Freeholders for appointment.

If some organizations fail to respond, individual members of those groups may be approached by Mr. Daly.

Aiming for a 15 to 20-member committee, the freeholder said he also would ask the board to name a few "independent people" who would not necessarily represent organizations, but have expressed an interest in the narcotics problem.

The study committee's function would be to recommend long and short range programs to curb addiction and assist addicts.

To get the group moving, Mr. Daly indicated he would call the first meeting and preside until officers are named. Under a resolution adopted by freeholders, the study committee is expected to submit a report in time for its recommendations to be considered in the 1967 budget.

That gives the group until the first part of February, said Mr. Daly. If a proposal is not ready by then, a nominal amount would be included in the new budget, and later, an emergency resolution authorized, if warranted, he added.

He indicated that he hopes one committee recommendation would be for the establishment of a county after care center for addicts released from drug treatment facilities.

The Monmouth County Citizens Committee on Narcotics, for the past three years, has urged freeholders to set up a county drug rehabilitation program, suggesting that one way to accomplish this would be to establish an after care center and apply to the state for a 75 per cent grant to staff it.

Under such a program, county addicts would receive drug rehabilitation treatment at the New Jersey Skillman Institute in Princeton.

The citizens committee, without county, state, or federal support, but some financial aid from civic, service, and church groups and out-of-pocket funds, has been instrumental in obtaining drug rehabilitation for 17 county addicts — in centers outside Monmouth.

It has served as a "Narcotics Anonymous," by being available

Stricken Freighter Sent No Distress Call

Fear 28 Lost as Ship Sinks

HARBOR BEACH, Mich. (AP) —Rescue forces searched the storm-lashed area of Lake Huron today where the Daniel J. Morrell sank with a feared loss of 28 lives and only one survivor. It was the worst Great Lakes disaster in eight years.

Eleven bodies were recovered yesterday. The Coast Guard spotted a 12th body next to an empty life raft but said gale-force winds and huge waves prevented it from recovering the corpse.

More than two days of snow squalls and sub-freezing temperatures cut down hopes that the freighter's other 16 crewmen somehow survived by launching lifeboats and riding out the gale.

Its fate concealed by the storm for 34 hours, the 603-foot Morrell snapped in two Tuesday morning and sank in 145 feet of water 20 miles northeast of Harbor Beach, a town at the tip of Michigan's Thumb District.

Twenty - nine crewmen were aboard, said John Hanninen, a legal representative of Bethlehem Steel Co. which had leased the 60-year-old ship.

"I saw two life boats launched before the ship sank," said deck watchman Dennis Hale, the survivor. Plucked from a life raft by a helicopter, Hale was clad in undershorts, pajamas and a pea jacket when found lying beneath the bodies of three crewmates who died from exposure.

An empty life raft bobbed on waves near the coast and a life ring and debris from the Morrell washed up on the snow-covered shore at the northern tip of the Thumb District. The wreckage was found by a 100-man search party that scoured the shoreline during heavy snowfall.

But the blinding snow hampered the search by three Coast Guard cutters over a 400-square-mile area of Lake Huron. The storm grounded Coast Guard aircraft during most of the hunt.

Any crewmen not in life boats would have died within three hours in the 36-degree water, the Coast Guard said.

Hale, 26, of Ashtabula, Ohio, was sleeping when he "heard a hard thump.

"I thought the anchor was dropping," he said. Books tumbled off a shelf in his room and he jumped out of bed.

"I heard the emergency alarm. The ship was breaking in half," Hale said. He launched the raft with three other crewmen.

"As we were floating out on this raft I could see the two halves (of the ship) hitting each other," he said. "They had separated and the back part still had power and kept ramming the front part.

"She buckled and sank," Hale said.

Hale was reported in good condition at a hospital.

"The weird thing" about the 12,500-ton Morrell, said a Coast Guard spokesman, was "there was no distress signal."

Winds up to 60 miles an hour and waves 20 feet high lashed the Morrell and she apparently sank without radioing an S.O.S.

Not since the freighter Carl D. Bradley sank Nov. 18, 1958, have so many crewmen of a freighter died on the Great Lakes. The Bradley lost 33 of its 35 crewmen when it plunged to bottom of Lake Michigan during a similar storm. Like the Morrell, the Bradley was as long as two football fields.

Compensation for Victims Of Crimes Gets Support

TRENTON (AP) — A proposal to compensate victims of violent crimes has received new support from state law enforcement officials but its fate remains uncertain.

State Attorney General Arthur G. Sills, who previously endorsed the proposal, appealed to the Legislature yesterday to enact the program.

But Gov. Richard J. Hughes' Administration has given no indication that it will throw its active support behind the proposal. A high administration source said it was questionable whether the program could be squeezed into the governor's budget next year although Sills said he believed New Jersey could afford the system.

Hopes for Approval

Sen. Ned J. Parsekian, D-Bergen, said at the conclusion of yesterday's brief public hearing on a bill to create the compensation program, that he is hopeful the Legislature will approve the measure next year.

He said he has not polled the lawmakers on the bill but believes "the normal instinct is to favor the idea. Most people feel it's right."

Parsekian is chief sponsor of the bill to create a three-man commission appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. They would serve six-year terms and be authorized to make awards to persons who suffered injury or personal loss as the result of a violent crime.

The commissioners would also be empowered to provide state funds to compensate the surviving dependents of a victim.

The bill proposes payments ranging from a minimum of $500 to a maximum of $25,000. Sills said he would substitute a range of $100 to $15,000 in the interest of fairness and economy.

Parsekian noted that California this year became the first state in the nation to enact a compensation program and New York has approved a similar plan that takes effect next year. Four other states have bills pending in their legislatures.

Sills said he believes the state is capable of handling the financial burden the program would create although neither he nor Parsekian would estimate the possible cost.

The attorney general said the state should help "the victim of

Agreement Is Approved For New Levitt School

MANALAPAN — The agreement between Levitt and Sons, the Board of Education and the township was approved by the Township Committee last night and construction of the Levitt School will begin as soon as weather permits.

The committee approved the agreement which binds the developer to complete work on the 21-room school by March 15, 1968, and protects him, in return, against township action to upgrade the building code.

Under the agreement, Levitt will be permitted to complete his 700-house subdivision conforming to the terms of the building code in effect June 30, 1966. The builder has agreed to abide by changes in the code adopted by the state, but he is immune from township action.

The code used here is the Standard Building Code of New Jersey, with some amendments.

If Levitt is prevented from getting building permits due to a court suit, the builder is relieved of his responsibility to build and donate the school.

The agreement calls for work on the school to begin not later than March 15, 1967, and the firm's regional general manager, Ernest Hurwitz, said work will start as soon as possible.

Levitt has also guaranteed the township that he will not start court proceedings to invalidate the agreement, a guarantee clearly given in the light of the New Jersey court ruling allowing an Ocean Township developer to recover funds donated to the township.

The Township Committee also granted final approval to sections 12 and 13 of Levitt's Monmouth Heights development.

Kiesinger Elected Bonn Chancellor

BONN, Germany (AP) — Christian Democrat Kurt Georg Kiesinger was elected West Germany's new chancellor today, heading the 17-year-old nation's first Christian Democratic-Socialist coalition.

Kiesinger's election by the Bundestag, Parliament's lower house, was assured during the night when the Bundestag members of the two major parties agreed to support a coalition cabinet headed by him to end the 34-day government crisis.

The two parties have been rivals since the republic's birth in 1949. Their coalition was generally considered a temporary expedient until the general elections in 1969, if it holds together that long.

Kiesinger succeeds Ludwig Erhard, whose coalition with West Germany's third party, the Free Democrats, fell apart Oct. 27 in a budget dispute over raising taxes to pay for U.S. arms. Both Kiesinger and Erhard are Christian Democrats.

As junior partners in the precedent-breaking "Grand Coalition," the Socialists (Social Democrats) were given nine of the 19 cabinet posts to be announced later today.

Socialist leader Willy Brandt, the mayor of West Berlin, was named vice chancellor and foreign minister.

Kiesinger cleared his last hurdle for the top job early today when the Social Democratic Bundestag members pledged 128-53 to support him. There were eight abstentions. The remaining members of the 202-man delegation were absent.

A statement issued after the eight-hour Socialist meeting said the declaration of support for Kiesinger "does not weaken what the Socialists have said up to now about the policies and personalities of the Christian Democrats."

Kiesinger, 62, for the past eight years minister-president (governor) of his native state of Baden-Wuerttemberg, announced earlier that his own 245-member party Bundestag faction had overwhelmingly approved his cabinet.

A veteran politician who resigned his Bundestag seat to take the governor's job, Kiesinger has been widely criticized for his Nazi past. Former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer reportedly decided not to make him foreign minister eight years ago because of it.

Kiesinger joined the Nazi party in 1933 when he was a 29-year-old lawyer. He says he turned against the party the following year but did not leave it. During World War II he worked in the radio propaganda section of the Nazi Foreign Ministry.

In a television interview last night, Brandt defended his new chief but noted that Kiesinger had

New Hassle At Berkeley

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — University of California students at a mass meeting today called a classroom strike because police had been summoned during a sit-in protesting Navy recruiting on the campus.

Some 3,500 of the Berkeley campus' 30,000 students attended the meeting and voted overwhelmingly by a show of hands to strike classes starting at 8 a.m. (PST).

The last speaker to urge the strike was Mario Savio, who led the 1964 Free Speech Movement which disrupted classes as students sought greater on-campus political liberty.

Turned down last month when he applied for readmission, Savio was one of six non-students arrested by police when they protested the presence of Navy recruiters in the student union.

50,000 Cubans Air-Lifted to U.S.

MIAMI (AP) — Nearly 50,000 Cubans have streamed into the United States by a refugee airlift inaugurated a year ago today, and no end is in sight.

Planes loaded with emigres from Fidel Castro's Communist regime land twice each weekday at Miami International Airport.

More than 700,000 Cubans for whom applications have been filed are awaiting their turn to come, U.S. officials say. At the present rate, it would take 15 years to complete this migration. Refuges arriving by the sky shuttle say millions would come if they could.

At Freedom House, where "airliftees" live while awaiting transportation to new homes throughout the United States, the topic turned to those left behind in Cuba.

A telephone worker, Jose Antonio Grande, heading with his family for West New York, N. J., said, "Cuba would be left empty if all were permitted to leave."

A retired sugar grower going to New York City said, "Only the man at the helm would remain—Senor Castro."

A 35-year-old electrician who arrived with his wife, a 17-day-old daughter and a 5-year-old son said: "At least 70 per cent would come if they could. That is what people there are talking about. They have no freedom."

The Cuban refugee center reported that two-thirds of the newcomers have gone to communities other than Miami, and are self-supporting. The others join Miami's exile colony of nearly 150,000. The nation's Cuban exile population is estimated at 350,000.

2,505 Cong Defect to Allies

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. officials today reported a new peak in defections from the ranks of the Viet Cong.

They said 2,505 returnees came over to the Allied side in November for the highest monthly total since the Chieu Hoi—Open Arms — program was launched nearly four years ago. The previous high was 2,082 last February.

At the same time, the U.S. command reported a rise in American and enemy war casualties last week, while Vietnamese headquarters reported a drop in casualties among government forces.

Pound Cong Positions

In other developments, high-flying B52 bombers pounded Viet Cong positions only 27 miles from Saigon today. On the ground fighting died down after a one-day spurt.

U.S. headquarters disclosed two new ground operations were under way involving American infantrymen and one new action by Australian troops.

The U.S. air offensive over North Viet Nam continued at a low pace as it has for the last three weeks because of rainstorms and generally foul weather.

The U.S. command reported American troop strength in Viet Nam reached 361,000 by last Saturday, an increase of 1,000 men over the previous week.

The record number of Viet Cong defectors reported for November also exceeded a five-week high of 2,336 in March, U.S. officials said.

Despite the claim of record defections, there has always been some question of the accuracy and significance of the statistics. Some observers contend that some returnees are actually refugees from war-ravaged areas or impoverished peasants from Viet Cong-controlled sections

Department Requests Up $56,559 in Keansburg

KEANSBURG — Departmental budget requests for 1967 totaling $468,809, up $56,559 over this year, were disclosed by Municipal Manager C. Bernard Blum last night.

The amount includes $115,150 for the water and sewer departments, funds for which are drawn from user revenues, not general taxation.

Largest increases are ticketed for salaries in the police and road departments.

In the police salary account, funds are requested by Chief Robert J. Kronenberger to hire three additional patrolmen and for an assistant in the Juvenile Aid Bureau for Sgt. George W. Preston Jr. In addition, salary increments are included to give raises of $300 for patrolmen, $400 for sergeants and $500 each for Chief Kronenberger and Deputy Chief Theodore Loder.

Also requested by the chief is $700 for the purchase of a breathalyzer, used to test persons believed to be under the influence of alcoholic beverages, and $2,400 for a new patrol car.

Salary increases in the road department total $6,808 with an additional $1,850 requested for a new pickup truck.

Mechanization of the tax collector's office accounts for a $2,100 increase for "other expenses" and the salary account for the department is up $2,000 to $12,550.

Mr. Blum stressed that the amounts requested by department heads are subject to review by Borough Council before approval and inclusion with the full budget.

A sparse audience for last night's hearing on the requests consisted primarily of borough employees.

MANGLED METAL — Neither driver was seriously injured in two-car accident which demolished sports car in foreground last night on Ocean Ave., Sea Bright. Police said car, driven by Homer P. Metzger, 62, of Hamiltonian Apartments, Monmouth Beach, reportedly attempted to pass similar model driven by Edward T. Ryan, 25, of 12 Johnson St., Monmouth Beach, when they collided. The crash broke a fire hydrant, flooding roadway, and one car crashed through brick wall. Drivers were treated and released at Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch.

New U.S. Mortar Spotter Developed at Local Fort

FORT MONMOUTH — A Defense Department announcement that a "radar-computer" has been used in Viet Nam to zero artillery and tank fire on enemy mortars spotlighted a Fort Monmouth development, the AN-MPQ-4 mortar locater.

The MPQ-4, or "one-shot" locater can pinpoint the location of an enemy mortar after only one mortar round comes within range. The round passes through two radar beams and appears as two blips on a radar screen.

As soon as the locater operator centers crosshairs on the blips, the mortar's map co-ordinates — or exact location on army maps —are indicated on a digital readout that looks like the mileage reading on an automobile speedometer.

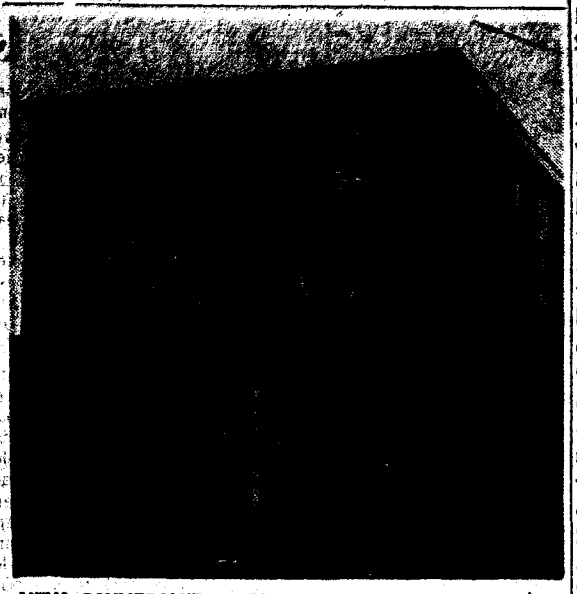

Fire then can be dropped on the mortar within seconds of its first shot.

The Defense Department announcement said the locater was used to reply quickly to an enemy mortar attack in South Viet Nam's central highlands, and that the attacking mortars were silenced by artillery and tank fire.

The MPQ-4 was developed by the predecessor organization to the Army Electronics Command's Combat Surveillance, Night Vision and Target Acquisition Laboratory. Production models are made by the Heavy Military Electronics Department of General Electric Co., Syracuse, N.Y., which also holds a contract for improving present models.

RUSSIAN BEST SELLER

MOSCOW (AP) — A collection of Old Testament stories was put on sale in the Soviet capital in August, and became an immediate best seller. Long lines formed outside the bookstores to snap up the 100,000 copies offered for sale. Millions of Russians have grown up without a chance to read the Bible.

Surviving Quint Gets Transfusion

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doctors kept a close watch today on Roni Sue, the surviving Aranson quintuplet, to determine if another blood transfusion is necessary.

About 75 per cent of her blood was exchanged yesterday to check a jaundice condition. The transfusion was made to prevent brain damage.

Dr. Lee Bass, the infant's pediatrician, said, "Despite the risk of the transfusion, the baby did quite good and took the procedure quite good. We are hopeful of a successful recovery."

Earlier yesterday, the tiny infant stopped breathing several times due to a respiratory problem similar to the one that took the lives of her four sisters, doctors said.

Each time the baby had to be stimulated to breathe. Later Dr. Bass described her condition as "quite good."

Her four sisters died within 56 hours of their birth Saturday in Magee - Women's Hospital. The quints were born 2½ months prematurely to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Aranson, both 22, of Pittsburgh.

Action Taken For Water In Manalapan

MANALAPAN — The township took its first legal steps last night to get water service in areas not now being serviced, despite the existence of a franchise.

The Township Committee adopted two resolutions to lift the franchise from the Manalapan Water and Utility Co. and the Freehold Water and Utility Co. and to acquire their property through condemnation.

Thomas Higgins, the township clerk, said the two companies do not own now any property or facilities here.

The resolution authorized attorney William O'Hagen Jr. to commence condemnation proceedings if the companies do not accept a township offer.

Mayor Anton Skwarko explained that the township is taking the steps because the two companies which hold the franchise have made no moves to provide water service.

Appreciation Found Given At 3M Plant

FREEHOLD — Students from Freehold and Southern Freehold Regional High Schools visiting the local 3M plant as part of Youth Appreciation Week have found that appreciation is a two-sided coin.

For instance, Harold A. Fink, manufacturing manager for Minnesota Manufacturing and Mining Co. (3M), noted that youngsters who will take jobs with the company will find that a good attitude is a prerequisite.

Once established, however, he said, new employees are associated with a firm in world wide markets with excellent employee benefits.

W. I. Randall, personnel manager, went into further detail. Attitude, he said, includes such things as haircuts, dress, and interest. Personal achievements in school also prove helpful qualifications, he said.

The students on the tour were guests of the Freehold Optimist Club as part of an annual project. Twelve from each school participated.

At a luncheon at the American Hoted, Kenneth Gike, chairman, bid them persevere and not to feel stigmatized by careless references to teenagers in trouble.

Less than five per cent of teenagers, he said, can be classified as delinquent and the lives of the other 95 per cent should not be smeared by general references.

Firemen Hold Open House for Kaplan

LONG BRANCH — Some 250 persons last night attended an open house for Melvin Kaplan in the Phil Daly Hose Co. Fire House.

Mr. Kaplan is vying with Elvon Adams of the Oliver Byron Fire Co. for the post of second assistant chief in an election to be held next Tuesday. In two years' time, the second assistant chief automatically becomes the fire chief.

CALL TO CHANGE

MONTREAT, N. C. (AP) — Like a person, the Christian church always is in the process of "either growing or dying," says the Rev. Dr. John F. Anderson Jr., of Atlanta, a southern Presbyterian official.

He told a conference here that the vitality of the church depends on its willingness to change, to "venture out into a strange hostile world," instead of settling down in "stopping places." People won't get the good news, he said, "if we stay . . . in some stained glassed sanctuary enjoying each other's company."

Gas Station Spacing, 2 Other Codes Okayed

MANALAPAN — The Township Committee adopted three ordinances last night, including one setting a minimum limit on the distance between gas stations.

The gas station code limits the distance between stations to a minimum of 3,000 feet and provides that all stations have 200 feet of frontage and a minimum plot of 40,000 square feet.

The gas station controls were adopted unanimously, as were ordinances banning parking on the streets of Yorktowne between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. weekdays and prohibiting the opening of township streets between Dec. 1 and April 1 each year, except in the case of emergencies.

An ordinance changing the name of Clinton Dr. — west of Rt. 9 — to Briar Hill Drive was found to have been printed erroneously and will be readvertised for adoption at another meeting.

The committee approved on first reading an ordinance extending the allowable time between the issuance of a building permit and the start of construction.

