Bats put borough workers on edge

By KEVIN FRECHETTE
The Register

KEANSBURG — Sally Sullivan now checks under her desk each day before she sits down. The borough's switchboard operator says she learned her lesson earlier this week, when she had to be rushed to the hospital because of a bat bite.

"I was just sitting at my desk Monday afternoon when I felt something crawling up my leg," Sullivan said. "I shook my leg, the thing bit me, and then I stepped on it."

Sullivan was taken to the Bayshore Community Hospital, Holmdel, for rabies shots while the dead bat was forwarded to the state Board of Health in Trenton to be tested for the virus.

Test results showed no sign of the rabies virus and Sullivan was back behind her desk at Borough Hall yesterday — "feeling fine."

Two days after the operator was bitten, Lorraine Ryan, a secretary in the municipal court clerk's office, said a second bat, this one dead, was discovered in a closet on the borough hall's second floor.

Although the incidents have borough employees a little edgy, Ryan said there is not much they can do since the animals are a protected species. Borough Administrator Edward Weigand declined comment.

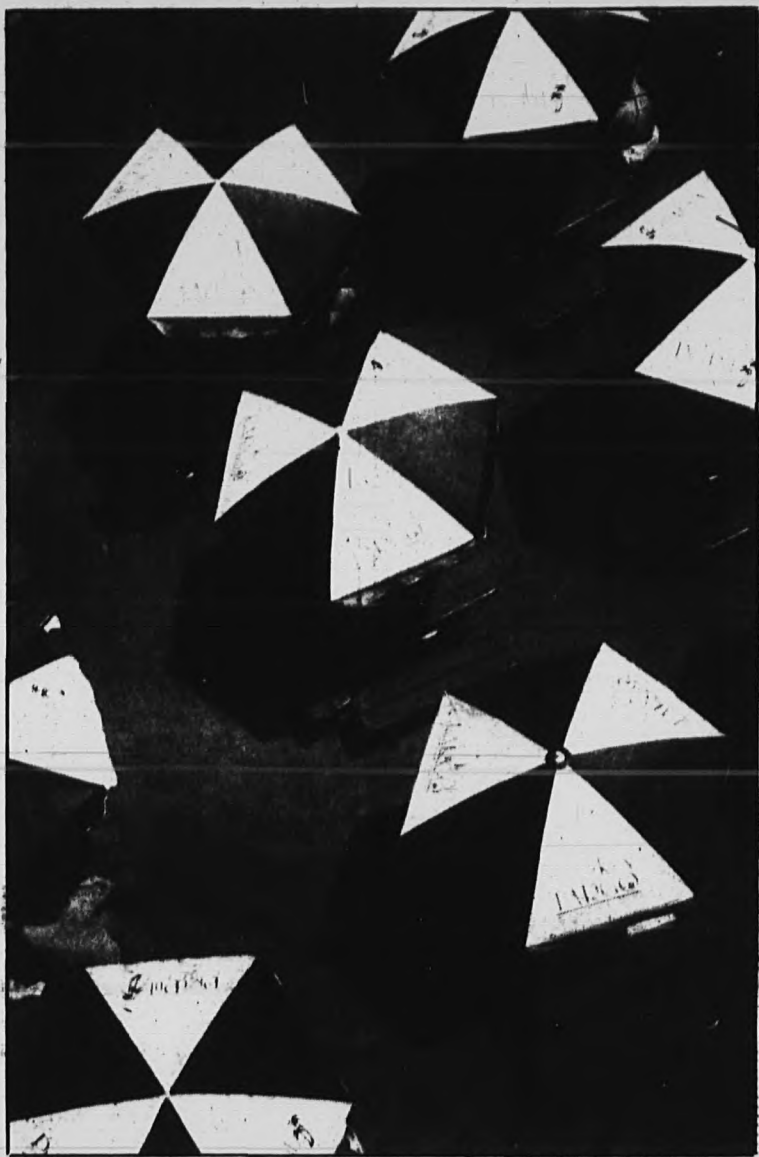

Lee Bernstein of Union Beach, executive director of the National Humane Society, said bats and skunks are the most common carriers of the rabies virus and pose the greatest threat to New Jersey residents. He said one out of every 10 bats are thought to be carriers of the virus.

"They're one of the few animals that I tell my men not to worry about taking alive," Bernstein said. "We can't waste any time in getting them tested by the state."

He said, however, that he has never heard of bats being protected by state or federal regulations.

To rid a building of the nocturnal intruders, Bernstein suggested waiting until dusk when the animals go out in search of food, and then sealing up the entrance and washing the area with detergent.

"The thing that's going to draw them back is the scent of their own urine. Unless you get rid of the smell, they'll keep coming back," he added.

Shooting death of man 'calls out' for investigation

By BOB NEFF
The Register

FREEHOLD — The death of a black robbery suspect who was shot in the back by a borough patrolman "calls out" for a grand jury hearing, First Assistant Prosecutor Paul F. Chalet said yesterday.

And the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said it will also investigate how James Irby, 25, was killed Thursday evening while running from police on Throckmorton Street.

Irby, 25, was shot and killed after five pellets from Patrolman Michael Whaley's 12-gauge shotgun entered his back, authorities said yesterday. Questions about the death have been raised by the black community, and the prosecutor's office said it will present the case to a county grand jury within a month.

Irby died from hemorrhaging due to five shotgun pellet wounds to his back, one of which caused the fatal wound that punctured his left lung, according to an autopsy report by Jay Peacock, assistant Monmouth County medical examiner.

Although Chalet refused to discuss details of the shooting, he noted that in cases where a police officer is clearly justified in using deadly force, the matter is not presented to a grand jury.

This shooting, Chalet said, "calls out" for a grand jury hearing.

Chalet said there are three instances where the use of deadly force by a police officer is justified: in self-defense; in defense of another; or in the prevention of a serious crime or escape when the officer believes the use of deadly force will not endanger innocent bystanders.

Two shots were fired from the police-issue Ithaca Pump shotgun, but it has yet to be determined whether the pellets came from one or both shells, said Chalet.

Patrolman Whaley — a 17-year veteran of the force — claims that Irby was wielding a knife at the time of the shooting, and was attempting to elude police, said Chalet. However, no knife has been found, and authorities do not have a clear description of its size or shape.

Howard West, president of the Asbury Park NAACP chapter, said the state organization — led by its three Monmouth County chapters — also will investigate, since media accounts of the incident have raised serious questions.

"There are things that need to be answered," West said. "When an individual is shot in the back, that really bothers me. That's no way to apprehend someone."

"Several blacks have been shot and died, and there have always been inconsistencies," he continued. "This has made us more determined to find out what happened."

Although Police Chief William Burlew yesterday referred questions to the prosecutor's office, he did say that Whaley has not been suspended, and that any in-house investigation will take place after the prosecutor's investigation.

In the meantime, Burlew said Whaley has been put on office duty.

More than a dozen investigators from the prosecutor's office are probing the shooting that occurred at the rear of 153 Throckmorton St., Chalet said.

Irby was initially confronted at 22 Avenue C, where police officers attempted to arrest him on a warrant for robbery, conspiracy, and assault in connection with the June 27 beating and robbery of a borough resident.

Irby also was being sought in connection with the July 2 beating and robbery of Lillian Hibbs, 86, of Center Street, said Chalet.

During his arrest shortly after 6 p.m., Irby apparently tried to flee, and was subsequently shot in the back by Whaley, Chalet said.

Irby ran into a house at 153 Throckmorton St., then reappeared outside and collapsed. He was taken to Freehold Area Hospital, Freehold Township, where he was pronounced dead at 6:42 p.m., Chalet said.

Investigators have interviewed police and neighbors, and have found that no serious rift has occurred because of the shooting of the black man, said Chalet.

Right-to-die guidelines need public scrutiny

By STEPHANIE A. FERICH
The Register

SUMMIT — A citizens' rights committee based here yesterday praised the state Board of Medical Examiners for deciding to get public comment before considering whether to adopt the right-to-die guidelines proposed by its medical ethics committee.

A spokesman for the Citizens Committee on Bio-Medical Ethics said public involvement in the decision-making process of major health issues is long overdue.

"We feel it is imperative that the public at large be involved in the general discussion about public health provisions and the allocation of medical resources," said T. Patrick Hill, the committee's director of public relations. "After all, they're the ones who will be affected by these decisions in the near future."

Hill said the need for more public discussion on the issue was underscored by the recent Superior Court ruling in which Kathleen Farrell, a victim of Lou Gehrig's disease, was granted the right to be disconnected from a life-sustaining respirator. Mrs. Farrell died June 29 at her South Toms River home before the case could be heard before the state Supreme Court.

The state Supreme Court did decide yesterday, however, to hear arguments in the fall on the right-to-die case and ordered attorneys to prepare briefs.

Hill said that "through open public discussion a policy could be established on the issue that would reflect the values and preferences of New Jersey citizens so that we wouldn't have to go to court every time."

The proposed guidelines provide for cases involving both mentally competent and incompetent patients:

■ In cases where a mentally competent patient is being treated at home, the physician should maintain complete documentation of the patient's condition including any discussions that take place concerning the patient's decision to accept or reject treatment.

■ If the mentally competent patient is hospitalized or in a nursing home the physician must also notify either the hospital's prognosis committee or the state Office of the Ombudsman for the Institutionalized Elderly of a decision to reject treatment or life-sustaining devices.

■ Physicians treating incompetent patients whether in a home or hospital must abide by decisions made by the patient prior to loss of competence or decisions made by the patient's legal or medical guardian. Evidence of a living will should be noted in the patient's file.

If the patient's wishes are not known, the physician may not withhold services necessary to maintain the patient's mental or physical health but in a crisis the physician is not obliged to order treatment that would be futile.

The Citizens Committee of Bio-Medical Ethics is a non-profit group of about 100 people.

Hill said the committee conducts informal, group discussions throughout the state to address such ethical issues as the right to die, living wills, treatment of comatose patients and the right to refuse medical treatment.

"We're not a lobbying group," he said. "We're not advocating any particular issue. We just provide a forum so that all parties can be heard."

The group receives its funding from a number of major health foundations.

Killer shark once roamed Matawan Creek

By HENRY SCHAEFER
The Register

MATAWAN — Seventy years ago today, a great white shark swam inland and killed two people in Matawan Creek.

So says the legend of the great white shark in Matawan Creek. And it's a day George Burlew, 89, says he'll never forget.

Burlew was just inches away from being devoured by the shark, which he said chose to attack his friend instead.

"But for the grace of God, I could have been killed that day, too," Burlew said.

It all started just before July 4, 1916, when a great white shark killed a swimmer in the Beach Haven surf. Five days later, a shark killed another swimmer in the ocean off Spring Lake.

Then, on July 12, a great white shark swam up Matawan Creek, and killed two people.

Burlew remembers that day all too well.

Burlew lived near the creek, a tidal creek deep enough for navigation. At that time, barges loaded with brick from a local factory were towed from there to New York City.

On the day of the tragedy, his next door neighbor, Stanley Fisher, burst into his house with the news that a shark had just attacked a young swimmer. The swimmer, 12-year-old Lester Stillwell, had disappeared.

Burlew and Fisher ran to the creek to join a crowd of frightened people who were staring at the bloody water. There was no sign of the boy and no sign of the shark.

Burlew and Fisher decided to dive into the creek and recover the body.

Goldie Hawn

Wyatt's a boy!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Goldie Hawn was feeling terrific after giving birth to an 8-pound, 4-ounce baby boy by Caesarean section, her publicist said.

Wyatt Russell, whose father is actor Kurt Russell, was delivered at 8:28 a.m. Thursday at a Los Angeles-area hospital, said publicist Heidi Schaeffer.

The family planned to return to their Aspen, Colo., home after Miss Hawn leaves the hospital, said Ms. Schaeffer.

Miss Hawn, who starred in the movie "Private Benjamin," has two other children — Oliver, 9, and Kate, 7. Their father is actor Bill Hudson. Russell has a son, Boston, 6, whose mother is actress Season Hubley.

Russell stars in the recently released "Big Trouble in Little China."

Breaking tradition

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II will personally award an honorary knighthood to rock singer Bob Geldof in recognition of his work in African famine relief, Buckingham Palace announced yesterday.

Ordinarily, the foreign secretary presents honorary knighthoods, but Geldof has been invited to the palace July 24 to receive his award from the queen, the palace said.

Geldof was severely critical of a speech the foreign secretary, Sir Geoffrey Howe, made on African famine recently to the United Nations.

The Irish rocker, who organized the Live Aid concerts and other events that raised more than $100 million for famine relief, will not be able to call himself Sir Bob as he would if he were a British citizen and eligible for a full knighthood. But he can use the initials KBE — Knight Commander Order of the British Empire — after his name.

The proper way of life

NEW YORK (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher credits good habits with keeping her life in order, and says she doesn't eat much before walking into the House of Commons to answer questions or give a speech.

"If you make a habit of perhaps working later, then you will need less sleep. You could not get through a very busy life unless a lot of things were routine and habit," the 60-year-old Thatcher told Prince Michael of Greece in an interview for Sunday's Parade magazine.

She said she requires only four hours of sleep a night.

Before walking into Parliament, Mrs. Thatcher said, she tells herself to keep calm and concentrate.

"I do not have very much to eat before I go in because you want the blood to go to your head and not to your digestion, and I would not dream of having a drink — I mean an alcoholic drink," Mrs. Thatcher said.

Still recovering

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Soul singer Teddy Pendergrass, who suffered a liver injury in a traffic accident July 3, will remain hospitalized for several more days, a spokeswoman said yesterday.

Pendergrass was in good condition yesterday at Osteopathic Medical Center, where he underwent surgery to close a gash in his liver, spokeswoman Carole Familetti said.

"He will be released in the next few days," said Ms. Familetti. "No day or time has been set."

Doctors had hoped to send the 36-year-old Pendergrass home to suburban Gladwyne on Friday but delayed the release to make sure the singer, who had been on a Pendergrass, who was partially paralyzed in a 1982 car accident, lost control of his specially equipped van and crashed into a utility pole in Lower Merion Township.

Jammin round the nation

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "The Nashville Sound" goes global tomorrow when the Voice of America broadcasts one hour of the Charlie Daniels Band's 12th annual Volunteer Jam concert.

The VOA, the radio network of the United States Information Agency, will broadcast the country-rock concert starting to a potential audience of 120 million. Additional segments will be taped for later broadcast over several of VOA's 42 language service stations.

It'll be the third consecutive year that VOA will broadcast part of the concert.

Daniels, best known for his hit "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," says he's gratified but not intimidated by the potential size of the audience.

"I don't get nervous about performing," he said.

Lerner tribute

NEW YORK (AP) — Julie Andrews and Kitty Carlisle Hart helped Broadway take time out to remember composer-lyricist Alan Jay Lerner, who created such classics as "Camelot," "My Fair Lady" and "Brigadoon."

"He was a consummate craftsman," Miss Andrews told 1,500 people Thursday at the Shubert Theater.

Lerner, an Oscar- and Tony-winning lyricist, playwright and composer who received the Kennedy Center's Lifetime Achievement Award earlier this year, died of lung cancer June 14. He was 67.

Miss Hart, who said she had known Lerner "longer than almost anybody in this theater — before most of you were born," read a letter from composer Frederick

Miss Hart, who said she had known Lerner "longer than almost anybody in this theater — before most of you were born," read a letter from composer Frederick Loewe, Lerner's collaborator from 1946 to 1962.

"Ironically, it was Alan who was always wanting to know what I wanted him to say about me at my memorial. ... But fate changed all that," wrote Loewe, 85, who lives in Europe. "It won't be long, however, before we'll be writing together again. I just hope they have a decent piano up there."

