Pollution

Beaches could stay shut for summer

By MARY GAY JOHNSON
The Register

LONG BRANCH — City officials yesterday denied accusations that they have been lax in their efforts to find the source of pollution at beaches here, but admitted that their lack of answers may keep the beaches closed for the rest of the season.

Those attending an afternoon press conference included Mayor Philip Huhn, City Health Officer Frederick Schuster, Business Administrator Anthony Muscillo and city engineer Bob Stetz.

Huhn and Schuster insisted that the city has the expertise to handle the situation, and wanted to clear up "myths" stated by Frank Pallone, president of the City Council.

Pallone has been critical of Schuster and other top city officials for their handling of the beach situation, saying that the county Department of Health has more experience and manpower to aid in finding the source of the contamination.

Two beaches remain closed in Long Branch. One is operated by Kid's World and is on Chelsea Avenue. It has been closed since July 18. The other is the city-owned beach on Morris Avenue, south of Chelsea, which has been closed for more than a week.

The latest tests at about seven Long Branch sites Thursday showed a count of 200 fecal coliforms per 100 milliliters. This bacteria is found in the intestinal tracts of warm-blooded animals and usually indicates raw sewage in the water. Beaches are considered unfit if they are found to have more than 200 fecal coliforms per 100 milliliters.

The low readings Thursday can be explained by the heavy rain the area has received, which helped clear the drains at the beaches, officials said.

NO EASY ANSWERS — While Long Branch officials reported yesterday that they are still targeting ways to discover the source of pollution that plagues the oceanfront, the Kid's World beach and the city-owned beach on Morris Avenue remain closed — possibly for the remainder of the summer.

Hazlet man

NEWARK — A New Jersey man wanted by an African nation in the murder of gorilla expert Dian Fossey probably will be safe from prosecution if he is in the United States, a State Department official said yesterday.

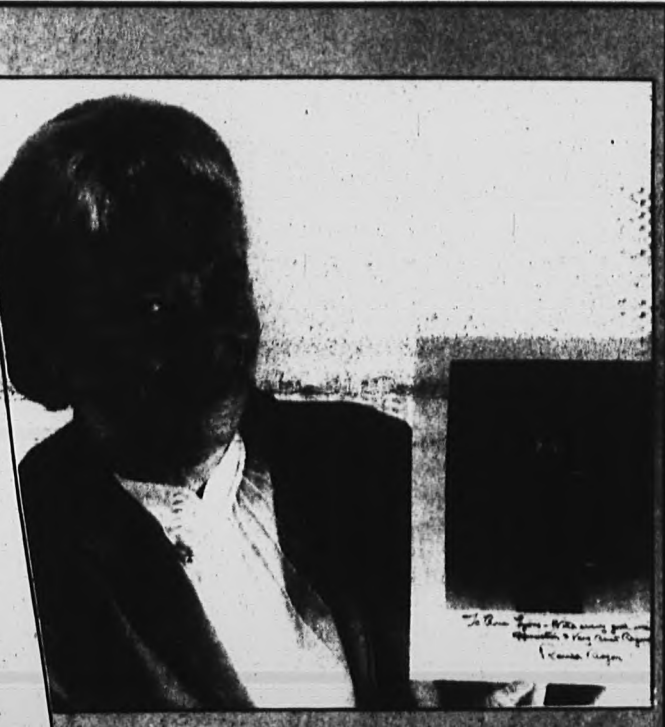

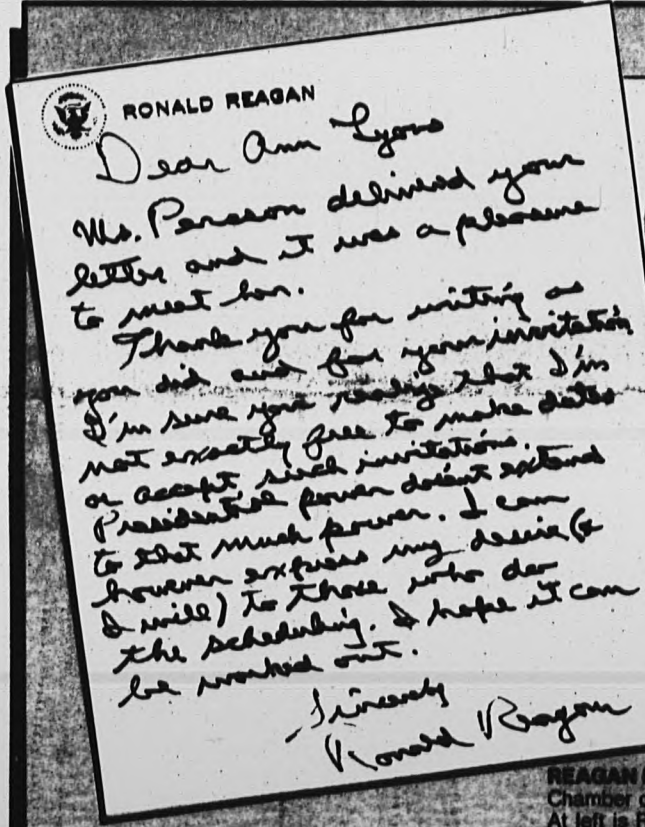

American officials probably would not hand over naturalist Wayne Richard McGuire — whose last known U.S. address is Hazlet — to authorities in Rwanda because the United States doesn't have an extradition treaty with the former French province, said State Department spokesman James Callahan.

"In a situation like this people generally can't be extradited," Callahan said in a telephone interview from his Washington, D.C., office.

Rwanda's justice ministry confirmed yesterday it has issued an international warrant for the arrest of McGuire, 34, whose last known U.S. address is a Hazlet home owned by his mother.

Jean Damsene Nkezabo, Rwanda's director-general for the administration of justice, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that the nation's

Will Reagan come to Red Bank?

By FRANCES LYMAN
The Register

RED BANK — It isn't every day that Ann Lyons receives handwritten letters from Washington, but getting one from the president goes way beyond just a little out of the ordinary.

On Monday, Lyons did get a letter from Washington. It was a handwritten note from President Ronald Reagan, who said he'll try his damndest to take her up on an invitation to visit the Red Bank Area Chamber of Commerce either in the fall or January.

"When it was delivered I couldn't believe it. I just sat there and got very quiet," Lyons, the Chamber executive vice president, said yesterday. "I was in shock. I was overwhelmed... maybe I still am."

Neither the president nor his personal secretary could be reached for comment, but a White House spokesman said the president "rarely answers letters by hand. He gets over 20,000 letters every day."

More than just getting a letter back, Lyons said she was doubly surprised with how fast the president responded. The postmark on his letter was Aug. 15, the same day he received Lyons' handwritten invitation and just before he departed for vacation in Santa Barbara, Calif.

"He only got the letter after lunch on Friday and look at the date here," she said, pointing to the postmark. "He must have sat down right after lunch to do that."

Lyons says she got the idea to invite the president to a Chamber dinner meeting after reading a Register article last week about Governor "Charlie" Persico, a Little Silver

UNION BEACH — Borough Councilman Frank DiCicca has sued Mayor Carmen Stoppello and three councilmen for ignoring a local ordinance and voting to appoint a new police chief and captain.

The council recently voted 4-3 to appoint Michael Ennis as chief of police and Sgt. Henry Riegler as captain.

DiCicca, who voted against this move, along with fellow Democratic Councilmen Lee Bernstein and John Keating, hired an attorney and sued the mayor and Councilmen Richard Ellison, Harry Wooley and Allan Brunner. Legal papers were served Thursday night, and a tentative court date has been set for Sept. 10 in Superior Court in Freehold.

DiCicca contends that the council has no legal right to appoint the police chief. Under local ordinance, all hiring for the department must be based on the recommendation of Borough Manager Michael Pellechio.

"It was done illegally," DiCicca charged. "They didn't follow the Frontier needs cash fast

People Express subsidiary faces disaster

DENVER (AP) — Frontier Airlines is on the brink of a shutdown that is to begin this weekend, followed by bankruptcy action on Monday, a Frontier pilot said yesterday.

Frontier had no comment on the claim by Jamie Lindsay, vice chairman of the Airline Pilots Association.

"We have not heard anything about it, and we have no comment," said Marilyn Mishkin, a spokeswoman for the Denver-based airline.

Russell Marchetta, a spokesman for People Express Inc. — Frontier's parent company — said the Newark, N.J.-based carrier had no plans to halt Frontier operations during the weekend.

Lindsay said he received two calls late Thursday night — one from People Express and another from the chief negotiator for United Airlines, the firm negotiating to buy Frontier from People Express.

Lindsay said the callers told him Frontier will conduct a "systematic shutdown" today and tomorrow, to be followed by a bankruptcy filing. He refused to identify the callers.

He said he was told the actions were being taken because Frontier does not have enough cash on hand to make a $5 million payment due Tuesday to the Airline Clearinghouse, a central clearing agency for airline tickets.

"It is a rumor from a pilot, and pilots don't have access to the books," Marchetta said. He declined further comment.

The Denver Post quoted unidentified Frontier officials in yesterday's editions as saying the clearinghouse payment ordinarily would be due Aug. 28, but since Frontier was late in making its July payment, the August check is due two days early.

The newspaper also quoted the officials as saying the carrier will not be able to continue operating if the airline does not receive enough cash from People Express to cover the shortfall.

In that case, Frontier's 4,700 employees, including 3,500 in Colorado, will be furloughed, the Post said.

United spokesman Joseph Hopkins said United has made contingency plans for honoring Frontier tickets in case of a shutdown.

A proposed $146 million deal between People Express and United Airlines for Frontier has been stalled since mid-July because of a union dispute with the Air Line Pilots Association.

The dispute is over the time frame for merging Frontier's pilots into United's 60 percent higher pay scale.

ALPA leaders said in a letter to Frontier members that "People Express could shut Frontier as early as Monday," but that a solution still was possible.

As of Thursday night, no talks were scheduled between United and ALPA, but Lorraine Loflin, president of Frontier's Association of Flight Attendants, said she was still hopeful a settlement could be reached.

Lottery

The winning number drawn last night in New Jersey's Pick-It Lottery was 703. A straight bet pays $241.50, box pays $40 and pairs pay $24. The Pick 4 number was 0519. A straight bet pays $2,280.50 and box pays $95.

The winning number picked yesterday in New York's Daily Number lottery game was 9-7-8. The "WinFour" number was 1-1-1-1.

Thanks, I needed that

HOUSTON (AP) — Singer David Crosby, recently paroled from a Texas prison on narcotics and weapons charges, joined his former partner, Graham Nash, for an emotional concert reunion at a Houston nightclub.

"Thinking about this is what kept me going," Crosby told the enthusiastic audience Thursday after he came on stage midway through Nash's set.

"I've been waiting for this for almost a year," Nash replied.

Crosby, who gained fame as a member of the Byrds in the mid-1960s, later teamed with Nash as part of another hit group, Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young. They sang several songs from their past.

Crosby also sang a song he composed during his five months in prison. He was convicted in 1983 after being arrested in Dallas on charges of possession of cocaine and possession of a firearm.

"I don't regret any of it," Crosby said told the crowd Thursday.

"But don't do it again," one audience member answered.

"Not as long as I have this," Crosby said.

Crosby is staying at a Houston halfway house while he waits for approval from California officials to live in Los Angeles.

Scaggs' son recovering

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — The son of country music star Ricky Skaggs was doing well after a second operation to repair damage from a gunshot wound, Roanoke Memorial Hospitals said.

Seven-year-old Andrew Lee Skaggs was listed in satisfactory condition yesterday in the pediatric intensive care unit, and no complications had surfaced from Thursday's surgery to repair the lining of the carotid artery in his neck, said spokeswoman Sally Ramey.

Doctors predicted he will remain in the hospital another five to seven days, she said.

The surgery performed by Dr. Rahmat Seif was the second in five days for the boy, who was brought into the hospital Sunday night with the wound suffered when a trucker allegedly fired a shot through the window of the car in which the youngster was riding with his mother, Brenda Skaggs.

The first operation was to remove the bullet from the boy's throat.

Skaggs joined his first wife at the hospital Thursday during the surgery. Mrs. Skaggs said hospital personnel told her the bullet just missed her son's jugular vein. "It was a miracle that it hit exactly where it did," she said.

Trucker Edward Dean Duehring, 36, of Germantown, Md., was arrested about two hours after the shooting. He is charged with malicious wounding, shooting into an occupied vehicle, possession of a stolen weapon, possession of cocaine, methamphetamine and marijuana, and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. He is being held on $125,000 bond.

Hello, it's mine!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most of a copyright infringement lawsuit against singer-songwriter Stevie Wonder over his Academy Award-winning song "I Just Called to Say I Love You" has been dismissed.

The suit, filed in October 1985, alleged that the song was lifted from a tune called "Hello, It's Me," written by Lee Garrett and Lloyd Chiate.

But Garrett said in a declaration that evidence and depositions convinced him that Wonder had composed fragments of the song by July 1976, one year before he had any access to "Hello It's Me."

U.S. District Judge David Williams retained a claim by Chiate that Wonder violated the federal

Life is a continual circus

Nikolai and Lina Nikolski, the Soviet high-wire act who ran away from the Moscow Circus and last week joined Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, left the latter Wednesday and signed a one-year contract with the three-year-old, Miami-based Circus USA.

The couple, who defected from the Soviet Union Aug. 4 in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and was given asylum in the United States several days later, will debut Oct. 1 in a shopping mall near Miami and, after a month of similar appearances, will go on a national tour.

The Nikolskis said they chose

Circus USA because it performed under an old-fashioned three-ring tent and because the pay was better. "Ringling is the best circus," said Lina Nikolski, "but they have long contracts. It's the reason we left the Moscow Circus — for freedom."

