Karas admits plot to kill wife on tape

Husband: 'We did it. We both did it.'

'Walter ... you says the only way I can marry you is if Anne's dead. You lied to me.'

— Mary Claire Williams

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — Walter Karas admitted to plotting his wife's murder in a tape-recorded meeting with his ex-girlfriend in late May, and a Superior Court judge ruled yesterday that most of the tape can be used as evidence in the couple's October trial.

"We. We did it. We both did it. We both actively (expletive deleted) did it, you know," Karas says on the tape to his former lover, Mary Claire Williams, referring to the 1982 murder of Anne S. Karas.

The 18-minute recording was made May 28, 1983, the day before the couple was arrested, according to Paul F. Chaiet, first assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor. Williams reportedly had confessed to murdering Anne Karas a week earlier and was cooperating with police. She was wired with a body microphone, and seated in a car during the nighttime meeting.

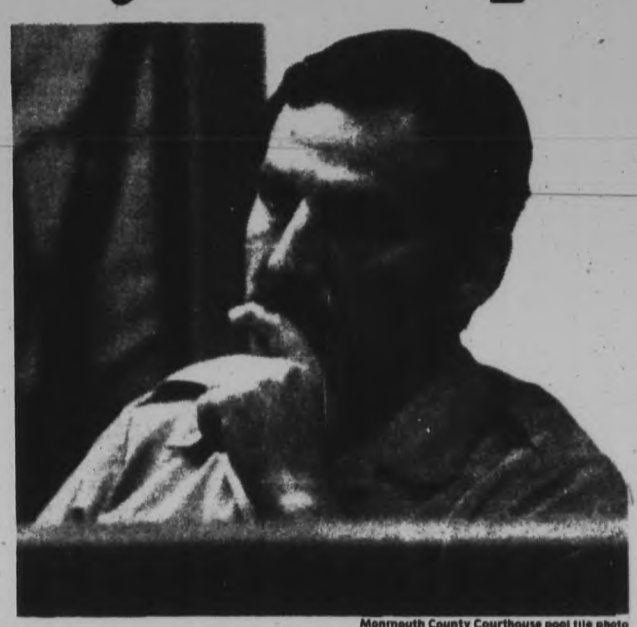

While the tape was played yesterday, Karas listened and followed the dialogue in a transcript supplied by Chaiet.

During the taped meeting, Williams shunned Karas' efforts to touch her and said, "Yeah, Walter, I mean, you says to me the only way I can marry you is if Anne's dead. You lied to me." Karas retorted, "No, I'd never lie to you. Don't ever say that."

Superior Court Judge John A. Ricciardi ruled that the tapes meet the criteria of audibility and continuity, despite several inaudible portions. Police also taped three telephone conversations between Karas and Williams on May 28 and 29, Chaiet said. Their audibility was not questioned and they also may be admitted as evidence during the trial.

Williams is accused of stabbing her lover's 43-year-old wife 22 times with a hunting knife in a West End parking lot March 20, 1983. Police charge that Karas, 43, plotted the

Tape reveals accused killers' fears

The following are excerpts from a May 28 tape made from an electronic device placed on Mary Claire Williams and monitored by Lieutenant John Falduti of the Monmouth County Prosecutor's Office. The conversation between Williams and her former lover and fellow defendant, Walter Karas, begins at 9:30 p.m. After a brief exchange over a missed meeting place, Karas asks Williams if there is "anybody in your car."

WILLIAMS: No, why would anybody be in my car? This is Dorie's mom's car. No, I have like, Walter, I've got to call (Monmouth County Investigator William) Lucia back.

KARAS: Why?

WILLIAMS: He called me and he said, he called me at my house this morning, I was in New York, yeah. And he called me and he said I've gotta talk to ya and I said, well, you know Bill, I'm a little busy, I'm, you know and he says no, I've gotta talk to you today and, Walter, that's unlike him because Bill never says today ...

KARAS: He's has nothing, he's not ...

WILLIAMS: No, Walter, what if he's got your Visa, that you purchased the knife, do you still have the other knife in the garage?

KARAS: I don't have any knife.

WILLIAMS: The knife that we bought at Herman's, you still have that one?

KARAS: I have the knife that I originally bought, It's in the garage on the table.

WILLIAMS: No, not ...

KARAS: Mary, they have (expletive deleted) absolutely nothing on you, they can't have anything.

WILLIAMS: Walter, why would they call to talk to me if they don't have anything, why would they call to talk to me all of a sudden out of the blue. I haven't seen you since December, I don't wanna see you ...

KARAS: I don't know, Mary, I don't know why they want, it's you know, any number of reasons, I don't know.

WILLIAMS: Walter, I'm scared and I've been, I've been, I'm so

Marcos denies any part in murder of Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos yesterday denied any involvement in the murder of his chief opponent, Benigno Aquino. He said the assassin was a professional killer belonging to a subversive group intent on embarrassing the government.

Rumors of a coup, of Marcos' ill health — and even his death — circulated in the capital, but the president went on nationwide television and rejected all such speculation as "ridiculous." He said the opposition was spreading rumors out of spite.

"I hear all kinds of rumors being orchestrated outside, even to the effect that I am in a coma, or we have escaped by helicopter, that (Defense) Minister Juan Ponce Enrile is under arrest, that the government has practically collapsed," Marcos said. "I wish to vigorously deny all these rumors."

Aquino, 50, was gunned down by what officials said was a lone attacker as he stepped off a China Airlines jetliner at the Manila airport Sunday following three years self-imposed exile in the United States. The gunman was shot dead by security forces, officials said.

Manila Police Chief Gen. Prospero Olivas said laboratory tests on the assassin showed that he had fired a gun. Olivas said he had not been identified, and showed close-up photographs of his face on television.

The government has not said what was being done to identify the assassin.

Opposition figures immediately accused Marcos of eliminating his strongest and most outspoken challenger, and many questions about the killing and the assassin remained unanswered yesterday.

Mourners from Manila and the provinces, rich and poor, stood in the streets outside Aquino's suburban Manila home, waiting their turn to pay last respects at the flag-draped coffin.

Aquino's body lay in the open coffin, still in the bloodstained clothes he died in — the face disfigured by bruises and an undressed bullet wound. His mother, Aurora Aquino, had insisted the military return his body to her untouched.

"She wants the world to see what they did to her son," said Aquino's sister, Lupita Kashiwahara. "It's not beautiful, and we don't want any mortician to make him look beautiful."

Leaders of the United Nationalist Democratic Organization, an opposition coalition, told reporters Marcos must take "command responsibility" for the assassination, noting that Aquino was killed while in military custody at the heavily guarded airport.

At a news conference at Aquino's home, opposition Assemblyman Salvador H. Laurel said if Marcos does not answer several questions about the assassination, it could be "the end of his regime."

Authority to dispose of Holmdel toxins

By RAY GERMANN

WOODBRIDGE — The New Jersey Highway Authority plans to contract with a waste transport company to remove 794 drums containing potentially carcinogenic substances from the maintenance yard of its Holmdel facility, authority officials confirmed yesterday.

William Smith, authority executive director, said the hazardous material is paint sludge and paint residue which has accumulated at the Holmdel maintenance facility over a period of several years. He said the residue contains toxins listed as hazardous by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Smith would not specify how paint residue and other potentially hazardous substances were disposed of in the past. "There are almost 800 barrels of the stuff, so we obviously haven't gotten rid of it in a long time," he said.

Latex paint residue generally contains heavy metals such as chromium and lead which can leach into drinking water if not properly disposed of, according to David Schrier, senior environmental specialist of the DEP Bureau of Hazardous Waste Classification and Management.

Schrier said the hazardous material must be placed in a secured landfill, protected by an underground layer of impermeable material — such as clay — to prevent the substance from leaking out of the immediate area.

If placed in a regular landfill, the toxins could penetrate deep into the soil, and eventually contaminate the drinking water supply, he said.

State blasts Middletown faculty hiring

By PETE WALTON

MIDDLETOWN — New Jersey's attorney general says the township Board of Education's pending case before the state's Supreme Court is a "naked attempt" to circumvent teacher tenure laws.

In a brief filed on behalf of the state Board of Education, Attorney General Irwin I. Kimmelman said the local board's appeal before the high court "should be dismissed."

The case concerns the district's practice of hiring "one-year replacement teachers" who would not accrue tenure.

Tenure provides that a teacher cannot be removed from a position for political or other arbitrary reasons.

"Under the one-year replacement system, it's possible to teach for 30 years and get no tenure," said Diane K. Swaim, president of the Middletown Township Education Association.

Beirut rocket attacks continue

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian and Druse militiamen clashed in heavy artillery and rocket battles yesterday in the hills overlooking Beirut, and police said six civilians were killed and 21 wounded.

The commander of Italian peacekeeping forces and six of his men also received minor cuts from a rocket barrage that exploded about eight yards away.

Shells exploded near the presidential palace and the residence of the U.S. ambasssador, but caused no casualties or damage.

The Druse command threatened to close Beirut's airport again, charging that Lebanese army long-range guns around the facility had pounded Druse population centers in the central Lebanese mountains to back up the Christians.

The army denied any involvment in the seven-hour flare-up that sent shells and rockets crashing around President Amin Gemayel's palace and the neighboring residence of the American ambassador in the pine forests of Baabda and Yarze east of Beirut.

Police said there were no casualties or damage at the presidential palace or Ambassador Robert Dillon's mansion. An American spokesman said two shells exploded "pretty close" to Dillon's residence before dawn.

Gen. Franco Angioni, 51, commanding officer of Italy's contingent in Beirut's multinational peacekeeping force, told The Associated Press he and six Italian soldiers were lucky to escape with only slight injuries a barrage of four Soviet-made Grad rockets.

The rockets fired by a multiple launcher exploded about eight yards from Angioni's jeep at the Bourj El-Barajneh Palestinian refugee camp on Beirut's southern edge, he said.

The jeep's windows were blown off and the body was damaged, Angioni said by telephone. "I only received a little injury in the face, on the nose close to the eye.... There was no need to go to hospital. We were lucky."

Six other Italian soldiers received minor injuries and none of the panicked population of the camp was hurt, Angioni added.

The fighting broke out at 2:05 a.m. (8:05 p.m. EDT) and continued for nearly seven hours until a new cease-fire took hold. Rightist-controlled radio stations charged that Syrian army positions joined the Druse in bombarding Christian areas, but the Syrian command in Damascus denied any involvement.

U.S. Mideast envoy Robert C. McFarlane flew back to Beirut from Egypt as the violence flared. He held talks with Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan and Parliament Speaker Kamel Assad on preparations to send American-trained Lebanese army units to replace Israeli forces in the central mountains.

Press causes royal mix-up

LONDON — Britain's tabloid newspapers took a wrong turn yesterday with their latest stories about the romances of Prince Andrew.

Four newspapers bannered news that Sophie Birdwood, 19, daughter of the Baron of Anzac and Totnes, was a weekend guest at Balmoral Castle in Scotland, where the royal family, including Queen Elizabeth II and Andrew, 23, her second son, are on holiday.

The newspapers carried pictures of a young woman, identified as Miss Birdwood, arriving at Heathrow Airport on Sunday after the alleged weekend.

Buckingham Palace, usually silent about who gets invited to Balmoral, unbent yesterday to say that the photographed woman was a regular guest, Carolyn Herbert, daughter of the queen's racing manager, Lord Porchester.

A palace spokeswoman said Miss Herbert, 21, is also a longtime friend of Princess Diana, 22, who with her husband Prince Charles, 34, and son Prince William is also at Balmoral.

Miss Birdwood was due to arrive at Heathrow yesterday from a vacation in the Bahamas, the airport news agency Brennards reported.

"We don't usually discuss the queen's guests," a spokeswoman at Buckingham Palace said. "But on this occasion everybody seems to have a mixed up identification, so it'd silly not to."

Andrew is at Balmoral until he joins his helicopter squadron aboard the aircraft carrier HMS Invincible next month, the palace said.

Lord Porchester, 59, told reporters he thought the mixup was "quite funny," adding that his daughter was definitely not "going out" with Prince Andrew.

Fitzgerald's performance: Kool

NEWPORT, R.I. — Thousands of fans were delighted by "the first lady of song" as she clucked and sang her way through the final performance of Newport's Kool Jazz Festival.

Ella Fitzgerald wrapped up the two-day festival Sunday, breezing through Cole Porter and George and Ira Gershwin, clucking through "Old MacDonald Had a Farm" and closing with "Mack the Knife."

About 5,000 jazz fans showed up Saturday for the first day of the festival, which featured five acts performing for a total of 6½ hours. Some 6,000 turned out Sunday.

"We come out for the festival every year," said 51-year-old fan Bill Poleo of Monroe, Mich. "It's the most beautiful jazz singing in the country. It's got the greatest lineup of any one we've been to."

Performing Saturday were Spyro Gyra, Tania Maria, Oscar Peterson, Gato Barbieri and Sphere.

Sunday featured the Rhode Island Youth Stage Band, George Wein's Kool Jazz Festival All-Stars, Wynton Marsalis Quintet, Art Blakey and the Jazz Messengers, the Chuck Mangione Quintet and Miss Fitzgerald.

Sir Laurence proves acting is an art

LONDON — Actor Laurence Olivier has been learning tips from renowned English painter John Piper before tackling his next role.

Lord Olivier, 76, will portray the artist Henry Breasley in a British TV version of the John Fowles novel "The Ebony Tower," and filming at a chateau near Limoges, France, begins next month.

Before starting work, Olivier took a lesson on how to mix and apply paint, the production company, Granada TV, said yesterday.

"Lord Olivier says he thinks it is the best role that has been written for him for many, many years," said the film's producer, Robert Knights.

The screenplay is by John Mortimer, author of the autobiographical television play "A Voyage Round My Father" in which Olivier starred to great critical acclaim in 1982.

Marcos denies part in killing

He said the questions that needed answers were: Who killed Aquino, why was the killer there, who went aboard the plane to fetch Aquino, and were any of the security men involved in the assassination?

In his televised news conference, Marcos said Aquino would not have been slain if he had heeded government warnings not to return to Manila because some groups planned to kill him.

Marcos said the enemies of Aquino included Communist rebels who wanted to avenge the death of fellow guerrillas whom the opposition leader supposedly ordered killed because they had testified against him in a trial for subversion.

Aquino, a former senator, spent nearly eight years in prison, much of the time sentenced for death on subversion and murder convictions, until Marcos let him out in 1980 to go to the United States for heart surgery. He stayed out of the Philippines until Sunday.

Marcos said investigation indicated a subversive group, probably Communist-inspired, was out to "place (the government) in an awkward position, which they have."

Marcos said he knows that no matter what he says there will be "some kind of shadow" on his government because of the killing.

He said that if his government had wanted to kill Aquino it could simply have withheld medical treatment for his heart condition while the opposition leader was imprisoned.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Alan Romberg characterized the slaying as a "political assassination" but said reports from Manila that he was killed by rifle shots fired by government security troops appear to be "erroneous." He said he had no further details on the U.S. Embassy reports from Manila.

In California, President Reagan was asked by reporters whether he intends to go to the Philippines, as planned, in November. The president left open the possibility of cancellation, saying "I'm sure we'll be making a decision on that soon."

The United States is the Philippines' closest ally and recently renegotiated a treaty to permit the United States to retain military bases in the Philippines in exchange for $900 million in military aid.

U.S. Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, visiting Bangkok, Thailand, said Congress might not give the necessary approval if an inquiry shows the Marcos government was involved in the assassination.

The Japanese new agency Kyodo on Sunday quoted a witness as saying he saw military men shoot Aquino, then shoot the man who the government later said was the assassin.

On Monday, the Japanese newspaper Asahi Shimbun quoted a Japanese journalist as making similar claims, but the newspaper said the reporter, Kiyoshi Wakamiya, later said he didn't see who fired the shots.

Marcos denied Aquino was shot by military men.

Writer won't kill himself

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — South America's dean of letters, Jorge Luis Borges, says he won't commit suicide Thursday as he once wrote he would. "Why should I kill myself? Time is killing me," said Borges, who turns 84 on Wednesday.

"Aug. 25, 1983" is the title of a story in which he describes taking his own life. He said the date sneaked up on him. "I have thought about suicide many times," he said. "I wrote the story in 1977 and elected a date I believed would most certainly be posterior to my death. It was like choosing the year 2000."

In the story, Borges swallows a bottle of pills and then sits on a bed in a favorite country hotel in Buenos Aires province, awaiting death with "gentle comfort and relief."

Karas admits plot to kill wife

Williams moved into Karas' Oceanport home shortly after Anne Karas was buried. Prosecutor Alexander D. Lehrer has charged that Anne Karas was killed so that Williams and Walter Karas "could be together." Both defendants have entered pleas of not guilty.

On tape, Williams tells Karas nervously that she needed to talk with him because William Lucia, an investigator from the prosecutor's office, "called me at my house this morning ... and he said 'I've gotta talk to you today."

"Walter, I think they know we did it and I can't handle it and I know I'm gonna crack if he talks to me," Williams said in a high-pitched and giddy voice.

Karas, whose voice ranged from an urgent whisper to angry outbursts laced with expletives, counseled her on how to evade slipping up while talking to authorities. He refreshed her memory on what "exactly my story" was and he warned her: "Think about this, think about ladies prison. Think about spending the rest of your natural (expletive depleted) life there."

"You did set me up and you know what else pisses me off, is the fact that because you set me up to kill your wife, now, all of a sudden after she's dead, you don't want to see me anymore, you don't wanna go out," Williams shouted later. But Karas cut her off saying, "See you, when didn't I see you?"

On tape, Karas admitted he is "glad" his wife is dead and confessed that he is "very upset, very lonely," because he only recently broke up with "Mary Beth," Williams' successor. Williams said during the conversation that she had not seen Karas since December.

James J. Addonizio, defense attorney for Karas, contested only nine paragraphs of the lengthy tape. He opposed a reference to polygraph tests taken by Karas after the murder, arguing that they were unstipulated tests and therefore inadmissible.

Addonizio vigorously opposed a second portion of the tape in which Williams charges that Karas lied to her when he told her he could not divorce his wife because she knew of his "funneling Democratic funds and then ... burnin' down (his) second house." Karas led her to believe his wife had the ammunition to "blackmail" him, Williams alleged.

"Can I have one of your cigarettes please?" Karas answered.

Addonizio argued that the reference to illegal acts is inadmissible. Karas, who made three unsuccessful bids as Democratic candidate for the Borough Council, was acquitted on charges of "improper use of funds," according to Addonizio.

Chaiet, however, maintained that the acts Williams referred to "would be considered bad acts" and thereby admissible as a motive.

"The fact that she (Anne Karas) held some information provides a motive for this particular crime," Chaiet argued. "And the fact that it was told to Mary Williams is highly relevant." Ricciardi will issue a decision on the contested portions of the tape Sept. 7.

Williams, a former Oceanport babysitter and Wall Street secretary, and Karas, a suspended Conrail police officer, are being held in the Monmouth County jail in lieu of $1 million bail each.

Williams has been in correspondence with Lehrer and Chaiet since her incarceration. In a 52-page letter dated June 20 she writes, "Dear Alex and Paul ... I helped you get Walter even though he could have killed me had he found the wiring on me. I helped you solve the case. I put the puzzle together for you. I did this because I wanted to. I'm not the type of girl who should be in jail. I'm rich, smart, I can read and write and not to mention cute and spoiled.

"Really now — I have every intention of showing up for Walter's trial so that you can get him and even more intention of showing up at my trial. You see once I start a game I always finish it."

Addonizio won access last week to the psychiatric records of Williams and may move to have a psychiatrist of his choice examine her.

Authority set to dispose of toxins

"Indications are that the major danger from heavy metals is from ingestion, not from skin contact," he said. "If these metals are ingested, they are known to promote the formation of cancerous cells, predominantly in the liver and other abdominal areas."

Schrier said the toxic material does not pose a fire hazard.

"These kinds of paint residue are not volatile. There is no particular danger of explosion or anything like that," he said.

The material is similar to the lead paint once used on houses, Schrier said. "In the past, there was a danger of the paint peeling, and of children eating paint chips, but that kind of paint is no longer used in that way."

Smith said this type of hazardous substance is likely to materialize whenever large drums of lead paint are used. "What we're talking about is the two or three inches of sludge at the bottom of the barrel once the paint has been used," he said.

All companies that haul hazardous waste must be licensed by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the DEP, Schrier said. "They must have access to certain equipment, and be capable of handling and disposing of the material safely."

The material is generally taken to a secured landfill out of state, he said. "It must not be near any metropolitan area, and there are no such suitable locations in New Jersey."

Smith said the authority rejected the bid of United Marine Contracting Inc., Fairfield, in favor of Active Waste Transport Co. Inc., Keasbey. "The United Marine company was not licensed to transport hazardous waste," he said.

Brent Peckis, operations manager of the Active Waste Transport Co., said the material will probably be solidified and treated in New Jersey before it is sent to a secured landfill.

Authority commissioners will vote on the company's $27,774 bid for disposal of the material at its regular meeting Thursday.

Smith described the waste removal as part of the authority's commitment to toxic waste removal programs. "I believe this is one of our initial removal programs of this type in line with the DEP guidelines," he said. "We are very concerned that materials of this type be disposed of safely and efficiently."

Survey points to healthy economy through '84

By The Associated Press

Inflation will hold at a 4 percent to 5 percent level for the next 1½ years and the unemployment rate will continue to decline, according to a survey of economists released yesterday.

Economists from industry, trade and finance "see no outbreak of inflation, no upsurge in interest rates and no new recession" through 1984, Edgar R. Fiedler, president of the National Association of Business Economists, said in Washington.

The economists forecast a 5.6 percent annual rate of economic growth for the second half of this year and a 4.6 percent expansion in 1984. They also foresaw the unemployment rate falling from July's 9.5 percent to an average 9.2 percent in the October-December quarter and to 8.5 percent by the final quarter of 1984.

The bright outlook seemed to be shared on Wall Street, as stock and bond prices continued to climb. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 8.94 points to 1,203.15, bond prices rose moderately and short-term interest rates fell.

The economists, meanwhile said that while the current economic recovery should continue "in a remarkably serene way" through next year, the outlook was not all rosy. A key worry is the prospect of federal budget deficits in the $200 billion range for the next several years — which could force interest rates higher.

"In short, it's doubtful the steady, calm recovery can be continued beyond next year without major budget surgery," said Fiedler, whose main business position is vice president of the Conference Board, a business-sponsored research group.

He said higher interest rates were already bringing a "stalling out" of the once-robust housing recovery that helped ignite the overall rebound from the 1981-82 recession. But he said he didn't expect any big declines in housing construction and sales.

Housing may get a new boost by the announcement Monday that the maximum interest rate on government-back home mortgages has been cut to 13 percent from 13.5 percent.

Samuel Pierce, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, attributed the reduction to a "reassured credit market" after recent economic data that suggested the economy's rapid growth this past spring may be slowing a bit this summer. A slower pace of economic growth is believed by many economists and investors to allow for a longer recovery without an accompanying surge in inflation.

In other economic developments Monday:

—The International Monetary Fund said banks reduced their international lending in 1982 and are cutting again this year. The decline for last year, to $95 million from the previous year's $165 billion, was the first since 1977. The figures represent lending by banks around the world to countries other than their own. The agency said lending fell slightly in the first quarter of this year, too.

—The major U.S. auto manufacturers plan to build 1.94 million autos in the October-December quarter — up 61.6 percent from the same period last year and the highest total for any fourth quarter since 1978, according to Ward's Automotive Reports.

—The American Iron and Steel Institute said steel production fell 2.8 percent last week from the week before, to 1.546 million tons. The industry's production amounted to 53.7 percent of capacity, down from 55.2 percent in the previous week.

U.S. buildup paying off says Reagan

RONALD REAGAN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, arguing the United States is not seeking an arms race, said today his big buildup in Pentagon spending is paying off dividends, and that American forces "are back on their feet and standing tall."

Reagan, interrupting his California vacation, was flying to Seattle today to address the annual convention of the American Legion, the nation's largest veterans group.

The president defended his arms and economic policies for Central America, saying, "There's a democratic revolution going on in this world.

"The tide of history is with the forces of freedom — and so are we," Reagan said.

Today's address to veterans was the first of three speeches this week to politically important groups. Reagan, who is expected by aides to announce soon he will seek re-election, will speak to Hispanic leaders in Los Angeles on Thursday and to a Republican women's group in San Diego on Friday.

Referring to strategic forces, Reagan said, "In the past, we paid a grim price for indecision and neglect — for a one-way restraint that was never returned by the other side."

He said that under his administration, "Our military forces are back on their feet and standing tall.

"Modern equipment is being delivered to the troops, training is way up, and combat readiness rates have really soared," the president said. "Once again, young Americans wear their uniforms and serve their flag with pride. We've made great progress; we're going to make more."

Excerpts of the president's prepared speech were released in advance.

Reagan had urged Congress to give the Pentagon a 10 percent spending increase for fiscal 1984 after inflation.

More good economic news expected today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite fresh worries about higher food prices, economists are holding fast to their predictions that this year's inflation rate will be the best in a decade.

"I really think we'll continue to see pretty good numbers for some time to come yet," said Thomas Thomson, chief economist for San Francisco's Crocker National Bank, in advance of today's release of July's inflation figures.

Thomson and other analysts were looking for an increase in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index of about 0.3 percent, after seasonal adjustment. That would be in line with the 0.2 percent of June but better than the advances of 0.6 percent of April and 0.5 percent of May. Prices had risen much more slowly — or not at all — earlier in the year.

"There's no real reason to expect any major shock to the system in July," said David Wyss, economist at the Massachusetts consulting firm of Data Resources Inc.

For the first half of the year, prices rose at an annual rate of 2.9 percent.

As a result of the modest pace, economists are predicting the inflation rate for the entire year will be under the 3.9 percent of 1982, which had been the best showing since the 3.4 percent of 1971 and 1972.

Higher prices are already forecast for 1984 when consumers see the full effects, at the checkout counter, of this summer's drought on grain crops.

"Hot, dry weather will definitely have an impact upon consumer prices," said economist Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University.

He predicted "substantial increases in prices for meats, cereals and oil products" next year but said the scorching weather should lead to a drop in some food prices, particularly for meat, this year.

That will occur, analysts explained, because livestock breeders are sending their herds to slaughter rather than pay higher feed prices caused by the reduction in grain. Next year, though, those prices should soar with a smaller number of animals going to slaughter.

In addition to food prices, analysts are closely watching energy prices, which rose sharply in the spring before moderating this summer. Those prices actually began slipping in early August after consumers failed to use as much gasoline as had been expected, analysts said.

Official gets results, hit for language use

WASHINGTON (AP) — A zealous effort by the director of the Farmers Home Administration in New Jersey — including memos urging an assault on "the bloated scourge of delinquency" — has dramatically reduced the number of overdue loan payments in the last two years.

The memos written by James A. Gouryeb, the Garden State's director, who urged his workers to redouble their efforts to collect overdue payments, have been criticized by the agency's administrator here.