All that jazz for hunger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sarah Vaughan, Kenny Rankin, Cleo Laine, Herbie Hancock and other artists have recorded a jazz anthem that organizers hope will raise $1 million for hungry Americans.

"We are trying to take some of the weight off the starving people in America," Michael McIntosh, who formed the Jazz to End Hunger organization and brought the more than 80 performers together, said Thursday.

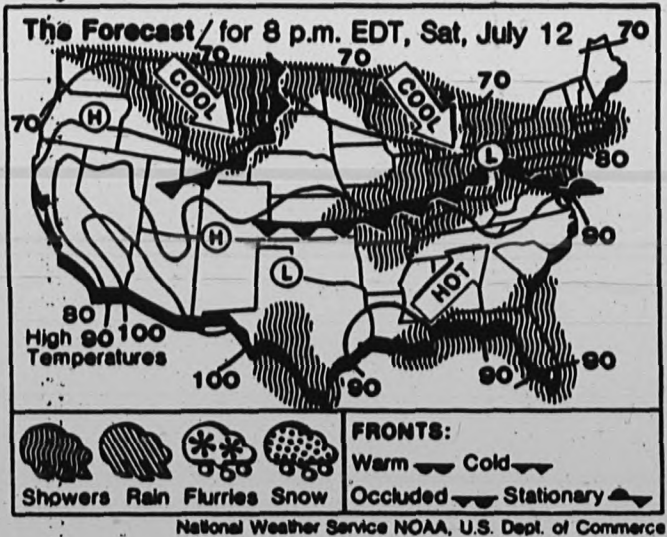

McIntosh said the Jazz to End Hunger effort was put together after his disappointment over the exclusion of jazz in the Live Aid concerts.

"The jazz community was overlooked by both Live Aid and 'We Are The World.' There are legendary musicians who wanted to help, but were never asked," he said. "Cyndi Lauper and Madonna are cute, but they aren't Sarah Vaughan or Cleo Laine or Carmen McRae."

Motel-restaurant could get approval

HAZLET — The township Planning Board may approve a controversial motel-restaurant project provided certain conditions are met.

When informally polled by Planning Board Chairman Vincent Raine at Thursday night's caucus meeting, board members agreed that the proposed Luxury Budget Inn and Friendly Restaurant should be approved for construction with certain conditions set.

The most discussed requirement was reconstruction of a fence to separate the property from the Sycamore Drive Elementary School and the addition of a buffer between the two to screen the inn from view.

Also discussed was the elimination of a restaurant drive-in window. The window, it was decided, would contribute to traffic problems in the area of the site, on Route 35 near Hazlet Avenue.

Other conditions set by the board included the addition of loading zones, "aesthetic rehabilitation" of a nearby sewage pump station, and reducing the size of the proposed sign to conform with ordinance requirements.

At the last Planning Board meeting, board members were confronted with a petition signed by almost 600 residents, and more 20 people voiced objections to the project, according to Raine. The township Board of Education also sent the Planning Board a letter opposing the construction.

Colts Neck gets cable TV report

COLTS NECK — We all have bridges to cross. For Monmouth Cablevision, it's the Laurelwood Bridge, to be exact.

As soon as the cable company gets a permit from the state to extend cable lines across the Laurelwood Bridge, it can begin to solicit customers for the service, Mayor Michael Caponegro said at the Township Committee meeting Thursday night.

The Laurelwood Bridge, which is being rebuilt, connects the Clover Hill development with most of the township, according to committee member James Day.

The committee expects permission will be granted within one week.

If the project goes as planned, and the permit is obtained, people can expect to begin signing up for the cable service in the next few weeks.

In other business, the committee accepted a resolution to award a road resurfacing contract to Harris Brothers of Belmar. The winning bid of $154,820 was the lowest of four regular bidders, Township Engineer Glen Gerken said.

Gerken also said Harris Brothers did a good job last year for the township and added that its prices were far lower than last year.

Holmdel arrests man on drug charge

HOLMDEL — Township police arrested a Holmdel man Wednesday night and charged him with possession of a controlled dangerous substance and less than five grams of hashish.

Police said Kleian Michael Doll, 19, of Winding Brook Way, was arrested at about 10:15 p.m. after he was stopped for a motor vehicle violation. He was found to be in possession of less than five grams of hashish and was also charged with carrying someone else's driver's license, police said.

An Aug. 11 court date has been set, police said. The arrest was made by Holmdel Patrolman Thomas Franzoni.

Crash destroys traffic light in Ocean

OCEAN TOWNSHIP — A two-car collision Thursday afternoon at Route 35 and West Park Avenue destroyed a traffic signal and caused police to direct traffic at the intersection for much of the day.

Police said the accident occurred in the southbound lanes at about 12:09 p.m., when a car driven by John Correa, 24, of Lakewood, hit the back of a vehicle driven by William Whitaker, 22, of Chicago, who was stopped for the red light. Sgt. Dana Parsells said Correa's vehicle then veered into the right lane and knocked down the traffic signal pole.

Correa was taken to the Monmouth Medical Center, where he was treated and released, a hospital spokesman said.

Parsells said the signal was fixed Thursday night.

Wearing seat belt saves driver

EATONTOWN — A Ridge-wood man walked away shaken but apparently unhurt yesterday after his car overturned in a two-car collision at Route 36 and Grant Avenue.

James H. Smith, 25, who was wearing a seat belt, crawled out the window of his car seconds after it came to a stop and stood shaking his head in disbelief as police worked to turn the vehicle upright.

"He was wearing his seat belt, that's what saved him from injury," said Patrolman Robert G. Rosch, the investigating officer.

Smith declined comment. The driver of the other car and its six passengers, including five children, were taken to Monmouth Medical Center.

Kathleen R. Joyce, 31, of Passaic, said from the emergency room yesterday that she and those in her car "are fine. Nothing major. One boy had a cut on his knee, that's about it."

Joyce, who is four months pregnant, said she was not injured. Smith was apparently making a left turn onto Grant Avenue at 10:27 a.m., when his car was struck broadside by Joyce's vehicle and rolled over, said Rosch. He said Joyce was passing through the intersection westbound on Route 36.

"It's under investigation, but the summons will be issued to Mr. Smith for failure to observe a traffic control device," said Rosch, who noted that there was a discrepancy as to whether Smith had a clear turn signal when he proceeded.

The passengers in Joyce's car included her two sons, Joanne Gilligan, 29, also of Passaic, and her daughter and two sons. The children's names were not released, but Rosch said they ranged in age from 3 to 9.

Only the 3-year-old girl was wearing a seat belt, according to Rosch.

The accident drew more than a dozen residents from the nearby Stoney Hill Gardens to the scene.

"If you had heard the impact, oh man," said one woman. "I can't believe that man got out of his car alive."

Eatontown gets good insurance news

EATONTOWN — When most municipalities are raising taxes because of skyrocketing insurance premiums, Eatontown has gotten news about insurance.

Councilman John J. Collins announced at Thursday's meeting that the borough's Blue Shield premium has been reduced by 6 percent because of its good experience rating. Collins said the borough will be getting a rebate of approximately $6,000 of the premium already paid.

Also at the meeting, Councilman Gerald J. Tarantolo announced that the Eatontown Environmental Commission will hold an open forum July 17 to discuss the proposed toxic waste incinerator in Tinton Falls.

Tarantolo said all municipalities are invited to the forum, "in the hope that we can provide a unified front in opposition to this proposal."

The forum will begin at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Sinatra fever lays fan low

By MARY GAY JOHNSON

UNION BEACH — Harry Howard may be Frank Sinatra's biggest fan — in fact, the adulation almost cost him his life.

Howard's wife, Florence, said her husband had Sinatra fever in the worst way.

The 76-year-old Union Beach resident was so taken with the singer that he went out of his way to have a special plaque made for Sinatra, which he delivered Wednesday to the Garden State Arts Center, before the singer went on stage.

Officials at arts center promised the Sinatra fan they would see that the singer received the plaque.

But Howard paid dearly for the effort.

Now in stable condition in the intensive care unit at Holmdel's Bayshore Community Hospital, Howard suffered three heart attacks shortly after dropping off the plaque for his beloved star.

His wife of 50 years said it would ease her husband's mind if he knew for certain that Sinatra received the plaque, and she's sure that the singer would be touched by her husband's plight.

There's no word yet if Sinatra ever received the plaque. The singer is en route to the West Coast, but his public relations firm in New York will pass the word on to him as soon as possible, said a Sinatra spokesman.

Apparently, Howard had his mind made up on having a plaque made for Sinatra, and spent much of the last few weeks calling clubs in Atlantic City and Las Vegas in hopes of discovering where the crooner would be appearing next.

When the couple learned that Sinatra would be performing at the arts center, they realized they wouldn't be able to afford the $150 ticket price, but that failed to daunt Howard.

"We were so determined after

going through all this trouble," Mrs. Howard said.

Instead, he rushed to have a plaque made to honor the star, and brought it to the arts center Wednesday evening. While still there he experienced chest pains and was taken to Bayshore, where he had three heart attacks in the hospital's emergency room.

"All this because he loved Frank Sinatra," she said.

The words inscribed on the plaque read: "God gave us you blue eyes. Frank Sinatra: the ambassador to the world of goodwill. Without you the 'mike' is empty," to which Howard signed his name and address.

Mrs. Howard said she talked her husband out of putting "ol" before "blue-eyes."

"I said, 'How would you like someone to come up to you and call you ol' Harry Howard?'"

In the meantime, Howard, as he recuperates, remains convinced that Sinatra will be dropping by any moment for a visit, his wife said, and the other day pulled out tubes leading to his throat because HOLMDEL — The nurse who first treated Harry Howard after he was stricken in the Garden State Arts Center parking lot Wednesday night said the 76-year-old Union Beach resident seemed more concerned about getting a plaque to Sinatra than about his own serious condition.

Anita Clax, the registered nurse at the arts center's first aid station, said the plaque was given to Linda Crane, a stage manager at the center. Crane later saw to it that the plaque was given to Sinatra, Clax said.

Workers at the first aid station were later disappointed, however, when Sinatra failed to make an announcement about the plaque during either one of his two performances at the township amphitheater, Clax said. She described Howard as a "very nice man."

Howard was first spotted by three arts center parking lot attendants who were going through the paces of their summer jobs when they spotted an elderly man stumbling through the parking lot, weak, short of breath and seemingly unsure of where he was.

The three attendants, Dawn Newman, 21, of Atlantic Highlands, Peter Van Norwick, 20, of Middletown, and Dave Mantorin, 18, of Middletown, brought Howard to a nearby bench and called for first aid.

Three arts center medical aides responded to the call, and Howard was later transported to Bayshore Community Hospital, where he was reported in stable condition last night in the intensive care unit after suffering three heart attacks.

he didn't want them to hinder his appearance for Sinatra.

She's hoping that if word of her husband's situation got to Sinatra, he would be quick to offer words of sympathy.

"I couldn't in my wildest imagination think Frank Sinatra would ignore that," she said.

Mrs. Howard said a visit from Sinatra may be too much to ask for, but both she and her husband are hoping against hope anyway.

"I wouldn't want to put him out," she said. "But it would be the thrill of a lifetime for him. He loves Frank Sinatra — we all do."

Mrs. Howard said the couple have been ardent admirers of Ol' Blue Eyes from way back.

"I can remember when Frank Sinatra was married to Nancy. We used to watch him; he's so much handsomer now that he's matured," she said.

Although Sinatra has received bad publicity for his reputed ties to organized crime members, Mrs. Howard said the good he had done through his life far outweighs any bad.

"I know from the bottom of my heart ... he never turned his back on anyone who came asking for help."

She said the elation Howard would feel at seeing Sinatra could only be equaled by his feat in 1928 when he tied Olympic great Johnny Weissmuller in a Cliffwood Beach swimming race.

Years later, Weissmuller would leave the pool behind him to become the star in number of Tarzan movies, while Howard would keep a trophy that would later become rusted and dusty age.

Research fund exceeds goal

For the past nine years, those involved with the Lynn Larrison Volleyball Marathon have set aside this weekend to raise money to fund research relating to the cancer rhabdomyosarcoma.

But Victor Burke, spokesman for the memorial fund, said no marathon will take place this year because the goal of raising $50,000 in 10 years has been met and surpassed.

Burke said with the addition of $8,500 in funds from last year's volleyball marathon, more than $52,000 was raised during the past 10 years for cancer research at Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City.

What began with 26 people in 1976 swelled to more than 80 community volunteers, business representatives, players and donors who participated in the marathon to raise funds, Burke said.

Although there is no cure for this type of cancer, Burke said those involved with the Larrison memorial would like to see the survival rate improve from 52 percent.

He said the memorial will accept donations through Labor Day, and can be made in care of The Lynn Larrison Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 594, Ocean Grove, 07766.

Lynn Larrison was the daughter of Monmouth County Freeholder Director Harry Larrison Jr. and died of rhabdomyosarcoma in 1975.

Water firms plead for cooperation

By STEPHANIE FERICH

Residents have been ignoring restrictions on water use, and water company officials say they will start taking steps to enforce their bans.

The Shorelands Water Company in Hazlet will be posting orange reminder tags on the doorstep of its customers found violating its regulations. After the initial warning, however, repeat offenders may have their water turned off, said Michael Walsh, general manager of Shorelands.

Monmouth Consolidated Water Co. in Shrewsbury is considering similar action. For now, however, general manager Paul Burdan said the company will send out letters to customers, advising them of the seriousness of the situation.

The water companies restricted two weeks ago all non-essential water use to maintain adequate reserves for firefighting and other emergency measures. Under the ban, outside watering is permitted only at even-numbered addresses on even-numbered days, and at odd-numbered addresses on odd-numbered days.

In addition, Monmouth Consolidated customers are forbidden from using any water outdoors between 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. every day.

But water company officials said that residents have ignored the ban, forcing the companies to consider mandatory restrictions.

"It's something we have to consider," said Walsh of Shorelands. "We have seen widespread violations of the ban and the situation has to be corrected."

The Swimming River Reservoir and the Glendola Reservoir stand at 78 percent of capacity, Burdan said. Their normal level for July is 83 percent of capacity.

"The subnormal rainfall in April, May and June is leading us into a drought situation," Burdan said.

Walsh said Wednesday's rainfall and that forecast for the weekend will provide little relief of the water shortage.

"It's inconsequential," he said. "We're going to continue with the watering restrictions indefinitely."

Burdan agreed.

"Water usage has dropped but not sufficiently enough," he said.

"We still need a greater amount of cooperation from our customers."

Burdan said the company will issue individual letters to its customers explaining the seriousness of situation and urging them to obey the ban. He said service shut-off "may well be considered within the next several weeks if conditions warrant."

In addition, the Keansburg Water Company has requested that residents adhere to the following water use restrictions, effective immediately:

■ No lawn sprinkling or watering from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Residents may water lawns between the hours of 6-7 a.m. and 8-9 p.m.

■ Keep indoor water use to a minimum in taverns and other such public and private establishments.

James Davis, director of the water company, said recent high temperatures coupled with excessive water use caused "a drastic drop in pressure and water discoloration" at the plant.

In Union Beach, which also operates its own municipal water supply, residents are barred from all outside watering. The council passed a resolution Thursday night that forbids watering lawns, filling swimming pools, and washing cars or other vehicles.

An amendment was added to the resolution allowing swimming pool owners to top off their pools between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. to avoid the health hazard of stagnant water.