Under that measure, the permits will be good for one year and, if construction has not yet been started, permits for an additional six months may be applied for. Under the state building code, an extension of only 60 days may be applied for.

The ordinance was approved by a 4-1 vote, with Committeeman Patrick Madigan opposed. He claimed the amendment constituted downgrading of the present code. There would be no change in the period allowed for construction, a maximum of one year.

A public hearing and final vote are scheduled for Wednesday Dec. 28.

The committee approved two variances recommended by the Board of Adjustment.

Samuel Tave was granted a variance permitting the construction of a service station on the corner of Rt. 33 and Woodward Rd.

Dorothy Ann Bainton will be permitted to operate a rest home. This variance was subject to a letter of approval from the state Department of Institutions and Agencies indicating that the home meets state standards and to approval by the township Board of Health.

Contractor Denies Responsibility For Delays in School Project

LONG BRANCH — A. Kaplen & Son, Ltd., general contractors for the $3.5 million junior high school, yesterday disclaimed responsibility for delays which have prevented use of the structure this year.

The Englewood construction firm said its share of the project is only 45 per cent. "The larger part of the work has been awarded by the Board of Education directly to other prime contractors," the firm said. "By law we have no jurisdiction over these contractors, and we are not responsible for them."

Both the board's president, A.A. Anastasia, and School Superintendent William H. Meskill declined comment yesterday, but John Halleran of Giordano and Giordano, the board's attorneys, said the board stood by its earlier statements fixing the blame for the delays with the Kaplen firm.

The school originally has been slated for completion by Nov. 1, but work stoppages and delays pushed the date back to Feb. 14 and then to March 15. Because of the delayed completion date, the board has decided that the new building will not be used this school year.

The board has issued a statement scoring the Kaplen firm for allegedly failing to co-ordinate its operations and for being uncooperative on the job. The board's statement said the firm had "obstructed substantial progress" at the construction site.

In yesterday's prepared statement, the Kaplen firm said it "stands ready at all times to tackle all available work and bring it to a speedy completion." It said it didn't want to involve itself in a controversy, "but we must state for the record that the delays are not our responsibility."

Mr. Halleran yesterday remained mute on the board's plans involving the imposition of penalties against the contractor for failing to complete the structure on time. He said the imposition of penalties would have to await completion of the job.

to known county addicts who need counseling and aid in "kicking the habit."

It has sponsored public forums aimed at alerting the county to the growing addiction problem, attended narcotic seminars throughout the state and visited drug rehabilitation centers, in and out of the state, in an effort to learn the best each program has to offer.

In its three-year quest for a county drug program, the citizens committee also approached the federal Office of Economic Opportunity for funds to initiate one without success.

When Mr. Daly, in September, announced that he would propose a county narcotics study committee to recommend a course of action, rather than moving on the citizens group's request to apply for the 75 per cent state after care grant, the citizens committee opposed his proposal.

'Would Duplicate Work'

Its initial reaction: "Another drug committee on the county level would almost duplicate work; delay the establishment of a center which is needed now, and waste money which could be used in reclaiming lives of hundreds of persons in Monmouth through after care."

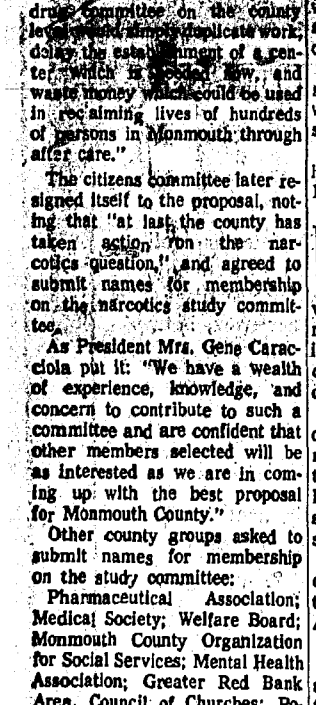

The citizens committee later resigned itself to the proposal, noting that "at last the county has taken action on the narcotics question," and agreed to submit names for membership on the narcotics study committee.

As President Mrs. Gene Caracciola put it: "We have a wealth of experience, knowledge, and concern to contribute to such a committee and are confident that other members selected will be as interested as we are in coming up with the best proposal for Monmouth County."

Other county groups asked to submit names for membership on the study committee:

Pharmaceutical Association; Medical Society; Welfare Board; Monmouth County Organization for Social Services; Mental Health Association; Greater Red Bank Area, Council of Churches; Police Chiefs Association; Morrow Association; Sheriff's Office and Probation Department.

In addition, representation is being sought from the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths. Mr. Daly said State Police declined membership because of their full schedules in connection with state narcotics programs.

Help Is on the Way, HELP Members Told

LONG BRANCH — Help is on its way, 30 members of the organization (Housewives Expect Lower Prices) were assured by their officers, who said the organization would become a lobby by fighting for lower prices for the American consumer.

The group's general meeting was held at the home of its secretary, Mrs. Hannelore Sweetwood in Elberon. Mrs. Sweetwood told of Assemblyman Joseph Azzolina's intention to introduce legislation backed by HELP at next week's Assembly session to eliminate the 3 per cent sales tax on some household products.

Mrs. Grace Donahue was appointed editor of the HELP Herald, a monthly newsletter to inform members of progress made in investigating the root causes of price rises and the inflationary spiral.

HELP has also established a speaker's bureau and it was agreed to invite Mrs. Esther Peterson, National director of Consumer Affairs, to participate in a forum meeting. No date for the forum was announced, pending receipt of a reply from Mrs. Peterson.

Educators Before State Study Board

TRENTON — (AP) — A state commission studying ways of streamlining municipal and county governments Wednesday heard a parade of witnesses from the academic world suggest how to go about its research.

State Sen. William V. Muste, D-Hudson, chairman of the commission, cautioned that any study would take considerable time, possibly two or three years.

The commission, allotted $5,000 by the Legislature, is scheduled to wind up its affairs in January, but State House sources said an extension probably would be granted and more money appropriated.

Testifying before the commission, Dr. Ernest C. Reock Jr., director of the Rutgers University Bureau of Government Research, warned against restricting the study to the structure of government agencies.

It is far more important, he explained, to examine what services each agency actually performs and how those services could be offered most efficiently.

He also cautioned against a tendency to recommend a wide variety of "single function" agencies to replace existing ones.

Most of Reock's suggestions were supported by other witnesses were accepted by the commission, an aide said.

The commission is tentatively scheduled to meet again Jan. 11.

violent crime who has too long remained in the shadows of criminal justice and has escaped the compassionate arm of this most civilized of all societies."

He added: "Not only do we owe these individuals an indemnity. . .but I believe we have the capacity and, above all, we live in an era of social consciousness which is attuned to such humanitarian ideals."

Award Suggested

Sills also suggested that the attorney general and the state treasurer be authorized to appeal an award "considered improper or excessive."

The bill also should be worded clearly, Sills said, to permit the state to recover what it paid the victim of a crime where a third party action is involved.

"The innocent victim of crime has traditionally been the forgotten man in the quest to preserve law and order," Sills said.

"I believe, however, that the time has arrived where society should no longer perpetuate this continued oversight or neglect."

'Financially Manageable'

Sills said he doubted the program would require massive "welfare-type" aid. He noted that Great Britain, which along with New Zealand is the only nation to have such a plan, has "found its program financially manageable over the first 20 months of its operation."

The British have awarded more than $1.1 million and have disposed of 1,500 cases, Sills pointed out.

Parsekian's bill calls for an appropriation of $250,000 to finance the program in the first six months of its operation.

Hugh E. Langcaskey, vice president of the State Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, said his organization endorses the idea an believes it will encourage innocent bystanders to aid policemen in law enforcement.

Parsekian said the PBA's analysis was supported by the experience of the British.

The State Bar Association expressed support for the program but recommended further study to guarantee that the bill would be as free of fault as possible. Nathan Finkle, a spokesman for Brendan Byrne, Essex County prosecutor, said his office was conducting a study on which to base recommendations.

Ship

Ten crewmen of the limestone carrier Cedarville died in May, 1965, when the vessel sank during a storm in the Straits of Mackinac.

But the worst in a long history of Great Lakes tragedies was 53 years ago when 19 ships plunged to the bottom in a five-day November storm. An estimated 250 sailors died.

Routine Message

The last radio signal reported received from the Morrell was at 12:15 a.m. Tuesday when she transmitted a routine message giving her position as 25 miles north of Harbor Beach. The Morrell was bound north for Taconite Harbor, Minn., from Cleveland, Ohio, with only ballast in her holds.

The freighter G. A. Tomlinson passed the Morrell two hours before she sank and saw nothing wrong.

A day and a half later, at 1:12 p.m. yesterday, the motor vessel U.S.C.G. Post recovered the first body. The next three bodies were found by the Tomlinson.

"All were floating face down," said Capt. Joseph Fitch of the Tomlinson. "All had on life jackets with Morrell markings. They were in a space of about a mile."

The disaster occurred during the same storm that broke apart a grounded German vessel, the Nordmeer, about 80 miles north of the Morrell, and which grounded a car ferry off the opposite shore of Michigan on Lake Michigan.

Eight crewmen were lifted to safety Tuesday night from the Nordmeer moments before the storm split the ship apart.

A breakwater protected the car ferry City of Midland 41 from Lake Michigan waves, but the vessel was stranded on a sandbar off Ludington for nearly three days with 128 passengers and 58 crewmen, until freed by a tug yesterday.

45,000 Defectors

U.S. officials said that since the Chieu Hoi program was started in early 1963, more than 45,000 former Viet Cong have turned themselves in to the Saigon government's care. So far this year, they say, there have been 17,726 returnees, an increase of 6,602 over all of last year and the highest yearly total to date.

In its weekly casualty report, U.S. headquarters said 143 Americans were killed and 709 wounded last week, compared with 100 killed and 749 wounded the week before. This brought the total number of Americans killed in combat in Viet Nam to 6,192 by unofficial count and the number of wounded to 24,812.

Vietnamese military headquarters said the government lost 159 men killed and 41 missing last week, compared with 248 killed and 77 missing during the previous week. The U.S. headquarters reported 1,422 enemy soldiers killed and 133 captured, compared with 1,098 killed and 143 captured the week before.

The increase in American casualties last week apparently resulted from hard fighting in the central highlands in which some units of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division were hard hit.

The B52 raid near Saigon this afternoon struck at a Viet Cong troop concentration 27 miles northwest of the capital. A few hours earlier B52s raided an enemy storage area 18 miles northwest of the city of Quang Ngai, on the central coast.

Ground fighting lapsed back into the lull of earlier this week after a spurt yesterday in which units of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division and supporting pilots reported killing 70 Viet Cong.

JAPANESE APPEAL

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's United Church of Christ, a merged body including Congregationalists, Methodists, Presbyterians and Reformed Christians, has issued an appeal to President Johnson for a halt to the bombing of North Viet Nam.

These bombings near Hanoi and Haiphong, the Japanese church said, have "trampled under" the desires for peace "of not only the intelligent and well-wishing people in Japan but of all Asia . . ."

been nominated by the Christian Democrats, not his party.

Erhard, who resigned yesterday and told newsmen he was glad the crisis was over, touched on another aspect of the Nazi issue. In a farewell television speech to the nation, he said the election of ultranationalist National Democratic (NDP) party members to the Bavarian and Hesse state legislatures was a symptom of dissatisfaction and peevishness which "have nothing to do with the rebirth of Nazism." But he warned that the NDP challenges the country's democratic forces to demonstrate that democracy really works.

The new government has an overwhelming majority—447 of the Bundestag's 496 seats. The Free Democrats, with 49 votes, are the only opposition.

Ocean Candidates Selection Unit Chooses Name of United Citizens

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — The nameless, non-partisan group of residents here which was formed two months ago to present a single slate of candidates for next May's Township Council election was given a name last night at a meeting of 45 of the 75 members of its organizing committee. It is the United Citizens.

The officers are Kendall Lee, former Asbury Park city manager and a resident of West Allenhurst, president; Steven J. Magura, a former president of the township Republican Club, vice president; William Thompson, treasurer; Richard English 3d, recording secretary, and Samuel Patterson, corresponding secretary.

Among other members are state Sen. Richard Stout, R-5th Monmouth, and John C. Conover, unsuccessful candidate for the Republican steering committee's backing in the Congressional primary.

The committee, which met last night at an undisclosed location, also chose Friday, Dec. 16, for its first public meeting, pending official approval, in the meeting room of the Town Hall.

"While there still are many policy questions to be decided," Mr. Lee told The Daily Register, "our essential program remains the same as was set forth in our initial policy declaration."

That declaration read in part: "In order to provide efficient and honest government in our community and to insure to the public a democratic and meaningful choice in the election of our officials, (we) hereby deem it necessary to select and sponsor a slate of candidates for election to the positions of mayor and council in our township."

The formation of the United Citizens group was widely interpreted as an attempt by Republicans to break the present Democratic majority on the Township Council, since the group is made up largely of Republicans and both Republican council members, Forrest L. Gillespie and Harry B. Tumen have attended the group's meetings. Mr. Gillespie, a member of the governing body for 12 years, is considered a member of the group.

Authoritative sources told The Register that Mr. Lee had asked the council for an appointment to a post in the township government. That appointment, the source said, had been under consideration "until quite recently" by the council but that now Mr. Lee had made the situation "impossible" by his activities in the United Citizens group.

Mr. Lee denies ever having been considered by the council for a position. "It was never mentioned to me," he said, "and I certainly never applied for a position."

Keansburg Inspector Dismissed by Blum

KEANSBURG — Building inspector Percy Matthews has been fired by Municipal Manager C. Bernard Blum, it was learned last night.

Mr. Blum told The Daily Register he has asked Mr. Matthews to continue in the position temporarily until a replacement is found. He predicted that an announcement on this will be forthcoming before the Planning Board meeting Wednesday, Dec. 7.

He explained that the post is a civil service position and that the borough has been seeking a qualified applicant for some time.

The Planning Board failed again to achieve a quorum.

Chairman Thomas P. Kennedy and members Eugene Mauro and Michael Motichka were on the scene at the scheduled time, but departed when it became obvious that the required five planners would fail to show.

Presents Problems

This problem has constantly hampered the body.

Only one meeting, on Oct. 26, has been held since July 13 and the quorum on that occasion was destroyed by the angry departure of Mr. Matthews.

There is at least one unhappy resident who is being adversely affected by the situation. Michael DeCarlo, 165 Main St., has been seeking a building permit since late summer for alterations to his structure.

His plans call for a two-family addition to an already existing two-family building.

Board members saw the plans first on Oct. 26, but withheld approval pending legal advice on the proposal.

They indicated last night that they are ready to act on the permit, but are unable to do so without a quorum. Mr. DeCarlo was advised to return Wednesday for the rescheduled meeting.

Heavy Storm, Lashes Lake, Sinks Ship

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) —A vicious winter storm which sank the 603-foot freighter, Daniel J. Morrell in Lake Huron continued to lash the Great Lakes today, colder and only slightly abated in fury.

Twenty-eight men were feared lost in the sinking Tuesday.

Gusty winds which earlier had raised 20-foot waves hit peaks of 35 to 40 miles an hour early today, and temperatures plunged close to zero in the northern portions of Lakes Michigan and Huron.

The bitter gales loosed snow squalls on the lee shores of the lakes and inland.

At Traverse City, heavy snowfall cut visibility to one-quarter mile in 10-degree air, whipped by 27-mile northwesterly gusts. At Houghton Lake in the north-central part of lower Michigan, it was 3 above zero with blow snow and 25-mile winds. Muskegon, Mich., on the east shore of Lake Michigan received 3 inches of snow in six hours.

In the northern plains, the cold was more severe. At International Falls on Minnesota's Canadian border, where the mercury has been below zero for more than a day, the temperature was 13 below at 2 a.m. Sub-zero air covered much of North Dakota and the northern portions of Minnesota and Montana.

The weather was on the cold side throughout the eastern half of the nation, and Florida had nighttime 30s and 40s. The Weather Bureau's 30-day forecast calls for colder-than-normal weather over the region. Above-normal temperatures are expected west of the Continental Divide, and near-normal weather elsewhere.

The cold air pushing in from central Canada set off snow showers and flurries over much of the Midwest and East.

Rain spread over the north Pacific coast and Washington state.

The south remained mostly dry and clear.

No Way Seen To Reduce Assessment

MANALAPAN — Acting on the advice of counsel, the Township Committee indicated last night that it could take no action to reduce the assessment on farm property belonging to Mrs. Anthony Kaiser.

Mrs. Kaiser's son, appearing on his mother's behalf, explained to the committee that his mother had apparently failed to file a form requesting that the 100-acre property on Rt. 33 be assessed as a farm for the year 1966.

Under state law, Mr. Sagotsky said, such a form had to be filed by Oct. 1, 1965.

Assessor Anthony Arbach, in a letter to the Township Committee, suggested that a change in the assessment could be made if the committee would adopt the necessary resolution.

Mr. Sagotsky advised the committee that under the law, it did not have the power to change the assessment.

Mr. Sagotsky extended his sympathy to Mr. Kaiser and suggested that he might, through a lawyer, be able to determine some way in which the change could be made.

Mr. Arbach estimated that the tax saving would have amounted to $1,000 had the change been granted.

Starting Pay For Teachers Rising $600

HOWELL TOWNSHIP — Starting salaries for teachers in schools here will jump $600 next year.

The Howell Township Education Association has announced that its members have accepted a salary guide proposed by the Board of Education which calls for an initial salary of $5,100 for teachers with a bachelor's degree.

The guide will reach a maximum of $9,400 in 11 steps.

Teachers with a master's degree will have a comparable guide, $600 higher than the bachelor's guide at each step.

John Malloy, field representative for the New Jersey Education Association, said the guide now is one of the best in the Monmouth County area.

Mrs. Hazel Brockelbank, secretary for the Board of Education, explained that the board has had a problem in getting teachers and that it is particularly interested in attracting new teachers.

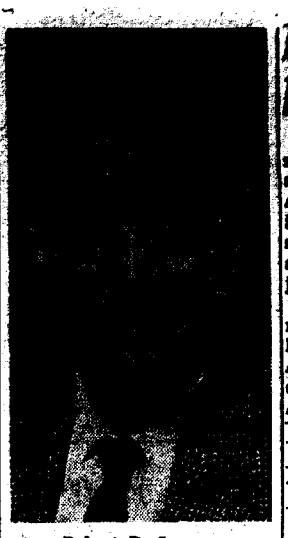

The school system has hired some 20 new teachers this year, Mrs. Brocklebank said.

Postman Hurt

MIDDLETOWN — Robert D. Murray, 28, of 141 Stephan Rd., Lakewood, was injured yesterday morning when the bolts on the front wheel of his "mailster" broke, causing an accident.

The accident occurred on Rt. 35 near Longwood Ave. No summons was issued.

100 Senior Citizens Told How to Obtain Federal Aid

LONG BRANCH — About 100 senior citizens gathered yesterday at the YW-YMHA to hear Charles Archbold of the Office of Economic Opportunity tell them how they should organize in order to achieve their goal of processing jobs for older people.

The group consisted mainly of members of the recently formed Monmouth County Senior Citizens Action Committee, which grew out of the Operation Medicare Alert program.

Mr. Archbold recommended that the group incorporate, appoint an executive director and apply for money from the $129,000 the state receives from the federal government under the Older Americans Act of 1965.

Mr. Archbold said the group might receive by Jan. 1 about $5,000 of this money with which they could pay their operating expenses.

Henry Richardson, president of the group, said senior citizens received none of the approximately $2 million allocated to Monmouth County by the poverty program and that it would apply to such programs as the "foster grandparents," one which he felt the members were qualified to undertake.

Mr. Archbold told The Register after the meeting that there was no definition of a minimum age for a senior citizen, so that anyone could be helped by the program.

Mr. Richardson said the group received free office space from the Monmouth Community Action Program (MCAP) and MCAP's full co-operation in placing the aged in jobs. One older person has been found a $9,000 a year engineering position through the group's efforts.

HOW TO BE A GOOD LOVER for Men Only

1—Tell her anything she may have heard about you was exaggerated.

2—Once in a while, very quietly, take the garbage out.

3—Gasp with delight when she's cleaned the hall closet.

5—Admit your mother's cooking always gave you heartburn.

6—Tell her you never believed it could be like this.

7—Assure her the models and actresses you meet are shallow, cold and much too skinny.