"I don't know that I would characterize them as overzealous, but I would point out that we have since counseled Mr. Gouryeb and other state directors on the manner in which they could more effectively exercise their prerogatives," Charles W. Shuman, the agency's administrator, said Monday of the memos.

The Farmers Home Administration makes low-interest housing loans to residents of rural areas who have low incomes.

Excerpts from some of the memos were published Monday in The Washington Post, including one dated Dec. 9, 1981, to the agency's Ocean County supervisor that read, in part:

"Onoe upon a time, there was an FHA (Farmers Home Administration) county office in Toms River, N.J. It was led by a brilliant, young county supervisor. He had magnificent lieutenants and heroic soldiers.

"Not waiting for reinforcements, the army of Toms River ferociously assaulted the bloated scourge of delinquency, shattering its forces with its highly disciplined and magnificently motivated troops. The shock of attack sent the delinquency rate reeling downward."

Less than a year later, on Sept. 13, 1982, Gouryeb was criticizing the Toms River office in another memo, stating that the office's processing of very few foreclosures "requires some sort of explanation" and reminding his workers that "an FHA housing loan is not a grant."

He added, "One vehicle — and it is only one of several — available to address severely delinquent accounts is foreclosure.

"When, however, same is unavoidable, and hence necessary, this agency must immediately undertake same. The law and sound credit principles demand no less."

200,000 still lack power

HOUSTON — About 200,000 hurricane victims remained without electricity a fifth day yesterday in steaming southeast Texas and officials said it may be weeks before full service is restored. "The 3,800 people we have working now is probably the largest repair force ever assembled in this country," Jim Parsons, a spokesman for Houston Lighting & Power Co., said Monday. He said that in Galveston, 50 miles to the south, electricity had been restored to about half of the homes on the heavily populated east end of the island. But on the west end, which took the brunt of Hurricane Alicia's 115 mph winds early Thursday, power remained completely out and officials said it could be weeks before service is back to normal.

Bombs rip reserve center

NEW YORK — The FBI said yesterday it had no suspects and no expectation of a quick arrest in the latest bombing by a left-wing group, but for the first time since the blasts began last winter, investigators have a written communication from the bombers. A task force of FBI and New York City police investigators said it believes that the two bombs that exploded at 10:30 p.m. Sunday at the Army Reserve center in the Bronx were set by the same people who bombed Army and Navy centers last May, an FBI office in January and suburban IBM and South African Airways offices last December.

Monitor's anchor filmed

HATTERAS, N.C. — Research divers on Monday found and filmed the anchor of the Civil War ironclad USS Monitor which is upside down and 230 feet deep on the sea floor about 16 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras. "They didn't get all the video they wanted, but they did get some good shots of the anchor — the part that's visible," said Nancy Foster of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which is co-sponsoring the expedition with East Carolina University.

Carson dropped from suit

LOS ANGELES — A federal judge yesterday dropped entertainer Johnny Carson as a defendant in a $70 million lawsuit filed by two of Carson's former partners in a defunct Beverly Hills bank. The suit will still proceed against Carson's personal attorney Henry Bushkin, a former director of the Commercial Bank of California, said attorney Douglas Thorpe, who represents plaintiffs Arnold Kopelson and Michael Miller, also former directors of the bank.

Physician claims insanity

AKRON, Ohio — A physician charged with a series of sexual attacks over several years pleaded innocent by reason of insanity yesterday, and his lawyer said "there is no question" that his 'lient committed the crimes. Dr. Edward Franklin Jackson Jr. dropped a plea of innocent as jury selection got under way.

Teaching profession in crisis, says survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — A private foundation today issued a bleak report on the teaching profession, saying teachers aren't making enough money and that the quality of educators is declining even as the demand for them is rising.

The study by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching said the money spent per student has increased over the last 10 years but that the percentage of education expenditures going to teacher salaries has shrunk.

"The facts presented in this report make clear that the teaching profession is in crises," said foundation president Ernest L. Boyer, whose warnings echoed those of a national commission that in April reported a "rising tide of mediocrity" in the U.S. school system.

"Poor students are going into teaching, teacher pay has actually declined in relation to other professionals and public employees," said Boyer. "Credentializing is a mess and teachers do not receive adequate recognition and reward."

Teacher salaries have slipped from 49 percent of the total spent on public elementary and secondary schools in 1972-73 to 38 percent in 1982-83, said the study by Dr. C. Emily Feistritzer, who also publishes education newsletters.

"For the same period, the amount spent on each student increased by 182 percent, to $2,917 from $1,035," said a summary of the study. "When inflation over the decade is cranked into the equation, per-pupil expenditures are seen to be 22.5 percent higher and teacher salaries 12.2 percent lower."

Furthermore, teacher salaries don't grow fast enough to be competitive, it said.

"Salaries at entry, $12,769 for a public elementary or secondary school teacher with a bachelor's degree, are almost $3,500 below starting pay for the next lowest professional, $16,200 for a college graduate in business administration," said the summary. "But the gap widens thereafter: $25,000 after 15 years for the teacher, $40,000 to $50,000 for an accountant who started at $16,000."

The report said the average teacher's salary nationwide is $20,531 a year.

While school enrollments dropped in all but seven states in the last decade, the number of teachers increased by 1.4 percent, to 2.14 million. "Primarily, this was due to demands for more service to the handicapped and smaller class sizes," the study said.

The demand for teachers is starting to exceed the supply, it said, adding that the nation is expected to need 8,000 more teacher graduates in 1983 than it will get, and 31,000 by 1986.

Less than 5 percent of college-bound high school seniors say they want to major in education, a 50 percent drop from 1973, the study found. And the caliber of those entering the teaching profession is low and declining.

"In every state, the 1982 Scholastic Aptitude Test scores for high school seniors with education as their intended major fell below those entering the arts, business, commerce and communications, and the biological, physical and social sciences," it said.

Snakes alive, they're scared

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Things that go "thump" in the night have forced a landlord to evacuate 10 families from an apartment house while an exterminator gets a grip on rumors that former tenants left behind a boa constrictor or two.

Odors from air vents and strange noises have set off serpentine tales about snakes 6- to 10-feet long climbing the walls.

But exterminator David Pauli's attempt to lure the creepy, crawly critters into the open with live bait — a raccoon, rabbit and white mice — produced no results yesterday.

Bulging waterbed smothers owner

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A waterbed mattress apparently broke free of its frame and smothered its owner, who had fallen asleep waiting for the bed to fill with water, police said.

Donald King, 28, of Stockton, was asphyxiated by the mattress when it overfilled with water, burst its wood frame and rolled on top of him, police said.

King apparently had fallen asleep on the floor Saturday night while waiting for the mattress to fill with water from a hose, police reported. When the water-filled mattress shattered its wooden bonds, it apparently rolled onto King.

The accident was discovered by apartment manager Wes Beckman. He told police he had been called by King's downstairs neighbor, LaMoyne Guerra, 36, who complained about water leaking from her ceiling and flooding her apartment.

Governor: Opposition won't halt insurance reform

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Thomas H. Kean predicted yesterday that opposition to parts of the proposed overhaul of auto insurance regulations expected from medical and legal lobbies will not be enough to thwart the revisions.

"I expect there would be opposition, but I have not heard of any that would put it into trouble with the Legislature," Kean said of the compromise package worked out with legislative leaders and announced last Tuesday.

The complex proposal seeks to cut auto insurance premiums by allowing motorists options on coverage, setting a medical fee schedule for injuries and establishing binding arbitration in cases involving injuries resulting in bills of $15,000 or less.

A lobbyist for the Medical Society of New Jersey said that physicians are opposed to a fee schedule for accident-related injuries. And spokeswomen for groups representing lawyers and insurance companies said that they had "questions" and would wait until the legislation is drafted before taking a firm position on the proposals.

"I haven't heard of any snags from the Legislature," Kean said. Both Democratic and Republican leaders seem intent to "contain legal costs, contain medical costs and the costs of auto body repair because you're never really going to cut premium costs unless you attack these," he added.

Kean said that he felt "perhaps, some insurance companies are not happy with the (lawsuit) threshold, but we've got to mandate out some of those premium costs."

According to industry figures, New Jersey drivers now pay the highest yearly premiums in the nation — an average of $666 per car a year.

"If you reduce the legal costs, someone is not going to be getting as much money and it's the same with medical costs," Kean said. "I hope that there will be some people who don't get the legal fees that they did before."

Nancy Blethen, a spokeswoman for the Insurance News Service, said insurance companies are concerned about a proposal to have a $1,500 threshold for personal injury lawsuits, with an option to pay more for insurance and have no threshold.

"It's a question of breaking new ground and how it would be administered if, for instance, one driver has the $1,500 threshold coverage and the other has the zero," she said. "Who would keep track of the medical bills?"

Doctors around the state don't like the idea of a medical fee schedule, said Joseph Katz, a lobbyist for the state medical society.

"It won't save any money," Katz claimed. "The big danger is that if fees turn out to be less than the standard for medical care, it will lead to second class medical care for accident victims. Fee schedules are why you don't see any of the top practitioners taking Medicare patients."

"We support the varying threshold option, but we have concerns about the workability of the whole package," said Diane Legriede, a spokeswoman for the 1,000-member Lawyers Encouraging Government and Law.

Kean is talking tough to 2 unions

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Thomas H. Kean warned two militant state employee unions yesterday that there is no money in the budget for higher raises and said he will take "whatever action is necessary" to thwart threatened strikes or job actions.

"Strikes by public employees are illegal in this state and will remain illegal as long as I am governor," Kean said.

The Communications Workers of America, the largest union representing state employees, and the American Federation of Teachers, which represents faculty members at nine state colleges, are preparing for votes that could lead to strikes or job actions next month.

Both unions say they want more money and other improvements in three-year contracts offered by state negotiators last Wednesday. They claim that there is more money available for public workers' salaries earmarked in the state budget.

Kean said that the state has made its last salary offer.

"If there is more money in the budget, we don't see it," Kean said. "We opened up our books to them. We made what I feel is a very fair, very appropriate offer."

Should either union walk off the job, "I will take whatever action is necessary immediately" to end a strike, Kean said.

"A strike is illegal and I will use whatever means I have to enforce the law," he said. "If that's not enough, I'll ask the Legislature for more law. I don't expect anyone in the state to break the law. Whatever happens, we will be able to keep essential services going."

Deputy Attorney General Melvin Mounts explained that there is no specific law which says strikes by state employees are illegal, "but courts have interpreted the law that way."

Mounts said that the state could seek injunctions to bar walkouts and press for fines or jail terms against leaders of unions that refuse to honor back-to-work orders.

The CWA announced Saturday that it is urging its 16,000 members to vote to reject a proposed contract that calls for a $700 bonus in the first year and raises totaling 7 percent in the second year and 8 percent in the third and final year.

Results of the vote by card-carrying members of the union, which represents 32,000 white collar state employees, are expected within a month, said Steven Rosenthal, a CWA spokesman.

Casino income soars

LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP — New earnings for the casino industry in Atlantic City soared from $3.3 million in the first three months of this year to $42.1 million in the second quarter, the Casino Control Commission announced yesterday. Combined industry figures were $25 million higher for the second three months of 1983 than they were for the same period a year ago. Seven of the nine casino hotels finished the period showing a profit. The Claridge posted a net loss of $5.2 million and Playboy showed a loss of $1.3 million. The Tropicana, which showed a loss in the first quarter moved into the black with net income of almost $1.4 million.

Unruh seeks transfer again

CAMDEN — Confessed mass murderer Howard Unruh is scheduled to appear in court today, the second time in 14 months, asking to be transferred out of the Vroom Building, a maximum security psychiatric hospital near Trenton. Unruh, 62, has spent the last 34 years in the facility after admitting he went on a 20-minute shooting rampage in his East Camden neighborhood, killing 13 people and injuring three others on Sept. 6, 1949.

Recall numbers fall short

ATLANTIC CITY — Petitions seeking a referendum to unseat Mayor Michael Matthews are 2,600 signatures short of forcing a ballot question, city Clerk Adelaide Deane said yesterday. But leaders of the recall drive pledged to have enough names on a petition to get the question of removing Matthews from office on the ballot in November. Mrs. Deane said her staff, working overtime during the last 12 days, disallowed thousands of signatures gathered in the recall drive.

Nuclear reactor shuts down

LOWER ALLOWAYS CREEK — The Salem I nuclear reactor shut down automatically yesterday as workers were testing an emergency system involving the circuit breakers that malfunctioned in February and sparked a federal inquiry, officials said. The reactor's twin unit, Salem II, has been out of service since Friday, when pressure was lost in the cooling system of an electrical generator. Officials have not determined how to remedy that problem, said Wes Denman, a spokesman for the plant's operator, Public Service Electric & Gas Co.

Colleges check student scores

By PATRICK BRESLIN
Associated Press Writer

Emory University has refused to admit one of four New Jersey students accused of cheating on their college entrance examinations, and all four students probably will take new tests, officials and others said yesterday.

Richard Becker, 17, of Short Hills, had intended to go to Emory University in Atlanta, but was denied admission recently, said Virginia Haskin, mother of one of the other students, Stephen Haskin, 18, of Springfield.

Becker has been admitted to the University of Colorado, said Millard Storey, director of admissions at Colorado.

Emory officials would not comment on the report. There was no answer at Becker's home phone, and his father, attorney Frederic K. Becker, was not at his office.

Another of the students, James Denburg, 18, of Short Hills, said Mrs. Haskin's report seemed correct, but he was not sure.

Pat Nixon

Pat Nixon suffers stroke

SADDLE RIVER — Former first lady Pat Nixon, who spent years recovering from a severe stroke in 1976, returned to her home here yesterday after suffering a mild stroke that put her into the hospital for five days. Mrs. Nixon's doctor said she was "recovering nicely," according Nicholas Ruwe, assistant to former President Richard M. Nixon.

Mrs. Nixon, 71, is not slurring her speech, nor did the stroke result in any paralysis, Ruwe said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Washington.

It was different in 1976 when she and Nixon still lived in San Clemente, Calif. That stroke left her with some paralysis for a time, and she had difficulty speaking. She recovered completely, Ruwe said, and appeared to be in good health.

Issues are described as 'nothing we'll strike for'

By LISA R. KRUSE

HOLMDEL — The local issues that might hang up the tentative agreement between Bell Laboratories, here, and the Communication Workers of America Local 1062 have been described by one union official as "nothing we'll strike for."

William Schneckenberger, vice-president of Local 1062, said that the major sticking points are contract wording on promotions and equities. Due to the state of the negotiations, he said he couldn't elaborate further.

"They put a few things down on us that we weren't expecting," Schneckenberger said. "But the issues are nothing we'll strike for."

According to Schneckenberger, the new contract with Bell Laboratories calls for a 4.5 percent increase in retirement pensions, to become effective in January 1984, and 100 percent medical insurance coverage, including new additions of chiropractic medicine and cosmetic surgery.

Schneckenberger said that union officals will begin negotiations with Bell Laboratories on the remaining issues today at 8:30 a.m. at the Summit Hotel, Summit. It will cover all 1700 Bell Lab employees from Holmdel, Whippany, Murray Hill, and Napperville, Ill.

Local 1062 represents approximately 400 workers.

"Tomorrow is the big day," Schneckenberger said. "We'll know where we stand on the tough issues then."

The national contract calls for pay hikes of 5.5 percent this year, effective Aug. 25, and subsequent 1.5 percent salary increases in 1984 and 1985, in addition to cost of living raises.

All local issues in the strike must be resolved by midnight Wednesday.

"I think we'll have all the issues resolved by then," Schneckenberger said. "I want the people to go back to work on Thursday morning."

Bell officials optimistic

NEWARK (AP) — New Jersey Bell officials said they were "cautiously optimistic" for a settlement with 20,000 employees as they began negotiations yesterday with their largest striking union and planned to start talks with another union.

And once a settlement is reached, it could mean an increase in phone rates, said New Jersey Bell spokeswoman Paula Harvan.

Negotiations began with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which represents 12,650 of the New Jersey Bell employees who walked out three weeks ago in a nationwide strike against American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The company was scheduled to begin negotiations today with the Communications Workers of America, which has 7,800 union members at New Jersey Bell.

Three national unions, including the IBEW and CWA, reached a tentative agreement Sunday with AT&T on a $3 billion contract, but New Jersey Bell workers will not return to their jobs until local issues are resolved, officials said.

Rutgers' schools get high marks

NEW BRUNSWICK (AP) — Rutgers University-Cook College and Rutgers College are two of the best state colleges in the country, according to a survey to be published next month in Family Circle magazine. The New Jersey state colleges were not considered among those of nationwide distinction, likely to attract students from thousands of miles away.

But they were among the top 15 colleges of mainly local distinction, worthy of serious consideration by students who live nearby, according to author Katharine Davis Fishman. She based her list on the opinions of deans and admissions directors interviewed at 30 of the nation's leading graduate, law and medical schools.

"What I did was call up a bunch of graduate school deans and talked to them the way you talk to your favorite uncle," Ms. Fishman said. "And I said, 'When you get applicants, which are the ones that make you sit up and take notice?' " upset. I have been waking up, I've been having nightmares, I've been waking up in 80 degrees and I've been freezing cold. I'm freezing cold right now. Walter, I think they know we did it and I can't handle it and I know I'm gonna crack if he talks to me. You've gotta tell me what to say, you gotta tell me what to do because he's gonna crack.

KARAS: First of all, you don't know what he's going to ask you at all ...

KARAS: Let's take a walk somewhere, let's walk.

WILLIAM: I don't, Walter no, I don't wanna be seen. Walter, you've gotta tell me what to do, what to say.

KARAS: Listen you tell Lucia (inaudible).

WILLIAMS: Walter, come on, they could have researched your Visa and they could have done a lotta other stuff that we don't know about. Now you know you've been afraid of your Visa.

KARAS: Mary, Mary, you knew nothing about anything.

WILLIAMS: Walter, come on, you've got me very upset. You set me up for this and you took my soul.

KARAS: (You expletive), please.

WILLIAMS: Don't call me (expletive deleted), come on, you know you know you set me up for this.

KARAS: I didn't set you up. look.

WILLIAMS: You did set me up and you know what else pisses me off, is the fact that because you set me up to kill your wife, now, all of a sudden after she's dead, you don't wanna see me anymore, you don't wanna go out ...

KARAS: See you, when didn't see you?

WILLIAMS: You always see me when I call you and we both know that and we know why, it's because we're both scared to death if they're gonna find out we did it.

KARAS: We didn't do it.

WILLIAMS: (Expletive), Walter, we did to do it and stop, would you finally admit the truth Walter, I mean, my God, it's drivin me crazy, I can't handle it. I've gotta tell the truth to somebody.

KARAS: You already told a couple of people.

WILLIAMS: Yeah, I know I have to a couple of people

KARAS: (inaudible) Keep your mouth shut.

WILLIAMS: But I feel, not right, it's like, I, nightmares all the time, I can't function. You know how many times I did poops today!

WILLIAMS: Walter, I can't get upset like this, I'm ready to crack. He could say anything, I still might crack.

KARAS: (inaudible)

WILLIAMS: But I do and I can't stand knowing that I do Walter. You've gotta give me somethin' to go on besides, "I don't know what you're talkin' about Billy." That ain't gonna work, it's not gonna cut the mustard. I can't handle it. Get that through your thick head.

KARAS: (inaudible) Can I sit in your car?

WILLIAMS: Yeah, you can sit in my car.

KARAS: When does he (Investigator Lucia) wanna see you?

WILLIAMS: I've gotta call him. I have to call him tonight.

KARAS: And where does he wanna see you at?

WILLIAMS: I'm telling him a place to meet him 'cause I've gotta get this car back down to Spring Lake.

KARAS: Yeah, okay.

WILLIAMS: I'm not wired (Karas is still speaking, but is inaudible) so stop feelin' me, get your hands off of me Walter, I don't wanna be touched by you.

KARAS: Okay, how do you feel, now?

WILLIAMS: How do I feel? I feel ...

KARAS: Physically.

WILLIAMS: Physically?

KARAS: With your ...

WILLIAMS: Mentally?

KARAS: With the last abortion. I'm not worried about this ...

WILLIAMS: With the last abortion, I'm worried about it, I don't give a (expletive deleted) about my last abortion. I'm getting over the infection, it's fine.

KARAS: I'm trying, I'm trying to calm you down, okay?

WILLIAMS: Well, you're not calming me down by talking about my last abortion, you have got, God, I can't walk in to this guy and just say, Oh, Billy, I don't know anything, I was in Atlantic City. 'Cause he's gonna come at me with somethin' and I know it. What if he went down to Atlantic City and, and, and, and searched and, and Scuba dived and did all that other stuff to find the knife and stuff and the pocketbook. What if they find the pocketbook and we don't know it ...

KARAS: Okay, so they found it ...

WILLIAMS: What if it's ...

KARAS: Alright, so they found it, now this is where you gotta be cool. So they found it, you say, hey, I don't know I don't know anything about it. I went down to Atlantic City and if you stumble on your story and he says that's not what you said the first time, say Billy this

U.S. gambling on China

JACK ANDERSON

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has made it easier for Communist China to buy U.S. high-technology items for probable military use — justifying the expected sales with the hope that the Chinese won't buy much, or won't be able to use what they do buy.

This hope is echoed in a secret Pentagon estimate that disparages "the Chinese ability to absorb and maintain U.S. equipment."

The report explains why: "One of the lessons we learned from Vietnam was that U.S. know-how — often in the form of U.S. advisers or technicians — must accompany U.S. technology if advanced systems are to be used and maintained properly. Although the Chinese are technologically advanced compared to the Vietnamese, they are well behind the state-of-the-art in most areas, and their common soldier is still technologically unsophisticated.

"Thus, the Chinese might not be capable of effectively integrating our more advanced systems into their force structure. Even less sophisticated equipment would rapidly deteriorate if proper maintenance were not understood and performed. Given the Chinese aversion to foreign technicians... this factor could be critical."

This may seem like too much reliance on an ethnic stereotype, but the fact remains that China is far behind the United States in technology. This shortcoming is reflected in the relatively primitive state of its enormous military machine. A top-secret Pentagon report seen by my associate Dale Van Atta details these weaknesses:

— Though China has the world's largest army (163 divisions), most of its equipment is 1950s vintage, consisting of copies or variants of Soviet military hardware.

— Numerically, the Chinese navy is the world's second largest. But the great bulk of its fleet is made up of more than 1,000 small, high-speed patrol craft. There are no aircraft carriers, and no ships bigger than a destroyer. In fact, the Chinese have only 39 ships that fall in the "principal surface combatant" category.

— The Chinese have no anti-submarine aircraft, only one missile-carrying sub and 106 other attack subs. Few are long-range, and none is nuclear-powered.

—. The Chinese air force is the world's third largest, with 4,200 fighter planes and 650 bombers. But again, the aircraft are technological Model T's. The planes can't fight at night or in foul weather, and are generally no match for Soviet aircraft.

— The Chinese have about 50 medium-range ballistic missiles, 90 intermediate-range missiles and less than a dozen intercontinental missiles — a pathetically small force considering the Soviet nuclear missiles arrayed against them.

— Chinese bombers have dropped nuclear devices in tests, but the planes that are designated for a nuclear role have no electronic counter-measures against air-defense weapons and are therefore extremely vulnerable. "These constraints place formidable limitations upon the use of bombers against well-defended targets, such as those within the U.S.S.R.," the report observes.

— China's own defense against incoming missiles or bombers, on the other hand, is hopelessly inadequate. Its early-warning system facing the Soviets is riddled with holes. The Chinese have about 1,000 surface-to-air missile batteries and anti-aircraft guns, but their crews might not even see Soviet planes before it is too late.

LEGISLATIVE FUMBLE: In a manly attempt to bridge the gender gap, Congress managed to widen it instead — and caused the Social Security Administration a big headache.

One of this year's Social Security amendments allows a divorced spouse to collect benefits even if the wage-earning ex-spouse hasn't filed a claim yet. The change was to take effect in January 1985. But that crucial point was left out of the section dealing with men claiming benefits based on their ex-wives' earnings. The result is, technically, that men can take advantage of the change immediately, while women have to wait till 1985.

Pentagon is getting nervous

ART BUCKWALL

By ART BUCHWALD

The Pentagon is getting nervous. With a White House foreign policy based on a military response to every situation, there is a growing gap between the number of worldwide commitments we've decided to make, and the armed services' ability to meet them.

Just last week the Pentagon's joint Chief of the Day received a call from National Security Adviser Clark's office at the White House.

"The president wants you to send two carriers, three missile cruisers, and six B-52s as a warning to Mozambique."

"We're plumb out of aircraft carriers, cruisers and B-52s."

"How can you be out of them? We've given you the biggest military budget in history."

"We have the money, but most of the stuff isn't built yet. You people have asked us to send aircraft carriers to Lebanon, Central America, Libya and Southeast Asia. We don't even have one in dry dock. I wish the White House would check with us before you do any more saber rattling."

"We're not saber rattling. Our national security is at stake in every part of the globe, and if we don't show the flag, our credibility will be zilch."

"Well, we can't send any carriers to Mozambique."

"What about nuclear submarines?"

"They're all spoken for. We have to keep them on station as our main deterrent to the Soviets until we can put the MX missiles in place."

"What can you send to Mozambique?"

"How about a World War II destroyer? We got a bunch of them in mothballs."

"What kind of message is that to the Russians?"

"With all due respect, one of the problems is that you keep sending messages to the Soviets with U.S. naval ships. Why can't you people use the diplomatic pouch like every other country does?"

"The only thing the Soviets understand is strength. If we don't produce a task force for Mozambique they'll interpret it as a sign that we are unable to police the world."

"There is just so much we can do. The Pentagon is always happy to further American foreign policy, but if you would consult with us first, we could let you know whether we can support it militarily."

"I thought the armed forces had contingency plans for every situation on the face of the globe."

"We do have the plans. We just don't have the troops. You have to figure out a few diplomatic initiatives that don't require military muscle."

"Well, if we can't send the fleet, what about flying in the Rapid Deployment Brigade to Kenya?"

"You already requested them for Honduras."

"Okay, then ferry over some AWACS."

"All our AWACS are spoken for."

"Then dispatch the 82nd Airborne."

"We don't have the planes to transport the 82nd Airborne. Do you want us to pull a division out of Germany?"

"No, that would be the wrong signal to the Kremlin, particularly at the moment we're putting Pershing missiles into Europe."

"Do you people really have to send a message to Mozambique at this time? Couldn't we at least wait until the dust settles over Chad?"

"The president and Mr. Clark are very concerned that if we don't show we're serious about Mozambique, they'll be laughing at us in Angola."

"So let them laugh."

"Watch yourself, General. I'm speaking for your commander in chief. What have you got in our military arsenal to warn Mozambique?"

"If you want the truth – two jeeps, a WAC, and the U.S. Marine Corps Band. Once we ship them overseas you people are on your own."

Black power in voting

The statewide Black Issues Convention next month comes at a time when black political momentum is at its zenith, but solutions to the massive problems of high black unemployment, income inequality and urban crime seem as far off as ever.