Norman Kauf, borough attorney, said the borough has an ordinance that gives the Department of Public Works the authority to enforce the resolution by shutting off the water supply to anyone who fails to abide by the emergency restrictions.

Mayor Carmen Stoppiello said the water problem in Union Beach is caused by a lack of pressure in the borough's only operable water tank. He said a poor pumping system in two other tanks led to salt intrusion into the water supply and the tanks had to be capped.

Shark

The tidal creek was about 35 feet wide and 18 feet deep. They dove a number of times and swam for about a half-hour without finding the body or the shark.

Burlew says they then decided to rest near the opposite bank, standing in waist-deep water. Fisher said didn't think there was any use in continuing the search. Burlew agreed. The two started back across the creek.

Suddenly, when they were halfway across, Burlew felt the water starting to churn. His companion screamed. The shark had struck again.

Shooting

adding that Burlew's rapport with the black community has been good and that the prosecutor's office supports the chief's efforts.

However, one resident, Mary Best of 159 Throckmorton St., said the community is "outraged" by the slayings.

"The police could have apprehended that young man without using violence," Best said.

(But) we are trying every way we can to encourage the young people in the neighborhood not to go on a rampage ... No amount of rage is going to bring that young man back. Nothing will bring him back."

"Stanley was a big man, weighing 210 pounds, and he fought back at the shark, striking it with his fists," said Burlew. "He was fighting desperately to break away from the shark, striking and kicking at it with all his might. Three or four times during the struggle the shark pulled him under water, but each time he got back to the surface."

"Finally, Stanley managed to work himself free of the monster and resumed swimming toward shore. It was not until he reached the bank and tried to walk that he realized that the shark had bitten a huge chunk from the upper portion of one leg."

"The bite extended from just above his knee almost to the hip. Just about half of the thigh was missing," said Burlew.

Fisher died eight hours later in the Long Branch Memorial Hospital.

What was left of Stillwell's body was found in the creek four days later.

Were all four attacks by the same shark? Scientists have been baffled by the account, because great white sharks don't swim in estuaries that far inland.

But Burlew, a sport fishing boat captain now living in the New Port Richey on the west coast of Florida, says he has no doubts.

"I never saw the entire fish but from the tremendous upheaval and the huge tail that thrashed above the water it had to be a big one," Burlew said. "Also, that single bite from the knee to the hip was made by a huge pair of jaws."

He said he was convinced the shark was a "man-eater," a great white — one that weighed some 350 to 400 pounds.

Later that summer, a white shark was captured in Raritan Bay and put on exhibition as the killer, But Burlew said that "no one really knows" whether that was indeed the killer shark.

In the June issue of New Jersey

Monthly, a story titled "Sudden Death," tells it as follows:

"On the morning of July 14, two days after the Matawan Creek deaths, one of the legion of shark hunters combing New Jersey's offshore waters came up with something. Michael Schleisser was working a dragnet when he felt a powerful lurch. An eight-and-a-half-foot white shark, the type known as 'man-eater,' was struggling in the net. Schleisser clubbed the fish repeatedly and when he was sure (it) was dead, hauled him aboard."

"When the shark's gut was opened, some fifteen pounds of human remains dropped out: shinbones, muscle tissue, intestine, and so on. It was clear that the great white had been feeding on human flesh."

There were at least two other reports of shark attacks along Matawan Creek in 1916, but they were not fatal and not very bloody.

After the shark was captured in Raritan Bay, and there were no further reports of attacks. It supported the theory that a single "rogue" was responsible for all four killings.

Father gets 15 years for killing infant son

By BOB NEFF

FREEHOLD — An Eatontown man was ordered yesterday to serve at least seven years of a 15-year prison sentence after a Superior Court judge refused to allow the man to retract his plea of guilty to punching to death his infant son.

Jamie Marco Gilbert, 22, remained silent as Superior Court Judge Benedict R. Nicosia imposed the presumed penalty under state law.

Moments earlier, Nicosia had rejected Gilbert's attempt to retract his plea of guilty to the aggravated manslaughter of five-month-old son Anthony James Gilbert, saying he was unconvinced Gilbert's attorney misled him.

And Nicosia said it was irrelevant that Gilbert, whom the state called the ultimate child abuser, did not confess to striking his son in the head with a hammer, as the state originally suspected.

On May 13, his trial on a murder charge imminent, Gilbert pleaded guilty to aggravated manslaughter rather than stand trial. He said he "lost it" after a drinking and smoking marijuana the day of Oct. 11, and beat his son to death with his fists.

At 11:30 p.m. on Oct. 11, Anthony James was pronounced dead of injuries that included a fractured skull, lacerated liver, broken ribs, an severe facial and bodily bruises.

Gilbert told Nicosia that he'd picked up the baby that afternoon at the home of its 16-year-old unmarried mother in Long Branch, and upon arriving at his Stonely Hill Gardens apartment went to sleep.

Shortly thereafter, about 7:30 p.m., Gilbert said the baby's cries awoke him. Irritated and angry, Gilbert told Nicosia that he beat the boy, and then went back to sleep.

The baby's grandmother found the baby dead four hours later.

Assistant Monmouth County Prosecutor Robert Honecker Jr. yesterday accused Gilbert of lying in his attempt to retract the plea, and called him "the ultimate child abuser."

"He took his attorney's advice to plead guilty, because he was guilty," Honecker said. "Now he's come up with this lie. He's lied once, and he's lying again. I ask you to assess his credibility."

Gilbert, through his new attorney Michael Cunningham, moved to retract his guilty plea for three reasons.

First, Cunningham said that Gilbert had been told by his original attorney, provided by the Office of the Public Defender, that he would be allowed to withdraw his guilty plea after hiring a private attorney.

But Nicosia, noting that the original attorney, James Flynn, is a veteran of many murder trials, said he disbelieved the claim.

Second, Cunningham said Gilbert was involuntarily coerced into pleading guilty by the impending trial date, and was dissatisfied with his attorney.

Again, Nicosia rejected the contention, noting that Gilbert had the opportunity during his plea to say he was dissatisfied with Flynn, but that he instead said that he was satisfied with Flynn's advice.

WILL WE ALWAYS HAVE WATER USE RESTRICTIONS IN THE MONMOUTH COUNTY REGION?

NOT IF WE AT MONMOUTH CONSOLIDATED WATER CO. CAN HELP IT! WE'RE PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE!

To assure adequate water supplies for our 68,000 customers during dry periods such as the one we're in, we constructed in 1985 a new 2 MGD (million gallon a day) well at our Glendola Reservoir in Wall Township.

This Fall, we start a $7 million construction program to expand our Jumping Brook Treatment Plant in Neptune from a 10 MGD to 20 MGD facility, build a 5-mile pipeline from the Manasquan River to Glendola Reservoir, and build an intake structure at Hospital Road in Wall Township. By the Fall of 1987, three or four years before the state builds the Manasquan Reservoir, we will be drawing 5 MGD from the Manasquan to supplement supplies for our customers.

In the meantime, water use regulations now in effect in our service area will be lifted when we have enough rainfall to replenish our reservoirs. We appreciate your cooperation in continuing to use water outdoors only on even-numbered days for even-numbered premises and on odd-numbered days for odd-numbered premises; not using water outdoors on any day between 4 p.m. and 10 p.m.; and keeping indoor usage to a minimum.

THANK YOU FOR USING WATER WISELY!

Plea rejected in China case

NEWARK (AP) — A federal judge refused yesterday to accept no-contest pleas from a two men charged with conspiring to export $1 million in classified military equipment to China, saying he could not mete out an appropriate sentence without a trial.

"The administration of justice is not promoted by the imposition of a sentence lacking information essential to its determination," U.S. District Court Judge H. Lee Sarokin said in denying the motion of Da-Chuan Zheng, a Hong Kong businessman, and Kuang-Shin Lin, a former computer expert for AT&T who lived in Lincoln at the time of his arrest.

Sarokin said that "theoretically, the court would have the right to sentence the defendants as though they had been found guilty or pleaded guilty."

But he said he ruled against the "nolo contendere" motion because a trial would be needed to dispel "lingering doubts" of the defendants' guilt or innocence.

Da-Chuan and Kuang-Shin were arrested in 1984 at a Shrewsbury restaurant and indicted on federal charges of conspiring with a man who turned out to be an undercover U.S. Customs Service agent to buy 100 wave-tube amplifiers — used in radar-jamming and missile guidance devices — at a cost of about $10,000 each.

Attorneys for Kuang-Shin, Da-Chuan and two other co-defendants awaiting trial had maintained their clients were entrapped. All are free on bail.

UPS builds center at Newark Airport

NEWARK (AP) — United Parcel Service will build an $11 million package distribution center at Newark International Airport, the state port authority has announced.

The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey's board of commissioners voted Thursday to lease 28 acres at the south end of the airport to UPS for 25 years.

Under the lease agreement, UPS is to pay $7,500 per acre annually with increases every five years, bringing the payments to $16,000 per acre for each of the last five years. In addition, the company is to pay about $28,000 per acre for general airport services.

Philip D. Kaltenbacher, chairman of the authority, which operates the airport, said construction of the new UPS facility will create 200 new jobs at the airport and 100 off site.

He said the distribution center will make the airport "a major East Coast hub for UPS," adding to the already fast-growing air cargo activity at Newark International.

Kaltenbacher said UPS expects to complete construction by the end of the year.

The port authority will provide paving and utilities to the perimeter of the site. Those amenities will include an access road and taxiway, underground systems for water, sanitary, and storm drainage, and electrical power and communications utilities.

GSP slaying figure gets 5 years Testimony helped put Marshall on death row

By ANNE McGRATH
Associated Press

MAYS LANDING — The Louisiana man whose testimony helped put Robert O. Marshall on death row for the murder of his wife was sentenced yesterday to five years in prison and fined $5,000 for his role in the 1984 slaying of Maria Marshall.

Billy Wayne McKinnon, whose previous time served makes him eligible to request parole immediately, told Superior Court Judge Manuel Greenberg that he regretted his role in the murder of the Toms River woman.

The 43-year-old Greenwood, La., man testified at Marshall's trial earlier this year that the former insurance broker agreed to pay him $65,000 to murder Mrs. Marshall.

McKinnon said he drove a hit man to a rest stop on the Garden State Parkway, selected with Marshall's help, to shoot Marshall, 42, after her husband drove their car into the secluded area on a trip home from an Atlantic City casino on Sept. 7, 1984.

"I would like to say that I truly regret my role in this crime," said McKinnon, the father of six children.

Billy Wayne McKinnon
Murder case defendant

"It's not like me. I don't know what brought me to that point in time," said McKinnon, who testified at Marshall's trial under a plea bargain with the Ocean County prosecutor's office.

He pleaded guilty on April 8 to a conspiracy charge in the slaying of the mother of three sons.

In exchange for his testimony, the prosecutor's office agreed to drop a murder charge against McKinnon and to recommend the most lenient sentence possible, five years in prison.

The maximum penalty for conspiracy to commit murder is 10 years in prison and a $100,000 fine.

Marshall, 46, was convicted in March of conspiracy and murder for hire. He was sentenced to death and is now on death row in Trenton State Prison. His execution has been stayed pending appeal.

Assistant Ocean County Prosecutor Kevin Kelly accused Marshall of plotting to have his wife killed so he could collect $1.5 million in life insurance and pursue a love affair.

Marshall's co-defendant and the man McKinnon said fired the fatal shots, Larry N. Thompson of Fairview-Alpha, La., was acquitted of conspiracy and murder charges.

Prosecutors presented no other testimony against Thompson except McKinnon's, and several witnesses said they saw the defendant in Louisiana at the time of the murder.

Marshall's lawyer, Glenn Zeitz, called McKinnon's plea agreement a "pact with the devil."

But Greenberg said he thought the plea bargain agreement was "in the interest of justice" and noted that the prosecutor's office had only "suspicions and circumstantial evidence against certain individuals" at the time the deal was struck.

"The person who fired the fatal shots into the victim in this case has not been convicted of that offense. It is obvious that the person will never be convicted," Greenberg said as he sentenced McKinnon.

"Under our system, it happens at times that crimes are not solved and that persons charged with crimes are acquitted for lack of evidence. No criminal justice system devised by man can be perfect in convicting all the guilty and only the guilty."

McKinnon, who has been free on his own recognizance since pleading guilty, was ordered to report to Ocean County authorities next Friday by noon.

Senator presses chief justice fight

By KATHLEEN BIRD
Associated Press

TRENTON — Sen. Peter P. Garibaldi, R-Middlesex, said yesterday he will continue to invoke "senatorial courtesy" to block the reappointment of Chief Justice Robert N. Wilentz because the state Supreme Court jurist may have broken the law.

The senator also charged that the state's top jurist should be unseated because he has engaged in a pattern of arrogant, unethical behavior.

But Sen. Edward T. O'Connor, D-Hudson, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he expects the Democrat-controlled Senate will strip Garibaldi of his "senatorial courtesy" privilege when it meets next Thursday.

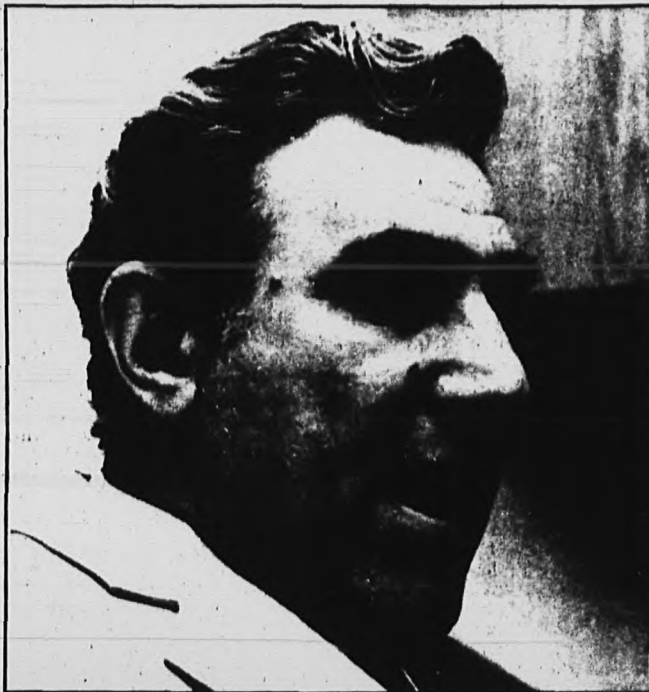

Garibaldi said he also expects the Senate to strip him of his power to unseat Wilentz. That power is known as senatorial courtesy, an unwritten 19th century custom that allows a nominee's home-county senator to block a Senate confirmation vote by refusing to "sign off" on it.

"I believe that the chief justice may have violated the law and he has certainly broken, I believe, that fine edge of the law," Garibaldi said at a news conference.

"I'm going on documented news reports," he said. "I don't have any hard documented evidence."

Garibaldi said his main complaint is Wilentz's keeping a co-op apartment in Manhattan since 1972. The jurist lists his legal residence as Perth Amboy and also has a summer home in Deal.

"Maybe it's a token home or a convenience to avoid paying the less favorable taxes of New York," he said. "If home is where the heart is, how can we be sure that our chief justice is morally, emotionally and legally dedicated to New Jersey?"

FIGHTS ON — State Senator Peter Garibaldi, R-Middlesex, announced yesterday he will continue to oppose the reappointment of Chief Justice Robert N. Wilentz. But the conservative senator denied his opposition stems from Wilentz's Mount Laurel housing decision but rather from the chief justice's ownership of a New York co-op apartment.

"If Chief Justice Wilentz has his domicile in New York, has he been breaking the law by registering and voting in Perth Amboy, New Jersey?" Garibaldi said.