8—Take the Editorial Page of The Daily Register and roll into a long thin tube. Put one end in your mouth, sneak up behind her when she's washing the dishes, place the other end near the back of her neck, blow softly.

9—Bring her one rose.

11—Carry her across the room, if you're both in shape.

12—Point out an attractive fashion advertisement in The Daily Register and suggest she buy herself a dress.

13—Get jealous the day the repairman is coming and threaten to write a letter to the editor.

14—Tell her she doesn't need make-up.

15—Buy her a bikini.

16—Tell her you not only love her, you like her.

17—The day before she is to scrub the kitchen floor, bring her home an extra copy of The Daily Register to kneel on.

18—Put the bigger half of the eggroll on her plate.

19—Tell her you love her while she's diapering the baby.

21—Tell her you need her.

22—Say they take after their mother when anybody tells you the children are beautiful.

23—Tell her she can place a classified ad in The Daily Register and sell some of that junk in the attic. Let her keep the windfall.

24—Ask her to feed you chicken soup when you're sick.

26—Cut out little articles in The Daily Register which you think would interest your mother-in-law and mail them to her.

27—Growl when she calls you tiger.

28—Give her a box of candy to show you're a continental lover. Look into her eyes when you feed her the first raspberry creme. Don't hog all the pecans for yourself.

29—Kiss her fingertips.

30—Part your hair in the middle some night before retiring. It will make you look devilish, rakish, different.

31—Tell her newspapers make a big difference in people's lives. Be mysterious. You don't have to mention you read that in The Daily Register.

Confine Fire To House In Sea Bright

SEA BRIGHT — A fire in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Simon of Ocean Ave. was confined to the structure by the Sea Bright Fire Department, assisted by units of the Highlands and Rumson Fire Departments yesterday.

Fire Chief Cyril Smack said the fire started on a porch at the rear of the house. He said the origin of the blaze is being probed.

The fire apparently started in a portion of the dwelling facing the Shrewsbury River, Chief Smack said. He added that the blaze swept upward to the second floor of the structure and demolished that portion of the building.

The owners of the house, who were conducting extensive renovations, were not at home when the fire started.

Bridge Advice

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's very comfortable to stick to the book: If anything goes wrong, nobody can find fault with you. This is true enough in average games, but in a good game you are expected to do your own thinking instead of hiding behind a book.

West led the jack of spades, declarer covered with dummy's queen, and East played the king. South carefully discarded a low diamond.

South ruffed the spade continuation, drew one round of trumps and set up the diamonds by taking the top cards and ruffing once. Then he led a trump to dummy and threw two clubs on the good diamonds.

Declarer then gave up one club, making his contract. His fine play at the first trick had paid big dividends.

South would go down if he trumped the first spade. He would have to give West a diamond trick, and West would then shift to clubs. East would defeat the contract with two club tricks.

In most bridge games nobody would think of blaming West for his opening lead. He led his partner's suit — just as the book advises.

If he thinks, West should see that he will probably have no other chance to lead. East cannot need a spade opening lead to get whatever tricks can be won in that suit; but it is quite possible that East needs a lead in the unbid suit to get his tricks there.

For this reason West should lead a club, and South would go down. East takes two clubs, and tries to take a high spade. South ruffs but must eventually lose a diamond.

It is usually wise to lead your partner's suit, but there are exceptions to all rules.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: Spades—None Hearts—K Q J 9 8 7 4 Diamonds—K 8 5 Clubs—8 7 2. What do you say?

Answer: Pass. The high-card strength is not quite enough for an opening bid of one heart, but the hand is too good for a shutout bid. Pass and show your strength by bidding later.

New Senate Bid Planned

TRENTON (AP) — Republican Wayne Dumont Jr., who gave up a state Senate seat last year to run unsuccessfully for governor, Wednesday announced plans to claim a new seat in the upper house.

The 52-year-old Philipsburg lawyer announced his candidacy from the recently reapportioned Senate district comprising Hunterden, Sussex and Warren Counties.

Dumont's bid set the stage for a probable primary first next year against state Sen. Milton Woolfenden, R-Sussex, who has indicated he expects to run.

Both men are divided sharply over a state sales tax, an issue that could focus statewide attention on any primary battle.

Dumont was one of the early advocates of a 3 per cent sales tax. Woolfenden introduced legislation to abolish the levy when the Senate returned from its summer recess on Monday.

Reached for comment, Woolfenden said he "wouldn't be surprised" if the sales tax became an issue in a primary campaign.

He declined to say formally whether he would seek election in the new district. "I expect to call a news conference after the holidays," he said, "so you can read between the lines if you want to."

The Register's Opinion

Time to Strike a Balance

In submitting his bill for the creation of a separate Department of Higher Education, Governor Richard J. Hughes told the Legislature:

"The massive pressures and complex needs of higher education require a commitment now of unusual effort and attention—a commitment which can only be met by a separate department of state government."

During the days of hearings on the bill its opponents failed to produce any facts to counter the governor's contention. Both proponents and opponents agree that New Jersey must multiply its public facilities for higher education severalfold by 1975. Both agree that a master plan is needed if such rapid growth is to take place without chaos. The scope of the job dictates the need for a separate, cabinet level department.

Opponents of the bill have raised a specter of political meddling in education. To counter any such possibility the bill has been amended to provide that the Board of Higher Education, rather than the governor, shall appoint the chancellor—except for the first chancellor. Other objections have been met by amendments, including one to establish machinery for co-ordination between the Higher Education Department and the remaining elementary and secondary Education Department. Undoubtedly there will be a need for further changes once the new department has been established and begun to operate. The bill, however, should not be delayed in a search for perfection.

Our needs in higher education are too massive to be relegated to the present administrative arrangement under which higher education is one division in a department otherwise dominated by persons from the field of elementary and secondary education.

Some opponents of the bill fear competition for funds between the two sectors of public education. Such competition for the budget dollar is, and has been, unavoidable between administrative departments. Such competition gives each department an opportunity to "make its case." It is time that the case for higher education be heard. Under the present setup, its cause is pleaded by those who must also plead for our public schools, to the obvious disadvantage of our colleges. It is time to strike a balance.

The fear of the public school forces, including the school boards and the Parent-Teacher Associations is unwarranted. They should be willing to grant to higher education the special attention and administrative skills which they have enjoyed for so many years. The "Higher Education Act of 1966" is a much needed step which should be quickly taken. New Jersey's students deserve no less.

Contempt for the Law

If people who make our laws have no respect for them, what lesson is to be drawn by the ordinary law-abiding citizen?

That question is raised by the contemptuous and contemptible behavior of U. S. Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, a Harlem Democrat who has become a fugitive from justice. He figuratively thumbed his nose at New York's Supreme Court by refusing to surrender for a 30-day jail sentence and to pay a $500 fine for criminal contempt of court. Now he is subject to arrest whenever he sets foot again in the state of New York.

Earlier this week, he lost his congressional and Sunday immunity against arrest on the criminal contempt charges. N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich directed that Rep. Powell be seized if he shows up in the state on a Sunday or at any time whether Congress is in session or not.

The contempt conviction grew out of Rep. Powell's flouting of a court judgment of some $164,000 awarded to a 68-year-old Harlem widow in a libel suit brought because the congressman accused her publicly of being a "bag woman" for the police who collected bribes from gamblers.

As The New York Times has pointed out, Rep. Powell cannot argue reasonably that he is a victim of discrimination or that someone is trying to pick on him. Fifteen lawyers have exhausted every legal remedy in his behalf before 80 judges. The real injury done in this case is to the public image of the courts and, indeed, to government itself.

Is the world to be treated to the spectacle of American justice impotent before the arrogance of a congressman who is sworn to uphold the laws he helps to write? If the state of New York is unable to uphold the law, it seems to us that Rep. Powell should be held accountable in the chamber of his peers. The 90th Congress should refuse to seat him or to permit him to function as a congressman until he purges himself of legal contempt.

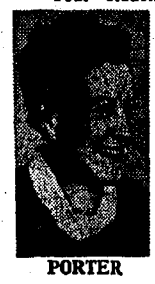

"Earlier This Year You Expressed A Wish For Spending Cuts?"

Sylvia Porter: Your Money's Worth

How to Finance College

If you're among the millions of parents of high school students panicking over the skyrocketing cost of sending your teenager to college, heed this constructive report:

PORTER

Your student should be able to earn $5,000 or more during his college years without endangering his college standing.

With other financial assistance he can get, he should be able to boost his income to $10,000 over the college period, the major portion of the $12,000-$14,000 cost of education at even the more expensive private universities.

"The forces which are pushing college costs up and up are also helping students to earn much of their own way," says Richard J. Black, assistant director of financial aid at Tufts University in Massachusetts and a man deeply involved in helping Tufts students find part-time or temporary jobs.

"It is actually easier to finance one's way through college than it has ever been."

* * *

BUT WHILE BLACK comforts you with this advice, he also sends you or your teenager two key warnings. The student must start planning in high school to acquire at least one valuable skill and he must manage to save enough to survive the first college year.

This is a highly unusual viewpoint which could be of tremendous help to frantic parents and youngsters. Here are Black's guides for the student (if you know any youngster or parent who can benefit from this report, pass it on.)

—Find out what skills are in demand by reading the help wanted sections of the local Sunday papers and checking with local state employment service offices. Among skills with which students are earning their way are: typing, bookkeeping, keypunch operating, computer programming, drafting and photography. A high school student can learn many of these skills by taking courses in his own school and learn others through on-the-job training in summer.

—Right now—in December—line up your job for next summer. Ask about openings in your home area, study the classified ads, seek guidance from your school's placement offices. In these weeks, you should be sending letters to potential employers, including a resume which your school officials can help you prepare. Of course, this is the time to be lining up jobs for Christmas, mid-season and spring vacations.

* * *

BE HONEST with your employer and let him know this will be only summer employment. Summer employers can be your future references and they might be your future employers.

—Don't jump at the first offer, for you're looking for two things: the highest possible pay and work which will contribute to your future career.

—Use your part-time jobs, from which you can earn $2 an hour or more, to help you find the field in which you would like to spend the remainder of your working life.

Black's central point is obviously that today there are far more job openings for skilled youngsters than there are takers. He reports that at Tufts, he now has 98 more off-campus positions available than he has students to fill them, ranging from copy-reading to semi-skilled work in hospitals. On average, part-time positions held during the school year take 10 to 12 hours a week, leaving ample time for study and recreation.

C.A. Johnston: Courthouse Square

Democratic Health

By CHARLES A. JOHNSTON

The healthiest thing to happen in the Democratic party in Monmouth County in more than a quarter-century was Freeholder Eugene J. Bedell's revolt against the machine effort to name an unknown to a new job in the prosecutor's office.

Taxpayers can rejoice generally because the immediate result of the successful effort barring creation of a sixth assistant prosecutorship saves them something like $6,000 or $7,000 a year.

JOHNSTON

On the surface, Mr. Bedell says he is not satisfied that the position is necessary. He doesn't deny, however, that he was offended that the patronage plum wasn't discussed with him personally by the party leadership in advance.

But neither of these reasons, it seems from here, tell the full story. The fact is that in making his bold challenge to the present leadership Mr. Bedell acted with full knowledge and approval of the newly-re-elected Democratic congressman, James J. Howard, who more than anybody in his party has demonstrated a refreshing enthusiasm for victory.

Democrats, as an organization, therefore, may be seeing the start of a new brand of philosophy, sharply different from the willing defeatism which for so long has emasculated the push and talent of workers in the vineyard.

* * *

IN PERSUADING the otherwise all-Republican freeholder board not to go along with the request of Prosecutor Keuper — and therefore the Democratic leader, Sheriff Kiernan, — to create a new position, Mr. Bedell also focused attention on some other disputed practices, both from the viewpoint of legality and judgment.

When the Legislature enacted a law in 1964 divorcing prosecutors and their assistants from active participation in politics, it provided that such officers could neither run for nor hold other public office.

Incumbents were saved for the life of their present terms. Mr. Keuper, in reappointing Mayor Solomon Lautman of Deal as his first assistant, has taken the position that the legal barrier does not apply to Mr. Lautman's eligibility to accept a new term on the prosecutor's staff, but only to his seeking another elective office again.

This may be the law — only a court test apparently will resolve it — but the interpretation is inconsistent with that employed earlier in the year when former Red Bank Mayor Benedict R. Nicosia was added as a fifth assistant prosecutor. Mr. Nicosia was forced to quit as mayor and as Democratic party chairman in Red Bank as prerequisites for appointment.

* * *

IT MAY NOT have been the only reason for reappointing Mr. Lautman, in the face of legal entanglements, but the move did spare the leadership the necessity of deciding whom to pick as a replacement for the high prestige, $11,200-a-year post.

In reappointing John A. Petillo, of Red Bank, to the $9,200-a-year third assistant's slot, from which he has been absent since February because of ill health, the Democrats have exhibited an elasticity of responsibility.

The freeholders expressed their anxiety in asking that Mr. Keuper set a deadline of 30 days or so for Mr. Petillo to return to his desk. And Mr. Keuper recognized the plausibility of their apprehension by agreeing.

But the trauma of effecting a separation at some future time can be awesome. No one hopes more sincerely that the day never comes but the circumstances that even require people to contemplate it are disturbing.

In bringing all these things into focus, Mr. Bedell has set himself — and, by consent, Mr. Howard — apart from the political leadership which sponsored them.

The effort can be effective, however, only if followed up. The freeholder and congressman have made it clear that they feel their positions entitle them to be consulted in matters of party policy and that if consulted they would not go along with the fuzzy thinking evidenced by this situation.

* * *

STRANGEST THING at the Court House this week was the sight of newspaper photographers taking pictures of — guess who — in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Elvin R. Simmill. The subject, of course, was the judge himself and the reappointed prosecutor and his aides.

Judge Simmill only this month decreed that the court house and grounds were off limits to newspaper picture takers. As forecast, here, however, the ban will be overlooked when judicial countenances are to be preserved by camera art in ceremonial, if unnewsy, splendor.

* * *

HATS OFF to Maj. Gen. William B. Latta, again, for insisting that the keynote of all Fort Monmouth community and public relations efforts emphasizes the significance of the Army establishment here to the fighting man.

The role that Fort Monmouth plays in making the front line soldier more skillful, better protected, and better oriented is one that should be appreciated and understood here in Monmouth County better than anywhere else. After all, Fort Monmouth for the most part is a product of Monmouth County citizens.

Stepping up the campaign, the general is about to announce organization of a speakers bureau to help tell the story on every stage and before every group that cares to be informed. Presentations will be on all levels, military, scientific, engineering, etc., on which Fort Monmouth has know-how.

In addition, the general has put his weight and prestige behind formation of a Monmouth County chapter of a civilian Association of the U. S. Army, a counterpart of the much better known Navy League and Air Force Association. The first meeting is next Tuesday.

Robert S. Allen, Paul Scott: Inside Washington

Some Political Notes

WASHINGTON — Senator Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, recently decisively re-elected to a fourth term, not only has served longer in the Senate than any other woman, but is due to make history as the first woman to be chairman of the Senate Republican Conference.

ALLEN

That important party office is becoming vacant due to the retirement of Senator Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass. Senator George Aiken, R-Vt., next in line for the place, has notified GOP colleagues he will step aside to make way for Mrs. Smith. Also with Saltonstall's departure, she will become the senior Republican on the potent Armed Services Committee.

Senator J. William Fulbright, Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whose acerbic blasts at President Johnson's Viet Nam and other foreign policies are not endearing him to Arkansas Democrats, is dropping hints he may not run for a fifth term in 1968. Close friends of Fulbright are saying he has been sounded out on becoming head of a well-known university. Before coming to Congress, Fulbright was head of the University of Arkansas and was ousted in a political feud.

SCOTT

Another senator deliberating not running for re-election is Pennsylvania's Democratic Joseph Clark. He will be 67 in 1968 and will be up for a third term. Clark has been dropping hints that he isn't particularly happy in the Senate and is thinking of quitting public life.

* * *

PENNSYLVANIA INSIDERS are convinced Governor William Scranton will seek Clark's seat, whether he runs or not.

James Roosevelt, who quit as a congressman in 1965 to accept appointment as a U.S. delegate to the United Nations, will resign to become head of a large investment firm.

Senator Paul Douglas, D-Ill, defeated for a fourth term, is being strongly recommended by Senate colleagues and other influential Democrats as a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Before entering politics, Douglas was a nationally known professor of economics at the University of Chicago.

Douglas has received several thousand letters and other messages from all over the country expressing regret at his defeat. The author of a number of books, he is planning to resume work on an autobiography that he started several years ago.

* * *

AT THE AGE OF 50, Douglas left his professorship and enlisted in the Marines. He was severely wounded at Iwo Jima, his left hand being partially disabled. He was released from the service as a major.

Wisconsin Attorney General Bronson LaFollette, 30-year-old son of the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette Jr., and the only Democrat holding state office to survive the recent election, has his eye on the governorship in 1968. His grandfather and uncle Phillip held that office.

Representative Robert Duncan, D-Ore, who lost out to Governor Mark Hatfield for a Senate seat, is being urged by Democratic leaders to run against Senator Wayne Morse, up for election in 1968. Duncan supports the President's Viet Nam policy, while Morse is the leading critic.

Governor Edward Breathitt is virtually certain to run against Republican Senator Thruston Morton, Ky., when he seeks a third term in 1968. Breathitt's term as governor expires next year, and he is barred from running again.

John Chamberlain: These Days

Connor Sets a Ball Rolling

The first order of business for the revived Republicans is to put a muzzle on people like Senator Jack Javits of New York who talk of their party future in terms of a hard-and-fast "left-right" split. The fact is that none of the more visible presidential personalities in the Republican Party fit easily into the cliche spectrum that has governed political discourse in this country since New Deal days.

CHAMBERLAIN

Is Governor Romney of Michigan a "liberal" or a "conservative"? His championship of "consumerism," based on his experience in the automobile business, is straight out of the era of the first Henry Ford, who believed in pushing high volume at lower prices. Is the newly elected Senator Percy of Illinois a "moderate" or a "reactionary"? He is, of course, the former—but the word means little or nothing if it is used to set him apart from Ronald Reagan of California. For both Percy and Reagan are looking for new ways to lure private industries and foundations into the business of turning welfare activity into voluntary channels. As for Richard Nixon, his appeal is that he doesn't conform to left-right stereotypes any more than the newer candidates who have emerged in recent months.

* * *

ONE KEY TO THE Republican future can be found, oddly, in the words of the Democratic Secretary of Commerce, John T. Connor, who, in a speech prepared for delivery last night at American University in Washington, D. C., took exception to the type of conventional "public sector" thinking represented by Professor John Galbraith of Harvard. Connor wasn't out to help clarify a specifically Republican problem; he was merely doing some straight thinking for the inauguration of the "American University Lectures in Business-Government Relations," which have been set in motion by a grant from New York publicist John Hill. Connor's seminal distinctions could be picked up by any political party, but the fact is that the Galbraith approach has saturated Democratic Party thinking on such things as low-rent housing, transportation and other businesses that have a distinctively "public interest."

In speaking of "public problem solving" Secretary Connor said "you will note that I did not say 'public sector problems.' What I want to suggest to you," he continued, "is that answers to the kinds of public requirements that face our nation may well defy the straitjacket implicit in this term."

Though Secretary Connor did not mention Professor Galbraith, the personal reference was obvious. It is Galbraith who has neatly set apart the "public" from the "private" sector and so dominated all recent official thought on what Connor calls "public problem solving."

* * *

IN HIS AMERICAN University speech Connor went on to praise the "entry of some of America's major business organizations into the area of housing rehabilitation, in a manner alike ambitious and experimental." He could have been referring to slum rehabilitation in New York City's Harlem by private industries whose legitimately selfish interest is in making a mass market for their own building materials and construction techniques. Or he could have been referring to the voluntary non-profit corporation set up in Los Angeles which has worked with government employment agencies to find 12,000 jobs for people in the so-called "Watts curfew" area.

This has cut the Watts unemployment problem almost in half. With proper training programs—another challenge for Secretary Connor's "public problem solving" as distinct from "public sector problems"—the remaining 13,500 unemployed in the Watts area could be placed in waiting jobs in booming California industry.

Secretary Connor's emphasis on good "public problem solving," as distinct from strictly "public sector" thinking in housing, should be meat for Illinois' Chuck Percy, who made such a play in his recent campaign with a plan for public financial guarantees of private non-profit corporations that would be willing to rebuild Chicago slums for sale over a long term to their inhabitants. Percy's idea is to increase responsible home ownership and thus get rid of dreary "public housing" that creates new slums.

