No quick verdict in Karas case

BY JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — After three hours of deliberation, a Superior Court jury failed to reach a verdict yesterday in the murder trial of Walter A. Karas Jr., the Conrail police officer accused of conspiring with his young lover to kill his wife. Superior Court Judge John A. Ricciardi sent the seven men and five women home and said deliberations will resume today at 9 a.m. The verdict, expected today, follows three weeks of testimony in the widely publicized trial of Karas, who is charged with soliciting 22-year-old Mary Claire Williams to fatally stab Anne Karas on March 20, 1982 in a dark Long Branch parking lot. Before a crowded courtroom charged with emotion, defense attorney James Addonizio and First Assistant Prosecutor Paul F. Chaiet made their dramatic summations. Chaiet's soliloquy so moved five of Anne Karas' sisters, who attended the trial every day dressed in black, that they left the courtroom in tears. "How could he have been so cruel to her?" one sister said as she walked out supported by another. "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive," Chaiet said, quoting Sir Walter Scott as he began his closing. "You're going to look at the testimony of a 22-year-old troubled young lady and a 45-year-old man... This man that sits behind me is the one that has practiced to deceive." The state has maintained that Karas, 45, orchestrated the slaying, conspired with his beguiled young lover to murder his wife because she would not grant him a divorce, and then "led his wife of 22 years to slaughter." But Addonizio contends that the Wall Street secretary is the one who "wove a web of deceit" around Karas because he rejected her and she "had revenge in her heart." In turn, Addonizio told the jury, "Heav'n has no rage like a love to hatred turned, nor hell a fury like a woman scorned." He said he wondered whether William Congreve, an Elizabethan poet, "knew his words would be applicable to a murder case in 1983." The jury was left with the task of determining who told the truth —

Karas or Williams. The Oceanport couple met in the spring of 1981 while commuting to work. Williams, who has confessed to the murder and helped police implicate her former lover through taped telephone conversations, gave a detailed account last week of their affair, the plot to murder Anne Karas, and the eventual disintegration of their relationship after she had moved in with Karas and his two children. Much of each lawyer's summation was devoted to discrediting the other's star witness. See No. page B6

Kean stumps in area

BY BARBARA KATELL

MIDDLETOWN — The big guns of the Republican and Democratic parties are coming into the county to bolster the election chances of the candidates for state Senate in the 13th (Bayshore) Legislative District. Yesterday morning, Gov. Thomas H. Kean campaigned in Middletown and Keansburg with state Sen. John P. Gallagher, R-Monmouth and Middlesex. Tomorrow, U. S. Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., will tour the Monmouth County Hunt Meet at the former Haskell Estate, Middletown, with state Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth and Middlesex, who is challenging Gallagher for the district Senate seat. And Tuesday afternoon, U. S. Sen. Edward M. "Ted" Kennedy, D-Mass., will also come to the county in Van Wagner's behalf. Kean's visit yesterday was to dedicate the new buses that the state has provided the New York-Keansburg-Long Branch Bus Co. for its Route 36 route. New Jersey Transit Co. had withheld the buses after the company started a new route on Route 9 in western Monmouth in direct competition with NJ Transit-operated buses. Yesterday, Kean gave Gallagher credit for helping to achieve the "compromise" under which the bus company finally

Holmdel firm to train 236

HOLMDEL — A Holmdel firm will be given a $202,530 state contract to provide on-the-job training for 236 employees, Gov. Thomas H. Kean announced yesterday. Kean announced the contract with Com-Data Systems, Inc., a subsidiary of Crown Technical Corp., Howell, during a visit to the new Com-Data plant on Route 35. Kean was in the Bayshore to campaign for two incumbent Republican state senators — S. Thomas Gagliano and John P. Gallagher — who are in the midst of tough re-election battles. "Com-Data's plans should provide a real shot in the arm for the region," Kean said. "Not only will it mean jobs for several hundred unemployed New Jersey residents, but it will also mean new life for a building which has sat vacant for two years." Com-Data, which expects to get its electronic assembly operation "into full swing" by January, is located in the former Lily Tulip plant, which was purchased by Crown last May. Yesterday, Crown President William D. Hurley said the company anticipates employing "more than a 1,000 persons" at the 1-million-square-foot Route 35 plant "within the next 18 months." See Holmdel, page B6

Military takes reins in Grenada

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (AP) — Army Gen. Hudson Austin took over Grenada with a military council yesterday, the day after his soldiers killed Prime Minister Maurice Bishop and his leading supporters in a power struggle that ruptured the Marxist ruling party. Radio Free Grenada carried a statement from the 16-member Revolutionary Military Council, headed by Austin, saying it had dissolved the People's Revolutionary Government, dismissed the Cabinet and taken "full executive and legislative powers."

"The Revolutionary Military Council is committed to continuing the work of the revolution and improving it, to improve the life of our people and to build a secure and better future for all of our children," said the statement, read by a member of the council who was not identified. The statement said three soldiers were killed or died of injuries in a confrontation Wednesday with Bishop and a crowd that had freed him from house arrest. "In addition, several civilians were tragically killed in the crossfire," it said. "In all, many persons have lost their lives as a result of the irresponsible and crazy action of Maurice Bishop in carrying civilians, including women and children, into a military installation." The prime minister of the neighboring island of Barbados, Tom Adams, said last night that the Grenadan army executed Bishop after capturing him during a skirmish between his supporters and troops. Adams told ABC's Nightline television show that Bishop "was shot, perhaps slightly wounded, taken prisoner and executed. I don't think there is any doubt about it." See Army, page A2

Fire guts Sandler and Worth, but company vows to rebuild

BY KATHLEEN STANLEY

EATONTOWN — Flames ripped through the storage room of Sandler and Worth Floor Covering Company last night, causing extensive smoke, fire and water damage to the large, well-known store located on the borough traffic circle. The business was open when the 7:15 p.m. fire broke out, but employees said they were able to evacuate the building very quickly. None of the customers or employees were injured, but one fireman was transported to Monmouth Medical Hospital, Long Branch, for treatment of smoke inhalation. He was soon released and returned to the scene of the blaze, Eatontown Fire Chief Richard Zadorozny said. The store's director of sales, Mark Zenobia of Toms River, who was present at the scene, said thousands of dollars worth of carpets and Oriental rugs were damaged in the blaze. He said he would not be able to accurately estimate the size of the loss until the business records could be examined. He said it "brought tears to his eyes" when he thought about all the expensive Oriental and India rugs which were damaged by smoke and water. "We plan to rebuild as quickly as we can," Zenobia said, adding that the store had operated on the site for more than 25 years. "We've been here a long time, and we'll be even bigger and better than ever very soon." Zadorozny speculated that the fire was probably caused by electrical wiring in the electrical panel room at the northwest corner of the store, where most of the fire damage was sustained. Sparks from the wires apparently torched numerous rugs and synthetic carpet mats stored in the stock room, creating a thick wall of smoke, he added. See Sandler, page A7

GUTTED — The Sandler & Worth floor covering store at the Eatontown Circle was gutted by a fire last night. The owners plan to reopen as soon as possible, however.

Celebrities rate mothers' care

NEW YORK — It seemed like Mother's Day when Walter Cronkite, John Ritter and Phil Donahue were asked to describe the influence their moms had on their lives.

"Besides being particularly pretty, a superb dancer and a marvelous companion, she inculcated in me a sense of honesty, integrity and social responsibility," Cronkite, the longtime CBS news anchor, said of his mother, Helen. "At every moment of crisis when such qualities are strained, I have felt her hand on my shoulder."

"My mom is the one everyone turns to when they're in trouble," recalled "Three's Company" star Ritter, of his mother, Dorothy. "She's the one who's there with the shoulder to lean on, the food, the comfort. And she's a good listener."

Donahue, the talk show host, said of his mother, Catherine: "The big gift from Mom was encouragement to try a lot of things, with what behaviorists today would call 'positive reinforcement.' ... My mom raised me good. She raised me real good."

Cronkite, who will be 67 next month, Ritter, 35, and the 47-year-old Donahue give their views in the November edition of Good Housekeeping magazine.

Comedian cleared in drug seizure

SAN FRANCISCO — Comedian Flip Wilson expressed "great satisfaction" over a California Supreme Court ruling that he was illegally detained when a 1981 search at Los Angeles International Airport turned up narcotics in his briefcase, his lawyer says.

Small amounts of cocaine and hashish oil were found, but the tribunal said yesterday that they were seized illegally and must be suppressed as evidence.

Officials had no objective reason to detain the 49-year-old comedian, the court said.

"I'm delighted that we won," said Wilson's lawyer, Paul F. Moore II. Wilson had no comment other than "an expression of great satisfaction," the lawyer said.

Soviet leaders confident of arms accord

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet bloc leaders say they are confident a U.S.-Soviet arms agreement can be reached if talks in Geneva are extended, but they insist that NATO first scrap plans to deploy new nuclear missiles in Europe.

Warsaw Pact defense ministers and 10 Soviet bloc premiers made separate but similar statements yesterday in the latest of repeated demands that NATO forego the missile deployment that is scheduled to begin in December.

The two meetings in East Berlin of Kremlin leaders and their allies came amidst an escalated protest campaign in parts of Western Europe by anti-nuclear activists opposed to the missiles.

West German protesters met through the night in last-minute strategy sessions as they prepared to blockade two government ministries in Bonn today. In London, the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament planned a mass demonstration for Saturday.

The protesters in Bonn began gathering at 2:30 a.m. today after hearing that the Defense Ministry had told employees to start showing up at 5 a.m. to avoid the blockade, protester Matthias Hoppe told the Associated Press.

Bonn Police Chief Hans Wilhelm Fritsch warned earlier this week against the blockades, saying police were prepared to use force to keep open at least one gate to both the defense and economic cooperation ministries.

Protesters also planned to try to surround the West German Parliament and the chancellor's office.

About 50,000 West Germans joined protests against the NATO missiles Thursday in West Berlin, Stuttgart, Munich, Bremen, Hamburg, Cologne and other cities.

Anti-nuclear movement spokesman Andreas Zumach told a news conference in Bonn that more than 1 million people have participated in protests this week.

"The violence-free actions have been taken up positively by the people of West Germany," she said.

Guerrillas kill 32 in Managua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — About 300 anti-Sandinista guerrillas killed 32 soldiers and civilians, burned grain silos and robbed a bank in a raid on a town 100 miles north of the capital, officials said yesterday.

The government imposed new fuel conservation measures yesterday and central bank president Luis Enrique Figueroa announced that all the bank's monetary reserves will be used to maintain the government forces battling insurgents.

Commander Julio Ramos, chief of military intelligence, claimed that the Central Intelligence Agency is organizing new rebel invasions from bases in Honduras and Costa Rica for November and December to coincide with intensified U.S.-Honduran military maneuvers in neighboring Honduras.

"Around 2,500 counterrevolutionaries will participate in the invasion in the north and northwest, and there will be similar attacks in the south," Ramos said Wednesday night in address to the Council of State, an advisory body to the ruling Sandinista junta.

The council declared a state of emergency and said it would remain in permanent session.

The attack yesterday on Pantasma in Jinotega province lasted only a few hours, but before they withdrew, the rebels killed 32 soldiers and civilians, including teachers, robbed $80,000 from the local bank, destroyed eight tractors and burned seven grain silos and other buildings, the government said.

A military source who insisted on anonymity estimated the damage at $5 million.

"Our army is tenaciously pursuing the counterrevolutionaries," he said. "This is part of the new strategy of the counterrevolutionaries, who are trying to destroy our economy through sabotage."

The source said he also had unconfirmed reports of heavy fighting in the Atlantic coast region of Nicaragua.

"I have reports that the Nicaraguan Democratic Force (FDN), the Armed Revolutionary Forces of Nicaragua (FARN) and Miskito groups joined together recently and launched a massive attack on the Atlantic coast," he said. However, he provided no details on the location or extent of the assault.

Army takes reins in Grenada

Scattered gunfire broke out earlier yesterday in St. George's, capital of the Caribbean island. The army has put the country under a 24-hour curfew, with a warning that violators will be shot.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the turmoil on the Caribbean island — where there are some 1,000 Americans, many of them medical students — "has raised our concerns to the highest level."

State Department officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said "there are suspicions" but no evidence that Cuba might have played a role in the upheaval.

Adams rejected speculation that Cuba was involved. "We see no evidence that the Cubans have taken any hand in the events of the past seven days," he said.

Adams said there is "very strong belief" in the eastern Caribbean that "some sort of intervention by the United States, perhaps not acting alone ... or some kind of action is possible."

The gunfire crackled in the early morning, said sources in St. George's, but none ventured outdoors because the army led by Austin threatened to shoot anyone judged to be disturbing the peace.

"Look man, how do you expect me to tell you anything with the curfew on?" asked a resident contacted by telephone from neighboring Barbados. "I'm certainly not going out."

The army said in a broadcast that anyone venturing out before 6 p.m. Monday would be "shot on sight." It also urged Grenada's 110,000 citizens to be "vigilant against imperialistic attempts at counter-revolution."

Austin's role in Bishop's ouster and slaying Wednesday surprised many Grenada-watchers, who had expected Bishop's deputy, Bernard Coard, to emerge as the new leader. He has not been heard from for nearly a week.

Austin was an original member of the New Jewel Movement formed in 1973 by Bishop, his law partner Kendrick Radix and economist Unison Whiteman. Austin is credited with leading the charge on police barracks in 1979 that brought Bishop to power in a coup that overthrew Sir Eric Gairy.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Mike Morgan said in Bridgetown there are some 650 students, nearly all of them Americans, along with 100 faculty and staff at the St. George's University School of Medicine. He said there also were American retirees in Grenada and "an unknown number of tourists."

Diplomatic sources in Barbados, quoting accounts from informants in Grenada, reported that witnesses said Bishop and Whiteman, his foreign minister, had been captured and executed Wednesday. Whiteman reportedly led a crowd of several thousand that freed Bishop from house arrest.

But a witness said Bishop raised his hands over his head in surrender shortly before the soldiers opened fire, a source said.

The sources, all of whom requested anonymity, reported that Bishop and the others were wounded, but instead of being taken to a headquarters.

A doctor at the hospital said Wednesday evening only two bodies were in the morgue, one of them a soldier and the other a 25-year-old civilian.

28 Guatemalans reported dead

BY The Associated Press

A Roman Catholic church source says Guatemalan civil patrolmen killed 28 peasants, including an 8-year-old girl, who apparently were suspected of being leftist guerrillas when they could not produce identity cards.

The source, who asked not to be identified for fear of reprisal, said yesterday the victims were killed at a roadblock outside the village of Sacpulup, where they were going to buy food.

In another Central American development, leftist rebels in El Salvador ended a three-day blockade of the town of Suchitoto, located near two hydroelectric dams supplying most of the nation's electricity.

In Panama City, the foreign ministers of Mexico, Venezuela, Colombia and Panama planned to open their eighth meeting tonight to press their Contadora group peace initiative for Central America. A key section of the group's 21-point plan calls for demilitarization of Central America to avert war between Nicaragua and its neighbors.

The Guatemalan church source said victims of the mass killing included four women and an 8-year-old girl. The source they were killed Wednesday evening and buried yesterday in Sacpulup, 52 miles northwest of Guatemala City.

"They must have thought that since they came from villages close by, they wouldn't have problems," the church official said. "They must have lost their identification or just forgotten them."

The Guatemalan government had no immediate comment on the report.

Gold confesses he fondled child

NEW YORK (AP) — A "re-morseful" Eugene Gold, Brooklyn's chief prosecutor for 14 years, has admitted sexually fondling a 10-year-old girl in Tennessee and agreed to undergo psychiatric treatment.

The former district attorney was placed on two years probation after signing a statement in a Nashville court yesterday waiving his right for a preliminary hearing on a charge of aggravated rape.

He also agreed to seek long-term psychiatric care at a sexual-abuse rehabilitation clinic or private psychiatric treatment center in New York.

In the statement, Gold, who lives in Woodstock, N.Y., and Jerusalem, admitted fondling the daughter of an Alabama prosecutor on Aug. 16, while attending a national district attorneys convention in Nashville.

Gold was charged with kissing the girl on the forehead, cheek and mouth and putting his hands down her shorts after he telephoned her and told her he was coming to her room to wish her goodnight. The girl's parents were elsewhere in the hotel when the incident occurred, police said.

Emerging from Nashville's Metropolitan Courthouse with his wife, Ronnie, Gold told reporters, "I'm very, very relieved to have this behind me."

GM brake problems cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — When General Motors Corp. put its highly touted X-body cars on the market 4½ years ago, it did so despite numerous reports from test drivers about the car's braking problems, according to GM documents.

The files, made public yesterday as part of a suit against the automaker, also showed that less than two months before production began, top GM executives discussed the driver reports and acknowledged the brakes appeared to be the cars "number one problem."

Among the documents were logs that showed at least 35 instances on 11 different test cars during 1978 in which drivers had control problems because brakes locked prematurely. Similar reports continued to be received right up to when the cars went into showrooms in April 1979, the files revealed.

"The brakes are getting really bad. They are some times locking up, and they are grabbing constantly," complained one test driver in May 1978, eight months before general production on the front-wheel drive cars began.

The files, totaling thousands of pages, were made public by U.S. District Judge Thomas Jackson, who is hearing a suit brought by the Justice Department, seeking a recall of 1.1 million 1980 X-body cars.

The suit also seeks $4 million in damages, alleging that GM knew of the defect, failed to correct it and later misled federal officials pursuing an investigation of the matter.

The government says it has received more than 1,700 complaints of brakes locking prematurely in the 1980 X-body cars, including reports of accidents involving 15 fatalities. It has asked the court to immediately order a recall of the cars, arguing the GM documents speak for themselves.

The cars are the 1980 Chevrolet Citation, Pontiac Phoenix, Oldsmobile Omega and Buick Skylark.

The unsealing of the GM documents, which had been subpoenaed by the Justice Department, prompted GM to make public the brief it had filed before the court.

In the brief GM denied any wrongdoing.

Dioxin lawsuits feared

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists meeting on the dangers of dioxin charged that lawsuits surrounding the toxic substance are impeding their exchange of ideas, after one company withdrew from the conference and a researcher said he'd been "advised" to keep quiet.

The controversy boiled over yesterday when a prominent immunologist refused to present some of his findings about the health of workers at a West Virginia chemical plant.

Several sources, including some who had worked on the study, said the research of J. George Bekesi, director of the environmental immunobiology laboratory at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, had been subpoenaed in a lawsuit filed by present and former workers at the Monsanto Chemical Co. plant in Nitro, W.Va.

The 170 plaintiffs are seeking more than $700 million in damages from the chemical company, claiming their illnesses were caused by exposure to dioxin and other chemicals.

Monsanto researchers also studying the Nitro workers had earlier canceled presentation of followup studies at the Rockefeller University symposium, which was attended by 200 dioxin experts.

Dioxins are unwanted byproducts in the production of herbicides like 2,4,5-T, a component of the Vietnam War defoliant Agent Orange.

Some of the scientists attending said the increasing influence of litigation concerning work-related dioxin exposure could lead to a sharp reduction in the number of research findings released at such scientific meetings.

"I'm very turned off. You can't have scientific meetings if law is going to enter into it," said Jack H. Dean, head of cell biology at the Chemical Industry Institute of Toxicology. "If everything a scientist says is going to become the subject of litigation, you're not going to get anyone to come to these meetings."

"We are now in a world where the lawyers in their roles are setting much of the social agenda," said the official who conducted the symposium, William W. Lowrance, director of Rockefeller University's life sciences and public policy program.

He said he'd designed the meeting so legal questions would not be raised, just scientific ones. "We are troubled," he said.

Helms unfazed by probe request

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Federal Aviation Administration Chairman J. Lynn Helms said yesterday he was not worried by Sen. Nancy Kassebaum's request that the Justice Department investigate his business dealings.

"I'm not concerned about it," Helms said while here to meet with other FAA officials about air travel to the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles. "I'm not upset about it a bit."

An article in The Wall Street Journal on Oct. 7 alleged that Helms, 58, a former test pilot and one-time president of Piper Aircraft Co., has a pattern of involvement in businesses that failed.

According to the article, "In some cases, Mr. Helms' companies greatly overstated the value of their assets — several times through apparently phony transactions involving apparently concocted documents — to obtain millions of dollars in loans."

Biker, 105, hurt on way to job

TAMPA, Fla. — A 105-year-old Chinese immigrant who peddles tamales from the back of his tricycle is eager to get back to work while recovering from injuries suffered in a collision with a motorcycle, relatives say.

Manuel Lee, who left China for Cuba in 1909 and came to Florida when Fidel Castro rose to power, needed 15 stitches over his eye and suffered a 3-inch gash on his leg when his three-wheeler tangled with a motorbike at an intersection Tuesday.

Police said he apparently strayed into the motorcycle's path and was hurled to the pavement.

"I feel so sorry for him.... With his leg hurt, he can't ride for a while," his 18-year-old granddaughter, Caridad Lee, said yesterday from the modest West Tampa home where Lee lives with the family of his son, Hilario.

Our 300th birthday

Tonight, there will be glitter and nostalgia and a deep sense of history as Monmouth County celebrates its 300th birthday at the Sheraton Gardens in Freehold Township.

It will be an outstanding event, according to Robert N. Ferrell, head of the Monmouth County Heritage Committee, and we are certain he is right.

Pageantry will be a part of the evening — and all of the county's 53 municipalities will be represented. The county Board of Freeholders is sponsoring the Tercentenary Ball.

An added feature of the program will be short talks about Monmouth County by Samuel S. Smith, Monmouth Beach, historian and author; County Clerk Jane G. Clayton and Harry Larrison

Jr., freeholder director, who will discuss, respectively, the county's past, present and future.

Mementos will include a souvenir program and a limited edition of that day's U.S. Post Office postal cancellation bearing the county's tercentenary slogan: "Born 1683 and still growing."

Also, local historians, nominated by their municipalities for their contributions to county heritage will be announced and honored.

It's going to be a great evening for Monmouth County — keeping alive our past, emphasizing our present, and looking to the future.

Happy 300th birthday, Monmouth County.

Moderation for the Hunt

Monmouth County's ever popular and spectacular Hunt Meet comes around again tomorrow. Thousands of visitors are expected to take in the breathtaking scenery at Woodland Farm in Middletown...to watch steeplechasers racing their steeds uphill, across streams, and over fences...and to celebrate the day with festive picnics, be they of humble or the fanciest fare.

This year, admission to the Hunt Meet will be quite different from what it has been in the past. No cars will be admitted without stickers purchased in advance. Those who wish to attend with general admission tickets must park their cars at the Middletown railroad station and take special buses to Woodland Farm.

The Hunt Meet committee should be congratulated for devising a new plan for this, the 53rd meeting. Fortunately for those charities that the Hunt benefits, it has attracted larger and larger crowds in recent years. But, at the same time, parking and crowd management did become an increasing problem as thousands of cars streamed into the 500-acre estate. Moreover, the very atmosphere of the Hunt...of eating, drinking and partying...has brought out high school and college crowds who, like their elders, need constant warnings about drinking and driving.

There will be a group on hand tomorrow to provide those warnings. Members of the Monmouth and Ocean Counties chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) will conduct a vigil at the entrance to the Hunt. The demonstration was organized in memory of a special police officer, Ronald Kleber, who was struck by a drunk driver while directing traffic at last year's meet and died from the injuries.

The presence of MADD members should have a sobering effect on Hunt goers. And the new admissions plan should alleviate traffic snarls at the end of the day. But only individuals — like the enthusiastic host at the tailgate, or the parent who might pass beer to teenagers — can really determine whether this year's Hunt is safe for everyone and, thereby, truly a success.

Quagmire in Sudan

WASHINGTON — Conscientious experts on U.S. global strategy have raised a burning question in the backrooms of Washington: Is the United States getting involved in a civil war in Africa, in part to protect the Chevron Oil Co.'s interests? Even the Pentagon is concerned. A secret Defense Department cable emphasizes precautions that must be taken by an exploratory team of counterinsurgency experts in the Sudan, Africa's largest country. The concern may have been intended to calm fears at the State Department, which received a copy of the cable.

What particularly bothers congressional sources who learned about the secret mission is the Chevron connection. The American firm is involved in a major project in the southern Sudan, where oil has been discovered. It is also building a billion-dollar pipeline to the Red Sea.

The southern Sudan is seething with discontent — its black, largely tribal-and-Christian population is resentful of domination by the Arabic Moslem north. Full-scale civil war raged for years, and the uneasy truce achieved by granting the south autonomy has ruptured.

Chevron reportedly has been plagued by terrorist incidents involving its employees and is worried about threats to the facilities it is building in the southern Sudan. The secret cable seen by my associate Lucette Lagnado, makes clear that a principal purpose of the counterinsurgency team's mission is to study ways to protect Chevron's installations.

In fact, though neither Congress nor the American public were to be told of the secret mission, Chevron has been consulted closely. The cable notes that the team's tour will be "coordinated" with Chevron and an oil company representative will accompany the counterinsurgency experts on their rounds. The team members will wear civilian clothes and "there will be no public announcement of the team's mission," the cable states.

The military at least shows a sensitivity to potential criticism that the counterinsurgency team — only four persons — could be just the modest start of a far more serious U.S. intervention in Sudan's internal troubles.

The team is forbidden to "make any commitment on behalf of the U.S. government, especially regarding availability of U.S. resources in any form," the cable says reassuringly. And the Americans must not "provide any kind of independent assessment or confirmation of the threat as perceived by Sudan."

The Sudanese government must not be given any grounds for expecting sophisticated or major military aid, or U.S. assistance "in construction of airfields, camps or other military facilities." Nor is the team to raise Khartoum's hopes of "accelerated deliveries for U.S. equipment" because of the guerrilla problem.

Although there is concern over the secrecy, the Chevron connection and the long-term implications, an even more fundamental criticism has been raised by knowledgeable insiders: The administration may be seriously misjudging the entire situation.

The proposed counterinsurgency mission is based on the assumption that the southern Sudanese rebels are being aided by external forces — Libya and Ethiopia. Administration officials argue that the United States has an obligation to protect the Sudan, which is regarded as a strong ally.

This is true enough. But some experts on the region believe it is essentially an internal conflict.

Footnote: A Chevron spokesman said the firm's installations in the Sudan had suffered only "minor incidents" of harassment in recent years.

LEBANON UPDATE: More than a year ago I reported that administration officials were "wondering whether Prime Minister Menachem Begin is planning the eventual annexation of southern Lebanon."

Quoting from secret and top-secret government reports, I noted that the same pattern of Israeli occupation that had been seen in the West Bank territories "seems to be evolving in Lebanon" as the Israelis set up a military-civilian government for the occupied territory. Two months later, a Washington Post story confirmed my report under the headline: "South Lebanon Becoming Israel's North Bank."

Two weeks ago, another Post story from Lebanon reported: "The Israeli army, adopting a controversial security technique here that it says has proven effective in the West Bank, has begun demolishing houses of the families of suspected Palestinian guerrillas as a deterrent."

That type of draconian action was the prelude to Israel's de facto annexation of the West Bank.

GM case key to bright future

WASHINGTON — In an out-of-court settlement last Tuesday, General Motors Corp. pointed the way toward easing some of the problems about which Americans worry most: millions of youngsters growing up without adequate educations; staggering welfare costs; horrendous levels of crime, and the decaying of the family as an American institution.

GM opened a small door to the kind of social progress that government alone can never foster when it agreed to provide $42.5 million over five years to assist women, blacks and Hispanics who have claimed that the giant corporation has discriminated against them in hiring, training and promotions.

Not only has GM agreed to provide $15 million for educational endowments and scholarships among several steps designed to make amends for past discrimination, but it has made a more important pledge not to discriminate in the future.

Walking against a tide of anti-affirmative-action emotions generated in great measure by the Reagan administration, General Motors has consented to a program in which it will endeavor to hire more women so as to lift their percentage in non-skilled hourly positions from 20 to 28 percent by Oct. 31, 1988, and to lift the percentage of minority journeymen from 6.4 to 10 percent.

The outlook for America in terms of military, economic and social security would be much brighter if a thousand or more other corporations would join GM in facing up to the truth that bigotry in their hiring, training and promotion procedures lies at the heart of many of the most troublesome ills of this society.