The senator held up photographs of the front of Wilentz's co-op, his apartment in Perth Amboy and the Perth Amboy home he sold when he bought the co-op.

Garibaldi contended that a state-paid driver takes Wilentz on a regular basis home to the New York address.

He charged that during Wilentz's initial seven-year term on the court, the justice has engaged in a pattern of unethical behavior to protect political associates, has improperly meddled in legislative affairs and has taken actions to advance the court's power.

Garibaldi said Wilentz had a "propensity for creating his own rules and fostering new laws under the guise of interpreting the law."

The senator is among a group of conservative Republicans who have complained about the court's Mount Laurel II exclusionary zoning decision, which Wilentz wrote in 1983. It ordered towns to provide their "fair share" of affordable housing for the poor and middle-income people.

"Mount Laurel II has nothing to do with it," Garibaldi said of his blackballing the justice's nomination. "Mount Laurel II is past history."

"I have reason to believe that the ethical community of attorneys and the public in general view the aggregate of the chief justice's actions as being smugly contemptuous of all who are not a part of his power-laden brotherhood," he said.

Wilentz is the son of former state Attorney General David Wilentz, a long-time Democratic power boss in Middlesex County who had prosecuted Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the 1932 kidnapping and murder of famed aviator Charles A. Lindbergh's son.

N.J. nun strip searched after protest

By ART DANIELS
Associated Press

NEWARK — The Austrian government will inquire into why a Roman Catholic nun, in Vienna to protest the inauguration of President Kurt Waldheim because of his World War II activities, was forced to strip naked during an airport search, an Austrian diplomat said yesterday.

Sister Rose Thering said a telegram had been sent to the Austrian embassy in Washington to protest the strip search Wednesday at the Viennese Airport.

Embassy press officer Walter Greinert said yesterday that a telex had been sent to Austria seeking an inquiry into the incident.

Sister Thering, a professor of education at Seton Hall University in South Orange, said the telegram of protest was signed by her, the Rev. David Bossman of Seton Hall, and Rabbie Avraham Weiss of the Hebrew Institute of Riverdale, N.Y.

The three held a two-day prayer vigil outside a Viennese synagogue and then protested at Waldheim's inaugural Tuesday, prompting some Austrians to call them "Jew pigs" and issue anti-Semitic threats, Weiss and Sister Thering said.

"Dirty Jew, they should have gassed all of you," Weiss quoted some as saying.

When Bossman and Sister Thering, who said she is "50-plus" in age, were about to board a KLM flight Wednesday, she said, she was ushered into a curtained booth and forced to disrobe and be "examined" by a woman.

Sister Thering was not wearing religious garb.

The nun said she was "embarrassed and humiliated" by the search and believed it may have been sparked by the well-publicized protest in which she had participated and noted that her luggage was not searched.

Weiss said he was nearly certain the strip search was a retaliatory act.

Bossman had been frisked, fully clothed and Weiss left without incident on an earlier flight.

In Washington, Greinert said Austria "will make an inquiry."

He said security has been increased at the Viennese airport, where "people are searched regularly."

Greinert said Austria, "a mainly Catholic country," would have nothing against a nun, but he said he could not say whether it could have been a reprisal because of her alliance with Jews killed in the Holocaust.

"Possible is everything," he said.

He called the anti-Semitic remarks "very regrettable," but said to his knowledge "such people exist in every country, including the United States."

Weiss said the group's telegram to the embassy asked, "If it is illegal to unveil a Nazi flag in Austria, isn't it equally illegal to utter Nazi slogans? And if it is, why did the police stand by?"

Mortgage processing delays investigated

By NICHOLAS G. KATSARELAS
Associated Press

TRENTON — A flood of applications for new mortgages and refinancing has caused long delays in paperwork processing that in some cases has caused consumers to lose the lower interest rates promised them, Banking Commissioner Mary Little Parell said yesterday.

The commissioner said she has initiated a probe into the delays that are angering consumers and how best to solve them.

"It's happening all over the state. And it's a national problem," said Edward Blau, chairman of the executive committee of Margaretten and Co., a Perth Amboy mortgage firm.

The problem, said Blau, is easy enough to identify. When interest rates began falling earlier this year, prospective homeowners rushed to banks and mortgage companies to apply for mortgages, while those with homes applied to refinance their mortgages.

So many applications were filed that the banking and mortgage industry has had difficulty keeping up with the demand.

"There are more applications in the system than the system can handle efficiently," said Blau.

So delays in application processing can cause for consumers who find out the interest rate they were promised when they applied has risen while their paperwork was mired in the backlog.

According to Blau, many institutions promise applicants a certain interest rate if the mortgage can be processed within a certain period, such as 60 days.

But the delays have stretched on for 75 to 90 days, industry representatives say, and the "locked-in" period and the promised rate expires by then, explained Blau.

Appraisers and title searchers can usually handle their pre-mortgage work within the 60 days, but the glut of cases has delayed the time they are able to complete their work, said Blau.

Blau said the backlog has become so bad that since March, his company has stopped taking applications for refinancing and is only processing new mortgage applications.

Parell said the department has begun investigating complaints of consumers who are angered about delays and the interest rates they may have lost because of them.

Aberdeen man charged with fraud

NEWARK — A former Libertarian Party candidate for governor has been charged along with a Morganville woman with devising a scheme to defraud insurance companies out of $618,000.

The federal grand jury has charged Bobby Jack Moyers, 53, of Aberdeen, and Dale Harris, 47, of Morganville, with filing excessive, fraudulent and duplicative health insurance claims.

Moyers had been charged in the case in March. The indictment handed up Thursday expanded upon the previous accusations and added a conspiracy charge. Harris had not been previously charged.

The defrauded companies included Gerber Life Insurance Co., Prudential Life Insurance Co., National Benefit Life Insurance Co. and Continental American Life Insurance Co., federal authorities said.

Moyers could not be reached for comment. A man answering the telephone listed for him would only say that Moyers could not be reached at that number.

A message left at Harris's home was not returned.

Federal authorities alleged that between January of 1977 until February of this year, the defendants carried out a scheme to defraud companies that issued indemnity insurance policies.

Such policies promise to pay the beneficiary a fixed sum of money for each day of hospitalization, above the actual cost of hospitalization and treatment.

Moyers applied for more than 150 policies under a variety of names and addresses, the indictment alleged.

He then admitted himself to various hospitals and clinics for a diagnosis of conditions of which he already was aware, the indictment alleged.

Manson follower denied freedom bid

FRONTERA, Calif. (AP) — A parole board, calling the 1969 Sharon Tate-LaBianca murders a crime "beyond equal," refused yesterday to release Charles Manson "family" member Leslie Van Houten from prison.

"The savagery goes beyond description," said board member Rudolph Castro, who announced the decision of a three-member panel after a six-hour hearing.

Van Houten, 36, told the parole board she blamed herself for not preventing the slayings, and said she did not come to terms with the enormity of her crime until after her death sentence was commuted and she realized she would be spending her life behind bars.

She is eligible for another parole hearing in a year.

The three members of this year's panel said she still had adjustments to make before she could be sent back into society.

Board members suggested that she attend self-help programs at the prison, such as Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous, to deal with the drug problem that led her into the Manson family in the 1960s.

They cited her own testimony at her first trial, that she had used the mind-altering drug LSD 150 times and taken drugs from the time she was 14.

The panel also cited her "unstable social history" and her tendency to become involved with "social misfits" such as Manson.

The bulk of the decision, however, centered on the brutality of the seven killings and the strange philosophy preached by Manson to his youthful followers.

"The motive of these crimes was inexplicable," Castro said.

"... A group known as the Manson family planned to start a revolution for the purpose of destroying American society as we know it. ... The butchering of the Tate victims and the LaBianca couple are beyond equal in previous criminal records."

Thomas Jacobson: home is the sailor. . .

Sailor arrives after 18 days at sea

HONOLULU (AP) — A sailor who abandoned a sinking ship spent 18 days on a 16-foot skiff, using a compass, sextant, and sails made from a sleeping bag to guide him through rough seas to Hawaii.

The skiff, with no keel, drifted mostly sideways in the stiff winds and choppy water before depositing Thomas Jacobson, 43, of Brinnon, Wash., on the shores of the remote island of Ni'ihau.

"It got me down here," said Jacobson, one of eight crewmembers of the West I, who abandoned ship June 21 when the fish processing vessel sank en route to Honolulu from Seattle.

The other seven remained in two life rafts, while Jacobson took the skiff in hopes of finding help.

Six of the other crewmembers were rescued July 5 about 400 miles from Hawaii by a passing Navy ship. The captain died and was buried at sea.

Jacobson steered the skiff with a compass and sextant and also used the stars. He tore up a sleeping bag and made four triangular sails, and found shelter under a tarpaulin from one of the life rafts. He fished with a hook and hand line until a dolphin yanked it away.

"I figured I'd arrive (on Oahu) around the fifth," Jacobson said Thursday. "I had no question I was going to be making it here."

He drifted helplessly by Oahu, however.

"I was really irritated because I couldn't tack toward shore," he said.

He landed on Ni'ihau on Tuesday. It took two days to get around steep cliffs and find any islanders, mostly native Hawaiians who speak Hawaiian.

Cocaine epidemic spreads to babies

MIAMI — The cocaine epidemic is spreading to a new and helpless generation of victims — newborn children.

These infants — dubbed "cocaine babies" — are more likely to be premature and underweight, doctors say. Some suffer from problems ranging from strokes to heart attacks to loss of the sucking reflex, say federal authorities and experts in hospitals from Los Angeles to Philadelphia.

At the neonatal unit in Broward General Medical Center, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., the largest in Florida, at least 20 percent of the 43 newborns being treated Thursday were cocaine babies, said chief neonatologist Dr. Brian Udell. Saving the life of just one of these infants can cost $135,000, and taxpayers face paying for decades of care for children who develop long-term illnesses.

In one Palm Beach County hospital, neonatologists report increasing numbers of cocaine babies. In Fort Pierce, Fla., a woman using cocaine chose to have an abortion rather than risk bearing a defective child. At Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami, doctors say they care for so many drug-affected babies that they don't have the time or money to pin down exactly what drugs are affecting each mother — or baby.

"We see such a large number of kids born to drug-addicted mothers that maybe we've been seeing (an increase in cocaine babies) all along and don't know it," said Dr. Eduardo Banclari, chief of the neonatology division.

Doctors fear the trend will continue because of the popularity of "crack" or "rock" — small doses of cocaine in its purest possible form, typically costing less than $20.

"This stuff hasn't been around long enough to get statistics," said Jean Kirby, clinical director of Alpha Health Services in Fort Pierce. She said her agency is aware of two cocaine-addicted pregnant women and has received numerous calls asking about the effect of cocaine on a fetus.

"We've got a crisis," said Udell.

Jell-O yanked from Chicago shelves

N.Y. caller also warned of cyanide poison in Slice

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press

General Foods Corp. yesterday ordered Jell-O dry-mix desserts pulled from Chicago-area stores following a second tampering threat in as many days, while New York City officials cleared shelves of some soft drinks because of a report of cyanide poisoning.

An anonymous caller to General Foods' consumer information hot line yesterday said four boxes of Jell-O Instant Chocolate Pudding Mix had been tampered with in the Chicago area, the company said.

One day earlier, a caller said two packages of Sugar Free Jell-O Gelatin in Chicago and one in Detroit had been contaminated with cyanide.

Both calls — company officials could not say if they were from the same person — prompted stores to take some Jell-O products off their shelves in four states.

In New York City, a caller to the 911 police emergency number Thursday night claimed someone had put cyanide in one lot of lemon-lime Slice soda. Mayor Edward Koch said the lot number was 6F18B23-82.

Health Commissioner Dr. Stephen Joseph said the FDA told him the caller claimed cyanide was put in five bottles. It was unclear whether the caller claimed to have placed the poison in the soda himself or whether he said someone else had done so.

The lot involved two-liter second caller warned that some packages of Jell-O pudding also were tampered with. And then a caller to New York City said that several two-liter bottles of Slice soft-drinks were poisoned with cyanide, prompting a wide-scale safety check.

plastic bottles distributed in New York City and suburban Westchester County, said Agnette Duffy, a spokeswoman for the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of New York. Slice is a Pepsi product.

"We have no evidence of actual tampering," Duffy said. "We're in a precaution mode."

Charles Thomas, president of the bottling company, said 4,000 cases from the lot had been distributed, and most of that has probably been consumed. The remaining 7,500 cases were found in a warehouse in Queens.

Edward Warner, acting regional director of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said inspectors were checking bottles with other code numbers "just to be on the safe side" because the caller had said he had tampered with a Pepsi product and gave the code number which the FDA traced to the Slice. In Kansas City, Mo., on Wednesday, a Pepsi-Cola bottler recalled some of its apple Slice and mandarin orange Slice soft drinks because fermentation could cause the bottles to explode.

The calls were the latest in a spate of tamperings or reported tamperings involving consumer products that began in 1982, when seven people in the Chicago area died after taking Extra-Strength Tylenol laced with cyanide.

PHILADELPHIA — A tentative contract was reached yesterday with one striking municipal union and round-the-clock bargaining continued with the second as officials and residents confronted the problems created by thousands of tons of uncollected, smelly garbage.

Some residents angered at the stench and possible health problems blocked access yesterday to three temporary dumps.

"Nothing's getting by here. ... Nothing," Mary Ann Stepnowski said while blocking a site with about 20 neighbors.

The 1.7 million residents of and visitors to Philadelphia have generated more than 20,000 tons of refuse during the 11-day strike by two councils of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Fugitive rapist hunted

By BOB WIELAND
Associated Press

BIG SANDY, Texas — Hundreds of police officers using helicopters, a plane and dogs sealed this town today after an escaped murder suspect freed his female hostage, and the sheriff said the man known as "Animal" would "pay for what he did."

Jerry Walter McFadden, a convicted rapist, told his hostage, Upshur County Sheriff's Deputy Rosalie Williams, Thursday night to "Go!" and was seen about 45 minutes later on foot heading toward the Sabine River, said Police Chief Richard Lingle.

McFadden is charged with capital murder in the slaying of 18-year-old Suzanne Harrison, one of three Hawkins youths slain while on an outing at Lake Hawkins. She was found beaten and strangled May 5 and an autopsy showed she had been sexually assaulted.

The two other victims were found dead five days later in a ditch. No charges were filed in their deaths.

McFadden was released from prison July 17, 1985, after serving five years of a 15-year sentence for a 1976 aggravated sexual abuse conviction. Officials said the release was automatic because he had served one-third of his sentence.

Woodrow Simmons, investigator for the district attorney's office for Shackelford County, said that conviction stemmed from the abduction and rape of an 18-year-old girl from an oil field office. "He put her against a tree and choked her until he thought she was dead," Simmons said.

About 200 law officers asked the 1,250 residents to remain indoors while they used helicopters, a plane and dogs to track McFadden, 38. They cordoned off a search area estimated by Upshur County Sheriff Dale Jewkes at between 10 and 15 square miles.

"We've got men on horseback in heavily wooded areas and we've still got the dogs here," he said.

Authorities stopped the morning train during the morning and searched boxcars, but did not find the fugitive, who calls himself "Animal."

After her release, Williams, 24, went to a house, whose occupants called police, Lingle said, adding that he contacted Williams' husband, Eddie, a state trooper, who took her to a hospital.

Mystery AF plane crashes, triggering tight secrecy

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A mystery Air Force plane crashed in Sequoia National Forest early yesterday, killing the pilot, igniting a 45-acre brush fire, and triggering a cordon of Air Force secrecy.