A Ringling spokesman said the circus had no contractual problem with the Nikolskis.

She deserves a break

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Hulda Crooks, the 90-year-old who came within two miles of the summit of Mount Whitney on her 23rd climb, is still resting after coming back down the mountain.

Mrs. Crooks said she became exhausted by last week's taxing trek and by all the notoriety about it.

"All the publicity and all the television crews and all the picture taking, I think that drained me too," she said Thursday. On the day before the climb, "My telephone just rang constantly. I could hardly eat my dinner."

But Mrs. Crooks said she didn't object to the coverage because, "There is so much bad news ... This was something that seemed to make people happy and I was glad to share it."

Mrs. Crooks is the oldest person to climb Mount Whitney, U.S. Forest Service officials say. She has scaled the 14,495-foot peak, the highest in the United States outside of Alaska, 22 times.

Gas co. connects 250,000th customer

HOLMDEL (AP) — New Jersey Natural Gas Co. of Wall Township celebrated the connection of its 250,000th customer yesterday by donating 250 food baskets to the United Way organizations in its service area, the utility said.

A symbolic gold-plated gas meter was connected at the home of Philip Messina in this Monmouth County community, said Glenn J. Phillips, a company spokesman.

New Jersey Natural Gas is the second largest gas utility in the state, behind Public Service Electric and Gas Co., said Phillips.

The utility, which began operating in 1952, serves all of Monmouth and Ocean counties, and part of Morris and southern Middlesex counties, he said.

The service area is one of the fastest growing regions in the state, and the utility projects 14,500 new customers by the end of this fiscal year, Sept. 30, he said.

The company has gotten 50,000 new customers in the past five years and each of the past three years has shown record growth, he added.

"Most of the customers have been from new construction, but we also have a significant number of conversions from oil and electric," Phillips said.

Giving 250 food baskets to charitable organizations in Monmouth, Ocean and Morris counties "is our way of saying thank you and demonstrating that we want to be of service to our community," he said.

Representatives of the American Gas Association, local officials and state Sen. S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, took part in the ceremony.

Bishop to speak at Camp Meeting

OCEAN GROVE — United Methodist Bishop Richard B. Wilke of the Arkansas area will open the 1986 Camp Meeting in the 6,700 capacity Great Auditorium tomorrow, with sermons at the 10:30 a.m. and 7:10 p.m. services.

Bishop Wilke will also lead a church growth seminar Monday at 10:15 a.m. in the Bishop James Tabernacle.

Camp Meeting is a continuation of the vision and purpose of a handful of Methodists who began it in 1869; for 117 years, Camp Meeting has meant for thousands celebration, spiritual growth and renewal in this Victorian seaside family resort on the Atlantic Ocean.

Preachers for the week-long series of meetings (9 a.m. and 7 p.m.) will be the Rev. Dr. Kenneth Kinghorn and the Rev. Dr. Claude Edmonds. The Rev. Dr. Charles Allen will speak at both services Aug. 31, which closes the Camp Meeting.

Benefit softball game to be held

MIDDLETOWN — A benefit softball game to raise money to cover the hospital expenses of a township youth will be played tomorrow at 2 p.m.

The game will be played for Alex Onato III, who died Aug. 13 after spending nearly two years in a coma. Alex became comatose after he was hit by a tow truck on Dec. 7, 1984, at his school bus stop in Hazlet. The incident severed his spine.

Despite Alex's death, the softball game between the Bayshore Women's Softball League and the Middletown Township Police Department will go on tomorrow to help defray hospital costs for the family.

The game will be played at the Spy House field in Port Monmouth. The donation is $3, and children under 16 are admitted free. The donation includes door prizes, music and children's prizes.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Anyone wishing further information may contact Dara at 787-4563, or the Middletown Detective Bureau.

Berry won't comment on charges

ASBURY PARK — Georgia Berry, executive director of Check-Mate, the county's anti-poverty agency, has been under fire from a group of 200 residents asking for her resignation on grounds that, among other things, she has "fostered an agency of obvious abuse."

However, when asked yesterday to comment on the charges, Berry said, "I have no comment at this time."

The group asking for her resignation, headed by Mary Best of Freehold, asked the state Department of Community Affairs to investigate. Berry is also under fire for pressuring Norma Randolph, a coordinator for Check-Mate in the Freehold-Englishtown area, to resign.

Among the charges are that Berry "does not possess cognitive or humanitarian concerns and skills," and has "shown a lack of sensitivity to the needs of low-income and disenfranchised community by restricting ... Mrs. Randolph."

Thomas Armour suit to be dismissed

FREEHOLD — A short-lived suit filed by Thomas Armour against the county Board of Social Services, its Chairwoman Phyllis Marx and attorney Martin Pachman will be dismissed, attorneys involved in the case agreed.

Thomas Armour, brother of welfare agency Director Louis Armour, filed suit in Superior Court in Freehold last week, claiming that the board did not follow proper procedures when it hired Pachman as its attorney in its case against Louis Armour.

The suit asked that the board be ordered to not recognize Pachman as its attorney, to make no further payment to Pachman and to recover previous payments of more than $7,000 to the attorney for his work in the case against Louis Armour.

However, Pachman said yesterday that he signed a stipulation which will have the case dismissed once it also is signed by Thomas Armour's attorney. The case will be withdrawn.

Burned child in satisfactory condition

EATONTOWN — A 9-year-old borough boy who was severely burned with shellac Tuesday was listed in satisfactory condition last night at Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch.

Justin Griffin, 24 Richardson Ave., suffered first- and second-degree burns when a plastic container of shellac ignited and burst, showering the boy with the hot liquid, police said.

Detective Arthur Pierce said the boy and two of his friends were apparently burning small items in a wooded lot off Victor Avenue when fumes from the shellac ignited.

Little Silver cancels meeting

LITTLE SILVER — The Borough Council has canceled its workshop meeting scheduled for Aug. 28. A workshop meeting is

Keansburg nixes school bond

Caruso warns state could move in if renovations not made

By DAVID GUEST
Register Correspondent

KEANSBURG — The Board of Education voted down at Thursday night's meeting a $9.2 million plan intended for a new $4.5 million middle school and extensive renovations to the district's three other schools.

The final vote, taken after midnight, was 5-3, with Board President Raymond O'Hare and members Daniel Coleman and Joseph Boden the plan's sole supporters.

The renovations would have included repair or replacement of roofs, windows, door hardware, flooring and heating/ventilation systems; additions to grade schools for needed classrooms, library, clinic, recreational and storage space, installation of required fire prevention equipment; and construction of roadways and athletic fields.

Board Architect Richard Boyken, speaking at the meeting, cited reports from the state Department of Education (DOE), issued within the last year, which listed inadequate facilities and other areas needing improvement at all district schools.

To correct this, the board's renovations plan included constructing a new building specifically designed to house a middle school (grades seven and eight), and transferring fourth-grade students from Port Monmouth Road School (now K-4) to Frances Place, which would then become a fourth- to sixth-grade elementary school.

Superintendent of Schools Joseph C. Caruso told the board and the crowd of more than 40 residents at the meeting that if the district does not correct problems with the buildings, and raise students' basic skills test scores, the state might take over the district.

"They'll (the state) come in and tell you how much to spend ... They're not going to stand for the low test scores," he said.

"If you're not providing the students with adequate facilities, that's mismanagement. We have to vacate, by September, eight classrooms because they're substandard."

He told the audience that "percentage-wise, your town gives less of its tax dollar to the schools" than any other area town, despite statistics crediting Keansburg with the Bayshore's highest general tax rate.

The plan, two-thirds of which would have been funded by the state and the rest by a district tax-exempt leasing system, would have added about 23 cents per $100 of assessed value to Keansburg property tax, according to Caruso.

The Borough Council and Mayor Walter Farley opposed the project, and Councilwoman Honoria Conley called upon residents at Tuesday's council meeting to attend the board session and "give them your pros and cons."

Caruso said he's "going to the state department of education to bring about the program funding for the students of Keansburg. If this means bypassing the Board of Education and the town council, then that's what I'm going to do."

Caruso said he has already been in touch with state officials. "I'll try to use my positive relations with the state offices of education to let me use the eight classrooms."

He said he will try to get an extension next week and find out how quickly the classrooms can be upgraded. If he can't, he added, "eight teachers may be getting layoff notices."

Bus riders to air woes at meeting

By STEPHEN MCCARTHY
The Register

FREEHOLD — Bus riders complaining of erratic schedules, long delays and broken down air-conditioning on the commute from Monmouth County to New York City along Route 9 have gotten some support from area legislators.

Commuters using Academy Bus Lines to travel daily into Manhattan will have an opportunity to air their grievances about poor bus conditions during a meeting of the Monmouth County Transportation Coordinating Committee Wednesday at 8 p.m., at the county Hall of Records.

Commuters have complained of broken down air-conditioning equipment and numerous delays. As stated by Freeholder John D'Amico in a letter to NJ Transit, Academy buses are plagued by erratic schedules, broken equipment, poor maintenance and safety procedures, poor management and "rudeness on the part of bus drivers."

"Clearly, the arrangements between NJ Transit and Academy Bus Line have not produced satisfactory transportation service to approximately 1,700 Monmouth County residents who depend upon safe and reliable bus service for their livelihoods and the well-being of their families," D'Amico wrote.

Several area elected officials, including state Sen. S. Thomas Gagliano and state Rep. Joseph Azzolina have sought solutions to persistent problems reported by Academy Bus Line commuters. Gagliano last week vowed to bring the issue before the NJ Transit Board of Directors at its Sept. 26 meeting.

In a letter to Deputy Freeholder-Director Thomas Powers and Judge Theodora LaBrique, who heads the county transportation committee, D'Amico stated the "delays in running time and the queues of commuters waiting to get on the buses were not acceptable conditions on a heavily traveled commuter corridor."

The freeholder suggested that representatives of NJ Transit, which subsidizes some of Academy's operations, and officials at Academy, be invited to attend the committee's meeting Wednesday.

D'Amico also suggested that Steve Fittante, the county's transportation director, seek ways in which NJ Transit, Academy and the county transportation department can act to provide "relief to the suffering Route 9 commuters."

Hazlet police contract to be arbitrated

By DAN JACOBSON
The Register

HAZLET — Within the next several weeks, Hazlet police officers will have a new two-year contract with the township after more than seven months of unsuccessful negotiations.

But since the township and the Patrolman's Benevolent Association (PBA), which represents the police, could not resolve their differences, the terms of the contract will be decided by an arbitrator, Township Administrator Robert Weigand said Thursday.

Hazlet PBA President Russell Surdi and PBA attorney Ronald Drazin both were unavailable

Thursday for comment on the contract proposals and the pending arbitration.

The Public Employment Relations Commission has designated John M. Stochaj, Berkeley Heights, as arbitrator in the dispute, according to Weigand. Stochaj held an arbitration hearing July 30, and he has asked for briefs from both sides' attorneys defending their clients' positions, he said.

The two attorneys have exchanged briefs, and both have until early September to rebut in writing their adversary's arguments, Weigand said. After the deadline passes to rebut briefs, Stochaj — unless he has additional questions — will decide between the township's offer and the PBA's within 30 days, he said.

Butter better be real thing if menu says so

By LIZ SHEEHAN
The Register

It better be butter if that's what it's called, a staff member of the state's Consumer Affairs department said yesterday.

"There is no law that states they (a restaurant or store) have to tell you it's butter or margarine," she added, but if a restaurant says it is giving you a buttered roll or anything else with butter, it should not be margarine. And if a patron asks for butter on something, he or she must be told if only margarine is available.

To some people the question would not pose a problem, but others strongly dislike the taste of margarine and have found themselves paying for something to eat that they thought contained butter, only to find out it was not after biting into the food.

An area resident who decided to eat breakfast at the snack bar of her municipal beach club was asked if she wanted her corn muffin buttered. But when she asked, she found out the spread was really margarine, and turned down the offer.

The majority of delicatessens queried said they serve butter to their customers.

Patrons are told that margarine is served at Bobby T's Delicatessen, Shrewsbury, "only if they ask," a clerk there said Thursday. But no one is offered butter, nor are there any signs saying that it is on the food, she said.

For those who want butter on their sandwiches or rolls, it can be obtained in Little Silver at the 7-11, Branchport Avenue. Michael Sculthorpe there said that his company does not require the stores to serve butter, but "prefers" that they do.

Authorities believe McGuire was involved in the murder of Miss Fossey.

The 53-year-old woman was found hacked to death in her remote camp on the slopes of Rwanda's Mount Visoke Dec. 27. Rwanda is a tiny central African country bordered on three sides by Zaire, Uganda and Tanzania.

Nkezabo said the state prosecutor's office believed McGuire wanted to acquire the manuscript of a book Miss Fossey was writing as a sequel to her 1983 work, Gorillas in the Mist, which made her famous for her work among the animals. He said the manuscript was the only thing missing from Miss Fossey's home.

McGuire, a doctoral candidate from the University of Oklahoma at Norman, was Miss Fossey's research assistant at the time of her death and the only other foreigner at her Karisoke Research Center.

"We think that McGuire is the principal author of the murder and he has left our country," Nkezabo said. "We don't know where he is, which is why we issued the warrant."

McGuire's whereabouts have been unknown since he left Rwanda on July 27.

He has enrolled for the fall semester at the University of Oklahoma, said university spokeswoman Catherine Bishop.

She added, however, that McGuire could have enrolled as early as last spring for the semester, which begins Monday. Officials in the university's anthropology department declined to comment and referred calls to Miss Bishop.

Callahan said that American authorities had not been in contact with McGuire.

He added that Rwanda has not asked for help in locating McGuire, and that such a request probably would be in vain.