Millions of families will never be able to cope in America until they get justice in the job markets — justice that they are not getting now in even a remote sense.

The recent outgush of reports bemoaning the sad state of education in America have all talked about the critical role of parents specifically, and families in general, in helping America's children learn to read and write well, do math, speak foreign languages. But no one wants to talk much about why so many families are incapable of doing what the different blue-ribbon commissions exhort them to do.

The major "why" is that institutionalized racism within corporations like GM and their labor unions has locked families headed by blacks, Hispanics and women in cruel cycles of economic need, and sometimes desperation.

That cycle consigns blacks to unemployment rates chronically double the jobless rate for whites, including a denial of work to black teenagers that makes it inevitable that blacks will remain a permanent underclass in this society for generations more.

Money isn't everything; but having a lot of it, or not enough, influences everything else that matters in this society.

Commissions can turn out education reports 'til doomsday, but as long as the normal black family has only $55 when the normal white family has $100, that black family is not going to educate its children at the level of the white family.

Similarly, Hispanic families with only 66 percent of the median white family income, or female-headed households with less than 47 percent of that normal family's income, are lacking in too many resources to impart a desirable level of cultural and other experiences, counseling, instruction and inspiration to their children.

It is clear that when corporate America practices job discrimination, it guarantees a vast number of poor people in America (we have 34.4 million now, the largest number in 17 years). Since welfare, food stamps, Medicaid and other such programs are for poor people, bigotry in employment guarantees a colossal cost for such programs.

The overriding question before this society for decades has been: How do we make amends for generations of past discriminations and deprivations and open some gates in the cycle of dependency and despair? It has long been obvious that bold affirmative action programs are essential. Otherwise old injustices become self-perpetuating, sometimes with multiplied viral effects in each new generation.

But we have gone through a mean-spirited season in which a lot of people, starting in the White House, have argued that since today's white male auto workers are not personally responsible for previous discriminations, it is morally and legally wrong to make them "suffer" while efforts are made at GM, Chrysler, Ford to redress old injustices.

The United Auto Workers union is to be commended for not hiding behind that distortion of the basic concepts of justice. The union is a party to the General Motors agreement, including the affirmative action program.

It took 10 years to get GM and the UAW to agree to settlement of a case filed against them by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. That delay suggests there is scant reason to expect a wave of corporate leaders to rush forward and say, "We're guilty, too, and we're starting remedial action today — even before the EEOC moves against us!"

But perhaps the GM agreement will impress upon their minds and consciences the reality of where the meaningful and feasible solutions lie for some vital national problems.

Getting trapped in semantics

The National Council of Churches thought, no doubt, it was being progressive when it released an anti-sexist version of Scripture readings for its new lectionary. Actually, it was being fundamentalist, in the mode of its own critics.

The old-fashioned fundamentalist takes every word of Scripture literally — the days of creation, the biblical astronomy, Noah's whale, etc. He does not recognize that the Bible is a whole library of different books of different sorts, written in different ages. Myth, poetry and drama, each written in a specific cultural framework, make up the dazzling collection.

It is ridiculous to read the whole as a single scientific report on the way things work in the world. St. Augustine wrote that he could not believe in the Bible until Bishop Ambrose of Milan taught him that it should not be read literally.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Oct. 21, the 294th day of 1983. There are 71 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 21, 1879, Thomas Edison invented a workable electric lamp at his laboratory in Menlo Park, N.J.

On this date: In 1797, the U.S. Navy frigate Constitution, known as "Old Ironsides," was launched in Boston.

In 1849, the first exhibition of a "tattooed man" — James F. O'Connell — was held in New York.

In 1973, leaders on both sides of the aisle said Congress would have to begin looking at once into the question of impeaching President Nixon.

Ten years ago: The Oakland A's beat the New York Mets 5-2 to take the seventh and deciding game of the 70th World Series.

Five years ago: One of the most prominent men in the history of the Soviet Union, Anastas Mikoyan, died at the age of 82.

GARRY WILLS

The new fundamentalist wants to change the text until he can read it literally. He says that the language describing God as Lord and Father has been culturally affected by its background in Near-Eastern culture. So far, so good. One need not read the text literally. But if one need not take it literally, why change it so that it can be taken literally? Once you start that, in order to escape gender determination, why not rewrite the creation account to make it correspond with modern scientific concepts?

For the new fundamentalist, unless the text is changed to say, literally, what he wants it to say, he cannot be at rest. Theological reflection on a text must replace the text. This involves him in the same kinds of absurdities that afflict the old-fashioned fundamentalists.

Clarence Darrow tangled William Jennings Bryan in his own literalism at the Scopes trial. It would be easy for a modern Darrow to do the same with defenders of the national council's lectionary. For instance: God the Father becomes, in the new text, God the Father and Mother, to deny that divinity is unsexual; but when Jesus is referred to as God's Son, one cannot change the historical Jesus into God's Son and Daughter. Even the translators of the lectionary are unwilling to say that God so loved the world that he sent hisher hermaphrodite to it.

Yet, without being able to give a sex-change operation to the historical Jesus, the translation tries to hide his sex. Thus, "son" is changed to "child" — which is childish — Are we expected to forget whether Jesus was a man or a woman simply because the word "child" is indeterminate? The change has been made out of a mere aversion to the pronoun "he." Since we are talking about Scripture, this is what the Bible calls a shibboleth. Or, in terms of the national council might use of fundamentalists, it is mere superstition about a word.

Some object to the lectionary in terms of style, which is not the main concern for those interested in Scripture. True, the lectionary makes God sound like Dr. Frankenstein when it says he breathed life into "the creature," not into man. But the real problem is a refusal to see how a revelation can be made to later ages through the historical particularities of one period.

The problem is not that the lectionary lacks the smooth English run of King James' translators. Smoothness is not the issue; roughness is. What the lectionary lacks is the awkwardness of a text, written in pidgin Greek, from the Aramaic culture of the first century of the Christian era. It lacks, that is, the scandal and the challenge of the incarnation of divinity in a particular man — yes, man — at a particular moment in history.

I agree with most of the theological reflections on which the lectionary's changes are based. But, since I am not a fundamentalist, I continue to see a difference between the text and the reflections. The inability to allow that difference is the reductive fault of fundamentalism in all its forms.

Such good intentions lead, finally, to the continual refashioning of history in Orwell's 1984. The fundamentalist is so sure that his mind is the only proper measure of all others, past and future, that he wants to see his face looking at him when he gazes into the well of history. But for that to happen, the walls of the well must be made very low, and the waters very shallow.

OBITUARIES

Before his retirement two years ago, Mr. Earp was a bus driver for R. Helfrich and Son, West Keansburg, for 15 years. His wife, the former Henrietta Kanski, died in 1973. Surviving are a son, Charles Earp of East Berlin; two daughters, Mrs.

Alicia Durman of Highlands and Mrs. Jean McGackin of Freehold; two sisters, Jenivive Healy of Vineland and Charlotte Dishman of Texas; and eight grandchildren. The Higgins Memorial Home, Freehold, is in charge of arrangements.

Sandler and Worth to rebuild gutted store

(continued) More than 45 borough firefighters battled the clouds of black smoke and flames which billowed from the rafters of the building, as police were forced to block off Route 35 northbound for more than an hour. "Flames did not light up the sky," Zadorozny explained. "As a matter of fact, the smoke was so thick you couldn't find the flames." The firefighters repeatedly donned air packs and masks to enter the burning structure, until the fire was declared under control. "This is the first major fire of the season," the fire chief added. Paul Ramsey, night manager of the Exxon service station adjacent to Sandler and Worth, said he was outside pumping gas when he smelled "something like gunpowder." "Next thing you know we look and there's smoke coming out," he explained. His co-worker, John Kohlmayer of Highlands, ran to call the fire department and immediately closed the gas pumps for fear of an explosion. "It went up real fast," Ramsey explained, adding that smoke was everywhere. The two Sandler and Worth employees on duty when the blaze broke out agreed.

"I was scared," said Jerry Snyder of Wayside. "We smelled smoke, and all of a sudden the smoke got very thick and we had to run out." Once outside, Snyder said he saw the flames coming out of the side of the building. Within minutes, the firemen were on the scene. Fred Lange, also a sales representative for the company, said it was fortunate the fire did not start later, during the peak business hours, when there might have been more customers in the store. He said he could see smoke seeping through the cracks in the cinder block walls, but it wasn't until firemen knocked a hole in the roof that the "flames started to go up." Zenobia said customers who had merchandise on order with the Eatontown store should call the Sandler and Worth corporate headquarters in Springfield, at 376-5500.

O'Brien tape calls upon 'Gipper'

Pat O'Brien Taped Message For Irish Football Fans Before He Died SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The voice that urged beleaguered Notre Dame football players to "Win one for the Gipper" will try to rouse the Fighting Irish once more tonight. A taped message by actor Pat O'Brien, who died last Saturday at age 83, will be played at a downtown pep rally in South Bend sponsored by the Notre Dame Alumni Club of St. Joseph Valley. O'Brien, whose most famous role was that of Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne in the 1940 film "Knute Rockne, All-American," will exhort the Fighting Irish to beat Southern California in Saturday's game against the Trojans. In the Rockne film biography, which also starred Ronald Reagan as the dying Irish football star George Gipp, O'Brien gave an impassioned lockerroom speech to his team to "Win one for the Gipper." "It's almost like win one for Pat now," said Lyn Leone, president of the alumni club. The audio tape will be played at a town pep rally tonight at the Century Center.

Valentin Gonzalez; Civil War general

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Valentin Gonzalez, the Republican army general nicknamed "El Campesino" or "the peasant" during the Spanish civil war, died yesterday at his home here after a long illness, his family said. He was 78. Doctors attending him said he suffered from cancer of the jaw. Gonzalez, who joined the Spanish Communist Party at age 19, was a general in the unsuccessful Republican fight against the revolution of the late Gen. Francisco Franco in 1936-39. The civil war ushered in an era of right-wing dictatorship that ended with Franco's death in 1975. At the end of the war, Gonzalez went to the Soviet Union and enrolled in a military academy near Moscow until 1941, when he was expelled for being a Trotskyite and ordered to work on the planned subway of Moscow for 18 months. He was deported to the Central Asian republic of Uzbekistan and escaped to Iran. But Soviet agents captured him in the Iranian capital of Tehran and he was returned to the Soviet Union and sentenced to three years hard labor in Siberia. Gonzalez escaped again in 1948 and went to Tehran and then France, where he lived for three years. In 1952 he traveled to Havana, Cuba, where he was detained and charged with plotting against the government. He returned to France a year later. Gonzalez was born in Malcocinado, a town of the Badajoz province, in 1909. In 1978 he married Juana Rodriguez Corroto, who had lived with him for more than 50 years, and they returned to live in Spain, where a democratic government had been installed. The couple had five children.

Kean stumps in Keansburg

(continued) agreed to remove its buses from Route 9 in return for getting new buses for Route 36. Thomas Stokes, chairman of the Bayshore Area Commuters, said that "Gallagher was tremendous in hammering out the compromise which gives us these buses." Stokes also gave credit to county Freeholder Frank Self of Middletown and Middletown Mayor Paul Linder, both Republican candidates for re-election. Stokes said the two "provided both advice and assistance in our fight to obtain the new buses." Kean also visited the Bayshore Senior Day Center, Keansburg, with Gallagher. "The governor came down, saw the town and was very impressed with what he saw," a very pleased Democratic Mayor George Kauffman noted. Both visits brought a sharp criticism from Van Wagner, who said he found it "amusing for the governor to come in support on a transportation measure for a man who never supported his program of transportation funding." "I, in contrast, was a co-sponsor of the 'Transpac' bill which made possible the purchase of the buses," Van Wagner asserted. And he also charged that Gallagher "is trying to portray himself now as a friend to senior citizens, but he failed to vote on bills to increase senior citizen aid that I sponsored." A staff aide to Kennedy said yesterday that Kennedy's appearance on behalf of Van Wagner will be his visit on behalf of a candidate for a state Legislature outside Massachusetts. Kennedy will be accompanied by Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., who, like Van Wagner, is a long-time supporter of the Kennedy family. Both county Democrats were Kennedy delegates at the party's 1980 national convention. Because of time constraints, Kennedy will not come into the Bayshore. His plane will come into Monmouth County Airport, Wall, at approximately 5 p.m. He will then go to a Democratic fundraising cocktail party and reception at the Old Mill, Spring Lake Heights. He is expected to leave the county by 7:30 p.m. All of the Democratic candidates for state office from the county have also been invited to the reception.

THE NEW JERSEY FUNERAL DIRECTORS ASSOCIATION

The New Jersey Pre-Paid Funeral Trust Fund

... one sensible way to plan for the future.

Today, many families wish to pre-arrange funerals in advance of need. Some families also prefer to pre-pay the funeral director for the funerals they select. When families do pre-pay, New Jersey law requires that the money be protected in a special trust fund.

To assist its participating members and the families they serve, the New Jersey State Funeral Directors' Association established the New Jersey Prepaid Funeral Trust Fund in cooperation with the First Jersey National Bank, a known leader in trust investments. Deposits are pooled into a master trust account where high earnings can be achieved with total safety. Funds are fully insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and are at all times refundable to you.

Having such a trust program can provide a real sense of being prepared for all of life's eventualities. Whether for you or a loved one, a prepaid funeral can be a thoughtful act.

To learn more about this unique and flexible plan, write us, call, or better still, stop by to discuss preplanning. There is never a charge or obligation for learning about your many options. You will appreciate our brochure, "A Trust in Your Best Interest."

The New Jersey Pre-Paid Funeral Trust Fund is a service of the New Jersey State Funeral Directors' Association in cooperation with First Jersey National Bank and:

Jury award could cost Oceanport taxpayers

BY TREVOR THOMAS

OCEANPORT — The recent liability judgment of almost $200,000 against the borough and five co-defendants could cost the average property owner here an extra $100 in real estate taxes if upheld, according to Councilman John D'Amico.

A U.S. District Court jury in Trenton recommended on Monday that the damages be awarded to Frank Pietroniro, a former bar owner who was evicted from his Oceanport Avenue location in 1975 by a borough urban renewal program.

D'Amico revealed during last night's Borough Council meeting that the jury had ruled that the borough and its officials had acted in "bad faith" by failing to give Pietroniro the relocation assistance to which he was entitled after the property was condemned. He expressed concern that the ruling, if upheld, might cause the borough's insurance carrier to disclaim liability for covering the damage award.

In reply, Mayor Clement Sommers, one of the defendants in the case, said that D'Amico was "playing politics" by bringing up a matter that was still in litigation. Discussing the case publicly, he said, "may prejudice the case against the Borough of Oceanport. As a councilman, you'd be remiss," he told D'Amico.

Sommers, also a county freeholder, noted that November elections were not far off and that the Democratic councilman would be campaigning against Sommers' Republican administration.

Stephen Ingram, the council's attorney, said that any comments on the case would be a "disservice" to the borough because Judge John Bissell, who presided over the six-week trial, had reserved judgment on the defendants' appeal that he overturn the jury's award. His ruling on the matter is scheduled for Nov. 7, Ingram noted. If the appeal is rejected, the council will then discuss what to do next in a closed session.

He did say, however, that both attorneys representing the defendants feel that the borough has a strong case for overturning the judgment, on the grounds that the plaintiff's case is "without merit."

D'Amico said that he was "surprised" at the mayor's "violent reaction to my straightforward questions on how we are going to cope with the issues" relating to who is liable.

"I am simply trying to get at the facts to find out what the impact might be on the citizens of Oceanport," he said. "I am disappointed that the issue was not more fully discussed."

D'Amico said, however, that he still considered Pietroniro's case to be without merit, and noted that borough attorney Joseph E. Kelley "firmly believes" that Continental Insurance Co., the borough's carrier, will be liable. He noted also that the carrier had disclaimed liability during the trial but was forced, under court order, to represent the defendants.

If Judge Bissell does not overturn the verdict, or if it is upheld upon further appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal in Philadelphia, the question of insurance coverage could be important to the pocketbooks of all borough property owners, he noted.

He said that if it had to be paid out of property taxes, a one-time levy of an extra five cents per $100 of assessed valuation might have to be imposed. For the average borough residential property, which D'Amico said was $100,000, that would mean an additional $50 tax.

If the borough had to cover the personal liability of the co-defendants, he added, another $50 could also be assessed.

In addition to the current mayor, who headed the council's community action committee during the period under litigation and was liable for $42,000, defendants in the case are former mayor Elwood Baxter, held liable for $32,000; former councilman George Barrett, for $12,000; and former community development director Louis Sylvain and his assistant, Nicholas Leone, for $7,000 each.

Hopefuls face light turnout

BY DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — Campaigning for public office can be long and tiring. And it certainly doesn't do much for the office seekers' morale when more of them show up at a debate than voters.

At the most recent forum last night, not even the lights assisting a local television crew were strong enough to blind the 18 candidates from the fact that few people came to hear what they had to say.

Perhaps for that reason, most of the speeches sounded like official readings of campaign literature. The candidates for local, county and state seats took great pains to outline their biographies and legislative goals.

The affair, sponsored by the Greater Red Bank Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, took more than two hours.

Just before the end, Agustinho Monteiro, the moderator, summed up the atmosphere.

"I hope that voter apathy won't be like this on election day (Nov. 8)," he said. "Too many people don't take government seriously until they need something."

Even some of the expected confrontations never materialized because incumbents and challengers showed up at different times.

This was particularly true with the state Senate candidates from both the 12th and 13th Legislative Districts.

From the 12th, Democratic challenger Alexander D. Lehrer, and Republican incumbent S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, missed one another by almost two hours. Lehrer spoke first and left, while Gagliano did not appear until the end.

Lehrer used his allotted three minutes to stress his record as county prosecutor. He emphasized the crackdown on drugs users and dealers during his five years in office.

"We realized that 70 percent of the crime in Monmouth County was related to the use and distribution of illicit drugs and we set up a narcotics strike force," Lehrer said. "I went to the freeholders and they said there weren't any funds for it."

"I then went to Trenton and found $50,000 in unused funds from 1976," Lehrer continued. "In 3 years, we apprehended and convicted over 800 drug users and dealers who were convicted to an average of 10 years in jail. That's what this election is all about. I will roll up my sleeves and go to Trenton and get things done."

Gagliano stressed his involvement with transportation issues in the Senate, noting improvements for parking and access at Newark International Airport and the new railroad cars.

He also saw fit to discuss the economy.

"I think New Jersey is turning around," he said. "But we must be concerned that so many people are unemployed or underemployed and cannot find work. People need to work."

From the 13th district, Republican incumbent John P. "Jack" Gallagher, R-Monmouth and Middlesex, gave a thorough personal biography. He focused on his former role as chairman of the New Jersey Highway Authority — the Garden State Parkway and Arts Center — and his involvement with both the Senate Judiciary and Appropriation Committees.

"I make it my business to get things done for my district," he said. "I worked hard to get the Lily Tulip plant sold and the job training there."

A five-term assemblyman, Van Wagner detailed legislation he points to with pride.

"I was the first one to sponsor legislation of the effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans," he said. The National Conference on State Legislators used it as a prototype. Now, similar legislation is in effect in 14 states."

Van Wagner also said he introduced legislation making preschool services available to the handicapped, and co-sponsored legislation to strengthen and enforce affirmative action.

"This is the type of record I'd like to take to the state Senate," he said. "I've been campaigning door-to-door and hope I will be successful in two weeks."

Three of four candidates for state Assembly from the 12th District appeared. Democratic challengers Sally Mollica and George Spodak emphasized their involvement in local government as prerequisites for higher office.

"I'm the type of person I'd like to see in office," Mollica quipped in summing up. "Look, if you don't do your own selling, nobody will."

on educational issues and interest in improving the infrastructure.

"It's time to repair the roads and bridges, to get low-interest loans for water, sewers and transportation. Next term, that's an area I'd like to see us more involved in."

Of the four candidates for county freeholder, only Democrat Thomas Lynch put in an appearance. A freeholder from 1975 to 1980, Lynch explained that under the Democrats, the freeholders consolidated many departments.

"There was much overlapping," he said. "There were separate departments for bridges and highways, but we consolidated them into the Department of Public Works. I very rarely have seen a bridge that a road doesn't lead to, particularly in Monmouth County."

One of the only direct debates occurred between the two candidates for sheriff, Republican incumbent Sheriff William M. Lanzaro and Democratic challenger Andrew Manning.

Both candidates agreed that overcrowding of the county jail can be traced to the state. Lanzaro took credit for increasing the payment to the county from $20.30 to $42.95 per day for each state prisoner.

Orr convicted in shotgun slaying

BY JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — A Superior Court jury yesterday convicted a Middletown man of murder for the shotgun slaying last winter of Alan Ball, 29, in an argument over "a parking ticket, a bottle of gin and an arm wrestle."

After less than two hours of deliberation, Richard Orr, 56, was convicted on all counts for shooting Ball Feb. 8 after the younger man had entered his kitchen and the two began to argue.

The jury rejected defense attorney Robert Holden's insanity defense. Orr shot Ball in the stomach point-blank with a sawed-off shotgun at his 29 Demmert Ave. house.

Ball, who was living at 53 E. Garfield Ave. with Beatrice Shiovone, the sole witness to the murder, died a few hours after the shooting on an operating table at Riverview Hospital, Red Bank. A hospital spokeswoman said he had suffered a "very extensive wound to the abdomen."

"Orr knew that what he was doing was wrong and illegal," assistant prosecutor Linda Kenney argued in her opening comments.

"Did this man really kill someone over a parking ticket? Because that's really what this case is all about," the defense countered in its opening.

During the 3½ day trial, the two sides presented psychiatric testimony as well as accounts of the shooting by Schiovone and several police officers who arrived on the scene shortly after the attack.

Orr was found seated at a kitchen table a few feet away from the dying Ball, dressed in his underwear. He had apparently been drinking, according to Patrolman James Eastmond, one of the first officers on the scene.

In a signed statement given on the night of the murder, Orr admitted to committing the murder after Ball had threatened to shoot him with a .45-caliber weapon during an earlier telephone conversation.

Eastmond also reported that when he admitted to the murder, Orr said, "Yeah, I shot the son-of-a-bitch, and I hope he dies."

Mall to probe sewer hookups

BY RAY GERMANN

OCEAN — The owners of Seaview Square Mall have begun an investigation to determine whether the mall is guilty of an illegal sewer hookup.

Officials of the Township Sewerage Authority said approximately 30,000 gallons of sewage from an unauthorized mall connection have been treated, but not paid for.

John Miller, a spokesman for Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, which owns the mall, said yesterday company personnel will determine "as quickly as possible" if an unauthorized connection does exist.

"I don't know how long the study will take," Miller said. "But we want to get this thing resolved as quickly as possible, and we hope to come to a conclusion soon."

He would not comment on the specifics of the planned investigation.

David Weinstein, authority attorney, said at a recent meeting that the unauthorized sewage flows through a pipe which runs under the mall parking lot. A hookup into the line was evidently made without notifying the authority, officials said.

The hookup was discovered approximately two months ago. Weinstein said. Miller said the company currently has no idea when or how the alleged connection was made.

"If it turns out that there is an illegal hookup, we will begin paying whatever amount we should be paying," Miller said. "If there is such a connection, it will be because the company simply didn't realize it existed."

Robert Lawrence, an engineer with the authority's firm, Schoor DePalma and Gillen Inc., said he estimates the company owes the authority for approximately 30,000 of sewage treatment.

Millicent Herbert, authority executive director, said early this week that she had not heard from Equitable officials since Weinstein sent a letter to the company in early October.

Weinstein said on Monday that he also had not been in contact with the company.

Mall manager John Creighton refused to comment on the matter.

Bayshore leaders chart course at learning center

BY LIZ SHEEHAN

HAZLET — For the first time in Brookdale Community College's history, local residents will help decide what courses will be offered at a community learning center.

College officials invited approximately 80 Bayshore community leaders to lunch yesterday at the new nine-classroom college learning center on Laurel Avenue in West Keansburg, and asked them to help design college courses appropriate for their area.

But a number of those present were also concerned with what the new center would be called.

Several representatives, including Judy Miller, manager of ambulatory services at MCOSS-Hartshorne Health Center, asked the college not to name the new facility the Bayshore Learning Center.

Miller said Bayshore residents feel they have a "stigma," and "believe they are not wanted, and don't have ability." She asked Brookdale officials to help change this image. Miller suggested that the building be called the Northern Monmouth Learning Center.

Gordon N. Litwin, president of the college's Board of Trustees, opened the meeting, saying the Bayshore is "one of the dynamic areas of Monmouth County, and Brookdale wants to share in the area's growth."

While dining on tomatoes topped with shrimp salad, the guests — including Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth and Middlesex — conferred with college staff members scattered around the 11 tables.

The participants were handed a series of questions prepared by Brookdale staff members. After 90 minutes of discussion, the results were read to the entire group.

Among the prospective courses mentioned by many of the round-table groups were:

- job seeking and training
- household financial management
- parenting
- basic skills
- computer skills

Joseph Caruso, superintendent of the Keansburg school district, asked BCC officials to press for improved public transportation to the learning center.

Caruso noted that the only bus line serving the area runs on Route 36 along the shore line, leaving many residents without a way to get to the school.

James Murray, executive director of Bayshore Youth Services, suggested that a shuttle bus be run from the main campus in Lincroft to Laurel Avenue.

Murray also asked that the center provide services for single parents.

The last speaker called for remedial and basic skills training.

"We have eighteen-year-olds who can't fill out application forms," said B.J. Lobermann Jr., general manager of Container Corporation of America, Aberdeen.

After the reports, Brookdale President B.A. Barringer told the group the college would start making plans for the learning center based on their suggestions.

Barringer said that Brookdale did not intend to compete with programs now being offered in the area. "There are a lot of good assets already here," he said. "Our intent is not to duplicate what is being done well."

The Laurel Street center is scheduled to open Jan. 16, the first day of BCC's spring term, according to Paul Zigo, the college's director of external services.

Sidewalk leads to freeholder dispute

BY BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — Republican and Democratic members of the county Board of Freeholders continued their political dispute over the installation of a sidewalk in Lincroft at the board's workshop meeting yesterday.

Yesterday's confrontation between the lone Democrat on the board — Freeholder Ray Kramer — and Freeholder Frank Self, the freeholder in charge of roads and bridges who authorized the sidewalk construction and who is running for re-election, was triggered by the surprise appearance of Charles Toop, the owner of the shopping center on whose property the disputed sidewalk was installed.

Toop, a longtime active Republican, was accompanied by his daughter. The two asserted they had agreed a year ago to donate the land to the county for the sidewalk installation. They claimed the failure of the county to obtain legal control of the strip of land before the sidewalk was installed by county road department workers three weeks ago was caused by the attorneys for the two sides.

But Toop appeared most upset that he had been dragged into a political dispute over the sidewalk and a sign that was erected on shopping center property in support of the candidacies of Self, Freeholder Clement Sommers, and the two Republican candidates for Middletown Township Committee — incumbent Paul Linder and Paul Corcoran.

Kramer and the two Democrats running for freeholder — former Freeholder Thomas J. Lynch of Middletown and John D'Amico of Oceanport — had charged the sign was erected by county workers right near the site of the sidewalk construction, and was removed only after the Democrats publicized the "impropriety."

But Toop and his daughter insisted they had put up the sign on their own property and they had later taken it down.

Kramer, however, continued to insist the sidewalk was illegally installed. And he said he has asked acting County Prosecutor Charles Buckley to investigate the expenditure of county funds for construction of a sidewalk "on private property."

Kramer also contended the construction was never authorized by the freeholders, and that the sidewalk did not appear on the original plans for the reconstruction of the Lincroft intersection as Self had originally contended.

Freeholder Director Harry Larrison Jr. insisted, however, the Democrats were attempting to create a political issue out of nothing. He contended road department figures showed the cost to the county of the sidewalk construction was less than $5,000.

Red Bank OKs altered variances

BY SHAUN SCHLICH

RED BANK — The Borough Board of Adjustment approved amendments to the site plan submitted last night by Ole Ovegaard, owner of Noise Abatement Systems at 247 Bridge Ave.

The board passed a resolution granting a use variance, changes in parking and buffering variances and design waivers to permit both the existing manufacturing of sound-proof rooms and proposed office rental space.