Teddy and Pollution

64 Norwood Ave.
Long Branch, N. J.

To the Editor:

The recent air pollution crisis should be a warning and an impulse to action to those previously unconcerned. For decades Americans have watched their countryside and cities be despoiled by private interests, and even the most progressive of presidents have had only marginal success in preserving this nation's natural beauty.

Now we are beginning to realize that we have more to lose than scenery. No doubt millions of people can convince themselves that there is nothing wrong with America while driving through a once virgin meadow area that now looks like Dante's Inferno, just as they can convince themselves that no harm will come to them from smoking even while reading the warning printed on the side of the cigarette package. But now the states of New York and New Jersey declare a temporary "crisis," and it appears that the very air that we breathe is adulterated with poisons.

What Teddy Roosevelt wrote in 1913 has continuing application today: "It is better for the government to help a poor man to make a living for his family than to help a rich man make more profit for his company." For someone with heart disease or respiratory ailments, it is now a matter of life or death that the government (federal and state together) act decisively. If corporate profits are diminished, or taxes rise, so what? Every service costs something. When T. R. said "If it were true that to cut out rottenness from the body politic meant a momentary check to . . . prosperity, I would not for one moment hesitate to put the knife to the cancer . . ." he did not realize how literally meaningful his words were.

This is not all a matter of government, though. Many people in this area were burning leaves even during the most intense period of the pollution crisis. Simple Christian morality forbids such callousness, unless the commandment "Thou shalt not kill" has been repealed.

The Sewer Argument

106 West Washington Ave.
Atlantic Highlands, N. J.

To the Editor:

At the time I wrote my letter concerning the new sewer tax, I had no intention of becoming involved in personal feuds with anyone, nor am I desirous of being involved in any now. My only purpose in writing this letter is to correct some misconceptions that appeared in a letter to the editor on Nov. 22 directed at me.

1. The new sewer ordinance was designed to make the sewer operation a self-liquidating one, such as the Atlantic Highlands Harbor. Personally, I think this is an excellent idea. Prior to this ordinance, and contrary to some persons' beliefs sewer costs were paid through general taxation. There are many of us on the west side of town who have been begging for sewers for years, and throughout this period have been paying for the sewer plant's costs. In addition, we were also paying costly bills to install septic tank facilities, dry-wells, laterals, leeching fields, etc., to help compensate for the poor soil conditions in this area.

2. Laundromats are not taxed at the same rate as the homeowner. They pay a charge of $40 per year plus $20 for each machine in excess of one.

3. I can well appreciate that no ordinance can be written to please all of the people in Atlantic Highlands, but I would be most happy to pay $40 per year if I could have sewer facilities and get rid of septic tank headaches once and for all. Not the least of these headaches is the aroma of someone's tank overflowing on a summer's night while one is trying to get a breath of fresh air.

As to my critic's other comments re voting, and his personal problem in that he uses his toilet facilities in Atlantic Highlands "rarely," I can only comment that I believe his quarrel is with Borough Council and not with me.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth F. Misson

Disabled American Veterans
Freehold, N. J.

To the Editor:

I wish to thank your fine paper for placing Carl Bennett's story (Viet Nam disabled veteran who complained of Army treatment) before the public for their scrutiny.

You should be highly commended for high standards and editorial policies. Certainly you have put true meanings into the newspaper code of ethics . . .

I am an ex-paratrooper of World War II, so Carl and I tread on common air . . . It is my opinion that this old world keeps going because there are more good people than bad in it . . .

But now that the Bennett story has broken, it is my opinion that there is also a good story to be told about the excellent services legions of veterans get in VA hospitals.

Stamps in The News

By SYD KRONISH

DOES the Abominable Snowman exist? Inhabitants of the tiny kingdom of Bhutan, an Indian protectorate, think so. In fact, to emphasize such convictions, Bhutan has issued a new series of 15 postage stamps featuring paintings of the legendary figure called "The Abominable Snowman of the Himalayas." Each stamp has a triangular shape.

Reports from Associated Press writer Sontosh Basak in New Delhi and the Bhutan Post and Telegraph Department say the paintings on the new stamps are based upon original Bhutanese drawings found in monasteries, dozongs (forts) or on ancient manuscripts. The multicolor stamps depict three impressions of how the Snowman may look.

The natives in the area call him "Yeti." One impression is that of a shaggy ape-like beast, fierce and carnivorous. Another has him as a gentle human-like figure. A third observation sees the Snowman as a large but docile creature.

It is interesting to note that although various expeditions into the Himalayas have not uncovered positive proof that a "Yeti" exists, the mountain natives insist he does. And so, let the postage stamps enter into the old controversy.

To show that postage stamps are not always rectangular in shape, I have just discussed the triangulars from Bhutan and now must mention a diamond-shape adhesive issued by Iran. This new 5-rials stamp honors the Equity Courts of Iran and depicts an oval seal of the courts as the main design.

Usually, in the philatelic field, the values of stamps are higher when in mint (unused) condition rather than on an envelope. However, at a recent auction by Harmer Rooke in New York a stamp which catalogs for only $8 was sold for $1,450 because it was on a cover—and only about four such copies are known. The stamp is New Brunswick's 17-cent black Prince of Wales design of 1867.

Enroll 3,000 In Scouting

LITTLE SILVER — Boy Scout enrollments in the Red Bank-Middletown area are about even with last year at more than 3,000, Col. Raymond R. Tourtillott (USA-Ret.), roundup chairman for Monmouth Council of Boy Scouts, reports.

However, Col. Tourtillott says, "there are still parents of eligible boys in this area who haven't yet taken advantage of this chance to encourage their boys to enroll as Cubs, Scouts or Explorers."

He reminds area parents that the annual Boy Scout Roundup closes Dec. 31, and urges them to talk to their nearest scoutmaster or visit Boy Scouts of America, Monmouth Rd., Oakhurst.

"We Americans enjoy the greatest heritage any people ever knew," Col. Tourtillott said. "To strengthen, preserve and pass on this great heritage, we must teach our children about our history, the blessing of our form of government and about citizenship responsibility. Teaching boys these things is a primary function of Scouting."

The UN Military Staff

98 West River Rd.
Rumson, N. J.

To the Editor:

This letter is in answer to a front-page article I saw in your paper a short time ago, regarding the United Nations.

The following is your statement. It said "eight Communists headed the UN 'military staff.'" The UN has pointed out it has no military staff and, therefore, has never had a commander for one."

In the charter of the United Nations, Article 46 reads: "Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the military Staff Committee."

Article 47: (1) "There should be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council."

(2) "The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the chiefs of staff of the permanent members of the Security Council."

I would suggest that "The Charter" may be purchased for 50 cents at the United Nations bookshop.

An executive officer of the Security Council also holds the title of UN Secretary for Political and Security Affairs. This is the head of the Military Staff Committee.

In an article from the New York Times (May 22, 1963), I quote: "The post for political and Security Council affairs traditionally has been held by a Soviet national. The undersecretary is a senior adviser to the secretary general.

I hope you will publish this letter, for the facts should be straight. All of this information comes from United Nations publications, which I periodically purchase at their bookstore.

Sincerely yours,
Kathryn T. Smith

Magistrate Invokes 'Peace Bond' Statute

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — Magistrate Vincent Agresti last night invoked an old New Jersey "peace bond" statute as he ordered Robert Boscowitz of Cedar St., Oakhurst, to post $100 bond as "surety that he would keep the peace for a period of six months."

The bond states further that if Mr. Boscowitz "keeps the peace and is of good behavior towards the citizens of the state and particularly towards the complainants," his bond money would be returned at the end of six months.

The man was fined $50 on two counts of assault and battery against the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Woodworth of Cedar St., Oakhurst, and the 12-year-old son of a Mrs. Hunnewell of Wells Ave.

William C. Axelson Jr., Highlands Air Force Base, was found guilty of speeding 80 miles per hour in a 50-mile zone and fined $30. His license was revoked for 60 days.

Dennis Levell of Newark was fined $10 for careless driving and $200 for driving while on the revoked list. Leroy Thaxton of Pine St., Asbury Park, was fined $10 for disobeying a traffic signal and David Dangler of Wayside Rd., Asbury Park, was fined $5 for a delinquent inspection.

Courts Scrutinize 'Fine Print'

By BOB DUBILL

TRENTON (AP)—Is there too much squint in "fine print" of consumer contracts?

Justices of the New Jersey Supreme Court are asking the question more and more.

A half-dozen times in the past six months they've used some rather strong language expressing bewilderment over language in insurance policies, sales contracts and even an order by a state agency.

"I didn't know what it meant," observed Chief Justice Joseph Weintraub, referring to the fine print in an insurance policy under discussion. "I was stumped."

"I can't understand half of my insurance policies," said Justice Vincent S. Haneman.

"They're just not in plain and simple language."

"Why do insurance companies have so much trouble in using the mother tongue?" interjected Weintraub. "They say one thing in big type and in small type they take it away."

Consumer Oriented

The tone of the remarks underscored the belief among some court observers that this ranks as one of the most consumer-oriented courts in history.

"They're out to make sure the little guy doesn't get shortchanged," observed one lawyer. "You can see it in their decisions, particularly in the past two years. But where it really shows up is on argument days when they start firing those questions."

One of the more vivid expressions of discontent was contained in an opinion in March erasing an order that would have increased the minimum price of milk a half-cent a quart. It added up to a 4½-million dollar victory for milk consumers, at least until the outcome of further hearings which the court had ordered.

It said hearings by the state Office of Milk Industry on the issue should be conducted with the ideas that all parties are entitled to an objective review.

Must Understand

The court curtly observed:

"And in preparing a record, the agency should realize that a court cannot review something the court cannot understand. The record must speak in terms of details that strangers to the subject can comprehend."

A case heard last month involved a contractual sales contract, the paper a customer signs when he makes a purchase on time.

Associate Justice Frederick W. Hall complained he needed a magnifying glass to get to the heart of an important clause.

"It seems to me you couldn't have found any smaller type," he lamented.

The case involved oral arguments on a suit by a 14-man partnership in Elizabeth to collect on a note it had purchased from a now defunct organization. The note had been executed by a man who has since died. The court reserved decision.

In an oral argument three weeks ago, the court even raised the idea of creating a special federal agency for the protection of small stockholders.

Weintraub questioned the role of the Securities and Exchange Commission in protecting minority stockholders in the merger of New Jersey Zinc Corp. with Gulf and Western Industries, an auto parts manufacturer.

"Everything should be done to protect the stockholder," Weintraub said. Two minority stockholders complained that the merger was unfair to them on grounds they were not sufficiently informed.

A lawyer for the companies contended the statements in a proxy were clear enough or the SEC wouldn't have approved them.

"If this is what the SEC requires," Weintraub retorted, "then I'm not satisfied."

Two weeks before, the court professed puzzlement over whether the owner of an insurance policy providing comprehensive personal liability was really comprehensible to the buyer. A lawyer for the plaintiff contended an ordinary layman would conclude that the policy was comprehensive enough to include payment for workmen's compensation claims. He contended a workmen's compensation exclusion was hidden in fine print.

"I get the impression," said Justice John J. Francis, "that insurance companies keep the language of their policies deliberately obscure. If they put all the exemptions and exclusions in large type, the policy won't be as attractive to the prospective buyer."

On the same subject, Weintraub commented:

"A layman or a lawyer not versed in insurance must follow a torturous course to page 13 or 14 of the policy to find the exclusion."

Weeder's Guide

A good method of winter care of mums is to cut back the plant to about two inches above the ground after the first killing frost. Dig out the plants in clumps and move them to a cold frame.

Fill the openings between clumps with top soil, water well and cover the top of the cold frame with sash or glass panes. Evergreen boughs on top of the sash will help keep the soil frozen until spring.

If you prefer not to dig out the plants, cut back last season's growth to two inches after the ground has frozen. Cover the plants with four inches of marsh hay, straw or another coarse material that will permit air circulation. Do not use leaves or grass clippings that will pack solidly or decay easily. Remove the cover in the spring.

5 Penalized In Holmdel

HOLMDEL — Magistrate Seymour Kleinberg Tuesday fined William Cambel, Newark, $15 for speeding and $15 for delinquent return of summons.

Assessed $15 each for careless driving were Arthur Meyer Jr., Scotch Plains, and Nancy Randolph, 189 Main St., Keansburg.

Charles Allocco, 21 Bethany Rd., Hazlet, was fined $10 for making an improper turn.

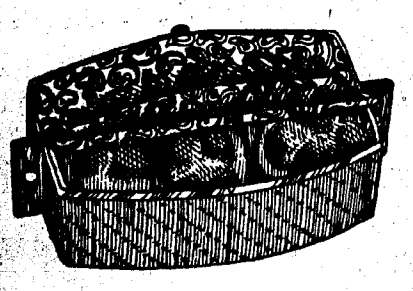

James Mertz, 25 Waverly St., Keyport, received a suspended $10 fine for littering and paid $5 in court costs.

ELIZABETH — Thomas Black of 711 New York Blvd., Sea Girt, representing the class of 1922 of Pingry School, Hillside, was cited at a recent dinner of the Pingry Alumni Association.

He was commended for his class participation in more than 60 per cent of the unit's 1966-67 activities. The dinner was held in the Winfield Scott Hotel, here.

Goldwater Aide Calls Romney Two-Year-Old Letter 'Baloney'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top man in Barry Goldwater's presidential campaign dismissed yesterday as "baloney" the two-year old charge of Michigan Gov. George Romney that the race was designed to appeal to segregationist Southerners.

But Dean Burch, who served as Republican national chairman during the last presidential race, ended his rebuttal there — and said he had advised Goldwater against debating the matter.

He said it threatened to renew the strife that split the party during the Goldwater campaign.

"We're just starting 1964 all over again," Burch, in Tucson, Ariz., said in a telephone interview. "That won't do anybody any good."

Both Romney and Goldwater men denied that they had first made public that 12-page letter the Michigan governor wrote on Dec. 21, 1964.

Written as an explanation of Romney's refusal to endorse the Goldwater presidential ticket, it complains about campaign strategy and makes this assertion:

"Indeed, the conduct of the campaign and the Nov. 3 election results demonstrated that your campaign never effectively deviated from the Southern-rural-white orientation."

Romney said there was "distressing evidence that this was part of the strategy," but added he did not believe Goldwater had shaped such a plan.

". . . A leading Southern delegate in a private conversation with me . . . made it clear that there had been a platform deal that was a surrender to the Southern segregationists, contrary to the entire tradition of the party," Romney wrote.

"That's a bunch of baloney," said Burch.

Goldwater himself was off on an Air Force Reserve flight, but a spokesman said he had decided against making any statement on the newly published Romney letter.

Its publication in the New York Times yesterday produced this series of events:

—Goldwater cabled Romney, who is vacationing in Puerto Rico, asking for permission to make public the text of the letter—and the letter he wrote which prompted it.

"Leaking the letter piecemeal as someone obviously is doing does not serve the best interest of our party," Goldwater said.

—At about the same time, Romney's office in Lansing, Mich., released the text of the letter. A Romney spokesman insisted the initial release had not come from the governor or "anyone acting in his behalf."

—Goldwater made public his initial, Dec. 6, 1964, letter to Romney. "Where were you, George, when the chips were down and the going was hard?" it asked. ". . . Many rank and file Republicans got a bad taste in their mouths when they saw leaders of their own party failing to support a national ticket."

Goldwater's letter also criticized New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, former Sen. Kenneth B. Keating and Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie for failing to support the ticket.

Romney's own presidential stock is on the rise now, boosted by his landslide re-election victory on Nov. 8. But conservative resistance, stemming from his 1964 posture, could pose a problem.

Four days after his re-election, Romney cited—without quoting—his letter of explanation to Goldwater. "Sen. Goldwater knows why I did what I did," he said.

Goldwater has maintained the letter is not a satisfactory explanation.

One Goldwater ally said publication of the letter would not do Romney's presidential prospects any good. He pointed to its assertion of a platform deal, and called that an assault on the entire platform committee.

"That just takes on the whole Republican party," he said.

But he insisted that Goldwater had flatly forbidden his associates to make any use of the letter. "Of course it came from the Romney people in one way or another," he said.

In Dorado, Puerto Rico, Romney said he was surprised at the publication of the letter. "It is past history and I have no intention of discussing the letter," he said.

Then he cabled Goldwater. "I regret the attention to the past instead of the progress we are making as a Republican party in directions we all favor," he said.

Plan Hootenanny At Red Bank High

RED BANK — Red Bank High School's Chapter of the American Field Service will sponsor a hootenanny Saturday in the high school gym. The affair will be at 8 p.m. and will feature the Chambermen from Middletown.

The proceeds will go toward the Americans Abroad program which will enable a junior from Red Bank High to go to Europe for a summer of study.

How Things Have Changed Since 1941

To a generation grown a bit fat and bald, it seems like only yesterday when the bombs dropped on Pearl Harbor.

Was it really just 25-years ago . . . or a century past?

Today, all across this richest, most powerful nation on earth, the apocalyptic missiles stand in deep and silent silos, pointed towards the sky and waiting, waiting . . . for Armageddon?

The American population has increased by a third to about 200 million, even while birth control programs have been admitted to polite society.

The superhighway and the cloverleaf have blossomed, and jet airplanes have taken over the skies.

Way, way out in the dark reaches of space, man-made satellites watch the earth with baleful eyes.

Infantile paralysis has been pushed into the limbo of half forgotten plagues, leaving heart disease and cancer as public health bogies No. 1 and 2.

The lunch counter sitins started by those crazy kids have turned into the civil rights revolution with all the attendant advances and clashes of school integration, Watts-type riots, marches and voter registration.

Television has developed from an annoying flicker to the point where more than nine out of every 10 households in the country have one or more TV sets.

The New Deal has been replaced as a subject for discussion and taxation by The Great Society. Anyway, discussions are no longer discussions but dialogues, buyers' incomes average about $2,550 today, compared with $709 in 1941.

While automation has canceled out millions of jobs and threatened millions more, unemployment has sunk from 5.5 per cent in 1941 to 3.9 per cent just lately.

The federal government has entered boldly into the once sacrosanct field of eduction and, coincidentally, college enrollment has increased about five times to nearly 6 million.

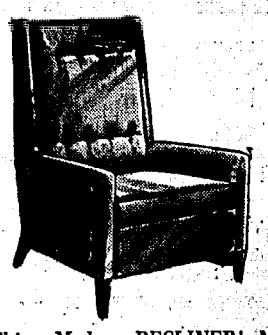

U.S. government receipts rose from $7 billion in 1941 to $93 billion in 1965. At the same time, the people who are paying all those taxes have had to pay a lot more too for living expenses. For instance, round steak that used to sell for 40 cents a pound was priced in a butcher shop the other day at $1.20. But then the total of U.S. armed forces on the eve of the greatest war in history stood at 1.8 million. Today the count is 3.2 million.

Was it only yesterday . . . or another era?

Late Rally Cuts Market's Losses

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — For the third straight session, more stocks declined than advanced yesterday but stock market averages were contradictory. A late rally cut many losses and moved some market indicators higher.

The ticker tape lagged in the closing minutes as some of the high-flying glamor stocks were bid up several points. Blue chips also showed considerable improvement but not enough to pull the Dow Jones industrial average out of the red.

The closely-watched Dow ended with a loss of 3.67 at 791.59 after having been down as much as 6.07 to 789.19 at 1 p.m.

Volume was 7.24 million shares.

The late improvement was so strong that two big market indicators erased early losses and ended with net gains. Standard and Poor's 500-stock index advanced .03 to 80.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index rose $.03 to $43.59.

More Losers

In the list of 1,417 issues traded, however, losers outnumbered gainers by 617 to 535. New highs for the year totaled 15 and new lows 41.

The downdrift was reflected by The Associated Press average of 60 stocks which fell .9 to 291.2 with industrials off 1.2, rails off .8 and utilities off .3.

The Wall Street background was dampened from the start by layoffs and further planned cutbacks by General Motors as well as continued doubt about the chances for a tax increase.

While the improvement came too late to give the market an unequivocal rise, it was soon enough to give a bullish flavor to the list of 15 most active stocks. Ten rose and five fell.

Sperry on Top

Sperry Rand was the most active stock, up 1¼ at 28⅞ on 201,700 shares. The stock has been recommended by one of the aggressive new research-oriented investment firms which specialize in Institutional dealings.