This year, the victories of former Rep. Harold Washington and businessman W. Wilson Goode brought Chicago and Philadelphia their first black mayors, stirring black political pride throughout the nation. Two years ago, Newark Mayor Kenneth Gibson's quietly effective grass-roots efforts gave him a startling third-place finish in New Jersey's Democratic gubernatorial primary. And the Rev. Jesse Jackson has all but declared his intention to launch the first major black political campaign for the White House in next year's national Democratic presidential primaries.

However, black unemployment in New Jersey still exceeds 18 percent, only 35 percent of black families in the state earn more than $20,000 per year, and less than 60 percent of blacks over 25 have graduated high school.

The first step to solving the problems is asking the tough questions. The New Jersey Black Issues Conference is circulating a three-page survey among the black community in Monmouth County asking participants to rank the issues they consider to be of most critical importance, and those in which they are most interested. After common needs and desires are agreed upon, plans of attack can be developed.

The next step, says Dorothy Seldon, Monmouth County vice-coordinator for the convention, is to make politicians from the federal level down to the local mayor aware of these issues of importance to the black community — and the fact that ignoring those issues can be hazardous to that politician's electoral health.

The black community organizations putting together New Jersey's Black Issues Convention are taking the right tack in using the caucus not as a forum for political candidates, but to promote a strategy which holds promise of leading to long-term political change and solutions to long-term problems. We wish them well.

National Guard improving

The Army, Marines, Navy and Air Force may be the first lines of defense for the United States, but the National Guard is prominent in the second line.

The organization plays a key role, not only in our national defense but by its ability to serve as a state crisis team at the time of emergencies.

One of the brighter bits of news is the announcement that National Guard enlistment has increased from 12,982 in 1976 to 15,000 in New Jersey this year.

The poor economy over the past two years has accounted for some of this gain as recruits have taken advantage of pay and training for various jobs from mechanic to dental technician.

And Guard officials are highly pleased that the recruits are basically mostly high school graduates, eager to earn and learn.

Recruitment will continue at the high school level, says Capt. Albert Petroni, recruiting officer in Trenton. "The days of going into the barrooms are out," he said.

A well-trained National Guard is not only a necessity for the job it must do but it is a morale booster for the civilian sector which can rest a bit more easily in the knowledge that competent assistance is quickly available.

Positive plus approach

The new roof that Genevieve Murphy put on her San Francisco home this year had a 20-year guarantee. Nothing unusual in that, except Miss Murphy is one year shy of 100.

That positive outlook is the same one that lifted the near-centenarian out of her wheelchair after a recent stroke, to return to a job as a health products saleswoman.

For a lot of us who sometimes find life a little hard to take, the tale of a silver-haired grandmother who doesn't know the meaning of the word "quit" may sound like nothing more than a nice little human interest story. Inspirational stories aside, adversity isn't quite that easy to shrug off.

But, whether we like it or not, there is a moral here that can't be ignored. A woman who, through her own good sense (no smoking or drinking), hard work, and a small hand from a friend in the fate department, has survived 99 years of life with minimal fading of her rose-colored glasses isn't a bad role model.

Things can be tough, problems can loom like mountains, and the light at the end of the tunnel can look awfully far away, but there's a frail lady in California who knows the sales strategy — you get what you pay for.

Does evil triumph? Sometimes

JIM BISHOP

BY JIM BISHOP

Take Al Deg. He was a short bald man of many roundnesses. He had a tall skinny wife who looked like a frightened apostrophe. He had all the brains. She had none. Al was a wholesale salesman in the Midwest. He was so shrewd that he weighed the possibilities of every word before uttering it. By the time he got around to murmuring hello to a friend on the street, he was a block away.

Deg bought his wife a new car. She was allowed to do anything, like washing and waxing it, except drive it. She was forbidden to do this, so on the very first day, she waited until Al went out to peddle magazines, and she drove it to her girlfriend's.

That evening, she barely made it home before he did. She flew out of the car and into the kitchen, donned an apron, and turned up all the gas burners. She was just filling a cooking pot when he walked in. He didn't kiss her. "I told you not to drive the car," he said. Muriel stared at him with her mouth open.

"Come here," he said. He took her outside to the driveway. "Look," he said. The right side of the car had been shoved in. The wife began to weep. "Stop it," he said sternly. "You disobeyed me. This is the penalty. You were probably in your girlfriend's house when some lunatic sidewiped the car. You came out and got in on the driver's side and never noticed it."

Muriel begged forgiveness. Al decided to make her pay a little more for trying to outwit a genius. Then he phoned the showroom where he had bought the car. "Your man delivered our new car two days ago," he shouted. "I've been too busy to look it over. Now I find that someone has creased the right side. What are you going to about?"

The dealer said that if it was his fault, he'd make good. He couldn't prove that it wasn't. So the car was refinished like new. A few days later, Al Deg received a phone call. "Does your car have a license plate number 2793-6528?" said a man's voice. Al was cautious. "I think so," he said. "Why?" The man said that he was Edward Lewis, owner of one the biggest department stores in the city.

"My wife," he said, "had a slight accident. She was out driving last week with our dog and the dog was leaning too far out the right-hand window and my wife reached for him and the car swerved into a parked car. It made her hysterical, so she took the license number and hurried home. Now she has told the story to me. If it is your car, Mr. Deg, I'd like to make good..."

"No, no," said Al magnanimously. "We have already taken care of the matter. I wish you would reassure your wife that no great harm has been done, and the car is already repaired." Mr. Lewis insisted. "It is my responsibility," he said. But Deg wouldn't hear of it.

"You are a rare person," said Lewis. "I wish you would stop by my office some day so that we can say hello." Al got off the phone in ecstasy. He danced his wife around the living room. "I couldn't get in to see Lewis in a million years," he said, "but now I'm invited."

Two months later, Deg received a notice of a contest. A national magazine was offering a free trip for two to Hollywood to the salesman who sold the most copies of the June issue. Deg wanted that trip. He wanted it badly. So he went to the big department store and asked to see Edward Lewis.

Mr. Lewis received Deg effusively. They talked, in the office, like old cronies. Deg was modest. "I want to win that contest," he said, "and I think you can help me. My idea is to place copies of the magazine beside every cash register on the main floor. That is, instead of merely in the magazine section. This will increase sales..."

"Wait a minute," said Lewis. "I have a better idea. Why not place them beside every cash register on every floor?" Deg said that this would be beyond his wildest dreams. It was done. and Deg won a trip to Hollywood for two.

He took the plane tickets and cashed them in. Then he and Muriel drove West, living like royalty all the way. "A man has to think ahead," he told Muriel. "A buck here. A buck there. It mounts up."

They saw Hollywood and movie stars and they went south to Tijuana and came back up to La Jolla and drove up into the tawny hills and got out of the car to look down at the sea. Al was breathing in beauty when, out of the corner of his eye, he saw something move. It was his car. It started slowly and, before he could run to it, it rolled off the hill, out into space.

Muriel began to cry. It was the thing she did best. Al threw his hat down and jumped on it. "After you had that parking accident," he roared. "I canceled the insurance. Nobody gets a second accident with the same car..."

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 23, the 235th day of 1983. There are 130 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1500, explorer Christopher Columbus was accused of mistreating natives in the West Indies and was ordered sent back to Spain.

In 1869, followers of Mary Baker Eddy obtained a charter in Lynn, Mass., to organize the Church of Christ, Scientist.

In 1947, an audience of 15,000 at the Hollywood Bowl heard President Harry Truman's daughter, Margaret, give her first public concert as a singer.

And, in 1968, a one-hour general strike was staged in Czechoslovakia to protest the Soviet-led military occupation.

Ten years ago: Secretary of State nominee Henry Kissinger pledged a more open foreign policy in which Congress and private citizens would have a stronger voice.

OBITUARIES

Dr. William Bennett; secret phone designer

Born in Des Moines, Iowa, he lived in Summit before moving to Tulip Lane here 21 years ago.

He graduated from Oregon State University in 1925 with a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering, and received his master's degree and Ph.D. in physics from Columbia University, New York.

A pioneer in telecommunications and digital transmission of speech, he retiring from Bell Telephone Laboratories in 1965 as head of the data theory department to accept a position at Columbia University, where he was named Professor Emeritus seven years later.

During World War II, he was a co-designer of a secret telephone system known as the "X System," which was used to transmit messages between President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill.

The system is believed to have represented the first practical example of digital speech transmission.

Dr. Bennett held numerous patents, and was the author of several books dealing with data transmission and communications techniques.

He won the Mervin J. Kelly Award in 1968 for his contributions in the field of telecommunications.

He was a member of the Holmdel Community Church.

Surviving are his wife, Viola; a son, Yale University Professor William R. Bennett Jr. of New Haven, Conn.; a daughter, Mrs. Carol Ann Valles of Bedford, N.Y.; four brothers, Robert Bennett of Chula Vista, Cal., and David, Charles, and Walter Bennett, all of Oregon; three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Trimble of San Jose, Cal., and Mrs. Edith Beach and Mrs. Elizabeth Mumford, both of Portland, Ore., and six grandchildren.

He retired in 1971 as a design engineer for Lancey Laboratories, Long Branch.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ursula Schulz; two sons, Richard M. Brunner of Huma, La., and Eugene W. Brunner of Ocean, and eight grandchildren.

Middletown faculty hiring is hit

Swaim said she was "pleasantly surprised" to receive the attorney general's brief. She called it a "very strong argument against another appeal."

In December 1979, the MTEA filed a complaint with then-State Education Commissioner Fred G. Burke on behalf of three teachers hired by the local board on the one-year replacement basis.

The complaint alleged that the three elementary school teachers — Adrienne Anselmi, Sharon DiPasquale and Mary Rohr — were effectively denied tenure by the special designation.

An administrative law judge ruled in the teachers' favor in July 1980, granting them tenure but failing to address the establishment of a special category of replacement teachers, prompting the association to appeal directly to Burke.

The commissioner ruled in favor of the MTEA in September 1980, quoting from decisions as far back as 1959.

"The commissioner must be vigilant to protect those who are entitled to tenure from the erosion of their tenure rights by subterfuge and evasion," Burke wrote. "The duties performed rather than the title of a position must determine whether a position is protected by tenure."

The local district then appealed Burke's decision to the state Board of Education, but the commissioner's position was upheld in March 1981.

A month later, the township school board filed a brief in the Appellate Division of Superior Court, asking that Burke's determination be overturned.

The court did not hear the case until May 31 of this year, deciding in June to affirm the comissioner's position.

At its July 5 meeting, the board decided by a split vote to take the case to state Supreme Court, authorizing Board Attorney Peter N. Kalac to file an appeal.

Kimmelman refuted Kalac's contention that the Appellate Decision is inconsistent with one reached by the high court on a 1982 case involving a teacher and the Rutherford Board of Education.

"A plain reading of the two decisions discloses the absence of any inconsistency," he wrote.

The attorney general's brief states that the township board's "designation of a class of 'replacement teachers,' unrecognized in the education statutes and regulations, is a naked attempt to circumvent the requirements of the tenure laws.

"It is respectfully submitted that there is no basis for granting certification in this matter," Kimmelman wrote. "The petition should be dismissed."

All three teachers named in the initial complaint are still employed in the district, and stand to gain additional seniority if the matter is ultimately decided in the MTEA's favor, according to Swaim.

When the board voted to appeal the lower court decision at its July meeting, MTEA Vice President Frank D'Alessandro asked board President Julia Ann Nagy how much the district had spent on Kalac's fees in the case.

She estimated the cost to that point at $5,200.

But based on the fees paid to the teachers' association lawyer, D'Alessandro estimated that the cost was closer to $10,000.

been so (expletive deleted) long ago, I mean, I forgot, forgot, walked up. I'm nervous too. I, my throat is dry ...

WILLIAMS: Mine's extremely dry.

KARAS: Okay. You went to Atlantic City ... and if they try to, they're gonna try to pop you with something, something they know that you shouldn't know and you're just gonna have to play it. You shouldn't know a lotta things about, and if they say how'd you find that out, well Walter talked a lot to me when we were, when Walter and I were going out after it, after she died. Walter told me a lot of things and he, you know, he, this is exactly my story. I went back to start back for the keys, I turned Ann call, I turned, I saw this black figure over Ann. I started to run, I think I ran, I'm not sure I 'ran, I'm positive I ran, I don't know. Even through the hypnotism both times I described a black person under a ski mask, okay, a black person under the ski mask, do you understand . . .

WILLIAMS: Yeah, but what if they think you're, you're hypnosis (expletive) because, you know, when you go under hypnosis ...

KARAS: I did two of 'em, two of 'em.

KARAS: They believed my story a hundred percent 'cause I believed it was true. I told it as it was true, that's what you gotta do. I said that to Lucia (inaudible) first of all, it he was going to question you he would apprise you of the right that you have the right to remain silent (inaudible) What the (expletive) is he gonna do on a Saturday night talking' to you.

WILLIAMS: Well, he's trying' to get me scared and he's doin' a damn good job of it and you're not doin' anything but tellin' me how you ...

KARAS: What would you really like me to tell you? What would you like me to tell you? What can I say?

WILLIAMS: If he says ...

KARAS: You had nothing to do it, we don't know any (expletive) thing about it.

WILLIAMS: But Walter, you know that's not true.

KARAS: And so do you know it's true. You know that we had nothing to do with it ...

WILLIAMS: No, that's, no ...

KARAS: Just try to keep telling yourself.

WILLIAMS: I can't keep tellin' myself that.

KARAS: Think about this, about ladies prison. Think about spending the rest of your natural (expletive) life there.

WILLIAMS: I know, I'm scared that they're gonna have somethin' on us.

KARAS: They don't have anything honey, if they had any material evidence on us we'd have gone a long time ago. They have no material evidence, the only thing they have right now is the gone work on you psychologically work on you, and you just have to say hey, I don't know what the (expletive) these people are talking about. I never got over this, I subjected to a lie detector test. I um, I (inaudible) I spoke to you freely and many times. I do occasionally call him once in a while. Now I recall the phone bills whatever. See, I, I call Walter to see how he's feeling, when I have a problem I think he can help me with, I call him and we talk about it. He's been very helpful to me. (Expletive), his head's screwed up too about this whole thing.

WILLIAMS: You're so full of (expletive), you wanted her dead and you know it. And they haven't told us that that night when I left. Are you still glad she's dead?

KARAS: Yes. Yes, I'm glad. I, I broke up with Mary Beth this weekend.

WILLIAMS: Uh huh.

KARAS: Friday, and I'm very upset, very lonely and when you called, I half thought you were just ... to get me to come here to see you and I says, aw, jeez don't let this be the reason that she's tryin' this. You don't have to do it and uh, ah, a life saver in more ways than one. You don't have to do this, scare me, to see me. I will see you, any time, if you just call and say Walt I wanna see you, I wanna talk and just talk, that all you have to do, alright. Can you understand that?

WILLIAMS: (sigh)

KARAS: Don't, don't work on me like this 'cause it, it (expletive), it (expletive) everything up. It (expletive) my head up, it (expletive) everything up.

WILLIAMS: Well how do you think my head is been and when they call me I wanta see you, I want to see you.

KARAS: You don't have to see em.

WILLIAMS: Please don't, touch me, I don't wanna be touched by you.

KARAS: Alright, I'm sorry, I'm sorry. You, you really hate me now.

WILLIAMS: Yeah, Walter, I mean, you says to me the only way I can marry you is if Ann's dead. You lied to me ...

KARAS: No I'd never lie to you. Don't ever say that.

KARAS: Can I have one of your cigarettes please.

WILLIAMS: Get that through your head. You (expletive) me up good.

KARAS: You hate me.

WILLIAMS: And you're damn right I hate you.

KARAS: I'm sorry. I'm (expletive) sorry, I (expletive) up ...

WILLIAMS: Well, why did you pick on me. How long were you wanting somebody to kill Ann because you didn't have enough guts to do it.

KARAS: We. We both did it. We both did it. We both actively (expletive) did it, you know.

WILLIAMS: So I'm just gonna tell him I don't know anything, I don't know anything.

KARAS: No, just, you know, what is this all about, Billy, what the hell's goin' on. He may be trying to get you to say something about me. Now, you've been with Walter for a long time, you know, did he ever say anything to you which might prove to be a case they might be tryin' to move on me.

WILLIAMS: Why would they move on you?

KARAS: Because I am the most likely (expletive) suspect. They have nothing else. The only thing they can figure is I paid somebody to do it and then probably he's probably gonna ask you do you think that Walter had anything at all to do with it? Do you think, did he ever say anything, did he ever suggest anything? That's where I think he's coming from. To tie you into it, it's, it's, it's impossible. If they haven't been able to through lab tests or through everything else so far. They may throw that at you too. You know, we took lab tests and they said this and they said that. In respect to that point you say look, you're gonna make these kinda accusations, I want a lawyer. I don't wanna talk. I don't wanna say anything else more to you. But the fact that he's not telling you that you can have a lawyer, he wants to meet you at this (expletive) hour of the night, on a Saturday night . . .

WILLIAMS: Maybe he wants to (sleep with me)? (Laughter from Williams)

KARAS: (sigh) Can I touch you?

WILLIAMS: No. Please go. Thank you for seeing me.

KARAS: Please call me.

WILLIAMS: I will. Keep in touch.

KARAS: Please call me after tonight.

WILLIAMS: Oh, and let you know what he says? Okay, I will, you know I will, I always do. Since when have you never called me and I've never called you after they've spoken to us. We cahooted on everything. I wonder how they never figured out we did that.

KARAS: Did what?

WILLIAMS: Cahooted on everythin.

KARAS: I don't know. I just hope they haven't wired and tried to set me up.

WILLIAMS: I haven't set you up, I'm not wired. Look, I don't wanna go to jail either.

KARAS: Okay. Be cool.

WILLIAMS: I will.

3 teachers hired for embattled arts program

By KATHLEEN STANLEY

LITTLE SILVER — Two dance instructors and a drama teacher were hired by the Red Bank Regional Board of Education last night, marking the final stage in the establishment of the Performing Arts Program scheduled to begin in September.

By a 7-2 vote, the board hired dance instructor Carol Eckardt of Neptune City, who will work as a "half-time teacher." Jerry M. Alicea of Bronx, N.Y., voted in 8-1, will also work "part-time" for the dance program.

"I don't know as the enrollment is enough to hire an additional dance instructor," said board member John M. Walsh, who cast a dissenting vote for the resolution to hire Eckardt. "Maybe we will have enough students. I hope we do," Walsh added.

The enrollment tally now stands at 37 students, up five since last week, Superintendent Donald D. Warner said. Although he was hoping for 30 students to enroll in the dance courses, only 15 are able to take the course during the 1983-84 school year.

By a 7-1-1 vote, the board hired a third instructor, David A. Simpson of Philadelphia, who will fill the post of drama teacher.

Board member Henry A. Stevenson voted against all three hiring resolutions, but said he preferred not to comment on his decision.

Under the agreement, the half-time instructors will be paid $7,987, effective Sept. 1, and Simpson will earn $24,047, also beginning Sept. 1.

The three appointments came on the heels of a decision made by the board Wednesday to hire Midge Guerrera as the director of the program.

Before last Wednesday, there was doubt whether the state-approved arts program would go on as scheduled due to decisions by many school boards not to send their "exceptionally talented" students.

Although there is still "a lot of enthusiasm" from the students who have been accepted to the program, many are unable to attend the school because they cannot afford to pay the tuition without financial assistance, Warner said.

Full-time students are billed $4,000 a year for tuition and part-time students pay $2,000.

"Many students are saying 'we definitely wanted to come, but we can't afford it,'" said Board Secretary Kenneth R. Sommerhalter.

The board members asked that individuals and corporations consider contributing grants to the program to ease the financial difficulties.

Meanwhile, Warner said he is confident that the school will stay afloat, with the help of quality instructors and students.

Eckardt's experience includes teaching dance at the University of South Florida and Brookdale Community College, Lincroft. She has a degree from New York University.

Alicea is a graduate of the High School for the Performing Arts in New York City and has appeared in a number of Broadway productions, including "A Chorus Line," "Pippin," and "West Side Story."

Simpson is a graduate of Temple University, where he also taught drama. He is the coordinator of the theatre department of the Performing Arts High School in Philadelphia.

North facelift goes over budget

By TREVOR THOMAS

MIDDLETOWN — Although over budget and behind schedule, renovations to Middletown High School North's cafeteria and library will be completed with minimal disruption to student routine, according to the school principal.

Nicholas Campanile gave that assurance last night at a special meeting of the township Board of Education called to discuss recent delays in the $6 million renovation project.

The delay arose when contractors ran into problems with ceiling and lighting installation in the cafeteria and library, he said.

That system was recently discontinued by the manufacturer, forcing the school's architects to scramble for a suitable replacement at $5,700 above what was originally budgeted.

The board approved changes in the original renovation project to allow for the latest snag.

An earlier delay had been caused by the discovery that asbestos fibers from an old ceiling contaminated walls in part of the school, resulting in a halt in construction until the hazardous material could be cleaned up.

Other renovations at the school are proceeding on schedule, said Campanile. These include a new gymnasium, music room, and graphic arts facilities.

"The upgrading may force us to reschedule some classes," Campanile told the board, "but generally we'll be able to accommodate construction without big changes in routine."

Barring further delays, he said, the renovation should be concluded before the start of the 1984 school year.

The cafeteria will not be ready to accommodate students for the first few weeks of the new school year, but the school will have temporary back-up facilities ready to serve hot and cold meals, Campanile reported.

In the meantime, the school will continue the "open campus" policy instituted last spring, when cafeteria modifications were begun, allowing students who wished to do so to leave school for lunch. Normally, students are required to eat lunch on site.

Despite concern by some residents that the open campus would lead to lunchtime mayhem in the neighborhood, student behavior was "beautiful," the principal stated.

"The vast majority was orderly, well-behaved, and back to school on time," he said.

Although most students opted to leave school for lunch, many found eating out every day is an expensive proposition. As a result, a large number of wandering students returned to the school's temporary luncheon facilities.

To help lure them back, the school relandscaped its central courtyard, equipping it with 30 new picnic tables.

The board also approved expenditures for an upgrading of telephone lines to the school and for additional equipment to its new photography lab.

Little Silver plans 60th bash

LITTLE SILVER — Borough residents will gather to celebrate the 60th anniversary of their incorporation with a old-fashioned country picnic on Saturday.

The feast will take place from 3 to 8 p.m. on the Markham Place field. The day will include popping popcorn from an old-fashioned machine, cozy hayrides, family games of softball, music by a barbershop quartet and a Dixieland band, clowns and baking contests.

According to Jo-Ann D'Apolito, publicity chairman, the aim is to produce an old-fashioned picnic with prices to match.

Picnic chairman Linda Steel said at least 20 members of the community have volunteered to head the various committees and many residents are working along with them.

The Little Silver Historical Society Museum will feature an exhibit from the 20s. Included in the artifacts are the original borough incorporation papers from 1923 along with period clothing, office equipment, and household utensils.

The dance band will begin at 6 p.m. In case of rain, the picnic will take place on Sunday.

Planners delay loft approval

By DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — The Planning Board last night refused to approve Arlo Print Shop's proposal to construct a three-story building on Monmouth Street housing two businesses and seven loft apartments.

But after two close votes against approval, four board members, including one who would not disqualify himself at the applicant's request, kept the proposal alive by agreeing to let the borough engineer iron out parking plans with the applicant before next month's meeting.

Lois Grossman, who owns Arlo's with her husband, said they expected to lease 15 spaces of a 25-space parking lot behind 27 Monmouth St., a vacant lot where the building would be constructed. But she could not provide a more specific guarantee of the leasing agreement.

Arlo Print Shop has operated at 21 Monmouth St. for the past six years. It contains two printing presses and typesetting equipment, Grossman said.

The proposed building would house the print shop, an unspecified business, and the seven, two-floor loft apartments. Grossman said she and her husband plan to reside in one of them.

Seven variances would be required for approval. The minimum lot area is more than 2,000 sqare feet under the limit. The minimum lot width is half of the required size. Minimum side yard, open space, residential density, and maximum lot coverage all fall short of their respective specifications.

Jerome M. Larson, the applicant's architect, testified that a 15-space parking lot would be constructed for compact cars behind the building and that the additional 15 spaces would be leased. A total of 30 parking spaces is required.

Before any voting, Mark F. Saker, the applicant's attorney, re-

Holmdel approves Hazlet boundary

By WENDY PENSTON

HOLMDEL — The Township Committee last night unanimously approved the new boundary lines between Hazlet and Homdel.

The vote seconded a recent one taken by the Hazlet Township Committee which changed the much-contested existing border that cut through 32 properties in both townships.

Much of the affected land lies on Bethany Road, Stempler and Palmer courts, and Miller Avenue.

Representations of the two townships plan to meet to discuss financial implications of the new boundaries, but Holmdel Mayor Joseph Popolo foresees no problems in that area.

In other business, the committee turned down the appeal of the Mama Mia Restaurant to keep a pizza man sign as part of its store front identification.

The pizzeria had been granted a variance by the township Zoning Board three years ago for the large cut-out of a man holding a pizza. On July 5 of this year, the board approved the addition of a lighted sign, but asked that the pizza man be removed.

Mama Mia appealed to the committee to reverse the decision of the zoning board on the grounds that the logo identified the store since it had been in front of the Holmdel-Keyport Road restaurant for three years.

"The pizza man is not in keeping with what we are trying to do in the village," Committeewoman Elaine Frey said. "You may be opening a can of worms ... the butcher may want a cow and a pig (in the front of his store) and the drycleaner may want a man in a tuxedo."

"In combination with the new sign, the two together are too much," Committeeman Ernest Cote said.

The attorney for the pizzeria owners said the matter will be appealed in court.

Expansion OK'd for city Foodtown

By LAURA V. MAXWELL

LONG BRANCH — The Board of Adjustment last night granted preliminary site plan approval to Big Z Market for its proposed expansion of the Foodtown Supermarket located on West End Court.

Richard Bonello, attorney representing Charles Zimmerman, said the owners intend to enlarge the store to provide additional service to customers as well as expanding the existing parking lot.

Chairman Paolo D. Paone requested that the Big Z Market furnish additional plans concerning the portion of property that abuts Cedar Garden Apartment land on Cedar Avenue that will be used for the expansion.

In other matters, the board denied Mathews Advertising Inc. a variance to construct a 150-square-foot sign for Criterion Candies lo-

Lambert pleads in murder

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — James Lambert, a co-defendant in the murder trial of Joseph Hicks, pleaded guilty yesterday to reduced charges of possession of a shotgun for unlawful purposes and attempted armed robbery.

Lambert, 20, faces a maximum of 30 years in prison, 15 years without parole and $200,000 in fines because the state is asking the sentences not run concurrently. Charges of felony murder and conspiracy to commit armed robbery were dismissed.

Assistant Prosecutor Alton D. Kenney said the state will seek the maximum penalty on the two charges.

While his mother and father watched, Lambert, of 355 Long Branch Ave., recounted for Judge John Ricciardi the events of Oct. 22, 1982, when Joseph W. Cooper, 20, was killed with a shotgun blast to the head after a drug deal soured.