At the board's last meeting, judgment was reserved on Ovegaard's request because of the vehement objections raised by neighbors John and Imogne Dean of 251 Bridge Ave. on the issue of buffering.

Last night, Anthony Bruno, attorney for Ovegaard, offered proof of a compromise between the two parties by pointing to the Dean's absence from the meeting.

Incorporated into the board's resolution was the approval of glass block windows to replace windows broken by vandals. The borough building inspector had previously issued a summons to Ovegaard for allegedly deviating from the previous site plan approved in May 1981.

The board questioned the "cosmetic" appearance of the building and asked Ovegaard if any improvements would be forthcoming. He responded that it would be impractical because of frequent graffiti attacks and reasoned that by maintaining painted facade, he could remove the graffiti economically and efficiently.

The board also passed a resolution granting Shrewsbury Mews Associates a bulk variance to convert and renovate six apartments into condominiums and a use variance from business use to residential use, which the board noted was the inverse of the usual request.

James and Dina Liberty of 221 Spring St. were granted a variance to construct a two-car garage and expand their kitchen.

Mary B. Jennings of 31 Spring St. was granted a variance to construct a family room addition since, she said, with three teenagers in the house the family needed more room.

City cleaning woman nabbed in Middletown jewelry thefts

MIDDLETOWN — Police confiscated a wealth of jewelry and expensive glassware Wednesday after they arrested a 29-year-old Long Branch woman for allegedly stealing the valuables while she cleaned area homes.

Diane Buffaloe, of 230 Pleasure Bay Apartments, Long Branch, was charged with theft and possession of stolen property following an investigation by township detectives.

The investigation began when a township resident filed a formal complaint against Buffaloe when a small amount of jewelry was discovered missing shortly after she had cleaned the home, Capt. William Halliday said yesterday.

Buffaloe's arrest came three days later, when police identified some of the stolen property in the domestic's home, Halliday added.

So far, three township homeowners and a Rumson resident, all of whom employed Buffaloe, have identified some of the confiscated loot, valued at approximately $5,000.

But, only 10 percent of the items have been identified, and police are continuing to search for countless other victims who may have been robbed unknowingly by the alleged thief.

The victimized homeowners may have discovered something missing, but decided they had either misplaced or lost the small trinket, police added.

Since the arrest, detectives have been sifting through the large number of treasures, examining and marking each stolen ring, necklace, bracelet, charm, and dish taken from Buffaloe's apartment. They continue to hunt for clues which may eventually lead to finding the owners of the valuable merchandise, Halliday said.

In addition, police have asked any area resident who may have employed Buffaloe to contact their local police departments or call Lt. William Brunt, Lanzaro said he would like to see legislation passed allowing municipal judges the discretion to incarcerate criminals or have them participate in a county workfare program.

Sea Bright Councilman Manning, a former state trooper and county detective, made a pitch for putting non-violent prisoners to work.

"The overcrowding is not the fault of Monmouth County officials," Manning said. "Let's use the National Guard armories, which are owned by the state and have non-violent state-sentenced criminals placed there — the frauds, gamblers, and bookmakers. Remove them from the county jail and place them under the state correctional officers.

"Also, take the non-violent county prisoners and have them work in the municipalities," Manning added.

Also participating in the debate were Red Bank Council candidates, Republicans: incumbent George Ward and challenger Paul J. Forsman, and Democrats: incumbent Thomas E. Hintelmann and Robert S. Susser.

The Eatontown Council candidates also stopped by. They are Democrats: incumbent Theodore F. Lewis Jr. and challenger Kent Blanchard; and Republicans: incumbent Michael DiComo and challenger Clarice Funk.

'Visions' nets praise for city high school

LONG BRANCH — "Visions '83," Long Branch High School's yearbook, has been selected by the American Scholastic Press Association as an award-winning entry in national competition.

The American Scholastic Press Association serves over 1,300 high schools in the nation. The group establishes evaluation criteria for excellence in high school and college yearbook journalism, issues publications and conducts seminars to aid schools in all phases of yearbook production.

Debra Levin, editor-in-chief of the 1983 yearbook, is a freshman at the University of Virginia and has recently been selected as a member of their yearbook staff.

"This is quite an honor for an incoming freshman at a major academically-oriented university," said Faith Radler, yearbook faculty advisor. "I can only credit part of Debra's success to her interests and abilities. The rest I must attribute to the support of the high school administration and the board of education for allowing us to be one of the few schools in the area to teach classes in yearbook and newspaper journalism."

'Signpost' points way to RBCHS first place

RED BANK — "The Signpost," Red Bank Catholic High School's student newspaper, has been awarded international first-place standing in the annual Quill and Scroll high school newspaper evaluation.

According to Sister Joanmarie, newspaper moderator, the judges gave special praise to some in-depth feature writing and headlines, commenting that the level of journalistic excellence is unusual "in so young and inexperienced an organization."

Quill and Scroll, an international journalism organization, is based in the University of Iowa's School of Journalism.

Nuns spared injury from convent blast

Inmate head is PBA chief's wife

TRENTON — Barbara Ginesi's appointment as ombudsman of the state Department of Corrections is still under review, but officials say the fact that she is married to the president of a police officers' union does not necessarily pose a conflict of interests.

"I don't think someone with professional expertise should be penalized for what her spouse does. Would it be all right if it was the wife of a bank robber? It's ridiculous," department spokesman James Stabile said yesterday.

Mrs. Ginesi's husband, Frank, is the president of the state Policemen's Benevolent Association. As ombudsman Mrs. Ginesi would hear grievances by inmates in county jails against PBA members.

Corrections Department ombudsmen are charged with protecting inmates from "official error, abuse or neglect" and evaluating "allegations of maladministration by staff."

NO INJURIES, THANK GOD — Nuns from the Sisters of St. Joseph convent in Roselle embrace yesterday after all 14 nuns in the convent escaped safely following an early-morning explosion.

ROSELLE (AP) — Fourteen nuns who were spared injury when an early morning blast tore out the back of their convent yesterday said God was watching over them.

"From a supernatural level, you have to reason God was with us. There had to be some reason all of us walked out of there without a scratch," said Sister Ann Sullivan, principal of the School of St. Joseph the Carpenter.

The explosion in the basement boiler room of St. Joseph's convent occurred shortly after 2 a.m. yesterday, leaving a hole two stories high and 30 feet wide in the three-story, brick building.

Roselle police Sgt. Rudolph Bassman said debris was hurled 100 feet and damaged two automobiles. Officials were not certain what caused the blast and their investigation continued.

"I just don't know how none of them were hurt. They were right next to it and below it," Bassman said.

Almost all the convent windows were broken, but four stained glass windows in the chapel area remained intact.

Students and teachers milling around the convent, located in back of the school, stared at the rubble yesterday morning. Classes for 550 students were canceled through tomorrow.

"One of my students came and thought my lab had blown up. I said 'No, it's the convent,'" said Brother Laurence Michael LeClair, a science teacher.

The nuns were taken to three other area convents. About 50 residents of a dozen homes nearby were evacuated after the explosion and taken to a nearby bank where they stayed for two hours, said the Rev. Bob Babulaski.

Desegregation causes drop

HILLSIDE — For 10 years, residents in this Union County community fought orders by the state to desegregate its schools. But when integration was finally implemented last month, about 10 percent of the elementary students did not return from the summer break.

Schools Superintendent Anthony Avella said on yesterday he expects the trend to continue, based on experiences in other New Jersey communities that were ordered to integrate their schools.

Avella said 225 students deserted the system between June and September, leaving 2,003 in the five elementary schools of this Newark suburb.

"Some parents have opted to send their children to private and parochial schools," most likely because of the desegregation program, Avella said.

In previous years, fewer than 75 students have left the district between June and September, the superintendent said.

Avella, who has asked his staff to find out where the students went, said the loss of students disturbs him. But he added that he can see how parents "resent" having a desegregation program, drawn up by state officials, imposed on them.

MICUs must bill patients, officials rule

TRENTON (AP) — Some people treated by paramedics with special ambulances will start getting bills in the mail next month, a move that officials said yesterday will insure that the Mobile Intensive Care Units continue responding to calls.

Despite the new billing procedure, medical insurance plans will pay for the services under a special federal waiver, state officials added.

The U.S. Health Care Financing Administration granted the waiver in May, but state and federal officials have been trying to work out the details since then.

"It means some more paperwork and a little more of a headache for some people, but it's worth it for the services," said Amy Collings, a state Health Department spokeswoman.

Patients who receive bills for MICU services starting Nov. 1 should forward them to their health-care insurer, such as Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross or private insurance companies.

The average bill will range from $200 to $350.

More than 65 percent of the people aided at emergency scenes by MICUs, regional units operated by hospitals, are admitted to hospitals. Under the waiver, the MICU charge will be included on their hospital bill, officials said.

"The only ones affected adversely by this are those without Medicare, Medicaid or any other form of health insurance."

Bill eases limits for lobstermen

TRENTON (AP) — A bill was signed into law yesterday easing some federal regulations that New Jersey lobstermen say could have hurt their industry, while two state legislators argued over credit for the new law.

Gov. Thomas H. Kean signed the bill, which will allow smaller lobsters to be taken from New Jersey waters for the next three years.

Lobstermen and the two legislators — Sen. John P. Gallagher, R-Monmouth, and Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth — had argued that the New Jersey lobster industry was threatened by new federal regulations allowing only larger lobsters to be taken.

State law previously banned taking lobsters shorter than 3.125 inches — a length measured from the eye socket to the end of the body shell, disregarding the long tail.

The new federal regulation would have set a minimum length of 3.187 inches after January 1985.

The new state law, however, will allow much smaller lobsters to be taken — 2.75 inches for the rest of 1983, 2.875 inches during 1984, 3.0 inches in 1985, and back to the current standard of 3.125 inches during 1986. The federal standard of 3.187 inches will start in January 1987.

Van Wagner and Gallagher, who are running against each other for the Senate next month, sponsored identical lobster bills, which were merged and passed by the Legislature Sept. 15.

Van Wagner issued a news release saying Kean signed his bill, and Gallagher then blasted Van Wagner for "having the audacity to take credit for a new law protecting the lobster industry that I initiated."

Gallagher's bill was introduced first, and he said Van Wagner copied his bill.

open letter to the people ...

Republican Headquarters
Tom Gagliano • Marie S. Muhler • John O. Bennett
Dear Voter:

We hope you will take the time to read this brief letter, to contact us with any questions you may have, but, most of all, we hope you will vote on Tuesday, November 8. Regrettably, most campaign advertising cannot intelligently discuss the critical issues.

We are all too often forced by space, time and money to "boil down" our campaign messages. Even if this entire advertisement were devoted to one major issue, such as transportation or toxic waste sites, it would be impossible adequately to cover the range of the problems and their solutions.

For these reasons, we have decided to take the somewhat unusual step of drafting this "Open Letter" which has a simple message and a simple purpose:

First, we earnestly seek your support on Tuesday, November 8, so that we can continue working as a team on the important issues affecting Monmouth County and the State of New Jersey.

Second, we ask that you contact us with any questions you may have concerning our backgrounds, our voting records, our positions on issues, and the nature of the problems -- and opportunities -- which confront our region and state.

Third, we hope you will also contact our opponents, and we invite you to compare our records and positions before deciding which team or individual candidate deserves your support.

To be frank, we have considerable confidence in two important considerations: The first is our record of service to the people. The second is the sound judgment of the people of our 12th Legislative District.

That's why we invite comparison, and why we publish below the telephone number of our opponents as well as our own.

Whatever your decision on November 8, we hope the election turn-out in this so-called "off-year" is the largest ever, and we hope you will be among those at the polls, rain or shine.

Mike and Jay are culinary champions

RED BANK — It's tiny, intimate, charming, and fun. The food is plentiful, outstanding, varied and different. The place is Mike and Jay's Restaurant and Deli, home of the International Catering Co. and it's on Front St. near Broad. It also has to be one of the finest new restaurants in the area.

Don't let the "and Deli" detract from the charm and elite atmosphere of the restaurant. There are two separate doors, adjacent rooms, and any delicatessen purchases, which could include some of the fantastic lunch or dinner items, are quietly and efficiently disposed of away from the comfortable, casual, yet sophisticated atmosphere of the dining room.

There are Tiffany lamps and linen tablecloths and napkins; there are candles on the well set tables, and silk flowers in vases all around. There are lovely prints framed on the wall, and best of all, graceful ceiling fans which provide a good deal more comfort than frigid air conditioning.

But at Mike and Jay's, what you really want to do is eat, and you can do plenty of that, all at a gourmet level. Owners Mike Love, formerly head chef of the Quay in Sea Bright, among other places throughout the east, and Jay Dreicer, formerly with Truffles in Fair Haven, the Marriott Corporation, and a Johnson and Wales Culinary Arts school graduate, both have extensive backgrounds and experience in all kinds of food preparation, with emphasis on northern Italian and French, and both insist on the same high quality in their chefs and kitchen staff. The results of all this care are obvious and delicious.

The menus at Mike and Jay's are huge blackboards, just crammed full of all kinds of good things; things like fettuccine, linguine, both with all kinds of sauce and meat or seafood; veal, in many different preparations; beef, seafood, chicken, all equally diverse in preparation, and a host of accompanying salads, appetizers, and side dishes. But that is only the beginning.

In addition to the extensive menu, there are daily specials, specials that are read and described by smiling and efficient waiters and waitresses. The number of specials almost equals the lengthy menu, and just listening to it whets your appetite for anything Northern Italian.

The seafood is extremely fresh, and the linguine pescatoria is chock full of shrimp, clams, calamari, scungilli, and that's only touching the surface. The salads, especially a terrific house salad, are magnificent and comparable when you consider both quality & quantity. It isn't often a salad bowl contains fresh broccoli, cauliflower, peppers, mushrooms, tiny tomatoes, and zucchini.

What a treat! Lunch time is equally impressive and delicious. There are chicken cutlet and Reuben sandwiches, crepes, sirloin burgers, fettuccini and more of those sensational salads. But there's also a spectacular cheese board, with the diner selecting the four cheeses he especially wants from the restaurant's extensive cheese list. The cheeses are then served with homemade bread or rolls, plenty of butter. You can also order a fresh fruit to top it off, if you like.

Desserts are indescribably delicious, and that's putting it mildly. All are the handiwork of another Johnson and Wales associate, Eileen Rich, who puts as much attention into the appearance as the taste of everything from sensational fruit flans and cheesecake to carrot cake and miniature pastries. Eileen maintains her international pastry shoppe at 67 Monmouth St. in Red Bank, and desserts can't come any fresher.

The chefs insist on the same top quality in their raw products as they do in their employees and themselves. As a result, the veal is plume de veau, top of the line, all the meats are boned and prepared on premises, and the seafood comes from the Fulton Fish Market or local markets providing outstanding delicacies.

The restaurant is open seven days a week for breakfast and lunch, and dinner from Tuesday through Saturday, serving from 5:30 to 9:30. Breakfasts and lunches are served 7 to 3, except on Sunday, when the same magnificent fare is served 7 to 2.

Bring your own bottle of wine to accent the high quality of this very delicious food. The staff is more than happy to provide glasses and service for your libations.

Middletown man convicted in shotgun murder

BY JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — A Superior Court jury yesterday convicted a Middletown man of murder for the shotgun slaying last winter of Alan Ball, 29, in an argument over "a parking ticket, a bottle of gin and an arm wrestle."

After less than two hours of deliberation, Richard Orr, 56, was convicted on all counts for shooting Ball Feb. 8 after the younger man had entered his kitchen and the two began to argue.

The jury rejected defense attorney Robert Holden's insanity defense. Orr shot

'Yeah, I shot (him) ... and I hope he dies.'

— Richard Orr, convicted murderer

Ball in the stomach point-blank with a sawed-off shotgun at his 29 Demmert Ave. house.

Ball, who was living at 53 E. Garfield

Ave. with Beatrice Shavone, the sole witness to the murder, died a few hours after the shooting on an operating table at Riverview Hospital, Red Bank. A hospital spokeswoman said he had suffered a "very extensive wound to the abdomen."

"Orr knew that what he was doing was wrong and illegal," assistant prosecutor Linda Kenney argued in her opening comments.

"Did this man really kill someone over a parking ticket? Because that's really what this case is all about," the defense countered in its opening.

During the 3½ day trial, the two sides presented psychiatric testimony as well as accounts of the shooting by Shavone and several police officers who arrived on the scene shortly after the attack.

Orr was found seated at a kitchen table a few feet away from the dying Ball, dressed in his underwear. He had apparently been drinking, according to Patrolman James Eastmond, one of the first officers on the scene.

In a signed statement given on the night of the murder, Orr admitted to committing the murder after Ball had threatened to shoot him with a .45-caliber weapon during an earlier telephone conversation.

Eastmond also reported that when he admitted to the murder, Orr said, "Yeah, I shot the son-of-a-bitch, and I hope he dies."

Bayshore views learning center

BY LIZ SHEEHAN

HAZLET — For the first time in Brookdale Community College's history, local residents will help decide what courses will be offered at a community learning center.

College officials invited approximately 80 Bayshore community leaders to lunch yesterday at the new nine-classroom college learning center on Laurel Avenue in West Keansburg, and asked them to help design college courses appropriate for their area.

But a number of those present were also concerned with what the new center would be called.

Several representatives, including Judy Miller, manager of ambulatory services at MCOSS-Hartshorne Health Center, asked the college not to name the new facility the Bayshore Learning Center.

Miller said Bayshore residents feel they have a "stigma," and "believe they are not wanted, and don't have ability." She asked Brookdale officials to help change this image. Miller suggested that the building be called the Northern Monmouth Learning Center.

Gordon N. Litwin, president of the college's Board of Trustees, opened the meeting, saying the Bayshore is "one of the dynamic areas of Monmouth County, and Brookdale wants to share in the area's growth."

While dining on tomatoes stuffed with shrimp salad, the guests — including Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth and Middlesex — conferred with college staff members scattered around the 11 tables.

The participants were handed a series of questions prepared by Brookdale staff members. After 90 minutes of discussion, the results were read to the entire group.

Among the prospective courses mentioned by many of the round-table groups were:

- job seeking and training
- household financial management

- parenting
- basic skills
- computer skills

Joseph Caruso, superintendent of the Keansburg school district, asked BCC officials to press for improved public transportation to the learning center.

Caruso noted that the only bus line serving the area runs on Route 36 along the shore line, leaving many residents without a way to get to the school.

James Murray, executive director of Bayshore Youth Services, suggested that a shuttle bus be run from the main campus in Lincroft to Laurel Avenue.

Murray also asked that the center provide services for single parents.

The last speaker called for remedial and basic skills training.

"We have eighteen-year-olds who can't fill out application forms," said B.J. Lobermann Jr., general manager of Container Corporation of America, Aberdeen.

After the reports, Brookdale President B.A. Barringer told the group the college would start making plans for the learning center based on their suggestions.

Barringer said that Brookdale did not intend to compete with programs now being offered in the area. "There are a lot of good assets already here," he said. "Our intent is not to duplicate what is being done well."

The Laurel Street center is scheduled to open Jan. 18, the first day of BCC's spring term, according to Paul Zigo, the college's director of external services.

Zigo, who organized yesterday's meeting, said the academic coordinator for the facility would probably be Robert Salem, who now directs the Long Branch learning center. Zigo said Enid Sidel is being considered as a replacement for Salem.

Both day and night courses will be given at the center, housed in a school built in 1915 and added on to several times since, which contains 15,000 square feet of space.

Political row continues over sidewalks

BY BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — Republican and Democratic members of the county Board of Freeholders continued their political dispute over the installation of a sidewalk in Lincroft at the board's workshop meeting yesterday.

Yesterday's confrontation between the lone Democrat on the board — Freeholder Ray Kramer — and Freeholder Frank Self, the freeholder in charge of roads and bridges who authorized the sidewalk construction and who is running for re-election, was triggered by the surprise appearance of Charles Toop, the owner of the shopping center on whose property the disputed sidewalk was installed.

Toop, a longtime active Republican, was accompanied by his daughter. The two asserted they had agreed a year ago to donate the land to the county for the sidewalk installation. They claimed the failure of the county to obtain legal control of the strip of land before the sidewalk was installed by county road department workers three weeks ago was caused by the attorneys for the two sides.

But Toop appeared most upset that he had been dragged into a political dispute over the sidewalk and a sign that was erected on shopping center property in support of the candidacies of Self, Freeholder Clement Sommers, and the two Republican candidates for Middletown Township Committee — incumbent Paul Linder and Paul Corcoran.

Kramer and the two Democrats running for freeholder — former Freeholder Thomas J. Lynch of Middletown and John D'Amico of Oceanport — had charged the sign was erected by county workers right near the site of the sidewalk construction, and was removed only after the Democrats publicized the "impropriety."

But Toop and his daughter insisted they had put up the sign on their own property and they had later taken it down.

Kramer, however, continued to insist the sidewalk was illegally installed. And he said he has asked acting County Prosecutor Charles Buckley to investigate the expenditure of county funds for construction of a sidewalk on private property.

Kramer also contended the construction was never authorized by the freeholders, and that the sidewalk did not appear on the original

CONFISCATED VALUABLES — Middletown Police Lt. ## Township cops recover $5,000 in stolen jewels

BY KATHLEEN STANLEY

MIDDLETOWN — Police confiscated a wealth of jewelry and expensive glassware Wednesday after they arrested a 29-year-old Long Branch woman for allegedly stealing the valuables while she cleaned area homes.

Diane Buffaloe, of 230 Pleasure Bay Apartments, Long Branch, was charged with theft and possession of stolen property following an investigation by township detectives. The investigation began when a township resident filed a formal complaint against Buffaloe when a small amount of jewelry was discovered missing shortly after she had cleaned the home, Capt. William Halliday said yesterday.

Buffaloe's arrest came three days later, when police identified some of the stolen property in the domestic's home, Halliday added.

So far, three township homeowners and a Rumson resident, all of whom employed Buffaloe, have identified some of the confiscated loot, valued at approximately $5,000.

But, only 10 percent of the items have been identified, and police are continuing to search for countless other victims who may have been robbed unknowingly by the alleged thief.

The victimized homeowners may have discovered something missing, but decided they had either misplaced or lost the small trinket, police added.

Since the arrest, detectives have been sifting through the large number of treasures, examining and marking each stolen ring, necklace, bracelet, charm, and dish taken from Buffaloe's apartment. They continue to hunt for clues which may

Oil firm files suit against Marlboro

BY TED LOUD

MARLBORO — The township has been given 20 days to respond to a state restraining order preventing local officials from issuing summonses against Imperial Oil Co., Orchard Place, whose property is listed by federal and state authorities as a hazardous waste site.

Township Attorney Arthur Gold-

zweig said the township received the civil action summons from state Superior Court Wednesday. The suit was filed by the firm's attorneys, Pitney, Hardin, Kipp and Szuoh of New York.

The Imperial site is ranked 211th on the federal Environmental Protection Agency's list of the 418 worst toxic sites in the country. It ranks 35th on the EPA list of 65 sites in New Jersey slated for "Superfund" cleanup money.

The state Department of Environmental Protection has ordered the firm to "cease and desist in the discharge" of runoff water into Birch Swamp Brook which flows into Lake Lefferts, Matawan, until Imperial can prove levels of arsenic do not exceed set limits. A 2-year-old consent agreement between Imperial and the DEP calls for the imposition of fines if provisions of the agreement are violated.

Imperial has already pleaded guilty to two violations of township ordinances. Municipal Court Judge Michael Silberstein fined the company Sept. 26 $500 for both violations, plus court costs.

"That amounts to a slap on the hand," Mayor Saul Hornik charged at last night's township council workshop meeting.

The Imperial facility blends lubrication and transmission oils from raw materials which are stored on-site in above-ground bulk storage tanks.

The firm claims its operation produces no waste by-products and causes no discharge of liquid wastes.

However, health officials have found evidence of lead, arsenic, oil contamination and cancer-causing polychlorinated biphenyls, PCBs at the site. An arsenic manufacturing plant operated on the site years ago, before Champion Chemical Co., present owners of the property, moved in.

"If it's so safe there, let them move their own families next door to the plant," Hornik said, referring to the company officials.

The mayor said he has directed Township Engineer David Birnbaum and police to monitor the plant for liquid waste discharges after rainfall.

The plant operates an oil water separator system which is supposed to remove oil from rainwater runoff. Imperial claims the separator system sufficiently safeguards against potentially toxic oil spills, within EPA and DEP guidelines.

"Then why has the site been declared toxic by both the state and the federal government?" Hornik quipped.

The mayor also expressed concern that Imperial's consent order with the DEP provided Imperial with an "excuse" to circumvent municipal actions against the firm.

"The DEP is playing Russian roulette with us," he charged.

Hornik said he has written to both the DEP and the EPA requesting federal contracts with Imperial be suspended until they "clean up their act."

He also suggested the township stop doing business with the firm. Marlboro buys approximately $200 a month worth of oil from Imperial, according to the mayor.

In spite of the pending litigation, Hornik assured the council that local officials will continue to "keep an eye on them."

Mall to investigate sewer hookups

BY RAY GERMAN

OCEAN — The owners of Seaview Square Mall have begun an investigation to determine whether the mall is guilty of an illegal sewer hookup.

Officials of the Township Sewerage Authority said approximately 30,000 gallons of sewage from an unauthorized mall connection have been treated, but not paid for.

John Miller, a spokesman for Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, which owns the mall, said yesterday company personnel will determine "as quickly as possible" if an unauthorized connection does exist.

"I don't know how long the study will take," Miller said. "But we want to get this thing resolved as quickly as possible, and we hope to come to a conclusion soon."

He would not comment on the specifics of the planned investigation.

David Weinstein, authority attorney, said at a recent meeting that the unauthorized sewage flows through a pipe which runs under the mall parking lot. A hookup into the line was evidently made without notifying the authority, officials said.

The hookup was discovered approximately two months ago, Weinstein said. Miller said the company currently has no idea when or how the alleged connection was made.

BY DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — Campaigning for public office can be long and tiring. And it certainly doesn't do much for the office seekers' morale when more of them show up at a debate than voters.

At the most recent forum last night, not even the lights assisting a local television crew were strong enough to blind the 18 candidates from the fact that few people came to hear what they had to say.

Perhaps for that reason, most of the speeches sounded like official readings of campaign literature. The candidates for local, county and state seats took great pains to outline their biographies and legislative goals.

The affair, sponsored by the Greater Red Bank Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, took more than two hours.

Just before the end, Agostinho Monteiro, the moderator, summed up the atmosphere.

"I hope that voter apathy won't be like this on election day (Nov. 8)," he said. "Too many people don't take government seriously until they need something."

Even some of the expected confrontations never materialized because incumbents and challengers showed up at different times.

This was particularly true with the state Senate candidates from both the 12th and 13th Legislative Districts.

From the 12th, Democratic challenger Alexander D. Lehrer, and Republican incumbent S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, missed one another by almost two hours. Lehrer spoke first and left, while Gagliano did not appear until the end.

Lehrer used his allotted three minutes to stress his record as county prosecutor. He emphasized the crackdown on drugs users and dealers during his five years in office.

"We realized that 70 percent of the crime in Monmouth County was related to the use and distribution of illicit drugs and we set up a narcotics strike force," Lehrer said. "I went to the freeholders and they said there weren't any funds for it."

"I then went to Trenton and found $50,000 in unused funds from 1976," Lehrer continued. "In 3 years, we apprehended and convicted over 800 drug users and dealers who were convicted to an average of 10 years in jail. That's what this election is all about. I will roll up my sleeves and go to Trenton and get things done."

Gagliano stressed his involvement with transportation issues in the Senate, noting improvements for parking and access at Newark International Airport and the new railroad cars.

He also saw fit to discuss the economy.

"I think New Jersey is turning around," he said. "But we must be concerned that so many people are unemployed or underemployed and cannot find work. People need to work."

From the 13th district, Republican incumbent John P. "Jack" Gallagher, R-Monmouth and Middlesex, gave a thorough personal biography. He focused on his former role as chairman of the New Jersey Highway Authority — the Garden State Parkway and Arts Center — and his involvement with both the Senate Judiciary and Appropriation Committees.

"I make it my business to get things done for my district," he said. "I worked hard to get the Lily Tulip plant sold and the job training there."

A five-term assemblyman, Van Wagner detailed legislation he points to with pride. "I was the first one to sponsor legislation of the effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans."