Asked if McGuire would be safe if he made it to the United States, Callahan said, "Yes."

State and federal authorities in New Jersey said they have received no instructions to arrest or question McGuire or his mother, Mary McGuire.

"We haven't even gotten a telegraph to look for the guy," said Capt. John Fetherston of the police department in Hazlet, a New Jersey community near the shore in Monmouth County.

He said the only mention of McGuire in Hazlet police files concerns a 1984 complaint of a barking dog, but that he wasn't sure whether McGuire was the person complaining or the dog owner.

Tax records showed that the Hazlet home in which he lived was owned by his mother, Fetherston said.

Miss McGuire was unavailable for comment yesterday. A woman who answered the phone at her home identified herself as the house cleaner and said Miss McGuire had left for the day.

Meanwhile, neither the FBI nor Monmouth County police had been asked to look for McGuire, authorities said.

A spokesman for the state police was unavailable for comment.

"We're attacking this on several fronts," Schuster said. "It's just a matter of an ongoing situation ... I'm perfectly satisfied we're doing everything we possibly can," he said.

Schuster's comments were prompted by what he termed "attacks upon his integrity by Pallone."

"I am astounded and chagrined that Mr. Pallone, as president of our City Council, is not aware of these realities and chooses to make this a political issue," Schuster said.

In response, Pallone said he stands by his opinion to have outside agencies come to Long Branch, and added that Schuster's pride has gotten in the way of dealing with the situation.

But Schuster rebutted Pallone's charges that outside agencies have not been asked to lend their help to the investigation; in fact, he said the state Department of Environmental Protection has said it finds no fault with the route the city has proceeded with.

"It's not that we haven't asked for help," Schuster said. "... We just don't feel it's appropriate for them to be here — this is our investigation."

According to him, outside help has come from the state Health Department, the DEP, the state Geological Survey and the Coast Guard. However, more people won't necessarily bring about a quick answer, he said, a solution needs the proper strategy, coordination and follow-up efforts.

Long Branch health officer

While Long Branch is catching heat about its closed beaches, Schuster said there has been an intense scrutiny of the water at beaches this season, made possible with state-of-the-art equipment.

Thus far, potential sources of pollution at the two Long Branch sites include plumbing infractions at the Long Branch pier and Kid's World Circus and Petting Zoo, discharge of sewage at the Melrose Terrace jetty and contamination of the Laird Street storm sewer.

The latest development at the Melrose Terrace jetty shows that a pipe may be located near the jetty, Schuster said. Divers probing there recently dug 5 feet beneath the surface and still found a murky material that proved to be waste material or sewage.

Using machines that measure bacteria, the sewage had a count of 2,400 fecal coliforms per 100 milliliters, which is the highest count that can be read by such machines, Schuster said. The city may resort to contracting for excavation off the jetty to determine the source of the sewage.

Thus far, Muscillo said the city has spent about $1,000 in its efforts to pinpoint the sources of the pollution, and Long Branch expects to spend more until the contamination has been brought under control.

The closed beaches have hurt waterfront businesses, officials said, but added that the main reason for the 40 percent drop in shore tourism this summer has been rainy weekend weather. Long Branch beaches are $40,000 to $45,000 behind last year's profits.

"I don't think it's any worse than any other municipality in the area," Muscillo said.

The latest three-point strategy devised by the city includes:

■ Sending a scuba diving team to the Melrose Terrace site Monday to rule out the possibility that the contamination is coming from an outside source.

■ Having TV cameras travel the length of a pipe at Laird Street sometime next week. Schuster said they have reason to suspect contaminated ground water has been infiltrating pipes there.

■ Meeting with nine county health department officers Wednesday to ask for their help in solving the water contamination problems.

However, Pallone said he wasn't satisfied with what he called the lack of progress on behalf of the city in its investigation of the sources of the closed beaches.

"As far as I'm concerned, I think it's totally apparent the local health department hasn't been able to deal with this issue effectively at all," Pallone said. "The real problem is the lack of manpower."

Pallone said by not asking for help from the county Health Department, city officials are refusing to tap a valuable resource which would provide a special investigating team adept at fighting these types of problems.

"They have a lot more money, a lot more people and a lot more experience," he said. "At some point you have to say 'I can't do this.'"

Pallone said that with extra personnel, the city Health Department could attend to other duties, that it has been diverted from since it has centered its attention on the beach contamination sites.

"It has gone on long enough," Pallone said. "I'm not satisfied enough has been done."

Lawsuit

"I am calling Mayor Stoppiello and asking for an emergency meeting Tuesday to hire legal counsel for us," Brunner said.

"I just wish," Brunner added, "that Frank would reconsider and drop the charges. He's wasting taxpayers' money. We've got a good police department and Chief (Michael) Ennis is capable of running the department. He's an asset to the community. And he's taking the bull by the horns. Since he's become police chief, there's been a change in the morale of the entire police department."

Brunner, however, claims that the council didn't hire a new police chief and a new captain, but simply promoted two Union Beach officers to these positions.

He said it "is a once-in-a-lifetime thing to promote within the department like this. We are not hiring. We are promoting."

When former Chief Richard Trembley left the department on disability in 1984, Ennis was appointed acting chief, a position he held until this year when the council promoted Sgt. Joseph Schaffner to fill the post.

When Schaffner left the department two months ago, Ennis was appointed provisional commander while council members debated whether to abolish the chief's post and hire an outside police director. This was supported by the Democratic majority on the council.

Last month, however, Democratic Councilman Brunner crossed party lines and approved the naming of Ennis as chief.

Recycling amendment subject of hearing

FREEHOLD — An amendment to the county's Solid Waste Management Plan, which contains provisions for a mandatory countywide recycling program, will be the subject of a public hearing before the Board of Freeholders on Sept. 11.

The mandatory recycling plan, accepted by the county early in the spring as a condition of an agreement with the state, requires that each Monmouth County municipality adopt a local recycling ordinance. The law mandates that each town recycle bottles, cans and leaves.

"The county is saying 'this is what must be recycled,'" said Larry Zaayenga, county solid waste coordinator. "We're not telling the towns how to do it."

However, new twists on the amendment would later require the recycling of grass clippings as well as leaves and call upon commercial enterprises, like grocery stores, to recycle waste cardboard, said Zaayenga.

The coordinator told the freeholders yesterday that the goal of the state Department of Environmental Protection is to have 25 percent of the county's waste-stream recycled through the mandatory program. Currently, he said, about 50 percent of the county's newspaper is recycled.

Under the proposed amendment to the county's waste management plan, the mechanism for recycling glass, aluminum and leaves must be established by April 1987, according to Zaayenga. By May 1988, grass clippings and non-residential recycling, like commercial waste cardboard, must be recycled.

Some town officials and merchants have already voiced their objections about provisions that require grass clippings and cardboard to be recycled by 1988, the coordinator said.

State law, Zaayenga said, mandates that the amendment be passed in the form it was introduced. Although the freeholders could delete items before approving the amendment, nothing could be added to the language and modifications are not allowed.

Drug suspect charged

OCEANPORT — Police arrested another suspected drug dealer yesterday morning at Monmouth Park as part of a continuing countywide search for street-level dealers of illegal drugs.

William H. Davis, 27, 195 Fifth Ave., Long Branch, was arrested at 5:33 a.m. by Oceanport police.

Davis, a groom at the track, was arrested on drug distribution charges out of the county Prosecutor's Office. He was additionally charged by local police with theft and criminal trespassing charges resulting from an incident for which he had been sought for some time.

Board to consider mall plan

SHREWSBURY — The borough Planning Board will hold a special meeting Wednesday to review the site plan of Shrewsbury Mall Associates which proposes to develop about 21 acres of the vacant land across from the old Shop Rite on Route 35.

Municipal Boards' Clerk Mary Lou Martin said Meadow Drive is to be extended across Route 35 to provide access to the proposed mall as well as to a proposed residential development behind it. A traffic light will be installed after commercial development is completed, she said.

Mid-County Center developers have already been given major subdivision approval to build a 50-home, single-family development in the rear portion, Martin said.

Shrewsbury Mall Associates is based in South Amboy.

Businessman gets last wish

BASS RIVER TOWNSHIP (AP) — A man who made a fortune through land speculation in Atlantic City before his death in January will get his last wish to be entombed on his 56-acre estate here.

The Township Commission on Thursday passed a resolution supporting the wish of Edgar E. Sims Jr. to have a mausoleum built on his $1 million farm in this community in the eastern-most section of Burlington County.

"His first love was his farm in Bass River Township. Mr. Sims had always wanted to be buried on his farm and consequently, Mr. Sims' wife is desirous of carrying out her husband's last wish," the family's attorney, Noah Bronkesh, wrote to local officials.

Bronkesh said the mausoleum eventually will also hold the bodies of Sims' widow, Shirley, and four children.

The request now goes before the Zoning Board of Adjustment for consideration.

Sims, an Atlantic City native, died of a brain aneurysm at age 44 on Jan. 1 at his winter retreat in Golden Beach, Fla. He also had a home in Brigantine.

Co-owner of a hauling firm with his father, Sims wagered that gambling halls would move to the northern edge of Absecon Island, on which Atlantic City is located, after sites on the Boardwalk were all snatched up.

He made millions selling land to developers in what is now known as the marina district of Atlantic City, where Trump's Castle Hotel & Casino and Harrah's Marina are located.

$4.7 million jackpot goes to lucky 5

TRENTON (AP) — Two Warren County couples and a Boonton man will split the $4.7 million jackpot from the Pick-6 Lotto drawing, lottery officials said yesterday.

The lucky five held the only winning tickets of more than 5.4 million sold for Thursday's drawing that included all six numbers, said lottery Executive Director Joan Zielinski.

Each ticket is worth $1.59 million.

The winners were Joseph J. Toole and his wife, Mary, both 51, of Washington Township in Warren County; Joseph Albanese, 61, and his wife, Lottie, 60, of Belvidere in Warren County; and Patrick Narcise, 62, of Boonton in Morris County.

Toole has been teaching science at the Lebanon Township

Elementary School for 29 years, and Mrs. Toole is a secretary at Warren County Vocational-Technical School. Toole and his wife, who have two daughters and a son, said they will use their winnings to "help the kids."

Albanese has been a car salesman for 30 years and is general sales manager for Norman Gale Oldsmobile in Cedar Knolls. Mrs. Albanese is a resident program coordinator at Heath Village in Hackettstown.

The couple said they will help their children and grandchildren with their money.

The winners were here yesterday to pick up their initial payments of $60,266. Each ticket is worth payments of $63,600 a year for the next 19 years.

Fake gun leads to real indictment

CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE (AP) — A man who held authorities at bay last month with a fake, Western-style six-shooter has been indicted on a charge of threatening to kill a police officer.

The indictment against Walter Klecz, 65, of Middle Township was returned earlier this week by a Cape May County grand jury.

Authorities alleged that Klecz made the threat as he pointed the imitation .45-caliber revolver at Sgt. David Tompkinson of the Middle Township Police Department on July 15.

Police went to the mobile home park where Klecz lived after a caller reported that a man was walking around with a gun.

More than a dozen police officers amassed at the park and residents on two streets were evacuated.

When he spotted police, Klecz allegedly made the threat to Tompkinson, authorities said. They said Tompkinson eventually talked Klecz into dropping his weapon, which police then discovered was fake.

Klecz is free on $11,000 bail.

Eatontown site to be cleaned up

TRENTON (AP) — The state Department of Environmental Protection has reached a consent order with Allied-Signal Corp. to guarantee that groundwater contamination on the company's property — including a site in Eatontown — will be cleaned up, officials announced yesterday.

The order requires the company to post bonds of about $19 million to assure compliance with the terms of the cleanup agreement, said DEP Commissioner Richard Dew-ling. Lance Miller, chief of the state Bureau of Industrial Site Evaluation, said seven of the company's 14 sites in the state have groundwater contamination.

They are Bendix Corp. in Eatontown; Fischer-Scientific Division in Fairlawn; Fischer-Scientific Division in Bridgewater Township; Allied Chemical in Edison Township; Amphenol Products Inc. of Roseland; Bendix Aerospace in Teterboro; and Allied Corp.-Chemical Division in Elizabeth.

'Senatorial courtesy' could end

Tradition from 1800s was used to delay Wilentz reappointment

By KATHLEEN BIRD
Associated Press

TRENTON — The Senate will decide when it reconvenes next month whether to abolish a 19th century tradition that allows a lone lawmaker to block a gubernatorial appointment, Senate President John F. Russo, D-Ocean, said yesterday.

The unwritten practice known as "senatorial courtesy" has always been controversial and delayed the recent reappointment of state Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert N. Wilentz.

"We're going to poll all the members," Russo said. "It's been this way for 150 years. If they vote to keep it, we'll keep it."

The Senate's first session after the traditional summer vacation recess is Sept. 8. The vote will be taken privately and the issue won't be discussed on the Senate floor, Russo said.

Russo has said he doesn't expect that the upper house will abolish the practice, which allows any senator from the nominee's home county to indefinitely hold up a gubernatorial appointment by simply refusing to "sign off" on it, without ever having to explain why. "Based upon the discussions recently, it sounded like the overwhelming viewpoint was to keep it," Russo said in a telephone interview from the governor's beach house at Island Beach.

Sen. Peter Garibaldi, R-Middlesex, invoked "senatorial courtesy" to hold up the nomination of Wilentz to tenure on the state's highest court.

Garibaldi, who has bitterly complained about decisions of the Wilentz court, was stripped of his power by the Senate Democrats who decided that "senatorial courtesy" could not be used to block reappointment of a sitting Supreme Court justice.