Hicks, 21, was convicted of the slaying. Police say the Cooper, of Old Bridge, was shot while trying to drive away from three would-be robbers. Lambert, Hicks and 21-year-old Carl "June Bug" Yarborough of 12 University Place were arrested.

Lambert told Ricciardi that his cousin, Hicks, awakened him early on the morning of Oct. 22.

"He wanted the gun. The shotgun. I gave it to him," Lambert said.

Lambert said he knew his cousin wanted the weapon to commit armed robbery. Lambert and Yarborough were near Cooper's car, Lambert said, while the robbery was in progress.

Lambert testified that he did not assist in the crime and that he did not expect any of the proceeds.

Kenney added for the record, however, that Hicks spent the rest of the morning at Lambert's home following the murder.

Ricciardi scheduled an Oct. 7 sentencing date for Lambert. Yarborough is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 16.

Hicks, of 38 Seaview Manor, convicted of murder, was spared the death penalty, but handed the 40-year minimum by Judge John P. Arnone.

Middletown studies Spy House renovation

By C.E. WILSON

MIDDLETOWN — The Township Committee decided last night to obtain renovation estimates on the Port Monmouth Spy House.

A $20,000 grant was recieved for the project three years ago. Short and Ford Architects of Philadelphia, which specialize in the renovation of historical buildings, are being contacted for estimates.

The committee also read a proposal written by William J. Hogan, Jr., director of Community and Economic Development, suggesting that the committee consider leasing the Kings Highway building to the County Private Industry Council (PIC).

Hogan estimated rent of the 2,700-foot-square building at $8 per square foot, which would net the township approximately $21,000 per year.

Mayor Linder said the committee was interested in the proposal, but would like to get more information regarding necessary building renovations. If they did decide to lease to the PIC, the committee would want to secure a three-year lease, Linder said.

In other business, liquor license transfer was granted to Scotty's Pub, Inc., formerly Mr. D's Pub on Rt. 35.

Finally, four special police officers were appointed for the 1983 calender year. They were William Johnson of Port Monmouth, Charles E. Giblin Jr., of Belford, Theresa Macwithey of Red Bank and Lee Trudo of Middletown.

IFF leak revealed in council meeting

By RICHARD LEONARD

UNION BEACH — Hydrochloric acid leaked into the air for at least 45 minutes Aug. 3 and may have threatened the health of Union Beach and Keansburg residents earlier this month, according to a investigation conducted by the borough's health office.

At last night's Council meeting, Health Officer Robert Hary revealed the findings of the probe which cited readings as high as 10ppm (parts per million) that were taken in various locations in the Union Beach-Keansburg area on the morning of the leak.

Hydrochloric acid, HCL, leaked from a broken diaphram in a regulator housed in a pressurized trailer owned by Air Products of Pennsylvania and parked at the International Flavors and Fragrances manufacturing plant, according to the report.

The leak, detected at 7:45 a.m., was brought under control at approximately 8:30 a.m. when IFF employees, outfitted in protective clothing, shut off the valves manually, according to the report.

Sanitary Inspectors Jane Casagrande and Kathleen Stryker conducted the investigation. Casagrande said she contacted the Department of Environmental Protection but neither of the two people she spoke with, Linda Zancenella, duty officer, and Mike Osai were able to advise Casagrande on safe standards of HCL in the atmosphere. Zancenella advised that if odors were not detectable, there was probably no cause for concern.

The council voted to pass the report to the DEP with a letter requesting an assessment of the severity of the incident.

Oakhurst house fire probed

OCEAN — A fire raged through a home at 215 Whalepond Road in the Oakhurst section early this morning, police said.

The owners, whose names were not released, were out of town on vacation, and no injuries were reported, police said.

As of 4 a.m., the fire marshal and officers were canvassing the property for clues to the cause of the blaze, police said.

An investigation is pending.

Rate request stuns residents

HAZLET — Claiming service by the Sano Carting Inc. garbage collection company "stinks," residents reacted incredulously last night to the company's application for a 92 percent rate increase. Meanwhile, Michael Riccardelli, attorney for the Keyport-based company, claimed the corporation is in dire financial straits, and may not survive if the increase is not granted.

cated on 65 Ocean Avenue since Criterion has failed to pay $40,000 in taxes for 1983.

William Shiel, financial manager of the coporation, testified that taxes will be paid within a month or two. He disclosed that financial changes within the boardwalk business as well as revenue from the summer months would be used to cover the back taxes.

The board ruled, however, that a variance to construct the sign could only be considered after the full amount of taxes had been paid.

Further discussion of the matter was carried to November 14 meeting.

The board also heard a request from Anthony Cittadino, manager of A C Sportswear, for a variance to construct a 258-foot by 120-foot warehouse at its manufacturing site at 422 Morris Avenue.

Cittadino said A C Sportswear, manufacturers of womens' winter coats, is currently running at full capacity with 20,000 garments in storage, leaving little room for additonal storage or work area.

Cittadino testified that the building is cramped because the 15-year-old business recently joined with Semi Sportswear manufacturers to share the facility. That venture was undertaken six months ago to ease the company's financial burden, he said.

The board was unable to make a decision concerning the variance due to lack of time and voted to continuethe discussion at the November 14 meeting.

Pressure's on Lehrer to join senate race

By BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — County Democratic leaders are apparently increasing their pressure on County Prosecutor Alexander D. Lehrer to accept the nomination to run for the 12th (central Monmouth) District state Senate seat.

Both Democratic Chairman John R. Fiorino and Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., have scheduled meetings with Lehrer this week in which they will attempt to convince him to accept the party's "draft," a nomination which opened two weeks ago when Dr. Robert Morgan of Shrewsbury withdrew for professional and personal reasons.

In the meantime, Fiorino has resolved another candidate vacancy. As expected, Spring Lake Heights Councilman Cornelius V. "Neil" Kelly has accepted the party nomination to run for one of the two available state Assembly seats in the 11th (coastal Monmouth) District. Kelly replaces well-known entertainer Bobby Byrne on the ticket.

Byrne withdrew from the race last month because of career demands. Kelly will run with Martin S. Chomsky of Ocean for the two Assembly seats now held by Republican Assemblymen Anthony M. Villane Jr. and Joseph A. Palaia.

But the attention of Democrats is focused on Lehrer, with speculation within the party increasing that he will accept their request to oppose state Sen. S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, in the November election.

Lehrer insisted last night he has not yet made a final decision as to whether he will run for the Senate seat. But he said he would probably announce his decision within one or two weeks.

Lehrer is meeting with Fiorino today and with Howard tomorrow. Both Howard and Lehrer insisted that the other requested the their meeting, but Howard acknowledged that he is "hopeful" Lehrer will decide to run.

"But of course it's his future," Howard continued. "My viewpoint, of course, is that I would like him to be the candidate."

"He asked me to meet with him to discuss my future," Lehrer responded. "And I will be more than happy to discuss my future with him. I am still trying to make up my mind whether to run."

Lehrer said that in addition to meeting with Fiorino and Howard he will also "try to talk to as many municipal leaders as possible from the 12th District within the next week or so."

Lehrer said among the items he wants to have clarified before making a final decision is how money would be raised on such short notice for his campaign.

He noted that his personal finances also have to be resolved since his five-year term as prosecutor ends Aug. 31 and he has no outside sources of income.

"If I run, I will be a full-time candidate and I would have to borrow money in order to live," he noted. "The problem is how to raise the money to run against Gagliano since the Republicans are certain to raise a lot of money."

But Fiorino has been assuring Lehrer that the county Democrats will come up with the essential funds to run a campaign.

The Republicans, for their part, denied rumors circulating in the county for the past few days that they have reversed their previous objections to Gov. Thomas H. Kean renaming Lehrer prosecutor for another five-year term so that he won't run against Gagliano.

"That's ridiculous," asserted Republican County Chairman Frederick C. Kniesler to the report that he had asked Kean to reappoint Lehrer. Kniesler said the governor will appoint either Freehold attorney John Kaye or County Counsel Malcolm Carton to the $70,000-a-year patronage position.

Gagliano also insisted that he had not heard of any attempt to offer Lehrer the reappointment to stop him from running for office.

Dr. Piatt tapped for state education post

By LAURA V. MAXWELL

TRENTON — Dr. Cummings A. Piatt, former superintendent of Long Branch public schools, has been appointed Assistant Commissioner of Education in charge of executive services by Commissioner Saul Cooperman.

Piat will assume the $56,000-a-year post October 3. His duties include assisting the commisioner in state education affairs and he also will be in charge of several bureaus, including those of legal services, public information, legislative liaison, and state board of education services.

"Dr. Piatt brings to this organization an excellent background in practical education plus the kind of vision and leadership needed by our newly reorganized department," Cooperman said of his new assistant.

Piatt is leaving his $53,000-a-year position as superintendent of Bridgewater-Raritan public schools in Somerset County. He has held the post directing the 12 schools since October 19, 1981.

Before joining the Somerset County school, Piatt served for three years as superintendent of Long Branch schools.

Piatt earned the reputation of a capable leader and dedicated worker while directed the districts' eight schools.

The new assistant commissioner earned a B.S. in secondary education from East Straussberg State College in Pennsylvania and a master's from Lehigh University in Pennsylvania, also in secondary education. Piatt went on to earn his Ph.D. in 1968 from Nova University.

During 1981 he was named Young Educator of the Year for his excellence in the education field.

Piatt succeeds Gusta H. Ruh, who will take the post of superintendent of Atlantic County schools.

Apartments, offices OK'd in Red Bank

By DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — Despite initial objections about traffic hazards from a nearby church, Earnest and Dorothy Light received Planning Board permission last night to put two business offices and two apartments in a Shrewsbury Avenue building.

The Lights agreed to place two speed bumps in the narrow driveway next to the 152-54 Shrewsbury Ave. building and a 14-foot high stop sign on the building.

Otis Williams, a representative of the Pilgrim Baptist Church, consented to the plan, although it failed to include a few other requests by the church.

In a letter to the board this month, Alexander James Jr., chairman of the church's board of trustees, complained that a driver coming out of the driveway would be unable to see children playing because of a building on the left and a utility pole on the right.

James requested that only a right turn be allowed out of the driveway; drivers be required to blow their horns; a small signal be fastened to the building to alert pedestrians to cars be; mirrors be installed to aid both pedestrians and drivers, and a window be placed in the building to allow drivers to see the sidewalk.

But C. Bernard Blum, the borough engineer, developed the speed bump, stop sign design to Williams' satisfaction.

Theodore Parsons, the applicant's attorney, said the type of businesses that will rent the first floor had not been determined. Two apartments will be rented on the second floor.

Renovations should be completed within four months, Parsons estimated.

The board also granted preliminary and final site plan approval for a construction company to convert a residence at 131 Bodman Place for general use.

Toltec Inc. received needed variances for lot frontage, side yard set-back and total lot area, along with design waivers for parking, parking lot curbing, and buffering.

The company will be able to use the two-story house for its offices, but it will not be allowed to store heavy equipment, construtions materials or vehicles on the property.

quested that board member Harry Chebookjian disqualify himself, but Chebookjian refused.

Saker had written the planning board a letter claiming that Chebookjian had walked into Arlo's six years ago, pounded his fist on a table, and told Art Grossman he would be out of business in less than a month.

Chebookjian owns Broad Street Stationery.

And on July 29 of this year, the letter claimed, Grossman saw Chebookjian in his store and Chebookjian allegedly told Grossman he would not get his building.

"He additionally made crude remarks about both Mr. Grossman and his architect," the letter said.

When asked after the meeting about the alleged incident six years ago, Chebookjian shrugged his shoulders and said, "I have enough to worry about with my own business."

Chebookjian voted with three other members not to approve the proposal even if conditional upon the borough engineer's review of parking conditions.

He then made a motion to carry the application to the September meeting, with C. Bernard Blum, the engineer, getting a chance to resolve the parking in the meantime.

PERC ruling saves county $16,000 in officers' pay

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — Corrections officers in the county jail will not receive longevity pay in this year's contract but will instead receive a $300 payroll increment.

The county Board of Chosen Freeholders won an arbitration case yesterday before the state Public Employment Relations Commission. PERC ruled that the county does not have to offer longevity pay because the offer of $300 increments brings the 1983 economic package between 9 and 9.3 percent.

"This is a very fair proposal in light of comparative increases given to other Monmouth County employees, as well as other PBA units in Monmouth County and nearby counties," the PERC decision states.

The PBA and the county differed on the cost of the two proposals. The PBA estimates the cost of granting longevity to be $41,100, while its own proposal would cost only $52,251.

Meanwhile, the county maintained that its own proposal would cost approximately $33,000, while the PBA's proposal would cost aproximately $49,146.

The PERC decision also cited the PBA's claim that many non-union employees in the Sheriff's department received 10 percent increases in 1983. "This may be so. But the vast majority of employees received a 7.5 percent increase in 1983 and no one has a longevity plan," the decision states.

PBA attorney Jon Steiger said he is not disappointed in the decision. The $300 bonus is given "as a bonus and in recognition for excellent work under difficult working conditions," he said. Longevity negotiations can wait until next year, he added.

"The county has recognized certain special problems related to the Corrections Officers and is willing to give them extra compensation because of this," the PERC decision acknowledges.

3 teachers hired for embattled arts program

By KATHLEEN STANLEY

LITTLE SILVER — Two dance instructors and a drama teacher were hired by the Red Bank Regional Board of Education last night, marking the final stage in the establishment of the Performing Arts Program scheduled to begin in September.

By a 7-2 vote, the board hired dance instructor Carol Eckardt of Neptune City, who will work as a "half-time teacher." Jerry M. Alicea of Bronx, N.Y., voted in 8-1, will also work "part-time" for the dance program.

"I don't know as the enrollment is enough to hire an additional dance instructor," said board member John M. Walsh, who cast a dissenting vote for the resolution to hire Eckardt. "Maybe we will have enough students. I hope we do," Walsh added.

The enrollment tally now stands at 37 students, up five since last week, Superintendent Donald D. Warner said. Although he was hoping for 30 students to enroll in the dance courses, only 15 are able to take the course during the 1983-84 school year.

By a 7-1-1 vote, the board hired a third instructor, David A. Simpson of Philadelphia, who will fill the post of drama teacher.

Board member Henry A. Stevenson voted against all three hiring resolutions, but said he preferred not to comment on his decision.

Under the agreement, the half-time instructors will be paid $7,987, effective Sept. 1, and Simpson will earn $24,047, also beginning Sept. 1.

The three appointments came on the heels of a decision made by the board Wednesday to hire Midge Guerrera as the director of the program.

Before last Wednesday, there was doubt whether the state-approved arts program would go on as scheduled due to decisions by many school boards not to send their "exceptionally talented" students.

Although there is still "a lot of enthusiasm" from the students who have been accepted to the program, many are unable to attend the school because they cannot afford to pay the tuition without financial assistance, Warner said.

Full-time students are billed $4,000 a year for tuition and part-time students pay $2,000.

"Many students are saying 'we definitely wanted to come, but we can't afford it,'" said Board Secretary Kenneth R. Sommerhalter.

The board members asked that individuals and corporations consider contributing grants to the program to ease the financial difficulties.

Meanwhile, Warner said he is confident that the school will stay afloat, with the help of quality instructors and students.

Eckardt's experience includes teaching dance at the University of South Florida and Brookdale Community College, Lincroft. She has a degree from New York University.

Alicea is a graduate of the High School for the Performing Arts in New York City and has appeared in a number of Broadway productions, including "A Chorus Line," "Pippin," and "West Side Story."

Simpson is a graduate of Temple University, where he also taught drama. He is the coordinator of the theatre department of the Performing Arts High School in Philadelphia.

North facelift goes over budget

By TREVOR THOMAS

MIDDLETOWN — Although over budget and behind schedule, renovations to Middletown High School North's cafeteria and library will be completed with minimal disruption to student routine, according to the school principal.

Nicholas Campanile gave that assurance last night at a special meeting of the township Board of Education called to discuss recent delays in the $6 million renovation project.

The delay arose when contractors ran into problems with ceiling and lighting installation in the cafeteria and library, he said.

That system was recently discontinued by the manufacturer, forcing the school's architects to scramble for a suitable replacement at $5,700 above what was originally budgeted.

The board approved changes in the original renovation project to allow for the latest snag.

An earlier delay had been caused by the discovery that asbestos fibers from an old ceiling contaminated walls in part of the school, resulting in a halt in construction until the hazardous material could be cleaned up.

Other renovations at the school are proceeding on schedule, said Campanile. These include a new gymnasium, music room, and graphic arts facilities.

"The upgrading may force us to reschedule some classes," Campanile told the board, "but generally we'll be able to accommodate construction without big changes in routine."

Barring further delays, he said, the renovation should be concluded before the start of the 1984 school year.

The cafeteria will not be ready to accommodate students for the first few weeks of the new school year, but the school will have temporary back-up facilities ready to serve hot and cold meals, Campanile reported.

In the meantime, the school will continue the "open campus" policy instituted last spring, when cafeteria modifications were begun, allowing students who wished to do so to leave school for lunch. Normally, students are required to eat lunch on site.

Despite concern by some residents that the open campus would lead to lunchtime mayhem in the neighborhood, student behavior was "beautiful," the principal stated.

"The vast majority was orderly, well-behaved, and back to school on time," he said.

Although most students opted to leave school for lunch, many found eating out every day is an expensive proposition. As a result, a large number of wandering students returned to the school's temporary luncheon facilities.

To help lure them back, the school relandscaped its central courtyard, equipping it with 30 new picnic tables.

The board also approved expenditures for an upgrading of telephone lines to the school and for additional equipment to its new photography lab.

Expansion OK'd for city Foodtown

By LAURA V. MAXWELL

LONG BRANCH — The Board of Adjustment last night granted preliminary site plan approval to Big Z Market for its proposed expansion of the Foodtown Supermarket located on West End Court.

Richard Bonello, attorney representing Charles Zimmerman, said the owners intend to enlarge the store to provide additional service to customers as well as expanding the existing parking lot.

Chairman Paolo D. Paone requested that the Big Z Market furnish additional plans concerning the portion of property that abuts Cedar Garden Apartment land on Cedar Avenue that will be used for the expansion.

In other matters, the board denied Mathews Advertising Inc. a variance to construct a 150-square-foot sign for Criterion Candies lo-

Little Silver plans 60th bash

LITTLE SILVER — Borough residents will gather to celebrate the 60th anniversary of their incorporation with a old-fashioned country picnic on Saturday.

The feast will take place from 3 to 8 p.m. on the Markham Place field. The day will include popping popcorn from an old-fashioned machine, cozy hayrides, family games of softball, music by a barbershop quartet and a Dixieland band, clowns and baking contests.

According to Jo-Ann D'Apolito, publicity chairman, the aim is to produce an old-fashioned picnic with prices to match.

Picnic chairman Linda Steel said at least 20 members of the community have volunteered to head the various committees and many residents are working along with them.

The Little Silver Historical Society Museum will feature an exhibit from the 20s. Included in the artifacts are the original borough incorporation papers from 1923 along with period clothing, office equipment, and household utensils.

The dance band will begin at 6 p.m. In case of rain, the picnic will take place on Sunday.

Planners delay loft approval

By DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — The Planning Board last night refused to approve Arlo Print Shop's proposal to construct a three-story building on Monmouth Street housing two businesses and seven loft apartments.

But after two close votes against approval, four board members, including one who would not disqualify himself at the applicant's request, kept the proposal alive by agreeing to let the borough engineer iron out parking plans with the applicant before next month's meeting.

Lois Grossman, who owns Arlo's with her husband, said they expected to lease 15 spaces of a 25-space parking lot behind 27 Monmouth St., a vacant lot where the building would be constructed. But she could not provide a more specific guarantee of the leasing agreement.

Arlo Print Shop has operated at 21 Monmouth St. for the past six years. It contains two printing presses and typesetting equipment, Grossman said.

The proposed building would house the print shop, an unspecified business, and the seven, two-floor loft apartments. Grossman said she and her husband plan to reside in one of them.

Seven variances would be required for approval. The minimum lot area is more than 2,000 sqare feet under the limit. The minimum lot width is half of the required size. Minimum side yard, open space, residential density, and maximum lot coverage all fall short of their respective specifications.

Jerome M. Larson, the applicant's architect, testified that a 15-space parking lot would be constructed for compact cars behind the building and that the additional 15 spaces would be leased. A total of 30 parking spaces is required.

Before any voting, Mark F. Saker, the applicant's attorney, re-

Holmdel approves Hazlet boundary

By WENDY PENSTON

HOLMDEL — The Township Committee last night unanimously approved the new boundary lines between Hazlet and Homdel.

The vote seconded a recent one taken by the Hazlet Township Committee which changed the much-contested existing border that cut through 32 properties in both townships.

Much of the affected land lies on Bethany Road, Stempler and Palmer courts, and Miller Avenue.

Representations of the two townships plan to meet to discuss financial implications of the new boundaries, but Holmdel Mayor Joseph Popolo foresees no problems in that area.

In other business, the committee turned down the appeal of the Mama Mia Restaurant to keep a pizza man sign as part of its store front identification.

The pizzeria had been granted a variance by the township Zoning Board three years ago for the large cut-out of a man holding a pizza. On July 5 of this year, the board approved the addition of a lighted sign, but asked that the pizza man be removed.

Mama Mia appealed to the committee to reverse the decision of the zoning board on the grounds that the logo identified the store since it had been in front of the Holmdel-Keyport Road restaurant for three years.

"The pizza man is not in keeping with what we are trying to do in the village," Committeewoman Elaine Frey said. "You may be opening a can of worms ... the butcher may want a cow and a pig (in the front of his store) and the drycleaner may want a man in a tuxedo."

"In combination with the new sign, the two together are too much," Committeeman Ernest Cote said.

The attorney for the pizzeria owners said the matter will be appealed in court.

In other business, the committee voted to name a newly constructed road connecting Everett Road to Bell Labs, American Way.

Lambert pleads in murder

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — James Lambert, a co-defendant in the murder trial of Joseph Hicks, pleaded guilty yesterday to reduced charges of possession of a shotgun for unlawful purposes and attempted armed robbery.

Lambert, 20, faces a maximum of 30 years in prison, 15 years without parole and $200,000 in fines because the state is asking the sentences not run concurrently. Charges of felony murder and conspiracy to commit armed robbery were dismissed.

Assistant Prosecutor Alton D. Kenney said the state will seek the maximum penalty on the two charges.

While his mother and father watched, Lambert, of 355 Long Branch Ave., recounted for Judge John Ricciardi the events of Oct. 22, 1982, when Joseph W. Cooper, 20, was killed with a shotgun blast to the head after a drug deal soured.

Hicks, 21, was convicted of the slaying. Police say the Cooper, of Old Bridge, was shot while trying to drive away from three would-be robbers. Lambert, Hicks and 21-year-old Carl "June Bug" Yarborough of 12 University Place were arrested.

Lambert told Ricciardi that his cousin, Hicks, awakened him early on the morning of Oct. 22.

"He wanted the gun. The shotgun. I gave it to him," Lambert said.

Lambert said he knew his cousin wanted the weapon to commit armed robbery. Lambert and Yarborough were near Cooper's car, Lambert said, while the robbery was in progress.

Lambert testified that he did not assist in the crime and that he did not expect any of the proceeds.

Kenney added for the record, however, that Hicks spent the rest of the morning at Lambert's home following the murder.

Ricciardi scheduled an Oct. 7 sentencing date for Lambert. Yarborough is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 16.

Hicks, of 38 Seaview Manor, convicted of murder, was spared the death penalty, but handed the 40-year minimum by Judge John P. Arnone.

Middletown studies Spy House renovation

By C.E. WILSON

MIDDLETOWN — The Township Committee decided last night to obtain renovation estimates on the Port Monmouth Spy House.

A $20,000 grant was recieved for the project three years ago. Short and Ford Architects of Philadelphia, which specialize in the renovation of historical buildings, are being contacted for estimates.

The committee also read a proposal written by William J. Hogan, Jr., director of Community and Economic Development, suggesting that the committee consider leasing the Kings Highway building to the County Private Industry Council (PIC).

Hogan estimated rent of the 2,700-foot-square building at $8 per square foot, which would net the township approximately $21,000 per year.

Mayor Linder said the committee was interested in the proposal, but would like to get more information regarding necessary building renovations. If they did decide to lease to the PIC, the committee would want to secure a three-year lease, Linder said.

In other business, liquor license transfer was granted to Scotty's Pub, Inc., formerly Mr. D's Pub on Rt. 35.

Finally, four special police officers were appointed for the 1983 calender year. They were William Johnson of Port Monmouth, Charles E. Giblin Jr., of Belford, Theresa Macwithey of Red Bank and Lee Trudo of Middletown.

IFF leak revealed in council meeting

By RICHARD LEONARD

UNION BEACH — Hydrochloric acid leaked into the air for at least 45 minutes Aug. 3 and may have threatened the health of Union Beach and Keansburg residents earlier this month, according to a investigation conducted by the borough's health office.

At last night's Council meeting, Health Officer Robert Hary revealed the findings of the probe which cited readings as high as 10ppm (parts per million) that were taken in various locations in the Union Beach-Keansburg area on the morning of the leak.

Hydrochloric acid, HCL, leaked from a broken diaphram in a regulator housed in a pressurized trailer owned by Air Products of Pennsylvania and parked at the International Flavors and Fragrances manufacturing plant, according to the report.

The leak, detected at 7:45 a.m., was brought under control at approximately 8:30 a.m. when IFF employees, outfitted in protective clothing, shut off the valves manually, according to the report.

Sanitary Inspectors Jane Casagrande and Kathleen Stryker conducted the investigation. Casagrande said she contacted the Department of Environmental Protection but neither of the two people she spoke with, Linda Zancenella, duty officer, and Mike Osai were able to advise Casagrande on safe standards of HCL in the atmosphere. Zancenella advised that if odors were not detectable, there was probably no cause for concern.

The council voted to pass the report to the DEP with a letter requesting an assessment of the severity of the incident.

POLICE BEAT

Middletown cops kept hopping during week

MIDDLETOWN — It was a hectic five days for the township Police Department, leaving a log book filled with oddities.

It began with an Aug. 17 "attempted fire," according to Capt. William Halliday. A Port Monmouth family returned home from a trip to Vermont and found all the windows shut tight, the back door open, an odor of burnt wood, the remnants of a small fire in the den, some evidence of an accelerant and nothing stolen. Detective Barry Grimm is investigating.

The following day, a 1981 Jaguar parked outside a supermarket was vandalized in the space of an hour. When the owner came back, Halliday said, his classy car "was inscribed with O's and scratches all over."

Friday afternoon, a jogging stint on Nut Swamp Road for one township woman ended in a run-in with an exhibitonist. A red Camaro stopped alongside the road, the driver got out to look at his rear tire, and then asked the jogger how to get to Long Island, Halliday said.

"When she started to tell him, she realized the suspect was exposed, so she jogged away," Halliday said. The suspect is described as Hispanic, approximately 5'6" and 110 pounds. Sgt. Robert Oches is investigating, but the jogger was unable to furnish a license plate number, Halliday said.