Ruling may hit Oceanport residents

BY TREVOR THOMAS

reserved judgment on the defendants' appeal that he overturn the jury's award. His ruling on the matter is scheduled for Nov. 7. Ingram noted. If the appeal is rejected, the council will then discuss what to do next in a closed session.

He did say, however, that both attorneys representing the defendants feel that the borough has a strong case for overturning the judgment, on the grounds that the plaintiff's case is "without merit."

D'Amico said that he was "surprised" at the mayor's "violent reaction to my straightforward questions on how we are going to cope with the issues" relating to who is liable.

"I am simply trying to get at the facts to find out what the impact might be on the citizens of Oceanport," he said. "I am disappointed that the issue was not more fully discussed."

D'Amico said, however, that he still considered Pietroniro's case to be without merit, and noted that borough attorney Joseph E. Kelley "firmly believes" that Continental Insurance Co., the borough's carrier, will be reconstruction of the Lincroft intersection as Self had originally contended.

Kramer estimated the total cost to the county of the sidewalk construction at between $20,000 and $30,000. And he charged that title to the land on which the sidewalk was built was not obtained by the county until "the day before yesterday," or after the Democrats had challenged the legality of the construction and had charged it was a political gambit to help Self's re-election chances.

Freeholder Director Harry Larrison Jr. insisted, however, the Democrats were attempting to create a political issue out of nothing. He contended road department figures showed the cost to the county of the sidewalk construction was less than $5,000. And he and the other three Republicans on the board contended that Self did not have to come to the board for approval every time his department did "minor" work.

"I didn't believe that every small job should go to the freeholders for determination," Self asserted. "If every small safety project like this one had to be reviewed by the freeholders, we would never get out of sessions."

And Self also contended that the political sign on Toop's property was just a coincidence.

"There are hundreds of political signs all over the county right now," Self asserted. "Does Kramer believe that we shouldn't do any county work anywhere there is a sign?"

A U.S. District Court jury in Trenton recommended on Monday that the damages be awarded to Frank Pietroniro, a former bar owner who was evicted from his Oceanport Avenue location in 1975 by a borough urban renewal program.

D'Amico revealed during last night's Borough Council meeting that the jury had ruled that the borough and its officials had acted in "bad faith" by failing to give Pietroniro the relocation assistance to which he was entitled after the property was condemned. He expressed concern that the ruling, if upheld, might cause the borough's insurance carrier to disclaim liability for covering the damage award.

In reply, Mayor Clement Sommers, one of the defendants in the case, said that D'Amico was "playing politics" by bringing up a matter that was still in litigation. Discussing the case publicly, he said, "may prejudice the case against the Borough of Oceanport. As a councilman, you'd be remiss," he told D'Amico.

Sommers, also a county freeholder, noted that November elections were not far off and that the Democratic councilman would be campaigning against Sommers' Republican administration.

Stephen Ingram, the council's attorney, said that any comments on the case would be a "dis-service" to the borough because Judge John Bissell, who presided over the six-week trial, had eventually lead to finding the owners of the valuable merchandise, Halliday said.

In addition, police have asked any area resident who may have employed Buffalo to contact their local police departments or call Lt. William Brunt, in charge of the investigation, at the Middletown Police Department.

Halliday credited Detective Jack Gaynor of the Rumson Police Department with assisting in the eventual arrest of Buffalo, who apparently has been cleaning area homes for approximately two years.

Buffaloe has been released on $5,000 bail, Halliday added.

FOR MIDDLETOWN . . . BETTER YET!

With continued Republican leadership:

- * Fiscal Responsibility:
  - Budgets — Built to avoid "emergency" appropriations — notorious Democrat device.
  - Ratables — First class additions to tax rolls that produce more revenue than costs.
  - Taxes — Revaluation, dodged by Democrats, assures fair treatment for all.
- * Better Government:
  - Republican Majority — Stabilized tax rate for 3 years (0% increase 1981-83 vs. 52% increase by Democrats 1978-80).
  - Productivity — Increased, and increasing, as new facilities, computerization & modern methods come into place.
  - Participation — Broad cross-section of committed, involved residents (Bayshore to Lincroft) appointed to boards & commissions.
- * Safety & Well-being:
  - Crime — Middletown now ranks 6th among U.S. cities with lowest crime rate (16th in 1981). Republicans added 15 officers to street patrol, replaced police fleet with safer, fuel-efficient vehicles.
  - Emergencies — Faster response by Police, Fire, & Public Works Depts., First Aid Squads, Civil Defense Disaster Control Unit, thanks to new communications system.
  - Improvements — Improved drainage, built roads, installed sidewalks, all within budget with NO tax increase.
- * Balanced Growth:
  - Master Plan — Protects suburban character of Middletown; adopted by Republicans in less than 2 years, ducked by Democrats for 6.
  - Open Spaces — Expansion through Green Acres funding; more recreational facilities (11-acre Dorsett Park, 22-acre McMahon Park).
  - Traffic — More rigid requirements for site-plan approvals, traffic lights, intersection improvements are helping alleviate worst aspects.

VALERIE S. DEPASTINO

Evangelist to conduct service

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Evangelist Valerie S. DePastino, Southington, Conn., will conduct a miracle healing and teaching service at Kings Highway Faith Fellowship, 44 Memorial Parkway, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. She has ministered across the United States and in Israel and has hosted a television program. The interdenominational service will feature gospel music and Bible-based teaching followed by the ministry of healing. Testimonies of persons previously healed by DePastino are expected to be heard. DePastino received her B.A. from St. Leo College, Florida, where she studied psychology, philosophy and theology. She is an affiliated member of the International Convention of Faith Churches and is a member of a number of varied religious organizations.

Newcomers to meet at Hunt

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Members of the Newcomers Club of Atlantic Highlands and Highlands will attend the Hunt Meet Saturday at Woodland Farm in Middletown.

The gathering at the Hunt Meet will take the place of the regular monthly social event held by the club.

Members will take part in a tailgate buffet at the event.

The meet is held on the former estate of the late Amory L. Haskell, one of the founders of Monmouth Park race track. He instituted the hunt meet to thank farmers and landowners who permitted members of the Monmouth County Hunt Club to use their property.

Gates at Woodland Farm will open at 10 a.m., and post time for the first race is 2 p.m.

General admission to the meet can be obtained by driving to the Middletown train station Saturday morning, where members of the Middletown Volunteer Fire Department will transport spectators to the estate. No cars will be permitted on the grounds without an estate parking sticker purchased in advance.

Bike-a-thon benefit slated

HOLMDEL — A bike-a-thon to benefit Cystic Fibrosis will be conducted from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday. Vince Pizzolo, here, will chair the event with assistance from members of the Holmdel Jaycees and the YOU youth group (Youth Organization United) of St. Catherine's Church.

The bike-a-thon will take place on the perimeter road of the Prudential Complex at the junction of Route 520 and Holmdel Road.

Ride participants, who need not be members of the church or sponsoring organizations, will solicit pledges for each mile up to a maximum of 25 miles.

Cystic Fibrosis is an incurable children's genetic disease which attacks the lungs and digestive system. Sponsors of riders in the bike event will help the CF Foundation reach its goal of a control and cure for the deadly disease.

Further information or sign-up forms can be obtained through Pizzolo or the church.

Health screening scheduled

HAZLET — A health screening fair will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the firehouse on Holmdel Road.

The fair will offer a variety of health information, films and an opportunity to discuss screening results with family practice specialists.

The event is sponsored by the family practice section of Bayshore Community Hospital in cooperation with the Monmouth Chapter of the N.J. Academy of Family Physicians.

Screenings will include: cardiac risk, hypertension, anemia, cholesterol, diabetes and stress. Those interested in the free glucose screening should begin to fast tonight.

Physicians cooperating are from Monmouth Medical Center, Riverview and Freehold Area hospitals in addition to Bayshore.

Two join Holmdel consulting firm

HOLMDEL — Two new staff members recently joined Allen Consulting, Inc., 89 Middletown Road.

Elizabeth Sheek, Long Branch, has been named account executive with responsibility for Monmouth and Ocean Counties.

Barbara Kowalski, Aberdeen, has joined the firm as a copywriter. She was previously a writer and editorial assistant with the Daily Register, Shrewsbury. Her responsibilities include publicity releases, client liaison and general copywriting.

CAMPUS

MIDDLETOWN — Andrew Holzman, of Lincroft, a senior at Muhlenberg College, Allentown, Pa., recently performed in the annual homecoming concert of the college's wind ensemble and choir.

Nuns spared injury from convent blast

Inmate head is PBA chief's wife

TRENTON — Barbara Ginesi's appointment as ombudsman of the state Department of Corrections is still under review, but officials say the fact that she is married to the president of a police officers' union does not necessarily pose a conflict of interests.

"I don't think someone with professional expertise should be penalized for what her spouse does. Would it be all right if it was the wife of a bank robber? It's ridiculous," department spokesman James Stabile said yesterday.

Mrs. Ginesi's husband, Frank, is the president of the state Policemen's Benevolent Association. As ombudsman Mrs. Ginesi would hear grievances by inmates in county jails against PBA members.

Corrections Department ombudsmen are charged with protecting inmates from "official error, abuse or neglect" and evaluating "allegations of maladministration by staff."

Desegregation causes drop

HILLSIDE — For 10 years, residents in this Union County community fought orders by the state to desegregate its schools. But when integration was finally implemented last month, about 10 percent of the elementary students did not return from the summer break.

Schools Superintendent Anthony Avella said on yesterday he expects the trend to continue, based on experiences in other New Jersey communities that were ordered to integrate their schools.

Avella said 225 students deserted the system between June and September, leaving 2,003 in the five elementary schools of this Newark suburb.

"Some parents have opted to send their children to private and parochial schools," most likely because of the desegregation program, Avella said.

In previous years, fewer than 75 students have left the district between June and September, the superintendent said.

Avella, who has asked his staff to find out where the students went, said the loss of students disturbs him. But he added that he can see how parents "resent" having a desegregation program, drawn up by state officials, imposed on them.

MICUs must bill patients, officials rule

TRENTON (AP) — Some people treated by paramedics with special ambulances will start getting bills in the mail next month, a move that officials said yesterday will insure that the Mobile Intensive Care Units continue responding to calls.

Despite the new billing procedure, medical insurance plans will pay for the services under a special federal waiver, state officials added.

The U.S. Health Care Financing Administration granted the waiver in May, but state and federal officials have been trying to work out the details since then.

"It means some more paperwork and a little more of a headache for some people, but it's worth it for the services," said Amy Collings, a state Health Department spokeswoman.

Patients who receive bills for MICU services starting Nov. 1 should forward them to their health-care insurer, such as Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross or private insurance companies.

The average bill will range from $200 to $350.

More than 65 percent of the people aided at emergency scenes by MICUs, regional units operated by hospitals, are admitted to hospitals. Under the waiver, the MICU charge will be included on their hospital bill, officials said.

The only ones affected adversely by this are those without Medicare, Medicaid or any other form of health insurance.

NO INJURIES, THANK GOD — Nuns from the Sisters of St. Joseph convent in Roselle embrace yesterday after all 14 nuns in the convent escaped safely following an early-morning explosion.

ROSELLE (AP) — Fourteen nuns who were spared injury when an early morning blast tore out the back of their convent yesterday said God was watching over them.

"From a supernatural level, you have to reason God was with us. There had to be some reason all of us walked out of there without a scratch," said Sister Ann Sullivan, principal of the School of St. Joseph the Carpenter.

The explosion in the basement boiler room of St. Joseph's convent occurred shortly after 2 a.m. yesterday, leaving a hole two stories high and 30 feet wide in the three-story, brick building.

Roselle police Sgt. Rudolph Bassman said debris was hurled 100 feet and damaged two automobiles. Officials were not certain what caused the blast and their investigation continued.

"I just don't know how none of them were hurt. They were right next to it and below it," Bassman said.

Almost all the convent windows were broken, but four stained glass windows in the chapel area remained intact.

Students and teachers milling around the convent, located in back of the school, stared at the rubble yesterday morning. Classes for 550 students were canceled through tomorrow.

"One of my students came and thought my lab had blown up. I said 'No, it's the convent,'" said Brother Laurence Michael LeClair, a science teacher.

The nuns were taken to three other area convents. About 50 residents of a dozen homes nearby were evacuated after the explosion and taken to a nearby bank where they stayed for two hours, said the Rev. Bob Babulaski.

Mike and Jay are culinary champions

RED BANK — It's tiny, intimate, charming, and fun. The food is plentiful, outstanding, varied and different. The place is Mike and Jay's Restaurant and Deli, home of the International Catering Co. and it's on Front St. near Broad. It also has to be one of the finest new restaurants in the area.

Don't let the "and Deli" detract from the charm and elite atmosphere of the restaurant. There are two separate doors, adjacent rooms, and any delicatessen purchases, which could include some of the fantastic lunch or dinner items, are quietly and efficiently disposed of away from the comfortable, casual, yet sophisticated atmosphere of the dining room.

There are Tiffany lamps and linen tablecloths and napkins; there are candles on the well set tables, and silk flowers in vases all around. There are lovely prints framed on the wall, and best of all, graceful ceiling fans which provide a good deal more comfort than frigid air conditioning.

But at Mike and Jay's, what you really want to do is eat, and you can do plenty of that, all at a gourmet level. Owners Mike Love, formerly head chef of the Quay in Sea Bright, among other places throughout the east, and Jay Dreicer, formerly with Truffles in Fair Haven, the Marriott Corporation, and a Johnson and Wales Culinary Arts school graduate, both have extensive backgrounds and experience in all kinds of food preparation, with emphasis on northern Italian and French, and both insist on the same high quality in their chefs and kitchen staff. The results of all this care are obvious and delicious.

The menus at Mike and Jay's are huge blackboards, just crammed full of all kinds of good things: things like fettuccine, linguine, both with all kinds of sauce and meat or seafood; veal, in many different preparations, beef, seafood, chicken, all equally diverse in preparation, and a host of accompanying salads, appetizers, and side dishes. But that is only the beginning.

In addition to the extensive menu, there are daily specials, specials that are read and described by smiling and efficient waiters and waitresses. The number of specials almost equals the lengthy menu, and just listening to it whets your appetite for anything Northern Italian.

The seafood is extremely fresh, and the linguine pescatorina is chock full of shrimp, clams, calamari, scungilli, and that's only touching the surface. The salads, especially a terrific house salad, are magnificent and comparable when you consider both quality & quantity. It isn't often a salad bowl contains fresh broccoli, cauliflower, peppers, mushrooms, tiny tomatoes, and zucchini. What a treat!

Lunch time is equally impressive and delicious. There are chicken cutlet and Reuben sandwiches, crepes, sirloin burgers, fettuccini and more of those sensational salads. But there's also a spectacular cheese board, with the diner selecting the four cheeses he especially wants from the restaurant's extensive cheese list. The cheeses are then served with homemade bread or rolls, plenty of butter. You can also order a fresh fruit to top it off, if you like.

Desserts are indescribably delicious, and that's putting it mildly. All are the handiwork of another Johnson and Wales associate, Eileen Rich, who puts as much attention into the appearance as the taste of everything from sensational fruit flans and cheesecake to carrot cake and miniature pastries. Eileen maintains her international pastry shoppe at 67 Monmouth St. in Red Bank, and desserts can't come any fresher.

The chefs insist on the same top quality in their raw products as they do in their employees and themselves. As a result, the veal plume de veau, top of the line, all the meats are boned and prepared on premises, and the seafood comes from the Fulton Fish Market or local markets providing outstanding delicacies.

The restaurant is open seven days a week for breakfast and lunch, and dinner from Tuesday through Saturday, serving from 5:30 to 9:30. Breakfasts and lunches are served 7 to 3, except on Sunday, when the same magnificent fare is served 7 to 2.

Bring your own bottle of wine to accent the high quality of this very delicious food. The staff is more than happy to provide glasses and service for your libations

Bill eases limits for lobstermen

TRENTON (AP) — A bill was signed into law yesterday easing some federal regulations that New Jersey lobstermen say could have hurt their industry, while two state legislators argued over credit for the new law.

Gov. Thomas H. Kean signed the bill, which will allow smaller lobsters to be taken from New Jersey waters for the next three years.

Lobstermen and the two legislators — Sen. John P. Gallagher, R-Monmouth, and Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth — had argued that the New Jersey lobster industry was threatened by new federal regulations allowing only larger lobsters to be taken.

State law previously banned taking lobsters shorter than 3.125 inches — a length measured from the eye socket to the end of the body shell, disregarding the long tail.

The new federal regulation would have set a minimum length of 3.187 inches after January 1985.

The new state law, however, will allow much smaller lobsters to be taken — 2.75 inches for the rest of 1983, 2.875 inches during 1984, 3.0 inches in 1985, and back to the current standard of 3.125 inches during 1986. The federal standard of 3.187 inches will start in January 1987.

Van Wagner and Gallagher, who are running against each other for the Senate next month, sponsored identical lobster bills, which were merged and passed by the Legislature Sept. 15.

Van Wagner issued a news release saying Kean signed his bill, and Gallagher then blasted Van Wagner for "having the audacity to take credit for a new law protecting the lobster industry that I initiated."

Gallagher's bill was introduced first, and he said Van Wagner copied his bill.

Republican Headquarters

Dear Voter:

We hope you will take the time to read this brief letter, to contact us with any questions you may have, but, most of all, we hope you will vote on Tuesday, November 8.

Regrettably, most campaign advertising cannot intelligently discuss the critical issues. We are all too often forced by space, time and money to "boil down" our campaign messages. Even if this entire advertisement were devoted to one major issue, such as transportation or toxic waste sites, it would be impossible adequately to cover the range of the problems and their solutions.

For these reasons, we have decided to take the somewhat unusual step of drafting this "Open Letter" which has a simple message and a simple purpose:

First, we earnestly seek your support on Tuesday, November 8, so that we can continue working as a team on the important issues affecting Monmouth County and the State of New Jersey.

Second, we ask that you contact us with any questions you may have concerning our backgrounds, our voting records, our positions on issues, and the nature of the problems -- and opportunities -- which confront our region and state.

Third, we hope you will also contact our opponents, and we invite you to compare our records and positions before deciding which team or individual candidate deserves your support.

To be frank, we have considerable confidence in two important considerations: The first is our record of service to the people. The second is the sound judgment of the people of our 12th Legislative District.

That's why we invite comparison, and why we publish below the telephone number of our opponents as well as our own.

Whatever your decision on November 8, we hope the election turn-out in this so-called "off-year" is the largest ever, and we hope you will be among those at the polls, rain or shine.

Bayshore man convicted in shotgun murder

BY JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — A Superior Court jury yesterday convicted a Middletown man of murder for the shotgun slaying last winter of Alan Ball, 29, in an argument over "a parking ticket, a bottle of gin and an arm wrestle."

After less than two hours of deliberation, Richard Orr, 56, was convicted on all counts for shooting Ball Feb. 8 after the younger man had entered his kitchen and the two began to argue.

The jury rejected defense attorney Robert Holden's insanity defense. Orr shot

Ball, who was living at 53 E. Garfield

Ave. with Beatrice Shiovone, the sole witness to the murder, died a few hours after the shooting on an operating table at Riverview Hospital, Red Bank. A hospital spokeswoman said he had suffered a "very extensive wound to the abdomen."

"Orr knew that what he was doing was wrong and illegal," assistant prosecutor Linda Kenney argued in her opening comments.

"Did this man really kill someone over a parking ticket? Because that's really what this case is all about," the defense countered in its opening.

During the 3 1/2 day trial, the two sides presented psychiatric testimony as well as accounts of the shooting by Schiavone and several police officers who arrived on the scene shortly after the attack.

Orr was found seated at a kitchen table a few feet away from the dying Ball, dressed in his underwear. He had apparently been drinking, according to Patrolman James Eastmond, one of the first officers on the scene.

In a signed statement given on the night of the murder, Orr admitted to committing the murder after Ball had threatened to shoot him with a .45-caliber weapon during an earlier telephone conversation.

Eastmond also reported that when he admitted to the murder, Orr said, "Yeah, I shot the son-of-a-bitch, and I hope he dies."

Bayshore views learning center

BY LIZ SHEEHAN

HAZLET — For the first time in Brookdale Community College's history, local residents will help decide what courses will be offered at a community learning center.

College officials invited approximately 80 Bayshore community leaders to lunch yesterday at the new nine-classroom college learning center on Laurel Avenue in West Keansburg, and asked them to help design college courses appropriate for their area.

But a number of those present were also concerned with what the new center would be called.

Several representatives, including Judy Miller, manager of ambulatory services at MCOSS-Hartshorne Health Center, asked the college not to name the new facility the Bayshore Learning Center.

Miller said Bayshore residents feel they have a "stigma," and "believe they are not wanted, and don't have ability." She asked Brookdale officials to help change this image. Miller suggested that the building be called the Northern Monmouth Learning Center.

Gordon N. Litwin, president of the college's Board of Trustees, opened the meeting, saying the Bayshore is "one of the dynamic areas of Monmouth County, and Brookdale wants to share in the area's growth."

While dining on tomatoes stuffed with shrimp salad, the guests — including Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth and Middlesex — conferred with college staff members scattered around the 11 tables.

The participants were handed a series of questions prepared by Brookdale staff members. After 90 minutes of discussion, the results were read to the entire group.

Among the prospective courses mentioned by many of the round-table groups were:

- job seeking and training
•household financial management

- parenting
•basic skills
•computer skills

Joseph Caruso, superintendent of the Keansburg school district, asked BCC officials to press for improved public transportation to the learning center.

Caruso noted that the only bus line serving the area runs on Route 36 along the shore line, leaving many residents without a way to get to the school.

James Murray, executive director of Bayshore Youth Services, suggested that a shuttle bus be run from the main campus in Lincroft to Laurel Avenue.

Murray also asked that the center provide services for single parents. The last speaker called for remedial and basic skills training.

"We have eighteen-year-olds who can't fill out application forms," said B.J. Lobermann Jr., general manager of Container Corporation of America, Aberdeen.

After the reports, Brookdale President B.A. Barringer told the group the college would start making plans for the learning center based on their suggestions

Barringer said that Brookdale did not intend to compete with programs now being offered in the area. "There are a lot of good assets already here," he said. "Our intent is not to duplicate what is being done well."

The Laurel Street center is scheduled to open Jan. 18, the first day of BCC's spring term, according to Paul Zigo, the college's director of external services.

Zigo, who organized yesterday's meeting, said the academic coordinator for the facility would probably be Robert Salem, who now directs the Long Branch learning center. Zigo said Enid Sidel is being considered as a replacement for Salem.

Both day and night courses will be given at the center, housed in a school built in 1915 and added on to several times since, which contains 15,000 square feet of space.

Political row continues over sidewalks

BY BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — Republican and Democratic members of the county Board of Freeholders continued their political dispute over the installation of a sidewalk in Lincroft at the board's workshop meeting yesterday.

Yesterday's confrontation between the lone Democrat on the board — Freeholder Ray Kramer — and Freeholder Frank Self, the freeholder in charge of roads and bridges who authorized the sidewalk construction and who is running for re-election, was triggered by the surprise appearance of Charles Toop, the owner of the shopping center on whose property the disputed sidewalk was installed.

Toop, a longtime active Republican, was accompanied by his daughter. The two asserted they had agreed a year ago to donate the land to the county for the sidewalk installation. They claimed the failure of the county to obtain legal control of the strip of land before the sidewalk was installed by county road department workers three weeks ago was caused by the attorneys for the two sides.

But Toop appeared most upset that he had been dragged into a political dispute over the sidewalk and a sign that was erected on shopping center property in support of the candidacies of Self, Freeholder Clement Sommers, and the two Republican candidates for Middletown Township Committee — incumbent Paul Linder and Paul Corcoran.

Kramer and the two Democrats running for freeholder — former Freeholder Thomas J. Lynch of Middletown and John D'Amico of Oceanport — had charged the sign was erected by county workers right near the site of the sidewalk construction, and was removed only after the Democrats publicized the "impropriety."

But Toop and his daughter insisted they had put up the sign on their own property and they had later taken it down.

Kramer, however, continued to insist the sidewalk was illegally installed. And he said he has asked acting County Prosecutor Charles Buckley to investigate the expenditure of county funds for construction of a sidewalk "on private property."

Kramer also contended the construction was never authorized by the freeholders, and that the sidewalk did not appear on the original

Township cops recover $5,000 in stolen jewels

BY KATHLEEN STANLEY

MIDDLETOWN — Police confiscated a wealth of jewelry and expensive glassware Wednesday after they arrested a 29-year-old Long Branch woman for allegedly stealing the valuables while she cleaned area homes.

Diane Buffaloe, of 230 Pleasure Bay Apartments, Long Branch, was charged with theft and possession of stolen property following an investigation by township detectives.

The investigation began when a township resident filed a formal complaint against Buffaloe when a small amount of jewelry was discovered missing shortly after she had cleaned the home, Capt. William Halliday said yesterday.

Buffaloe's arrest came three days later, when police identified some of the stolen property in the domestic's home, Halliday added.

So far, three township homeowners and a Rumson resident, all of whom employed Buffaloe, have identified some of the confiscated loot, valued at approximately $5,000.

But, only 10 percent of the items have been identified, and police are continuing to search for countless other victims who may have been robbed unknowingly by the alleged thief.

The victimized homeowners may have discovered something missing, but decided they had either misplaced or lost the small trinket, police added.

Since the arrest, detectives have been sifting through the large number of treasures, examining and marking each stolen ring, necklace, bracelet, charm, and dish taken from Buffaloe's apartment. They continue to hunt for clues which may

BY TED LOUD

MARLBORO — The township has been given 20 days to respond to a state restraining order preventing local officials from issuing summonses against Imperial Oil Co., Orchard Place, whose property is listed by federal and state authorities as a hazardous waste site.

Township Attorney Arthur Gold-

zweig said the township received the civil action summons from state Superior Court Wednesday. The suit was filed by the firm's attorneys, Pitney, Hardin, Kipp and Szuch of New York.

The Imperial site is ranked 211th on the federal Environmental Protection Agency's list of the 418 worst toxic sites in the country. It ranks 35th on the EPA list of 65 sites in New Jersey slated for "Superfund" cleanup money.

The state Department of Environmental Protection has ordered the firm to "cease and desist in the discharge" of runoff water into Birch Swamp Brook which flows into Lake Lefferts, Matawan, until Imperial can prove levels of arsenic do not exceed set limits. A 2-year-old consent agreement between Imperial and the DEP calls for the imposition of fines if provisions of the agreement are violated.

Imperial has already pleaded guilty to two violations of township ordinances. Municipal Court Judge Michael Silberstein fined the company Sept. 26 $500 for both violations, plus court costs.

"That amounts to a slap on the hand," Mayor Saul Hornik charged at last night's township council workshop meeting.

The Imperial facility blends lubrication and transmission oils from raw materials which are stored on-site in above-ground bulk storage tanks.

The firm claims its operation produces no waste by-products and causes no discharge of liquid wastes.

However, health officials have found evidence of lead, arsenic, oil contamination and cancer-causing polychlorinated biphenyls, PCBs at the site. An arsenic manufacturing plant operated on the site years ago, before Champion Chemical Co., present owners of the property, moved in.

"If it's so safe there, let them move their own families next door to the plant," Hornik said, referring to the company officials.

The mayor said he has directed Township Engineer David Birnbaum and police to monitor the plant for liquid waste discharges after rainfall.

The plant operates an oil water separator system which is supposed to remove oil from rainwater runoff. Imperial claims the separator system sufficiently safeguards against potentially toxic oil spills, within EPA and DEP guidelines.

"Then why has the site been declared toxic by both the state and the federal government?" Hornik quipped.

The mayor also expressed concern that Imperial's consent order with the DEP provided Imperial with an "excuse" to circumvent municipal actions against the firm.

"The DEP is playing Russian roulette with us," he charged.

Hornik said he has written to both the DEP and the EPA requesting federal contracts with Imperial be suspended until they "clean up their act." He also suggested the township stop doing business with the firm.

Marlboro buys approximately $200 a month worth of oil from Imperial, according to the mayor. In spite of the pending litigation, Hornik assured the council that local officials will continue to "keep an eye on them."

Mall to investigate sewer hookups

BY RAY GERMANN

OCEAN — The owners of Seaview Square Mall have begun an investigation to determine whether the mall is guilty of an illegal sewer hookup.