The Air Force refused to say what type of airplane crashed or whether it was an experimental craft from the flight test center at Edwards Air Force Base, about 80 miles southeast of the crash site.

Public affairs officials at Edwards, who read brief statements to reporters, confirmed that the crash occurred about 2 a.m. and killed one person. The pilot's name was not released.

Andy Lightbody, editor of International Combat Arms, a Los Angeles-based defense technology magazine, said government and industry sources had told him the downed aircraft was an F-19, a plane the Air Force has never even confirmed exists.

Speculation of the existence of an F-19 arose when the Air Force skipped in its numerical designation of new jets from the F-18 to the F-20. Some reports claim the F-19 is a so-called Stealth aircraft built by Lockheed.

Stealth technology is intended to make an aircraft, by design and materials, invisible to radar.

"The whole area has been restricted, including the air space above the crash site," the Kern County Sheriff's Office said, stressing that it was relaying information from the Air Force.

"There will be military aircraft in the area, and anyone entering the area will be dealt with appropriately by the Air Force," the sheriff's office said.

Gen. Michael McRaney, head of public affairs for the Air Force, said from the Pentagon that the plane had only one crew member and "was definitely not a bomber."

No weapons of any kind were on board, 2nd Lt. Eric Schnaible said. The crash, about 12 miles northeast of Bakersfield, triggered a brush fire that blackened 45 acres of the Sierra Nevada before it was contained at 8 a.m. by Kern County and U.S. Forest Service firefighters.

Kern County fire dispatcher John Rosso said the crash occurred in Kern River Canyon, about 110 miles north of Los Angeles.

The initial statement from Edwards, five hours after the crash, said only that an Air Force plane had crashed, gave a general location and said a board of officers would be appointed to investigate.

"That's the guidance we've been given from Washington," said Staff Sgt. Lorri Wray, after she read the statement. "We can't give out any details."

But the super-secret operations the Air Force conducts over the sparsely inhabited deserts and mountains of California and Nevada gave rise to speculation that the plane may have been highly classified.

Aircraft tested at Edwards range from such exotic types as the forward-swept-wing X-29 to the big B-1 bomber, Northrop's F-20 Tigerhawk, and more ordinary planes with various modifications.

Violence clashes kill 6 in Punjab

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Police said yesterday that six more people died in the violence-plagued Punjab, and the Indian government postponed for the third time a disputed land swap crucial to the peace accord for the state.

Elsewhere in India, Police fired bullets and tear gas shells yesterday to disperse rioters as clashes between Moslems and Hindus broke out for the third day in the western Indian city of Ahmedabad.

United News of India reported three people died yesterday in the industrial and textile center, which would raise the death toll to 23 since the rioting began Wednesday when Moslem youths stoned an annual Hindu religious procession. The news agency said federal paramilitary troops were rushed to the city.

The planned transfer next week of Chandigarh to Punjab control was delayed indefinitely because no agreement has been reached on what land Haryana should receive in return, according to newspaper reports.

The city is now capital of both Sikh-dominated Punjab and the predominantly Hindu state of Haryana.

Marcos telephoned rebel

By STEVE LA VINE
Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — Deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos, who has denied any part in a short-lived rebellion led by Arturo Tolentino, telephoned advice to Tolentino soon after it began, according to a report received by the Defense Ministry.

Hotel operators listened to the telephone call, Defense Ministry spokesman Silvestre Afafe said today. The operators quoted Marcos as suggesting that Tolentino, his running mate in the fraud-tainted Feb. 7 elections, use the Manila Hotel as a base for his self-proclaimed government, Afafe said.

About 20 minutes before the reported call Sunday, Tolentino proclaimed himself acting president, and along with four generals and about 300 soldiers launched a 38-hour challenge to the government of President Corazon Aquino. The rebellion ended peacefully Tuesday when participants left the hotel.

"For as long as we are maintaining a very soft approach against the Communist Party ... then we should apply the same yardstick against the very people who believe in our system."

Juan Ponce Enrile
Defense Minister

Tolentino claimed he was acting on Marcos' orders. Marcos denied Tuesday that he knew anything about the revolt before it began.

Hotel supervisor Vic Sison said today that at least seven calls were made between the hotel and telephone numbers in Hawaii, where Marcos has lived since he was ousted in a civilian-backed military revolt in February.

Sison, who said he had all the calls monitored by hotel operators, said two calls from Tolentino's room asked specifically for Marcos' wife, Imelda.

Sison said Tolentino's room received a call from Hawaii at 5 p.m. Sunday. He said one more call was received from Hawaii and five were made from the room to three numbers in Hawaii apparently linked to the former president and his wife.

Asked about Afafe's statement, Sison said he could not quote precisely what was said in the calls. He said the content of some of the conversations might be available after military officials interview the telephone operators Saturday.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said today in a television interview to be broadcast Saturday that he had planned "room-to-room combat" if Tolentino and his fellow rebels had not surrendered.

"The president asked me what my opinion was of the time frame," Enrile said. "I said 3 days — 72 hours. After that, the options are to use more lethal weapons."

He added, "And we could have dislodged them to the point of conducting a room-to-room combat."

Enrile said the rebellious officers and soldiers they would not be punished, but said he told them he would not be so lenient a second time.

The minister said he believed his pardon in this case was consistent with Mrs. Aquino's policy of reconciliation with rebels.

"For as long as we are maintaining a very soft approach against the Communist Party ... then we should apply the same yardstick against the very people who believe in our system," he said.

Japanese landslides kill 13

TOKYO (AP) — Two more bodies found yesterday brought the death toll to 13 in landslides triggered by torrential rains that pelted Kagoshima city on Japan's main southern island of Kyushu, police said.

National Police officials said five people were missing and more than 800 Self Defense Force personnel, firefighters and local rescue workers were digging through the muddy debris on the city's hilly outskirts.

Three people, including an infant, were rescued from the debris, police said. Intermittent rains continued today after 7.7 inches fell on the area in 6 1/2 hours Thursday, according to the Kagoshima Observatory.

In addition, six people were injured in 46 landslides that destroyed 70 homes, completely burying some of them, and damaged 18 other structures, police said.

The city of Kagoshima, 616 miles southwest of Tokyo, was the site of a flash flood in 1976 that killed 32 people.

S. African cops kill 10 in gun battles

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said yesterday they killed 10 alleged black insurgents in two gun battles, and residents of the Soweto township reported several people slain in fights between rival blacks.

The government said violence decreased dramatically in the first month of its nationwide state of emergency.

National police headquarters in Pretoria gave the following account of the gun fights:

Four men came out shooting when police stopped a car yesterday morning near King William's Town in eastern Cape province. One threw a grenade, but it did not explode. Police returned fire and killed one man, but the others sped away. Another patrol stopped the car 20 miles away and two more blacks were slain in fierce shooting. The fourth man was found dead in the car along with hand grenades, AK-47 assault rifles and pistols.

At least one of the dead men was known to be a member of the outlawed African National Congress, the main guerrilla group fighting white rule in South Africa.

In the village of Alldays near the Botswana border on Thursday, a patrol killed six men suspected of being ANC guerrillas in a fierce gun battle that left a policeman wounded.

The Bureau for Information said the casualties brought to 30 the number of suspected ANC members killed or captured in the past month.

Residents of Soweto, Johannesburg's satellite black city of 2 million people, reported street fighting between migrant black workers and young radicals, and said they believed as many as seven were killed. There was no official confirmation of deaths.

Light terrorist sentence shocks U.S.

PARIS (AP) — The U.S. Embassy expressed surprise yesterday that a Lebanese man allegedly linked to the killing of an American military attaché was sentenced to only four years in prison on several lesser charges.

Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, alleged to be the European leader of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Front, was sentenced Thursday in Lyon for possession of arms and explosives, using false identity papers and associating with criminals.

He still faces charges of complicity in the Feb. 18, 1982, killing of U.S. Col. Charles M. Ray and the assassination of Israeli diplomat Yacov Bartsimantov. His group has claimed responsibility for both slayings.

In an unusual comment on a local legal decision, the U.S. Embassy said in a statement, "Although Abdallah was not on trial for murder in Lyon, he is associated with a group that has killed or tried to kill several U.S. diplomats."

"We were surprised that the prosecutor in Lyon asked for only a four-year sentence which he characterized as 'moderate.' This is a lighter sentence than we have seen in similar cases in other European countries," it said.

The statement was read to The Associated Press by an embassy spokesman on the condition he not be identified by name.

Afghans spurn p'butter

INDURMAR GHAI, Afghanistan (AP) — Peanut butter is not winning the struggle for hearts and stomachs in Afghanistan.

The all-American food, in olive-green plastic combat ration packs, is reaching Moslem guerrillas fighting the Soviet-backed communist regime. But many of the guerrillas are less than enthusiastic about the American staple.

"I don't like it. It is not good to my stomach," said a guerrilla named Amarullah.

Dozens of unopened packets of peanut butter from Visalia, Calif., dotted the hillside of the insurgent base here.

It took a while to find a guerrilla who admitted to liking the stuff.

"I like it because it has vitamin A, vitamin B, vitamin C and other good things," said a guerrilla named Narullah.

"It does not taste so bad," said the fighter, apparently impressed with the food's nutritive qualities listed on the pack.

Americans warned of Mexican military

By DORALISA PILARTE

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico — The U.S. consul general warned American tourists yesterday to exercise caution after Mexican soldiers wielding bayonets took over the city police department amid rising political tensions.

Army soldiers in Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Texas, took control of the police department Thursday "at bayonet point," said city manager Sergio Conde Varela.

The opposition National Action Party, or PAN, which has alleged government-instigated fraud in the July 6 state elections, said Juarez was under martial law. But the government said yesterday in Mexico City that martial law has not been declared.

Juarez, the largest city in the vast state of Chihuahua and along the U.S.-Mexico border, has been under PAN control for the last three years.

The results of the elections, to choose a state governor, 67 mayorships and 14 state legislative seats, are to be announced Sunday.

"We are advising American citizens ... that there's a strong possibility of political demonstrations," said U.S. Consul General Mike Hancock. "Americans should exercise due caution and avoid concentrations of people that might turn into political demonstrations."

South Africa expels missionary couple

By LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — An American missionary couple said yesterday the government ordered them to leave the country by next week.

The Reverends Brian and Susan Burchfield of the American Lutheran Church said an official of the Ministry of Home Affairs handed them a letter Thursday night informing them of their expulsion.

"No reason was given," said Mrs. Burchfield, 39, in a telephone interview. "There are no charges pending against us anywhere and so we are completely in the dark. Our work permit was recently renewed until Oct. 9."

The Burchfields were sent from Lynnwood, Wash., on their first overseas post in January to help a Cape Town pastor with his congregation of 600 mixed-race South Africans.

The letter said only that Home Minister Stoffel Botha "has considered it to be in the public interest to order your removal from the republic."

The Burchfields, who came to this country with two daughters, were told they could appeal by Wednesday, but would have to leave by midnight Thursday if the appeal failed.

The couple were among 56 people arrested on a disorderly conduct charge March 7 while saying goodbye at the airport to a deported Lutheran minister, Gottfried Kraatz.

Marine helicopter crashes off Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Rescuers today searched for three U.S. Marines listed as missing after their helicopter crashed at sea while taking part in night flight operations off Japan, a military spokesman said.

The crash occurred about 300 miles east of Hokkaido early yesterday.

Marine Master Gunnery Sgt. Dale Hunter in Tokyo said the pilot and crew of the Marine UH-1N helicopter were operating from the amphibious assault ship Tarawa and were attached to a unit stationed at Marine Air Station El Toro near Tustin, Calif.

The unit was taking part in maneuvers to deploy Marines in the Western Pacific, said Joanne Schilling, a public affairs officer at El Toro, southeast of Los Angeles.

Names of the missing pilot and crewmembers were not released, pending notification of relatives. The cause of the accident was under investigation.

The UH-1N Huey is a twin-engine, utility helicopter that can carry up to 16 troops. Its primary mission is to provide support for landing forces in ship to shore movement and subsequent movements ashore, Schilling said.

Eclectic Morrison drops in

Later, With Palace of the Lord, Van Morrison brought the tempo

Before the barefoot girls with flowers in their hair and the college students with crew-cuts and button-down shirts, Van Morrison proved again last night in Holmdel that his music is diverse enough for his audience.

ADVICE

Dr. Ruth
Westheimer

His kisses turn her off

Q. At 64 my gentleman caller is a regular loverboy, but we are stuck in the initial stages because he keeps trying to French-kiss and I don't want him to. He must know I have false teeth. Can't I teach him no-no?

A. You can turn your face away prettily, like a fascinating little tease. You don't have to make a federal case out of the dentures and how you don't want to have them explored, or spotlighted, or whatever it is. Just turn away and then begin to nibble his earlobe, or whatever little trick you like, such as maybe giving a tiny little hickey. OK?

Later, if he keeps trying to kiss that way, you can just say, "I don't like that." Nothing has to be said about your teeth. Men often believe some style of kissing is totally persuasive to any woman, leaving out our individual likes and dislikes. But they learn, if they really want to please. At least your suitor isn't one of the face-mashers — be thankful for that!

Q. She always enjoys sex and has great climaxes, but lately it's headaches, too tired, not in the mood. How come she avoids it when she likes it so much?

A. Let's not forget there are real headaches and real fatigue. Not just to perk her up for sex, but to show concern for her, you could ask her if she is putting in too long a day every day, or not eating, or if she shouldn't get a checkup. Or it might be something else. Maybe she wants to get out of the relationship.

Maybe you're doing fine in bed but not pleasing her in other ways. You can't make up for everything in bed. Maybe you don't help with housework, maybe you don't listen to her, maybe you don't want a child and she does.

Ask her, "Honey, something is wrong, right?" And don't ask it in bed, where she will think your only concern is about the sex you're not getting. Ask her very nicely some other time, and let her see that you are really concerned.

Q. I live with two sisters, having sex with both completely openly. There are no sexual or emotional problems. Do you think there is a moral one?

A. Maybe — or is it a psychological problem? I think you like to go around telling your fantasies to trusting people like me. I think, my entertaining friend, that you made it all up. I would like to see from each one of those sisters her own version of the story, signed and notarized.

I think that would add a great deal to the entertainment value. A good story needs a little conflict to make it entertaining and dramatic. Also life-like. As for the three of you having no sexual problems, even if two of you are totally imaginary, what am I always saying? Have good sex! With contraception.

Q. I'm worried about my honeymoon (only four days away) because I was seriously molested as a child. My fiancé knows and understands, but I want to make him happy.

A. Then be happy for yourself, concentrating on every happy aspect of the wedding and the being together that follows. Your memories probably do not make you more nervous than most brides. Honeymoon sex is likely to be sweet and rather bumbling. Just expect to enjoy that, not too solemnly, and the sex may work pretty well.

If you are too tense, tell him so and that loving man will understand. You both have lots of time to learn love and its ways together, so for now just enjoy such intimacies as you are used to.

When you come back home, see a counselor to talk about this tenseness and its cause — for which, believe me, you were never to blame. Meanwhile, there is no pressure on either of you to turn your private, loving honeymoon into a Hollywood spectacular.

Families, take time to inform mentally disabled

Dear Ann Landers: I am a registered nurse who works in a psychiatric hospital. Twice in the past two months patients have received word of a death in the family by reading about it in the newspaper. Of course, it was too late to make arrangements to attend the funeral. Both young men were frustrated and angry at their supposedly supportive families.

I realize the families might have been reluctant to convey such news to a person in a mental hospital, but isn't it worse for the patient to read about it in the paper?