Also on Friday afternoon, a dispute arose over the repossession of a 1971 Dodge Van. Halliday said a man who identified himself as an employee of the Coastal Recovery Service forced his way into a township home, argued with its owner, then left with the car. When the owner called the firm, they knew nothing of the repossession. "So the car's still missing," Halliday said. "Detective Patrick Greaves is still trying to sort it all out."

A task force of four men from the patrol division arrested eight adults and a number of juveniles on Friday and Saturday nights for a variety of violations ranging from narcotics, vandalism, and drinking and urinating in public, Halliday said. Sgt. Gene Hannafey coordinated the strike force.

Sunday evening a family left their New Monmouth home for three hours. When they returned, Halliday said, the house had been ransacked and the jewelry and cash were gone.

And while the task force was out arresting the disorderly, someone else was out running off with bug zappers. Halliday said the ultraviolet bug maulers were taken from three separate houses in three different areas of the township and were priced between $80 and $140.

"Yeah, it kept us busy," Halliday said of the weekend.

Pressure's on Lehrer to join senate race

By BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — County Democratic leaders are apparently increasing their pressure on County Prosecutor Alexander D. Lehrer to accept the nomination to run for the 12th (central Monmouth) District state Senate seat.

Both Democratic Chairman John R. Fiorino and Rep: James J. Howard, D-N.J., have scheduled meetings with Lehrer this week in which they will attempt to convince him to accept the party's "draft," a nomination which opened two weeks ago when Dr. Robert Morgan of Shrewsbury withdrew for professional and personal reasons.

In the meantime, Fiorino has resolved another candidate vacancy. As expected, Spring Lake Heights Councilman Cornelius V. "Neil" Kelly has accepted the party nomination to run for one of the two available state Assembly seats in the 11th (coastal Monmouth) District. Kelly replaces well-known entertainer Bobby Byrne on the ticket.

Byrne withdrew from the race last month because of career demands. Kelly will run with Martin S. Chomsky of Ocean for the two Assembly seats now held by Republican Assemblymen Anthony M. Villane Jr. and Joseph A. Palaia.

But the attention of Democrats is focused on Lehrer, with speculation within the party increasing that he will accept their request to oppose state Sen. S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, in the November election.

Lehrer insisted last night he has not yet made a final decision as to whether he will run for the Senate seat. But he said he would probably announce his decision within one or two weeks.

Lehrer is meeting with Fiorino today and with Howard tomorrow. Both Howard and Lehrer insisted that the other requested the their meeting, but Howard acknowledged that he is "hopeful" Lehrer will decide to run.

"But of course it's his future," Howard continued. "My viewpoint, of course, is that I would like him to be the candidate."

"He asked me to meet with him to discuss my future," Lehrer responded. "And I will be more than happy to discuss my future with him. I am still trying to make up my mind whether to run."

Lehrer said that in addition to meeting with Fiorino and Howard he will also "try to talk to as many municipal leaders as possible from the 12th District within the next week or so."

Lehrer said among the items he wants to have clarified before making a final decision is how money would be raised on such short notice for his campaign.

He noted that his personal finances also have to be resolved since his five-year term as prosecutor ends Aug. 31 and he has no outside sources of income.

"If I run, I will be a full-time candidate and I would have to borrow money in order to live," he noted. "The problem is how to raise the money to run against Gagliano since the Republicans are certain to raise a lot of money."

But Fiorino has been assuring Lehrer that the county Democrats will come up with the essential funds to run a campaign.

The Republicans, for their part, denied rumors circulating in the county for the past few days that they have reversed their previous objections to Gov. Thomas H. Kean renaming Lehrer prosecutor for another five-year term so that he won't run against Gagliano.

"That's ridiculous," asserted Republican County Chairman Frederick C. Kniesler to the report that he had asked Kean to reappoint Lehrer. Kniesler said the governor will appoint either Freehold attorney John Kaye or County Counsel Malcolm Carton to the $70,000-a-year patronage position.

Gagliano also insisted that he had not heard of any attempt to offer Lehrer the reappointment to stop him from running for office.

Dr. Piatt tapped for state education post

By LAURA V. MAXWELL

TRENTON — Dr. Cummings A. Piatt, former superintendent of Long Branch public schools, has been appointed Assistant Commissioner of Education in charge of executive services by Commissioner Saul Cooperman.

Piat will assume the $56,000-a-year post October 3. His duties include assisting the commisioner in state education affairs and he also will be in charge of several bureaus, including those of legal services, public information, legislative liaison, and state board of education services.

"Dr. Piatt brings to this organization an excellent background in practical education plus the kind of vision and leadership needed by our newly reorganized department," Cooperman said of his new assistant.

Piatt is leaving his $53,000-a-year position as superintendent of Bridgewater-Raritan public schools in Somerset County. He has held the post directing the 12 schools since October 19, 1981.

Before joining the Somerset County school, Piatt served for three years as superintendent of Long Branch schools.

Piatt earned the reputation of a capable leader and dedicated worker while directed the districts' eight schools.

The new assistant commissioner earned a B.S. in secondary education from East Straussberg State College in Pennsylvania and a master's from Lehigh University in Pennsylvania, also in secondary education. Piatt went on to earn his Ph.D. in 1968 from Nova University.

During 1981 he was named Young Educator of the Year for his excellence in the education field.

Piatt succeeds Gusta H. Ruh, who will take the post of superintendent of Atlantic County schools.

By DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — Despite initial objections about traffic hazards from a nearby church, Earnest and Dorothy Light received Planning Board permission last night to put two business offices and two apartments in a Shrewsbury Avenue building.

The Lights agreed to place two speed bumps in the narrow driveway next to the 152-54 Shrewsbury Ave. building and a 14-foot high stop sign on the building.

Otis Williams, a representative of the Pilgrim Baptist Church, consented to the plan, although it failed to include a few other requests by the church.

In a letter to the board this month, Alexander James Jr., chairman of the church's board of trustees, complained that a driver coming out of the driveway would be unable to see children playing because of a building on the left and a utility pole on the right.

James requested that only a right turn be allowed out of the driveway; drivers be required to blow their horns; a small signal be fastened to the building to alert pedestrians to cars be; mirrors be installed to aid both pedestrians and drivers, and a window be placed in the building to allow drivers to see the sidewalk.

But C. Bernard Blum, the borough engineer, developed the speed bump, stop sign design to Williams' satisfaction.

Theodore Parsons, the applicant's attorney, said the type of businesses that will rent the first floor had not been determined. Two apartments will be rented on the second floor.

Renovations should be completed within four months, Parsons estimated.

The board also granted preliminary and final site plan approval for a construction company to convert a residence at 131 Bodman Place for general use.

Toltec Inc. received needed variances for lot frontage, side yard set-back and total lot area, along with design waivers for parking, parking lot curbing, and buffering.

The company will be able to use the two-story house for its offices, but it will not be allowed to store heavy equipment, constrution materials or vehicles on the property.

Planners delay loft OK

quested that board member Harry Chebookjian disqualify himself, but Chebookjian refused.

Saker had written the planning board a letter claiming that Chebookjian had walked into Arlo's six years ago, pounded his fist on a table, and told Art Grossman he would be out of business in less than a month.

Chebookjian owns Broad Street Stationery.

And on July 29 of this year, the letter claimed, Grossman saw Chebookjian in his store and Chebookjian allegedly told Grossman he would not get his building.

"He additionally made crude remarks about both Mr. Grossman and his architect," the letter said.

When asked after the meeting about the alleged incident six years ago, Chebookjian shrugged his shoulders and said, "I have enough to worry about with my own business."

Chebookjian voted with three other members not to approve the proposal even if conditional upon the borough engineer's review of parking conditions.

He then made a motion to carry the application to the September meeting, with C. Bernard Blum, the engineer, getting a chance to resolve the parking in the meantime.

PERC ruling saves county $16,000 in officers' pay

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — Corrections officers in the county jail will not receive longevity pay in this year's contract but will instead receive a $300 payroll increment.

The county Board of Chosen Freeholders won an arbitration case yesterday before the state Public Employment Relations Commission. PERC ruled that the county does not have to offer longevity pay because the offer of $300 increments brings the 1983 economic package between 9 and 9.3 percent.

"This is a very fair proposal in light of comparative increases given to other Monmouth County employees, as well as other PBA units in Monmouth County and nearby counties," the PERC decision states.

The PBA and the county differed on the cost of the two proposals. The PBA estimates the cost of granting longevity to be $41,100, while its own proposal would cost only $52,251.

Meanwhile, the county maintained that its own proposal would cost approximately $33,000, while the PBA's proposal would cost aproximately $49,146.

The PERC decision also cited the PBA's claim that many non-union employees in the Sheriff's department received 10 percent increases in 1983. "This may be so. But the vast majority of employees received a 7.5 percent increase in 1983 and no one has a longevity plan," the decision states.

PBA attorney Jon Steiger said he is not disappointed in the decision. The $300 bonus is given "as a bonus and in recognition for excellent work under difficult working conditions," he said. Longevity negotiations can wait until next year, he added.

"The county has recognized certain special problems related to the Corrections Officers and is willing to give them extra compensation because of this," the PERC decision acknowledges.

Democrats pursuing Lehrer 'draft'

By BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — County Democratic leaders are apparently increasing their pressure on County Prosecutor Alexander D. Lehrer to accept the nomination to run for the 12th (central Monmouth) District state Senate seat.

Both Democratic Chairman John R. Fiorino and Rep. James J. Lehrer said that in addition to meeting with Fiorino and Howard he will also "try to talk to as many municipal leaders as possible from the 12th District within the next week or so."

Lehrer said among the items he wants to have clarified before making a final decision is how money would be raised on such short notice for his campaign.

He noted that his personal finances also have to be resolved since his five-year term as prosecutor ends Aug. 31 and he has no outside sources of income.

Gagliano also insisted that he had not heard of any attempt to offer Lehrer the reappointment to stop him from running for office.

Lehrer said he has not been approached by the Kean administration. But he said that "it is no secret that I'd accept reappointment as Monmouth County prosecutor, and if I had my choice that would be it. I feel my administration has done an excellent job, but there is still much to do, and I would like to continue the work in law enforcement."

Lehrer may have his opportunity to express his desires to the Kean administration within the next week or two, if, as expected, he is approached to accept a judicial appointment to the new Family Court in Monmouth County.

Whether Lehrer runs against Gagliano or not, the Republicans are still faced with having to choose between Kaye and Carton for the prosecutor's job. Reportedly, Kaye has already been selected by Kean for the position at the behest of the county's delegation to the state Legislature.

Trash rate hike 'stinks'

By RAY GERMANN

HAZLET — Claiming service by the Sano Carting Inc. garbage collection company "stinks," residents reacted incredulously last night to the company's application for a 92 percent rate increase.

Meanwhile, Michael Riccardelli, attorney for the Keyport-based company, claimed the corporation is in dire financial straits, and may not survive if the increase is not granted.

Most of the 50 residents who turned out for last night's public hearing before Administrative Law Judge Naomi Dower-LaBastille complained of inconsistent and inadequate service. Officials from the state Board of Public Utilities Commissioners — who will eventually decide whether to allow the increase — and the Public Advocate's Office were also present at the hearing.

The company is asking to raise its rate for residential garbage collection from $3.50 to $6.74 per month for three containers, plus 56 cents each for bag of grass clippings and other garden debris.

Attorney Ann Babineau, of Wilentz, Goldman and Spitzer, was hired by the township to represent "the best interests of the people" according to Mayor Charles Wildman. "We've had complaints about Sano's service for years. Sometimes it seems they are consciously trying to create a disturbance," he said. "The main point is that they are asking for this astronomical rate increase without substantially improving service."

Mike Shannon, of Parkview Drive, said all efforts to improve the situation by complaining to the company have been ineffective.

"The garbage men spill stuff all over the street when they do come," he said. "And when I call to complain they tell me off, or hang up."

Councilman Gilbert Bennett said the company's bookkeeping is unorganized, and often cuts off service for people who are up to date in their quarterly payments.

"It's kind of like a social slur to have your garbage sitting out there when everyone else's has been carted away," Bennett said. "Even when your bills are up to date, everyone on the block thinks you are delinquent," he said.

John Nunziato, of Stonehurst Terrace, said Sano employees often damage garbage cans, and leave them in the street or sidewalk.

"They seem to have no regard for personal property," he said. "And granting the company this rate increase would only reinforce the bad service."

Riccardelli blamed the service problems on inadequate funding.

"The company can't hire a higher quality worker because it doesn't have the money to attract them," he said. "A lot of the problems I've heard about tonight are personnel problems, not problems with the company per say."

"This company has not had a rate hike in eight years," Riccardelli said. "It may be that the service is not what it should be, but I believe they've gone as far as they can go with the equipment and the personnel they now have."

He suggested the company will be able to get new equipment and attract a better grade of worker if the increase is allowed.

Wildman said past efforts to entice another garbage collection agency to serve township residents have been unsuccessful.

"We asked another company to consider doing the job several years ago, and they were not interested," he said.

Lambert admits to lesser charges

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — James Lambert, a co-defendant in the murder trial of Joseph Hicks, pleaded guilty yesterday to reduced charges of possession of a shotgun for unlawful purposes and attempted armed robbery.

Lambert, 20, faces a maximum of 30 years in prison, 15 years without parole and $200,000 in fines because the state is asking the sentences not run concurrently. Charges of felony murder and conspiracy to commit armed robbery were dismissed.

Assistant Prosecutor Alton D. Kenney said the state will seek the maximum penalty on the two charges.

While his mother and father watched, Lambert, of 355 Long Branch Ave., recounted for Judge John Ricciardi the events of Oct. 22, 1982, when Joseph W. Cooper, 20, was killed with a shotgun blast to the head after a drug deal soured.

Hicks, 21, was convicted of the slaying. Police say the Cooper, of Old Bridge, was shot while trying to drive away from three would-be robbers. Lambert, Hicks and 21-year-old Carl "June Bug" Yarborough of 12 University Place were arrested.

Lambert told Ricciardi that his cousin, Hicks, awakened him early on the morning of Oct. 22.

"He wanted the gun. The shotgun. I gave it to him," Lambert said.

Lambert said he knew his cousin wanted the weapon to commit armed robbery. Lambert and Yarborough were near Cooper's car, Lambert said, while the robbery was in progress.

Lambert testified that he did not assist in the crime and that he did not expect any of the proceeds.

Kenney added for the record, however, that Hicks spent the rest of the morning at Lambert's home following the murder.

Ricciardi scheduled an Oct. 7 sentencing date for Lambert. Yarborough is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 16.

Hicks, of 38 Seaview Manor, convicted of murder, was spared the death penalty, but handed the 40-year minimum by Judge John P. Arnone.

Leak at IFF investigated

By RICHARD LEONARD

UNION BEACH — Hydrochloric acid leaked into the air for at least 45 minutes and may have threatened the health of Union Beach and Keansburg residents earlier this month, according to a report issued by the borough's health office.

At last night's council meeting, Health Officer Robert Hary revealed the findings of the probe which cited readings as high as 10 parts per million that were taken in various locations in the Union Beach-Keansburg area on the morning of the leak.

Hydrochloric acid leaked from a broken diaphragm in a regulator housed in a pressurized trailer owned by Air Products of Pennsylvania and parked at the International Flavors and Fragrances manufacturing plant, according to the report.

The leak, detected at 7:45 a.m., was brought under control at approximately 8:30 a.m. when IFF employees, outfitted in protective clothing, shut off the valves manually, according to the report.

Sanitary Inspectors Jane Casagrande and Kathleen Stryker conducted the investigation. Casagrande said she contacted the Department of Environmental Protection, but neither of the two DEP employees she spoke with, duty officer Linda Zancenella and Mike Osai, were able to advise her on what are safe standards for hydrochloric acid in the atmosphere. Zancenella advised that if odors were not detectable, there was probably no cause for concern.

The council voted to pass the report to the DEP with a letter requesting an assessment of the severity of the incident.

Hazlet approves computers

By HEATHER M. WILLIAMS

HAZLET — Because Hazlet Board of Education members believe computer instruction can be an important part of a student's overall learning process, the board last night approved the purchase of eight additional computers.

The board approved the purchase of eight Apple computers at a total cost of $11,550. With the purchase there are 13 computers available to district students.

Board member Harvey Wortzel last night questioned fellow board members on the the type of computers which will be used to instruct pupils in the district this year.

Board members said Apple computers are comparitively simple to operate, and should be suitable for basic student instruction. O'Brien questioned whether eight additional computers are enough to accomodate the entire student population. O'Brien said 222 pupils signed up for computer courses.

Utility bills stir tempers

By LISA R. KRUSE

KEANSBURG — A meeting last night between the Board of Fire Commissioners and the Borough Council stoked the simmering dispute over who is responsible for payment of the fire department's utility bills.

The debate centers around the council's decision not to pay the fire department's utility bills, as it has done for the last 60 years. Due to the budget adopted in May, the council voted to pay $500 a month rent in lieu of utilities, which would pay approximately one-third of the department's utility costs, according to Borough Manager Vincent J. Indelicato.

The fire departments own the Keansburg Fire Company No. 1 and the New Point Comfort station buildings.

In an Aug. 10 letter to Fire Chief Frank DiGennaro, the fire department stated that as of Sept. 1 it would no longer permit borough equipment to be stored in the firehouses because the department can no longer afford the utilities.

Current plans call for the fire apparatus to be stored in the borough garage. The meeting last night was called to determine if public safety hazards would be caused by the move.

"This is a ridiculous situation," said Wallace Sechaab, commission chairman. "If the mayor and council had listened to the Board of Fire Commissioners way back when you were preparing your budget, we wouldn't be in this situation now."

The fire department received a letter from Jersey Central Power and Light Co. stating that unless approximately $11,000 in back utility bills were paid, electricty would be turned off in the fire houses on Aug. 29.

Digennaro had said the department does not have the money.

"Our bottom line is $1,500 a month to maintain the trucks at each firehouse," said Jack Keelen, a member of the fire commission. "If you can't meet that, then you can take the trucks back."

"Then as far as I'm concerned we have nothing left to discuss," Indelicato replied, nd with that — some 20 minutes into the meeting — he stormed out of the room.

"He's supposed to take care of the borough. Who the hell is he to walk out of the meeting?" demanded Keelen.

DiGennaro told the council that moving the trucks to the municipal garage would hamper the department's response time.

"There's no way we'll be able to function at the same degree of efficiency," he said. "These fellows are not professional. They don't drive the trucks every day. They're creatures of habit like all of us."

Mayor George Kauffmann asked if the fire board could overrule the decision by the department to throw out borough equipment.

"We are nothing more than a liaison between the mayor and council and both fire companies," Sechaab countered. "We have no control over specific actions."

Borough attorney David Zlotkin asked for more time. "To prevent what could easily be a crisis in the municipality, couldn't the fire commission prevail on the companies to delay action?" he asked.

Captain Albert Scott of Keansburg Fire Company No. 1 jumped from the audience and shouted, "How many months have we been waiting for an answer? How much longer do you expect us to wait?"

AROUND THE COUNTY

Parking key to building

RED BANK — The Planning Board last night refused to approve Arlo Print Shop's proposal to construct a three-story building on Monmouth St. that would contain two businesses and seven loft apartments. But after two close votes against approval, four board members, including one who would not disqualify himself at the applicant's request, kept the proposal alive by agreeing to let the borough engineer iron out parking plans with the applicant before next month's meeting.

Lois Grossman, who owns Arlo's with her husband, said they expected to lease 15 spaces in a parking lot with about 25 spaces behind 27 Monmouth St., a vacant lot where the building would be constructed. But she could not Arlo Print Shop has operated at 21 Monmouth St. for the past six years. It contains two printing presses and typesetting equipment, Grossman said.

The proposed building would house the print shop, another unspecified business, and the seven, two-floor loft apartments. Grossman said she and her husband plan to reside in one of them.

Spy House work eyed

MIDDLETOWN — The Township Committee decided last night to obtain renovation estimates on the Port Monmouth Spy House. A $20,000 grant was recieved for the project three years ago. Short and Ford Architects of Philadelphia, which specialize in the renovation of historical buildings, are being contacted for estimates. In other business, the committee read a proposal written by William J. Hogan, Jr., director of Community and Economic Development, suggesting that the committee consider leasing the Kings Highway building to the County Private Industry Council (PIC).

Hogan estimated rent of the 2,700-foot-square building at $8 per square foot, which would net the township approximately $21,000 per year. Mayor Linder said the committee was interested in the proposal, but would like to get more information regarding necessary building renovations. If they did decide to lease to the PIC, the committee would want to secure a three-year lease, Linder said.

Sewer rate hike cut

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — The State Board of Public Utilities has slashed a sewer rate increase request from the Wynnewood Sewer System from $62,600 to $3,379. Mayor Robert Mantei called the decision "a victory for the people" of the township. Homeowners in the Winfield and Juniper Farms sections affected by the increase had protested the rate hike of more than 33 percent.

The state public advocate joined in the opposition to the increase, leading to the assignment of an administrative law judge to review the case. The judge ruled that the smaller increase would cover any revenue deficiency projected by the small utility.

In other action at last nights township council meeting, the committee adopted an ordinance providing for an odd-even system for lawn sprinkling in the township. Lawn watering on the 31st of any month is prohibited.

Mantei said the system will continue indefinitely.

Freehold hires new cops

FREEHOLD — The Borough Council appointed four new patrolmen last night to help solve one of the police department's biggest problems — manpower. Borough residents Steven Cicero and Mitchell Roth, Thomas Tretola of Matawan and William Bismarck of Long Branch were sworn in.

Cicero, 22, is a former employee of the Monmouth County Corrections Office. Roth, 22, has worked with the Department of Corrections in Jamesburg. Tretola, 31, was a security officer with Six Flags Great Adventure, Jackson. Bismarck, 35, was a military policeman in the U.S. Marines.

They will begin training Monday at the Monmouth County Police Academy in Howell, according to Lt. William Burlew. Appointments have been timed perfectly, according to Democratic Councilwoman Lynn Reich, who serves as the borough police commissioner.

"The manpower problem is a very important problem we have to address," Reich said Wednesday, echoing a conclusion made recently by the Monmouth County Police Chiefs Association.

Howell Police Chief Harvey F. Morrell Jr. and three other chiefs met with the council Aug. 8 to discuss the findings of the association's study prepared after examining the borough police department. The report cited lack of manpower as one of the department's major problems.

Market expansion nearer

LONG BRANCH — The Board of Adjustment last night granted preliminary site plan approval to Big Z Market for its proposed expansion of the Foodtown Supermarket located on West End Court. Richard Bonello, attorney representing Charles Zimmerman, said the owners intend to enlarge the store to provide additional service to customers as well as expanding the existing parking lot.

Chairman Paolo D. Paone requested that the Big Z Market furnish additional plans concerning the portion of property that abuts Cedar Garden Apartment land on Cedar Avenue that will be used for the expansion. In other matters, the board denied Mathews Advertising Inc. a variance to construct a 150-square-foot sign for Criterion Candies located on 65 Ocean Avenue since Criterion has failed to pay $40,000 in taxes for 1983.

Boundary lines approved

HOLMDEL — The Township Committee last night unanimously approved the new boundary lines between Hazlet and Homdel. The vote seconded a recent one taken by the Hazlet Township Committee which changed the much-contested existing border that cut through 32 properties in both townships. Much of the affected land lies on Bethany Road, Stempler and Palmer courts, and Miller Avenue. Representations of the two townships plan to meet to discuss financial implications of the new boundaries, but Holmdel Mayor Joseph Popolo foresees no problems in that area.

Oakhurst house fire probed

OCEAN — A fire raged through a home at 215 Whalepond Road in the Oakhurst section early this morning, police said.

The owners, whose names were not released, were out of town on vacation, and no injuries were reported, police said.

As of 4 a.m., the fire marshal and officers were canvassing the property for clues to the cause of the blaze, police said.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

All clear to steer

HAZLET — Robyn Galvin of Hazlet, is the last of 500 happy Raritan High School students to complete a behind-the-wheel driving course given by the Driving School for Young Adults in Red Bank.

The high school's board of education contracted with the firm to provide each eligible student with three hours of instruction by the driving school after the high school's previous driver's education teachers went on strike.

Students also received 30 hours of classroom driver education and 12 hours using a simulator from teachers in the high school.

Driving school instruction included lessons in parallel parking since this maneuver will once again be part of the road test for a New Jersey driver's license starting Sept. 1.

Parallel parking tests were eliminated from drivers' tests in September to help speed up processing of a heavy backlog of applications.

John Loggers, owner of the driving school, said he will donate one-third of the purchase price of a parallel parking brochure to Mothers Against Drunk Driving, MADD, for their educational programs. The brochure provides step-by-step instruction in the technique of parallel parking.

PERFECT PARKING — Robyn Galvin, Hazlet, displays lesson on parallel parking which helped her complete a behind-the-wheel driving course in the Driving School for Young Adults in Red Bank sponsored by the board of education at Raritan High School. Parallel parking testing will again be included in state driving tests as of Sept. 1.

Kids to jump for Jerry's kids

KEYPORT — Some 25 children from grades three through seven are expected to jump for joy — and money — Friday in Keyport.

The youthful jumpers decided on their own to hold a "Jump for Jerry's Kids" to benefit muscular dystrophy.

Jumpers, who use a jump rope, will solicit pledges from their families and neighbors for the length of time they jump.

The four mothers who are assisting in the benefit are Madeline Slocum, of 67 Broadway, in whose home the event will be held, Phyllis Zweidinger, Nancy Carew and Susan Tibbetts. The mothers will donate a gift certificate to the child who jumps longest.

Registration will be taken any time up to jump off at 8:45 a.m. Friday.

Matawan readies to flex its muscle

MATAWAN — The fall semester of the Matawan Student Enrichment Program will see a new course in physical fitness. This course is designed to help the student develop physical conditioning. Each student will have an individual program created to help him/her develop all parts of the body. They will use Nautilus equipment to promote muscle growth and tone.

This course will be held for 10 Saturday mornings, 9 — 10 A.M., at the ATA Fitness Center, Rt. 34 and Lloyd Road. It is open to Boys and Girls ages 14 and older.

Matawan Student Enrichment Program is a private, non-profit educational organization. It is governed by volunteer parents on its board. The tuition charged covers all expenses incurred by the program. There is no other funding for the program, other than tuition.

Bernstein re-entered onto mayoral ballot

UNION BEACH — Lee Bernstein, candidate for Union Beach mayor in the upcoming November election, had his name removed from the ballot and then put back on.

In an Aug. 17 letter from the County Clerk Jance C. Clayton, read to the Council at last night's agenda meeting, said that Bernstein was disqualified from holding public office because he had pleaded guilty to the charge of conflict of interest in Essex County and was sentenced on April 9, 1973 to eighteen months in jail and fined $1,000.

Bernstein confirmed he had received the letter, but said the ruling had been reversed by Malcolm V. Carton, Monmouth County counsel, after he originally advised that Bernstein's name not appear on the ballot.