Officials of the Township Sewerage Authority said approximately 30,000 gallons of sewage from an unauthorized mall connection have been treated, but not paid for.

John Miller, a spokesman for Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, which owns the mall, said yesterday company personnel will determine "as quickly as possible" if an unauthorized connection does exist.

"I don't know how long the study will take," Miller said. "But we want to get this thing resolved as quickly as possible, and we hope to come to a conclusion soon."

He would not comment on the specifics of the planned investigation.

David Weinstein, authority attorney, said at a recent meeting that the unauthorized sewage flows through a pipe which runs under the mall parking lot. A hookup into the line was evidently made without notifying the authority, officials said.

The hookup was discovered approximately two months ago, Weinstein said. Miller said the company currently has no idea when or how the alleged connection was made.

BY DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — Campaigning for public office can be long and tiring. And it certainly doesn't do much for the office seekers' morale when more of them show up at a debate than voters.

At the most recent forum last night, not even the lights assisting a local television crew were strong enough to blind the 18 candidates from the fact that few people came to hear what they had to say.

Perhaps for that reason, most of the speeches sounded like official readings of campaign literature. The candidates for local, county and state seats took great pains to outline their biographies and legislative goals.

The affair, sponsored by the Greater Red Bank Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, took more than two hours.

Just before the end, Agostinho Monteiro, the moderator, summed up the atmosphere.

"I hope that voter apathy won't be like this on election day (Nov. 8)," he said. "Too many people don't take government seriously until they need something."

Even some of the expected confrontations never materialized because incumbents and challengers showed up at different times.

This was particularly true with the state Senate candidates from both the 12th and 13th Legislative Districts.

From the 12th, Democratic challenger Alexander D. Lehrer, and Republican incumbent S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, missed one another by almost two hours. Lehrer spoke first and left, while Gagliano did not appear until the end.

Lehrer used his allotted three minutes to stress his record as county prosecutor. He emphasized the crackdown on drugs users and dealers during his five years in office.

"We realized that 70 percent of the crime in Monmouth County was related to the use and distribution of illicit drugs and we set up a narcotics strike force," Lehrer said. "I went to the freeholders and they said there weren't any funds for it."

"I then went to Trenton and found $50,000 in unused funds from 1976," Lehrer continued. "In 3 years, we apprehended and convicted over 800 drug users and dealers who were convicted to an average of 10 years in jail. That's what this election is all about. I will roll up my sleeves and go to Trenton and get things done."

Gagliano stressed his involvement with transportation issues in the Senate, noting improvements for parking and access at Newark International Airport and the new railroad cars.

He also saw fit to discuss the economy.

"I think New Jersey is turning around," he said. "But we must be concerned that so many people are unemployed or underemployed and cannot find work. People need to work."

From the 13th district, Republican incumbent John P. "Jack" Gallagher, R-Monmouth and Middlesex, gave a thorough personal biography. He focused on his former role as chairman of the New Jersey Highway Authority — the Garden State Parkway and Arts Center — and his involvement with both the Senate Judiciary and Appropriation Committees.

"I make it my business to get things done for my district," he said. "I worked hard to get the Lily Tulip plant sold and the job training there."

A five-term assemblyman, Van Wagner detailed legislation he points to with pride.

"I was the first one to sponsor legislation of the effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans."

Ruling may hit Oceanport residents

BY TREVOR THOMAS

OCEANPORT — The recent liability judgment of almost $200,000 against the borough and five co-defendants could cost the average property owner here an extra $100 in real estate taxes if upheld, according to Councilman John D'Amico.

A U.S. District Court jury in Trenton recommended on Monday that the damages be awarded to Frank Pietroniro, a former bar owner who was evicted from his Oceanport Avenue location in 1975 by a borough urban renewal program.

D'Amico revealed during last night's Borough Council meeting that the jury had ruled that the borough and its officials had acted in "bad faith" by failing to give Pietroniro the relocation assistance to which he was entitled after the property was condemned. He expressed concern that the ruling, if upheld, might cause the borough's insurance carrier to disclaim liability for covering the damage award.

In reply, Mayor Clement Sommers, one of the defendants in the case, said that D'Amico was "playing politics" by bringing up a matter that was still in litigation. Discussing the case publicly, he said, "may prejudice the case against the Borough of Oceanport. As a councilman, you'd be remiss," he told D'Amico.

Sommers, also a county freeholder, noted that November elections were not far off and that the Democratic councilman would be campaigning against Sommers' Republican administration.

Stephen Ingram, the council's attorney, said that any comments on the case would be a "disservice" to the borough because Judge John Bissell, who presided over the six-week trial, had reserved judgment on the defendants' appeal that he overturn the jury's award. His ruling on the matter is scheduled for Nov. 7, Ingram noted. If the appeal is rejected, the council will then discuss what to do next in a closed session.

He did say, however, that both attorneys representing the defendants feel that the borough has a strong case for overturning the judgment, on the grounds that the plaintiff's case is "without merit."

D'Amico said that he was "surprised" at the mayor's "violent reaction to my straightforward questions on how we are going to cope with the issues" relating to who is liable.

"I am simply trying to get at the facts to find out what the impact might be on the citizens of Oceanport," he said. "I am disappointed that the issue was not more fully discussed."

D'Amico said, however, that he still considered Pietroniro's case to be without merit, and noted that borough attorney Joseph

E. Kelley "firmly believes" that Continental Insurance Co., the borough's carrier, will be liable. He noted also that the carrier had disclaimed liability during the trial but was forced, under court order, to represent the defendants.

If Judge Bissell does not overturn the verdict, or if it is upheld upon further appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeal in Philadelphia, the question of insurance coverage could be important to the pocketbooks of all borough property owners, he noted.

He said that if it had to be paid out of property taxes, a one-time levy of an extra five cents per $100 of assessed valuation might have to be imposed. For the average borough residential property, which D'Amico said was $100,000, that would mean an additional $50 tax.

If the borough had to cover the personal liability of the co-defendants, he added, another $50 could also be assessed.

In addition to the current mayor, who headed the council's community action committee during the period under litigation and was liable for $42,000, defendants in the case are former mayor Elwood Baxter, held liable for $32,000; former councilman George Barrett, for $12,000; and former community development director Louis Sylvain and his assistant, Nicholas Leone, for $7,000 each.

Classroom use to carry charge

BY TERRY MOORE

MANALAPAN — The Manalapan-Englishtown Regional Board of Education last night rejected school Superintendent Joseph Scozzari's recommendation to waive a room charge for a federally funded program in which children of migrant parents are tutored in the district's school buildings.

The board voted 5-3 against the superintendent's advice and immediately chose to permit the building use under the condition that a fee would be charged. Scozzari said the hourly rate per classroom is $1.70.

Scozzari called the after school program a "viable" one in which approximately 30 children are enrolled in. The program, which has been offered in the township for about eight years, has had a decline in enrollment over the years, Scozzari pointed out.

"But these children are getting services that they're not getting anywhere else," he noted.

Board President Anthony Morelli opposed the entire program. Morelli explained the word "migrant worker" applies to those who constantly move from one agricultural environment to another. "However, the children we're dealing with in this township are in school the full year round," Morelli said.

Morelli also maintained the federal government funds the program 100 percent but does not reimburse the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School district for the use of the rooms.

After the board voted against waiving the building use fee, Scozzari said, "I again disagree with the board on this action because they're hurting the children in this district without benefit."

Scozzari said the staff involved in the program will "either decide to do it elsewhere where they can get the building free or they'll pay."

Teen center site mullied

MARLBORO — The township's Teen Drop-In Center, while "not perfect," represents a "positive step" and "deserves the full support of the community," according to Mayor Saul Hornik.

Making his regular six-month update on the teen center at last night's township council workshop meeting, Hornik said it was "worthwhile for the project to continue," but that it might be advisable to move the center to a different location.

The center is currently located at the Municipal Building Annex on Wyncrest Road in a former farm house converted to provide a haven for township youths. The annex also houses a senior citizens lounge and offices for the recreation department, the registrar and the social services department.

The mayor expressed his desire for the development of a comprehensive community center to provide facilities for teen-agers and senior citizens, as well as a home for the Marlboro Acting Co., an amateur theater troupe.

Noting that the center has not received any complaints from neighborhood residents, and citing a petition recently circulated by Aberdeen High School students demanding a teen center of their own, Hornik said that the township has "moved far beyond area communities in solving the hang-out problem."

The center, for youths between the ages of 12 and 17, is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights between 7 and 9:30 p.m. Bus service is provided by the township.

The center is directed by two adult supervisors, but Hornik said supervision is only for emergencies.

"Kids want an unstructured environment, something they can call their own," he said.

According to the mayor, between 20 to 50 teen-agers visit the center on a given night.

reconstruction of the Lincroft intersection as Self had originally contended.

Kramer estimated the total cost to the county of the sidewalk construction at between $20,000 and $30,000. And he charged that title to the land on which the sidewalk was built was not obtained by the county until "the day before yesterday," or after the Democrats had challenged the legality of the construction and had charged it was a political gambit to help Self's re-election chances.

Freeholder Director Harry Larrison Jr. insisted, however, the Democrats were attempting to create a political issue out of nothing. He contended road department figures showed the cost to the county of the sidewalk construction was less than $5,000. And he and the other three Republicans on the board contended that Self did not have to come to the board for approval every time his department did "minor" work.

"I didn't believe that every small job should go to the freeholders for determination," Self asserted. "If every small safety project like this one had to be reviewed by the freeholders, we would never get out of sessions."

And Self also contended that the political sign on Toop's property was just a coincidence.

"There are hundreds of political signs all over the county right now," Self asserted. "Does Kramer believe that we shouldn't do any county work anywhere there is a sign?"

Self also pointed to a petition from the tenants of the shopping center asking for the sidewalk installation and similar demands voiced by Lincroft area residents at a public hearing a year ago.

Marlboro told to halt Imperial fines

BY TED LOUD

MARLBORO — The township has been given 20 days to respond to a state restraining order preventing local officials from issuing summonses against Imperial Oil Co., Orchard Place, whose property is listed by federal and state authorities as a hazardous waste site.

Township Attorney Arthur Gold-zweig said the township received the civil action summons from state Superior Court Wednesday. The suit was filed by the firm's attorneys, Pitney, Hardin, Kipp and Szych of New York.

The Imperial site is ranked 211th on the federal Environmental Protection Agency's list of the 418 worst toxic sites in the country. It ranks 35th on the EPA list of 65 sites in New Jersey slated for "Superfund" cleanup money.

The state Department of Environmental Protection has ordered the firm to "cease and desist in the discharge" of runoff water into Birch Swamp Brook which flows into Lake Lefferts, Matawan, until Imperial can prove levels of arsenic do not exceed set limits. A 2-year-old consent agreement between Imperial and the DEP calls for the imposition of fines if provisions of the agreement are violated.

Imperial has already pleaded guilty to two violations of township ordinances. Municipal Court Judge Michael Silberstein fined the company Sept. 26 $500 for both violations, plus court costs.

"That amounts to a slap on the hand," Mayor Saul Hornik charged at last night's township council workshop meeting.

The Imperial facility blends lubrication and transmission oils from raw materials which are stored on-site in above-ground bulk storage tanks.

The firm claims its operation produces no waste by-products and causes no discharge of liquid wastes.

However, health officials have found evidence of lead, arsenic, oil contamination and cancer-causing polychlorinated biphenyls, PCBs at the site. An arsenic manufacturing plant operated on the site years ago, before Champion Chemical Co., present owners of the property, moved in.

"If it's so safe there, let them move their own families next door to the plant," Hornik said, referring to the company officials.

The mayor said he has directed Township Engineer David Birnbaum and police to monitor the plant for liquid waste discharges after rainfall.

The plant operates an oil water separator system which is supposed to remove oil from rainwater runoff. Imperial claims the separator system sufficiently safeguards against potentially toxic oil spills, within EPA and DEP guidelines.

"Then why has the site been declared toxic by both the state and the federal government?" Hornik quipped.

The mayor also expressed concern that Imperial's consent order with the DEP provided Imperial with an "excuse" to circumvent municipal actions against the firm. "The DEP is playing Russian roulette with us," he charged.

Hornik said he has written to both the DEP and the EPA requesting federal contracts with Imperial be suspended until they "clean up their act." He also suggested the township stop doing business with the firm. Marlboro buys approximately $200 a month worth of oil from Imperial, according to the mayor.

In spite of the pending litigation, Hornik assured the council that local officials will continue to "keep an eye on them."

Light turnout recorded at NAACP political forum

BY DANIEL LOWENTHAL

RED BANK — Campaigning for public office can be long and tiring. And it certainly doesn't do much for the office seekers' morale when more of them show up at a debate than voters.

At the most recent forum last night, not even the lights assisting a local television crew were strong enough to blind the 18 candidates from the fact that few people came to hear what they had to say.

Perhaps for that reason, most of the speeches sounded like official readings of campaign literature. The candidates for local, county and state seats took great pains to outline their biographies and legislative goals.

The affair, sponsored by the Greater Red Bank Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, took more than two hours.

Just before the end, Agostinho Monteiro, the moderator, summed up the atmosphere.

"I hope that voter apathy won't be like this on election day (Nov. 8)," he said. "Too many people don't take government seriously until they need something."

Even some of the expected confrontations never materialized because incumbents and challengers showed up at different times.

This was particularly true with the state Senate candidates from both the 12th and 13th Legislative Districts.

From the 12th, Democratic challenger Alexander D. Lehrer, and Republican incumbent S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, missed one another by almost two hours. Lehrer spoke first and left, while Gagliano did not appear until the end.

Lehrer used his allotted three minutes to stress his record as county prosecutor. He emphasized the crackdown on drugs users and dealers during his five years in office.

"We realized that 70 percent of the crime in Monmouth County was related to the use and distribution of illicit drugs and we set up a narcotics strike force," Lehrer said. "I went to the freeholders and they said there weren't any funds for it."

"I then went to Trenton and found $50,000 in unused funds from 1976," Lehrer continued. "In 3 years, we apprehended and convicted over 800 drug users and dealers who were convicted to an average of 10 years in jail. That's what this election is all about. I will roll up my sleeves and go to Trenton and get things done."

Gagliano stressed his involvement with transportation issues in the Senate, noting improvements for parking and access at Newark International Airport and the new railroad cars.

He also saw fit to discuss the economy.

"I think New Jersey is turning around," he said. "But we must be concerned that so many people are unemployed or underemployed and cannot find work. People need to work."

From the 13th district, Republican incumbent John P. "Jack" Gallagher, R-Monmouth and Middlesex, gave a thorough personal biography. He focused on his former role as chairman of the New Jersey Highway Authority — the Garden State Parkway and Arts Center — and his involvement with both the Senate Judiciary and Appropriation Committees.

"I make it my business to get things done for my district," he said. "I worked hard to get the Lily Tulip plant sold and the job training there."

A five-term assemblyman, Van Wagner detailed legislation he points to with pride.

"I was the first one to sponsor legislation of the effects of Agent Orange on Vietnam veterans," he said. The National Conference on State Legislators used it as a prototype. Now, similar legislation is in effect in 14 states."

Van Wagner also said he introduced legislation making preschool services available to the handicapped, and co-sponsored legislation to strengthen and enforce affirmative action.

"This is the type of record I'd like to take to the state Senate," he said. "I've been campaigning door-to-door and hope I will be successful in two weeks."

Freeholder race heats up as hopefuls trade barbs

BY BARBARA KATELL

FREEHOLD — Republican and Democratic members of the county Board of Freeholders continued their political dispute over the installation of a sidewalk in Lincroft at the board's workshop meeting yesterday.

Yesterday's confrontation between the lone Democrat on the board — Freeholder Ray Kramer — and Freeholder Frank Self, the freeholder in charge of roads and bridges who authorized the sidewalk construction and who is running for re-election, was triggered by the surprise appearance of Charles Toop, the owner of the shopping center on whose property the disputed sidewalk was installed.

Toop, a longtime active Republican, was accompanied by his daughter. The two asserted they had agreed a year ago to donate the land to the county for the sidewalk installation. They claimed the failure of the county to obtain legal control of the strip of land before the sidewalk was installed by county road department workers three weeks ago was caused by the attorneys for the two sides.

But Toop appeared most upset that he had been dragged into a political dispute over the sidewalk and a sign that was erected on shopping center property in support of the candidacies of Self, Freeholder Clement Sommers, and the two Republican candidates for Middletown Township Committee — incumbent Paul Linder and Paul Corcoran.

Kramer and the two Democrats running for freeholder — former Freeholder Thomas J. Lynch of Middletown and John D'Amico of Oceanport — had charged the sign was erected by county workers right near the site of the sidewalk construction, and was removed only after the Democrats publicized the "impropriety."

But Toop and his daughter insisted they had put up the sign on their own property and they had later taken it down.

Kramer, however, continued to insist the sidewalk was illegally installed. And he said he has asked acting County Prosecutor Charles Buckley to investigate the expenditure of county funds for construction of a sidewalk "on private property."

Kramer also contended the construction was never authorized by the freeholders, and that the sidewalk did not appear on the original plans for the reconstruction of the Lincroft intersection as Self had originally contended.

Kramer estimated the total cost to the county of the sidewalk construction at between $20,000 and $30,000. And he charged that title to the land on which the sidewalk was built was not obtained by the county until "the day before yesterday," or after the Democrats had challenged the legality of the construction and had charged it was a political gambit to help Self's re-election chances.

Freeholder Director Harry Larison Jr. insisted, however, the Democrats were attempting to create a political issue out of nothing. He contended road department figures showed the cost to the county of the sidewalk construction was less than $5,000. And he and the other three Republicans on the board contended that Self did not have to come to the board for approval every time his department did "minor" work.

"I didn't believe that every small job should go to the freeholders for determination," Self asserted. "If every small safety project like this one had to be reviewed by the freeholders, we would never get out of sessions."

And Self also contended that the political sign on Toop's property was just a coincidence.

"There are hundreds of political signs all over the county right now," Self asserted. "Does Kramer believe that we shouldn't do any county work anywhere there is a sign?"

Self also pointed to a petition from the tenants of the shopping center asking for the sidewalk installation and similar demands voiced by Lincroft area residents at a public hearing a year ago.

But Kramer said the desires of the area residents did not answer the question of whether the installation of the sidewalk "with public funds on private property" was a legal act.

In his letter to Buckley calling for an investigation, Kramer also argued that sidewalk construction was a rare county undertaking and was never done without authorization of the freeholder board.

"I have been present at every freeholder meeting for the past nine months and 13 days and can state that no resolution was introduced or presented to authorize... the expenditure of county funds for this sidewalk," Kramer said.

Russell selected to occupy spot on Colts Neck board

BY WENDY PENSTON

COLTS NECK — The School Board announced last night its selection to fill the vacancy left by Dr. Gerald Pflug, who resigned earlier in the year when he moved to Indiana.

Virginia Russell, an eight-year resident of the township, was appointed to fill the rest of the unexpired term of Pflug. A active follower of the activities of the board, Russell has two daughters ages 11 and 13, in the school system.

After attending the Marlboro High School open school night Wednesday night, Board member Peggy Cardin reported parents she spoke with were looking into forming a parent teacher's association. Cardin also said they were receptive to the idea of changing the name of the school to Marlboro-Colts Neck High School.

In a more distressing vein, School Board Secretary James Moran told the board that on the weekends of Oct. 1 and Oct. 8, a color television, a copying machine and a video recorder had been stolen from the library. A complete police investigation is under way, he said. As a result of the thefts, all portable equipment was moved to a more secure area with new bolt locks on the doors. In addition to stepping up surveillance, Moran said police were given a complete list of personnel authorized to be in the building.

Moran also reported the roof of the Conover School was leaking. The condition of the roof will be analyzed before it is decided whether to replace the roof all at once or by sections.

"We are lucky that the design of the roof will allow us to work up to convenient stops if we decide to do it that way," he said.

Moran also reported a safety deposit box was leased to keep the spare set of microfilms of administration and student records.

Superintendent Dr. Thomas Davis said teachers are meeting to discuss the recently distributed district-wide test scores.

"Most students score well above grade level," he said, "and we want to keep track of what we're doing right and do even better if possible."

Using the test scores as a guide, Davis said students will be given the necessary individualized attention.

In other matters, Davis expressed sadness over the resignation of Stella Maunsel, a physical education teacher.

"She has a warmth and enthusiasm that is accepted by her students and she has a very special way of working with the youngest students. She will be missed."

Maunsel, whose resignation takes effect Dec. 31, has been with the school system for 15 years.

Mayor makes pitch to change site of township teen center

MARLBORO — The township's Teen Drop-In Center, while "not perfect," represents a "positive step" and "deserves the full support of the community," according to Mayor Saul Hornik.

Making his regular six-month update on the teen center at last night's township council workshop meeting, Hornik said it was "worthwhile for the project to continue," but that it might be advisable to move the center to a different location.

The center is currently located at the Municipal Building Annex on Wyncrest Road in a former farm house converted to provide a haven for township youths. The annex also houses a senior citizens lounge and offices for the recreation department, the registrar and the social services department.

The mayor expressed his desire for the development of a comprehensive community center to provide facilities for teen-agers and senior citizens, as well as a home for the Marlboro Acting Co., an amateur theater troupe.

Noting that the center has not received any complaints from neighborhood residents, and citing a petition recently circulated by Aberdeen High School students demanding a teen center of their own, Hornik said that the township has "moved far beyond area communities in solving the hang-out problem."

The center, for youths between the ages of 12 and 17, is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights between 7 and 9:30 p.m. Bus service is provided by the township.

The center is directed by two adult supervisors, but Hornik said supervision is only for emergencies. "Kids want an unstructured environment, something they can call their own," he said.

According to the mayor, between 20 to 50 teen-agers visit the center on a given night. He said the program draws a cross-section of youths from "all over town, and from every income bracket."

The center provides a pool table, a pin-pong table, video games and a television lounge.

"What we want is a place where kids can be kids without getting into dangerous outside influences" such as drugs and alcohol, Hornik said.

As for the possibility of moving the center to a new facility, the mayor said "there may be some independent groups planning centers, which would alleviate our problems." He did not say which groups he was referring to.

Classroom use to carry fee

BY TERRY MOORE

MANALAPAN — The Manalapan-Englishtown Regional Board of Education last night rejected school Superintendent Joseph Scozzari's recommendation to waive a room charge for a federally funded program in which children of migrant parents are tutored in the district's school buildings.

The board voted 5-3 against the superintendent's advice and immediately chose to permit the building use under the condition that a fee would be charged. Scozzari said the hourly rate per classroom is $1.70.

Scozzari called the after school program a "viable" one in which approximately 30 children are enrolled in. The program, which has been offered in the township for about eight years, has had a decline in enrollment over the years, Scozzari pointed out.

"But these children are getting services that they're not getting anywhere else," he noted.

Board President Anthony Morelli opposed the entire program. Morelli explained the word "migrant worker" applies to those who constantly move from one agricultural environment to another. "However, the children we're dealing with in this township are in school the full year round," Morelli said.

Morelli also maintained the federal government funds the program 100 percent but does not reimburse the Manalapan-Englishtown Regional School district for the use of the rooms.

After the board voted against waiving the building use fee, Scozzari said, "I again disagree with the board on this action because they're hurting the children in this district without benefit."

Scozzari said the staff involved in the program will "either decide to do it elsewhere where they can get the building free or they'll pay."

BCC asks feedback on new Bayshore building

BY LIZ SHEEHAN

HAZLET — For the first time in Brookdale Community College's history, local residents will help decide what courses will be offered at a community learning center.

College officials invited approximately 80 Bayshore community leaders to lunch yesterday at the new nine-classroom college learning center on Laurel Avenue in West Keansburg, and asked them to help design college courses appropriate for their area.

But a number of those present were also concerned with what the new center would be called.

Several representatives, including Judy Miller, manager of ambulatory services at MCOSS-Hartshorne Health Center, asked the college not to name the new facility the Bayshore Learning Center.

Miller said Bayshore residents feel they have a "stigma" and "believe they are not wanted, and don't have ability." She asked Brookdale officials to help change this image. Miller suggested that the building be called the Northern Monmouth Learning Center.

Gordon N. Litwin, president of the college's Board of Trustees, opened the meeting, saying the Bayshore is "one of the dynamic areas of Monmouth County, and Brookdale wants to share in the area's growth."

JAMES MURRAY

While dining on tomatoes stuffed with shrimp salad, the guests — including Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth and Middlesex — conferred with college staff members scattered around the 11 tables.

The participants were handed a series of questions prepared by Brookdale staff members. After 90 minutes of discussion, the results were read to the entire group.

Among the prospective courses mentioned by many of the round-table groups were:

- household financial management
  - parenting
  - basic skills
  - computer skills
- Joseph Caruso, superintendent of the Keansburg school district, asked BCC officials to press for improved public transportation to the learning center.

Caruso noted that the only bus line serving the area runs on Route 36 along the shore line, leaving many residents without a way to get to the school.

James Murray, executive director of Bayshore Youth Services, suggested that a shuttle bus be run from the main campus in Lincroft to Laurel Avenue.

Murray also asked that the center provide services for single parents.

The last speaker called for remedial and basic skills training.

"We have eighteen-year-olds who can't fill out application forms," said B.J. Lobermann Jr., general manager of Container Corporation of America, Aberdeen.

After the reports, Brookdale President B.A. Barringer told the group the college would start making plans for the learning center based on their suggestions.

Barringer said that Brookdale did not intend to compete with programs now being offered in the area. "There are a lot of good assets already here," he said. "Our intent is not to duplicate what is being done well."

The Laurel Street center is scheduled to open Jan. 18, the first day of BCC's spring term, according to Paul Zigo, the college's director of external services.

Zigo, who organized yesterday's meeting, said the academic coordinator for the facility would probably be Robert Salem, who now directs the Long Branch learning center. Zigo said that Enid Sidel is being considered to replace Salem.

Both day and night courses will be given at the center, housed in a school built in 1915 and added on to several times since.

City woman nabbed in string of thefts

MIDDLETOWN — Police confiscated a wealth of jewelry and expensive glassware Wednesday after they arrested a 29-year-old Long Branch woman for allegedly stealing the valuables while she cleaned area homes.

Diane Buffaloe, of 230 Pleasure Bay Apartments, Long Branch, was charged with theft and possession of stolen property following an investigation by township detectives.

The investigation began when a township resident filed a formal complaint against Buffaloe when a small amount of jewelry was discovered missing shortly after she had cleaned the home. Capt. William Halliday said yesterday.

Buffaloe's arrest came three days later, when police identified some of the stolen property in the domestic's home, Halliday added.

So far, three township homeowners and a Rumson resident, all of whom employed Buffaloe, have identified some of the confiscated loot, valued at approximately $5,000.

But, only 10 percent of the items have been identified, and police are continuing to search for countless other victims who may have been robbed unknowingly by the alleged thief.

The victimized homeowners may have discovered something missing, but decided they had either misplaced or lost the small trinket, police added.

Since the arrest, detectives have been sifting through the large number of treasures, examining and marking each stolen ring, necklace, bracelet, charm, and dish taken from Buffaloe's apartment. They continue to hunt for clues which may eventually lead to finding the owners of the valuable merchandise, Halliday said.

In addition, police have asked any area resident who may have employed Buffaloe to contact their local police departments or call Lt. William Brunt, in charge of the investigation, at the Middletown Police Department.

Halliday credited Detective Jack Gaynor of the Rumson Police Department with assisting in the eventual arrest of Buffaloe, who apparently has been cleaning area homes for approximately two years.

Buffaloe has been released on $5,000 bail, Halliday added.

A preliminary hearing date has been scheduled for Friday, Oct. 28.

Township man convicted in slaying

BY IO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — A Superior Court jury yesterday convicted a Middletown man of murder for the shotgun slaying last winter of Alan Ball, 29, in an argument over "a parking ticket, a bottle of gin and an arm wrestle."

After less than two hours of deliberation, Richard Orr, 56, was convicted on all counts for shooting Ball Feb. 8 after the younger man had entered his kitchen and the two began to argue.

The jury rejected defense attorney Robert Holden's insanity defense. Orr shot Ball in the stomach point-blank with a sawed-off shotgun at his 29 Demmert Ave. house.