Among the decisions criticized by Garibaldi were ones overturning the Legislature's ban on the use of Medicaid funds for abortions and requiring municipalities to provide their "fair share" of realistic housing opportunities for low- and moderate-income people.

Wilentz's nomination was approved 9-2 by the Senate Judiciary Committee and 21-19 by the Senate in the midst of a controversy over the jurist's maintaining split residences in New Jersey and New York since 1971.

Russo: will poll Senate

Wilentz told the Senate panel that he spent most of his nights in Manhattan to be with his wife, Jacqueline, who undergoes cancer treatment in the city and has an art career there.

In a related matter, an Assembly committee Thursday unanimously approved a bill that would give the Senate Judiciary Committee $50,000 to hire staff members to do detailed background investigations of gubernatorial nominees. The measure is tied to a Senate resolution that would end "senatorial courtesy."

The Senate Judiciary Committee must review and approve a nomination before it is considered by the full Senate.

The appropriation bill sponsored by Assemblyman William P. Schuber, R-Bergen, and approved by the Assembly Judiciary Committee is linked to a Senate resolution by Sen. William Gormley, R-Atlantic, that would essentially abolish "senatorial courtesy" by setting a 120-day time limit for the judiciary committee to act on a nomination.

If the panel fails to act, the nomination would automatically go to the full Senate 45 days after the deadline expires.

"The committee approval of the bill is the first step in ending the archaic practice of senatorial courtesy that has been used to bottle up the nomination of qualified individuals," Schuber said in a statement.

"These nominations should not be held hostage by the whim of one person," he said.

Russo said the Schuber bill was "ludicrous."

"It would take millions to do what the state police and the governor's office does, to send people out to do background checks, neighborhood checks, to do all this baloney," he said.

Russo said $50,000 would pay for one staff member "and maybe a typewriter."

Try working for The Boss

By JIM BECKERMAN
The News Tribune of Woodbridge

NEW BRUNSWICK — If there's one thing worse than having a boss, it's having The Boss as a boss.

"He'll hand you a rope, and you either hang by it, or pull yourself up with it," said "Mighty" Max Weinberg, for 12 years the drummer in Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band.

Weinberg, who recently spoke at Rutgers University, is on tour to promote his book, The Big Beat — Conversations with Rock's Greatest Drummers.

The book, as advertised, discusses the legend and lore of drumming with many rock superstars, including Charlie Watts of the Rolling Stones, Kenney Jones of The Who, and Beatie Ringo Starr.

According to Weinberg, Springsteen is a strict taskmaster who demands the utmost from himself and those around him. And "Mighty Max" had some embarrassing stories to relate of his own "un-glorious days," when he was all ego and no discipline.

"In 1975, we were at the Bottom Line in New York City," said Weinberg, a Monmouth County resident. "We were playing live, on the radio. Bruce was outrageous. We got the place rocking so much, Bruce was dancing on a table."

In fact, they were all feeling so good that Weinberg couldn't resist the urge to feel better. He started drinking between sets.

WORKING FOR THE BOSS — Max Weinberg, far right, who has played drums for Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band for 12 years, is pictured with the group in this 1984 photo. Weinberg is promoting his book, The Big Beat — Conversations with Rock's Greatest Drummers.

"We hit the stage for the second set, and I was feeling no pain. During Rosalita Bruce starts running around the stage," he said. "I'm playing this beat. I'm feeling good."

"Suddenly I'm not looking at Bruce. I see this great looking girl. I look away, then I look back. She's definitely looking at me. I'm playing my best beat for her, harder and harder and faster and faster, and suddenly I realize I'm the only one playing."

Springsteen apparently did not take kindly to this. Neither did Weinberg, engrossed in his primitive mating call, stop playing even then.

"Bruce turned around, and suddenly he was 25 feet tall. He comes over to me, grabs my hands, stops my hands, he puts his hands around my neck and he starts shaking," Weinberg said.

When it came time to introduce the players at the end of the evening, "All eyes were on Bruce, and on me. In an absolute deadpan monotone, he introduces me: 'On the drums, the not-so-mighty Max.'"

"I'm shellshocked. It's on the radio. And if it's on the radio, it's on a bootleg somewhere," Weinberg said.

Later, and in a more fatherly mood, Springsteen gave Weinberg some advice: "Max, you gotta watch out for the curve balls."

"That's when the dream started to change," said Weinberg. "There was more to this than dreaming. I've been on the lookout for those curve balls ever since."

As a boy, Weinberg was always engrossed by rockers, and rock drummers — particularly Elvis Presley and his drummer D.J. Fontana, and Ringo Starr of the Beatles.

"I wanted some of that," he said. "When I started going nuts on those drums, I felt connected. I felt like somebody. I felt important."

In 1975, after playing in a succession of bands, Weinberg answered an ad placed in the Village Voice by Springsteen's E Street Band.

Homeless families face uncertain future

ATLANTIC CITY (AP) — Homeless families spared eviction from motels by the last-minute efforts of the state Department of Community Affairs waited nervously yesterday to find out what will happen next week, when the state plans to stop picking up their lodging bills.

An aide to Mayor James L. Usry said city and state workers were able to get some of the families into permanent housing and planned to continue their efforts until Tuesday, when the two weeks of help promised by the state are up.

Meanwhile, efforts are under way to obtain for some of the homeless emergency assistance from Atlantic County and to ask a judge to grant a temporary restraining order preventing motel owners from evicting anyone left in their rooms next week.

"What it's been is a real mess," said Barbara Friia, a homeless woman living in a Lincoln Motel room with her teen-age son and nephew.

None of the officials or attorneys involved in resettling the homeless families knew how many were left yesterday in motels scattered throughout the city. Two weeks ago, officials estimated that there were about 30 families, mostly women with children.

Olga Arthurs, an attorney with Cape-Atlantic Legal Services Inc., said one woman she knows was so desperate to find an apartment that she paid a $400 finder's fee — an uncommon practice in southern New Jersey — to an unlicensed real estate broker.

The apartment was unfit for occupancy and the woman is still living in a motel, Ms. Arthurs said.

The city announced last month that it would run out of money on Aug. 12 to pay for the motel bills of homeless families. The city has paid more than $1.2 million in motel bills since January 1985.

Some families have been living in motels for almost two years and have been pitched from crisis to crisis. They are victims of a low-cost housing shortage created by fires; land speculation due to the casino gaming boom; and developers' preference for building high-priced condominiums.

Individuals are sheltered in the barracks-like facilities of the Atlantic City Rescue Mission or the Salvation Army, but such facilities are not suitable for families.

State regulations, which have been challenged in court by the public advocate's office, say that people who become homeless through no fault of their own are eligible for emergency shelter for up to 90 days.

Kean withdraws objections to WOR-TV sale

TRENTON (AP) — Gov. Thomas H. Kean announced yesterday the state has withdrawn its objections to MCA Inc. of California buying WOR-TV after the company promised that the station would maintain its commitment to broadcasting New Jersey news.

MCA wants to purchase the Secaucus-based Channel 9 from RKO General Inc. for $387 million. At Kean's request, Attorney General W. Cary Edwards filed yesterday with the Federal Communications Commission a petition seeking the withdrawal of the previous petition, which opposed the transfer of WOR's FCC license.

"I believe New Jersey viewers will be well served by withdrawal of the state's petition opposing transfer of the license to MCA," said Kean.

WOR is the state's only commercial VHF television station. In papers filed with the FCC in Washington, D.C., in July, Edwards and two private companies said that neither RKO nor MCA had offered assurances that the sale would uphold terms of the station's 1983 relicensing to New Jersey.

The station had been based in New York City for many years but decided three years ago that it wanted to move to New Jersey. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., then sponsored legislation requiring the company to commit itself to covering New Jersey news and issues in exchange for a license in the state.

But Edwards claimed that RKO failed to devote sufficient air time and resources to New Jersey matters.

Opponents also said MCA had said little about its intentions to cover New Jersey news.

But the state recently received a more detailed plan by MCA on its commitment to New Jersey, and it apparently satisfied Edwards and other officials.

In a four-page letter to Edwards dated Aug. 21, MCA President Lawrence Fraiberg promised his company would:

■ Continue to produce local programming at the studio in Secaucus.

■ Continue to maintain eight camera crews in the state and a news bureau in Trenton.

■ Actively "seek to provide quality news, public affairs and other programming which address the needs of New Jersey viewers within the station's service area."

N.Y. Harbor blockade fizzles; no drugs found

By BETHANY KANDEL
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The first blockade of New York Harbor since the War of 1812 halted scores of vessels for drug searches, but the U.S. Coast Guard and federal agents recovered no illegal drugs and made just one unrelated arrest, spokesman said yesterday.

"I can tell you, anyone trying to bring drugs into New York will be arrested," said Coast Guard Capt. Arthur Henn, who headed Operation Glass Eye. "We're out to catch those people bringing drugs into the port and poisoning our chil-

But the blockade produced just one suspect from the first 90 ships boarded: Thomas Hall, 27, of Asbury Park, who was arrested when a computer check turned up an outstanding warrant for armed robbery. dren."

But the blockade produced just one suspect from the first 90 ships boarded:

Thomas Hall, 27, of Asbury Park, N.J., who was arrested when a computer check turned up an outstanding warrant for armed robbery. Despite 45-minute stem to stern searches of 80 pleasure boats and 10 commercial crafts, no drugs were recovered.

One recreational boat had its voyage terminated yesterday due to "unsafe passage," possibly because not enough flotation devices were aboard, according to Loren Bullard, a Coast Guard spokesman.

Mayor Edward I. Koch, while praising the idea, blamed the publicity surrounding the blockade for the lack of results.

The search "wasn't a very well-kept secret on the part of the Coast Guard, because everybody I met Thursday told me about it," Koch said. "That's no way to run an operation. That's got to be done very quietly."

Bullard said the blockade was merely the start of intensified efforts to stop drugs from coming into the harbor and random searches and blockades would occur in the future.

"The primary focus of this operation is to let people know that we're going to be out there looking for them and they won't know where or when," he said. "We may not get you tomorrow, but we're going to get you."

Fifteen Coast Guard boats and cutters, joined by four NYPD boats and two from U.S. Customs, stopped each boat as it entered the harbor.

Your Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SATURDAY, AUG. 23

Born today, you are made up of a number of contradictions. The most striking of these is your craving for money, power and other symbols of success and achievement today, which co-exists within you with a sincere hatred for the scheming, back-biting, dishonesty and psychological game-playing that so often become a part of their pursuit. The result is a straightforward approach not usually found among the shakers and doers today, for you refuse to stoop to methods you despise.

You have tremendous endurance, and can weather even the worst of times with a clear head -- and, often, a smile on your face! You know what you want, and you will not doubt get it by focusing entirely on yourself, rather than on what others may be doing. You have strong likes and dislikes.

Also born on this date are Gene Kelly, dancer, singer, actor; Rick Springfield, actor, singer.

To see what is in store for you tomorrow, find your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

SUNDAY, AUG. 24

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) -- It is essential that you have some understanding of what goes on around you today, as it all affects your plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) -- What you do unintentionally have more serious and long-lasting effects today than planned words and actions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) -- Keep an eye on finances today, even though business matters have been put on a back burner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) -- An early-morning surprise may threaten your security, and the security of family members. Rally together now!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) -- You may have to go without what you dearly want today -- but not for long. Be patient, understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) -- You receive important spiritual enrichment from a surprising source. Do not doubt one who claims to "know."

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) -- Focus on status, honor today. Do not allow yourself to be pushed aside by an ambitious upstart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) -- Look for solutions to present problems today within your own pool of resources. For best results, stay close to home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) -- A keen eye and a cool head serve you well today -- especially toward evening, when much of importance will remain unsaid.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) -- Trust the input of a close friend or loved one today; he has your best interest at heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) -- Do not seek to take the credit today where the credit should rightfully go to someone else -- or you will risk much.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) -- Turn of events today may be oddly reminiscent of past pattern. Do not hesitate to make changes where necessary.

CBS morning show drops to a new low

By NOEL HOLSTON
Orlando Sentinel

What's to become of "The CBS Morning News"? Now a lame duck flying a wobbly holding pattern while CBS develops a more entertainment oriented replacement, the show already begs for a title change. "The CBS Moribund News" perhaps, or "The CBS Mourning News."

Nobody's wailing or rending their smartly tailored garments on the air, but the smiles of the temporary hosts seem as studied as an undertaker's.

Act as if nothing's wrong may be the strategy, but the acting isn't going to win any Emmys — and neither is the news. Wednesday morning, stand-in host Charles Rose interviewed a budding pop star who looks like Prince but champions abstinence over decadence. Introducing the singer's music video, Rose exhibited all the natural enthusiasm you would expect from William F. Buckley Jr.

You have to wonder whether CBS, by removing the fairly effective Forrest Sawyer-Maria Shriver team five months before the new show is ready, isn't deepening the hole it will have to dig the program out of in January.

Through the early '80s, when it was only an hour long and preceded by "Captain Kangaroo," "The CBS Morning News" was the best daily newscast on network TV — calmer, wider-ranging and more thorough than its evening counterpart.

But it wasn't competitive in the ratings with NBC's "Today" or ABC's "Good Morning America," which successfully operate on the premise that more people want to watch TV in the morning than want to watch TV news. So CBS gradually expanded the "Morning News" to two hours at "Captain Kangaroo's" expense and tried to make it more like its competition while retaining its hard-news advantage.

It didn't work.

CBS discovered from audience research that the very fact that CBS News was mentioned in the program's title limited its viewership potential. CBS was belatedly acknowledging the reality of that absurd "stigma" when it decided recently to shift production of the program to the entertainment division.

What can we expect in January from CBS' morning show? Well, the network knows that copying the rival shows is no way to shake up the morning viewing habits. CBS understands it must present a more clear-cut alternative, and since harder news is out, having already proven its Nielsen impotence, purer entertainment looms as the obvious ticket.