Carton confirmed that he had done a turnabout on the matter.

According to Bernstein, the reason the ruling had to be changed was because it was erroneously based on a statute other than the one applicable to the charges he was indicted on.

"I am proud," he said. "I live in a county such as this where a man like Mr. Carton makes his decisions based on the rule of law and not on partisan politics."

Performing Arts trio rounds out program

By KATHLEEN STANLEY

LITTLE SILVER — Two dance instructors and a drama teacher were hired by the Red Bank Regional Board of Education last night, marking the final stage in the establishment of the Performing Arts Program scheduled to begin in September.

By a 7-2 vote, the board hired dance instructor Carol Eckardt of Neptune City, who will work as a "half-time teacher." Jerry M. Alicea of Bronx, N.Y., voted in 8-1, will also work "part-time" for the dance program.

"I don't know as the enrollment is enough to hire an additional dance instructor," said board member John M. Walsh, who cast a dissenting vote for the resolution to hire Eckardt. "Maybe we will have enough students. I hope we do," Walsh added.

The enrollment tally now stands at 37 students, up five since last week, Superintendent Donald D. Warner said. Although he was hoping for 30 students to enroll in the dance courses, only 15 are able to take the course during the 1983-84 school year.

By a 7-1-1 vote, the board hired a third instructor, David A. Simpson of Philadelphia, who will fill the post of drama teacher.

Board member Henry A. Stevenson voted against all three hiring resolutions, but said he preferred not to comment on his decision.

Under the agreement, the half-time instructors will be paid $7,987, effective Sept. 1, and Simpson will earn $24,047, also beginning Sept. 1.

The three appointments came on the heels of a decision made by the board Wednesday to hire Midge Guerrera as the director of the program.

Before last Wednesday, there was doubt whether the state-approved arts program would go on as scheduled due to decisions by many school boards not to send their "exceptionally talented" students.

Although there is still "a lot of enthusiasm" from the students who have been accepted to the program, many are unable to attend the school because they cannot afford to pay the tuition without financial assistance, Warner said.

Full-time students are billed $4,000 a year for tuition and part-time students pay $2,000.

"Many students are saying 'we definitely wanted to come, but we can't afford it,'" said Board Secretary Kenneth R. Sommerhalter.

The board members asked that individuals and corporations consider contributing grants to the program to ease the financial difficulties.

Meanwhile, Warner said he is confident that the school will stay afloat, with the help of quality instructors and students.

Eckardt's experience includes teaching dance at the University of South Florida and Brookdale Community College, Lincroft. She has a degree from New York University.

Freehold hires four new policemen

By TERRY MOORE

Borough residents Steven Cicero and Mitchell Roth, Thomas Tretola of Matawan and William Bismarck of Long Branch were sworn in.

Cicero, 22, is a former employee of the Monmouth County Corrections Office. Roth, 22, has worked with the Department of Corrections in Jamesburg. Tretola, 31, was a security officer with Six Flags Great Adventure, Jackson. Bismarck, 35, was a military policeman in the U.S. Marines.

They will begin training Monday at the Monmouth County Police Academy in Howell, according to Lt. William Burlew.

Appointments have been timed perfectly, according to Democratic Councilwoman Lynn Reich, who serves as the borough police commissioner.

"The manpower problem is a very important problem we have to address," Reich said Wednesday, echoing a conclusion made recently by the Monmouth County Police Chiefs Association.

Howell Police Chief Harvey F. Morrell Jr. and three other chiefs met with the council Aug. 8 to discuss the findings of the association's study prepared after examining the borough police department. The report cited lack of manpower as one of the department's major problems.

The department needs 27 men to operate properly, according to the 18-page report. With the new appointees, the staff totals 23 men, including one detective. The borough hopes to hire additional officers next year.

"We are interested in hiring more police officers," Reich said. "We'll have to take a look at next year's budget. It'll also depend on whether some (staffers) leave or get sick."

In other business, the council discussed the possibility of purchasing a building on Throckmorton Street to lease to the Freehold Township YMCA as a "satellite YMCA."

Michael Wilson, council liaison to the Recreation Committee, told the council that YMCA Director Tony Borton wants to renovate the old building if the borough will buy it. The building currently is used for storage by the Freehold Music Center. But the building's owner, Michael Diehl of Bricktown, wants to either demolish the building or sell it, according to Wilson.

The YMCA was housed in the building until approximately 12 years ago, Wilson noted. "When I was growing up, it was the big thing in town. All the facilities are there for the YMCA," he said.

Borton was on vacation and could not be reached for comment. But Wilson claimed that "Tony Borton is very, very enthusiastic about this. He thinks it's a very good possibility."

Wilson believes the purchase of the building for the YMCA's use would be beneficial to the youths in the community. "This is the key. This is for the kids. We really want to get them off the streets," he said.

The borough plans to ask Robert Lloyd Coutts Jr., of Coutts Gallery of Homes in Freehold Township, to appraise the building.

Lambert pleads in murder trial

By JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — James Lambert, a co-defendant in the murder trial of Joseph Hicks, pleaded guilty yesterday to reduced charges of possession of a shotgun for unlawful purposes and attempted armed robbery.

Lambert, 20, faces a maximum of 30 years in prison, 15 years without parole and $200,000 in fines because the state is asking the sentences not run concurrently. Charges of felony murder and conspiracy to commit armed robbery were dismissed.

Assistant Prosecutor Alton D. Kenney said the state will seek the maximum penalty on the two charges.

While his mother and father watched, Lambert, of 355 Long Branch Ave., recounted for Judge John Ricciardi the events of Oct. 22, 1982, when Joseph W. Cooper, 20, was killed with a shotgun blast to the head after a drug deal soured.

Hicks, 21, was convicted of the slaying. Police say the Cooper, of Old Bridge, was shot while trying to drive away from three would-be robbers. Lambert, Hicks and 21-year-old Carl "June Bug" Yarborough of 12 University Place were arrested.

Lambert told Ricciardi that his cousin, Hicks, awakened him early on the morning of Oct. 22.

"He wanted the gun. The shotgun. I gave it to him," Lambert said.

Lambert said he knew his cousin wanted the weapon to commit armed robbery. Lambert and Yarborough were near Cooper's car, Lambert said, while the robbery was in progress.

Lambert testified that he did not assist in the crime and that he did not expect any of the proceeds.

Kenney added for the record, however, that Hicks spent the rest of the morning at Lambert's home following the murder.

Ricciardi scheduled an Oct. 7 sentencing date for Lambert. Yarborough is scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 16.

Hicks, of 38 Seaview Manor, convicted of murder, was spared the death penalty, but handed the 40-year minimum by Judge John P. Arnone.

APARTMENT FIRE — A 2 p.m. blaze yesterday damaged an upstairs apartment at 90 Stonehurst Blvd., Freehold Township. The fire companies assisting were Freehold Township, East Freehold, Freehold and Adelphia. No injuries were reported and the blaze is under investigation.

Freehold Democrat resigns

Reich, 35, of 6 Hance Blvd., served on the post for two years. He will step down "Sept. 6 or sooner" to begin law school at Seton Hall University, Newark.

"I will be resigning all political activities to concentrate on passing law school," he said. "I leave with mixed feelings — glad that I'm going to law school and sad that I have to give up some work that I really have enjoyed, that's working with the Freehold Democratic Club."

Joan Webb, president of the Democratic Club and vice chairwoman of the County Executive Committee, was "slightly in a state of shock" upon hearing of Reich's plans.

"He's been a very dynamic, articulate, tireless municipal leader," she said. "He's going to be greatly missed. He's worked very hard for democrats on a municipal, county and state level."

The remaining members of the executive committee "probably" will meet next week to elect a new municipal leader, said Webb who is "definitely not interested" in the position.

Executive Committeeman John G. McGackin "probably would not be interested in it" because of his commitment as borough council president, Webb said. McGackin also is running for mayor.

McGackin confirmed Webb's beliefs. "I'm not really interested. I have enough to do," he said.

Democrats press Lehrer to accept state nomination

By BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — County Democratic leaders are apparently increasing their pressure on County Prosecutor Alexander D. Lehrer to accept the nomination to run for the 12th (central Monmouth) District state Senate seat.

Both Democratic Chairman John R. Fiorino and Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., have scheduled meetings with Lehrer this week in which they will attempt to convince him to accept the party's "draft," a nomination which opened two weeks ago when Dr. Robert Morgan of Shrewsbury withdrew for professional and personal reasons.

In the meantime, Fiorino has resolved another candidate vacancy. As expected, Spring Lake Heights Councilman Cornelius V. "Neil" Kelly has accepted the party nomination to run for one of the two available state Assembly seats in the 11th (coastal Monmouth) District. Kelly replaces well-known entertainer Bobby Byrne on the ticket.

Byrne withdrew from the race last month because of career demands. Kelly will run with Martin S. Chomsky of Ocean for the two Assembly seats now held by Republican Assemblymen Anthony M. Villane Jr. and Joseph A. Palaia.

But the attention of Democrats is focused on Lehrer, with speculation within the party increasing that he will accept their request to oppose state Sen. S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, in the November election.

Lehrer insisted last night he has not yet made a final decision as to whether he will run for the Senate seat. But he said he would probably announce his decision within one or two weeks.

Lehrer is meeting with Fiorino today and with Howard tomorrow. Both Howard and Lehrer insisted that the other requested the their meeting, but Howard acknowledged that he is "hopeful" Lehrer will decide to run.

ALEXANDER D. LEHRER

"But of course it's his future," Howard continued. "My viewpoint, of course, is that I would like him to be the candidate."

"He asked me to meet with him to discuss my future," Lehrer responded. "And I will be more than happy to discuss my future with him. I am still trying to make up my mind whether to run."

Lehrer said that in addition to meeting with Fiorino and Howard he will also "try to talk to as many municipal leaders as possible from the 12th District within the next week or so."

Lehrer said among the items he wants to have clarified before making a final decision is how money would be raised on such short notice for his campaign.

He noted that his personal finances also have to be resolved since his five-year term as prosecutor ends Aug. 31 and he has no outside sources of income.

"If I run, I will be a full-time candidate and I would have to borrow money in order to live," he noted. "The problem is how to raise the money to run against Gagliano since the Republicans are certain to raise a lot of money."

But Fiorino has been assuring Lehrer that the county Democrats will come up with the essential funds to run a campaign.

The Republicans, for their part, denied rumors circulating in the county for the past few days that they have reversed their previous objections to Gov. Thomas H. Kean renaming Lehrer prosecutor for another five-year term so that he won't run against Gagliano.

"That's ridiculous," asserted Republican County Chairman Frederick C. Kniesler to the report that he had asked Kean to reappoint Lehrer. Kniesler said the governor will appoint either Freehold attorney John Kaye or County Counsel Malcolm Carton to the $70,000-a-year patronage position.

Gagliano also insisted that he had not heard of any attempt to offer Lehrer the reappointment to stop him from running for office.

Lehrer said he has not been approached by the Kean administration. But he said that "it is no secret that I'd accept reappointment as Monmouth County prosecutor, and if I had my choice that would be it. I feel my administration has done an excellent job, but there is still much to do, and I would like to continue the work in law enforcement."

Lehrer may have his opportunity to express his desires to the Kean administration within the next week or two, if, as expected, he is approached to accept a judicial appointment to the new Family Court in Monmouth County.

Whether Lehrer runs against Gagliano or not, the Republicans are still faced with having to choose between Kaye and Carton for the prosecutor's job. Reportedly, Kaye has already been selected by Kean for the position at the behest of the county's delegation to the state Legislature.

County jail officers lose arbitration case

FREEHOLD — Corrections officers in the county jail will not receive longevity pay in this year's contract but will instead receive a $300 payroll increment.

The county Board of Chosen Freeholders won an arbitration case yesterday before the state Public Employment Relations Commission. PERC ruled that the county does not have to offer longevity pay because the offer of $300 increments brings the 1983 economic package between 9 and 9.3 percent.

"This is a very fair proposal in light of comparative increases given to other Monmouth County employees, as well as other PBA units in Monmouth County and nearby counties," the PERC decision states.

The PBA and the county differed on the cost of the two proposals. The PBA estimates the cost of granting longevity to be $41,100, while its own proposal would cost only $52,251.

Meanwhile, the county maintained that its own proposal would cost approximately $33,000, while the PBA's proposal would cost aproximately $49,146.

The PERC decision also cited the PBA's claim that many non-union employees in the Sheriff's department received 10 percent increases in 1983. "This may be so. But the vast majority of employees received a 7.5 percent increase in 1983 and no one has a longevity plan," the decision states.

PBA attorney Jon Steiger said he is not disappointed in the decision. The $300 bonus is given "as a bonus and in recognition for excellent work under difficult working conditions," he said. Longevity negotiations can wait until next year, he added.

"The county has recognized certain special problems related to the Corrections Officers and is willing to give them extra compensation because of this," the PERC decision acknowledges.

Piatt appointed to slot

By LAURA V. MAXWELL

TRENTON — Dr. Cummings A. Piatt, former superintendent of Long Branch public schools, has been appointed Assistant Commisioner of Education in charge of executive services by Commissioner Saul Cooperman.

Piat will assume the $56,000-a-year post October 3. His duties include assisting the commisioner in state education affairs and he also will be in charge of several bureaus, including those of legal services, public information, legislative liaison, and state board of education services.

"Dr. Piatt brings to this organization an excellent background in practical education plus the kind of vision and leadership needed by our newly reorganized department," Cooperman said.

Piatt is leaving his $53,000-a-year position as superintendent of Bridgewater-Raritan public schools.

Performing Arts Program taps three instructors

By KATHLEEN STANLEY

LITTLE SILVER — Two dance instructors and a drama teacher were hired by the Red Bank Regional Board of Education last night, marking the final stage in the establishment of the Performing Arts Program scheduled to begin in September.

By a 7-2 vote, the board hired dance instructor Carol Eckardt of Neptune City, who will work as a "half-time teacher." Jerry M. Alicea of Bronx, N.Y., voted in 8-1, will also work "part-time" for the dance program.

"I don't know as the enrollment is enough to hire an additional dance instructor," said board member John M. Walsh, who cast a dissenting vote for the resolution to hire Eckardt. "Maybe we will have enough students. I hope we do," Walsh added.

The enrollment tally now stands at 37 students, up five since last week, Superintendent Donald D. Warner said. Although he was hoping for 30 students to enroll in the dance courses, only 15 are able to take the course during the 1983-84 school year.

By a 7-1-1 vote, the board hired a third instructor, David A. Simpson of Philadelphia, who will fill the post of drama teacher.

Board member Henry A. Stevenson voted against all three hiring resolutions, but said he preferred not to comment on his decision.

Under the agreement, the half-time instructors will be paid $7,987, effective Sept. 1, and Simpson will earn $24,047, also beginning Sept. 1.

The three appointments came on the heels of a decision made by the board Wednesday to hire Midge Guerrera as the director of the program.

Before last Wednesday, there was doubt whether the state-approved arts program would go on as scheduled due to decisions by many school boards not to send their "exceptionally talented" students.

Although there is still "a lot of enthusiasm" from the students who have been accepted to the program, many are unable to attend the school because they cannot afford to pay the tuition without financial assistance, Warner said.

Full-time students are billed $4,000 a year for tuition and part-time students pay $2,000.

"Many students are saying 'we definitely wanted to come, but we can't afford it,'" said Board Secretary Kenneth R. Sommerhalter.

The board members asked that individuals and corporations consider contributing grants to the program to ease the financial difficulties.

Meanwhile, Warner said he is confident that the school will stay afloat, with the help of quality instructors and students.

Eckardt's experience includes teaching dance at the University of South Florida and Brookdale Community College, Lincroft. She has a degree from New York University.

Alicea is a graduate of the High School for the Performing Arts in New York City and has appeared in a number of Broadway productions, including "A Chorus Line," "Pippin," and "West Side Story."

Simpson is a graduate of Temple University, where he also taught drama. He is the coordinator of the theatre department of the Performing Arts High School in Philadelphia.

Market expansion nearer

LONG BRANCH — The Board of Adjustment last night granted preliminary site plan approval to Big Z Market for its proposed expansion of the Foodtown Supermarket located on West End Court. Richard Bonello, attorney representing Charles Zimmerman, said the owners intend to enlarge the store to provide additional service to customers as well as expanding the existing parking lot.

Chairman Paolo D. Paone requested that the Big Z Market furnish additional plans concerning the portion of property that abuts Cedar Garden Apartment land on Cedar Avenue that will be used for the expansion. In other matters, the board denied Mathews Advertising Inc. a variance to construct a 150-square-foot sign for Criterion Candies located on 65 Ocean Avenue since Criterion has failed to pay $40,000 in taxes for 1983.

Name removed from ballot

UNION BEACH — Lee Bernstein, candidate for Union Beach mayor in the upcoming November election, had his name removed from the ballot, according to an Aug. 17 letter addressed to him from Monmouth County Clerk Jane G. Clayton. The letter, read to the Council at last night's agenda meeting, said that Bernstein was disqualified from holding public office because he had pleaded guilty to the charge of conflict of interest in Essex County and was sentenced on April 9, 1973 to eighteen months in jail and fined $1,000.

Bernstein said that he had received the letter but the ruling had been reversed by Malcolm V. Carton, Monmouth County counsel, the same man who originally advised Bernstein's name not to appear on the ballot. According to Bernstein, the reason the ruling had to be changed was that it was erroneously based on statute N.J.S.2A:93-5 instead of N.J.S.2A:135-8 under which he was actually indicted. "I am proud," he said. "I live in a county such as this where a man like Mr. Carton makes his decisions based on the rule of law and not on partisan politics."

Spy House work eyed

MIDDLETOWN — The Township Committee decided last night to obtain renovation estimates on the Port Monmouth Spy House. A $20,000 grant was recieved for the project three years ago. Short and Ford Architects of Philadelphia, which specialize in the renovation of historical buildings, are being contacted for estimates. In other business, the committee read a proposal written by William J. Hogan, Jr., director of Community and Economic Development, suggesting that the committee consider leasing the Kings Highway building to the County Private Industry Council (PIC).

Hogan estimated rent of the 2,700-foot-square building at $8 per square foot, which would net the township approximately $21,000 per year. Mayor Linder said the committee was interested in the proposal, but would like to get more information regarding necessary building renovations. If they did decide to lease to the PIC, the committee would want to secure a three-year lease, Linder said.

Parking key to building

RED BANK — The Planning Board last night refused to approve Arlo Print Shop's proposal to construct a three-story building on Monmouth St. that would contain two businesses and seven loft apartments. But after two close votes against approval, four board members, including one who would not disqualify himself at the applicant's request, kept the proposal alive by agreeing to let the borough engineer iron out parking plans with the applicant before next month's meeting.

Lois Grossman, who owns Arlo's with her husband, said they expected to lease 15 spaces in a parking lot with about 25 spaces behind 27 Monmouth St., a vacant lot where the building would be constructed. But she could not Arlo Print Shop has operated at 21 Monmouth St. for the past six years. It contains two printing presses and typesetting equipment, Grossman said.

The proposed building would house the print shop, another unspecified business, and the seven, two-floor loft apartments. Grossman said she and her husband plan to reside in one of them.

Hazlet to buy computers

HAZLET — Because Hazlet Board of Education members believe computer instruction can be an important part of a student's overall learning process, the board last night approved the purchase of eight additional computers. The board approved the purchase of eight Apple computers at a total cost of $11,550. With the purchase there are 13 computers available to district students.

Board member Harvey Wortzel last night questioned fellow board members on the the type of computers which will be used to instruct pupils in the district this year. Board members said Apple computers are comparatively simple to operate, and should be suitable for basic student instruction. O'Brien questioned whether eight additional computers are enough to accomodate the entire student population. O'Brien said 222 pupils signed up for computer courses.

The board opted to buy the computers and rather than lease them as previously suggested.

Freehold track stars bring home awards

Rona Henderson, 11, of 33-A Vought Ave., won first place for the 50-meter dash. Stephanie Saleem, 14, of Palmer Ave., Neptune, and Gregory Hyman, 15, of 11 First St., both won second-place awards; Saleem in the 200-meter race and Hyman in the 400-meter run. Sean Stone, 11, of 21 Birch Drive, came home with a third-place award in the long jump category.

The foursome were presented with honorary plaques from the borough on Aug. 1, after they won the July 9 regional competition of the Arco-Jesse Owens Games in Pennsylvania.

"I think we should be very proud of these young athletes," Democratic Councilman Eric Foster Jr. said.

Foster also lauded the team members who were winners at The Athletics Congress Region One Championships at Brown University, Providence, R.I., on July 16.

"Virtually, everyone who went to Brown came home a winner," Foster said. The council will honor the athletes who won at Brown University with a resolution at an upcoming meeting.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

Colts Neck scout heads for the hills

COLTS NECK — Tammy Lee Lennon, 14, has been selected for "Head for the Hills," a Girl Scout Wider Opportunity offered by the Conestoga Council of Northeast Iowa.

"Head for the Hills" will take Lennon on a 14-day adventure through the hills and valleys of historic northeast Iowa. Activities will include tubing, canoeing, archery and spelunking.

She will hike among the ancient Indian Burial grounds of Effigy Mounds National Monument, take a paddle wheel trip down the Mississippi River and visit the home of author Laura Ingalls Wilder.

Lennon's experiences in scouting have included exploring the great outdoors during the Bass River Campouts, offering home hospitality to a wider opportunity girl scout, camping weekends at Camp Sacajawea, attending the Holly Shores Council camp and Camp Eagle Island and earning the Silver Award.

She has earned the American Red Cross Basic Rescue; Standard Multimedia System First Aid and Basic Water Safety Course certificates.

At Cedar Drive School, she was active in the chorus and the year book committee. Lennon will enter St. John Vianney High School as a freshman in September.

Because her father is in government service, she has had an opportunity to live in many places, including Guam and Hawaii.

TAMMY LEE LENNON

She has served on the publishing staff of the Teen Club and kept score for softball and volleyball teams at Earle Naval Base.

Fitness course offered

Students will have individual programs to help them develop all parts of their bodies. They will use Nautilus equipment to promote muscle growth and tone.

The course will begin Oct. 1 at the ATA Fitness Center, Route 34 and Lloyd Road, for ten Saturdays from 9 to 10 a.m. It is open to boys and girls ages 14 and up.

Matawan Student Enrichment Program is a private, non-profit educational organization governed by volunteer parents on its board. The tuition is $28 plus material fees.

Bulk mailing of brochures, covering Marlboro, Matawan, Aberdeen, Holmdel and sections of Hazlet will take place the last week of August. Mail registration will take place until September 21st.

In-person registration will be held at the Lloyd Road School on Sept. 22-23 at 3:30-4:30 p.m.

MANALAPAN — Charles Edelstein, of Covered Bridge, has been appointed publicity chairman of the Home Owners of Covered Bridge.

He is co-chairman of the house committee and a trustee on the Homeowners Association. He also writes a column, "The Green Room," in the Covered Bridge Guardian Magazine.

By TREVOR THOMAS

MIDDLETOWN — Although over budget and behind schedule, renovations to Middletown High School North's cafeteria and library will be completed with minimal disruption to student routine, according to the school principal.

Nicholas Campanile gave that assurance last night at a special meeting of the township Board of Education called to discuss recent delays in the $6 million renovation project.

The delay arose when contractors ran into problems with ceiling and lighting installation in the cafeteria and library, he said.

That system was recently discontinued by the manufacturer, forcing the school's architects to scramble for a suitable replacement at $5,700 above what was originally budgeted.

The board approved changes in the original renovation project to allow for the latest snag.

An earlier delay had been caused by the discovery that asbestos fibers from an old ceiling contaminated walls in part of the school, resulting in a halt in construction until the hazardous material could be cleaned up.

Other renovations at the school are proceeding on schedule, said Campanile. These include a new gymnasium, music room, and graphic arts facilities.

"The upgrading may force us to reschedule some classes," Campanile told the board, "but generally we'll be able to accommodate construction without big changes in routine."

Barring further delays, he said, the renovation should be concluded before the start of the 1984 school year.

The cafeteria will not be ready to accommodate students for the first few weeks of the new school year, but the school will have temporary back-up facilities ready to serve hot and cold meals, Campanile reported.

In the meantime, the school will continue the "open campus" policy instituted last spring, when cafeteria modifications were begun, allowing students who wished to do so to leave school for lunch. Normally, students are required to eat lunch on site.

Despite concern by some residents that the open campus would lead to lunchtime mayhem in the neighborhood, student behavior was "beautiful," the principal stated.

"The vast majority was orderly, well-behaved, and back to school on time," he said.

Although most students opted to leave school for lunch, many found eating out every day is an expensive proposition. As a result, a large number of wandering students returned to the school's temporary luncheon facilities.

To help lure them back, the school relandscaped its central courtyard, equipping it with 30 new picnic tables.

The board also approved expenditures for an upgrading of telephone lines to the school and for additional equipment to its new photography lab.

By WENDY PENSTON

HOLMDEL — The Township Committee last night unanimously approved the new boundary lines between Hazlet and Homdel.

The vote seconded a recent one taken by the Hazlet Township Committee which changed the much-contested existing border that cut through 32 properties in both townships.

Much of the affected land lies on Bethany Road, Stempler and Palmer courts, and Miller Avenue.

Representations of the two townships plan to meet to discuss financial implications of the new boundaries, but Holmdel Mayor Joseph Popolo foresees no problems in that area.

In other business, the committee turned down the appeal of the Mama Mia Restaurant to keep a pizza man sign as part of its store front identification.

Dope scandal rocks Pan Am games

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A doping scandal rocked the IX Pan American Games yesterday, and threatened to quickly spread to the team that has dominated the athletic competition, the United States.

Pan Am officials stripped four weightlifters from Canada and Cuba, including world-record holder Daniel Nunez, of their medals and held out the possibility of further sanctions which could affect participation in the Olympics.

Nunez, who set a world record of 303.6 pounds in the snatch event of the 132-pound class; his Cuban teammate, Alfredo Blanco, and Canadians Guy Greavette and Michael Viau were found to have used anabolic steroids — artificial hormones used to build muscle bulk and strength.

Nunez and Blanco, at 220 pounds, had won three gold medals apiece. Greavette had taken two golds and a silver in the 182-pound class, while Viau had a pair of bronze medals at 148 pounds.

Three other Latin American lifters, all non-medalists, also were found to have steroids in their systems, authorities said.

Then, last night, sources said that a second batch of 14 athletes would be identified as drug-ban violators today. That group, the sources said, will include an unidentified U.S. weightlifter.

Officials said it was the first time in the 32-year history of the Pan Am Games that athletes had lost medals because of drug use, and it once again took attention away from the competition in these games, which began in confusion and have battled problems ranging from traffic jams to computer malfunctions.

The athletic schedule was relatively light as the games entered their last week and final practice was held for the start of track Tuesday. But for the most part, what events there were again were ruled by the United States.

Boxers Pernell Whittaker of Norfolk, Va., and Jerry Page of Atlanta easily advanced to the quarterfinals, joining all nine of their teammates in clinching at least bronze medals.