Ball, who was living at 53 E. Garfield Ave.

with Beatrice Shiovone, the sole witness to the murder, died a few hours after the shooting on an operating table at Riverview Hospital, Red Bank. A hospital spokeswoman said he had suffered a "very extensive wound to the abdomen."

"Orr knew that what he was doing was wrong and illegal," assistant prosecutor Linda Kenney argued in her opening comments.

"Did this man really kill someone over a parking ticket? Because that's really what this case is all about," the defense countered in its opening.

During the 3½ day trial, the two sides presented psychiatric testimony as well as accounts of the shooting by Shiovone and several police officers who arrived on the scene shortly after the attack.

Orr was found seated at a kitchen table a few feet away from the dying Ball, dressed in his underwear. He had apparently been drinking, according to Patrolman James Eastmond, one of the first officers on the scene.

In a signed statement given on the night of the murder, Orr admitted to committing the murder after Ball had threatened to shoot him with a .45-caliber weapon during an earlier telephone conversation.

Eastmond also reported that when he admitted to the murder, Orr said, "Yeah, I shot the son-of-a-bitch, and I hope he dies."

NAACP political forum

"I'm the type of person I'd like to see in office," Mollica quipped in summing up. "Look, if you don't do your own selling, nobody will."

Republican incumbent Assemblywoman Marie S. Muhler, R-Monmouth, made a late appearance. She stressed her work on educational issues and interest in improving the infrastructure.

"It's time to repair the roads and bridges, to get low-interest loans for water, sewers and transportation. Next term, that's an area I'd like to see us more involved in."

Of the four candidates for county freeholder, only Democrat Thomas Lynch put in an appearance. A freeholder from 1975 to 1980, Lynch explained that under the Democrats, the freeholders consolidated many departments.

"There was much overlapping," he said. "There were separate departments for bridges and highways, but we consolidated them into the Department of Public Works. I very rarely have seen a bridge that a road doesn't lead to, particularly in Monmouth County."

One of the only direct debates occurred between the two candidates for sheriff, Republican incumbent Sheriff William M. Lanzaro and Democratic challenger Andrew Manning.

Both candidates agreed that overcrowding of the county jail can be traced to the state. Lanzaro took credit for increasing the payment to the county from $20.30 to $42.95 per day for each state prisoner.

Lanzaro said he would like to see legislation passed allowing municipal judges the discretion to incarcerate criminals or have them participate in a county workfare program.

Sea Bright Councilman Manning, a former state trooper and county detective, made a pitch for putting non-violent prisoners to work.

"The overcrowding is not the fault of Monmouth County officials," Manning said. "Let's use the National Guard-armories, which are owned by the state and have non-violent state-sentenced criminals placed there — the frauds, gamblers, and bookmakers. Remove them from the county jail and place them under the state correctional officers."

"Also, take the non-violent county prisoners and have them work in the municipalities," Manning added.

Also participating in the debate were Red Bank Council candidates, Republicans: incumbent George Ward and challenger Paul J. Forsman, and Democrats: incumbent Thomas E. Hintelmann and Robert S. Susser.

The Eatontown Council candidates also stopped by. They are Democrats: incumbent Theodore F. Lewis Jr. and challenger Kent Blanchard, and Republicans: incumbent Michael DiComo and challenger Clarice Funk.

HAZLET — Free gymnastics workouts are open to boys in grades five through eight at Raritan High School on Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. The high school gymnastics coaches and former and current outstanding Raritan gymnasts will give coaching tips through Nov. 12.

KEANSBURG — The Halloween costume contest will be held at 10 a.m. at the JFK Community Center, 179 Carr Ave. Due to construction of streets and roads in the borough, the usual parade line of march has been dispensed with.

RED BANK — Emotions Anonymous, a self-help group which seeks to improve emotional health, will meet from 10 to 11 a.m. at the First Baptist Church.

MONDAY

LAURENCE HARBOR — The Community Covenant Church, 22 Laurence Parkway, offers a special religious education program for mentally handicapped persons from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the church. Non-denominational classes are taught each Monday evening.

FREEHOLD — HOPE (Helping Other People Evolve), a self-help group for widows and widowers, meets at 8 p.m. Mondays in the Monmouth Social Services Building on Kozloski Road. It is free and open to the public. For information, contact Dot Reutter, Lincroft, or Marion Kraft, Farmingdale.

TUESDAY

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — The Freehold Area Hospital Venereal Disease Clinic is conducted at 6 p.m. Tuesdays. No appointments are necessary.

KEANSBURG — The Department of Parks and Recreation is sponsoring an aerobics program on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:15 p.m. at the Keansburg High School gymnasium. The classes run for one hour. For additional information, call the Department of Parks and Recreation, Ext. 53.

WEDNESDAY

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — The Liberty Oaks Chapter of Sweet Adelines will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Public Safety Building.

FREEHOLD TOWNSHIP — The Freehold Chapter of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) meets weekly at the Wellness Center, Freehold Area Hospital, Wednesdays from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

COLTS NECK — The Shore Hills Chapter of Sweet Adelines announces its weekly meetings, Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. at the Colts Neck Reformed Church.

RED BANK — Riverview Hospital's new Stroke Support Group for families of stroke patients will meet at 10 a.m. in the Nurses' Conference Room on the first floor.

MIDDLETOWN — Court Fulgens Corona, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold its second annual Chinese auction at 7 p.m. at St. Mary's Church Memorial Hall, New Monmouth. Admission includes refreshments.

HOLMDEL — The Cancer Support Group of Bayshore Community Hospital will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital board room. Newcomers are welcome.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

RECOGNIZED FOR EFFORTS — Freeholder Ray Kramer presents a proclamation to Carol Goldberg of Freehold Township, co-president of the Monmouth County Chapter of the Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities. The Monmouth County Board of Freeholders designated October as ACALD month in Monmouth County. The presentation took place with a balloon launch by members of the association in the parking lot next to the Hall of Records, Freehold.

Bikers roll on to aid disease

HOLMDEL — A bike-a-thon to benefit Cystic Fibrosis will be conducted from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday. Vince Pizzolo, of Holmdel, will chair the event with assistance from members of the Holmdel Jaycees and the YOU youth group (Youth Organization United) of St. Catherine's Church.

The bike-a-thon will take place on the perimeter road of the Prudential Complex at the junction of Route 520 and Holmdel Road.

Ride participants, who need not be members of the church or sponsoring organizations, will solicit pledges for each mile ridden up to a maximum of 25 miles.

Cystic Fibrosis is an incurable children's genetic disease which attacks the lungs and digestive system. Sponsors of riders in the bike event will help the CF Foundation reach its goal of a control and cure for the deadly disease.

Further information or sign-up forms can be obtained through Pizzolo or the church.

WORKING WAY UP — Kathryn Gibbons of Freehold, former Diagnosis Related Group coordinator at Jersey Shore Medical Center, has been promoted to internal auditor. Gibbons earned a bachelor's degree in accounting and finance from La Salle College in Philadelphia and is presently working toward a certificate in computer science from Monmouth College.

ON CAMPUS

LITTLE SILVER — James Andrew Szipszky, son of Frank and Linda Szipszky, 609 Prospect Ave., has been awarded a Ball State University honors scholarship for non-resident students. The awards are based on academic ability, character, creativity and leadership potential. Szipszky plans to major in architecture.

LITTLE SILVER — Steve D. Wollman, son of Henry and Liela Wollman, 82 Laurel Drive, has been named to the dean's list at Rochester Institute of Technology, Rochester, N.Y., where he is enrolled in the mechanical engineering technology program.

SHREWSBURY — Ann Kezer, 26 Shadowbrook Road, a history major at Beaver College, Glenside, Pa., is one of 241 students from 89 colleges and universities enrolled in the British University Year sponsored by Beaver College in cooperation with 11 British universities and colleges. Kezer is a student at Trinity College at the University of Edinburgh.

LITTLE SILVER — Diane Apostolocus, 34 Rustic Terrace, has been awarded a $500 competition scholarship at Alfred University, Alfred, N.Y., where she is a ceramics student majoring in art and design.

Hospital screens for illnesses

HAZLET — A health screening fair will be held between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. Saturday in the Hazlet Firehouse, Holmdel Road. The fair will offer a wide variety of health screenings, informative literature, mini-health films and an opportunity to discuss screening results with family practice specialists. The event is sponsored by the family practice section of Bayshore Community Hospital in cooperation with the Monmouth Chapter of the N. J. Academy of Family Physicians. Screenings will include: cardiac risk, hypertension, anemia, cholesterol, diabetes, stress and others. Those interested in the free glucose screening should fast from midnight Friday. The fair will offer health information and counseling for persons of all ages. Physicians cooperating are from Monmouth Medical Center, Riverview, Freehold Area and JFB Hospitals in addition to Bayshore.

Tourists abandon pets at shore, officials say

Shoreline animal shelters are in the midst of one of their busiest times of the year when they pick up — and often must destroy — strays abandoned by summer tourists, a practice called by one official, "dispose-a-pet."

"When they leave town after their vacations are over, they leave the animal," said Doris Clossey, president of the Atlantic County branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"You feel like an executioner," Kandace Arnold, shelter manager for the SPCA in Cape May County, added yesterday. She estimated that the number of animals put to sleep in her shelter during the last year "would go into the thousands."

The strays abandoned by tourists are "what makes us so busy in between June and October," Arnold said.

Hundreds, and in some years, thousands, of dogs and cats must be destroyed in animal shelters straining to keep up with the growing populations of unwanted pets, shelter officials said.

More than 350 animals were put to sleep at the Atlantic County SPCA in the last year, said Clossey.

Karen Towne, administrative director of the Monmouth County SPCA shelter who coined the term "dispose-a-pet," said 375 animals were destroyed at her facility last July alone.

SPCA officials in Ocean County could not be reached for comment.

Clossey said her crew has arrived for work on mornings to find dogs and cats tied to the fence outside and puppies and kittens left in boxes at the doorstep. Most of the problems occur when tourists are heading home.

"They all want puppies, and as soon as they get a little too big for them, they push them out the door," Clossey said, noting that more than 3,000 pets pass through the doors of her tiny shelter in Pleasantville each year.

"They are amusement for the children for the summer," said Towne. "And then, when the summer is over, they go back home and leave the pet behind."

In rare cases, pet owners are caught driving away after dropping off their cat or dog on a roadway, the animals become scavengers, sick creatures who rummage through garbage cans to survive, officials said.

"We are putting out more and more literature into the community on the responsibility of pet ownership," said Towne. "We don't allow people who just rent for the summer to adopt a pet."

"If we cannot get a good quality home for them they are better off humanely destroyed. We do not believe in holding animals indefinitely in a cage," she added.

"Whoever drops off a pet and just drops it off and leaves, should try living in an animal shelter for a while, because these dogs and cats go through a psychological thing," said Arnold. "Nine times out of 10 these animals have to be destroyed."

PSE&G may not appeal NRC fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public Service Electric & Gas Co. is leaning toward not appealing a record $850,000 fine imposed by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for last winter's equipment failures at the troubled Salem I nuclear power plant, according to documents the company has filed with the government.

In the same papers, the utility also reiterated that it intends to recover from its customers the millions of dollars lost because of the shutdown. PSE&G filed the forms with the federal Securities and Exchange Commission on Tuesday. The utility estimates that it paid nearly $5 million extra to replace the electricity lost during the three-month shutdown of the reactor in Lower Alloways Creek.

The plant was shut down Feb. 25 after the automatic safety system had failed to operate for the second time in three days. A top NRC official called the problem the most serious at an American nuclear power plant since the Three Mile Island accident near Harrisburg, Pa., in March 1979.

The company noted that its decision on whether to pay the $850,000 fine is due by Oct. 29.

"The company does not believe that the expense which would be involved in appealing the matter further would be justified," it stated in the papers.

But PSE&G spokesman Neil Brown, contacted at company headquarters in Newark, N.J. yesterday, said officials have still not decided on whether to press their appeal of the penalty.

"No final decision has been made on that."

In the papers, which are routinely filed by corporations when they experience important financial changes, PSE&G also stated, "The company believes that its actions with respect to the outage are sufficient to justify the recovery from customers of all costs associated with the outage."

PSE&G, the state's largest utility, has 1.7 million electric and 1.3 million gas customers in a service area stretching from Bergen County to south of Camden.

Study finds women get jobs easier

MORRISTOWN (AP) — Women were four times more successful than men in obtaining employment in traditionally male-dominated and highly paid jobs between 1972 and 1982, a U.S. Labor Department official says.

Women accounted for four-fifths of the growth in the state's workforce during that period, Samuel Ehrenhalt, regional commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics told the International Commerce Club here Wednesday.

The number of women in the workforce increased by 316,000 over the decade, with 1.4 million female workers today accounting for 42 percent of New Jersey's 3.3 million member labor force, Ehrenhalt said.

"What these new women workers are doing is an even more striking thing," the commissioner told the business group.

"More than half of the increase, 178,900 of the 316,000 additional women workers, have found positions in the professional, technical and managerial fields," he said.

"Women, indeed, are helping to reshape, and in a very significant way, the economy of New Jersey," he added.

No quick Karas verdict

"Based upon the preposterous story that this defendant related to you when he took the stand, your verdict should be quick, and sure, and guilty," Chaiet said.

Karas spent 1 1/2 days on the stand relaying how Williams slowly and ingeniously set him up before and after the murder with the ultimate purpose of implicating him as revenge for rejecting her.

"Balance her story against the defendant's tale," Chaiet urged. "Which one holds up, which one makes more sense, which one corroborates what happened?"

"I'm telling you, she reads Alfred Hitchcock," Addonizio charged. "The girl's got a weird imagination." He referred to Williams' account of the different murder methods she and Karas considered before deciding on stabbing. Possibilities included a bathtub accident, cutting Anne Karas' brake lines, overdosing her on drugs and shooting her. "I was waiting for her to throw a hand grenade in her living room or put quicksand in there," Addonizio said.

Chaiet attacked the defense's case through the "preponderance" of circumstantial evidence. "It's a strange coincidence that this man walks his wife over to the same place (where Williams waited, crouched behind a dumpster) and all of a sudden he loses his keys. And at that precise moment she's attacked and mugged."

And while his wife lay bleeding to death in a West End parking lot, Chaiet said, Karas' "feeble response" is out of character for a "trained police officer."

"He doesn't get a good description of the assailant. He doesn't catch anyone. He doesn't help his wife," Chaiet said. He also addressed the defense argument that it would be pure folly to plan a murder for a Saturday night in a busy part of town.

"Maybe someone that's clever and devious would think that's an excellent way to steer any suspicion from his direction," Chaiet suggested. Four facts cannot be disputed, the prosecutor added: Williams committed the murder, Williams and Karas were having a relationship, Karas purchased a fishing knife the day before the murder and Karas happened to have another knife at his home to account for the knife purchase.

Addonizio attacked the state's evidence and said there are several "reasonable doubts" to justify acquitting his client.

"I know that of 12 people, I am not going to instill reasonable doubt in all of you," he said. But Addonizio appealed to those with doubts and said, "do not shut your ears to the cries of doubt. Do not, because it means my client's life — incarceration."

"Each of you has your own moral code ... his own belief regarding marital fidelity and extramarital affairs. You have your feelings and your absolute convictions about that, but a man who cheats on his wife is not on trial here," Addonizio said. "Don't be embarrassed if you can tell the State of New Jersey, 'You came real close, you got the tape conversations, but what else have you got?'"

The evidence surrounding the purchase of the knife is insignificant, he argued, because expert testimony indicated that the single-edged knife could not have inflicted most of the 22 stab wounds on Anne Karas' body. But Chaiet said the disagreement between his expert witness and that of the defense is only a "smoke, screen" in the overwhelming evidence against Karas.

Mary Claire Williams, Addonizio concluded, has been diagnosed as suffering from a borderline personality disorder and is not a reliable witness. "She is cold, calculating, and she didn't give a damn about Anne Karas," he said. Furthermore, the plea arrangement she received in exchange for her testimony gives her good reason to implicate Karas and lie on the witness stand.

"I would suggest that if there is an actress in the bunch — in this courtroom — it is Mary Claire," Addonizio said.

"Do you think this defendant might lie on the witness stand to save his own neck?" Chaiet asked in answer to his adversary's allegation.

"Do not be afraid to listen to what's in the pit of your stomach," Addonizio urged.

"I'm asking you, with all my heart and all my soul, not to keep your mouth shut in this case," Chaiet said, facetiously paraphrasing Karas' plea to Williams on tape to keep quiet about the murder. "Go into the jury room, consider the evidence, and come out with a clear and true verdict and let it ring through the courthouse."

Holmdel firm to train 236

"We felt this facility was ideal for our purposes," Hurley said. "The location was close to our other existing facilities, there is an available pool of labor, and we've had the excellent cooperation of the mayor and council of Holmdel."

According to state Labor Commissioner Roger Bodman, who accompanied Kean to the Holmdel plant, the state Employment Service of the Labor Department and the staff of the Monmouth County Service Delivery Area will recruit and screen job applicants for the company. The employment service will target the unemployed, economically disadvantaged, displaced workers and the working poor in seeking job applicants.

Kean said the funds for the $202,530 training contract with the company are being provided under the $4 million state jobs bill, which he signed into law Sept. 1. Bodman said the contract calls for the company and state to split the cost of salaries during the on-the-job training period. Company personnel will provide the actual instruction.

Bodman also announced that Com-Data may receive another $300,000 training contract through the county's Private Industry Council, which would provide job training for approximately 400 persons.

"The later contract could involve a combination of JTPA (Job Training Partnership Act) funds and state training funds," Bodman said. "We will be working the details out in the weeks ahead with PIC and the company."

Kean commended Gallagher and Bodman for "meeting with company officials and developing the training contract."

"Through the efforts of Senator Gallagher and Commissioner Bodman, Dr. Hurley and his staff learned that we are very serious when we say we want to expand job opportunities in our state, and will work with private employers to bring this about," Kean asserted.

Gallagher and his opponent for the 13th (Bayshore) District Senate seat — Assemblyman Richard Van Wagner, D-Monmouth and Middlesex — have been engaged in a long-running competition to help the approximately 800 employees laid off when Lily Tulip closed its doors a year ago.

Van Wagner was the sponsor of legislation to provide funding for retraining of former Lily Tulip, Kerr Glass Co. and other displaced workers in the county and state.

Gallagher, who was less successful with bills he sponsored in the Democratic-controlled state Legislature, instead worked through the Republican administration of Kean.

When Crown bought the former Lily Tulip plant in May, company officials said that approximately 300 people would be hired initially to handle plant start-up, with another 1,200 to be employed by mid-1985. Yesterday's estimate of a total of 1,000 employees, therefore, represents a somewhat less optimistic forecast.

The Route 35 plant, which was originally built in 1951, is the largest manufacturing plant in the county and is located on a 140-acre parcel on the west side of Route 35.

'Mane' event: 53rd Hunt Meet

BY DIANE RIKER

MIDDLETOWN — Fair skies and brisk temperatures are forecast for tomorrow's 53rd running of the Hunt Meet, Monmouth County's annual celebration of horses and hills.

Although attendance is expected to be down somewhat from last year's traffic-stopping $1,000, a record purse is predicted for the 21 participating charities, according to Schuyler Van Vechten, president of the Race Meet Committee. Last year's take came to $105,000.

Special patrols went on duty last night under a full moon, guarding the tents erected on the hillside at Woodland Farm where more than 30 horses will have checked in by late tonight.

And today, all over the county, people are hard-boiling eggs, reading recipes for cold lemon chicken and assembling the gingham tablecloths and corkscrews for tomorrow's picnics.

The meet, one of only two steeplechase — or cross-country — race programs in the New York area, has become a much-anticipated festival, part sport and suspense, part high fashion and high gourmet.

Some go to watch superb animals perform in five demanding races over rolling terrain. More go to bask in the autumnal splendor of the 500-acre former Haskell estate, where the Meet began in 1930 as a private party for the owner's friends.

This year will see the Meet's first corporate tent, to shelter 100 guests of Delphi Petroleum Inc. of Red Bank on a hilltop overlooking the course.

Next year Van Vechten expects to accommodate 10 corporate tents.

This year, also for the first time, cars will not be admitted through the main gates on Cooper Road without a $200 trackside parking sticker, a $110 reserved overlook picnic parking sticker or a $70 estate parking sticker, all purchased in advance.

Pedestrians, paying a $10 admission fee, will be welcomed, however.

"We're not trying to keep people out," Van Vechten emphasized. "But when everyone drove in, traffic could be tied up for an hour. And when their ice was melting and their sandwiches turning blue, people complained."

Starting at 10 a.m. tomorrow until about 2 p.m., the Middletown Fire Department will provide 15 buses at the Middletown Railroad Station for the 20-minute ride to the race site. "Park and Ride" tickets may be purchased for $10 in the station lot.

Post time is 2 p.m. Highlights of the program will be the ninth running of the Metcalf Memorial, a two-mile test over brush barriers, named in honor of Manton B. Metcalf Jr., and the 29th running of the Monmouth County Hunt Cup, a three-mile race over post and rail fences in honor of the late Amory L. Haskell.

When the last race is run, or at about 4 p.m., buses will start shuttling hunters back to their cars. But when the last tent and tailgate are folded up, the last hamper emptied, the last horse cooled down, the county will start anticipating the 54th Hunt Meet.

BEAUTIFUL SETTING — The rolling landscape will be on hand for the 53rd annual event, with crowds lining various vantage points to catch the action. Pictured is a portion of the race course which

Gregory talk to give Head Start a boost

POINT PLEASANT — Dick Gregory, the celebrated black comedian and community activist, will be the guest speaker at a luncheon to be held by Monmouth County Head Start at 2 p.m. Sunday at Beacon Manor, Ocean Avenue.

Joseph E. Taylor, chairman of the Inter-Community Coordinating Council's board of directors, Monmouth County Head Start, will be honored during the luncheon. He has been associated with the coordinating council for 17 years.

Taylor is also executive director of the Private Industry Council, Monmouth County, where he is charged with overall responsibility for administration and program direction. He is also founder and president of Jet Associates, Inc.

Taylor worked for a time for the Monmouth County Welfare Board and the Monmouth Community Action Program where he served as executive director.

Gregory, who gained fame as a comedian, is a political and human rights activist, social satirist, author, lecturer, recording artist and actor. He combines these roles to serve the cause of human liberation and to alleviate human suffering. His participation in the Civil Rights movement in the 1960s and efforts toward achieving the release of American hostages in Iran and for world peace, hunger and the rights of American Indians are well documented.

Gregory's talk will begin at 3 p.m.

The amount of housework has not been cut

BY ELLEN GOODMAN

When the Census Bureau rounded up the usual statistics, they recorded another step in the movement of women into the work force. The figures released in their special report on women show that in 1950 less than one-third of adult females were employed outside their homes, and by 1980 more than half were.

In response to this familiar phenomenon, we were offered a familiar explanation. "One reason," said a researcher, "is that there is less work to do at home."

By now the notion that there is less work to do at home has become the accepted wisdom of modern America. It is an article of faith that the wonders of modern technology have freed women from the household burdens of their foremothers.

After all, women don't make candles, soap and cloth at home anymore. We have stoves and washing machines and even vacuum cleaners. With machines doing the housework — so the theory goes — women could, perhaps had to, go outside the house to work.

What this theory does is to simultaneously knock the amount of household labor done by both the average housewife and the average employed wife. But this favorite theory just doesn't hold up to rigorous analysis.

The real effects of household technology on women's lives have been much more ambiguous than we generally believe. Modern tools may have eliminated drudgery — we don't wash our clothes by the river with stones anymore — but they do not seem to have reduced the amount of labor women actually perform.

Ruth Cowan, a professor at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, makes this point in her new history of household technology with the give-away title, "More Work for Mother." At the beginning of American history, she shows, most chores of daily life were shared by men and women. To make a meal, men chopped the wood, women cooked the stew. One by one, men's tasks were industrialized outside the home, while women's stayed inside. Men stopped chopping wood, but women kept cooking.

Homemaking technology raised our level of comfort and standard of living, but didn't lower the amount of women's work. The stove, which replaced the open hearth, made cooking easier in one way and more complicated in another. At the same time, the three-part meal replaced the one-pot meal. Today, with or without a microwave oven, frozen and occasional fast food, the average woman spends 21 hours a week on meals, once you include shopping, cooking, serving and cleaning up.

As for laundry, our ancestors generally had fewer clothes and/or more help keeping them clean. Laundry was one of the few housekeeping chores that had been industrialized in the 19th and 20th centuries. For a time, commercial laundries picked up and delivered the wash to most middle-class households.

The advent of the washing machine during World War II meant, says Cowan, that "the woman endowed with a Bendix would have found it easier to do her laundry but, simultaneously, would have done more laundry and more of it herself than either her mother or her grandmother had."

Technology has increased the productivity of the average housekeeper. The good news is that by 1950 a housewife could do what it took a staff of three or four to do in 1850. The bad news is that she did it alone.

It also changed the nature of housework. As Cowan writes, "Before industrialization, women fed, clothed and nursed their families by preparing ... food, clothing and medication. In the post-industrial age, women feed, clothe and nurse their families ... by cooking, cleaning, driving, shopping and waiting. The nature of the work has changed, but the goal is still there and so is the necessity for time-consuming labor."

It is just not true that American women entered the job market because they had time on their hands. Even today housewives spend 50 hours a week on work related to homes and family, and employed wives spend 35 hours a week. Both still do housework virtually alone.

But it is true that technology has allowed mothers — who go to the marketplace for one reason or another — to do so without damaging their families in crucial ways. The family of today's working mother, unlike that of half-a-century ago, doesn't have dirty clothes and cold meals.

But they probably have a weary mother. If all this makes you skeptical about the value of "labor-saving" devices, good. Machinery may glut the market, but the commodity most in demand is in short supply. It's that precious thing called human help.

Husband's visits with youth raise questions

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has made me feel as if I am mentally deranged because I am highly critical of the following situation.

His son by a former marriage is 20 and sex-crazy. I don't need to tell you there are plenty of young girls around who go half naked with everything hanging out. It's enough to make a man's brain come unhitched.

My stepson "Gary" has a 17-year-old girlfriend who visits his bedroom with the door closed. The first time this happened I told him I did not approve of such goings on, and he told me it was 1983 and to mind my own business.

On several occasions when Gary left to make a phone call or to take a shower, my husband went into the bedroom to visit with the girl. He also kept the door closed. The last time this happened I told him I thought it was improper for him to be alone with the girl. He blew his top, said I was insanely jealous, that my mind was warped and she was "just a kid." (Some kid — a 40-inch bust and two layers of false eyelashes.)

I do not think he is getting intimate with this "kid," but I believe it is in terrible taste to run into the bedroom every time his son leaves. When I told him to cut it out, he yelled, "You are crazy!" Am I? — Fuming In Morristown

Dear Fuming: He's the crazy one, but you aren't going to change him — so don't try. The whole thing smells like a barrel of lost herring.

Dear Ann Landers: My letter and your reply may be helpful to many middle-aged women with aging mothers.

I am employed, with children of my own. My mother is a widow in good health, financially secure and lives nearby. She is by no means alone. The woman has sisters and brothers who also live nearby, as well as friends and pleasant neighbors.

The problem: Our daily phone calls and frequent visits are becoming extremely unpleasant. The reason: My mother has always adored gossip but now she is obsessed with it. I can no longer tell her anything personal or confidential. No matter how many times I make her promise she will not repeat it, within two days everything I say in confidence comes back to me. You would not believe the number of hours she spends on the telephone and the dimensions of her network.

I feel used, and it infuriates me. How demeaning it is to be forced to weigh every word that comes out of my mouth. It seems the only safe topic is the weather. I feel guilty that I have these feelings about my own mother, but it's the only way I can protect myself. Comment, please. — Zipper Lip In Texas

Dear Zip: Trust, that basic element of friendship, is lacking in your relationship with your mother. Obviously you feel betrayed. Moreover, it is apparent that your mother uses gossip as currency — a common practice among people who have little else to offer.

You already have solved the problem by limiting your conversations to inconsequential subjects.

You didn't need advice, just someone to unload on. I'm glad you wrote.

Drugs? How much is too much? Is pot OK? Is cocaine too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (37 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Practical nurses are graduated

FREEHOLD — Graduation exercises for the 63rd Class of Practical Nurses from the Monmouth County Vocational School were held at Brookdale Community College, Lincroft.