Howard Rosenberg, the Los Angeles Times' gadfly TV columnist, recently encouraged CBS to go with "The CBS Morning Nudes."

CBS so far has expressed no interest in Rosenberg's idea, but perhaps these suggestions will find more receptive ears at CBS.

"Morning Routines of the Rich and Famous" — In the tradition of Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person," anchors Robin Leach and Nancy Dussault each morning will show viewers the waking and breakfast habits of a celebrity.

Viewers will be heartened that these celebrities also put their pants on one leg at a time.

"Mornin' Mayberry" — The stars of "The Andy Griffith Show" proved their drawing power in last season's high-rated reunion movie, "Return to Mayberry." If the family feeling projected by Bryant, Jane and Gene is the key to "Today's" success, surely Andy, Barney and the gang could do as well for CBS.

"Daybreaking" — Bruce Willis and Cybill Shepherd have already established their ability to communicate directly with the audience on the yuppy-loved nighttime series "Moonlighting."

And what does Willis' character want more in life than to wake up with Shepherd?

Dinah's still bubbly on stage

By JACK LLOYD
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — It was opening night for Dinah Shore's engagement at the Golden Nugget Casino-Hotel, and she was talking about how great it was to work with first-rate musicians.

"We got together for rehearsal this afternoon and it was the first time we'd ever met," Shore said. Then turning to the orchestra, she said, "You've never seen me before, have you?"

When the musicians nodded in agreement, Shore responded in mock disbelief. "What, you've never seen me on television?"

Shore, of course, is a very familiar face to TV audiences — particularly the older crowd she attracts.

She was a TV staple throughout much of the 1950s, so for a large percentage of those in the Golden Nugget's Opera House on Wednesday night it was almost like seeing a TV image suddenly coming to life.

The real, live Dinah Shore is looking pretty good these days, too — still trim and bubbly at 69. Shore's Golden Nugget engagement — only her second Atlantic City casino appearance — also suggests that she has retained her athletic ways. The booking coincides with Shore's participation this week in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Atlantic City Classic golf tournament.

RAISING FUNDS — Bob Killian and friends will perform in concert at 9 p.m. Tuesday at the Stone Pony, Asbury Park, in a fund-raising effort for Checkmate District 3 Advisory Council. Joining Killian will be Split Decision and Jade. The concert is to raise funds for Checkmate's food pantry and emergency funds to aid the hungry and the homeless. Tickets are $5 at the door.

Holiday show set

OCEAN GROVE — The traditional Labor Day concert takes place in the Great Auditorium at 8 p.m. Sept. 1. This year's concert features four singers and an organist in a program of Broadway show tunes and light classics.

Tickets are $4.50 and can be purchased at the auditorium box office.

ADVICE

Percy Ross

Beware of scams

Percy Ross is a Minneapolis millionaire who has accumulated many interesting ideas about people along with several fortunes during his business career. He enjoys the opportunity to share both with readers of this column. Ross' motto is: "He who gives while he lives... also knows where it goes."

Dear Readers:
I recently printed a letter from a gentleman in Santa Ana, Calif., who wrote how his parents fell victim to a "scam." In turn I asked you, the readers, to write me if you knew of any similar fraudulent operations.

Following a tremendous response, I selected the following two "scams" which represent the bulk of those received. Each person whose letter appears is being sent $200. Please read on and take note... it could happen to you!

Dear Mr. Ross:
I thought I was smarter than the average "Joe" — not true! One day, while shopping at a local department store, I was using their restroom. I set my purse on the floor of the stall I was occupying when a hand dove under and stole it right before my eyes! It was a few minutes before I gathered myself from the shock and by then the perpetrator had fled.

Later that afternoon, I received a call from a young woman who identified herself as the thief. She told me her husband had deserted her and her six children several months ago, leaving them with nothing. She went on to explain that they were without food and in a desperate moment she resorted to stealing my purse. But her conscience wouldn't allow her to use the stolen money, she said, no matter how bad off they were and she would like to return the purse and it's full contents to me the following day.

Her honesty overwhelmed me and I agreed to meet her at the same store the following day. I arrived at the appointed time and waited one hour. When no one showed up I returned home, only to find I had been double whammed! Half the contents of my home had seem removed — including all my jewelry and silver set.

It wasn't until then that I reported my loss to the police. To date the thieves haven't been caught. Please advise your female readers to set their purses on the back of the water tank when using public restrooms. Sign me a woman who's learned the hard way. — Mrs. R.L., Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Mr. Ross:
Although I've never been the prey of shady dealers, I've had first-hand experience with those who have. I'm a bank teller and would like to share with your readers an incident which has happened to three of our customers.

The incident goes like this: An official looking gentleman comes to your door and tells you he's a bank officer. He explains there's a teller at your bank under suspicion for embezzlement and he needs your help in catching the suspect. This man asks you to draw out a large amount of your savings and then return home with the cash.

Upon returning home, you are to phone him at a special number and he'll come over to check the money. After checking it, he tells you that the bank's suspicions have been confirmed and the teller was caught red-handed.

As a gesture of appreciation on the bank's behalf, he asks you for a deposit slip and offers to return your cash. Naturally, the false bank officer and your cash are never heard from or seen again.

Let your readers know that banks never ask their patrons to perform such a service. If anyone is suspected of dirty dealings in the bank, we take care of it "in-house" with undercover security and the bank's money. — Mr. J.S., San Francisco, Calif.

You can write to Percy Ross, P.O. Box 35000, Minneapolis, Minn. 55435. Include a telephone number if you wish. All letters sent to Mr. Ross are read. Only a few are answered in this column, although others may be acknowledged privately.

The Register will no longer print the Dr. Ruth Westheimer column. Look forward to reading Percy Ross' column every Saturday.

Dr. Lester Coleman

The fertile period

Q. I was discussing a problem with two other married women. Even though we each have children, it was surprising that none of us really knew when our fertile period occurred during the month.

A. The fertile period is the time when ovulation takes place. This is the time when the ovary produces its tiny egg.

In women who have a normal 28-day cycle, the most fertile period occurs about 12 to 16 days after the onset of menstrual period.

The so-called barren period occurs about 7 to 9 days before the onset of the menses, continues during the menstrual period, and lasts up to 5 days after the menstrual period.

Since the menstrual cycles of women vary so widely, there can, of course, be no definitive schedule that would apply to everyone.

There are also some medical conditions which affect the regularity of the menstrual cycle. This, too, interferes with any established rule. — L.C.

Q. My husband has been saying I'm neurotic, and I don't think that I am. Could you define it for me?

A. Most mental health experts agree that virtually all of us are, in some sense, neurotic. Our neuroses are reactions to our inner conflicts. The key word is anxiety.

The neurotic individual is anxious, so anxious, sometimes, that he or she can't function. At times the anxiety is expressed directly, openly. Other times it is turned inward, and handled in strange ways. In the mind of the neurotic are conflicts unresolved, and often unconscious.

There are many theories as to the origins of these conflicts. Dr. Sigmund Freud thought that neurosis came from unresolved sexual drives during childhood. Today most authorities feel that neurotic behavior has many causes, reflecting both childhood development and family interactions.

Is the neurotic crazy? Not necessarily, but he or she may be so anxiety-ridden as to use poor judgment. The neurotic knows reality and often acts completely normal (whatever that is). But when the neurotic's anxiety breaks through, his or her social behavior can crumble. Fortunately, even at this point, the right kind of professional help can often shape things up.

This answer, incidentally, just begins to scratch the surface on the very complex subject of neurosis. A qualified mental health professional or family doctor can deal with questions and symptoms in greater depth. — S.D.

Q. My son is an oyster and clam freak. He will eat them without knowing where they came from. Will you help me convince him that this can be dangerous?

A. I will try. But lovers of shellfish can be as hardheaded as the shells that surround them.

Many cases have been reported of mild and severe outbreaks of intestinal disease in people who have eaten raw shellfish.

A special virus, known as the Norwalk virus, and other organisms of the vibrio species are but a few of the ones that contaminate raw oysters and clams. People who are known to have liver disease, diabetes, chronic intestinal diseases and cancer may have serious consequences if they ingest infected oysters and clams.

The only way that the Norwalk and other viruses and organisms in shellfish can be killed is by steaming the shellfish for 4 to 6 minutes. This must be done even though the shells open after just one minute.

Dr. John Spika, at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, definitively says, "Those of us who work with enteric (intestinal) diseases tend to oppose all consumption of raw shellfish."

Despite your son's good health, he should sensibly consider the possible risk inherent in eating raw shellfish. — L.C.

Ann Landers

Help for veterans

Dear Ann Landers: Many peacetime or wartime veterans are unaware of what benefits are available to them. I am just now becoming aware of these benefits because my own father is very ill. He is both a peacetime and a wartime veteran and probably will not live much longer.

With regard to the death of a veteran, the government will supply more than a flag. It will provide money towards the burial and a headstone. If a veteran dies in a Veterans Administration hospital the family will receive more money than if he or she dies at home.

Also, for those who cannot afford a cemetery plot and the cost of an undertaker, different states have different provisions. The VA has numerous national cemeteries across the country that will provide a plot for a veteran (and spouse, where space is available), also a small service. They will also take care of the arrangements with the undertaker. Some undertakers are aware of what the benefits are and are more than willing to help the family to obtain every possible benefit. Others will not be bothered or they do not know enough about it. A wartime veteran, for example, will receive more financial aid from the government than a peacetime veteran.

Ann, can you please look into this and provide your readers with the information so many of them need to know? — A Member of the Ladies Auxiliary to the V.F.W.

Dear Member: Thanks for a letter that is sure to be very helpful to a great many people. For those who want complete details about eligibility for help, I suggest contacting the local Veterans Administration office. It is listed in the white pages of the phone book.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and his brothers have worked for their father all their lives. They had other opportunities to go elsewhere but Dad promised the boys one day the place would be theirs. He told everyone at our family gatherings that when he reached 55 he would retire and the boys would take over.

Fifty-five came and went. Meanwhile, Dad continued to pile up money and the boys are still struggling.

Dad's new goal for retirement was 60. The loyal sons hung in there. Sixty has come and gone and 65 is fast approaching. Now Dad has an offer to sell the business.

Did all those verbal promises mean anything legally? The faithful sons are now resentful. Dad and Mom can't understand why no one comes to visit anymore. The family is torn apart and the scars are deep. Can anything be done? Sign me — Empty Promises in Utah

Dear Utah: If you're asking can the boys sue their father for selling the business, the answer is: I doubt it.

Too bad "the boys" stuck around. I'd love to hear your father-in-law's version of this story. I'd bet my bottom dollar it sounds very different.

Dear Ann Landers: I wonder how many paper boys are abducted or killed each year because their photos and names and addresses were published when they were named "carrier of the week."

This practice has been going on for years and I think it is a sure way to ask for trouble. Do you have the nerve to print this? — Reader in Casco, Wis.

Dear Casco: I do not know of one carrier who was abducted. Ninety-nine percent of the missing kids are either runaways or have been snatched by a parent after a divorce. The notion that they all have been kidnapped by strangers is a myth.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Outdoor beauty

Quality designs and materials make today's porch, patio and garden furniture tougher than ever.

Better Homes and Gardens magazine offers some tips to help keep casual furniture looking good in all kinds of weather.

For aluminum furniture:
— Before using, inspect the furniture for damage. Tighten loose screws and replace rusty ones with the corrosion-resistant kind. Replace worn cords or webbing, using available kits.

— Spray stiff joints of folding furniture with silicone lubricant.

— Remove white blotches with a coat of aluminum naval jelly; hose it off after a few minutes.

— Restore a satiny look with a commercial aluminum brightener or fine steel wool dipped in kerosene. For a protective finish, apply clear lacquer or automobile paste wax.

— Wash color-coated aluminum with a mild detergent. Cover scratches with matching touch-up paint; protect with automobile wax.

For wrought iron furniture:
— Remove rust with a wire brush and sand with coarse steel wool.

— Repair broken or loose joints with epoxy cement, following instructions on the label.

— Apply a special rust protector that leaves a polymer coating.

— Retouch with acrylic or oil-based paint. Don't use latex.

— Protect with a topcoat of automobile paste wax.

For plastic furniture:
— Furniture made of molded synthetics or PVC (polyvinyl chloride) shouldn't show wear for several years. To freshen, wash with a mild detergent or better yet, creamy car polish.

JUST PASSING BY — Boston Red Sox second baseman Marty Barrett throws the ball to first base while Cleveland Indians' runner Cory

Snyder tries to take second base on a grounder by Pat Tabler during last night's game in Cleveland. The Red Sox won, 6-3.

Tudor powers Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John Tudor scattered nine hits over seven innings and drove in two runs with a pair of singles to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-5 victory over the Houston Astros last night.

Tudor, 13-6, struck out seven and allowed one earned run in helping the Cardinals snap a four-game losing streak. Todd Worrell earned his 28th save by stopping the Astros, despite allowing a three-run pinch homer to Denny Walling in the ninth.

A wild Nolan Ryan, 8-8, was unable to earn his 250th career victory. He struck out six in 5 1-3 innings, but walked five and had three wild pitches.

An error by St. Louis third baseman Terry Pendleton led to an unearned run in the first inning. Billy Hatcher reached on Pendleton's throwing error and scored on Glenn Davis' RBI double.

The Astros added a run in the fourth as Jose Cruz blooped a two-out double to short left field and Alan Ashby followed with a run-scoring single.

Tom Herr led off the Cards' fourth with a double to center and Andy Van Slyke singled to right to score Herr. Later, with runners on second and third and two outs, Ryan intentionally walked Mike LaValliere to pitch to Tudor. The pitcher bounced a slow bouncer up the middle that second baseman Phil Garner grabbed but was unable to make a play.