Fairchild Hiller, in second place, rose 2 to 16¼ on a published report that the U.S. and West Germany have picked this company's Republic Aviation division to help develop the vertical takeoff and landing fighter aircraft.

Third in volume, Douglas Aircraft spurted 4½ to 44 amid published rumors that a takeover bid was being made for the company.

Xerox rose 7½, Polaroid 3¾, IBM 3, SCM 2¾, Texas Gulf Sulphur 6⅛ and Magnavox 2⅝.

Prices were irregularly lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 2.26 million shares.

Spear

Successful Investing

By Roger E. Spear

Q) "After the takeover of consolidation Coal by Continental Oil, we receive a liquidation dividend of cash plus the following shares of stock: 92 Chrysler, 26 Continental Oil, three Toledo Edison, two Am. Electric Power, two U.S. Steel, one Nat. Steel and one Ingersoll-Rand. What do you think of these and should we buy more to round them out?"

E.G.

A) Each stock you have received has merit, although for investment purposes they differ markedly. If your primary objective is growth, I would build up Continental Oil, Am. Electric Power and Toledo Edison. If you need more income, I would hold Chrysler and build up the steel issues and Ingersoll-Rand. These stocks provide a well- secured return of about six per cent. But they are cyclical issues, sensitive to general business conditions and therefore likely to show wide price fluctuations. This characteristic should not disturb you as long as fundamentals remain sound in their respective companies and industries.

Q) "I would like your opinion on Peoples Gas, Light & Coke. I'm thinking of replacing this with some other stock."

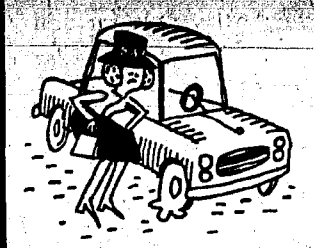

C.E.

A) You now own what I regard as a good growth utility, currently yielding about five per cent on the recently increased dividend. Continued expansion is looked for in all segments of the company's operations as a distributor of natural gas in the city of Chicago and in communities north of the city. Industrial and domestic customers are increasing as service areas are extended and gas is more widely accepted for both heating and air conditioning. Earnings have more than doubled in a ten-years uptrend and dividends have increased steadily.

In general, however, gas distributors have tended to lag in price compared with fast growth electrical utilities. If you wish good income with moderate growth I would continue to hold Peoples Gas. If price appreciation is your goal, you might do better in lower-yielding Southern Company, supplying electricity in the heart of the South.

In Lieu Of Loo, Portaloo

LONDON (AP) — Finding your way to the loo while motoring in Britain looks like being a bit easier before long.

The loo is what many Britons call the bathroom.

For years, motorists have complained that they can drive for a hundred miles and never see a loo. The motoring organizations such as the Royal Automobile Club have urged repeatedly that loos be laid on at lay-byes.

The official answer has usually been: "Too much expense, and anyway the vandals would only wreck them."

Now a newstyle lavatory called the portaloo, suitable for installation at lay-byes even though they may lack main drainage, is going into mass production.

The builders say that for less than $250 they can provide not only a loo but wash basin, mirror, liquid soap dispenser and towel holder.

As for the vandals, the company says, the portaloo is made of sheet metal and is robustly designed to discourage vandalism. From the outside, the portaloo looks like a steel sentry-box. Inside, in daylight, there's a golden glow from the plastic daffodil-yellow roof. At night, there's an electric light, out of reach of wreckers.

Vann Addresses N. Y. Chamber

FORT HANCOCK — Brig. Gen. Walter M. Vann, commanding the Nike Hercules air defense missile batteries of the U.S. Army Air Defense Command (ARADCOM) from Boston to Philadelphia, recently spoke to the New York Chamber of Commerce in New York City.

Gen. Vann discussed recent air defense developments and the structure of the New York City air defense shield.

Gen. Vann is the commanding general of the 52d Artillery Brigade (Air Defense). The 52d Artillery Brigade, with headquarters here.

LEADERS GET AWARDS

LINCROFT — River Plaza Girl Scout troop leaders met in River Plaza School to receive awards for scouting service.

Mrs. Al Gurley, executive director of the Monmouth County Council of Girl Scouts, presented the awards.

Scout Drive Over Half-Way Mark

FREEHOLD — Daniel Boutote, chairman of the Greater Freehold Area Boy Scout Finance Committee, announced that the current fund drive topped the half-way mark.

Mr. Boutote said the committee has so far raised $76,000, and he expects to surpass the goal set for this year.

The funds will go toward the $150,000 operating budget of the Monmouth Council, Boy Scouts, for the coming year.

Hanukkah to Be Observed

By ANNE ROSSANO

MATAWAN TOWNSHIP — Like other Jewish children in the county, the youngsters of Temple Shalom, the Reform congregation of the Matawan area, will celebrate Hanukkah this year at a special children's service to be held Friday, Dec. 9.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Matawan Regional High School auditorium.

Hanukkah, the Jewish "Festival of Lights," is a holiday loved especially by children because it has become a time for giving small gifts, very often distributed on each of the eight nights of Hanukkah.

They love it, too, because it is the traditional time for eating latkes, a kind of potato pancake, and for playing the dreydel game. The dreydel is a small four-sided wooden or metal top that is spun by hand. The sides are inscribed with the four Hebrew letters which began the words; "Nes Gadal haya sham," or "A great miracle happened there."

The words refer to an actual historical event, the Hebrew struggle for religious freedom from the tyrannical regime of the Greco-Syrian emperor, Antiochus Epiphanes in 165 B.C.E. (before the Christian era).

Victory Over Despotism

Hanukkah, which begins next Wednesday at sundown, symbolizes the victory of a spiritual ideal over military and political despotism.

A handful of Jews, determined to preserve their faith and their culture, openly defied the power of the Syrian king who was equally determined to suppress Jewish belief in One God and its observance.

The king seized the temple in Jerusalem, filled it with idols and ordered that it be used for pagan practices and sacrifices to the Greek god Zeus.

The Jews, under the leadership of Judah Maccabee, fought the King's army for three years. The account of the struggle and final victory is recorded in the Book of Maccabees:

The Maccabee army, much smaller than the enemy force, set up a dummy camp. The Syrian Greeks believed this to be the complete Jewish encampment, and attacked in full force—to find themselves surrounded by the Hebrew army which had left under the cover of darkness and encircled the area.

The Syrians were decisively defeated and Maccabee led his troops back to the city. There the Jews cleansed and purified the Temple of every pagan object and, according to legend, they found just a single jar of holy oil, only enough to keep the eternal light burning for one day before the Holy Ark.

But, miraculously, this one jar burned for eight days and eight nights, allowing the priests to prepare enough oil so that the eternal light could remain lit without interruption.

Judah Macabbee then proclaimed an eight-day holiday to celebrate the rededication of the temple to God. Thus the festival received its name — Hanukkah, which means "dedication."

Candlelighting Ceremony

It is generally agreed by scholars that, if Judaism had been defeated by the Syrian-Greeks, the religious foundations upon which Christianity was later established would have been lost to the world. Neither Judaism or Christianity would have exerted influence on civilization.

Today, the main event of Hanukkah is the candlelighting ceremony commemorating the light that burned during the rededication of the temple.

Every night of the festival, the father of the family places candles in a special candellabrum called the Menorah. In the presence of the whole family, he lights one candle on the first night, two on the second and so on until eight candles are lit on the last night, always using a helping candle called the Shamos and reciting a blessing.

Then, following the ceremony, the family may sing Hanukkah songs, including one that is known to believers everywhere, Rock of Ages.

FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS — Rabbi Moshay Mann, spiritual leader of Temple Shalom, the Reform Congregation in Matawan Township, shows Steven Molinoff and Karen Amy Seidel how to use the Menorah, a candelabrum used for candlelighting ceremonies during the eight-day Jewish festival, Hanukkah. A special children's Hanukkah service will be held by the temple next Friday, Dec. 9.

Not a House of God

By HEINZ RUDI BRUNNER

FRANKFURT, GERMANY (AP) — Frankfurt's best known church has no pastor and no congregation. Historic Paulskirche (St. Paul's Church) has a cross-topped belltower but it is not even a house of God any more.

As the meeting place of Germany's first National Assembly in 1848, a bomb-shattered Paulskirche was rebuilt after World War II as a shrine of the fatherland. Thousands of tourists visit the onetime Protestant church every year to be told that this was the birthplace of democratic Germany.

The 133-year-old building where services had been regularly held until 1944, became a post-war place of festive events. President Kennedy spoke there during his 1963 Germany visit. Albert Schweitzer, the late Nobel Peace Prize winner, and dozens of other leading international personalities also addressed ceremonial assemblies in Paulskirche.

But the church also was the site of numerous not-so-formal events. Family planning congresses, stamp exhibitions, flower shows and even a Swedish expert on potato boiling attracted paying guests to the shrine.

The city administration, which had become owner of Paulskirche after its reconstruction, came under growing fire for being too generous in renting the building to commercial users.

"I would not be surprised if some day a course teaching cornremoving would be held in the church," one citizen angrily wrote to city hall.

City fathers could point to a precedent in history: When Paulskirche was still unfinished, Protestant authorities — in return for an unrecorded sum — gave their approval for its use as a carnival ground. Top feature of the fair, in 1791, was the captive balloon of France's famed Madame Blanchard.

But the criticism stuck despite this historic point. City fathers have just promulgated new rules stipulating that henceforth Paulskirche will not be made available for commercial purposes.

"Paulskirche is no meeting place but a historic shrine," the rules state. "It is the symbol for the democratic will of the Germans." Officials explained that the rules were drawn up to preserve the dignity of the place.

The church will continue to be available for award presentations and other "serious" events. The rent remains unchanged—276 marks ($69) per day, plus heating and light.

Exterior and interior views of the new Kennedy Memorial

Many Travel to See Kennedy Memorial

JERUSALEM (ISRAEL SECTOR) (AP) — The Kennedy Memorial on a Judean mountain top to the West of Jerusalem has become a site of pilgrimage for Americans visiting Israel.

Many Israells—and tourists in general—also come here.

It was said of the impressive structure—a circular building on an elliptical plaza of dark granite slabs—that it has the form of a mighty trunk of a fallen tree.

Inside the memorial shrine—at present still empty—a small museum will be established to display documents and pictures on the history of Israel-American relations until the time of President Kennedy's death.

The memorial, named in Hebrew Yad Kennedy, stands about 3,182 feet above sea level. About 27 feet high and 266 feet in diameter, it consists of 52 pylons of faced concrete with 51 windows in-between: one for each of the 50 States of the U.S. and one for the District of Columbia. Each window-pane shows the emblem of one of the States of the Union. In the center burns an eternal flame.

From the site of the memorial—built by the Jerusalem architect David Reznik — one looks over the Judean hills, partly covered by the newly planted Kennedy Peace Forest, toward the mirror of the Mediterranean to the West; Nabu Samuel, the village of the Prophet, to the North; the hills of Bethelehem to the East and the slopes of Bittir village in the south—the site of the historic fortress of Beitar where Bar-Kochbah was defeated in 135 AD with the collapse of the Jewish revolt against the Romans.

The Kennedy Memorial with the nearby Kennedy Forest was dedicated last July 4th, on the 190th American Independence Day. Chief Justice Earl Warren who headed the American Delegation, said that the erection of this memorial in the heart of the Land of the Bible is all the more appropriate as Kennedy was among the most ardent pursuers of the ancient biblical ideal of peace.

The Kennedy Peace Forest will contain five and a half million trees, mostly Jerusalem pines. According to the official plan, this is to mean one tree for every American Jew. The Forest will form part of a green belt around Jerusalem—as it was during biblical times. The renewal of growth converting bare hills despoiled through long centuries of soil erosion is felt to be symbolic of the spirit of the late American President.

The Jewish National Fund (Keren Kayemeth) which initiated the double project of the memorial and the forest, chose this specific area because it is in the center of Judea, close to Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Hebron—the scene of so many biblical events. The heritage of the past here, thus becomes linked with the more recent memory of John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Friendly Dolphins Join Race

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A school of dolphins, 200 or so, joined in an ocean water ski race near Sydney.

They frisked among the 17 contestants, raced within inches of skiers and boats, leapt over ski ropes.

"They went under us, in front of us and even over us," said Doug Turner, one of the boat drivers.

The ski race was from Shellharbour to Wollongong, 26 miles, and return with another group of 17 skiers.

The dolphins burst on the skiers about two miles out of Shellharbour, and at first the startled skiers thought they had been joined by a pack of sharks. Then the identity of the playful dolphins, about six feet long, was established. They are harmless to man.

One skier, Howard Mitchell, struck a dolphin, and broke his water ski. He was not injured, and as far as anyone could establish, neither was the dolphin.

The dolphins disappeared at the entrance to Wollongong Harbor, but they were waiting for the skiers on the return trip. They kept abreast of the field, flashing around the skiers and boats, to the mouth of Shoalharbour Harbour, then disappeared again.

For Christmas, your gardening friends, young, old and in between will enjoy a new package containing a bright concept in starting plants from seeds.

This gift item is (George W. Park's) One-Step Seed Starter. The package contains plastic trays, 48 pellets that are a seedflat, pot, sowing and growing medium with fertilizer in one. There also will be a marking pencil, plastic identification tags, a heating cable and a packet of fertilizer.

Add water to the thin wafer that is two inches in diameter. It will expand quickly into a two-inch pot filled with an efficient weed and disease-free growing medium for starting seed for later planting in larger containers or outdoors.

The roots grow right through the plastic netting around the wafer. You can plant the whole unit in the garden and the plant will grow there without transplanting shock.

A dozen pellets will soak up 1½ pints of water in their expansion.

Small seeds placed in the pot need not be covered. Larger seeds should be pressed into the peat moss of the pot and covered lightly with the peat.

The trays may be kept on a sunny window sill or beneath a fluorescent lamp.

The heating cable provides the warmth needed to get seeds started. The cable strands are spread evenly under the trays, and removed after seedlings have emerged.

If you start seeds in the tiny pots, sow a few in each pot and thin as they grow, transferring the surplus to extra pellets.

The National Chrysanthemum Society reports that an insecticide solvent is being used to remove the side buds on chrysanthemum plants. U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists said they found that if the solvent, a naphthalene-base oil, was applied in just the right time and amount the terminal flower was not affected, but the lateral buds abort.

This is what produces the big football mums now developed by nipping buds by hand.

The chemical, which needs more testing, does not work well with all varieties.

Rhodesian Showdown Talk Set

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Rebel Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith agreed to meet today in a showdown attempt to end Rhodesia's rebellion.

The confrontation will take place in conditions reminiscent of the secret meetings of statesmen during World War II—probably aboard the British Cruiser Tiger off or near the Mediterranean Island of Malta.

High British authorities said there were clear signs Smith's white minority regime was ready to yield on some of the constitutional issues in dispute.

"There is a chance," one British minister commented. "The alternatives to a settlement could be so shattering to all concerned that the awareness of the dangers must finally penetrate to both sides."

Wilson was to make a statement in the House of Commons this afternoon before leaving to meet Smith.

UN Action Weighed

The British government has been preparing to ask the U.N. Security Council to vote mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia if Smith did not give way by this weekend. British officials attributed the retreat they said the Rhodesians had made to the influence of South African Prime Minister Balthazar J. Vorster's government, whose support has enabled the Rhodesians to circumvent partial sanctions already in force.

Smith left Salisbury before dawn in a Royal Air Force Comet which had taken Sir Morrice James, a special British envoy, to the Rhodesian capital Tuesday night. With Smith and James were Britain's governor in the colony, Sir Humphrey Gibbs. It was Smith's first meeting with the governor since he declared Rhodesia's independence in November, 1965, and refused to recognize Gibbs as the representative of the crown.

An announcement from Wilson's office said he would be accompanied to the meeting by Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden and Attorney General Elwyn Jones.

"The purpose of this meeting," the announcement said, "is to ascertain whether, within the program of action to which the British government is committed by the communique issued at the end of the recent meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers, a settlement of the Rhodesia problem can be reached on the basis of the principles to which it has throughout adhered."

Independence Proclaimed

Smith's government, representing Rhodesia's 225,000 white settlers, proclaimed Independence from Britain nearly 13 months ago in defiance of persistent British demands for guarantees of eventual transfer of power to the colony's 4 million Africans.

Wilson now is seeking a new Rhodesian constitution which simultaneously will restore legal rule to the country and provide the basis for an eventual African takeover.

In September, Wilson headed off the demands of African and Asian members of the Commonwealth for a British military expedition to crush the rebellion. He pledged that if one last attempt at a settlement failed, Britain would ask the UN Security Council to impose certain mandatory sanctions on the Rhodesians by Christmas.

A draft British resolution invoking mandatory sanctions already is under discussion with the Americans in Washington and with key Commonwealth governments.

A settlement with Smith almost certainly will be seen by some African, Asian and Communist countries as a white man's deal. It could leave Rhodesia under the leadership of someone regarded by many as a racist.

However, British ministers believe that UN action could lead to a runaway escalation of the quarrel with almost irresistible pressures for the imposition of oil sanctions not only on Rhodesia but on neighboring South Africa. This could bring Britain and South Africa into collision, with disastrous effects for their rich trading relationship and consequently for the British pound sterling.

It Depends on Whom You Ask

Pay Guide Status Views Vary

By ELINOR MULTER

FREEHOLD — Work on a new salary guide for teachers at Freehold Regional High School is going well, hardly at all, or in reverse, depending on whom you ask.

All parties agree that the Board of Education and the salary committee of the Freehold Regional Teachers Association have held one meeting.

Ed Davis, chairman of the salary committee, indicates that it was "a hard working session" and appears to be satisfied.

Dr. Jacob Lewis, president of the regional board, denied that the board negotiated with the teachers. He said there were discussions but that the board has not "congealed" its thinking.

"We will get down to things in the next week or two," the board president said.

Melvin Willett, chairman of the bargaining committee of the Freehold Regional American Federation of Teachers, said Education Association salary committee members revealed that the Board of Education finds the FREA proposal too low at the bottom, too high at the top, and out of order in-between.

The FREA proposal called for the establishment of a ratio guide with salaries at each step bearing a fixed relationship to salaries at the initial step.

The FREA proposed to retain the present starting salary for teachers with a bachelor's degree, $5,500.

Several teachers in the school have reported that the board is not satisfied with the $5,500 starting salary, apparently believing that it would put the high school at a disadvantage in competing for new teachers.

FREA officials were known to be pessimistic about the chance of getting the board to accept the ratio principle.

Mr. Davis reports that another board meeting between the FREA and the board has been scheduled for Monday.

The AFT group has characterized the FREA as a "minority organization" and has reiterated its call for an election to determine which organization shall represent the teachers in discussions with the board.

The AFT has scheduled a meeting in the Freehold building of the high school at 3:30 Monday, and has invited all faculty members to attend.

Faculty members were invited to come and give their opinion of the AFT salary proposal which calls for a starting salary of $7,000.

Mr. Willett promised that "an impartial parliamentarian," one who does not belong to either teacher organization, will be present at the meeting.

In referring to the FREA as a "minority" group, Mr. Willett said the AFT challenges the list of 144 members which the FREA turned in to the school administration.

"Many of the people whose names were on that list have challenged the right of the FREA to turn in their names," Mr. Willett reports.

The AFT met last night at the Colts Neck Inn to map its strategy in the current controversy.

Members of the AFT would like to have an opportunity to talk to the team . . . representing the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools which will visit the high school later in the year to evaluate it.

WORK OVERTIME

In addition, AFT members want either extra time off or extra pay for the time, outside of school hours, which they are putting in in preparation for the evaluation.

Mr. Willett reports that some teachers are being asked to come in at 7 a.m. or to stay until 6 p.m. to work on the evaluation.

The AFT is hopeful, Mr. Willett says, that some new people will file for seats on the regional board in the February election, in a move to defeat those incumbents who choose to run again.

Commenting that the public schools are operated primarily for the children of working people, Mr. Willett called for more "labor-oriented and liberal members on boards of education."

Launch Block Parent Program in Raritan

RARITAN TOWNSHIP — The first steps toward citizen defenses against child molesters were taken last night with the initiation of a Block Parent program here.

Frank W. Long, Howell Township, official of We Must Care, Inc., moderated an open meeting at Township Hall to get the program rolling. An estimated 60 persons viewed the film, "The Child Molester," and participated in a discussion of the problem.