Families need to know that if they speak to the staff first, we can help them in this process. We have chaplains, social workers, nurses, all well trained in handling this type of communication. We also have physicians who will prescribe temporary medication if necessary.

Please alert families to the hurt and anxiety created when their mentally disturbed kin are not accorded the same respect as other members of the family.

— E.N. In Wyoming

Dear Wyoming: You have alerted them, in no uncertain terms. Nothing need be added.

Dear Ann Landers: In answer to "Culture Shock," I would like to share a little story that my father used to tell.

We'll call the first traveler Hal and the second one Carl. Hal had to relocate and was looking for a place to settle. He stopped in a small town and asked, "What kind of folks do you have here?"

Ann

"Well," said the native, "What kind of folks lived in the place you came from?"

"They were selfish and loners," replied Hal.

"Same kind here," said the native.

"What kind of folks do you have here?" inquired the second traveler of the same native.

"What kind did you have where you came from?" again asked the native.

"They were wonderful people — kind and friendly," beamed Carl.

"We have the same kind here," announced the native. — L.S. Of Shreveport, La.

Dear Shreve: Sounds like you and I had the same kind of father — wise and insightful. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: My letter is directed primarily to those clods who drop in at any time of the day unannounced. I have two such regulars who appear between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. and 4:00 and 6:30 p.m. almost every day of the week except Sunday.

Needless to say, this is a grossly inconvenient intrusion and I strongly resent the assumption that I am delighted to see them. I have asked repeatedly that they phone before coming by, but to no avail. I have little in common with these people and find them boring.

Too bad they don't appear at the same time. I could wish them on each other. Maybe that is the solution to my problem — arrange for them to meet. Any ideas if this doesn't work? — Retired In Tampa, Fla.

Dear Tam: I've said this many times, but I'll say it again. It takes two to create the problem you have — an insensitive boor who has no qualms about imposing, and a spineless dummy who permits it. After being trapped for the third time you should have been able to say, "Sorry, I have plans. Please call ahead next time," then shut the door and reclaim your privacy. If you don't have enough gumption to do this, accept the consequences and kitcher beefin'.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

An inner ear exam will test your equilibrium

Q. Can you tell me what a caloric test is? I have never heard this term before.

A. The caloric test is one that is used by ear specialists and neurologists who are seeking more information about the hearing and balance mechanism that lies deep in the inner ear.

A small amount of ice water is instilled in the outer ear canal. Within seconds, the ear drum and the equilibrium mechanism are stimulated and a sense of dizziness occurs. This lasts for about a minute and then disappears.

The onset of dizziness, coupled with a sense of falling, indicates that the balance mechanism is normal. Associated with the dizziness are also rapid eye movements, which indicate the normalcy of the balance mechanism. When the test fails to elicit these normal responses, it becomes meaningful in the diagnosis of a patient's condition. There are other methods by which the balance mechanism is studied. The caloric test is momentarily annoying. But its significance is so great that it compensates for the transient distress that it causes. — L.C.

Dr. Lester

Q. I say that one big blast of ultraviolet radiation (a sunburn) is more likely to cause skin cancer than a lot of little tanning doses. Am I right?

A. Yes you are, though I wouldn't use this as an excuse to use a tanning booth. (The American Academy of Dermatology has gone on record as considering them hazardous to the health of your skin.)

There is growing evidence that the ultraviolet radiation damage received in a sunburn may be even more likely to trigger a skin cancer than the same amount of radiation received in more gradual doses.

Somehow a burn helps boost skin cells over that "malignant threshold" and into the region where damaged cells are less likely to repair themselves, more likely to become cancerous. In fact, melanoma skin cancer experts note that it increases the relative risk for the developing malignant melanoma of the skin if someone is one who "always burns, and never tans."

In addition to increasing the odds for getting skin cancer, repeated burns can also weaken the connective tissue in the skin. A pathologist who examines skin tissue under the microscope can often spot aged skin; its evidence of sun-damage shows up in the connective tissue. That's an academic point. The practical point is that this connective tissue weakening shows up as wrinkles, a well-known side effect of chronic sun exposure. — S.D.

When vacationing, don't leave your home open to burglars

CLEVELAND — Returning home from vacation is often as enjoyable as leaving for one — unless you return to a home that's been burglarized.

Indoor lighting

Several lighting techniques can make your home appear occupied even when nobody is home, Jensen explains.

Timing devices make it possible to turn lamps on and off in different rooms, at times when occupants would be most likely to use them. This creates an illusion of movement within the house, according to Jensen, and may deter would-be thieves.

"Variable" timers, he suggests, succeed better than inexpensive or "routine" timers. Their ability to turn lights on and off in random patterns serves as a more convincing deterrent than those that click lights on and off on a rigid schedule.

Lamp positioning is also important. Placing lamps against walls and away from windows will allow people to see in. Lamps placed against windows will obscure the view into a room and make interior observation more difficult.

Outdoor lighting

While indoor lighting can reduce the risk of theft, it should be complemented by outdoor devices. Strategically placed lights connected to timers can brighten entrances at night and illuminate potential hiding places in the garden or yard.

For maximum effectiveness, place spotlights and floodlights under eaves or close to walls and direct them towards entry points. Individually light garages, patios, greenhouses, tool sheds and other separate buildings. Also turn the porch light on at night. This will enable neighbors to identify strangers posing as innocent callers.

Landscape lighting around the perimeter of the garden can also reduce the chances of burglars escaping unseen. Install floodlights in trees and bushes or postlights along the driveway to illuminate the approach to your home. In addition, keep bushes trimmed to a height of three feet to eliminate convenient hiding places.

"But remember to use outdoor lighting regularly when you are home," Jensen warns, "or you will tip off alert burglars to your absence."

Home security lighting is a very cost-effective crime prevention practice. Leaving four 55-watt bulbs burning for four hours costs less than a dime in most parts of the country.

"Security lighting is much like locks or an alarm," Jensen says. "They are valuable only if you use them. Many people have security lighting fixtures in place but don't utilize them effectively."

Locks

In addition to making a home appear occupied, an appropriate lock system on all doors and windows is a must.

Outside entrance doors should have a one-inch deadbolt lock with hardened cylinder guards. If there is glass within 40 inches of the locking hardware, a double cylinder deadbolt lock works better. This system requires a key inside as well as outside.

Window locks are equally important, but often overlooked. First floor windows should be locked with the latch. If the latch is broken or aging windows are rotting, carefully pound a nail on an angle through the bottom window frame into the top. Leave enough of the nail protruding so that you can pull it out on your return.

Alarms

An alarm system can be another important part of home security. Some provide a loud noise to warn occupants or neighbors of an intruder's presence. Sophisticated systems, including alarms that detect intruders with radar, alarms that scan entry points, and others, can also be wired to notify police.

Common sense

"Perhaps the best crime prevention technique of all is common sense," Jensen says. "Try to avoid doing anything which will alert a burglar to your absence."

He suggests canceling newspaper deliveries for the period you're away and, if necessary, arranging for the grass to be cut. Additionally, ask a friend to pick up your mail — or have it held at the post office.

Rookie Drabek earns victory for Yankees

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rookie Doug Drabek earned his first major league victory and Mike Pagliarulo and Dan Pasqua hit home runs to lead the New York Yankees to a 9-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins last night.

Don Mattingly had three doubles, giving him 31 for the season in 87 games, and knocked in two runs as the Yankees won their third straight game and dealt the Twins a third straight loss.

Drabek, 1-2, a 23-year-old right-hander, allowed just one hit over the first 5 2-3 innings before Randy Bush singled and scored on Kent Hrbek's double to cut the Yankees' lead to 2-1.

After walking Roy Smalley to lead off the seventh, Drabek was relieved by Brian Fisher, who earned his first save of the year. Drabek struck out three and walked two to top Minnesota's Neal Heaton, 3-8, who tied a career-high with 10 strikeouts.

Rickey Henderson, who had two doubles and a single, led off the third with a base hit and stole second before Mattingly doubled to score the first run. With two out, Mattingly scored from second when Gary Roenicke blooped an infield single just beyond second base.

Angels 5, Red Sox 0
BOSTON — Reggie Jackson hit a pair of homers, his first since May 14, off Tom Seaver and the California Angels defeated the Boston Red Sox behind the clutch pitching of Kirk McCaskill.

Jackson hit a towering shot into the right-field stands leading off the second inning for his eighth homer of the year and No. 538 of his career.

Indians 7, Rangers 2
CLEVELAND — Andre Thornton drove in three runs and had three hits and Tom Candiotti scattered eight hits as the Cleveland Indians defeated the Texas Rangers.

Thornton has driven in 16 runs in his last eight games, helping Cleveland win three in a row and

American League

10 of its last 12. At 46-37, the Indians are nine games above the .500 mark for the first time this late in a season since 1968.

Candiotti, 8-6, struck out five and walked four in his fifth consecutive victory and eighth complete game of the season.

Orioles 4, White Sox 2
CHICAGO — Ken Dixon allowed just five hits and struck out a career-high 13 in 8 2-3 innings and Cal Ripken drove in two runs with a homer and a single, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The triumph was the fifth in the last six games for the Orioles, while the White Sox suffered their third straight defeat.

Royals 4, Tigers 3
KANSAS CITY — Frank White's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted the Kansas City Royals to a victory over the Detroit Tigers in the first game of their two-night doubleheader.

The Royals, winning their second straight game after an 11-game losing string, rallied from a 3-0 deficit.

Steve Farr, 6-1, hurled two scoreless innings of relief for the pitching victory, while slumping Detroit right-hander Walt Terrell dropped to 7-8. Terrell has won just once since May 25 when he stood 6-1.

Blue Jays 6, A's 5
TORONTO — Damaso Garcia's two-run homer capped a four-run second inning Friday night that carried the Toronto Blue Jays to a victory over the Oakland A's.

Garcia's homer, which just cleared the left-field foul pole, came on a 3-2 pitch by Oakland starter Jose Rijo, 3-8. It was Garcia's fifth straight hit over two nights.

PROTEST — Rey Quinones of the Boston Red Sox reacts to being called out at first base during last night's game against California. Quinones was picked off first. The Angels won the game, 5-0.

'Oil Can' suspended

BOSTON (AP) — Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, the Boston Red Sox emotional right-hander, was suspended without pay for three days yesterday for walking out on the club in anger over being bypassed for the American League all-star team.

"He will not be back in uniform until he meets with us and apologizes to his teammates," Red Sox general manager Lou Gorman said in announcing the suspension.

Boyd, who has an 11-6 record, went into a tirade in the clubhouse before a game with California Thursday night after learning that he had not been picked by Kansas City Manager Dick Howser as one of eight AL pitchers for Tuesday's All-Star Game at Houston.

Braves ripped by Met power

NEW YORK (AP) — Gary Carter hit a grand slam and a three-run homer and Sid Fernandez pitched a two-hitter last night as the New York Mets routed the Atlanta Braves 11-0 in a game interrupted by a bench-clearing brawl in the first inning.

Carter's seven RBI in the game tied a career high and was one short of a team record. Carter took over the National League lead with 65 RBI and now has 16 home runs.

Fernandez, 12-2, won his seventh straight start and became the NL's top winner. He walked three batters and struck out nine as he threw his first career shutout, in his 59th career start. He did not allow a hit after the third inning.

Cubs 6, Dodgers 3
LOS ANGELES — Gary Matthews hit two homers and drove in four runs to power the Chicago Cubs to a victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Matthews opened the scoring with a run-producing single in the fourth.

Reds 3, Expos 2
MONTREAL (AP) — Bill Gullickson combined with John Franco on a six-hitter in his first appearance against his former

National League

Montreal teammates, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a victory over the Expos.

Gullickson, 6-6, gave up both runs — only one earned — over his eight innings. He walked one batter and struck out five.

Phillies 4, Astros 1
HOUSTON — Von Hayes hit a two-run home run and Don Carman combined with two relievers on a five-hitter in his first major-league start, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-1 triumph over the Houston Astros.

Carman, 4-2, pitched five innings and gave up one hit. He struck out three batters and walked one. Tom Hume went two innings, then Steve Bedrosian pitched the last two for his 11th save.

Loser Mike Scott, 9-6, pitched seven innings and gave up three runs and three of the Phillies' five hits. His personal three-game winning streak ended a day after he was named to the National League All-Star team.

All Star reserves selected

NEW YORK (AP) — The names Steve Garvey and Reggie Jackson usually come up around All-Star time.

But this year, Garvey, an 11-time National League All-Star, and Jackson, a 12-time Star, were not named as reserves yesterday for the July 15th classic, despite both just missing being voted to the clubs by the fans.

St. Louis Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog named Houston's Glenn Davis as the backup first baseman to starter Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets.

Kansas City Manager Dick Howser selected Toronto's Jesse Barfield and Lloyd Moseby, Boston's Jim Rice, Chicago's Harold Baines, and Oakland's Jose Canseco as substitutes for starting outfielders Kirby Puckett of Minnesota and New York Yankees Rickey Henderson and Dave Winfield.

Other reserves named Friday for the NL were outfielders Dave Parker of Cincinnati, Kevin Bass of Houston, Tim Lincecum of Montreal and Chili Davis of San Francisco. Also chosen were Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman Steve Sax, Montreal shortstop Hubie Brooks, Giants third baseman Chris Brown and Pittsburgh catcher Tony Pena.

The AL reserves include third baseman Wade Boggs and catcher Rich Gedman of Boston, Kansas City second baseman Frank White, Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly, Seattle third baseman Jim Presley and Blue Jays shortstop Tony Fernandez.

The AL selected Baltimore's Don Aase, Boston's Roger Clemens, California's Mike Witt, Cleveland's Ken Schrom, Detroit's Willie Hernandez, Milwaukee's Ted Higuera, Yankees reliever Dave Righetti and Texas knuckleballer Charlie Hough.

San Francisco's Mike Krukow and Shane Rawley of Philadelphia will be joined by Cincinnati's John Franco, Houston's Mike Scott and Dave Smith, Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela, Montreal's Jeff Reardon, Rick Rhoden of Pittsburgh and New York Mets Sid Fernandez and Dwight Gooden, the expected starter.

NCAA sets regional in Jersey

EAST RUTHERFORD (AP) — The NCAA announced yesterday that the 1988 and 1989 East Regional basketball final will be played at the Brendan Byrne Arena, making it four straight years the event will be played at the arena.

"On behalf of Bob Mulcahy, our president, we are delighted to be so honored," said Les Unger, a spokesman for the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, owners of the arena.

Unger said that officials from the sports authority and Rutgers University made a tournament pitch to the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee last weekend in California, and they were awarded the regional yesterday.

The 20,000-seat arena was the site of last season's East Regional. The regional also is scheduled to be played at the northern New Jersey sports complex in 1987.

"If this isn't permanence, I don't know what is," Unger said.

The arena has had success as a site for the NCAA playoffs. It sold out during last year's event and also in 1984, when it was the site for first- and second-round games, Unger said.

LAST HURRAH — Mark Burroughs, a June graduate of Wall Township High School, returns to his home turf tonight as a member of the Monmouth County all-stars for the inaugural Register Monmouth-Ocean All-Star Soccer game

All-Star Soccer

Wall grad thankful to play at 'home'

By GAVIN SALTER
The Register

MIDDLETOWN — The Register Monmouth-Ocean County All-Star Soccer game is extra special for one Monmouth standout.

Mark Burroughs will be making his last appearance on the Wall Township High School field tonight at 7 p.m., a field that Burroughs has defended for the past four years as a Crimson Knight.

Burroughs never thought he would play on his home turf again.