Whittaker, who waited 10 days for his first fight in the pan Am tournament, knocked out Kenworth Minus of the Bahamas at 1:50 of the first round in the 132-pound class. And Page, perhaps the least-known of the American fighters, scored a 4-1 decision over Jose Magallenes of Venezuela at 139.

Ricardo Prado of Brazil briefly interrupted the U.S. medal surge, winning the men's 200-meter individual medley in 2:04.51 on the final night of swimming competition. But Mary T. Meagher of Louisville, Ky., quickly had the "Star-Spangled Banner" playing again, as she won the women's 200 butterfly in 2:10.06. There were three more races on tap.

Related story, page B9

The United States was far ahead in the medals race, and added to its count by winning the water polo gold. The Americans edged Cuba, 8-6, as Gary Figueroa of Salinas, Calif, scored three goals and Terry Schroeder of Santa Barbara, Calif., and John Svendsen of Pleasant Hills, Calif., added two apiece.

That, plus Meagher's win, boosted the U.S. count to 84 gold medals, far ahead of Cuba in both categories. After substracting the titles won by Nunez and Blanco, the Cubans had 47 gold medals, while Canada was third at nine golds and 64 overall, after taking the bronze in water polo.

Mario Vasquez Rana, president of the Pan American Sports organization, announced at a news conference that the four weightlifters had been punished.

"This is some of the saddest information I've ever given," said Vasquez, from Mexico. "Something to regret has happened, and we have to take care of it."

He said the four lifters would have "no records, no medals," and that the Pan Am group was sending their test results — along with those of non-medalists Guillermo Lopez of Argentina, Jose Lozada of Puerto Rico and Caballero M. Dolcey of Colombia — to both their respective national Olympic committees and the International Weightlifting Federation.

"There are no sanctions in this report, but we do not have sanction powers outside of our own games," he said. "That is up to international officials."

Both the Canadian and Cuban delegations said they supported the action of the Pan Am officials.

Knowledgeable sources in the Chilean delegation said last night that an American, the name not known, would be on the drug-violation list issued today. There are 14 names on the list, the sources said, including Jacques Oliger, a Chilean weightlifter who won three silver medals.

Repeated phone calls were unable to track down U.S. Olympic Committee officials here, but Dr. Roy T. Bergman, the U.S. team's chief physician, hinted at trouble earlier in the day.

"I'm aware there is one weightlifter that possibly could be named," Bergman said. He refused to identify the athlete involved.

Whoever is on the list, even more names may follow. Vasquez said that the policy of testing the gold, silver and bronze medalists plus two other athletes in each events, adopted three days ago, would remain in effect through the close Aug. 29, and that more announcements such as last night's might be expected.

Frank Ratcliffe, press aide for the Canadian delegation at the games, said he could not predict what the weightlifting federation would do, "but there is little doubt there will be sanctions that could conceivably carry through the Olympics."

Federations in other sports have issued lifetime bans against athletes using anabolic steroids. Those sanctions usually are shortened on appeal.

TEARS — Guy Greavette of Canada was all smiles when he won displayed his two gold and one silver weightlifting medals last week at the Pan Am Games. Yesterday, all weightligting medals won by Canadians at the games were stripped when officials found anabolic steroids in tests.

Billy's battle with MacPhail court bound?

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin has been keeping the American League office busy.

Martin was suspended for two games earlier this month by AL President Lee MacPhail for remarks which followed an incident with umpire Dale Ford in a July 31 game in Chicago. The Yankee manager appealed the suspension and a hearing was scheduled today.

If he loses the appeal, Martin said he was prepared to sue the league and baseball commissioner's office on the grounds that his freedom of speech had been violated.

BILLY MARTIN

"In a court of law, my chances of winning would be 1,000 percent," Martin said of his appeal of the suspension. "With the league office, they hang you first and then hear your case later.

"I've always been friends with Lee. He's not at fault here. It's the system. If we don't win this thing, you might as well throw out appeals forever, for everybody. We're left with no other alternative. We'll have to challenge this in the courts."

MacPhail suspended Martin for games Aug. 9-10 "for making public remarks adversely reflecting on the honesty and integrity of an American League umpire." The suspension was postponed when Martin appealed.

Martin called Ford "a stone liar" in comments to the media after the game.

"This is not the first time he's made such statements, and he was previously warned that future remarks of this nature would result in a suspension," MacPhail said in announcing the suspension.

Martin was to be represented at the hearing by New Orleans Judge Eddie Sapir; Roy Cohn, club owner George Steinbrenner's attorney, and Mel Southard, the Yankees' in-house counsel.

Oakland tops Yanks in 14; Padres halt Met streak at 3

NEW YORK (AP) — Carney Lansford, whose error led to a pair of unearned runs in the second inning, snapped a 2-2 tie with a 14th-inning single and four Oakland pitchers held New York to seven hits as the A's edged the Yankees 3-2 last night.

Mike Heath opened the 14th with an opposite-field double into the right-field corner off loser George Frazier, 3-3. Bill Almon sacrificed Heath to third and was safe at first when Frazier bobbled the ball for an error. After Dave Lopes grounded to second baseman Willie Randolph, who tagged out Almon, but Lansford followed with a single.

Dave Beard, 5-3, pitched three innings to gain the victory and was helped by right fielder Mike Davis, who threw out the potential tying run at the plate in the bottom of the 14th.

Oakland tied the score 2-2 with a run in the ninth inning. Lansford walked to open the inning and Rich Gossage relieved starter Ray Fontenot. After Dwayne Murphy popped out, Davis entered the game as a pinch hitter and singled to right, moving Lansford to second. Pinch hitter Garry Hancock flied out, but Gossage walked Tony Phillips and Rickey Henderson to force Lansford home.

The Yankees took a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Gorman Heimueller walked both Wynegar and Nettles to open the inning. One out later, Roy Smalley grounded to deep short where Almon's only play was to third, but Lansford dropped the throw for an error, loading the bases. Omar Moreno struck out before Willie Randolph delivered a two-run single.

Oakland made it 2-1 in the fourth when Jeff Burroughs drew a one-out walk, went to second on Lansford's single and scored on Bob Kearney's two-out single.

Padres 4, Mets 3

SAN DIEGO — Luis Salazar and Ruppert Jones each homered and Eric Show defeated the New York Mets for the third time this year as the San Diego Padres ended a three-game winning streak by the Mets with a 4-3 victory last night.

Show, 13-8, went seven innings and gave up six hits, including a pair of towering home runs by rookie Darryl Strawberry, who drove in all three Mets runs. Strawberry has 19 homers for the year, including four against the Padres. Luis DeLeon worked the final two innings to earn his 10th save,

Terry Kennedy picked up his 11th game-winning RBI with a third inning sacrifice fly to give San Diego a 3-2 lead. Kennedy drove in Al Wiggins, who had doubled and stolen third off Mets starter Craig Swan, 2-7.

Jones' ninth homer came with one out in the sixth and gave San Diego a 4-2 lead. But Strawberry cut the margin to 4-3 with a drive into the center field seats leading off the seventh.

Bobby Brown ran his hitting streak to 14 games when he led off the game with a drag bunt single and then stole second. Wiggins dropped down another drag bunt single, with Brown taking third. He scored when Garry Templeton grounded into a double play.

Strawberry put the Mets on top 2-1 with a two-run homer in the second inning, but Salazar tied it with a solo shot, his eighth, in the bottom of the second.

GARY SHIRK

By JONNI FALK

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. — New York Giants' Coach Bill Parcells put his quarterback problem out of his mind for a few minutes last night to make a final determination on the eight players who must be cut by 4 p.m. today to reach the 60-man roster limit.

That figure is only eight because the Giants yesterday put two players who were hurt in the win over Baltimore Saturday night on injured reserve. Both were 12th-round draft choices this year.

The first, wide receiver Frank Magwood of Clemson, dislocated his left shoulder diving for a pass in the third period. The other, linebacker Robbie Jones of Alabama, suffered a severe contusion of the spinal chord while making a tackle about a minute before the end of the game.

There is plenty of extra flesh at several positions to help make Parcells' judgment on the eight who must go today. However, the problem he faces is that too many of the backup players have shown equal ability or lack of ability. Proficiency in special teams play will probably be the determining factor on some of the cuts, and next Monday's reduction to 49 players, the roster limit this year, will be even harder.

The current roster has these numbers by position: QUARTERBACKS — four; FULLBACKS — four; RUNNING BACKS — four; WIDE RECEIVERS — six; TIGHT ENDS — five; TACKLES — four; GUARDS — five; CENTERS — three.

DEFENSIVE ENDS — four; DEFENSIVE TACKLES — six; INSIDE LINEBACKERS — five; OUTSIDE LINEBACKERS — five; CORNERBACKS — four; FREE SAFETIES — three; STRONG SAFETIES — three; PUNTER — one, and KICKERS — two.

Assuming that Parcells will not make decisions on his quarterbacks or kickers today, barring trades, the most likely areas to trim are fullback, guard, tight end, linebacker and nose tackle.

That puts the following players in jeopardy: fullbacks John DeGrattola and John Nitti; tight ends Gary Shirk and Tom Mullady; guards Jeff Wiska and John Tautolo; nose tackles Charles Cook, Mike Rustemeyer and Tim Moore, and linebackers Billy Matthews, Mike Whittington and Frank Marion. Barring surprises, eight of those 12 will be waived today. If the Giants can find an offensive tackle or experienced backup fullback on the waiver lists, more than eight may be cut.

The Giants will conduct their final workout at Pace University today and then move to Giants Stadium for practice starting tomorrow.

Dodgers win 6th straight

LOS ANGELES — Jerry Reuss, who struggled for more than two months, said he learned a lesson from watching Rick Honeycutt pitch on Sunday for the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I watched him and I said to myself, 'That's the way I pitched in '80 and '81,'" Reuss said after hurling Los Angeles to a 4-1 victory over Montreal, the Dodgers' sixth consecutive victory.

"That's the way Tommy John won games, that's the way I won games," Reuss continued. "You keep the ball down, you move it around, you keep it away from the hitter."

Reuss outpitched Montreal ace Steve Rogers, preventing the Expos right-hander from becoming the National League's first 16-game winner.

"We just got outpitched," said Expos Manager Bill Virdon. "Rogers was not as good as usual, Reuss was as good as we've seen him."

The Dodgers moved within three games of idle Atlanta in the National League West, the closest Los Angeles has been to first place since July 18.

After Marshall homered in the fourth, the Dodgers added a fourth run in the fifth inning. Bill Russell walked with one out, Dusty Baker singled to right and Pedro Guerrero singled to center, scoring Russell.

Reuss, 8-10, winning his second game in a row after losing seven straight decisions, didn't allow a hit until Jim Wohlford got an infield single leading off the fourth. Reuss walked two and struck out two in hurling his third complete game and first since May 31.

White Sox 3, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Chicago White Sox, thanks to home runs by Greg Luzinski and Julio Cruz and LaMarr Hoyt's pitching, lead Kansas City by nine games in the American League West, but nobody is willing to send out for champagne yet.

"I don't want to say it because I don't want us to roll over and play dead," Cruz said last night ofter the White Sox pinned a 3-1 defeat over the Royals. "But if we keep playing this way who can catch us?"

Luzinski was seeing his first action since he came up with a sore back Aug. 14. His solo home run in the second inning, his 24th of the year, came off loser Paul Splittorff and almost carried into the concession stands behind the left field bleachers, an estimated 435-foot shot.

"I tried to get a fastball in and I didn't and he crushed it," said Splittorff. "I don't watch many of them, but I had to watch that one. It was something to see."

That was Chicago's only run until the eighth when Cruz slammed a two-run homer after a two-out error.

Hoyt, 16-10, scattered five hits to become the first 16-game winner in the majors.

Splittorff, 9-6, had surrendered only two hits and had retired 15 consecutive batters until shortstop U.L. Washington muffed Scott Fletcher's routine grounder with two out in the eighth. Cruz, not known for his power, then mashed his third home run of the season over the left-field fence.

Brewers 3, Mariners 2

MILWAUKEE — Robin Yount slammed his 14th home run of the season leading off the Milwaukee 10th inning last night, powering the Brewers to a 3-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners and lifting them into first place in the American League East.

Chuck Porter, 6-5, scattered eight hits for his sixth victory in his last seven decisions as the Brewers won their seventh game in their last eight starts and moved one-half game ahead of idle Baltimore. Yount, whose last home run was July 16, belted the first pitch from loser Bob Stoddard, 6-13, into the left-center field bleachers.

The Mariners had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the eighth when Ron Roenicke singled with two out, stole second and scored on Pat Putnam's single.

Seattle went ahead 1-0 lead in the third inning after Rob Picciolo, normally a shortstop but playing first base because Cecil Cooper was rested, fumbled Manny Castillo's grounder for an error. A single by Rick Sweet and Spike Owen's grounder scored Castillo.

Rangers 3, Tigers 1

ARLINGTON, Texas — George Wright's RBI single keyed a two-run fifth inning that led the Texas Rangers to a 3-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers last night behind the combined six-hit pitching of Frank Tanana and Victor Cruz.

Tanana, 7-4, gave up five hits, struck out three and walked five before running into trouble in the eighth inning and yielding to Cruz, who got his third save. The Texas infield backed Tanana with three double plays and reeled off one more behind Cruz. Loser Dan Petry, 13-8, went the route, giving up six hits.

Angels 7, Indians 3

CLEVELAND — Juan Beniquez delivered a tie-breaking single and Bobby Grich doubled home two more runs as the California Angels scored four times in the 13th inning last night and broke a three-game losing streak with a 7-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Winning pitcher Bruce Kison, 11-5, hurled 3 1-3 innings of scoreless two-hit relief and Luis Sanchez blanked the Indians in the bottom of the 13th.

Red Sox 4, Blue Jays 2

BOSTON — Carl Yastrzemski celebrated his 44th birthday with a tie-breaking double in the Boston Red Sox' 4-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays last night. Or was it his 40th?

Mobbed by writers after the game, Yastrzemski said without the trace of a smile: "This is a big day for me. I turned 40."

Then the 23-year veteran added, "I took four years off my age because I knew they wouldn't take me into the major leagues at 17."

It was all a put-on, although many newsmen unfamiliar with Yaz didn't catch on immediately.

Yaz hardly looked 44 as he ripped the run-scoring double in the sixth inning and eventually scored what proved to be the winning run.

Ritandelli tops post tourney

FORT MONMOUTH — Margaret Ritandelli won the Fort Monmouth Golf Club Ladies 9-hole championship flight over the weekend.

Charlotte Jeffrey was runnerup.

Women's suffrage date inspires 'Equal Rites' honors

By ELLEN GOODMAN

AT LARGE

Each year at this time, the shade of Susan B. Anthony hovers around my desk, reminding me that Aug. 26 is the anniversary of the passage of woman's suffrage. I am tempted to celebrate this day in the manner of my foremothers by chaining myself to the White House fence until Ronald Reagan becomes a feminist. Things being what they are, I better not.

Instead, I will once again spend this holiday in my own kinky fashion bestowing Equal Rites Awards on those who have struggled the hardest these past 12 months against peace, justice and equality between the sexes.

But enough of these explanations. The annual ERA awards are ready to be announced. The envelopes, please.

Once again, protocol demands that the first prize go to the President of the United States, who has tried so hard to reassure us in recent months that some of his best friends are women. To the Great Communicator goes the Me-Tarzan, You-Jane Trophy for his careful choice of words when he told a group of female business leaders: "If it wasn't for women, us men would still be walking around in skin suits and carrying clubs." This prize is a microphone in the shape of a club suitable for raising welts of consciousness.

The Gender Gap Award is dedicated to all those Republicans who have done their best to widen it. There are many contenders but in the end the prize was awarded to New York State's Republican county chairmen. These Republicans, who were upset about the results of the 1982 election, decided to hold a meeting in Albany to discuss their problems, including problems with women voters. Where did they meet? At the Fort Orange Club—the club that doesn't accept women as members. Their prize is a ballot box—empty.

The G-String Award (G for Gross) goes to American Multiple Industries of California for bringing X-ratings to the video game world. The fun little game they marketed last fall was called Custer's Revenge. It featured an all-American hero, dressed only in bandanna and boots, trying to cross a stream in order to rape a naked Indian woman tied to a tree. "It was intended strictly as a joke," said a company spokesman. He will soon be wearing the prize, which has been hand strung out of arrowheads.

The Blind Justice Award, always hotly contested among the judiciary, goes this year by popular consent to Judge Alvin Lichtenstein of Colorado. This justice sentenced a wife killer to a term of two years that would be served nights only. The judge said he was giving a light sentence to the man who shot his wife five times in the face because the wife had provoked him. She had left her abusive husband without even writing him a note. Tsk, tsk. For his Hizzoner, the prize is a life sentence of nighttime-only judging.

The Red Badge of Courage goes to those fearless male citizens of Honolulu who offered their services to the local police department as part of a crackdown on prostitution. These men were given money by the police and instructed to go "as far as necessary" to catch their woman. After performing intercourse for the public good, one alerted the police, who arrested the prostitute and handed the public-interest John back his money. To these men we send the badge in appreciation for a nasty job well done. We will all sleep more soundly knowing they're on the case.

The Quality Circle Pin for leading women into the brave new world of international commerce goes to the Japanese bank in Los Angeles where secretaries learned to kneel while serving tea to the managers and customers. This pin is to be used to explode illusions about the advanced Japanese culture.

The Old Boys Will Be Old Boys Prize goes to the director of New York's exclusive Century Club. This club does not accept women members, but happily harbors male members even if they've been convicted of trying to kill their wives. The club director refused the resignation of member Claus von Bulow and explained, "We are nicer than most private clubs."

The Ms-Anthropic Media Award this year is divided in two parts: print and video. The first prize, a pin on which to impale himself, is being sent to the Time Magazine reporter who asked astronaut Sally Ride if she cries under pressure. The other prize goes to the researcher for the Kansas City TV station where Chris Craft was anchoring the news. In his audience research he asked viewers, "Is she a mutt?" and then urged, "Let's spend 30 seconds destroying Chris Craft." To this scientific researcher, we award a fully matched and calendar-coded wardrobe of hair shirts.

Finally, the Post-Feminist Follies Award, a shapely Oscarette carrying poisonous darts, goes to the creators of "Flashdance" for their fantasy figure of Jennifer Beals. At last, a woman who welds by day and dances by night and never gets tired. Step aside, Superwoman!

HERITAGE BALL — Robert N. Ferrell of Freehold Township, director of the Monmouth County Heritage Committee, discusses plans for the 300th Anniversary of Monmouth County Ball with Mrs. Harry Wright of Allentown, left, chairperson of the party, and Mrs. Robert Goodrich, Neptune. The Heritage Committee is sponsoring the ball, which will take place Friday, Oct. 21, in Sheraton Gardens, Freehold Township. Tickets are available from Ferrell's office, Hall of Records Annex, Freehold.

Beauty aids un'masqued'

By ERMA BOMBECK

AT WITS END

I'm a pushover for those free cosmetic bonuses you get when you purchase $10 worth or more.

It doesn't matter that I have no idea what all the creams and lotions are for . . . or, for that matter, if I have all the parts to apply them to.

I'm like a teen-ager at a slumber party who wants to believe that somewhere there is a magic elixir that can make me look as good as Sophia Loren the day she came out of an Italian slammer.

I'll buy anthing that has a picture of a few drops of moisture dripping from a rose on it. There seems to be nothing I have for which there is not an instant cure. There's a cream for my "crepe" eyes, my laugh lines (which run from the hairline down to the collarbone), the two pieces of luggage under each eye, the blotter lines around my lips that need caulking, the oil wells on my forehead, the rough spots on my heels and the peaks and valleys of my neck.

The family can always tell when I have just made a cosmetic "buy." My husband saw me at the mirror one morning as I was scrutinizing my skin with a magnifying glass.

"What are you looking for?" he asked.

"Last night I used half a jar of 'Night Repair' on my skin. I don't see a difference."

"Maybe it wasn't broken," he said and wandered off.

Recently I experimented with every product I had. I used a total of 22 things on my face. It took me 43 minutes to complete the job drawing lines, shading, smoothing and blending with the deftness of Michelangelo. One of the kids distracted me for a moment and I used something called "Erase" and my whole face disappeared.

Last night, I got out every jar and tube I owned and set them upright on the sink. They made quite an impressive group: penetrating cleanser gel, clarifying body lotion, sloughing moisturizer, eye flab fighter, lip filler and industrial strength neck cream.

"You're probably wondering why I've gathered all of you together," I said. "I'm going to be honest with you, gang. You're not doing your job. No, no, let me finish. You all promised me youth and ecstasy in 30 days. Well, it's been five months and frankly, no one is throwing hats in the air."

Then I noticed a small jar that had not been opened. It was called "Cover Masque," to be used "only by women with the courage and stamina to become a legend." I picked up the trowel and started to apply it. This could be the breakthrough I've been waiting for.

Exhibitionist son needs help

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: You hear them all, I know, but what comment do you have for a twice-married, 38-year-old, successful businessman who would stand stark naked in his front doorway, facing the street and call to a teen-age neighbor girl passing by? This man's wife has a master's degree in psychology.

The parents of the girl have filed charges but agreed not to have a trial if he seeks psychiatric counseling. The man has a teen-age daughter by his first marriage. She doesn't care to see him or his present wife. He has been very upset because of a pending court case over the daughter not visiting him. I'd appreciate your comments, and fast, please. I'll watch your column. I read it daily. — Illinois

P.S. My concern? He is my son — and even though he hasn't spoken to me for seven years, I am deeply worried. He is loaded with hate.

Dear Illinois: Your son is an exhibitionist and in dire need of counseling. He also needs help with a number of other unresolved problems.

His wife should be able to recommend an able therapist. I hope she does so immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I was fascinated by the letter from "Anonymous in Texas" who told you he passed a lie-detector test even though he was guilty of drug-dealing and armed robbery. My experience was just the opposite. I was innocent and agreed to take a lie-detector test to prove it. I flunked the test and the results were disastrous. I'm hoping you will print my letter to help to educate the public. I wish someone had educated me.

First, there is no such thing as a lie-detector. There is only a machine properly called a polygraph. This equipment measures galvanic skin response, heartbeat and rate of respiration. Some "expert" decided that a certain pattern of responses indicated a lie was being told or the person was telling the truth.

Unfortunately, a subject who is emotional (or highly sophisticated) can trip up the machine. For example, a crook without a conscience can breeze through the test. So can an experienced liar. By the same token, an innocent person can fail the test because of anger, fear or anxiety. After failing the test I was fired from my job for "theft." Several people learned about it and the disgrace will follow me to my grave.

Please inform your readers that they do not need to take a polygraph test. They have the right to refuse. And if they are high-strung or fearful and upset about what is going on, they SHOULD refuse. That test, if it shows a person to be "guilty," can do a great deal of damage to his or her case. Sign me — Innocent Though "Proven" Guilty

Dear Innocent: Thanks for sharing your experience. My legal consultants tell me that the facts stated in your letter are correct. You've performed a valuable service today.

CONFIDENTIAL to Hate All Do-Gooders: What a sourball! Goethe must have had you in mind when he wrote, "When ideas fail, words come in handy."

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality"? You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers' new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Clarify doctor's findings

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

YOUR HEALTH

I was recently married. My gynecologist told me that I have a tipped womb. I am very concerned about this and I don't want to worry my husband. Could this possibly prevent us from having a baby? — Mrs. L.J., Minn.

Dear Mrs. J.:

I am certain that your doctor has assured you that there are no great or special implications to your problem. My wonder is that you did not receive thorough assurance from your doctor before you left his office.

It is difficult for me to understand why patients ever leave a doctor's office in a state of confusion. Your total understanding of the problem is part of your visit to your doctor. The examination itself is only a part of that which you are paying for. No visit to a doctor can possibly be complete without a thorough understanding of the doctor's findings.

Most doctors understand the anxiety of their patients and alleviate their anxiety by spontaneously talking to them. When this is impossible, a simple telephone call is all you need to remove the unnecessary fears that distress you.

In most instances, a tipped uterus, or womb, is of no major importance. Rarely does it interfere with pregnancy unless there is an unusual degree of tipping, or retroversion.

At one time many surgical procedures were used to correct this condition. Unfortunately, many of these procedures were done casually. Today doctors carefully choose the occasional case and prefer to use one of many vaginal devices that may help straighten the tipped uterus.

Now make that telephone call to your doctor and find a time that is available for answers to all of your questions.

WORRIED PARENT

In a moment of anger for which I am ashamed, I slapped my son and his ear began to bleed. He lost his hearing for two days. Even though it came back, I am worried that I may have done permanent damage. — Mr. N.S.R., Ga.

Dear Mr. R.:

I must assume that your son's ear was examined by an ear doctor. If not, it certainly should be done though his hearing has returned.

Often a slap over the ear may cause a "blast" effect to the eardrum and injure it. The first evidence is blood in the ear associated with a mild, temporary loss of hearing. Almost always the injury is minor.

With antibiotics, infections can be prevented and the drum heals quickly. The chances are great that the only residue would be your son's discomfort and your own personal grief. Both of these can be remedied by a respectful talk about the differences that precipitated this unpleasant situation.

Peddlers Fair coming

MIDDLETOWN — Brookdale Community College, Lincroft, is planning its Third Annual Peddlers Fair on Saturday, Oct. 1, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. More than 100 dealers of both old and new items are expected to participate.

The fair will take place in Parking Area #3, and on the lawns of the campus. The rain date is Sunday, October 2. Admission is free.

Special attractions that are returning include pony and haywagon rides, craft demonstrations, heirloom appraisals, and a Dixieland band.

New events are a karate demonstration, a makeup booth for tatoos and clown faces, and an Ident-a-kid program sponsored by the Monmouth County Sheriff's office, in which children from kindergarten to high school can be fingerprinted upon parent's request. Food ranging from hot dogs to gourmet dishes will also be available.

Flea market spaces measuring 20 by 30 feet are available for rent, and may Community Services at the college before Sept. 21.

BACK IN THE 80s — The Association, a popular singing group of the 1960s, is together again, and entertains in two shows Friday at Club Bene Dinner Theater, Morgan. Shows are at 7:30 and 11:30 p.m. Optional dinners are served 90 minutes before each show. The club should be contacted for reservations.

Brookdale schedules events

MIDDLETOWN — Whether music, dance or drama, local audiences will be able to enjoy their favorite kind of entertainment at Brookdale Community College, Lincroft, during the coming season.

"A Party," with Betty Comden and Adolph Green, appropriately starts the festivities, with shows at 8 p.m., Sept. 23 and 24.

More than 20 other cultural events follow. Music lovers can have an entire evening of Spanish song and guitar with Grace Lang Vuyosevich, attend a concert by pianist Samuel Mammel, or hear an original Slavonian song fest featuring Joseph Szostak and Herbert Burtis. They can relive the 1940's with pianist Teddy Wilson.