The Cards took the lead in the fifth as Herr walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Curt Ford's double.

St. Louis added three runs in the sixth when Clint Hurdle hit a lead off double and Tudor blooped a single to left.

Tudor went to second on Ryan's third wild pitch and after Vince Coleman walked, Aurelio Lopez relieved Ryan. Lopez walked Ozzie Smith to load the bases.

Pirates 16, Braves 5

PITTSBURGH — Sid Bream went 5-for-5 and drove in five runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates rapped out 19 hits in their biggest offensive showing in three years and defeated the Atlanta Braves.

Bream hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning, his 14th, and had a two-run single in Pittsburgh's eight-run sixth. R.J. Reynolds and Jim Morrison drove in three runs each as Pittsburgh had its biggest outburst since a 16-2 victory over Los Angeles on May 3, 1983.

Each team scored four times in the first as Pittsburgh starter Larry McWilliams left before getting an out. Dale Murphy hit a two-run single, and Bob Horner and Terry Harper got run-scoring hits. Jim Winn, 3-5, then relieved. Barry Jones worked the final 3 2-3 innings for his second save.

Pittsburgh tied it off Rick Mahler, 11-13, on a two-triple by Reynolds and RBI singles by Bream and Morrison.

Atlanta, which had won four straight games, retook the late on Murphy's RBI single in the second.

Rafael Belliard hit a two-run single in the third to give Pittsburgh a 6-5 lead. Then in the sixth, the Pirates battered relievers Ed Olwine and Cliff Speck, sending 13 batters to the plate.

Cubs 3, Reds 2

CHICAGO — Jerry Mumphy hit a bases-loaded triple and Lee Smith pitched two hitless innings for his 24th save, enabling the Chicago Cubs to snap a three-game losing streak with a triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

The loss snapped a four-game winning streak for the Reds.

Chicago rookie Jaime Moyer, 5-3, gave up eight hits and five walks over 5 2-3 innings. Ron Davis allowed both of the Cubs' runs over an 1 1-3 innings before Smith pitched the final two innings.

Cincinnati's Ted Power, 4-6, who was making his first start since May 30, 1983, allowed five hits over four innings.

Chicago took a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning. Terry Francona singled and Mike Martin and Moyer drew two-out walks to load the bases. Mumphy followed with his three-run triple to center.

The Reds scored twice in the seventh. With two outs, Bo Diaz walked, pinch-hitter Eddie Milner singled and both advanced a base on reliever Ron Davis' error covering first base. Then Nick Esasky delivered a two-run single to left field.

Indians wiped out

Red Sox hold the key to Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bill Buckner's two-run single in the seventh inning put the Boston Red Sox ahead 4-3 and they went on to defeat Cleveland 6-3 last night, giving them victories in all eight contests against the Indians this season.

The Red Sox routed Cleveland 24-5 Thursday night and have defeated the Indians in 11 consecutive contests over two seasons.

Bruce Hurst, 8-6, gained the victory as he yielded three runs, two of them earned, in 6 1-3 innings.

Calvin Schiraldi gained his sixth save with 2 2-3 innings of one-hit relief, retiring the final eight batters he faced. Schiraldi has five saves and one win in his last six appearances.

With Cleveland ahead 3-2, Wade Boggs singled leading off the seventh and moved to second on Marty Barrett's sacrifice. Losing pitcher Ken Schrom, 11-5, then hit Jim Rice with a pitch.

After Don Baylor flied out, Dwight Evans walked to load the bases. Scott Bailes relieved Schrom and Buckner lined an 0-2 pitch into right field for the tying and winning runs.

The Red Sox scored a run in the third without the benefit of a hit.

Rich Gedman, leading off, reached first as Pat Tabler misplayed Gedman's grounder for an error. Spike Owen sacrificed and Gedman moved to third and Owen to second as Cleveland third baseman Brook Jacoby threw wildly past second trying to force Gedman. After an out and a walk to Barrett, loading the bases, Rice hit a sacrifice fly.

The Indians took a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the inning on an RBI double by Julio Franco and a run-scoring single by Joe Carter.

Jacoby singled in another Cleveland run in the fourth, but the Red Sox pulled to within 3-2 in the fifth on an RBI single by Baylor.

Boston added an insurance run in the eighth and Baylor homered to make it 6-3 in the ninth.

Twins 4, Blue Jays 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Greg Gagne hit a pair of two-run homers and Bert Blyleven allowed seven hits in seven innings as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Toronto Blue Jays.

Gagne's sixth home run, off Jim Clancy, gave Minnesota a 2-0 lead in the third inning after a single by Roy Smalley.

Gagne made it 4-0 in the fourth with another homer to left that brought home Tom Brunansky, who had walked.

Clancy, 13-7, went six innings for only his second loss in his last nine decisions.

The first two Blue Jays runs came in the seventh. George Bell and Jesse Barfield led off with singles and advanced when the Twins Kirby Puckett bobbled Barfield's hit.

Bell scored on a sacrifice fly by Ernie Whitt and

American League

Barfield, who left the game in the eighth with a strained knee, came home on a single by Cliff Johnson.

Tigers 4, Mariners 1

DETROIT — John Grubb and Darnell Coles had RBI singles in Detroit's two-run fifth inning and rookie Eric King pitched a four-hitter as the Tigers beat the Seattle Mariners.

King, 9-3 for the season and 5-0 in Tiger Stadium, walked two and struck out four en route to his third complete game. He retired the last 14 batters after hitting Phil Bradley with a pitch in the fifth inning.

Mike Morgan, 9-13, allowed three runs on five hits in 4 2-3 innings for Seattle.

With the score tied 1-1 in the fifth, Alan Trammell first reached on a grounder that forced Lou Whitaker, who had walked. Trammell went to second when Seattle second-baseman Harold Reynolds threw the ball into the dugout for an error trying to complete a double play.

Orioles 8, Angels 7

BALTIMORE — Fred Lynn's run-scoring double off the glove of third baseman Doug DeCinces capped Baltimore's five-run rally in the eighth inning as the Orioles defeated the California Angels to snap a four-game losing streak.

Eddie Murray singled to open the inning and Jim Traber, who earlier had driven in a pair of runs, followed with a single to chase California reliever Gary Lucas.

Angels relief ace Donnie Moore, 2-5, yielded a pinch single to Juan Beniquez and consecutive two-run doubles to Floyd Rayford and pinch-hitter Jim Dwyer to tie the score 7-7.

Royals 4, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE — Danny Jackson, who got last out relief help from Dan Quisenberry, scattered four singles over 8 2-3 innings, and Hal McRae homered to start a three-run fourth, leading the Kansas City Royals to victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Jackson, 9-8, struck out five and walked five in his second complete game. Dan Quisenberry collected his 11th save. Juan Nieves, 10-6, took the loss.

McRae hit his sixth home run leading off the fourth. Two outs later, Jim Sundberg walked and Darryl Motley singled. Angel Salazar then doubled to right, scoring Sundberg and Motley to give Kansas City a 3-0 lead.

LOOK OUT LARKIN — Chicago Cubs' Ryne Sandberg is forced out at second base as Cincinnati Reds' shortstop Barry Larkin relays the ball to first base, just barely missing a double play on the batter, Leon Durham during yesterday's game in Wrigley Field, Chicago. The Cubs won, 3-2.

Mets' stock on the rise

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets, whose gross profit for the fiscal year ending April 30 was nearly $20 million, are doing even better this year, according to the Wall Street investment firm representing the parent Double-day & Co.

With the team apparently headed toward its first division title in 13 seasons, gate receipts are up 50 percent, Dillon Read & Co. figures revealed.

The Mets, who last season drew a city-record 2.7 million fans, are on a pace to break that mark this season. With heavy advance sales for September games at Shea Stadium, the team has a chance to join the Los Angeles Dodgers as the only sports franchises ever to surpass 3 million spectators in home attendance in a season.

"This franchise is a jewel," Mets senior vice president Al Harazin told The New York Times in an interview.

The information was contained in an "introductory memorandum" prepared by Dillon Read for Doubleday, which is reportedly being offered for sale.

The anticipated revenue increase is tied mostly to attendance, which the Mets say accounts for 45 percent of their gross receipts. Local broadcast rights account for another 25 percent; national TV contracts 10 percent; concessions 14 percent and advertising, parking and club membership 6 percent.

Palmer wows 'em in Lingerie Dept.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Former major league pitcher Jim Palmer, now pitching a brand of underwear, drew more than requests for autographs yesterday during a promotional visit to a department store.

"What would you like me to write?" the 40-year-old Palmer asked one woman who requested his autograph.

"Your phone number would be fine," she answered. "I know your name."

Palmer smiled. And signed his name.

He autographed giveaway T-shirts and Jockey for Her underwear that the company he represents is marketing.

Also free were a poster of Palmer dressed only in underwear and a photograph of him in his Baltimore Orioles uniform.

Sprinkled through the crowd of about 300, mostly women, were people holding baseballs. Some mothers got Palmer to autograph the baseball poster for their sons. Lingerie departments and underwear posters embarrass their sons, they said.

A 25-year-old man brought in four baseball cards of Palmer, including his rookie card.

"That's worth $38," said Palmer, now a sportscaster for ABC. The card lists him incorrectly as a left-hander.

Lasorda: We're not fighting

Dodgers' skipper insist that team gets along

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers may be fighting to stay out of the cellar of the National League West Division, but Manager Tommy Lasorda insists that his players are not fighting among themselves.

"There are no problems on this team," Lasorda said in a Los Angeles Times report published yesterday.

The Times listed a number of confrontations between players that have taken place this season, but Lasorda said the altercations were not the reason the Dodgers have fallen in the standings.

The Dodgers had lost seven of their previous 10 games going into last night's game against the Montreal Expos at Dodger Stadium.

"Those are not the reasons this team is not in first place," Lasorda said. "If you and the other guys (reporters) had any idea about baseball whatsoever, you guys would know that. Evidently, you don't."

The Times reported that Lasorda did not deny the following incidents had occurred this season:

■ That two days ago Lasorda called a meeting on behalf of Pedro Guerrero, who believes that at least two newspapers in town are out to get him. Guerrero confronted teammates about negative comments to the press concerning his attitude.

■ That Fernando Valenzuela threw his glove and cap in fury during a game in Houston last week. Valenzuela was reacting to a fielding mistake by Steve Sax that cost the Dodgers a game.

■ That Mike Scioscia had words with Sax during the same series with the Astros.

■ That Mike Marshall and veteran Bill Russell shouted at each last Sunday in San Francisco, or that Mariano Duncan played four innings with a broken bone in his foot in an attempt to prove that he hasn't been dogging it this season.

"There's an overreaction to just about everything that's mentioned," Lasorda said. "Are you telling me no teams ever had an argument."

"Not just losing teams but winning teams too ... It happens everyday in baseball. It's just not written every day."

"When we had winning ballclubs, don't you think we had arguments? I think this year has been a picnic compared to others I've been through, as far as I'm concerned."

Lasorda he's had enough problems this season dealing with the team's seemingly endless string of injuries.

"You're talking about a team that's been decimated by injuries," he said. "It's been a nightmare."

Jim Brown is arrested again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former football star Jim Brown was freed on bail Friday following his arrest for investigation of beating his fiancée, who called police for help from a locked bedroom of Brown's Hollywood home.

Brown, 50, a former All-Pro running back with the National Football League's Cleveland Browns who later turned to acting, returned home after posting $5,000 bail to find Debra Clark, 22, moving out under the protection of police officers, Sgt. Chuck Urso said. Urso identified Clark as Brown's fiancée.

Brown was booked for investigation of spousal battery, a felony. A couple need not be married in order for the statute to apply, Urso said.

Brown has faced similar charges at least three times before in Los Angeles.

Clark was treated for a

Hammond Leads WS golf

KRON, Ohio — Donnie Hammond birdied the 18th hole and took sole control of the lead yesterday after the second round of the $700,000 NEC World Series of Golf.

Hammond's 15-foot putt on the final hole finished off a 2-under-par 68 and enabled him to complete two trips over the Firestone Country Club course at 6-under-par, 134.

That's one in front of Dan Pohl, who consistently turned potential trouble into birdies in a 4-under-par 66 that put him at 135.

Lanny Wadkins, a former winner of this elite event, salvaged a 68 despite a double bogey 7 on the 16th — "just a dumb mistake," he said — and was only two shots back at 136.

John Mahaffey and Joey Sindelar each had a 66 and were at 137.

Bernhard Langer of West Germany, Masy Kuramoto of Japan and Hawaiian David Ishii followed at 138, four strokes back at the tournament's halfway point. Langer and Ishii each were one over par at 71 and Kuramoto had a 70.

Australian Greg Norman, the British Open champion, slipped to a 71 and was at 139.

Nicklaus, a five-time winner of this event under various formats, had a 69 and was at par 140.

U.S. Open champ Ray Floyd, one of three tied for the first-round lead, made double bogey on the fifth hole for the second straight day and drifted back to 140 after a 74. Mark Wiebe, also tied for the first-round lead, was one higher at 75-141.

McEnroe barely survives

JERICHO, N.Y. — John McEnroe, trying to retrench himself on the tennis scene after resting for seven months, came within two points of being ousted by unheralded 18-year-old Jaime Yzaga of Peru yesterday in the first round of the $150,000 Hamlet Challenge Cup invitational.

Showing very little of his old consistency and just a trace of on-court emotion, McEnroe found his service, volley and ground strokes in time to stave off Yzaga, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6, winning the third set tiebreaker, 7-1.

This is McEnroe's third tournament since coming back.