Representatives from local Parent - Teacher Associations and members of the sponsoring organization, the Woman's Club, were among those who heard Mr. Long tell ways to prevent child molestation and to aid children in danger on the streets.

The Block Parent program will be set up with one or two homes in each block displaying an emblem in a prominent window—a guide to children that they can go to this house for help.

The emblem shows an adult hand covering a child's hand, depicted in white, against a dark red background. The lettering "Block Parent" is in black.

Working from those homes closest to schools, residents who volunteer to participate will be fingerprinted, as will be any person over 18 who is living in the residence, and will await clearance from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

All signs will be numbered and registered. If the participant moves or decides not to continue as a Block Parent, the sign will be returned to the organization.

Mrs. A. William Norris, president of Raritan Township Woman's Club said the main concern now is those streets nearest the schools on Sycamore Dr. and Union Ave. He said wholehearted support of township residents and organizations, working as a team, is needed for the success of the program.

Many persons have volunteered as block parents, he said, but some have been found unqualified to participate. Responsibilities for those designated as block parents will be explained after fingerprinting clearance.

Mr. Long, speaking before the presentation of the film, stressed that We Must Care, originated three years ago by Milton Halvorsen, an iron worker from Ridgefield, was started by "people" just as the Block Parent program will be "people."

Raised Reward

After reading of a child molestation report, Mr. Halvorsen, as an aroused parent, went door-to-door and raised $378 as a reward for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of the offender. This was the beginning of an educational process which has spread to several states with a membership of 2,500.

The speaker emphasized that the danger of child molestation is a much larger problem than most people realize. There are an estimated 115,000 sex offenders in New Jersey, he said, and more than 200 deviates have been apprehended and sentenced in Monmouth County since January.

What are the answers and how can corrective measures be instigated?

One solution is to start with preschool children, cautioning them not to talk to strangers or to accept gifts from them.

Mr. Long said, "It is negligence on the part of any parents who fail to instruct their children about molesters."

He and Mr. Halvorsen advocate inde terminate sentences for offenders and more institutions for treatment of those with abnormal sex desires.

They urged that boards of education co-operate by allowing teachers and school custodians to be checked with the Sex Offender Bureau in Trenton and that boards adopt the We Must Care program for twice-a-year-viewing.

Say Canneries May Quit State

TRENTON (AP) — A number of the state's big canneries and food processors are threatening to pull up stakes and move elsewhere because of the overtime feature of the state's new minimum wage law, an industry spokesman said Wednesday.

Al Davis, an official of Seabrook Farms in South Jersey and chairman of a labor relations committee representing food processors, said most big processors had ordered a halt to any new expansion plans.

Some firms, he said, were prepared to shift operations to plants in neighboring states.

Davis said the processors were not opposed to the $1.25 minimum wage set to take effect Dec. 15. Most canneries are now unionized, he said, and paying more than the minimum.

But he contended the time-and-a-half requirements of the law would put the canner at a serious competitive disadvantage with other states.

Under federal minimum wage law, food processors are allowed a 10-week period during the peak of the packing season during which they do not have to pay overtime until a worker exceeds 48 hours of work. A second 10-week exemption period strikes out overtime until a worker surpasses 56 hours a week.

The new state law takes precedence over the federal regulations and requires time and a half after 40 hours.

The processors, supported by State Agriculture Secretary Phillip Alampi, conferred in Atlantic City earlier this week to plan strategy.

An industry source said the first course of action would be a drive to line up legislative support for an amendment to bring the state back into line with the federal exemptions.

If that fails, he said, the processors could appeal to the labor department to set up a wage board empowered to make special changes in the wage act.

Organization Democrats To Act on Langan's Letter

UNION BEACH — Organization Democrats next Wednesday will face the problem of whether to accept the resignation of William J. Langan as a member.

Mr. Langan quit his seat on Borough Council Monday night, offering no explanation. A similar letter of resignation was received by organization president Fred J. Varlese.

And, while no one will talk for publication, reports are that Mr. Langan and Mr. Varlese have been feuding over results of the primary election which saw organization candidates take a trouncing for council nomination and lose seven of 10 county committee seats.

Mr. Langan was principal spokesman for lame duck Councilman Philip J. Cassidy and his running mate Peter Walker during the primary campaign. Reportedly, this position has caused him to shoulder much of the blame for their defeat.

William J. Langan

Opposes Unity?

Also unconfirmed is a report that Mr. Langan is unhappy with the welcome mat rolled out by Mr. Varlese for newly-elected municipal chairman Paul J. Smith, an advocate of restoring unity among Democratic factions in the borough.

Party leaders claim friction between the two men reached the state where support for Mr. Langan's re-election bid next year was to be denied, causing him to step out of politics, at least temporarily.

Speculation continues to circulate on the appointment to fill Mr. Langan's council seat. Despite considerable opposition from party leaders and workers, the possibility remains strong that Councilman Cassidy may be given the nod. Several party leaders assert Mayor Alfred T. Hennessy Jr. does not want the seat given to Mr. Cassidy but may have to nominate him to keep peace at the top of the organization.

Topography Problem Stalls House Project

NEW SHREWSBURY — Unusual topography has kept plans of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Corbett of 302 Riversedge Rd. to build a house on a lot adjacent to their property hung up for the past year.

The last two hours of last night's lengthy Planning Board meeting did little to resolve the problem. Discussion centered on whether the Planning Board wanted to take jurisdiction in the matter, referred to it from the Zoning Board of Adjustment, and if it did want to, whether it legally could.

The legal aspect became academic when the board adopted a resolution moved by Justin Henshell that jurisdiction not be accepted, but that advice be given the Zoning Board.

Another resolution, introduced by A. John Erlacher and adopted after much discussion and amendment, provides that upon formal request of the Zoning Board, the Planning Board will select an engineer to make a feasibility study of the site plan submitted by Mr. and Mrs. Corbett. The engineering fee would come from funds to be placed in escrow by the Corbetts.

The engineering findings would be forwarded to the Zoning Board to enable it to consider intelligently variances applied for by the Corbetts.

Harry E. Westlake Jr., Zoning Board chairman, said advice from the Planning Board is necessary because the Zoning Board has no machinery available to consult the required experts.

Last January, the Zoning Board granted the Corbetts area and frontage variances for the undersized lot, situated on a bluff over Swimming River. Variances for front and side setbacks were denied.

In their decision and a cover letter, the zoners asked the planners to assume jurisdiction in the matter and consider site plan approval of the project as if it were a commercial or industrial plan. Residential plans normally do not require site plan approval.

Since the planners refused to accept jurisdiction, Theodore D. Parsons Jr., Red Bank attorney for the Corbetts, must re-apply to the Zoning Board after it gets its advice.

Milton M. Abramoff, Red Bank attorney for neighbors of the Corbetts who object to the project, said his clients would not accept opinions of Henry F. Labrecque, borough engineer, because of a possible conflict of interest. Mr. Labrecque is the uncle of Theodore J. Labrecque Jr., Red Bank attorney associated with Mr. Parsons.

Chief fear of the objectors is that the proposed dwelling may break down the steep bluff to the river, possibly sliding downhill and becoming a derelict.

Mr. Henshell and Mr. Erlacher were appointed a committee to select the required engineer.

Dr. Samuel E. Furman, local dentist who is constructing a professional building on Sycamore Ave. near the Garden State Parkway, was granted approval of a sign adjacent to the building's driveway.

Ray Smith, realtor at 588 Shrewsbury Ave., was granted approval for erection of the corporate sign of Realty Group Inc. on the roof of his building.

Earp and Bloomfield Laboratories of Red Bank, bacteriological manufacturers, were granted site plan approval for two metal buildings at the corner of Gilbert Rd. West and Gilbert Rd. South on Shrewsbury Terminals, Inc., property. The buildings will be used for office space and storage. They must have brick facades.

Shop Vandalized

LONG BRANCH — Police are investigating vandalism at De Romas Hair Stylist, 142 Brighton Ave. According to police, a bucket containing red paint was thrown through a window of the store sometime during the night. The damage was discovered at 4:30 a.m. today by a passing patrolman.

Catastrophe Seen Inevitable

Asks Space Rescue Plan

BOSTON (AP) — A space expert said today that a space catastrophe is inevitable and urged that the United States move faster to develop a rescue system to aid disabled or stranded astronauts.

Dr. Eugene B. Konecci of the National Aeronautics and Space Council reported the United States is studying several plans, "with very limited resources being applied to the whole manned rescue area as an integrated problem."

In a paper presented at the annual conference of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, Konecci said the studies have provided valuable research but "perhaps we should move faster with a definite plan.

"We intuitively know," he said, "that some day, maybe in the not too distant future, we and/or the Soviets will suffer a manned space catastrophe."

He said many believe the need for space rescue is justification for starting on the next generation of spacecraft, whose main job would be to ferry men and supplies between the Earth, moon and space stations.

Konecci said these craft, already on drawing boards, could be adapted as rescue vehicles. They would land on airport-like runways and could be launched many times.

He said the cost of a rescue system could be kept down by incorporating it into the basic design of a new system.

"Many feel," Konecci said, "that the longer we delay some specific program plan to get such a system, the greater becomes the reaction of public, Congressional and international indignation that we risked lives of our astronauts . . . This would be especially true if they are stranded alive for extended periods."

Konecci said a commitment to start a ferry-type spacecraft development program within three or four years could lead to a rescue capability by the mid-1970's.

Other national space officials said no commitment has been made to a new program because of the great cost — at a time when the space budget is being trimmed by Viet Nam and other considerations.

They said for the time being, money would be spent in making the Apollo spacecraft as safe as possible. Most recognize the need for space rescue as soon as it's economically feasible.

Konecci said a rescue program would cover all emergencies, including having a rocket ready for takeoff on short notice to retrieve hurt or stranded spacemen; launching unmanned rockets carrying emergency supplies to rendezvous with the astronauts, enabling the mission to continue after repairs have been made; placing in orbit a network of emergency stations to which a spacecraft could fly, and escape or bail-out devices such as space "life boats," inflatable balloons or re-entry cones.

U.S., Soviet Study Fish Fleet Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — American and Soviet fishery experts plan to meet here next month to continue efforts to resolve problems that arose when large Soviet fishing fleets appeared last summer off the coasts of Oregon, Washington and the Middle Atlantic States.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said Wednesday that 10 days of talks that ended in Moscow Nov. 25 "produced considerable but not complete reconciliation of views."

The Moscow talks dealt with the problem of conserving schools of ocean perch and hake. Also discussed were rules on the fishing grounds.

The Washington talks are expected to consider additional information scientists are gathering on available fishing stock and technical problems.

Saturn 5 Rocket Test Is Success

BAY SAINT LOUIS, Miss (AP) — The mightiest rocket booster ever tested by this nation strained against its shackles with a million pounds of thrust today in the first successful captive firing of a flight model.

The S—II-I, troublesome second stage of the Saturn 5 rocket that ultimately will carry American astronauts to the moon, was ignited four months later than was first scheduled.

Space officials termed the six-minute static test an apparent success and said it occurred within the timetable of the "big picture"—to land a man on the moon by 1970.

Boardwalk Fire Damages Concessions

KEANSBURG — Fire last night caused extensive damage to a boardwalk ride and light damage to an adjoining shooting gallery.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined and unofficial damage estimates ranged to "several thousand dollars."

Hard hit by the blaze was the "Dodge-Em," a bumper car ride owned by Clarence Recht, West Keansburg. The adjoining gallery is leased by Mrs. Mary Hunter, Highland Blvd. The properties are owned by Henry Gelhaus, The Trail, Middletown.

Patrolmen Thomas Dalton and Frank Caputo discovered the fire while on routine patrol at 7:58 p.m. Both local companies fought the smoky flames for nearly four hours with West Keansburg Fire Co. alerted to be available if needed.

Air Patrol Marking 25th Anniversary

RED BANK — The Civil Air Patrol, civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, celebrates its 25th anniversary today.

Red Bank Composite Squadron, CAP, local unit commanded by Lt. William Banks of New Shrewsbury, will mark the occasion Sunday with an open house from 1 until 5 p.m. at its base at Colts Neck Airport. Anyone interested in CAP activity may attend.

CAP is composed of volunteers who want to serve their country and further national interest in aviation. It provides aviation training to senior and cadet members and assists during local and national emergencies, using its aircraft for search and rescue missions.

Created by executive order of President Franklin D. Roosevelt just six days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, CAP was a successful attempt to incorporate civil aviation into national defense. In World War II, CAP members flew more than 24 million miles on coastal patrols, sighting 173 enemy submarines and sinking two. Fifty-three CAP members lost their lives in wartime operations.

During the 1950's CAP squadrons flew about 75 per cent of all search and rescue missions and has continued such service to the present day.

Membership in the squadron is open to all U. S. citizens of good character and reputation. Men and women 18 years old or older may become senior members while cadet memberships are open to boys and girls 13 to 18. CAP members serve in their spare time without pay.

In the summers, cadets may spend two weeks at an Air Force base, living the life of an airman while receiving orientation in aerospace courses and in actual flight. The International Cadet Exchange provides an opportunity for selected cadets to spend two weeks in one of 22 participating foreign countries.

Cadets holding CAP proficiency certificates and who are otherwise qualified are accepted by the Air Force in the grade of airman third class if they choose to enlist.

Red Bank Composite Squadron meets Friday nights at Fort Monmouth, and at Colts Neck Airport Saturdays and Sundays. The squadron maintains a Piper L-4 observation aircraft at the airport, along with extensive ground rescue facilities and vehicles.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: I am thinking about finishing the walls of an extra room at a side of our house. It has solid concrete walls and I want to put up wood paneling of some kind. Can you advise me whether it is better to make new inside walls, a few inches from the present walls, or whether I should attach studs to the concrete and then put the paneling on the studs?

ANSWER: If the room is small, putting up inside walls will, of course, reduce the overall size. But this method has a number of advantages. Keeping the wood away from the concrete if the latter has any tendency to be damp is one of them. You also are not faced with the problem of attaching studs directly to concrete, which can be considerable if the concrete is especially tough and resists the action of a star drill or an electric drill fitted with a carbide-tipped bit. Should you decided to do it this way—and you find the concrete in the extra room especially rugged—you might try using a special adhesive made for the purpose of eliminating the drilling.

Everything considered, we favor setting up separate walls by installing studding between floor and ceiling strips of 2 by 3's or 2 by 4's. Remember that the vertical studs must fit firmly between the base and ceiling plates if you are to have solid walls.

Remember, too, to allow sufficient space behind the wall at any point where there are pipes or anything that might have to be repaired or inspected at some future time. In some cases, you can install hinge doors to get at such areas.

Navy Says: Sign Now, Report Later

RED BANK — The U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, 19 Monmouth St., announced it has no waiting list for qualified applicants. There are vacancies for immediate enlistments and re-enlistments.

Qualified young men who desire to join now and spend the holidays at home may enlist in the Navy's "Cache" program. The program permits a youth to plan the day he wishes to report for active duty. Those who sign up are no longer draft-eligible while waiting to report, and they accrue longevity between the time they sign and the time they report. They get seniority for pay and other purposes before they even don a uniform, thus are eligible for earlier promotions. The time they spend waiting to report counts toward fulfilling military obligations.

Fertilizing Houseplants

FREEHOLD — Many people wonder how often to feed their plants. Once a week? Once a month? Everytime one waters? It doesn't matter too much in the home, as long as it's done consistently and on a regular basis.

The important thing is that you water enough to wash the old fertilizer out of the pot before adding the new. To do this, water the plant until plenty of water runs out the bottom of the pot. This will wash any excess away. Then add the new fertilizer solution.

Promoted, Gets New Assignment

FORT MONMOUTH — James L. Ragland, 18 Coral Way, Neptune, who recently traded his sergeant's stripes for the bars of a warrant officer, has also exchanged his job as a senior instructor in the enlisted department of the U.S. Army Signal School for that of an instructor in the officer department — the Department of Command Communications.

The promotion ceremony was held in the office of Brig. Gen. Thomas Matthew Rienzi, the Signal School commandant.

Since entering active duty in May, 1954, Warrant Officer Ragland has served overseas tours in Korea, Alaska and Germany. He reported to the Signal School in September of this year and was assigned to the Department of Specialist Training as an instructor in the microwave radio repair.

CAGE PREVIEW: Watch CBA

But Don't Count Red Bank Catholic Out

By JACKSON CUNNINGHAM

With Kirk Robinson graduated, you may get the idea that Christian Brothers Academy's basketball fortunes — most successful in the past — are in for a slide.

Forget it!

Not only do the Colts expect to make up for the exit of all-around 5-9 whiz Robinson, scorer of 1,513 points in a brilliant, four-year varsity career, but coach Vinnie Cox feels the team may be even better.

It will take an exceptional performance for the Colts to top last year's record which included a final won-lost tabulation of 22-4, a spot in the state Parochial "A" final for the second straight season and a two-point, mid-season loss to Weequahic of Newark, rated by nearly everyone as the state's finest schoolboy team.

The Register's high school basketball preview will continue next week with stories on the Shore Conference divisional races.

CASEYS UNDER NEW COACH

While Christian Brothers is preparing for a season that should rank it among the state's best, Red Bank Catholic, which will be under a new coach, Tom Murdock, quietly is preparing for what might be its best season ever.

And if there is any one thing that can signify a great Red Bank Catholic season, it'd be a victory over CBA. Red Bank Catholic has never fashioned a victory over CBA in eight meetings.

Things began to look up for Red Bank Catholic last season and the Caseys went on to 15 victories, a school high, against nine setbacks.

One of those setbacks came against another of its biggest rivals, Mater Dei, and it was one-third of the season for the New Monmouth school, now under new coach Mike Krajkovich, as it won only two other games in a disastrous season, caused partly by a murderous schedule that appears even tougher this season.

Tough schedule or no, St. Rose figures to stand near the top of the heap when the final ratings are compiled. Pat McCann's Purple Roses, coming off a third state Parochial "B" championship season in five years, are heading toward what should be another highly successful season.

One of the players who helped St. Rose become the basketball power it is, Steve Gepp, now challenges the best from the coach's bench and he feels he has the guns at St. Joseph's of Toms River to go up against the cream of the crop. On hand at St. Joseph's are Frank Feistel and Cliff Hennessey, a pair of hot shots who combined for a 40-point per game production a season ago.

BLUE BISHOPS, BULLDOGS HURTING

While the parochial school outlook looks rosy over-all, things aren't as cheerful on the courts of the two public and one prep school independents. Rumson-Fair Haven will tangle with stiff opposition in the Garden State Conference, Asbury Park finds it will have to face the rugged Trenton area strongboys with one of its smallest teams in past years and Croydon Hall Academy is forced to throw the burden of its offense on one player as it has in the past couple of seasons.

• • •

KIRK ROBINSON isn't the only starter gone from Christian Brothers Academy's lineup. Coach Vinnie Cox is also missing graduated Paul Christopher and Marty Kenney who, along with Robinson, combined to put 41 points per game into the CBA box score.

With the high scoring operators, all backcourt specialists, departed, Cox and his Colts will unveil a new offense this season, one built mainly on a trio of big boys.

"Rather than scoring mostly from the backcourt, we'll set the offense on big men this year," says Cox. Biggest of the big men back is 6-5 senior Bill McCrea, a starter last year who scored 11.1 points per game and was counted on to supply nearly all of the rebounding, both offensively and defensively.

McCrea will have some relief off the boards this season with the addition of Bob Woodward, a 6-3 senior. While McCrea, who came to practice near 195 pounds but lost 18 during a bout with a cold and is down to 177, is on the slim side, Woodward is a football-type at 190 pounds. "I expect Bob to take a great deal of the burden off McCrea," says Cox. Although Woodward averaged only about five points per game last season, Cox calls him the most consistent shooter on the team.

Joining the front line is junior Chris Hill, 6-1, who hit for 10.5 points per outing as a sophomore last season. "He's got real good moves," says Cox, adding, "I wouldn't be surprised if he were our leading scorer."

In the backcourt, Cox has Bill Glading, 5-10 junior who topped the jayvees in scoring last season with a 19 ppg norm. Called a "great" shooter by Cox, Glading hit 83 per cent from the foul line.

Teaming up with Glading in the backcourt is senior Dave Brown, smallest starter at 5-8 and scorer of but one field goal for the varsity last season.