Sidney B. Johnson, president of the Monmouth County Vocational School District Board of Education addressed the group: Diplomas were awarded the graduates by Marcia A. Deitz, vice president of the Monmouth County Vocational School District, assisted by Edward F. Davey, superintendent of schools.

Outstanding nursing achievement awards were presented to Donna Carter, Eatontown, and Catherine Normann, Freehold, along with their regular diplomas.

Other graduates were Midga Arce and Debra Laurent, Long Branch; Janine Begley, West End; Maureen Burger, Beth Travers and Charlene

Loenser, Howell; Doris Cahill and Bonnie Patton, Belford; Jacqueline Cedeno, Englishtown; Donna Cherry, Lisa Genovese and Mary Clougher, Hazlet; Denise Clark, Spring Lake; Colleen Clarke and Nancy Ann Frascino, Middletown; John Eckert and Ruth Sweet, Asbury Park; Barbara Frazee, Keansburg; Shelia Griffin, Aberdeen; Cheryl McGhee, Nancy Heulitt and Ethel Satter, Freehold; Charlotte Kavanaugh, Sea Girt; Wendy Kearns, Cliffwood Beach; Kelly Letts, Julie Waldenmeyer and Terrie Stradford, Red Bank; Wanda Mateo, Keyport; Catherine McKeon, Manasquan; Barbara McPhee, Union Beach; Eileen Regan, Wall; Cathy Sarraf, Eatontown; Charlotte Sullivan, South Belmar; Donna Sullivan, Port Monmouth; Eileen Thompson, Spring Lake Heights, and Laura Wicks, Marlboro.

After taking a licensing exam, graduates may be employed in a variety of health care agencies. Follow-up studies show approximately 94 percent employment.

'Card' will be treasured

DEAR HELOISE: My nephew is at the age when all he wants for his birthday is money so that he can buy the things he wants.

I suggested to my mother and sister that instead of getting him cards (which either end up in a drawer or the wastebasket) that they put the money in comic books.

He really got a kick out of all the different comics he received and who knows, they may even be worth something someday.

So, if you're planning to send a card with money, why not substitute a magazine or book for the card?

Telethon set

EATONTOWN — The Monmouth County Association for Children with Learning Disabilities will have its Third Annual Telethon tomorrow, from 4 p.m. to midnight and on Sunday, from noon to 9 p.m., at Storer Cable Communications, 403 South St. The event is to acquaint the public with the association and its services.

A balloon launch scheduled to coincide with the telethon is set for Sunday at 2 p.m. at Storer.

Honorary telethon chairman is Assemblyman Joseph A. Palaia, R-Monmouth. Hosts will be Vince Hartnett, Bijan Yakouboff, Patrice McCaronn and Vince Santarelli.

The public is invited and admission will be free.

Bags of mother's milk can also be frozen. All you need to do is thaw under running water and heat to proper temperature. Refrigerated milk should be used within a few hours. — M. Pennie

P.S. I checked with the LaLeche League and they said if the milk is frozen at a temperature of 0 degrees F, it can be stored for up to six months. If frozen above this temperature, store milk for no longer than two weeks. (Check the temperature of your freezer.) Hugs — Heloise

WEDDING BEDDING Dear Heloise: Here's my contribution to your "Hints."

I had bought bedding — sheets, blankets, mattress pads and pillows, etc. — for my granddaughter's wedding shower. Then I had the problem of how to pack them for wrapping.

I purchased a cardboard storage chest and all but the pillows fit in nicely. So besides the linen, she had a box for storing odds and ends. — Mrs. Edwin Lutz.

Definitely a "double duty" idea. How thoughtful of you! — Heloise

Poached fish retains its taste and texture

BY BARBARA GIBBONS

Frying may be the most popular way to cook fish, but it's poaching that best preserves the delicate taste and texture. Poaching is also the least fattening.

There's no mystery to poaching fish; it simply means cooking the fish gently in seasoned water or other liquid just until the moment it's done. Fish can be poached on top of the range in a pan or covered skillet, in the microwave oven in a dish covered with plastic wrap, or in the oven in a shallow glass baking dish covered with foil.

The timing will vary depending on the cooking method chosen and the type and thickness of the fish. Fillets of sole or flounder are finished in about 5 minutes in a skillet on top of the range; thicker, denser fish like salmon steaks will take a few minutes longer. The oven takes more time and the microwave takes less. So the important thing to know is that fish is cooked the very minute the flesh turns opaque and begins to flake. Perfectly done fish retains its natural moisture, tender texture and delicate flavor; overcooked fish is dry and tasteless.

The liquid used to poach fish need not be wasted; it can be the base of an interesting sauce. While conventional recipes turn poaching liquid into high-calorie sauces made with fat, flour and a lot of fuss, there are easy ways to blend the poaching liquid with low-calorie ingredients:

BASIC LOW-CAL POACHED FISH

- A few thin slices of onion
- A few sprigs parsley (or celery) leaves
- Bay leaves
- Salt, pepper, to taste
- 1 pound fish fillets or steaks (cod, haddock, salmon, flounder, sole, bass, etc.)
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1/2 cup water

Put vegetables and seasonings on the bottom of a non-stick skillet. Add the fish in a single layer. Pour on wine and water. Cover tightly and simmer only until fish turns opaque, about 5 minutes. Carefully remove fish to a heated platter. Strain poaching liquid, discarding bay leaves and use liquid to make a sauce. Yield: 4 servings poached fish, under 100 calories each (cod).

Some sauce ideas:

DILL SAUCE: Combine hot poaching liquid with equal part low-calorie mayonnaise and minced fresh dillweed leaves; 25 calories per tablespoon.

FRESH HERB SAUCE: Combine poaching liquid with equal amount low-calorie mayonnaise, plus 2 tablespoons each: chopped fresh parsley and chives. Add 2 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves, if available, or a pinch of dried thyme. About 25 calories per tablespoon.

GREEK AVGOLEMONO SAUCE: Combine third-cup poaching liquid with quarter-cup low-calorie mayonnaise, quarter-cup plain low-fat yogurt, quarter-cup minced fresh parsley, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Add salt (or garlic salt) and pepper, to taste. Approximately 15 calories per tablespoon.

HOT TARTAR SAUCE: Combine third-cup hot poaching liquid with third-cup low-calorie mayonnaise. Add 2 tablespoons each: minced chives (or onion), drained pickle relish, fresh chopped parsley. About 20 calories per tablespoon.

RED CURRY SAUCE: Substitute tomato juice for the poaching liquid in cooking. After fish is poached, combine tomato poaching liquid with 2 teaspoons soy sauce, 1 tablespoon raisins, 1 tablespoon shredded coconut (optional) and 1 tablespoon curry powder (or to taste); simmer 1 minute; pour over fish. Approximately 10 calories per tablespoon.

1-3 Bucs, Caseys renew old rivalry

BY KEN DEMPSEY

Another chapter in the Red Bank Catholic vs. Red Bank Regional High School football series will be written tomorrow afternoon when the Caseys travel to meet the Buccaneers in a Shore Conference "B" Division North game.

And as both teams convene at the Bucs' home site in Little Silver, this encounter will serve as nothing more than an opportunity for one team to shine some light onto what has been a disappointing year for both schools.

For the Bucs and Caseys it's been a year of bad breaks and inconsistent play on both offensive and defense, which has resulted in identical 1-3 records.

"We have had some rather disastrous moments this year, but tomorrow's game gives both teams an opportunity to play against their friends," first-year Red Bank Regional coach Doug Woodin said. "We are striving to improve with each game and it has been tough for the kids because they are trying to learn a new system."

Although RBC enters the game with a lowly 1-3 mark, Woodin feels the Caseys have compiled a rather "deceiving record."

"RBC is a very competitive team. They have lost some very close games — to Shore Regional and Manalapan — but their record to date is not indicative of the type of team that they are," noted Woodin, who was an assistant under the present Casey coach, Lou Montanaro, from 1972 to 1978.

"I have a tremendous amount of respect for Lou and his program," Woodin added. "I know we have had our trouble scoring points this year — seven in four games — but we are hoping to change that tomorrow."

As for Montanaro, who is in his eighth year at the helm of RBC,

"You know it's a funny thing," he said. "I really don't get caught up with the rivalry and all that talk. I'm more concerned about my own team."

"Doug is very good friend of mine and I know it will be a little different with him on the opposite side of the field tomorrow. But we've been involved in some good things when we were on the same side of the field and we will be involved in some good things when we are on the opposite side, too."

Here's a look at the rest of the lineup:

Tonight

"A" North
Neptune (1-3) at Manalapan (1-3) 8 p.m. Neptune has a breakout threat in running back Mike Eskridge. The Braves have been very inconsistent, as have the Scarlet Fliers, but look for Eskridge to display some of that scoring punch.

"B" North
Shore Reg. (3-1) at Ocean Twp. (4-0) 7:30 p.m. Ocean, which is ranked fifth in The Register Top 10 Poll, has been led by sophomore quarterback Matt Errico and receiver John Neis. But Spartan linebacker Steve Brown has excelled all year and has had to take a backseat to Errico and company. Brown will make his presence felt against the Blue Devils.

"B" South
Pt. Boro (1-3) at Wall (4-0) 7:30 p.m. Wall has had back-to-back offensive masterpieces turned in by running back Bill Schneider, against Howell, and Frank Garguilo, against Freehold Township. That combo alone should be more than enough for the Panthers.

Others
Monmouth Reg. (1-3) at Msgr. Donovan (3-1) 7:30 p.m. Donovan has one of the Shore's most balanced See Bucs, C5

Register photos by Don Lordi and Larry Perna
FACING FACTS — Red Bank Regional High School linebacker Bill Bowie, 86, puts pressure on Raritan QB Greg Kovar during the second game of the season, won by Raritan, 21-0. Red Bank hosts arch-rival Red Bank Catholic, coached by Lou Montanaro (inset), in a 1:30 start tomorrow.

LOU, LOU — Yankee outfielder Lou Piniella says more good year of baseball left in him. Piniella hopes the Yankees feel the same way.

Lou wants one more year

NEWARK (AP) — New York Yankees player-coach Lou Piniella is convinced he has "one more good year left" and said he has told the team's management he wants to return next year for his 11th season with the Yankees.

"I know I have one more good year left in me and I'd like to give it one more whirl," the 40-year-old outfielder and hitting instructor said.

He said watching peers like Pete Rose and Joe Morgan in the World Series has convinced him that his playing days are not over just because he is 40 years old.

Piniella, who batted .291, his career average, but had only two homers and 16 RBIs in 148 at bats, said he thought he would retire after the season ended.

"I watched the playoffs and World Series on TV," Piniella said from his home in Allendale. "I saw those guys running around and I got the itch again. I'd relish the thought of coming back," said Piniella, who will be 41 next August.

Piniella said he has told Yankees' General Manager Murray Cook that he wants to return next year.

"We're going to talk again next week," he said. "If they decide they don't want me, I won't fight it. I'll retire and be the batting coach. But from what George Steinbrenner told me a few days ago, they're interested in having me back. I think I can help the club as a pinch hitter and part-time player."

Piniella said he will begin a conditioning program soon to prepare him for spring training.

"Let's face it, I need a body tuneup," said Piniella, who batted only twice in the Yankees' last 45 games. "I've never been a physical fitness nut and I've never worked too hard during the off-season. But now I realize it's a necessity."

"Last year, I wasn't ready. I hurt my shoulder before I got to spring training and then I had trouble adjusting to being a player-coach. I concerned myself too much about the coach part, not enough about the player. All in all, it was a dismal season."

"But I'm going to get myself in shape now," he said. "And I think I can help the club for one more year. With Yaz (Carl Yastrzemski) and Gaylord Perry and some of the old guys retiring, I might be among the last of the oldies. I'd like to show that the old guys can still do the job."

Will Rose go back to Reds?

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are interested in talking to Pete Rose about returning to Cincinnati to finish his major league career where it began and reached its heights, but not at the conditions he wants.

"Certainly the Reds would be interested in talking with Pete Rose. But, it seems to be the conditions he has laid down would not fit our situation that we have here in Cincinnati," said Bob Howsam, the Reds president. "I can understand what Pete is looking for and why he wants it."

Rose, with the Philadelphia Phillies since 1979, became a 42-year old without a job this week when he took his release from the Philadelphia Phillies rather than accept the role of a parttime player.

Rose, a key member of the The Big Red Machine during the Reds glory days, became a free agent in 1978 after playing out his option and signed with Philadelphia.

"I'm sure there are some teams out there who want me," he told reporters.

Kansas City Royals General Manager John Schuerholz said Rose's name "certainly will come up in an evaluation of all players who are available."

"If I had position open I'd take him," said Dallas Green, Chicago Cubs general manager, who added that he already had three first basemen and felt that at Rose's age it would be difficult for him to play everyday in the outfield.

"We don't have any place to play him," said Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves, who had actively sought Rose when he was in the 1978 re-entry draft.

Dupree predicts action by 1985

University of Southern Mississippi yesterday after leaving Oklahoma last week. The course was entitled: Coaching Tennis.

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Marcus Dupree attended his first day of class at the University of Southern Mississippi yesterday and predicted he would be back on the football field in 1985 "if not sooner."

Under NCAA regulations, the star running back who transferred from the University of Oklahoma, is ineligible to play for one year.

But at a news conference, Dupree noted the case of quarterback Jon English, who has been fighting the eligibility rule in Louisiana courts.

English played six games under court order while judges considered his arguments. After the state Supreme Court rejected his appeal last Thursday, English watched from the sidelines as Tulane defeated Southwestern Louisiana. The case is now back in federal district court in New Orleans.

Dupree said he was not contemplating filing a lawsuit now, but added, "You never know what might happen."

Dave Berst, director of enforcement for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said if Dupree's classes meet requirements, he could become eligible to play football as early as Oct. 20, 1984.

USM could decide to play him for the remainder of the 1984 season, or "red shirt" him, retaining his status as a junior until 1985 and as a senior in 1986.

The 19-year-old sophomore enrolled at Southern Mississippi late Wednesday, a week after he announced he was unhappy at Oklahoma and wanted to play football closer to his Philadelphia, Miss., home.

Coach Barry Switzer dropped Dupree from the team last week after he failed to return to the Norman, Okla., campus after a weekend stay in Mississippi.

Before officials at Southern Mississippi whisked him off to class, Dupree said he "wanted to get my mind off football for a while and concentrate on my school work."

Jim Carmody, Southern Mississippi's football coach, declined comment.

"We are in the midst of preparing for this week's home game against Tulane and will not do anything to alter our daily routine. Therefore, I have no comment on this at this time," he said.

Dupree, who could turn pro any time after the 1985 season when his original college class is to be graduated, says he's not thinking of pro ball now: "I want to have fun playing college football."

Owens to manage Phillies for one more year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "I did a good job, I like the job, and my people wanted me back," said Paul Owens after signing for one more year as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

He will be managing the National League champions, though, with his successor beside him in the dugout.

Bill Giles, club president, in announcing Owens' re-signing Thursday, said that John Felske, manager of the Portland farm team in the Pacific Coast League, would be brought in as a coach and groomed to take over as field boss in 1985.

Owens, at 59 the league's oldest manager, led the Phillies to the pennant after replacing Pat Corrales on July 18 while retaining his job as general manager.

"Over the last eight years we've won more games than any other club and we've been in the World Series two of the last four years. I think the man mainly responsible for that is Paul. He told me he wants to manage again, so he's got the job," said Giles.

Owens is relinquishing his general manager's role and Tony Siegle takes over with the title, vice president baseball administration. Siegle, executive assistant to Giles, will sign players.

"I've been a little disillusioned over the general manager's job over the last six or seven years," Owens said. "The game has changed. I'm tired of the haggling with agents. You can't make deals because of complex player contracts. I'm glad to get away from all that."

Giles, however, said Owens and chief scout Hugh Alexander still would make the trades.

A number of other moves were announced by the Phillies less than one week after losing the World Series to the Baltimore Orioles.

Jim Baumer, head of the farm system, was promoted to vice president, director of player development and scouting.

Bobby Wine was dropped as a coach and coaches Claude Osteen, Dave Bristol, Deron Johnson and Mike Ryan were retained. Lee Elia, fired last season as manager of the Chicago Cubs, was named successor to Felske at Portland.

Giles said Felske would have the title, dugout assistant. He said it was felt that the Portland skipper needed some experience in the National League, especially operating without the designated hitter.

When Owens steps down he will become a player talent advisor to Giles under a five year contract.

Owens said he decided he wanted to come back because, "we have a chance to repeat what we did this year. I'm confident we will put on as good a show as we did in 1983."

Owens noted, "I am real pleased that they want me to come back, and after a little bit of consideration I decided that I would like to come back."

When Owens came down from the front office to replace the fired Corrales, the Phillies were tied for first place, one game over .500.

Still, Giles and Owens were unhappy with the team's performance and fired Corrales.

"There is something wrong with this club," Giles said at the time. "Paul and I have kicked around the idea of making a change. We both felt he'd be the best person to run the club for the rest of the season. Next year he'll return to his role in the front office."

Owens instituted a platoon system unpopular with many veteran players on the club. Despite their complaints he persevered and the club caught fire in September when it won 22 games in the stretch drive, including 11 straight.

Under Owens, they were 47-30, a .610 clip, and won the NL East. They defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers in the NL championship playoff.

Owens said his biggest disappointment was the loss in the Series, and the opportunity to go all the way in 1984 was another reason for his decision to return as manager.

Owens has been in the Phillies' organization 27 years as a minor league manager, scout, farm director, general manager and now as manager.

Bet Big wins

EAST RUTHERFORD (AP) — Bet Big snapped a long losing streak by winning last night's $53,550 Palisades Handicap at the Meadowlands.

"No problem," said Jean-Luc Samyn, who rode the winner. "He ran a good race even though the track wasn't favoring speed tonight."

Bet Big covered the mile and 1-16th over a fast track in 1:43 4-5.

Cozzene, ridden by Angel Cordero, Jr., came from fourth place at the top of the stretch to challenge. The finish gave Bet Big the victory by a head. Jacque's Tip placed third.

Knicks beat Bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — Ray Williams and Bill Cartwright spurred a fourth quarter explosion as the New York Knicks topped the Milwaukee Bucks 102-81 in a National Basketball Association exhibition game last night.

The Knicks, evening their exhibition record at 3-3, outscored the Bucks 16-3 in the first 6:03 of the period to move from a 69-68 deficit to an 85-71 advantage. They outscored the Bucks 34-12 in the period.

Rory Sparrow had 18 points to lead the Knicks and Cartwright had 16 points and 12 rebounds. Louis Orr had 13 and Williams and Rudy Macklin 10 each.

Charlie Criss and Junior Bridgeman led Milwaukee with 14 apiece.

Clippers 114, Mavericks 107

FORT WORTH, Texas — Terry Cummings scored 25 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the San Diego Clippers over the Dallas Mavericks.

Bill Garnett scored 19 rebounds to lead Dallas. Kurt Nimphius, who had nine rebounds, added 10 points for the Mavericks. For San Diego, Norm Nixon, recently acquired from Los Angeles, added 11 points and 10 assists.

San Diego, 3-4 in preseason games, took the lead early in the fourth quarter and held it until the third quarter. The Mavericks tied the game with 2:28 left in the period and went ahead 79-77 with 1:39 left.

San Diego rallied for an 83-83 tie going into the final quarter, and the Clippers outscored Dallas 31-24 the rest of the way.

Rockets 131, Spurs 121

HOUSTON — Houston guard Phil Ford scored 25 points and veteran Elvin Hayes hit 10 crucial fourth-quarter points to lead the Rockets to their first exhibition victory of the season.

San Antonio cut Houston's lead to three points with five minutes to play in the game but the Rockets pulled away in the final minutes.

George Gervin led the Spurs with 23 points, including 14 in the first quarter.

Lewis Lloyd and Hayes scored 22 points for the Rockets and rookie Ralph Sampson had 11 points and 10 rebounds.

Brown still in hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks Coach Hubie Brown remained in the coronary care unit yesterday at Lenox Hill Hospital where he will undergo further tests to determine the cause of his chest pains.

A spokesman for the hospital said Brown, who was admitted Wednesday after experiencing chest pains, was in good condition. Knicks spokesman John Hewig said Brown spent a comfortable night and that tests taken yesterday showed "no permanent heart damage."

Hewig added, "He will have more tests tomorrow. We don't know yet if he had a heart attack."

Dr. Norman Scott, the team physician for the National Basketball Association club, examined Brown after practice Wednesday at Upsala College and ordered him to the hospital.

"We just sort of want to watch him a couple of days," Scott said Wednesday. "We want to make sure it's nothing serious. It could be anything — an ulcer, his heart, his lungs, muscles. Obviously a guy his age, we want to watch his heart."

Brown turned 50 on Sept. 25. Assistant coaches Rick Pitino and Richie Aduabo are running the team in Brown's absence.

Riggins is doubtful for Detroit contest

The good news for Detroit is that John Riggins may not play Sunday. The bad news for the Lions is that Alvin Garrett may be in the lineup for the Washington Redskins.

Riggins, one of the National Football League's most punishing runners, has been taking quite a beating lately. The Redskins' full-back, last year's Most Valuable Player in the Super Bowl, has gained 660 yards and scored 10 touchdowns this season.

But he also has a painfully inflamed sciatic nerve in his right hip and was hospitalized for treatment at midweek.

The Lions remember him well. He rushed for 119 yards when the teams met last Jan. 8 in the teams' first-round National Conference playoff game — but the Lions no doubt have more vivid memories of Garrett.

He replaced the injured Art Monk in that game and caught six passes, three of them covering 21, 21 and 27 yards for touchdowns in the Redskins' 31-7 romp. Monk is healthy now, but fellow wide receiver Charlie Brown isn't, sidelined with a bruised ankle. So Garrett's back in the lineup.

Sunday's other games are New England at Buffalo, Atlanta at the New York Jets, Kansas City at Houston, New Orleans at Tampa Bay, Minnesota at Green Bay, Chicago at Philadelphia, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Miami at Baltimore, Pittsburgh at Seattle, San Diego at Denver, San Francisco at the Los Angeles Rams and, at night, the Los Angeles Raiders at Dallas. On Monday night it's the New York Giants at St. Louis.

"For the first time this year we are coming into a game at less than 100 percent physically," Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs said. "This is probably going to be one of our biggest challenges because we might have a lot of players missing and Detroit is really hot ... We are going to need some big efforts from people coming off the bench."

The Redskins are coming off their second loss in seven games, the 48-47 shootout in Green Bay last Monday night, while the Lions, 3-4, are shooting for their third consecutive victory, a feat they haven't achieved since November 1981. I their past two games they've beaten Green Bay 38-14 and Chicago 31-17.

Buffalo is alone atop the American Conference East at 5-2 and New England shares last place with the Jets at 3-4, but Bills Coach Kay Stephenson notes: "There's always been a special rivalry between the Patriots and the Bills, and it's always going to be a dogfight, no matter what the records."

Both teams are coming off big games, the Bills ripping Baltimore 30-7 and the Pats shocking San Diego 37-21. New England's Steve Grogan was the hot quarterback earlier this year but Joe Ferguson of the Bills is now. He has thrown eight TD passes in the past two games.

In New York, there's the drama of two teams in trouble, the 2-5 Falcons and the 3-4 Jets.

"At this point in time, we need something good to happen to get us rolling," said Jets Coach Joe Walton. "I guess 3-4 is better than 2-5, but everything is relative in this world. My mother calls me and complains that she's 70-years-old. I tell her, 'Mom, be grateful you're not 71.'"

The Falcons biggest asset has been quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who shares the NFL passing lead with Green Bay's Lynn Dickey. "Steve has put us into position to win every game," said Coach Dan Henning.

Negri lifts Rebels over Colonials

FREEHOLD — Ken Negri's fourth period goal gave Howell High School a 2-1 win over Freehold in Shore Conference "B" South scholastic soccer action yesterday.

Negri scored at 4:44 of the fourth quarter off a pass from Neso Berzannan as the Rebels improved their record to 12-2.

Ray Polovino had given Howell an unassisted goal in the second period, but Rich Daesner retaliated for Freehold in the third.

Chris Pearson had four saves for the Rebels as the Rebels limited the Colonials to just six shots. Al Patel and Steve Cook shared 10 saves in the Freehold net.

The Colonials are now 7-5-2.

"B" North
Monmouth Reg. 4, R.B. Catholic 0
RED BANK — Nicky Sacco scored two goals and assisted on one by Tony DeOrto to pace the Golden Falcons. George Trilhaa got the other Monmouth Regional tally with help from DeOrto.

Don Lewis had three saves for the

SOCCER

Falcons (8-2-1), while Chris Caputo and Lou Wycoff turned away 14 shots for the Caseys (1-12).

St. John 3, Rumson-F.H. Reg. 1
HOLMDEL — Grant Bernard celebrated his promotion to the Lancers' varsity by scoring all three goals. His first two were unassisted, and his third came off a Charlie Schafer pass.

Mark Wellner had given the Bulldogs (6-7) a 1-0 lead in the first period before Bernard went to work.

Toni Sanzio had six saves for St. John Vianney (6-4-3). Dave Gavin had 12 for the Bulldogs.

Long Branch 4, Shore Reg. 2
LONG BRANCH — The Blue Devils scored twice on goals by Peter Lucas and Phil Antoon before the Green Wave went to work.

Sal Anello assisted on goals by Carmen Juliano and Tommy Johnson in the second period to earn a tie, and Doug Spitz scored a pair of unassisted goals to win it. Vinnie Fiore and Mike Galanti had assisted on Shore Regional's first-period goals.

Willie Crawford stopped five shots for Long Branch (8-3-1), and Scott Chartier had 16 saves for Shore (4-8-2).

Ocean Twp. 4, Red Bank Reg. 1
OCEAN — Tony Maro's two first-period goals propelled Ocean past Red Bank Regional. The Spartans' Chris Zurick added a second period tally before the Bucs got on the board with Thor Hansen's score. Teddy Feindt closed out the scoring for Ocean with a third period goal.

Ocean goalie Michael Mayers had five saves while Red Bank's Ed Matthews turned away 13. Ocean improved to 7-5-2. Red Bank fell to 4-8.

"C" Division
Henry Hudson 1, Pt. Beach 0
ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Jeff Brown's goal at the 19:30 mark of the third period lifted Henry Hudson past Point Beach. The victory qualified the Admirals for their first NJSIAA tournament birth since 1977.

Hudson goalie Rick Waters turned back 16 shots to register the shutout while Beach's John Bradley had eight. The victory lifted Henry Hudson to 8-7 as the Garnet Gulls dropped to 5-10.

Holmdel 4, Pinelands 0
HOLMDEL — Garth Kelman scored two goals and Steve Holmdel tallied a goal and an assist as Holmdel downed Pinelands. Goalie Rob Ward had three saves for the Hornets, now 9-4. Pinelands (1-11) goalie Scott Read registered 18 saves.

Mater Dei 2, St. Rose 0
MIDDLETOWN — Chris Dougan's second period goal and Jay Toomey's third period tally lifted Mater Dei past St. Rose.

St. Rose took a pass from Tom Printo at the 1:36 mark to score what proved to be the game-winner.

Toomey, a senior right fullback, scored at the 10:04 mark off a pass from James Molloy. Goalie Roger Billoto and Bill Reith combined to record the shutout. The Seraphs are now 11-2 overall and 10-2 in conference play.

Long Branch clinches tie for 'B' North

Minus its top runner Hector Cruz (out with an injury), Long Branch High School's boys cross country team had a scare against Rumson-Fair Haven Regional, but held on for a 27-29 Shore Conference "B" North triumph yesterday.

The victory enables the Branchers to clinch at least a tie for the "B" North crown. Long Branch, 5-0 in the conference, has only to beat Shore Regional next week to win it.

Anthony Dean-Neil won the race for the Branchers with a 15:24 clocking. Ken Hidu of Rumson was runnerup in 15:53, but Long Branch had the next two places.

In other meets, Keyport defeated St. John Vianney, 27-31 and St. John topped Matawan, 22-34 in a double dual meet; Freehold Township blanked Wall, 15-50; Red Bank Regional topped Shore Regional, 19-43; Monmouth Regional beat Manasquan, 20-35 and Ocean Township, 15-50, and Manasquan downed Ocean,

CROSS COUNTRY

22-45, in another double dual meet; Raritan beat Red Bank Catholic, 22-34. Manalapan downed Marlboro, 23-34, and Henry Hudson shut out Keansburg, 15-49.