Juli Inkster charges in front

GALLOWAY TOWNSHIP — Juli Inkster packaged three consecutive birdies into a late charge yesterday to produce a 4-under-par 67 and a 2-shot lead after one round of the $225,000 Atlantic City LPGA Classic at Marriott's Seaview Country Club.

Jane Geddes, Ayako Okamoto, Judy Dickinson, Penny Pulz and rookie Deb Richard all were tied for second place at 69.

Inkster, who is second on the LPGA earnings list this year with $241,524, rolled home a 4-foot birdie on the sixth hole, sank a 5-iron chip on the seventh and tapped home a 1-foot birdie on the eighth. She had made the turn at 1-under-33 after starting on the back nine of the 6,005-yard Bay course.

Richard was even par after 13 holes and came within one shot of the lead with a birdie on the eighth hole. However, she bogeyed the nine, her final hole of the day, and fell into a tie for second place.

Baker-Finch leads Scottish

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Ian Baker-Finch of Australia shot a second consecutive 5-under-par 66 yesterday, taking a one-stroke lead over Ireland's Christy O'Connor Jr. after the second round of the $150,000 Bell's Scottish Open golf tournament.

First-round leader Frank Nobilo of New Zealand, who set a course record with a 65, ballooned to a 5-over-par 76 yesterday, while England's Roger Chapman, who started the day tied with Baker-Finch for second, also suffered through a poor second round with a 74.

O'Connor, tied for fourth after an opening-round 67 in the European PGA tour event, matched Baker-Finch's 66 for a 36-hole total of 9-under 133 on the 6,613-yard Haggis Castle Golf Club course.

A 30-foot putt on the final green left O'Connor one shot clear of England's Derrick Cooper, who matched his first-round score with a 4-under 67.

Van Nostrand stuns Sukova

MAHWAH — Molly Van Nostrand, the 158th-ranked woman tennis player in the world, stunned second-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 4-6, 6-1 to advance to the semifinals of the $150,000 United Jersey Bank Classic yesterday.

Van Nostrand took control of the match by hitting bullet winners with two-flashed shots from both sides of the court. The 21-year-old Brightwaters, N.Y. resident saved a break point in the first game of the third set and then broke her opponent in the second and fourth games en route to a 5-0 lead.

Van Nostrand was joined in the semifinals by sixth-seeded Jo Durie of England and qualifier Elna Reinach of South Africa.

DEMON'S BEGONE IS GONE — Demon's Begone, under Keith Allen, won yesterday's $30,000 added Ahoy Stakes at Monmouth Park. Silano, ridden by Jamie Ryan, was second and Great Lightning, with Chris Antley up, was third. The winner paid $6.60.

Stretch victory

By JOE HINTELMANN

OCEANPORT — Lobloby Stable's Demon's Begone won a stretch-long duel with favored Silano to take the $33,300 Ahoy Stakes yesterday at Monmouth Park before a crowd of 10,182.

Demon's Begone, under Keith Allen, sped six furlongs in 1:10.3 and paid $6.60. Silano, installed as the 4-5 favorite with Jamie Ryan aboard, finished a neck behind the winner, but eight lengths ahead of Great Lightning, who was third. The exacta paid $12.60.

Both horses shipped in for the race. Demon's Begone, trained by Philip Hauswald, shipped in from Philadelphia Park. He won an allowance race here on Aug. 8 and is undefeated in three career starts.

Silano shipped here from Bowie Race Course in Maryland on Thursday. The defeat was his first in four lifetime efforts. Silano had won the Playpen Stakes at Laurel Race Course and the Rollicking Stakes at Pimlico in his previous two starts.

Silano, trained by 23-year-old Dale Capuano, is a half-brother to Gary's Friend, who also won the Playpen Stakes as a juvenile. Capuano's mother, Constance, owns Silano, his father is the breeder, his wife, the colt's groom and his brother-in-law the jockey (Jamie Ryan).

Hintelmann hits 5

Register handicapper Joe Hintelmann hit for five winners yesterday at Monmouth Park.

He opened with "horses to watch" Benoni the Bold (11.40). He then tabbed Paradise Plunder (6.80) (who won on a rare double disqualification), Our Love Song (5.20), Demon's Begone (6.60) in the Ahoy Stakes and Daytime Friend (4.20) in the finale.

Just seven racing days left to win money with the Register's competent prophet of profit.

eight. The ticket was worth $49,501.80. The biggest price in the Super Six was produced by Fast Caz (26.40), ridden by Doug Thomas in the fifth race.

A rare double disqualification occurred in the third race. Fine Business apparently scored a narrow front-running victory over Funny Doll. Paradise Plunder, the 9-5 choice under Jimmy Edwards, was a close third.

The stewards flashed the inquiry sign and Edwards claimed foul against both Fine Business, handled by Carlos Lopez and Funny Doll, with Carlos H. Marquez up. The stewards found both Lopez and Marquez guilty of failing to keep a straight course and placed Paradise Plunder first. Fine Business was placed second and Funny Doll third.

Joe Rocco, who jumped off Friday's Flick when that horse broke down (and was humanely destroyed) on the far turn in the fourth race on Thursday, suffered a sprained back and took off the rest of his mounts. He returned to action yesterday, showing no ill effects. He accepted five mounts and had a win, a second and a third. His win was aboard Milady's Eagle (8.80) in the eighth race. Trainer Jim Casey is now expected to retire Milady's Eagle, a 6-year-old Spring Double mare.

The Meadowlands has canceled simulcasting from the Atlantic City Race Course and Garden State Park tonight and next Saturday because of unexpected large advance ticket sales for pre-season New York Giants football games. Daytime simulcasting from Monmouth Park will not be affected.

Gourami, who has drawn the outside post position in a 12-horse field for this afternoon's Grade II Longfellow Handicap, worked three-eighths of a mile yesterday morning over a sloppy track with assistant trainer Larry Conaway aboard.

"He worked great," said Vistas Stable's Vice-President Gordon Campbell. "We didn't get her out until after 9:00 a.m. because we thought we might be able to work on the turf, but instead we had to work in the slop. We got him in :11.23 and :36 flat (for three furlongs) and he went real easy."

Regular rider Tim Doocy arrived from Ak-Sar-Ben Race Course in Nebraska this morning to ride Gourami.

Tom Jager upsets Biondi

Cops freestyle title

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Six weeks after his wedding, the honeymoon began for American freestyler Tom Jager, when he became the first-ever world champion for the shortest competitive distance.

The 22-year-old from Collinsville, Ill., upset countryman Matt Biondi, the fastest swimmer in the world, to win the 50-meter freestyle in the World Swimming Championships.

Meanwhile, the East German women went into the final day of competition having won 12 of the 13 races held so far.

Only American Betsy Mitchell's victory in the 100-meter backstroke has prevented an East German sweep. The 20-year-old Marietta, Ohio, swimmer was hoping to complete a double in the 200-meter backstroke.

Jager's wife, Becky, hugged and kissed her husband minutes after his victory, and she gripped his hand proudly during the press interview that followed.

He said that, since the wedding, he had been concentrating on training. But now, he said, he and his wife will go to the Spanish resort of Palma for a proper honeymoon.

Biondi said he knew Jager was capable of a very fast time, but added that two false starts, one involving Jager, upset his concentration.

Jager posted 22.49, setting a championship record that is guaranteed to be next to his name for at least another four years, despite what Biondi can achieve in other competitions.

Among the other finals scheduled today, the last day of competition, was the first women's 50-meter freestyle, in which East Germany's Kristin Otto was chasing her fifth gold medal of the championships.

The 20-year-old from Leipzig already holds gold in the 100-meter freestyle and the 200-meter individual medley and also anchored two relay teams to victory.

World champion Alex Baumann of Canada was going for his first world title in the men's 200-meter individual medley.

In contrast, 1,500-meter freestyler Vladimir Salnikov of the Soviet Union and American platform diver Greg Louganis both chased their third consecutive titles.

A surprise yesterday was the lack of a world record. The East German women had set a new mark every race day, with two falling on Tuesday. Although they won all three women's events, none came in record time.

Astrid Strauss, silver medalist in the 400-meter freestyle, collected the gold at 800 meters in 8 minutes, 28.24 seconds, 0.2 seconds ahead of teammate Katja Hartmann.

American Debbie Babashoff won the bronze in 8:34.04.

Igor Poliansky of the Soviet Union completed a backstroke double by adding the 100-meter title to his 200-meter gold.

Reigning Olympic champion Yugoslavia won the men's water polo gold medal by beating Italy 12-11 in a final that went to four overtimes. Igor Milanovic scored the clincher with one second to play.

Lomicky, O'Neill in tourney

MIDDLETOWN — Dave Lomicky and Erica O'Neill will be two of the outstanding tennis players competing at Tindall Park Monday.

The duo will be after championships in the Eastern States Sectional Tennis Championships being held Monday through Wednesday at Tindall Park, Tindall Road.

The tourney opens Monday with the final round set for 12:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Lomicky, out of Middletown North High School, is the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association's singles champion.

O'Neill is the nation's top player in 14 and under girls. She's from Colts Neck.

The tourney will be comprised of players 10 through 18 from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

There will be five divisions for boys and five for girls.

Looney Tunes, Globe to meet in playoff

Looney Tunes Ski Asylum and The Globe Hotel will meet Monday in the opening round of the Men's Monday Night Softball League best-of-three playoffs.

The opening encounter will be played at Riverside Park, Rumson at 6 p.m.

Looney Tunes reached the final round by nipping Trinity Lams, 6-5, in eight innings.

The defending champion Globe Hotel, of Red Bank, clubbed out a 13-10 decision against Circle Chevrolet to earn the right to play the Ski team.

The second playoff game and third, if necessary, will be played in Shrewsbury on the Patterson Avenue Field starting at 11:30 a.m.

John Pingitore shackled Trinity with three earned runs while walking one over the eight inning route.

Danny Sullivan drove in the winning run for Looney Tunes while Luke Alvarez and Jamie Olson each had two hits for the winners.

With the score tied at four after seven innings, Trinity scored once in the top of the eighth.

In the bottom half, Jim Sullivan and Dave Henry led off with a singles and Brendan Bergin pinch hit and reached base on an error with Sullivan scoring to tie the game.

Olson, running for Henry went to third on the play, but Bergin was caught trying to take second.

Danny Sullivan then ripped a 1-1 pitch to left field to score Olson with the winning run.

Globe had to repulse Circle Chevrolet, which had downed Bobby T's Sub Shop, 15-6, to break a tie. Both teams finished with 9-7 records.

RECREATION

Register-Parks Sprint Triathlon is filled

A triathlon race director has many frustrations. One is advising would-be competitors that the race limit has been reached and no more applications are being accepted. Conversely, the road race director can usually accommodate all late entries.

The Asbury Park 10-Kilometer Classic held Aug. 9, was the state's largest road race. Entries were limited to 5,000 runners, yet 5,300 runners were accepted. You could register as late as the night before the race at the Berkeley-Carter Hotel in Asbury Park. This race did not permit race day registration but most road races will accept applications up to the start of the race.

Triathlons are often filled to the limit before the deadline for accepting applications, due to various restraints the number of entries cannot be increased. The triathlon to be held in Long Branch on Sept. 14, stopped accepting applications weeks before the Sept. 3 deadline. If you are one of the 350 accepted competitors, be advised that there is a waiting list of triathletes eager to assist you in getting your $25 registration fee refunded.

This triathlon is sponsored by The Register and the Monmouth County Parks System. It is a quarter-mile swim, followed by a 14-mile cycling event and a 4-mile run. It will begin at 8 a.m. in the Seven Presidents Oceanfront Park. The park can only accommodate a limited number of bicycles in the transition area, thus limiting the number of participants. Race director Maryjane Rooney was surprised that the race filled so quickly. There were more than 300 written requests for applications after the May 3, Run-Bike-Run event that was also conducted by the parks system.

The swim will be a staggered start with 2 minute intervals between age groups. Those age groups are: 30 and under, 31 to 45 and 46 and up. The staggering will help the competitors who need assistance during the swim. Last year the lifeguards had their surfboards filled with swimmers who requested help.

The swim event may be difficult to imagine if you are doing it for the first time. Picture yourself standing at the shore line at 8:00 a.m. and wondering why you decided to participate. After the gun sounds the mass of competitors begin to swim out to the first buoy which is more than a hundred yards offshore.

At the start there are swimmers in front of you kicking you in the face. You in turn are kicking someone behind you. Two years ago I treaded water for a moment in disbelief. There were hundreds of swimmers all with orange bathing caps swimming out to sea. It was similar to pack of lemmings trying to drown themselves off the coast of Norway.

The swim event is shorter than many triathlons but for the good-run-poor-swim competitors it could be a problem. Even the strong pool swimmers are advised to practice some ocean swimming before competing.

This race is called a sprint triathlon because it is a relatively short race. A typical triathlon has distances similar to the September 20th Pine Barren event. That triathlon is a 1-mile swim, a 25-mile cycling event and a 10-kilometer run.

An Ironman triathlon is more than twice the distance of the typical triathlon (24,112 and 26.2 miles).

Dozens of triathletes meet informally each Wednesday at 6:00 p.m. to participate in a training triathlon with distances similar to the Long Branch triathlon. This free training begins at Area E in the Gateway National Recreational Area, Sandy Hook. Everyone is invited and you may begin by participating in only one or two events.

Perhaps the best starter for a triathlete is Sunday's biathlon at Conner's Hotel in Highlands. This race which starts at 1:00 p.m. begins with a quarter mile swim in the river and is followed by a 3 mile run.

Also on Sunday is the 11th Annual Bill Lloyd-Saint James 5 Mile Road Race. It begins at 2:00 p.m. outside St. James church on Broad Street, Red Bank.