Backcourt help is expected to come from Bill Hlatky, a 5-10 senior playing his third varsity season. Up front, Cox can call on two jayvee starters last season, 6-2 Andy Gill and 6-3 Gene Halton, a pair of juniors.

Rounding out the squad are Walt Knake, 6-2 senior; John Anderson, a 6-1 senior who never played before, and 5-9 junior Rich "Duke" Woodward, brother of Bob, up from the jayvees.

Joining Cox on the CBA coching staff this season is Jim Leo, Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High and Seton Hall grad who'll handle the freshman in the absence of the popular Brother Denis, now teaching in Columbia, South America.

CBA opens its schedule Saturday night against always strong Trenton, which had a 6-7 returnee in Jim Coleman. The jayvee game at 6:30 will open the cage action at CBA's gym.

Tom Murdock
RED BANK CATHOLIC

THE BIG HAND — Ashley Bell has the big hand that is extended to pull down most of the rebounds this season for Rumson-Fair Haven Regional and enable Bob Tumelty, left, and Bob Friscia to score points. Bill Kern, right, is the Bulldogs' coach.

"IF OUR JUNIORS come around, we'll be all right," says Tom Murdock, new coach at Red Bank Catholic.

What Murdock, who stepped up from the jayvees to replace Jack Rafter, who retired as coach, may be really saying is the Caseys are in for a whale of a season if his juniors can supply depth to the club.

Murdock has five lettermen on hand, four of them seniors, and a classy junior in Tom McBride, the main reason the Caseys chalked up their best win total in history (15) a season ago.

DELGADO WAS LEADING SCORER

Senior lettermen are 6-1 Hector Delgado, leading scorer on the team with 329 points; Rick Geiger, a strong man off the boards at 6-foot; 6-footer Joe Baier and 5-11 John O'Neill. Geiger and Baier scored around seven ppg each.

McBride had a brilliant season as a sophomore. The 5-9 backcourt flash was second in scoring with 306 points, breaking the school record for a sophomore set in the 1958-60 season by Eddie Kennedy, contributed 120 rebounds and dished out about five assists per game. He was just as adept on defense, leading the club in assists.

Juniors that rank high with Murdock and may gain starting roles before the campaign gets going are Frank Kineavy (5-10), Ed Sweeney (6-0), Marc Kelly, a big boy at 6-2, 190; Mike Schulz (6-0) and John O'Shea, a 6-footer who saw plenty of action late last season and pumped in about 10 points per game. He's probably the most accurate shooter on the club.

EX-GRAMMAR SCHOOL ACE

Rounding out the squad are a trio of juniors, 5-10 Bill Donahue, 5-11 Mickey McCue and 5-10 Jack Borden, and a sophomore, former grammar school phenom Dick Rusnak, who stands 6-2 and weighs in at 190 pounds.

While Murdock is in his first season at the helm of the Caseys, he's well aware of the talent on hand. He piloted the jayvee team through a 17-3 season a year ago that could very well have been an unbeaten campaign but for nine points and the move of the jayvee aces to the varsity late in the season.

Assisting Murdock with coaching duties is Tony Howard, a star at Red Bank High in the late 1930's. Big Tony, who was a terror off the backboards at 6-4 and just as tough on defense, is now teaching at Red Bank Catholic.

With Murdock and Howard handling the varsity and jayvees, the frosh will be under the wing of Joe Kristofik, who replaced the retired Joe Cieri.

Saturday night, probably all of the Casey coaches and many of the players can probably be found at Christian Brothers Academy viewing the game against Trenton.

Can anyone guess why?

• • •

PAT McCANN, heading into his ninth season as St. Rose coach, sums up the Purple Roses' chances best:

"We are confident of another fine season. Our team shows the ability and desire to defend its Parochial "B" state title. Of special interest at the start of the season is the Dec. 9 game between St. Rose and Our Lady of the Valley (Orange), our opponent for the state title last March."

McCann bases his hopes mainly on a pair of lettermen, 6-4 Tom Guthrie, who averaged about 12 ppg, and Jay Scarfo, a backcourt star standing 5-8. Both are seniors.

FIVE SENIORS TO HELP

Other boys figuring high in McCann's plans are five seniors in 6-2 Joe Mitele, 6-4 Don Gattan, 5-8 Tom Hopkins, 6-0 Luke Caverly, brother of last year's star, Mark Caverly, and 6-2 Ray Walsh.

If things aren't bright enough, McCann, who has had only one losing season in eight in building a 161-59 record, can look forward to February when Bob Bradley becomes eligible. A junior transfer from Point Pleasant Boro High, Bradley stands 6-5.

• • •

AT MATER DEI, there's loads of enthusiasm as the Seraphs eye their most successful season.

It won't take much to be the winningest season ever at the New Monmouth school, seeing the 1964-65 team has the previous high of five victories — last year's team won three — but the Seraphs play one of the toughest schedules around, meeting CBA, Notre Dame and St. Anthony's of Trenton, both St. Mary's (Perth and South Amboy)

Volleyball Starts Tomorrow

MIDDLETOWN — The Recreation Commission will sponsor an adult volley ball league for men over 20 years of age, beginning tomorrow in the gymnasium of Bayshore Junior High School.

Princeton State's Top Team

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEWARK — Today marks the opening of New Jersey's college basketball season and a bunch of the coaches were whooping it yesterday down at the tap-off luncheon of the N. J. Basketball Writers Association.

The coaches of the six major schools — Princeton, Rutgers, Seton Hall, St. Peter's, Fairleigh-Dickinson and Rider — were on hand, along with many of their colleagues from the smaller colleges.

A RAY OF SUNSHINE

Not one, however, would admit that (1) his team was loaded or (2) ready to open the campaign. A few did manage to find a ray of sunshine in the clouds although they would be more than happy to trade in the rays for a couple of 7-footers.

The opening night schedule:

Lafayette at Princeton, Rutgers at Penn, Loyola of Baltimore at Seton Hall, Monmouth at St. Peter's, Wagner at Fairleigh-Dickinson, Hofstra at Rider, Upsala at Montclair State, Glassboro State at Delaware, Newark State at Bloomfield, Jersey City State at Adelphia, Newark Rutgers at Drew, Paterson State at Queens.

Since none of the coaches has come up with a six-man zone defense or a fast break too fast for the eye to follow, the talk was mostly about lack of (1) height, (2) speed, (3) depth, (4) ball-handlers and (5) shooters.

JERSEY CITY FACILITY

There was one significant announcement, however, and it came from St. Peter's, which disclosed it is planning a new physical education facility on its Jersey City campus to include a New Jersey sports Hall of Fame.

The building will seat from 5,000-7,000 spectators, according to preliminary plans, and will be ready for the 1969-70 season.

The annual pre-season crack that "there's not a loser among us" didn't apply this year. Bloomfield College, which was supposed to get a jump on the others last Friday and Saturday by playing in the St. Mary's Invitational Tournament at Halifax, Nova Scotia, managed to get in one game, but it wasn't easy.

"Flying conditions were poor last Friday," related Coach Bob Nichols. "We were stuck here and McMaster University of Ontario was stranded in Montreal. So they moved the tournament to Saturday and Sunday.

"We left Teterboro Airport Saturday morning and got as far as Millinocket, Me. That's a town of 7,000 people and it's a great place for the players — there's nothing to do. We spent the night there, got to Nova Scotia at 2 p.m. Sunday and played at 3:30, losing to St. Mary's, 93-80. McMaster never made it."

"RELATIVELY OPTIMISTIC"

As usual, Princeton is expected to be the top club in the state. Coach "Butch" van Brenda Koiff is on record as being "relatively optimistic" and that chances for an Ivy League title are "reasonably good." That means Princeton, on a good night, should be able to challenge the Boston Celtics.

The cause for optimism is Chris Thomforde, a 6-foot-8 sophomore who scored more points a game as a freshman than the fabulous Bill Bradley.

Nine lettermen are on hand and Thomforde will be joined in the starting cast by 6-6 Ed Hummer, 6-7 John Haarlow, 6-2 Joe Heiser and 6-0 Gary Walters. If Thomforde falters, 6-9 Robby Brown, a starter for two years, can come off the bench.

LLOYD NEAR RECORD

Rutgers, which is expected to run a close second, features a prominent backcourt of Bob Lloyd and Jim Valvano. Lloyd needs 10 points to become the school's all-time scoring leader. Two other veterans — 6-5 Doug Clark and 6-6 Rick Harley — will start, along with 6-2 sophomore Dick Stewart. The bench has some height for the first time in 6-7 Doug Brittelle and 6-6 Ron Breacen.

But Coach Bill Foster sounded a note of warning. "The development thus far is not what we hoped it would be," he said.

"The ball-handling and rebounding have not been what we'd like." Rutgers is going big-time with games in Madison Square Garden against Missouri and NYU.

PIRATES "HOPE TO IMPROVE"

Seton Hall, coming off a horrendous 6-18 season and with little hope in sight, nevertheless "hopes to improve last year's record," according to Coach Richie Regan. The hope is John Suminski, a talented 6-4 newcomer.

"This is probably the hardest working team I've ever had," Regan said. "I think the fellows are convinced we can win and that's our biggest point."

Don Kennedy said his St. Peter's outfit is a "good little ballclub" that could "be among the first three in the Metropolitan Conference." Four returning starters are joined by 6-2 Harry Laurie, a transfer from Chicago Loyola, who could be one of the best around.

TWO NEW COACHES

Fairleigh-Dickinson and Rider have new coaches in Jack Devine and John Carpenter. Fairleigh has a number of good players, headed by Capt. Bob Rennie and Reggie Foster, a 6-5 leaper. Rider, which plays in the Middle Atlantic Conference's tough University Division for the first time, may be in for a lean year. Greg Cisson, a 6-4 junior, is the Broncs' only returning starter.

Upsala has only two lettermen and pessimistic Coach Fred Wieboldt lamented, "We're small, handle the ball poorly and play bad defense and I'm having trouble with my new bifocals."

Monmouth, which is supposed to be an annual easy opener for St. Peter's, will try to make it three straight upsets. The Hawks will be strong with 5-7 sophomore Ron Kornegay firing away but not as powerful as last year's 26-4 outfit.

MONTCLAIR STATE STRONG

Montclair State looms as the class of the State College Conference. Coach Dave Watkins thinks his team is a year away but with 6-8 Dave Conroy up front and high-scoring Bob Gleason in backcourt the Indians won't have to take a back seat to many opponents.

Newark State, Trenton State and Jersey City State are expected to be Montclair's chief rivals with Glassboro State and Paterson State lagging behind.

Not too much is expected from Bloomfield, Madison Fairleigh-Dickinson, Newark Engineering, Newark Rutgers or Stevens Tech but things could look up at Drew, where Coach John Macknowsky has his entire starting five back, along with three other veterans.

Rangers Near 1st

Associated Press

The surging New York Rangers moved to within a point of the National Hockey League lead last night by defeating the first place Chicago Black Hawks, 5-0, at Chicago.

By winning their second game in a row over the Hawks, New York, which has lost only once in its last 10 games, stayed in a second place deadlock with the Toronto Maple Leafs, who beat the Montreal Canadiens, 3-2.

Veteran Reg Fleming, an ex-Hawk, and goalie Ed Giacomin paced the Rangers, Fleming with his eighth and ninth goals, and Giacomin with sound net minding. Giacomin turned in 32 saves while gaining his third shutout of the season and second in a row.

Orland Kurtenbach got the hustling New Yorkers rolling with a power play goal at 13:21 of the first period while Chicago's Matt Ravlich was in the penalty box for roughing. Kurtenbach took a pass from Bernie Geoffrion, moved around Chicago defenseman Pat Stapleton, and drove a 20-footer behind Hawk net minder Glenn Hall.

Don Marshall got a loose puck behind the Chicago goal and tucked it behind Hall from the side of the net to get the Rangers going in the first minute of the final frame after a scoreless middle period, and Fleming wrecked whatever faint hopes the Hawks might have had for a rally with a pair of goals, at 3:13 and 15:24.

Rookie Brian Conacher's goal with nine minutes to play gave Toronto victory over the Montreal Canadiens last night.

Conacher, set up by Pete Stemkowski and defenseman Allan Stanley, snapped a 2-2 third-period tie with his sixth goal of the season.

The Canadiens, behind 2-0 after 4½ minutes in the opening session, tied the score on second-period goals by Claude Provost and Henri Richard.

and Henry Hudson, last year's Central Jersey Group 1 champion.

SHOOTING FOR .500 MARK

"We're shooting for a .500 season," says the Seraphs' new coach, Mike Krajkovich, who handled the jayvees last year and the yearling squad the season before. One of reasons Krajkovich is so optimistic is the fact he's had most of the players since their freshman campaign.

Heading the list of returnees are George Warrick, 6-foot junior; Luke Lenahan, 5-10 senior; Joe Discavage, 5-10 junior, and Billy Collins, 5-10 sophomore who was the star in last year's upset victory over Red Bank Catholic. All were starters at one time or another.

VYING FOR STARTING SPOTS

Others vying for starting spots are 6-1 Lars Guy, 5-8 Tim Kelly, 5-10 Jerry Wilson, 6-0 Bob Kulbick, and 6-1 Kevin O'Brien, all seniors, and a pair of juniors, Bill Shanahan and Bill Vance, both 5-9 and up from the junior varsity squad.

In speaking of a .500 season, Krajkovich says much depends on how the boys jell. "It'll depend a lot on how well the football players come around."

One thing of which Krajkovich says he's sure: "We'll be better."

The question of how much better will be partly answered tomorrow night when the Seraphs travel to Toms River to meet St. Joseph's in its opener.

* * *

ST. JOSEPH'S will be ready for its opener, says Steve Gepp, who is forming the nucleus of his team around three starters from last season and three top reserves.

Heading the list for St. Joseph's which finished 12-11 a season ago, are Frank Feistel, 6-foot senior who pumped in an average of 22 points per game to lead the team in scoring, and Cliff Hennessey, a 6-3 senior who not only flipped in 18 points a game but was the club's strongest rebounder.

GILLIKIN OUTSIDE, INSIDE

Tom Gillikin, another starter from last season, now a 6-foot senior, will supply punch to either the corner or the backcourt, wherever Gepp decides to put him.

The other two starters will come from a trio composed of Norris Eldridge, a 5-8 backcourt man who has been a pleasant surprise to Gepp with his improved play; 6-4 Kevin Freel, a forward or center who is strong off the backboards, and Larry Miller, who at 6-6 is a shot-blocking whiz. All are seniors.

In reserve, Gepp will have Mike Carfuciello, 5-10 senior; Paul Clare, 6-2, junior, and John Bradley, 6-2 senior.

* * *

RUN, RUN AND RUN some more looks like the keynote to success for Rumson-Fair Haven Regional High.

"We're hurting for outside shooters," says Bill Kern, third year coach who guided the Bulldogs through a 14-7 season a year ago, "so we'll have to go with more speed."

The Bulldogs, who open on the road tomorrow night against Henry Hudson Regional, face an 18-game schedule that includes 14 games in the initial Garden State Conference season, a pair against Henry Hudson and two against Red Bank Catholic.

KERN RATES FOES HIGH

Kern rates the competition high in the Garden State Conference, pointing out that Highland Park, one of the league members, beat the Bulldogs twice in three meetings last year, and Clifford Scott of East Orange, the football champion, won 24 games a season ago while losing but twice.

Two returning starters, Ashley Bell, 6-3, 212-pound football star, and Bob Tumelty, a small (5-9-) guard, both seniors, are expected to lead the attack with Bell being heavily counted on to supply most of the rebounding.

Joining with the two second year starters are two of last season's top reserves, 5-10 Stu Hammond and 5-11 Bob Friscia, also seniors and football players with Bell.

FIVE UP FROM JAYVEES

Up from the junior varsity squad are five players, two of them seniors in 6-1 Bruce Kerr and 5-10 Don Dieker and a trio of juniors, Dan Britten (6-1), Jimmy Drowns (5-8) and Bob Kelly (5-10).

Newcomers to the squad include a foreign exchange student, Ake Lonnberg, 6-1, from Stockholm, Sweden, and three juniors in 6-2 Mike Warner, 6-1 Gary Layton and 5-10 Pinkney McIlwain.

* * *

ASBURY PARK heads into its third season under Bill Ulrich all even. The Blue Bishops have won 21 games and lost as many under Ulrich's tutelage the past two seasons.

Ulrich isn't overly optimistic about boosting that record too high this season, which starts tomorrow night with a road game against Princeton High.

"We lack any real height," says Ulrich, "and, in this kind of competition, we're going to be hurting."

While Ulrich had a pair of big boys last season in Tom Smith (6-5) and Desi Day (6-4), who graduated along with the other top five players on the squad, he doesn't have a player over 6-2 heading into the forthcoming campaign.

LOST 6-6 SOPH CENTER

Ulrich did have one tall cager, 6-6 sophomore Bill Bertalan, but he moved to Florida with his family.

Jesse Kendle, a 6-1 junior described by Ulrich as a great jumper, will be counted on to supply most of the rebounding for the Blue Bishops, but, as Ulrich says, "I don't know how long he can hold out against bigger boys we're sure to face."

What Asbury Park will have to face is a schedule loaded with Trenton area teams, always noted for their big boys, and Neptune, class of the Shore Conference.

Nonnenberg Biggest at 6-2

Joining Kendle as top prospects as the season nears are Bill Nonnenberg, a senior and tallest of the Bishops at 6-2, "Ike" Boyton, 5-8 senior who'll be the point man; Al Salowe, a junior, and senior Jim Massey, both standing 5-11.

To add to Ulrich's woes, varsity returnee Ted Rosen, a 5-10 senior, injured his ankle in practice and will be lost for the first month of the campaign.

Hoping to overcome his club's lack of height, Ulrich says "we hope to press a lot and run. We've played mostly a zone last year, but we hope to play more man to man this season. Man to man will probably be our basic defense."

NFL Settles Realignment

NEW YORK (AP) — A long range look at 1967 in the National Football League presents a strong possibility of a Cleveland-Dallas game for the Eastern Conference title and a Green Bay-San Francisco tilt for the Western Conference crown.

The two winners would meet for the NFL title with the survivor meeting the winner of the American Football League championship.

The NFL owners realigned the conferences yesterday when they placed the new New Orleans franchise in the East and the Atlanta Falcons in the West. Each eight-club conference was split into two four-club divisions.

After much deliberation the owners came up with a grouping of Cleveland, Pittsburgh, New York and St. Louis in the Federal Division of the East. The Capitol Division of the East will include Dallas, Philadelphia, Washington and New Orleans.

In 1968 New York will shift to the Capitol and New Orleans to the Federal in a compromise move designed to give all eight of the Eastern teams a chance to play the Giants home and home in one of the two years.

Yanks Eye 3-Way Deal

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The New York Yankees unpacked their trade bag again yesterday, knowing they had a chance to plug a gaping hole with shortstop Maury Wills — if they could pull off a three-way deal that would satisfy the Los Angeles Dodgers.

As the Yankees' hauled their bag from the minor league meetings in Columbus, Ohio, to the major league meetings in Pittsburgh, Wills remained the center of most of the conjecture as the hinge on which future deals might swing.

Here's the way the situation appeared to be taking shape:

— The Dodgers, who strengthened their infield by sending two-time batting champion Tommy Davis to the New York Mets for second baseman Ron Hunt in the first major trade of the meetings, still were trying to unload Wills.

— The Yankees, having opened their trade bag and shipped third baseman Clete Boyer to Atlanta for outfielder Bill Robinson in the first inter-league trade of the meetings, still were pursuing Wills to fill the hole on the left side of their infield.

—The Yankees were talking to a number of other clubs, including World Series champion Baltimore, Clevelaand and the Chicago White Sox, who might have the commodity needed to pass on to the Dodgers in exchange for Wills.

Holiday Art Time

By ELEANOR MARKO

Art as a gift may never threaten tie and handkerchief giving during the forthcoming holidays, but it's an "in" idea. Glamorized displays by galleries and sophisticated giftshops, help to welcome shy browsers. Small sculpture seems to dominate the scene these days — an attraction long overdue.

For friend-to-friend giving there is a wide range of price and media to choose from. But, more importantly, art is a personal expression by an artist and somewhere, someplace, there is a wide range of price and media to choose from. But, more importantly, art is a personal expression by an artist and somewhere, someplace, there is a fine scene, expression, geometric pattern or sketch that seems to fit the personality of the donor or the recipient — depending on which one attempts to satisfy.