Dance devotees can see the Amanda Court Dancers, who will be accompanied by the Calliope Renaissance Band, Gus Giordano with Jazz DaNce Chicago, or Brookdale's own Student Dance Company.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER
TUESDAY, AUG. 23

Born today, you combine business acumen with artistic talent with such success that you will undoubtedly be able, if you choose, to turn the results of your creative and artistic effort into a genuine and thriving commercial concern. You are ambitious for material gain, but you would never sacrifice honor or integrity for it. You are eager for public acclaim, but you would never compromise principles or standards to attain it. Your fondness for physical activity will dictate what turn creativity will take.

You are tremendously energetic, both mentally and physically. Quick-witted and eager to display a scintillating sense of humor, you revel in the sharp reply, but make a practice of dulling the edge with a hearty laugh. People are charmed by you, in general.

Also born on this date are: Gene Kelly, dancer; Bob Crosby, bandleader, singer.

To see what is in store for you tomorrow, find your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your dily guide.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 24

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — A power play going on all around you may leave you quite untouched. Remain oblivious to arguments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may be called upon to justify recent decisions for change. Point to a recent lack of progress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Practice makes perfect, and at no time has that ever been truer than now. Seek support from friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Force yourself to take action against one who is holding you back with a vengeance. Move quickly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Premature moves early in the day work against you when the time for action is right later on.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Authority figures appear when and where you least expect — or desire — them. Remake your plans to suit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You may be appointed to a position for which you are ill-prepared. Begin at once to educate yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Pragmatism makes a dull, but successful, companion today. Do what you know will work in the circumstances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — A multiplicity of dangers lurks in the corners of another's mind today. Take care not to anger a foe.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Mundane matters take on new appeal today as you anchor success to activities that are sure and certain.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — There is shock value in the blunt truth, but you would do better to coat the pill with promises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Brevity is the soul of wit, but there is such a thing as being so brief no one understands you. Explain yourself fully.

BRIDGE ADVICE

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Today's hand will ruin millions of players unless they understand that the key play is exceptional. Leading a suit that dummy can ruff may let declarer discard a loser if he also has none of the suit.

East played the king of hearts at the first trick and continued with the ace and jack.

The defense then needed one more trick, but dummy's clubs and diamonds made it clear that South had no losers except in trumps. A fourth round of hearts couldn't help declarer if he had no losers to discard; and it might promote a trump trick for West.

CANNOT DISCARD

Whe East led a fourth heart South didn't dare discard since West would put in the nine of spades to drive out dummy's ace. South had to ruff with the queen of spades, weakening his trumps.

West shrewdly discarded, saving his own trump strength. Now West was sure to get a trump trick since he would cover the jack or ten with the king, and the nine of spades would later take the setting trick.

DAILY QUESTION

You hold: ♠ 8 ♡ A K J 9 5 ◇ 9 8 3 2 ♣ 8 5 2.

Partner bids one club, you respond one heart, and he then bids two spades. The opponents pass. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs. If partner has a real two-suiter, you should show that you prefer clubs to spades. If partner has three low hearts he can then bid three hearts, and you will go on to four hearts. You should not bid three hearts yourself unless you want to encourage partner to raise with only two hearts.

(Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1.00 plus a stamped, self-addressed No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, CA 90053.)

Freedom Fund fairly volatile

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q: For the past few years, I have been placing my IRA money in savings bank certificates, which seems rather non-aggressive and bland as it relates to my age (41). Fidelity has the Freedom Fund which they are soliciting as a fund that is specifically for IRA investors. While my long-term IRA thinking is to keep this fairly safe, I was wondering what your opinion is of putting all my IRA dollars year after year into this Freedom Fund. — R.K., NY

A. Yet another new mutual fund — The Freedom Fund — has been devised by the management of Fidelity. This time they have designed a fund for tax sheltered retirement monies from IRAs, Keogh Accounts, Pension, Profit Sharing, 403 (b) and 401 (k) Plans. The Fund sets its sights on capital gains without concern for long-term vs. short-term capital gains. Federal taxes can restrain the management of a mutual fund, both in terms of securities purchased as well as when to take gains. Since the Freedom Fund is designed only for tax-exempt retirement funds, the managers of the Fund will not be subject to this constraint. As a result,

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Fidelity anticipates turnover of the portfolio will be greater than the average mutual fund.

In general, the Freedom Fund will concentrate its efforts on common stocks, but investments are not limited to any one security. Based on an evaluation of market conditions and the economic environment, the Fund will buy those investments which present the best growth potential. Emphasis will not be placed on income-generating securities unless, of course, they are the best "buys." Securities of both established and well-known companies and those smaller and lesser knowns will be considered.

According to the May 31 financial statement of the Fund, its portfolio consisted of 89.4 percent common stocks. Electronics issues comprised the largest portion of Freedom's holdings (14.0 percent), followed by banks and financials (11.9 percent), and retail sales (9.3 percent). Among the better known companies, positions were held in Citicorp, Philip Morris, and Arkla. Holdings in the smaller companies included Astro-Med Inc., Comdial Corporation and Computer Factory, Inc.

As an aggressive mutual fund, the Freedom Fund is more volatile than a growth fund. Consequently, the potential for greater returns is coupled with the possibility of higher downside risk. I should think someone in your age category could afford to take a greater degree of risk than you now are with CDs. By placing some of your IRA funds in an aggressive fund, the risk reward potential should result in a much more valuable IRA account when you approach your retirement years. Of course, there is no reason to put all your IRA money into this one fund every year. You could balance your position by dividing funds between aggressive and conservative investments to maximize return while minimizing risk.

Before investing in the Freedom Fund, or any mutual fund for that matter, you should read the prospectus carefully. If you have any unanswered questons, contact Fidelity at (800) 522-5260 for additional information.

Dollar continuing its broad retreat

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar continued its broad retreat on foreign exchange markets yesterday, responding to falling interest rates in the United States and expectations of further declines. Gold prices rose, ending the day at $424.50 an ounce.

"The key action today was watching short-term interest rates," said David Arbesman, first vice president and director of international money markets for Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

For example, the federal funds rate, the interest on overnight loans between banks, slipped Monday to 9¼ percent from 9⅝ percent Friday. Two weeks ago, as the dollar was shattering records, federal funds traded at 9¾ percent.

Falling interest rates contribute to the dollar's decline against other currencies by making returns on dollar-denominated investments less attractive.

Interest rates and the dollar have been falling since Aug. 12 amid signs that the basic money supply in the United States, known as M1, is growing at a slower pace.

Those declines were spurred late Friday by a Federal Reserve Board report of an unexpected $500 million decline in M1 in the week ended Aug. 10. Moderation in money-supply growth bolstered traders' hopes that the Fed will not have to tighten its grip on credit further.

GM reduces some 1984 car prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. said yesterday it will cut or nearly freeze prices on some 1984 cars and boost prices on others, resulting in an average increase of 2 percent, or $232, over all lines.

The biggest price drop will be $185 on the Pontiac Firebird which starts around $8,400 now, GM spokesman Clifford Merriott said.

The largest price gain will be $997 on the Chevrolet Corvette, which starts at $21,800 now, he said.

In a statement, the No. 1 U.S. automaker said 34 car models — mostly subcompacts and compacts — will get price cuts or remain about unchanged in the model year starting Sept. 22.

Another 36 models — mostly intermediates — will get price increases over the 1983 model year but will remain below 1982 price levels, the company said.

Option prices will rise 2.5 percent from 1983 levels, and destination charges will be unchanged, Merriott said.

Also, GM will make some optional equipment standard on some models.

Drug dispute has precedence

By The Associated Press

The decision yesterday to strip four weightlifters from Canada and Cuba of their medals for using anabolic steroids at the IX Pan American Games has precedence in amateur athletics.

Anabolic steroids, the substance cited in the Pan Am Games, refers to various synthetic derivatives of the male hormone testosterone and are used to increase muscle bulk and strength.

Examinations for the substances began on a large scale during the 1976 Olympics at Montreal when six athletes were disqualified following positive tests. That group included Mark Cameron, a 23-year-old American weightlifter from Middleown, R.I., Peter Pavlasek, a super-heavyweight weightlifter from Czechoslovakia and Danuta Rosuni, a Polish female discus thrower. None had won medals, however.

In 1972, American swimmer Rick DeMont lost an Olympic gold medal for taking ephedreine to treat an asthma condition.

At the 1979 Pan Am Games, Canadian runner Joan Wenzel had to return the bronze medal she won in the 800 meters when tests disclosed the presence of an antihistamine she had taken for a cold.

In October, 1979, seven East European women were banned from international athletic competition for taking drugs. They included Totka Petrova of Bulgaria, who was the European Cup and World Cup champion at 1,500 meters, and Natalia Marasescu, who then held the women's world record in the mile. They were alleged to have taken drugs during the Balkan Games in Athens, Greece the previous August.

A year earlier, four Soviet athletes and a Bulgarian were disqualified during the European Track and Field Championships on charges of doping. They were Soviet Yevgeni Mironov, runnerup in the men's shot put; countryman Vassili Jersov, fifth in the men's javelin; Bulgaria's Elena Stojanova, fifth in the women's shot put; and two Soviet women, Nadejda Tkacenko and Jekaterina Gordijenko, who finished first and fifth respectively in the women's pentathlon.

Mother gets to hold quints for first time

"It's not often babies are famous before they're 9 months old," said Mrs. Joyce, who gave birth to the quints Thursday at Jersey Shore Medical Center.

"I'm feeling pretty good, but I'm really worn out," said the 27-year-old Sea Girt woman, who had been expecting quadruplets after taking a fertility drug. "It's catching up with me."

Mrs. Joyce said she will find out Tuesday when she will be released and anticipated leaving the hospital by the end of the week. She and her husband, Jerrry, expect to bring the quints home in about a month.

All the babies, born six to eight weeks premature, were still in critical but stable condition in the intensive care unit. They are all breathing normally except for Christopher, the last to be removed from a respirator, who was supplied with an oxygen hood.

Doctors have given the quints a better than 95 percent chance of surviving. Delivered by Caesarean section, the infants ranged in weight from 1 pound, 12 ounces to 2 pounds, 15 ounces.

The Joyces said they had been trying for more than five years to have children and went last fall for treatment at Middlesex General Hospital. Mrs. Joyce was given the fertility drug Pergonal.

The children are named, in order of birth, Christopher Vincent, Ryan Ward, Lauren Kelly, Kevin Jeremiah and Megan Colleen.

Plaza Forum gains fight rights

HAZLET — The exclusive Monmouth County outlet for the closed circuit television of the Aaron Pryor-Alexis Arguello rematch will be the Plaza Forum on Route 36, according to Jerome Gorman, president of Phytes, Inc.

Gorman obtained the rights last week from Dan Duva, president of Main Event Productions, Inc., and Circuit Promotions, Inc.

The fight will be held Sept. 9 at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. A co-feature to the Pryor-Arguello WBA World Junior Welterweight title fight will be a a WBC Super Welterweight title fight between titleholder Thomas Hearns and James Green.

Pryor, 27, will be defending his title for the eighth time when he steps into the ring against Arguello. He won the title Aug. 2, 1980, by knocking out Antonio Cervantes in the fourth round. In the first Pryor-Arguello fight, both fighters knocked each other around the ring for 13 rounds until Pryor won in the 14th. Arguello was ahead on one card at the time.

Hearns won his title with a decision over Wilfred Benitez last Dec. 3. The Hitman carries a 37-1 record with 32 knockouts into the Green fight. His only loss was to Sugar Ray Leonard in September, 1981. Green has 17 wins, 10 by knockout, in 19 pro fights.

Tickets for the doubleheader are available at the Plaza Forum, Airport Shopping Center on Route 36 here, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., and again from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. Prices will be $25 for tickets purchased in advance and $30 at the door the night of the fight.

English bouts set

MIDDLETOWN — The Middletown P.A.L. will present the English Yorkshire Select Boxing Team against Golden Glove winners from New Jersey and New York in a 12-match card at Mater Dei High School on Oct. 7.

Five Middletown P.A.L. boxers will be on the 12-man Golden Glove team which will face the English. They are Chris Reid of Little Silver, 165 pounds; Eddie Mejias of Middletown, 165 pounds; Rich Dean of East Keansburg, 156 pounds; Terry McGhee of Little Silver, 140 pounds; amd Reuben Santos of Middletown, 112 pounds.

Robertson's season over

NEW YORK (AP) — Yankees rookie shortstop Andre Robertson will be out for the remainder of the season with a neck injury suffered in an automobile accident, the team announced last night.

Robertson, who was hurt in an early-morning accident on Aug. 18, took a CAT scan yesterday and it was revealed he had a fracture of the second cervical vertebra. He will be fitted with a neck brace, which he must wear for a minimum of six weeks.

He was examined by team doctor John Bonamo, Valo Benjamin, a neurosurgeon, and orthopedic surgeon Gordon Engler, who specializes in spinal problems.

Robertson, who was described as neurologically sound, will be hospitalized for at least another six days.

"In no way is his injury career-threatening," said Dr. Bonamo. "In time, it should heal and that should be the end of it."

Robertson, 25, was hitting .248 this season with one homer and 22 RBI in 98 games. He also had 15 errors.

FBI interviews Howard on death threat letter

WASHINGTON — Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., was interviewed yesterday by Federal Bureau of Investigation officials investigating the threat on his life.

Howard confirmed that the FBI wanted to know of any connection between himself and Christopher Stierli, a prisoner being held in the Monmouth County jail on kidnapping, armed robbery and automatic weapons violations.

Howard said that the FBI did not mention any other suspects.

Stierli has admitted writing a letter threatening Howard's life because he said the congressman did not help him obtain a transfer to the state prison. Stierli claims to have telephoned and written several letters requesting the assistance.

Howard stated emphatically that he had never had any association with Stierli prior to the receipt of the death threat.

"I never got any letter, I never got a request for help," Howard said.

A spokesman for the FBI in Newark, would only confirm the existence of an investigation, but would not comment on possible suspects.

NOTICE
Ordinance 0-83-10

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the following ordinance was introduced and passed on first reading at the Regular meeting of the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Highlands held Tuesday, August 16, 1983 and was laid over for a second reading, public hearing and final consideration at the Regular meeting of said body to be held on September 20, 1983 at 8:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers, Municipal Building 171 Bay Avenue, Highlands, New Jersey at which time a public hearing will be held upon the same and all persons will be given an opportunity to be heard.

Catherine C. McGowan
Borough Clerk

AN ORDINANCE TO ESTABLISH A CURFEW REGULATION IN THE BOROUGH OF HIGHLANDS, IN THE COUNTY OF MONMOUTH, AND PROVIDING PENALTIES FOR THE VIOLATIONS THEREOF.

WHEREAS, the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Highlands, by reason of conditions which exist and of circumstances that have occurred within the Borough which have been a source of annoyance to the residents of the Borough of Highlands and to others in the lawful use of the public and quasi-public places in the Borough of Highlands, deem it advisable, proper and in the best of interest of the Borough and necessary and proper for the maintenance of good government, order and protection of persons and property and for the preservation of the public health, safety and welfare of the Borough and its residents and others lawfully using the public and quasi-public places in the Borough, that the uses of public streets and other public or quasi-public places within the Borough by any minor under the age of sixteen (16) years, should be regulated.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Highlands, in the County of Monmouth as follows:

SECTION 1. No child under the age of sixteen (16) years shall be upon any of the public streets, highways, alleys, parks, or any other public places of the Borough of Highlands, either on foot on in or upon any type of conveyance, unless such child is accompanied by his or her parent, guardian or other person having the legal care or custody of such child, or is in the performance of an errand for a duty directed by his or her parent, guardian or legal custodian, or whose legal recognized employments makes it necessary for such child to be in or upon said public streets, highways, alleys, parks or other public places, between the hours of 10:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m., in which case such child shall carry written authorization of the employer, countersigned by the Chief of Police or his designee, or a written authorization of the child's parent, guardian, or other person responsible for the child.

SECTION 2. It shall be unlawful for any parent, guardian or other adult person having custody, control of a minor child under the age of sixteen (16) years to knowingly permit such minor to be in such public or quasi-public places described in Section 1 of this Ordinance between the hours of 10:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m.

SECTION 3. The provisions of this ordinance shall not be applicable to any minor under the age of sixteen (16) years during the time necessarily required for such a minor to travel from:

(a) A place of employment at which such minor may be gainfully employed; or

(b) A school or place of instruction at which such minor may be in bona fide attendance; or

(c) A place at which a function may be held that shall be, or had been sponsored by a religious, school, civic, or other properly supervised event or program; or

SECTION 4: Any person or persons found guilty or violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine not exceeding Two Hundred (200.00) Dollars, or by imprisonment in the County Jail, for a term not exceeding Ninety (90) days, or both, in the discretion of the Muncipal Judge of the Borough of Highlands.

SECTION 5. If any section or portion of any sections or this ordinance should be determined to be invalid for any reason, such invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining sections or portions of this ordinance.

GENERAL ORDINANCE NO. 0-83-11

An Ordinance Regulating The Statutory Authority of New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, Its Successors And Assigns, To Use The Various Public Ways, Sidewalks, Streets, Roads, Avenues, Highways And Other Public Places, And Parts Thereof, In The Borough Of Highlands, Monmouth County, New Jersey, On, Above, And Below The Surface Thereof, For The Construction, Maintenance And Operation Of Its Local And Through Lines And Other Communications Facilities In Connection With The Transaction Of Its Business, And Prescribing The Conditions Thereof.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Highlands County, New Jersey that:

SECTION 1: Pursuant to the provisions of N.J.S.A. 48:17-10, N.J.S.A. 48:17-11, and N.J.S.A. 48:17-12 and subject to the provisions of Section 4 hereof, permission and consent is hereby granted to New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, its successors and assigns, to erect, construct, reconstruct, remove, locate, relocate, replace, inspect, maintain, repair and operate its communications facilities and other transmission or process equipment, including underground facilities and other transmission or process equipment, including underground facilities such as conduits, manholes, cables, wires, and all other facilities appurtenant thereto, and aerial and above ground facilities, such as cables, wires, antennas, poles, posts, supports, guys, pedestals, cable termination and distribution cabinets and all other facilities appurtenant thereto, in, through, upon, along, over, under land across all of the various public ways, sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, bridges, waterways, and other public places, and parts thereof, throughout their entire length, and to effect the necessary street openings and lateral connections to curb poles, property lines, and other facilities in the Borough of Highlands for said Company's local and through lines and other communications facilities in connection with the transaction of its business. All of the public ways, including by way of illustration and not of limitation, the various sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, bridges and waterways, and other public places, and parts thereof, throughout their entire length located in this municipality are hereby designated and prescribed for the uses and purposes of said Company as aforementioned.

In the event that any public street or way where the Company has facilities, is vacated by the Borough of Highlands, the municipality agrees to reserve unto New Jersey Bell Telephone Company the rights granted the Company by the present Ordinance.

SECTION 2: All poles, posts, pedestals, cabinets, or other facilities hereafter to be erected, constructed, reconstructed, located, relocated, maintained, repaired, or operated shall be located and placed back of the curb lines where shown on the official map(s) of the Borough of Highlands, the poles and posts, however, shall be located within eighteen (18) inches of the face of such curb line or as may otherwise be mutually agreed by both parties, or at the points or places now occupied by the poles, posts, pedestals, cabinets, or other facilities of New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, its successors and assigns, and where there are no curb lines, at other convenient points or places in, upon, along, adjacent, or across the public ways, streets, roads, avenues, highways, or other public places as may be mutually agreed upon between the parties.

SECTION 3: New Jersey Bell Telephone Company may bury its cables and associated equipment, fixtures, process equipment and appurtenances within the right-of-way of the various public ways, sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, and other public places, and parts thereof and at such locations as shall be mutually agreed upon by the parties for said Company's local and through lines and communications facilities.

Underground conduits and associated equipment, facilities, cables, conductors and other appurtenances or process equipment shall be placed below the surface of said public ways, sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, and other public places and parts thereof, and with the exception of lateral branch to curb poles and property lines and other facilities, the same shall generally not be constructed more than ten (10) feet from the curb line, unless obstructions make it nece ssary to deviate from such course or unless the parties mutually agree to another location. Underground conduits shall be placed at least eighteen (18) inches below the surface.

Manholes shall be located at such points along the line of underground conduits as may be necessary or convenient for placing, maintaining, and operating the facilities, cables, conductors and other appurtenances or process equipment which the Company may from time to time use in connection with its underground conduit system, and shall be so constructed as to conform to the cross-sectional and longitudinal grade of the surface so as not to interfere with the safety or convenience of persons or vehicles.

SECTION 4: Before proceeding with any new construction or relocation work in an area covered by this Ordinance, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company shall give prior notice in writing thereof to the Borough of Highlands, through its designated representative, of its intention to perform such work, including therewith a map or plan showing the location and size of such facilities. Such maps or plans are for information of the municipality only and shall not be considered as construction specifications upon which the municipality or any third party may rely for subsequent excavation or other work.

Prior to the opening or excavating of any public ways, sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, or other public places, or parts thereof for the purposes of installing, maintaining, or operating its underground systems as aforementioned, the Company shall only be required to first obtain such street opening or excavation permits and pay such reasonable fees therefore as may be required to cover the cost of administration and inspection as provided by any ordinances regulating such openings or excavations. No building permits or zoning variances shall be required for the facilities covered by this Ordinance.

SECTION 5: The surface of the public ways, sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, and other public places, and any pavement or other surface and/or planting disturbed by New Jersey Bell Telephone Company in constructing its facilities, shall be restored to as good condition as it was before the commencement of work thereon. No highways or other public ways shall be encumbered for a period longer than shall be necessary to execute the work. Such restoration shall be subject to the approval of the Borough of Highlands after an inspection by its authorized representative upon completion of the work.

SECTION 6: New Jersey Bell Telephone Company agrees to indemnify and save harmless the Borough of Highlands from and against all costs or expenses resulting from any loss of life or property, or injury or damage to the person or property of any person, firm, or corporation caused by or arising out of road conditions resulting from any negligent or faulty excavations, installation, or maintenance connected with the work or equipment of said Company, or both, when not attributable to the fault, failure, or negligence of the Borough of Highlands, except that if such loss, injury or damage shall be caused by the joint or concurring negligence or fault of the Company and the Borough of Highlands, the same shall be borne by them to the extent of their respective fault or negligence.

SECTION 7: Whenever a curb line shall be established on streets where one does not now exist or where an established curb line shall be relocated in order to widen an existing street or highway in conjunction with road construction being performed by the Borough of Highlands, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company shall change the location of its above ground facilities, covered by the Ordinance, so that the same shall be back of, and adjacent to, the new curb line so established, upon receipt of notice that the curb line has been so established, so long as the municipality has acted with reasonable care in establishing the new curb line and providing notice thereof.

SECTION 8: Any company or corporation having legal authority to erect and maintain poles, posts, or pedestals upon any of the public ways, sidewalks, streets, roads, avenues, highways, or other public places in the Borough of Highlands may jointly use the Company's poles, posts, pedestals or other structures for all lawful purposes, provided the Company consents to such use, on terms and conditions acceptable to the Company and not inconsistent with the provisions of the present Ordinance.

SECTION 9: New Jersey Bell Telephone Company shall provide space to the extent available on its poles so long as said poles are occupied by the Company, and space, to the extent available, in its main conduits existing on the date of passage of this Ordinance, but not exceeding one (1) clear duct of standard size, for the sole benefit of the Borough of Highlands, during the pendancy of this Ordinance.

Such space shall be provided for the exclusive use of the Borough of Highlands which use shall be limited to accommodating the wires or electrical conductors required for one-way signal control in connection with this municipality's police patrol, fire alarm signal control, and traffic signal control systems only; but for no other uses or purposes, either alone or in conjunction therewith; nor for circuits for the supply of electrical energy for traffic or other signals; nor for wires, conductors, cable or the equivalent which provide a means of transmitting any signal to a private, commercial or residential location, and which is normally provided by a nongovernmental supplier; provided, further, that no such use or attachment by the municipality shall interfere with the plant or facilities of or the use thereof by the Company. All costs or expenses incurred by the Company in connection therewith shall be paid by the Borough of Highlands.

It shall be the obligation of the Borough of Highlands to attach its wires to the poles or place its electric conductors in the conduits or manholes of the Company provided however, before proceeding with said work, either by itself or by a person, firm or corporation engaged to perform such work, the Borough of Highlands shall give the Company thirty (30) days prior notice in writing. All such work shall be performed under the supervision of said Company. If any or all of the said streets or highways are later taken over by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Monmouth or the State of New Jersey, Department of Transportation, such Board of Chosen Freeholders, or the Department of Transportation, shall have such rights and privileges and be subject to the same terms, conditions and limitations of use as herein granted by this Ordinance to the Borough of Highlands, provided, however, that satisfactory prior arrangements as may be necessary are made with the Borough of Highlands and the Company for the full protection of the respective interest of each.

SECTION 10: The Borough of Highlands agrees to indemnify, save harmless and in the event of suit to defend New Jersey Bell Telephone Company from and against all losses, costs, damages, expense claims or demands arising out of or caused or alleged to have been caused in any manner by the Borough of Highlands use or enjoyment of the Company's plant or facilities provided under Section 9 above, including all suits of every kind or description brought against the Company, either individually or jointly with the Borough of Highlands, or another, including those brought by employees of said municipality, for or on account of any damage or injury to any person, or persons or property caused or occasioned or alleged to have been caused by or on account of the acts, omissions, fault or willful conduct of the Borough of Highlands or its employees, agents or representatives, which arise out of or are connected with the installation, maintenance, removal or use of any wires, cables, electrical conductors or other equipment or facilities attached to or located in said Company's plant or facilities.

SECTION 11: Nothing herein contained shall be construed to grant unto said New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, its successors and assigns, an exclusive right, or to prevent the granting of permission and consent to other companies for like purposes on any of the streets, roads, avenues or highways of the Borough of Highlands.

SECTION 12: The term "Borough" as used in this Ordinance shall be held to apply to and include any form of municipality or government into which the Borough of Highlands or any part thereof may at any time hereafter be changed, annexed, or merged and the term "Borough Council" or any other term herein used in referring to the governing body of the Borough of Highlands shall be held to apply to and include the governing body of such other form of municipality.

SECTION 13: The permission and consent hereby granted shall apply to and cover all communications facilities of the Company existing at any time, and related structures, process equipment, and appurtenances heretofore or hereafter erected, constructed, reconstructed, removed, located, relocated, replaced, maintained, repaired, or operated by New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, its predecessors, successors, or assigns within the Borough of Highlands.

SECTION 14: New Jersey Bell Telephone Company shall pay the expenses incurred for advertising required in connection with the passage of this Ordinance, after the date of its first reading, within thirty (30) days after the Company has received a bill for said advertising from the publisher.

SECTION 15: This Ordinance shall continue in full force and effect for a period of fifty (50) years from the date it becomes effective subject to the right of the Company to seek such changes herein as it may deem necessary and reasonable from time to time prior to the expiration of said period.

Throughout the full term of this Ordinance New Jersey Bell Telephone Company for itself, its successors, and assigns, agrees to maintain its property within the Borough of Highlands in good order and shall furnish safe, adequate and proper service within