"I had thought I played my last varsity game on the high school field," Burroughs said. "It's sort of an honor to be coming back as an all-star representing the school. It's an honor playing for the school, but being an all-star is something special, kind of set above what you were during the regular season. So it's more of an honor than anything else."

Added to Burroughs' participation in the classic, he will be able to directly share his experience with a member of his family ... his dad, who will be one of the officials.

"I'm sure he will do a good job," the younger Burroughs assured. "I didn't have him referee any of my high school games this year because of the obvious ... people thinking you're going for your son. But with an all-star game I don't think there will be any problem. He'll call it as he sees it."

"I'm happy he is going to be there," Burroughs continued. "It's an honor for him also to be doing a game like this. It makes me proud also."

Monmouth coach Dan Keane is impressed with Burroughs' ability and believes the Knight fullback will be a big asset to the Monmouth defense.

"He's a very aggressive player," Keane explained. "A good fullback with nice size, very willing to go up in the air for headballs. He seems to know the game. He's physically strong, a very strong player as far as tackling as a defender and he's had a lot of background as you can see."

"He's a nice boy too, a nice boy to get a long with," Keane continued. "He's very spirited, talks with some of the players. He seems to be more of an extrovert than an introvert. He seems to get along with people. He's going to play pretty much the full 90 minutes come Saturday. I think you'll enjoy it."

Burroughs hopes he and his teammates enjoy the kind of success on the Wall landscape that he enjoyed during his four years there.

"I'd say a win would be my one wish," Burroughs said. "For no one to get hurt and everyone play well, but a win is what we're going out there for. I think it (Wall) will be a perfect site. It's a great field, it's the best field I've played on on the high school level. And it also has great fans in the area so we will get a lot of people coming out."

"I'm looking forward to a physical game," Burroughs concluded. "But one that's physical to the point of being aggressive physical, not the hacky, chippy physical. I think there will be a lot of speed, but not too many goals because the defense should be strong. I'd like a shutout by the defense because if the defense shuts out, the worst you can do is tie. And I don't think we're going to get shutout. Not with the offensive players we have. I'm playing defense and sometimes am in awe of some of the things they're doing out there. They are really impressive."

Burroughs hopes he will be too.

Women's Open, Busch Classic in two-way ties

KETTERING, Ohio (AP) — Judy Dickinson finished with two birdies and an eagle to gain a share of the second-round lead yesterday with Betsy King in the 41st Women's U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Dickinson and King, the current Ladies British Open champion, each completed two trips over the rain-soaked 6,243-yard NCR Country Club course in at 1-under-par 143.

King, who birdied two of the last three holes, and Dickinson each shot a 71 in muggy heat that produced a brief afternoon thunderstorm.

"I'm voting for rain delays," said

Dickinson, whose birdie, birdie, eagle string came shortly after the delay. A day earlier, she came back from another storm delay to chip in for birdie on the 17th, then birdie the 18th.

Dickinson, a runner-up in this tournament a year ago, and King shared a one stroke advantage over Amy Alcott, who birdied five times in a stretch of six holes on the back nine.

One over par for the day after nine holes and four over for the tournament, "I just told myself, 'eat nails,'" said Alcott, whose back-nine exploits got her in with a 69 and a 144 total, even par.

Alcott's old foe, Hollis Stacy, led a group another stroke back at 145.

"We go back a long way, back to the juniors in 1969. We seem to bring out the best in each other," said Stacy, a three-time winner of this title after she had matched par 72.

She was tied at one over par with Sherri Turner, Deb Richard, Sally Little and Japanese Ayako Okamoto, a regular on the American LPGA Tour for the last four seasons.

Okamoto closed up with a 69 that included bogeys on the last two holes. Richard also had a 69. Little shot 72 and Turner 73.

Anheuser-Busch Classic WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Tony Sills, playing his first tournament in five weeks, shot a 6-under-par 65 yesterday for a share of the lead with Jodie Mudd after two rounds of the $500,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

Sills, who finished second at Phoenix in January and third at Pebble Beach a week later, needed only 24 putts in his round to move to a 7-under 135 total on the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

Sills returned to the PGA Tour this week after spending some time in Los Angeles with his father, who is ill.

"If I could play real good, that will make him feel better, so that gives me incentive," said Sills, who shot a 70 Thursday.

Mudd, whose opening-round 65 tied him with rookie Adrian Stills for the early lead, carded a 70 Friday.

"It's not the kind of day I had yesterday, but I'm making progress," said Mudd, a five-year Tour veteran looking for his first victory.

"I'm very surprised," Mudd said. "I thought 9- or 10-under would be leading by now. But with this hot weather out there, it's tough. Some players can get worn out."

Two-day Regatta underway today

RED BANK — With a wary eye on the weather, officials were ready to launch the National Sweepstakes Regatta this morning on the Navesink River off Marine Park.

The two-day event starts at 11 a.m. this morning and tomorrow. Waterford Crystal is again one of the major sponsors with the Waterford Crystal Grand Prix while the new Oyster Point Hotel is sponsoring its own Grand Prix race.

Each of the Grand Prix races is five laps over the 1.25 mile course.

Today's action will be at its best as the boats vie for places in the finals.

Heats will be held in the 1 and 2.5 Litre Stocks, followed by heats in the 2.5 Lite Modified and 5

Litre Stock.

Heats for the Formula Mercruiser, 6/7 Litre and the popular Jersey Speed Skiffs are scheduled to follow.

Two heats in both Super Stock and Ski Racing Runabouts will climax today's action.

The Waterford Crystal, Oyster Point and Monmouth County Grand Prix headline tomorrow's action.

There will be a chance for old time Regatta followers to join in the fun since Commodore Robert Moore has organized an Old Timers Reunion this season.

The Sweepstakes was revived in 1960 and has been going full tilt ever since.

Racing should be completed both days by 5:30 p.m. if the weather cooperates.

Snow Chief forced to miss Haskell, knee is injured

By JOE HINTELMANN
The Register

OCEANPORT — Trainer Mel Stute notified Monmouth Park yesterday at noon that Snow Chief, winner of the Preakness Stakes and Jersey Derby, would not compete in the $300,000 Grade I Haskell Invitational here on July 26.

Instead, the horse will undergo arthroscopic surgery.

X-rays taken Thursday morning showed a bone chip in the colt's right knee. "He galloped Thursday morning and looked good," Stute said from his barn at Hollywood Park in California. "He was as sound as he ever went."

Stute decided to take X-rays

after the workout because the owners had expected syndication offers after the Haskell. "We've been assured that with the surgery he'll come out perfect and be able to run next year," he said.

As a Jersey Derby winner, Snow Chief would have been eligible for a $1 million bonus had he taken the Haskell and the $300,000 Grade II Pegasus at the Meadowlands on Sept. 12.

The prospects of Ogygian or Danzig Connection running in the Haskell are extremely slim. Monmouth Park officials contacted trainer Jan Nerud at his New York home yesterday afternoon.

"Our plans are up in the air right now," Nerud said. "We were only coming to the Haskell because of Snow Chief and now our main reason for coming is gone."

Danzig Connection is just an allowance horse."

Twilight racing made its debut at Monmouth Park yesterday, but failed to draw additional fans. A crowd of 10,008 attended yesterday, just 87 short of the comparable day last year. Yesterday's handle was $1,512,722 compared with last year's $1,366,258.

The simulcast to The Meadowlands yesterday drew 3,396 fans who wagered $411,494.

Dogwood Stable's Crazy Moon and John Franks's Derby Wish, co-highweight at 116 pounds, head a field of 12 in today's $58,350 Grade III Oceanport Handicap.

Jockeys Chris Antley and JohnD. Melendez each had three winners on yesterday's program.

Week in Review

NO MORE FRONTIER People Express Inc. rejected a $235.8 million takeover bid for the whole company from Texas Air Corp., but agreed to sell its Denver-based Frontier Airlines for $146 million to United Airlines. Some observers now speculate that the unstable financial condition at People Express doesn't bode well for the future of discount flights.

BUYING RESERVATIONS Trans World Airlines agreed to sell 50 percent interest in its reservation system to Northwest Airlines for about $400 million, sources said. Northwest's help in marketing the system, now used by 13.4 percent of travel agents nationwide, could lure other airlines to use it. The sale also funnels several hundred million dollars into TWA, now striving to reverse its financial problems as fewer people fly to Europe.

BIG BLUE SETTLES International Business Machines will be paid millions of dollars in a settlement against five former employees it accused of using IBM trade secrets for a rival company they formed in 1981. Cybernex Corp. also agreed to stop producing thin-film heads, a critical part of main-frame computers and what accounts for one-fifth of IBM's revenues.

INTEREST DROPS Chemical Bank cut its prime lending rate to 8 percent from 8 1/4 percent. The move came one day after the Federal Reserve Board lowered its discount rate by one-half percentage point to 6 percent, the lowest level in nine years. Other banks are expected to follow.

HAPPILY MARRIED Lockheed Corp. said it will acquire Sanders Associates Inc., Nashua, N.H., for $1.18 billion. The addition of an electronics firm is said to be beneficial to Lockheed, a defense industry contractor, and also to Sanders, which now will escape a hostile takeover by Loral Corp.

CHOW, CHOW, CHOW Ralston Purina Company announced plans to shed its animal feed division to BP Nutrition for about $500 million. It marks Ralston's third restructuring move in as many months, as the company shifts to a consumer products concern.

MAVERICK MOVES ON Mitchell D. Kapor, 35, resigned from his position as chairman of Lotus Development Corp., the world's largest independent personal computer software producer that he built from scratch in about five years. Kapor's exit is said to be amicable — a friend said the creative Kapor lost interest in the "business of the business."

ONE SHARE, ANY VOTES? The New York Stock Exchange "reluctantly" agreed to allow companies to list more than one class of common stock on the exchange. The decision comes after two years of debate and opposition by Big Board officials, who preferred the "one vote, one share" policy but conceded since most other major exchanges permit it.

QUICK EXIT A lawyer and investment banker for Goldman Sachs & Company, David S. Brown, left the firm because of a widening investigation into the insider trading case of Dennis Levine, another Wall Street professional who has pleaded guilty to charges against him.

SUPERMARKET SHOPPING The Dart Group Corporation offered $3.6 billion, or $58 per share, for Safeway Stores Inc., the nation's biggest supermarket chain. Dart already owns 5.9 percent of Safeway stock, which is expected to make an announcement July 22. Safeway stock soared after Dart said Safeway wouldn't be able to fight the takeover.

CHANGING TIMES U.S. Steel Corporation renamed itself U.S.X. Corporation, signaling the demise of the steel industry as the Bethlehem, Pa.-based company moves out of steel and into the chemical and energy businesses it has been building in recent years. Once the largest steel maker in the nation, U.S.X. will retain a steel subsidiary known as U.S.S.

Producer prices take biggest drop yet

By TOM RAUM
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices held steady in June but fell at an annual rate of 6.5 percent for the first six months of 1986, the largest half-year plunge since the government began keeping such records in 1947, the Labor Department said yesterday.

The department's Producer Price Index showed no change from May, when a 0.6 percent rise broke a four-month streak of dropping prices.

Even though the collapse of world oil prices that led to the plunge has pretty much run its course, yesterday's report showed little evidence of a return of inflation anywhere throughout the economy.

Analysts said the report further reflected current slackness of the U.S. economy, a slump that prompted the Federal Reserve Board to announce Thursday that it is reducing its discount rate from 6.5 percent to 6 percent in an effort to stimulate growth.

That reduction in the rate the Fed charges for loans to banks and savings institutions was followed yesterday by many commercial banks reducing their prime interest rate from 8.5 percent to 8 percent.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes called the wholesale price report "good news for all Americans." He said the absence of higher prices would make lower interest rates possible, "and that in turn leads to sustained growth."

But Sandra Shaber, director of consumer economics for Chase Econometrics of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., offered a broader view:

"If you're talking about people as consumers, it certainly is good news. There has been a very major increase in purchasing power for most of this year.

"But if you look at people as job holders, as employees, then it's not such good news. Commodity prices are still weak and that is a reflection of high foreign import penetration and very poor conditions in the manufacturing sector. Wages and salaries have been extremely weak this year."

Gasoline prices moved up 2.9 percent in June, after an 8.6 percent surge in May. But other energy prices continued to fall — natural gas prices by 5.8 percent and heating oil prices by 6.8 percent.

All the monthly figures reflect adjustments to remove the impact of seasonal factors.

Food prices were unchanged in June after a 1.1 percent rise in May. Vegetable prices fell 9.8 percent; egg prices were off 6.4 percent; beef and veal costs dipped 2.4 percent. Alcoholic beverage, soft drink and coffee prices all fell.

But these declines were offset by an 18.2 percent jump in fish prices, a 3 percent increase in poultry prices and a 5.2 percent gain in pork prices.

Automobile prices, which had been rising steadily, fell 0.2 percent.

ADJUSTABLE SPACE — Office workers at Scott Mortgage Co. in Eatontown ply their trade in the flex building the company occupies. If need be, the building can be shared for warehousing or offices, thanks to the open-space design.

Flex buildings live up to the name

By FRANCES LYNAM
The Register

EATONTOWN — Talk to commercial real estate developers about what's being built at the Industrial Park off Route 35 here and each may give the same response — flex buildings.

What are flex buildings and who moves into them? They're one-story structures that combine warehouse and office space.

Lacking the frills of the new high-tech office buildings, they nevertheless offer something that cost-conscious companies prefer — lower rental rates.

In some cases, flex buildings go for as much as $4 per square-foot less than neighboring office buildings, says Gary Levine, vice president of K. Hovnanian Investment Properties Inc., which has built 80,000 square-feet of flex buildings here recently.

For companies requiring 10,000 square-feet, these no-frills buildings can show them a sizable savings.

"We save about 20 percent a year in costs that can be put towards other projects," says Bob Scott, president of K.H. Scott Mortgage Co., Eatontown.

Most often, flex buildings are used by light industrial, distribution, research and development and service-oriented companies to house their administrative and warehouse operations in a single, self-contained site.

"Flex buildings are not a new concept — warehouses have long been 'flexed' with small offices for the boss and secretary," Levine says. "But they are definitely better and, as a result, in demand."

Moreover, flex buildings are beginning to attract a new type of tenant, developers say.

These buildings, they maintain, are now luring both large corporations and small to mid-size companies that traditionally opted for space in office complexes.

Federal tax law changes will force diversification

Over the past several months, we have been reading and listening to commentary about the forthcoming demise of tax shelters because of changes in the tax laws. People are directing their investments into stocks and bonds not only because of a bullish market, but also because tax law uncertainty keeps them from committing to tax advantaged investments. Their strategy, which may not necessarily be correct, is to wait out the storm in Washington by investing in a rising and liquid securities market.

I'm convinced, and most experts agree, that sweeping changes are taking place in our tax laws. However, I believe you should be encouraged to rediversify. Despite the continuing bull market, too great a concentration of funds in stocks and bonds increases the risk factor. You and I can agree that eventually, the stock and bond markets will level off because of economic forces.

The time is right for the smart investor to identify sound tax advantaged opportunities in real estate as well as oil and gas and to take advantage of prices in these markets. It may be easier to identify sound economic investments now than it will be 12 or 24 months from now. Interest rates will rise again because of a rebound in price of oil, investors will stampede back into real estate and energy related programs. When that happens, you will want to be an owner rather than a buyer. You may want to research the market place now for investments that have tax advantages and are, above all, economically sound; and I'm referring to investments that will not suffer if the pending tax bills are, in fact, passed into law.

There are three things that will help you properly select tax advantage investments as you rediversify your portfolio.