One of the most glamorous staging areas in the vicinity is the Holiday Show at the Guild of Creative Art, Broad St., Shrewsbury, where bird cages, paper flowers and painted tin doodads lend a festive Mexican motif. At this gallery, the selections include gift certificates for works of art and art classes — just in case you want to extend the pleasure.

At the Niche, Broad St., Red Bank, there is a new collection of small sculpture by a group of California artists being shown for the first time.

An unusually large collection of imported primitive wood sculpture among other fine art reproductions is to be found at Del Stone of Monmouth, Rt. 35, West Deal. Dealers in natural stone, flagging and gauged slate, this concern also has stone exhibits on display with art garden accessories. We "found" this sculpture collection purely by accident while on an errand of a disassociated nature.

Carter-Geruth, 17 First Ave., Atlantic Highlands, is another mecca for imported art and crafts in addition to other gift items.

BARBARA GRAY, Matawan artist, will open Sunday at the Matawan Art Gallery, Rt. 34, with a collection of her drawings, paintings and sculpture. There will be a reception for the artists from 4 to 6 p.m. open to the public.

TED GOERSCHNER has opened his new Studio Gallery at 605 Arnold Ave., Point Pleasant Beach, at the corner of Richmond Ave. Well-known exhibitor locally, Mr. Goerschner had a one-man show at the Old Mill Gallery, Sycamore Ave., Tinton Falls, before the opening of a studio at Batchelor St. in Toms River. Because of the state highway expansion, that studio no longer exists.

FLORENCE TEMKO of New Shrewsbury, considered one of today's foremost authorities on the oriental arts of origami and kirigami, has added to her author credits "Party Fun With Origami — A Happy Holiday Party Kit." Step-by-step directions for making party decorations with origami are given by Mrs. Temko with specific designs for Christmas, Easter, Fourth of July, Halloween, Valentine's Day, greeting card ideas and birthday parties. Platt & Munk, publishers, New York, has released the party kit at a time everyone is open to unusual gift ideas.

EXPO 67's Art Show in its gallery on Cite du Havre, Canada, will be in keeping with the theme of the world's fair "Man and His World." Some 190 masterpieces from the United States and Europe will be valued at some $75 million. Auguste Rodin's "Burghers of Calais" from the Philadelphia Museum of Art will be included in the collection.

AN EXHIBITION OF 65 WORKS by members of the Associated Artists of New Jersey on view at the N.J. State Museum in Trenton to Jan. 2 in the Auditorium Galleries, includes some who are as well-known nationally. These include Adolf Konrad, Riva Helfond, Anne Steele Marsh, Joseph Domareki (who summers in Monmouth Beach), Michael Lenson, Jean Schonwalter and Jacob Landau who lives in Roosevelt.

Formed in 1941 by a group of painters, sculptors and graphic artists, the Associated Artists of New Jersey provides a meeting ground for the exchange of ideas and sponsors joint exhibitions by its members. Membership in the association is limited to 50 professional artists who live in this state. New members are admitted to the group as vacancies occur. Through exhibitions in museums and galleries in New Jersey and neighboring states the group aims to reflect the best work being done by New Jersey artists in most of the major contemporary art styles.

JAMES WYETH, son of the renowned painter Andrew Wyeth, opened this week in his first one-man exhibition at the galleries of M. Knoedler Co., 14 East 57th St., New York City, through Dec. 23.

Now 20 years old, James Wyeth has shown marked talent fostered by his eminent elders and encouragement of Wyeth's circle of friends who have either submitted as subjects for portraits, or by acquiring his works. The exhibition of 37 works includes a number of these portraits in oil as well as free compositions and watercolors.

AT THE GALLERY OF MODERN ART, Columbus Cir., New York, an exhibition of 250 photographs depicting the feats of U.S. astronauts in space opened this week in the museum. Titled "View From Space," the exhibition is being shown in co-operation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) as a scientific, educational and artistic report on progress in the exploration of space.

This show is a fine combination for entertainment and education of students touring New York during the holidays. The concurrent exhibition of the work of Argentinian artist Antonio Berni which moved from its preview at the N.J. State Museum in Trenton, is also at the Gallery of Modern Art (Including the Huntington Hartford Collection).

AN IMPORTANT WORK by the great American painter Winslow Homer on loan from the Mussee d'Art Moderne in Paris, is on view for several months at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in its gallery of American paintings in the Morgan Wing devoted to Homer and his contemporaries. The work "A Summer Night," which received an honor at the Paris Exposition of 1900, was purchased at that time by the French government.

Homer cared little for awards and honors but did take great pride in the gold medal won by "A Summer Night" and carried it with him always, and even during his last illness, the story goes, kept it in a pocket of his night clothes.

ART IN THE MIRROR is the new exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53d St., New York, continuing through Feb. 5. Guest director G. R. Swenson writes in the introduction "These works direct questions, insults and homages toward art; they often have an untraditional and witty air about them, from Marcel Duchamp's mustachioed Mona Lisa to Andy Warhol's silk screened Mona Lisa as movie star...."

TO ADD TO YOUR NEW EXPERIENCES — Try Ad Reinhardt's current show at the Jewish Museum, Fifth Ave. at 92d St. His black paintings are confounding young student artists — perhaps because there has been little attention given to that particular part of art history where esthetic purity attracts contempt. A retrospective of his paintings from the past 30 years, the Reinhardt exhibition is bound to be a conversation piece.

THE SIENA PIANO — Major feature of Bamberger Newark's Gallery of the Masters being staged through Dec. 24, is the 200-year-old instrument with a romantic history. Liszt and Brahms were among the eminent musicians who played it. The case is a masterpiece of high relief sculpting.

The Outdoor World

By WILLIAM F. SANDFORD

One thing about the currently popular way of life that must be quite evident by now is that it costs a lot more than we've been paying . . .

Sandford

A week ago today health authorities from Boston to Washington cried an alarm. A pall of the pollution of a complex civilization was threatening to strangle us. The danger passed, and only the more susceptible suffered. But of one thing we can be certain: it will return. And it will get worse before it gets better.

For years the people who watch such things have been warning that we have been too careless about the contamination of our air. But no one seemed willing to pay for the devices needed to filter and neutralize the fumes of our vast industry and commerce, our travel and our comfort. Now that we're beginning to choke on them, the bill for all our past defaults is coming due.

It's going to be a big one.

Pollution of our water and earth—products of the same complicated system—is a liability more immediately obvious to many of us now being notified of what it is going to cost to get adequate sewering and waste disposal. They're two more of the expenses of our luxuries on which we've been postponing payment for too long.

Some already are crying "We can't afford it!" That's like being unable to afford food. There is no alternative.

We could alleviate the problem by heeding the philosophy of Thoreau to "Simplify, simplify." That's not likely to happen. We'll continue to demand more and more of the creature comforts of our great technology. But we're going to have to tag them with prices that include the cost of cleaning up the mess they make. Prosperity is expensive.

* * *

THE DOVEKIE invasion that has hit the surf along our beaches is not without precedent. There was another like it 18 years ago.

This smallest of the Atlantic coast alcids is a chunky, short-tailed bird in black and white that looks a little like a tiny penguin. It is tremendously abundant in northern seas, but is considered something of a rarity, in most years, on local inshore waters, where it is a winter visitor. It is somewhat more regular in occurrence off Long Island, although it seldom is seen near shore there in numbers except after strong easterly blows.

Robert Smith of Red Bank gave the first alert of a major flight here. He drove along the coast last Thursday morning and found the birds at two places in Deal and in both Shark River and Manasquan River inlets. There were eight in each of the latter two spots. I went looking Saturday and found five in the mouth of Shark River inlet and another off a jetty at Spring Lake.

DOVEKIE, a sea bird smaller than a robin, with short bill, stubby tail and almost no neck, has a squat appearance as it rides the waves. Flocks currently in local coastal waters constitute the biggest invasion by the north seas resident in 22 years.

George M. Seeley of Long Branch made an effort to find them Sunday and Monday, but found the coastline socked in on both days under a heavy fog. He had given up and was looking over the big raft of ducks on Lake Takanassee at Long Branch on the second day when a dovekie flew in and dropped to the water in front of him.

Records at hand indicate the last major incursion of this sea bird in our area occurred in the winter of 1948-49. Then flocks of up to 50 were found riding the surf from Sea Bright to Brielle, and many were found dead on local beaches.

* * *

THAT DUCK flock on Takanassee is the largest ever in the memory of Mr. Seeley, who has been doing winter bird counts there for many years for Audubon Field Notes magazine. It numbers an estimated 1,500 birds, including about 700 ruddy ducks and 500 canvasbacks, in addition to the usual American widgeon (baldpates), ring-necked and scaup ducks and a few redheads.

P. William Smith Jr. of Matawan reports having a king eider and a royal tern in his binocular at the same time at Sea Girt on Nov. 18. The tern date is the last we have for the southern species which lingered unusually late this year. Mr. Smith also found a grasshopper sparrow in weeds just back of the beach, and a red-necked grebe in the surf, both at Long Branch.

Selling an Old House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Whoever said that it was the little things in life that count could have written at least one additional stanza on the little things that affect the sale of a house.

It's difficult enough to sell an old house under ordinary conditions when little things are in need of repair. When mortgage money is tight and it is strictly a buyer's market, the neglect of the little things almost certainly assures a nonsale.

Example: when a real estate broker takes a buyer to a home that is up for sale, and the front door knob rattles around in the buyers' hand as he grasps it, the chances are his first impression will be negative. Yet the absence of a single set screw in the hardware may be the only thing wrong with the entire apparatus.

When a prospective purchaser starts to open a closet door and it resists his efforts and then, finally, abruptly swings open, the homeseeker is likely to be annoyed, consciously or subconsciously. A little sanding or replacement of a hinge screw could have prevented this minus reaction.

When a light switch is thrown and nothing happens, and the home owner mumbles something about "meaning to get that fixed," another roadblock is thrown in the way of a sale—even though a new switch in most cases costs less than a dollar.

When the wall in back of the range and oven is greasy and dirty, the possible buyer may become a stranger in a short time, although soap and water or a coat of paint would have corrected the condition. (You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

All of these and many other little things have a bearing on how quickly an old house is sold, even though the prospective buyer may give the real estate broker a reason that sounds more important when he explains why a particular house doesn't interest him. "Some persons," a real estate salesman once explained to us, "will tell you exactly why they don't wish to negotiate for a house they have seen, but most of them will just dismiss the subject by asking to see other houses. Most of the time we have a pretty good idea of what they didn't like—and you'd be surprised how often it isn't the price."

Builders of new homes are far more aware of the importance of the little things in selling houses, although some of them neglected this truism during the long period when homes were selling like hotcakes rather than like homes. But these days, even though buyers are more sophisticated about quality in building materials, great attention is given to the small touches that create an over-all air of livability. A purchaser wants a house that is well built—but he also wants a house that looks as though it were well built. Small defects can destroy this visible impression.

Making Leaf Mulch

Oak and beech leaves are among the best for mulch. Elm and maple are very satisfactory.

Pile the leaves in a windrow about 6 feet long and 8 to 10 inches deep and run the rotary lawn mower through the pile several times to make leaf mulch.

Present—For You and Yours . . . What you can accomplish today will be only because of persistent effort, not because of any help you receive. Don't make commitments that could crop up later to embarrass you. Check carefully anything you put in writing. The feeling that "everyone is against you" is all in your mind.

The Day Under Your Sign

Aries. Born Mar. 21 to Apr. 19 You may have to choose concerning your business or personal course for the future.

Taurus. April 20 to May 20 Clear up work as early as possible so that you can seek seclusion in the evening.

Gemini. May 21 to June 21 The day may bring some disappointment, but you can stand up to it with others' encouragement.

Cancer. June 22 to July 21 Remember that people tend to be unco-operative when overfatigued. Make allowances.

Leo. July 22 to Aug. 21 Don't make extensive weekend plans as you'll need rest when the time comes.

Virgo. Aug. 22 to Sept. 22 Stand up for your rights or you'll lose out. Seek advice of mature persons.

Libra. Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 Continue plans made earlier in the week, but wind up affairs by late afternoon.

Scorpio. Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 Today you can accomplish more with co-operative action than by being a lone wolf.

Sagittarius. Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 Don't be rushed into doing something about which you have mental reservations.

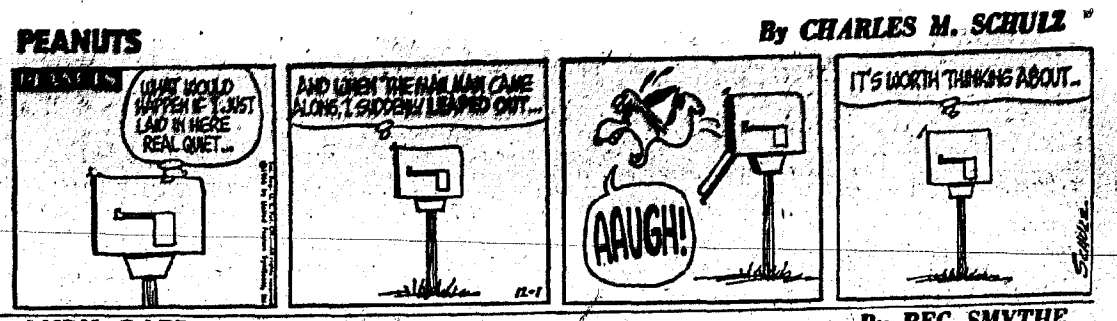

Capricorn. Dec. 22 to Jan. 20 Curb your ego if you would favorably impress someone of the opposite sex.

Aquarius. Jan. 21 to Feb. 19 Credit matters are accented. Errors may crop up in joint financial ventures.

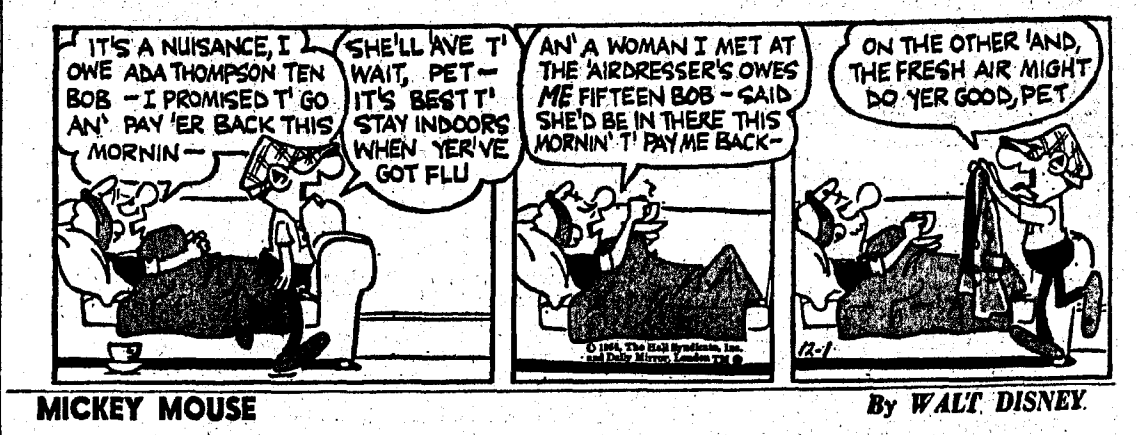

Pisces. Feb. 20 to March 20 Aggressiveness works against you. Take a back seat. You'll impress others.

'Blitzstein!' Snares Spirit Of Composer

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — A concert anthology capturing the abrasive, rebellious spirit of composer Marc Blitzstein opened last night in off-Broadway's Provincetown Playhouse.

"Blitzstein!" consists largely of bits from lyrics, songs and play-dialogues written by the artist who died under mysterious circumstances in Martinque at the age of 58.

Included also are his melody arrangements to poems by Shakespeare and E.E. Cummings, some jaunty lines he set to Offenbach tunes, and of course, a sampling of his English language of "The Three Penny Opera."

Mira Gilbert, a folk singer, and Norman Frienen, a robust-voiced member of the New York City Opera Co., performed the show with Peter Basquin as pianist. Their choice of material is occasionally awkward, for time has rusted some of Blitzstein's derisive needles about non-conformity. But in the second half, the array sparkles and stings.

As a writer for the theater, Blitzstein didn't go in for pop sons, but "Blitzstein!" is a rewarding retrospective of a specialized talent.

Librarians Set Freehold Tour

FREEHOLD — The Christmas meeting of the Monmouth Librarians Association will be held Wednesday, Dec. 7, in the Hall of Records here.

Members will meet at 9:15 a.m. in the freeholders' room, second floor, for a brief introduction to the Historical Association by Mrs. Martha Thompson.

The librarians then will be taken on tour of the Monmouth County Historical Museum and Library. This should be of vital interest to all members and guests.

Refreshments will be served by the Historical Association after the meeting and tour.

The Monmouth Librarians Association membership year begins in September and is still open for those who may wish to join or have forgotten. Dues are $2 a year and are used to provide the programs.

'ELEKTRA ON RADIO'

NEW YORK—"Elektra," Richard Strauss's one-act tragedy, will be heard live, direct from the stage of the new Metropolitan Opera House at Lincoln Center Saturday, Dec. 10 from 2 to 4:15 p.m. over WOR—AM.

Singing the title role will be soprano Brigit Nilsson. Other leading roles will be sung by soprano Leonie Rysanek, mezzo-soprano Regina Resnik, baritone William Dooley and tenor James King. Thomas Schippers will conduct the performance.

To fill jobs fast, place "Help Wanted" ads in The Daily Register Classified.

TV Highlights

7:30-8:30 (2) — Jericho. First-rate war tale crammed with action, suspense and clever plot twists. Jericho's Gage and Andre play German agents at work in England. (Color).

7:30-8:30 (13) — News In Perspective. Lester Markel and his provocative co horts, Tom Wicker and Max Frankel, address themselves to the significance of the recent election returns in relation to President Johnson's Great Society programs. Germany's role in Europe is another subject they'll assess.

8-8:30 (7) — F Troop. "Wilton, the Kid." A laugh-filled premise gives Ken Berry a chance to play two characters and be twice as amusing. (Color).

8:30-9:30 (4) — The Jack Benny Hour. A funny show, and proof that Benny and his writers haven't lost touch. In the first half, Jack listens to singer Trini Lopez, trades jokes with Phyllis Diller on her beauty, and tries to keep the Smothers Brothers from arguing. The Benny by-play with Mel Blanc and his Tijuana musicians is good for laughs in the second half, and Jack's broad take-off on beauty pageants, particularly his imitation of emcee Bert Parks, is worth catching alone. (Color).

9-10 (13) — New York Emmy Awards. Taped highlights of the Emmy Awards presented to the best television shows produced in the New York area in a ceremony earlier today, by the New York Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. Mayor John V. Lindsay is guest speaker.

9:30-10 (4) — The Hero. "The Truth Never Hurts . . . Much." A pleasant entry. There's an excellent scene about halfway through in which hero Sam Garret guests on one of those TV talk shows, presided over by an arrogant, bullying hatemonger, well played by Shelley Berman. (Color).

9:30-10 (7) — That Girl. "All About Ann." Diverting bit of nonsense as Marlo Thomas romps about with her customary cuteness. Ann (Miss Thomas) learns that her boy friend Don has been seeing a friend of hers and immediately jumps to the conclusion he's cheating on her. (Color).

10-11 (4) — Dean Martin. It's men's night at the Martin nightclub. Arthur Godfrey plays a college alumnus who returns to the campus; Dom De Luise acts as Martin's psychiatrist; the country western millionaire, Eddy Arnold, sings numbers like "Tips of My Fingers," and dancer Elaine Dunn shows up for the distaff side with two production numbers. (Color).

REVISED 'MACBETH'

LONDON (AP) — Sir Alec Guinness and Simone Signoret are costars of "Macbeth" being staged under a revised production program by the English Stage company.

Dropping the recent policy of repertory presentations, the troupe lists limited engagements for eight dramas in sequence. Half of the schedule consists of new works by John Osborne, Edward Bond and David Cregan, plus a revised adaptation of "The Three Sisters."

WARTIME ENGLAND

LONDON (AP) — German playwright Rolf Hochhuth wants his latest play done in London first instead of in Germany "because of political objectivity."

Hochhuth previously stirred up an international fuss with "The Deputy" which concerned the role of Pope Pius XII in World War II. The new drama, "The Soldiers", concerns wartime events in England.