Keyport's win over St. John represented the first time that the Red Raiders have beaten the Lancers in boys cross country.

Dan McCarthy of St. John won the race in 17:09 followed by Matawan's J.P. Hendricks (18:16). Keyport was led by Ron Keat, who placed fourth in 18:55. Freehold Township (6-3) swept the first 10 places against Wall (2-5) in a "B" South meet. Paul Pullen won individual honors in 17:03.

Marty Houlihan led Red Bank past Shore by winning with a time of 16:38. The Bucs evened their record at 4-4. John Jones placed second for Shore (2-8) in 17:05.

Union shuts out Holmdel

HOLMDEL — Lisa Morrell scored twice and Dene Freeman added the third goal as Union High School blanked Holmdel, 3-0, yesterday in field hockey. Holmdel had six shots while Union had 15.

Heather Christman had seven saves for the Hornets (5-6-1), and Sue Zymiol was tested only once for Union (6-2-3).

Ocean Twp. 1, Neptune 0
NEPTUNE — Kathy Dowling scored the only goal in the game as Ocean Township's newly crowned Shore Conference "A" Division North champions got past Neptune.

Ocean had a 6-5 edge in shots. Spartan

Hawks defeat JSC in soccer

WEST LONG BRANCH — Former Raritan High School product Chris Eisdorfer scored two goals to lead Monmouth College to a 4-2 victory over Jersey City State yesterday in men's collegiate soccer action.

Paul Hamadyk and Len Turi tallied the other goals for the Hawks (7-5), while goalie Rusty Aaronson turned back three shots

Eagles advance in state tennis

MIDDLETOWN — Middletown High School South's girls tennis team rebounded from its first loss of the season — to Red Bank Catholic — by shutting out Madison Central in the NJSIAA Central Jersey Group IV tournament yesterday.

The Eagles (16-1) won every match in straight sets. Number one singles Chris Rehwinkel got South going with a 6-0, 6-0 whitewashing of Lisa Cherney.

Mater Dei 5, Keansburg 0
MIDDLETOWN — Mater Dei won every match in straight sets and lost only two games in its shutout of Keansburg.

Mary Beth Begley blanked Liz Ziegler, 6-0, 6-0, in the first singles as Mater Dei (11-2) lifted its Shore Conference "C" Division record to 9-1.

Pt. Beach 5, Henry Hudson 0
ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Linda Dunbar defeated Becky Chernow, 6-3, 6-4, in the first singles for Point Beach, which won every match in straight sets.

"B" North
Rumson-F.H. Reg. 4, Long Branch 1

RUMSON — Rumson-Fair Haven (11-4, 11-2) had no difficulty defeating Long Branch (0-10) in this "B" North match. Birgit Marxen defeated Stacey Crowell, 6-1, 6-3 in the first singles for Rumson.

"A" North
Marlboro 3, Middletown N. 2
MARLBORO — Marlboro (12-2) swept the doubles in defeating Middletown North and lifting its "A" North record to 10-1.

The deciding point came in the first doubles when Kathy Smith and Pam Gemmel defeated Jill Lum and Susan Ryza in a three-set thriller, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Steeler is hurt in crash

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rookie defensive lineman Gabriel Rivera, the Pittsburgh Steelers' top draft choice, was undergoing surgery for multiple head and neck injuries and was listed in critical condition early this morning following an automobile accident.

Rivera, 22, also was being treated for various contusions and abrasions, but his life was not in danger, said Fred Peterson, an Allegheny General Hospital spokesman.

"His injuries are not life-threatening," said Peterson, the director of the Lifelight helicopter that airlifted Rivera to the hospital following the 9 p.m. accident.

Police said the two-car accident occurred in Ross Township, a north Pittsburgh suburb, but there were no reports of any other injuries. Rivera was reportedly on his way to his North Hills home from a nightclub on the city's Northside.

A light rain was falling at the time of the accident.

Rivera was airlifted by Lifelight to Allegheny General from Passavant Hospital, where he was first taken, when his blood pressure dropped dramatically.

Now is the best time to go after bluefish

"The blues are committing suicide and now is the best time of the year to go," reported Capt. Howard Bogan of the party boat Jamaica, Brielle, last weekend when high hook catches were in the sixties and seventies. Quite a few albacore and some bonito were still being caught.

Most of the bluefish weighed from two to five pounds, with some up to 16 pounds. John Green of Jackson Township caught 67 bluefish and eight albacore on the boat Saturday. Ron Dikora of Cherry Hill caught a 16-pound bluefish.

Mike Maris of Red Bank was a pool winner with a sea bass on the Paramount of Brielle. Capt. David Bogan reported bottom fishing last weekend continued excellent. He said sea bass, porgies and blackfish were all abundant.

The first portion of the southern zone woodcock season will start tomorrow to run through December 3. The second portion will start on December 12 and run through December 23. The north zone woodcock season started on October 5 and will run through November 28.

The New Jersey Division of Fish, Game and Wildlife reports that large numbers of brant and snow geese are expected in the fall flight to the Atlantic Flyway states. Brant have recovered well from the starvation losses suffered during the severe winters of 1977 and 1978.

This past winter, the population of 124,000 birds represented an increase of nearly 200 percent over the 1978 low population of 44,000 birds. With mild winter conditions, brant fared well on the wintering grounds. In addition, weather conditions in the arctic were favorable and thus the fall flight is expected to consist of more than 30 percent young birds.

With larger feeding populations and excellent production, more than 150,000 brant will winter in New York, New Jersey and Virginia. New Jersey has always been attractive to brant, with usually 60 to 80 percent of the flying population wintering in our state. New Jersey populations are concentrated in the coastal zone, primarily from Barnegat Bay south to Cape May County.

Hunting regulations have been liberalized this year by increasing the length of the brant season from 30 days of a year ago to 50 days this season. The daily bag limit of two brant remains the same. The brant season will run concurrent with the coastal zone duck season (October 29-November 5, and November 23-January 3).

Snow geese also are expected to be in the state in record numbers. The 1983 spring population of 185,000 birds also experienced excellent productions of young at its arctic breeding grounds with more than 30 percent young birds. The fall flight is expected to bring more than 250,000 birds to this area, which would be an all-time high fall population.

The initial flight of snow geese arrived in New Jersey on October 10. Observations of these early flights showed a large percentage of young birds, which verifies the earlier predictions of an excellent hatch at the breeding grounds.

New Jersey is also attractive to snow geese. Between 80,000 to 100,000 birds are expected to spend the fall in the Garden State in at least six different areas. Four of the flocks are expected on Delaware Bay at Back Creek, Fortesque, Heislerville, and Dennis Creek. The other two flocks are expected to return to the Atlantic Coast area at the Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge and the Reeds-Absecon Bays.

Snow geese and brant in recent years have adapted well to hunting pressure. Annually, a small percentage of the wintering birds are taken by hunters. Since the hunting season opened in 1975-76, the annual New Jersey harvest of snow geese has average 2,000 birds. Brant are also becoming more wary. Last year the harvest of brant in New Jersey declined 50 percent from 8,000 birds during the 1981-82 season to some 4,000 birds during the 1982-83 season.

The expansion of snow geese populations has created some salt marsh habitat problems. When feeding, these birds denude large areas of existing vegetation. These so-called "eat-outs" are adversely affecting other forms of wildlife by destroying nesting cover and winter food organisms.

Studies are being conducted by both federal and state biologists to determine the effect of these snow geese "eat outs" on the flora and fauna of the salt marsh. Usually, the greatest marsh damage occurs on the National Wildlife Refuges, especially Brigantine and Bombay Hook. In the spring, the entire snow goose population congregates in the Delaware Bay area, which has been subjected to excessive marsh damage.

Last March, snow geese flocks were photographed and counted. This survey revealed more than 176,000 of these birds in Delaware Bay. Snow geese hunting season opened October 15th and closes January 12, 1984.

The Division of Fish, Game and Wildlife was scheduled to stock more than 16,000 trout in major trout waters during the week.

This is the third of seven scheduled stocking weeks in which the Division's Bureau of Freshwater Fisheries is providing a one-time fall stocking caused by a surplus of fish at the old Charles O'Hayford Fish Hatchery. The spring supply of trout for the 1984 season will be coming from the new Pequest Hatchery.

Following is a list of the waters scheduled to be stocked during the third week: Lake Hopatcong, Swartswood Lake, Greenwood Lake, Mountain Lake, Silver Lake, Spruce Run Reservoir, Sheppards Lake, Waywayanda Lake, Cranberry Lake, the Little Flatbrook, Iona Lake, Harrisonville Lake and Shadler's Sand Wash Pond.

New Jersey has a new state record for the white shark.

The record was set by Charles Stulz of Williamstown with a 501-pound white shark taken on July 17, off Cape May.

The shark was spotted at the surface and Stulz trolled a rigged mackerel which the shark took. The shark was gaffed two and a half hours later.

The shark measured 115 inches in length and had a girth of 60 inches.

The previous record for the species was a 345-pound shark taken in June 1980 off Point Pleasant.

A total of eleven species have been proposed to be added and one species removed from the New Jersey Endangered Species list.

These proposals come as a result of research done by the New Jersey Endangered and Nongame Species Program. "I want to stress that these species have not necessarily become more rare since the last revision of the endangered species list in 1979," said JoAnn Prier, Program Manager of the Endangered and Nongame Species Program.

Bucs, Caseys renew rivalry

backfields in running back Robert Gould and fullback Russel Erving. Monmouth started the year off on a high note, with a 12-0 win over Howell, but the ship is sinking.

Holmdel (2-2) at St. John Vianney (1-3) 8 p.m. St. John broke into the win column last week against Monmouth. Holmdel has been up and down all year long. This week the Hornets are due for an up.

Tomorrow "A" North

Middletown N. (4-0) at Raritan (3-1) 1:30 p.m. Middletown North moved into the top poll spot this week, thanks to Toms River South's victory over Matawan. Look for running back Pat Toland to carry the Lions past the Rockets.

Matawan (3-1) at Marlboro (2-2) 2 p.m. Many observers probably won't realize it, but this is probably Don Somma's biggest test since taking over the Huskies. Somma will try to avoid a letdown after last week's loss, and the Mustangs are coming off an impressive outing against Middletown South.

Freehold Twp. (0-4) at Middletown S. (2-2) 1:30 p.m. Things just don't get any easier for Freehold Township and coach Bob Grace. The Eagles were blown out last week, but look for running back James Martin to lead South on the right path this week.

"B" North

Long Branch (3-1) at Rumson-F.H. Reg. (2-2) 1:30 p.m. No. 8 Long Branch appears to have ironed out the kinks after an opening day loss to Raritan. The Wave has reeled off three straight and should notch a fourth against the Bulldogs, who'll be without all-purpose performer Del DalPra.

RBC (1-3) at Red Bank Reg. (1-3) 1:30 p.m. Should be a close one, but RBC placekicker Craig Abbes gives the Caseys an added offensive threat. Abbes kicked a 49-yarder last week against Long Branch. Red Bank has had its problems on offense, but senior Bill Bowie is the leader on defense.

"B" South

Howell (1-3) at Freehold (4-0) 11 a.m. Howell battled Asbury Park down to the wire last week, but the seventh-ranked Colonials are a lot better than most people think. Running back William Majors will lead the way.

Manasquan (0-4) at Central (1-3) 1:30 p.m. To say that Manasquan is having an "off year" would be putting it mildly. Trouble is, the Big Blue just can't seem to get out of the starting gate.

Allentown (2-2) at Asbury Park (4-0) 1:30 p.m. Third-ranked Asbury Park showed a lot of depth last week with four starters sitting out the Howell game because of disciplinary reasons. Makes no difference here, though.

"C" Division

Lacey (1-3) at Keansburg (3-1) 1:30 p.m. Keansburg lost a tough one to Holmdel last week, but look for Skip Cox and his Titans to rebound against Lacey. Big game for Keansburg if it still has any hopes of a division title.

Manchester (1-3) at Mater Dei (3-1) 2 p.m. When was the last time a Mater Dei football team was 3-1? You'll probably be asking yourself a different question on Sunday, like, when was the last time a Mater Dei football team was 4-1?

Keyport (4-0) at Pinelands (1-3) 1:30 p.m. Sixth-ranked Keyport is the best kept 4-0 secret in the Shore. Its backfield of Anthony Rogers and Miguel Hernandez is a tough one and ranks with the best in the area.

TOM LASORDA

Lasorda: 3-year contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tommy Lasorda, who piloted the young and troubled Los Angeles Dodgers to the National League West title this season, was rewarded yesterday with an unprecedented three-year contract.

On the heels of what many consider his best job in seven seasons of managing the Dodgers, Lasorda became the first manager to be offered a multi-year contract by the owning O'Malley family.

The late Walter O'Malley and now his son, Peter, have never offered a manager a pact for more than one year.

Even Walter Alston, who managed the club for 23 seasons starting in 1954, had to go through the fall ritual of signing a new contract each and every year.

The financial terms of Lasorda's contract were not announced, but it is believed to call for a substantial raise on the $250,000, one-year agreement he worked under this season.

"Christmas came early for the Lasorda family this year and I'm so grateful to Peter O'Malley," said the 56-year-old manager. "I have so much to be grateful for."

"The year 1983 was a rewarding one for all of us. All the people in the organization should be credited. It was a tremendous year."

Peter O'Malley, questioned about breaking the tradition of giving the Dodgers manager a one-year contract, joked. "As you know, Tommy is a very persuasive man. We wanted him to take a three-year contract, but he said, 'Oh, no. One year's enough.' We said, 'Please, Tommy, take a three-year contract.'"

Rabbit Sparmmeister. In plain English, it's a steal.

You don't have to know German to understand what Sparmmeister means. Just basic economics.

At $6,390, the 1984 Rabbit Sparmmeister is the lowest-priced Volkswagen. It's also the most economical one. Because it's a diesel. With no spark plugs, points, condensers or carburetors to tune or replace.

And Volkswagen diesels are famous for economy. On the road. And down the road.

So, now you know Sparmmeister means value leader. Try it and you'll see nothing's been lost in the translation.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER
 FRIDAY, OCT. 21

Born today, you are an executive by nature. You know how to delegate authority, how to direct a project from its inception through to its profitable conclusion, often without becoming directly involved. This does not mean, however, that you are not a hard worker. When your interest is piqued, nothing can keep you from joining the "doers" in their efforts to bring the idea-man's notions to life. You have been gifted with an excellent sense of humor that keeps you from taking yourself — and others — too seriously.

You are able to fit into almost any kind of social situation, for you can adapt the appearance of your thinking — if not your thoughts, themselves — to suit the occasion. You never try to fool yourself, but you are very good at fooling others.

Also born on this date are: Samuel Taylor Coleridge, poet; Sir Georg Solti, conductor; Whitey Ford, baseball "great."

To see what is in store for you tomorrow, find your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

SATURDAY, OCT. 22
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)— Though the cash flow be down, there's no harm in looking. Be sure to keep to window-shopping only today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)— A little trouble-shooting early in the day, makes for a time of progress and profit during p.m. hours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)— Your value as a friend will not be diminished by an act that supports your own integrity. Be brave!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)— Do some detective work early in the day and you'll be able to solve all difficulties during p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)— Willingness to work is worth more than ability today. Even so, you may run into trouble without preparedness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)— Versatility is highlighted today. Be ready to shift with the wind, swim with the tide, and so on.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)— Follow your instinct and you should be able to clock in a winner by day's end. Listen to good advice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)— Take care of basic, routine matters before expanding your effort to take on something more marginally essential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)— Conclude a deal that has been long in the works. Patience pays off today; stubbornness leads to trouble.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)— Keep all options open today. To close any door to success might be unwittingly to close them all!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)— There is no limit when it comes to sharing today. You are under no compunction to keep facts a secret.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)— Optimistic approaches to the day's difficulties may by now be automatic. Let good habits carry you.

BRIDGE ADVICE

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

It's a fine idea to be in the right place, but even finer to be there at the right time.

Today's declarer, intent on leading diamonds from his own hand, took the first trick with the queen of hearts and led a diamond to dummy's king. South returned to his hand with the king of clubs to lead another diamond, and West took the ace.

West could see only one hope of defeating the contract: he returned a club, removing South's side entry to the diamonds.

HAND IS DEAD
 South could lead to the queen of diamonds, but his hand was then dead, and dummy had to lose a club. Down one.

South should take the first heart in dummy, get to his hand with a club to lead a diamond to the king and return to his hand with the other top club to lead a second diamond.

West returns a heart, but dummy wins and cashes the queen of diamonds. South finally gets to his hand with the queen of hearts to cash a diamond.

DAILY QUESTION
 You hold: ♠ J 10 4 ♥ Q J 4 ♦ 10 7 6 3 2 ♣ A K. Partner bids one club, you respond one diamond, and he then bids one notrump. The opponents pass. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two notrump. Partner's bidding sequence promises a balanced hand (no void or singleton, not more than one doubleton) with about 12 to 15 high-card points. (With fewer, he wouldn't open; with more, he would open with one notrump.) Your raise invites him to go to game with 14 or 15 points but allows him to pass if he has only 12 or 13 points.

Economic expansion forecast

New government figures show the economy has regained all the ground it lost during the 16-month recession and is expanding again, the administration says, as private economists joined in hailing a recovery with "zip."

The report said the growth in production came from the rebuilding of inventories by businesses and from all categories of final sales except foreign trade.

In testimony before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Volcker said much of the recent upbeat economic news does not differ dramatically from the early phases of some earlier business cycles that also began with strong growth and improved price performance — but later deteriorated into accelerating inflation and stagnating real activity.

The GNP had fallen at a 1.3 percent annual rate in last year's fourth quarter and was down 1.9 percent for all of 1982. The recession is considered to have bottomed out in November.

The Commerce Department issued its quarterly report on the gross national product, the total value of all goods and services, showing a 7.9 percent expansion of the GNP for the third quarter. The increase compares to a 9.7 percent rise in the second quarter and a 2.6 percent advance in the first quarter.

— The Energy Department said U.S. imports of crude oil and petroleum products averaged 5.2 million barrels a day for the four weeks ended Oct. 14. That was a 16 percent increase from a year earlier.

Shifting the burden on fund sales

By CHET CURRIER NEW YORK (AP) — It's a common precept in the game of mutual-fund investing that smart players concentrate on "no-load" funds.

formance, no fewer than seven of the top 10 funds over the past five years were load funds, with gains ranging from 288 percent to 462 percent.

You wait 30 days, to meet the standard of the tax rules covering "wash," or sham, transactions. Then you switch your money into Fund B.

State will extend clam relay season

BY RAY GERMANN

TRENTON — Despite a shortage of enforcement personnel to oversee the Bayshore hard-shell clam relay, state officials have decided to extend the program from Oct. 28 to Nov. 18.

Donald Graham, Department of Environmental Protection assistant commissioner, said the extension was made possible by a delay in the opening of the sea clam season.

"Ordinarily, we would have to discontinue the program at the end of October because of a need to redirect our resources to other areas," Graham said. "But this delay (in opening the sea clam season) makes it possible to keep the relay open for a few more weeks."

Sea clams are larger than hard-shell clams, and are generally sold for use in soups and chowders.

Relay clambers, who transport their harvest to leased underwater lots off Ocean County for a 30-day purification process, are pushing state officials to keep the program open throughout the winter.

However, Graham said there was "no way" the DEP will allow a winter relay this year. "Things being as they are now, we just don't have nearly enough people to oversee a winter relay," he said.

The DEP currently has five marine police officers, he said.

State officials will study the possibility of a future year-round relay this winter, Graham said. Enforcement capabilities will certainly be a consideration in that discussion."

Police are used to confine clambers to the state designated areas of Bayshore bays and rivers open for hard-shell clamming, and prevent the clams from being sold outright, before they are purified either through the relay program or by a Highlands depuration plant.

Marine police are already overtaxed by supervising the relay program, as well as clambers who harvest for the depuration plant, Graham said. The Cedar Avenue plant rids clams of harmful fecal coliform by immersing them in specially treated salt water for 48 hours, according to plant owner Jayson Harvey.

The plant, which opened in July, will operate year-round.

Relay clambers claim the state is favoring those who work for the depuration plant by allowing the plant to operate during winter months. Harvey says a winter relay program will kill a large percentage of the catch by exposing the clams to cold air.

Harvey claimed a winter relay would wipe out a significant portion of the Bayshore clam population. "It would be defeating all the state's efforts to conserve the resource," he said.

He pointed to a study by DEP biologist Thomas McCloy in which 14 percent of the clams harvested during a trail relay in February 1981 were killed. A trial relay in November 1980 showed only a 4 percent mortality rate. Clammers said 3 percent of any harvest is generally lost due to shell breakage.

Harvey declined comment on the relay program extension.

William Jenks, a relay clammer, and former member of the Atlantic Coast Shellfish Council, said he is skeptical of Harvey's motives in opposing a year-round relay program.

"I like Jayson. He's a human being," Jenks said. "But it is obvious to me that he is opposing (the winter relay) for his own personal reasons." He said Harvey is trying to reduce competition for clambers who sell their harvest to him.

Harvey said he is not trying to compete against relay clambers. "They have a right to make a living," he said. "But the relay program is a depletion program, and the state has said it will regulate it by limiting the number of months it can operate."

Police pilot plan proposed

BY JO ASTRID GLADING

FREEHOLD — A private police pilots group would like to see Monmouth County's men in blue take to the wild blue yonder, according to a presentation made before the Board of freeholders yesterday in an effort to get the service off the ground.

For the low price of recognition by the county, $800 per year and the use of three tie down spaces at the Monmouth County Airport, the New Jersey Police Pilots Association, headed by a Red Bank police officer, wants to offer emergency air service to the state.

If the state and the county recognize the NJPPA, "we can be recognized by the federal government to qualify for three planes the federal government has confiscated from drug runs," NJPPA Lt. Commander Frank Clandiello Jr. told the board yesterday.

Clandiello said that in return for the $800 contribution, which will be used for subsidizing fuel and maintenance costs, his group of 27 flying police officers can provide a two-hour response time for "any assignment that is requested by police or communities throughout the state." The pilots come from the 21 counties throughout the state and are all Federal Aviation Administration rated pilots, he said.

The services that would be available include interstate prisoner transportation, air surveillance — including offshore flying for smuggling investigations and prison breaks, courier service, fire patrol and search and rescue, Clandiello's letter to the board states.

The NJPPA has requested a $50 donation from each of the county's 53 police departments, as well. Clandiello said the embryonic organization is also seeking the backing of the Monmouth County Chiefs of Police Association.

"I believe this Association holds a great deal of potential for us all," Clandiello said in a letter to the county's police chiefs. "Flying law enforcement is the future."

The board is expected to take the request under consideration.

This beautiful 4-door sedan is midnight blue metallic with tinted glass plus front wheel drive and it could be yours. It is equipped with steel-belted radials, power steering and brakes, radio, and heater, rack and pinion steering, electric digital clock, dual remote mirrors and deluxe wheel covers.

All you need is a key to win!

Each day, starting with the key, will open up a treasure chest containing the keys to a new Ford Tempo. And it could be you!

How to get your key!

Starting on Sunday, September 11, 1983, the key to your new car is in an entry form daily. It will be published through 6 p.m. each day. Just fill in your name and address on the entry forms as this qualifies you for a key. Present your entry forms to Hyer Ford.

Where to get your key!

Take a key to Hyer Ford entry forms of that week to Hyer Ford, 700 Shrewsbury Ave. Red Bank, and a Hyer Ford salesperson will exchange your entry forms for a key. Simply try your key in the lock of a treasure chest and if it unlocks, the Ford Tempo is yours.

If your key doesn't fit, you could still win!

We will give away the 1984 Ford Tempo, which is on display at Hyer Ford, Friday, November 25, 1983. In the event that the lock to the treasure chest has not been opened by noon this date, the winner will be chosen by a random drawing at 5:00 p.m. from among all entry forms submitted. So be sure you deposit your entry forms in the participant container if your key doesn't open the lock. It's your second chance to win!

MUSIC

ROCK AND ROLL EXTRAVAGANZA — Buddy Knox, Johnny Tillotson, Tommy Roe and Bobby Vee appear together at Club Bene Dinner Theater, Route 35, Morgan, for a one-night Rock and Roll Extravaganza today.

The first show is at 7:30 p.m. It is followed by a second show at 11:30 p.m. Each show is preceded by an optional dinner served 90 minutes before each curtain.

The club should be contacted for reservations for the show, a revival of rock and roll of the 1950s.

JUILLIARD PLAYERS — A chamber ensemble composed of students and graduates of the Juilliard School presents a concert of baroque music, played on authentic instruments of the period, at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Pollak Auditorium at Monmouth College, West Long Branch.

The ensemble was founded two years ago by director/harpist Gregory D'Agostino. The group appeared twice in last year's inaugural season of the Monmouth College: In Concert series.

Tickets are available at the door. FREE JAZZ CONCERT — A free jazz concert takes place 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Monmouth County Library, Eastern Branch, Route 35, Shrewsbury.

Ettlinger bids farewell to Marlboro

BY LISA R. KRUSE

MARLBORO — In his last report to the Board of Trustees, on his second-to-last day as chief executive officer, Roy S. Ettlinger professed satisfaction with the job he had done and sorrow at leaving what he described as the "best psychiatric hospital in the state."

Ettlinger will become the director of Arbor Hospital in Jamaica Plains, Mass. beginning Mon. Oct. 31.

"I feel very protective towards Marlboro Hospital," Ettlinger said. "I want to make sure there is a smooth transition after I've gone."

John H. Tilley, assistant hospital administrator, will serve as acting chief executive officer in the interim. Tilley has submitted his resume to the search committee for consideration as a permanent replacement.

Ettlinger presided over what he described as "seven difficult years", but noted that he was now leaving the "best psychiatric hospital in the state. And I'm only slightly biased when I say that."

Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital was stripped of its accreditation in 1975, the year before Ettlinger was hired. The Joint Commission for the Accreditation of Hospitals cited deficiencies in fire safety measures, medical record-keeping, and patient environment at the institution as reasons for its decision.

That ruling was appealed, and the hospital was re-accredited for a one-year period so it could correct the deficiencies. Ettlinger was credited with the hospital's regaining accreditation in a November 1977 report by the commission.

In 1980, Marlboro was the only state psychiatric hospital to be accredited. Thomas J. English, president of the Board of Trustees, said the members hoped the new chief executive officer would be named by January. Advertisements were placed in the New York Times, professional magazines, and in newspapers in Philadelphia and New Jersey during the first week in October. The cutoff date for resume acceptance is Oct. 24, and interviews are scheduled for Nov. 2. English expects to receive 400 resumes.

"I told the committee that I expected the candidate to be of the same background and qualifications as (Ettlinger)," English said. "I said I was not interested in a political hack-or-bureaucrat."

Ettlinger announced the introduction in September of the Fairweather Model program. This nationally-recognized program will "assist chronic long-term clients" to learn skills which can move them from large-scale into apartments in the hospital community," he said.

According to Ettlinger, the program relies heavily on peer-pressure. "If someone does not make their bed, or keep their space neat, the staff will go to the group leader and ask how the group leader plans to correct it. The group leader will then come back to the staff and say, 'This is how we're going to make him work.'"

In addition, the group of 30 men, now housed in Cottage 17 will remain together and will be discharged into the community as a unit. All the men will be expected to work in some sort of job.

The most positive aspect of the program, according to Ettlinger, besides its psychiatric value, has been "the elimination of severe overcrowding in all areas of the hospital."

Roy Ettlinger

"For the first time, all the wards are full to capacity, with no problems of overcrowding," Ettlinger noted. "It makes me feel less guilty about leaving."

Ettlinger said that both staff and patients seem enthused about the project. "The staff is really excited about the concept," he said. "But then, we may still be in the honeymoon period."

Approximately 150 additional patients are expected to be transferred to Marlboro from Trenton Psychiatric Hospital over a period of two years.

"But we cannot and will not accept the first patient from Trenton until the buildings are renovated," Ettlinger said. "Or until additional staff members are hired and trained. All this will happen before the first patient arrives."