1. The investment tax credit (ITC) will probably be repealed under the present tax law proposals. Without the use of the investment tax credit, programs such as those that lease equipment will become much less appealing as a method of tax deferral. Internal rates of return on these investments will not be as attractive which reflects the fact that front end tax benefits will not be as great without the ITC. Without this tax incentive, the deferral opportunity is minimized. As an alternative to equipment leasing, I'd suggest leveraged real estate where a repeal of the investment tax credit won't have a direct effect. I caution you, however, to examine each situation carefully because changes in the investment interest expense rules may limit tax benefits. At the present time, I would be careful about any investments that are highly dependent on the investment tax credit.

2. Properly selected, oil and gas drilling programs can still make sense. The proposed changes in intangible drilling cost (IDC) (allowances) will not have a serious impact on oil and gas investments. Under the tax proposals, all exploration expenses could still be either capitalized or expensed entirely in the year they are incurred. The difference is that developmental costs could no longer be expensed in the first year. They would have to be amortized over 26 months instead of beginning in the month the costs are paid or incurred.

What will the effect be? Actually, write-offs from exploratory drilling programs will be virtually untouched unless the wells are very successful because the intangible drilling cost can still be entirely expensed on dry wells. Remember, in the oil business, dry holes are not unusual. One may argue that under the new laws, some first year tax benefits will be spread over two or three years. However, my answer to that is that with lower marginal tax rates, the after tax rate of return will not be significantly affected.

The decision about oil and gas should have less to do with tax benefits and more to do with whether you feel comfortable in a commodity as variable as oil and gas have been. The real question is whether or not you want to take the risk. If you are comfortable with it, this could be an excellent time for tax advantaged oil and gas investing.

3. I've saved this one for last because I like investing in historical rehabilitation projects, and it appears to me as though historic rehabs will remain safe from the tax changes proposed.

If the proposal passes, the rehabilitation tax credit (RTC) will undergo a minor reduction from 25 percent to 20 percent. On the surface, this slight reduction looks discouraging. But with the reduction of the personal tax rate from 50 percent to 38 percent, there is actually an increase in tax savings. Remember, even though the proposal places the top tax bracket at 27 percent, it doesn't start until July of next year. That means the top bracket for 1986 will be 38 percent. The bottom line shows us that if you placed $10,000 in two rehabilitation programs, one before the tax reform and one after, the taxes due on $10,000 of current income would be less after the proposal passed. I encourage you to review historic rehabs as a way to diversify your investment program, and if you own an historic building, you might consider rehabilitating the structure because there are still tax advantages over other forms of real estate investing.

Municipal bonds rate close look

Sometimes, temporary conditions in the financial markets produce a truly exceptional investment opportunity. Just such an opportunity has now emerged in the municipal bond market, triggered by uncertainties surrounding the tax reform law being finalized in Congress. The bottom line for you as an investor is this: If you act quickly, you will be able to lock in a tax-free rate of return on high-quality municipal bonds that is historically very high in real (inflation-adjusted) dollars.

To understand what "historically high" means, remember that municipals typically return less than U.S. government securities, such as Treasury bonds. That's because interest earned on Treasuries is taxable at the federal level, while interest on municipals is tax-exempt. Today, however, some municipals yield more than Treasuries — even before the municipals' tax-free feature is taken into account.

For example, a 30-year U.S. Treasury bond yields a taxable 7.5 percent, or approximately 6.5 percent after applying the 27 percent maximum tax rate proposed in the Senate tax bill. When you subtract the current 3 percent U.S. rate of inflation, the after-tax real rate of return on that 30-year Treasury is a mere 2.5 percent. In contrast, an A-rated 25-year municipal bond yields 8 percent tax-free, or 5 percent after subtracting inflation — double the real rate of return on the Treasury bond.

Similar values, though perhaps not so dramatic, are available even on shorter-term municipals. For example, a 10-year A-rated municipal bond currently yields 7 percent tax-free, compared with 7.16 percent taxable on a 10-year Treasury, while a four-year A-rated municipal yields 5.75 percent compared with 6.80 percent taxable on a four-year Treasury. (Treasury yields are current as of July 7, 1986.)

The unusual investment opportunity in the municipal bond market has developed because of supply-demand forces. Many cities and states have rushed to issue bonds to beat anticipated deadlines and limits on certain categories of tax-exempt financings that are likely to be included in the tax reform law. This has contributed to a supply glut.

Adding to the oversupply is the large number of municipal bonds being refinanced. Issuers whose old, double-digit bonds can be called (retired) are doing so as fast as they can in order to issue new, lower-coupon bonds, to attract buyers in the face of a supply surplus, issuers have had to push up yields.

Buyer resistance is yet another reason for today's high yields. Some investors, confused by conflicting reports out of Washington about tax reform and fearful that municipals could lose their tax-exempt status, have avoided the municipal market lately. This has led to lower demand than usual. But these fears are unfounded, both for already-issued municipal bonds and for most that will be issued in the future.

If unusually high municipal yields are not enough of an attraction, consider this: Since tax reform will virtually wipe out many tax shelters, municipal bonds may well be the only tax-favored investment left. As more and more investors realize this, demand is expected to pick up, reducing both the current oversupply of bonds and the high yields will be reduced. The window of investment opportunity may soon slam shut.

You have three ways to take advantage of this special situation — by buying individual municipals, municipal bond unit trusts, or municipal bond mutual funds. Your choice should depend primarily on the amount you have to invest and the degree of diversification you want.

Audi 5000 CS Turbo Quattro

Here's a plush, high-tech 'jelly-bean' with punch

EDWARD R. NOBLE

MODEL: 1986 Audi 5000 CS Turbo Quattro

PRICE: $29,345 base, plus $335 destination charge

ENGINE: 2.2 liters, six cylinders, 158 horsepower

WEIGHT: 3,086 pounds

MPG: 18 city, 26 highway

FEATURES: High performance, workmanship, six-year rust warranty

Audi started a new trend in automotive styling with the 5000 model in 1984. Some have called it the "jellybean" look.

They do look like an enormous bean, but that's the shape of the future. Ford Motor Co. has versions out ahead of the non-Audi competition.

Audi always has something exciting to offer. Last year's 5000 model was great, but just look at what's been added: a total anticorrosion galvanized steel body (with a six-year rust-through warranty), four-wheel drive, anti-locking brakes, inter-cooled and water-cooled turbocharger.

The tested Audi was a silver starship. The paint job was flawless. The door sills are out high into the roof, for better entry and aerodynamics. The glass is nearly flush to the outside body. This plus the rounded styling makes the Audi slippery and quiet at high speeds. The turbo model will do 132 mph.

Sure, $30,000 is a lot of money, but people are lining up to pay nearly twice that amount for another German sedan that doesn't offer as much as the Audi.

The 5000 is a freeway cruiser. The fully independent suspension is an excellent trade-off between stiff, stick-to-the-corners assuredness and comfortable straight-away smoothness.

The Audi's "all-wheel drive" is a new concept in four-wheel drive technology. The wheels are working all the time, so if you've got the guts, the Audi will allow you to power-drive your way out of emergency situations. Or if you have to stop, the optional anti-locking brakes are the greatest safety invention in decades. Cars with these braking systems (several other companies offer them, too) will stop faster, and most importantly, in a straight line. These brakes should be on every car made.

The turbo engine is a willing partner to the total 5000, CS concept. The turbo is water-cooled even after the engine is shut off. It accelerates from zero to 60 mph in just 8 seconds.

The interior was done in a black glove-soft leather. The firm bucket seats are also equipped with variable heaters. And, boy, do they work!

FULL-TIME FOUR — The 5000 CS' full-time four corners more quickly. Anti-lock brakes help people wheel drive lets the enthusiast go deeper into like that get out of trouble when they do.

The instrumentation is old-fashioned; a big analog speedometer, tachometer, plus small digital read-out for computer-generated information, like fuel consumption, stopwatch turbo pressure, etc. It is very easy to call up desired information.

Remember the Avon Lady? You can call him Matt

By Robin Abcarian
Los Angeles Daily News

LOS ANGELES — Matt Thomas and Avon are an unlikely combination.

Thomas, a retired Air Force parachute rigger, is 54 years old, father of eight and grandfather of three.

Avon, as almost everyone knows, is a company that makes beauty products that are sold door to door by a force of workers that used to be called "Avon ladies."

They aren't all women anymore. Matt Thomas, for instance, sold nearly $27,000 worth of Avon products to his Oxnard neighbors last year. His profit was about half that amount.

Why would a retired Air Force man want to sell perfume, nail polish and lipstick door to door?

For starters, Avon doesn't just make perfume, nail polish and lipstick, as Thomas points out. The company offers plenty of grooming products for men, plus women's jewelry, hair brushes and even household knickknacks such as vegetable-shaped refrigerator magnets that disguise pens, and scent-filled quilted roosters that look like weather-vane tops but aren't.

Second, Thomas likes the job. Recently, he was reminded why he likes it so much.

"I dropped off an order to a friend who supervises janitors," said Thomas, "and while I was there, she called over one of her workers and said she was sorry, but she wouldn't be able to give him next Monday off after all."

"I sure was looking forward to having Monday off," the janitor pleaded.

"I'm real sorry, but I just can't let you have it off. I'm short-handed," the boss replied.

"Well, I decided it was time for me to take off," said Thomas. "And I walked outta there thinkin', 'Boy, I'm glad I don't work for anybody anymore!'"

Avon, which turns 100-years-old this month, now has 1.2 million independent sales representatives, as they are called, in 30 countries, setting their own hours and working for themselves. They earn a commission of between 35 percent and 50 percent on what they sell, plus 5 percent of the total sales of anyone they persuade to become a sales rep for as long as they both sell Avon.

Company officials say the representatives generally earn $6 to $10 an hour.

Thomas began ringing doorbells for Avon part-time about five years ago and went full-time in January 1984. He's one of the few men who sell Avon, but he's not alone. About 2 percent of the firm's representatives, who rang enough bells to sell $3.14 billion worth of products last year, are men.

Fifty-five-year-old Allen "Terry" Thayer of Burbank is an Avon representative, too. If Matt Thomas doesn't fit the mold, Thayer breaks it. He shuns doorbells for bar stools and takes his sample case and brochures into the bars and restaurants of Burbank, Glendale and Hollywood. Working nights is more dangerous than working days; Thayer has been mugged, and his sales kit was stolen once.

Thomas hasn't faced such problems in Oxnard. About the only jarring thing he encounters is the way prospective customers react to him on first sight. The space between their jaws and the ground decreases dramatically, but once they get over their surprise, said Thomas, he doesn't have trouble making sales.

Thomas avoids apartment buildings, however. "People from apartments will order, then when you go to deliver it two weeks later, they're gone. Or they say they can't pay because they need the money for rent."

One side effect of the job is that full-time reps like Thomas begin to tell time in two-week increments. Avon has 26 two-week "campaigns" during which special prices are offered on certain products in the sales brochure. Any representative worth his commissions can tell you right off that campaigns 25 and 26 are the big Christmas season, and that campaign three is Valentine season, etc.

With some trepidation, Matt Thomas is looking forward to the makeup seminar. But before he tries it on a customer, he said, "I just hope my wife lets me practice on her."

SOCIAL SECURITY

Good news for her son

By EILEEN F. SHERIDAN
District Manager

My 16-year-old son needs a kidney transplant but has never worked under Social Security. Although I have worked under Social Security all my life, I am not old enough to retire. Can I get Medicare help for my son?

Whether or not you get benefits, if you have worked long enough under Social Security or the railroad system, your husband or wife or your dependent child will be eligible for Medicare if he or she needs maintenance dialysis or transplant surgery because of permanent kidney failure.

I just turned 18 and right now, I am getting Social Security benefits while I attend high school. I am thinking about working part time and going to school part time. Will I still be able to get Social Security benefits?

No, you must be a full time high school student in order to get Social Security benefits between ages 18 and 19.

I have a 20-year-old daughter who is disabled because of a birth defect. I have always worked in a job covered by Social Security. Is it true that when I die my daughter will get monthly Social Security checks?

Yes, that's correct since she became disabled before the age of 22. She will also be eligible for Social Security benefits if either parent becomes disabled or retires after working long enough under Social Security. These childhood disability payments continue even if both parents die.

With the changes that were made in the Social Security law, was any change made in the delayed retirement credits for people who continue working past 65 and don't get retirement payments?

Yes. The delayed retirement credit will gradually be increased to 8 percent a year between 1990 and 2008. Right now, you get 3 percent for each year between 65 and 70 that you didn't get monthly Social Security benefits because of work.

My mother, who was getting monthly Social Security checks, died a few weeks ago. I notified Social Security of her death about a week ago. However, her checks were being sent directly to the bank where she had a checking account. Should I also let the bank know of my mother's death?

Yes, the bank should be notified as soon as possible. They can then return any payments received after your mother's death.

As your property values go up, so should insurance coverage

As mortgage rates have sunk to their lowest levels in years, increasing numbers of homeowners — quite probably including you if you're a shrewd homeowner — have been rushing to refinance their high-cost existing loans. Some lenders report that more than a third of their business these days represents refinancings.

It's sound. It's wise. It's actually no more than common sense. And while you're at it, your lender will may require that you insure your home against fire and other damages — and overall revise whatever homeowners policy you have to bring you up to date with today's circumstances.

This is it — the time to review all your insurance coverage so it reflects higher values and other changes in your income level and property. There are four major areas.

1) Protection against replacement cost — the amount it would cost you to rebuild your home. This figure probably will differ from the appraised value your bank establishes. What this means is what your home would fetch in the marketplace if you put it up for sale.

In many cases, especially in hot real estate markets, replacement cost will be less than the appraised value, says Alastair Longley-Cook, vice president of the personal financial security division of Aetna.

If your bank requires that you insure your home against fire and other damages up to the amount of the mortgage, however, you might not have enough coverage to pay that replacement cost.

In this situation, your bank's interest and your own diverge, so be sure to buy what you need, if the mortgage amount is less than the projected replacement cost. Your agent can calculate that cost using industry figures.

2) Upgrade your coverage each year — automatically if you can — to match inflation. The premiums increase, too, naturally, but you don't have to take out a new policy.

Don't ignore the huge liability awards so prevalent today. Since the liability side of your homeowners policy protects you against a lawsuit if someone claims your negligence brought about, or contributed to, his injury, review that section of your policy as well.

Many standard homeowners policies limit liability up to $100,000. That may not be enough for you, and it's relatively inexpensive to buy endorsements that increase your liability protection.

Most companies will let you buy up to $1 million on your homeowners policy. If you want or need more, you'll have to look to an umbrella policy.

Sylvia Porter

3) Check your personal coverage while you are taking care of insurance for your property.

If your family depends on one income, adequate disability insurance could be the crucial difference between keeping your house or having to sell it in the event of injury or illness.

In fact, more than 48 percent of mortgage foreclosures in the United States result from these events.

Find out what disability coverage you might have through your employer. If you are self-employed, or your employer does not provide long-term disability insurance, at a minimum buy the coverage you need to pay at least your monthly mortgage checks.

4) Examine your life insurance policy. Many agents recommend a "decreasing term" policy as mortgage protection. These policies have no cash buildup; instead, the premiums remain stable as your mortgage amortizes — and you get older.

If your mortgage is relatively small, you might consider increasing the value of your other life insurance policies by that amount. The reason: Smaller policies are, proportionately, more expensive. As a rule, the bigger the policy, the better the rate.

Don't overlook the availability of discounts or more favorable rates when you purchase both your homeowners and life insurance policies from the same company.