The Atlantic City swim (It is about one and a half miles.) will be at 10:00 a.m. on August 31st. Registration and the start will be at the lifeguard station near State Avenue. This is the oldest and probably the largest ocean swim in New Jersey.

On Sept. 13 and 14, there will be a 10 kilometer (6.2 miles) Volksmarch at Monmouth Battlefield State Park, Freehold. This is a non-competitive organized walk that you can begin anytime between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. There is no charge unless you want the medal for completing the walk.

On Sept. 14, the 8th Annual Colts Neck 10 Kilometer Road Race will be held at 10:30 a.m. The race will start outside Town hall on Cedar Drive.

Beginner birders of today really have it made

If you're taking up or thinking of taking up birding as a hobby, or even if you've been into it for only two or three decades, let me indulge in an old fogey's favorite frivolity.

Let me tell you how much you youngsters have going for you that beginners of my generation didn't have.

Any bird buff will agree, I think, that the first requirement for learning the names of their quarry is an adequate field guide. The next most necessary aid to increasing one's knowledge of the subject is a binocular. It permits us to multiply our findings — and, in some measure, it multiplies our need for that field guide.

The binocular I acquired early in the game — a grammar school graduation gift. The good field guide I didn't have. There was no such thing.

The binocular, I remember, was inscribed "6x30" and "Stereo Megaphone, France." It was a good glass, the most expensive gift I'd ever received, and the most prized. I was amazed at how much there was in the avian world that I'd been missing without it.

That became most impressively apparent in the first spring that I had it. I took it into a nearby woodlot and encountered a warbler migration. I sat at the top of a wooded gully, fascinated at the parade of those multicolored little creatures moving by me.

Here were birds that I knew from the bird literature available to me, and I was so surprised, somehow, that they could be out there outside my own back yard.

Now I was actually seeing them. Identifying them was something else again.

Bill Sandford

On a pad I wrote the distinctive markings of each species. At home later I checked them against the descriptions in the only book I had access to — Nellie Blanchen's "Bird Neighbors."

I was thus able to add to my bird list (it wasn't until many years later that I heard of the term "life list") the myrtle, magnolia and black-throated green warblers, redstart, ovenbird and Maryland yellowthroat. I had to wade through a lot of text to pin them down, and maybe the satisfaction was greater for being difficult, but it was a slow process.

Today's initiate seeing the same birds will whip a copy of Peterson's, or whatever modern field guide he's carrying, out of a pocket, turn to the warbler pages and find each of them — all in one place.

There's a lot more to birding than this, of course. But I can't help but think that the modern birders have it made. I had no other choice but to wait until I had a better idea of what I was looking for. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner.

and richly illustrated with good color plates, but I just didn't know about them.

Later I acquired a real field guide, Chester A. Reed's little handbook that would fit into a shirt pocket. It was, by modern standards, quite incomplete, and the color reproduction was poor.

It wasn't until 1934, when my birding had slipped into a lull, that Roger Tory Peterson revolutionized the technique of bird identification with his first field guide. Subsequent revisions have made the task increasingly easy, and we now have a choice of excellent pocket-size references, each with its own advantages.

Another handicap of my day was the lack of experienced guidance. I didn't know there were better references than mine because there was no one to tell me. I was the only serious bird watcher I knew.

There were some other kids working, at the same time, for their Boy Scout merit badges in Bird Study, but they knew less, I found, than I did. One claimed red-headed woodpecker among his finds and when I told him I'd like to see that one, too, he took me to his mother's feeding station and showed it to me.

It was a male downy — a "red-headed" to my mind because of the red patch on the back of its head.

I don't think I could be finding a red-headed woodpecker when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner.

The first requirement for the badges was to find and identify 40 species. When we went for our list, she scanned our list and promptly announced they were all failed. The book called for "species," she said, and many of the names on our list were only "varieties" of the same species.

We could list, it seems, only one warbler, one sparrow. We couldn't even add English sparrow, even though — and she obviously didn't know it — it belonged to an entirely different family.

I knew she was wrong, but a shy kid doesn't argue with an adult "expert", at least when a merit badge hangs in the balance. I had seen almost enough to stretch my list to 40 her way, and there was a flaw in her logic that helped.

She would accept only one "warbler", but redstart, yellowthroat, ovenbird and chat were countable, even though they, too, are warblers. Grackle and cowbird could be counted, but only one "blackbird". Only birds with the same last name, it seemed, were countable.

I only had to look around a little to add a gull, a tern, a duck and a heron to my list and I had it made.

Today's tyro joins the Monmouth County Audubon Society, goes on the field trips of Owl Haven, the Monmouth County Parks System or Monmouth County Audubon Society. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner.

That's the way it is. I don't think I could be finding a red-headed woodpecker when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner. I was better off than I was when I was a beginner.

Morris

Any player put on the list must sit out a season, but retains the property of the club that placed him on the list.

Morris also disclosed at a hastily called news conference that he has asked the Giants to trade him three times in training camp.

Giants General Manager George Young was in meetings yesterday and did not return a telephone call seeking comment on Morris' statements concerning his trade requests and fines.

The contract controversy between Morris and the team centers on money and whether the Syracuse back has an option year on the four-year deal he signed in 1982. Young has said the contract contains an option year, while Morris and his agent, Tom Toner, say there isn't one.

The option year really is secondary to the financial aspect of the contract.

Morris earned $143,000 last season and in the alleged option year would receive $197,000.

Toner said that amount was simply a minimum pay Morris would receive in a new contract under an addendum to the original contract, not an option-year agreement.

However, it is not the amount Morris wants to get this year. He has asked the Giants for a four-year, $3 million contract. The club reportedly has offered a four-year, $1.8 million contract.

Bragging

Chances are that they are going to wind up as the backups to veterans Bobby Johnson and Lionel Manuel because they fulfill Parcells' mania for speed on the outside. Both have displayed the ability to catch the ball, too.

Simms has thrown only 23 passes in his two previous work-outs. He completed 17 of those for 232 yards and three touchdowns. He obviously needs work under game conditions. Backup Jeff Rutledge has thrown 37 times, 14 more than Simms.

Just to show how much Morris and Adams have been missed so far, the Giants have thrown 72 times for 805 yards and run 60 times for a mere 167 yards.

The Jets, without McNeil, aren't much better. They have thrown 65 passes for 464 yards and run 51 times for 190.

Both teams are 1-1 in exhibitions going into this floodlit classic. In the preseason series, which dates back to Yale Bowl, the Giants lead 9-7-1. Because of the vagaries of National Football League scheduling, they have met only four times in regular season games and are 2-2.

Walton, who remembers when this series cost Allie Sherman his job, said, "The Giants have an excellent football team with a great defense and one of the best quarterbacks (Simms) in the league. It will be a good test for us. We hope to keep improving, but the key for us, as I've said all along, is to get ready for the season opener with Buffalo."

Walton also said he will continue to split quarterback time between Ken O'Brien and Pat Ryan. Each will probably play a half.

Parcells didn't sound too excited about the game. "It's just a preseason game," he said. "I don't enjoy playing anybody."

However, Parcells doesn't like to lose, and there are those above him who don't want to lose to the Jets. With the roster now down to a more workable 60, the first-team defense and offense will have the luxury of playing together more than in the first two exhibitions. The same obviously is true of the Jets.

There are 20 players who have been with both teams over the years. Dave Jennings, the former Giant who now punts for the Jets, will probably get the biggest cheer of the night when he drags his No. 13 on to the field. On the other side, Giant guard Chris Godfrey was a defensive tackle whom the Jets cut.

The game also features a brother act. Brad Benson is the Giants' starting left tackle on offense, and kid brother Troy is a linebacker for the Jets. Troy may get a start tonight if Lance Mehl is unable to play.

If those two native Pennsylvanians (Brad went to Penn State and Troy to Pittsburgh) class head on, it will make this "family war" complete.

QUICK KICKS: Former USFL running back Kirby Warren and rookie linebacker Pepper Johnson won't play for the Giants tonight because of injuries. Bob Thomas, acquired on waivers Wednesday, will do all the kicking. The Giants have won the last four exhibition meetings of the two teams.

The Jets lost to Green Bay, 38-14, and beat Cincinnati, 28-17. The Giants bowed to Atlanta, 31-24, and defeated Green Bay, 22-14.

Lee Rouson is the Giants' top rusher with 65 yards on 19 carries. Zeke Mowatt leads the receivers with seven catches for 112 yards. Dennis Bligen (who?) leads the Jets runner with 52 yards on 14 rushes, and Kurt Sohn tops the receivers with 11 catches for 168 yards.

Jets: Will luck be a lady?

The New York Jets will open the National Football League's regular season Sept. 7 in Buffalo. Sixteen games later, the team will end its campaign without a playoff spot in hand.

That is, unless two four-letter words stay with the Jets all season. Lady Luck.

Another pair of words — injury free — sums up the hopes and aspirations of many an NFL club looking for success. And the Jets are right up there with them.

The third week of pre-season action is upon us, and the Jets will tangle with the New York Giants tonight, for something called "bragging rights" of the Big Apple. This one, like all the exhibitions, is basically a personnel profile for both teams. The real "bragging rights" will come later.

The Jets' pre-season has brought out some bright lights (Michael Harper on kick returns, Johnny Hector's halfback potential, Bobby Humphrey's switch to defensive back) but also underscored the ingredient that will keep the New Yorkers from boiling a playoff stew — lack of depth.

Example — second-year man Al Toon is a budding NFL superstar. Should Wesley Walker stay healthy on the other side of the line and draw double coverages away from Toon, the Wisconsin product will produce Pro Bowl level results. However, behind Toon and Walker is ... Jo Jo Townsell? Kurt Sohn? Steady professionals, yes. But, game breakers?

Let's move over to tight end. Assistant coach Rich Kotite has helped mold Mickey Shuler into one of the league's finest, in both catching and blocking. However, behind Shuler stands Billy Griggs and Glenn Denison, along with Rocky Klever. The combination of injuries and lack of foot speed will plague all of these gentlemen throughout the season, no matter which stay on the roster and which don't. Point — after Shuler, the party is over.

Hector is always fun to watch when he steps in for Freeman McNeil, and Dennis Bligen has shown pre-season flashes. However, the pre-season is just that, and few are the teams who take the results seriously. Hector and Bligen both need to prove themselves when the opponents are playing their top guys the whole afternoon.

One thing in the team's favor in 1986 is the early part of the schedule. The Jets have a better-than-adequate chance of running through the first month of the campaign and coasting into New England on Oct. 12 with a 5-0 record. From then on, things could get sticky.

Following the Buffalo game on Opening Day, the Jets welcome New England and Miami to Giants Stadium. The battle with the Patriots will be played on a Thursday night, and, being the home opener, the team should be sky-high. It also helps that the Patriots knocked the Jets out of last year's playoffs enroute to a Super Bowl appearance.

Week 3 will bring the Dolphins to town. Last season, the Jets upset Miami on a Monday night. The incentive will be there to repeat, to say the least.

September's schedule will close with a date at hapless Indianapolis, which will be improved, at best, this season. An unblemished first four weeks? Go, Lady Luck, go.

The return match with Buffalo will open October, and Jim Kelly should be enough to boost the ticket sales. Looking ahead to New England the following week could present problems, but probably not against the lowly Bills.

Next is the test at New England, followed by home games against Denver and New Orleans, trips to Seattle and Atlanta, and another home tilt against Indianapolis.

Monday, Nov. 24, the Jets will travel to Miami, then return home to meet the Rams. December's affairs will include trips to San Francisco and Cincinnati sandwiched around a visit by Pittsburgh.

All in all, this seems to add up to a 10-6 mark, or possibly 11-5, which would match last season's. That could be enough for a playoff spot, again with L.L. playing a big part.

Should the lady not be a lady, the Jets could find themselves digging into the roster for help which is not always there. That would mean disaster — to the tune of 7-9 or worse.

Jet fans, strike up the band and play it loud — luck be a lady this year.

A JET FIGHTER — New York quarterback Phil Simms will be one of the Giants on hand at Giants Stadium tonight to fight it out with the New York Jets in an NFL pre-season game. While it is only an exhibition game, it is usually billed as the game for "bragging rights".

Giants-Jets game big for fringe players

By JONNI FALK
The Register

EAST RUTHERFORD — Here we go again. Two teams with New York before their nicknames play tonight for what used to be called the bragging rights to the Big Apple.

Of course, they will be playing in New Jersey, and both will be playing in their home stadium.

The New York Giants are the New Jersey hosts tonight, and the New York Jets are the visitors to Giants Stadium, where their locker room is just down the catacombs from the Giants'. Maybe the winner should be rewarded with a schedule which has no dates in December.

Kickoff is at 8 p.m. Channel 11 will show the game on tape delay, and WNEW and WMCA will have it live on radio.

This is the third preseason game, and another cut, to 50, is due Tuesday, so it is serious for the fringe players. Otherwise, it could be

Morris fined

ROCHELLE PARK (AP) — Joe Morris, who has been fined $1,000 a day during his three-week holdout, said yesterday the New York Giants have threatened to place him on a special list that will force him to sit out the season unless he returns to the team within five days.

Morris, who rushed for a club-record 1,336 yards and 21 touchdowns last season, said a letter he received at his home Thursday contained the warning and informed him he would be placed on the reserve-left camp list.

See MORRIS, Page 13A

called the "Kickoff UnClassic."

But fans in the megalopolis do wager a few bobs on this annual meeting, and those wearing blue and those wearing green have been known to be unkind to each other — unkind enough to have the security police pulling their hair out.

Coach Joe Walton, a former Giant player and coach himself, is taking the game seriously enough to finally unleash running back Freeman McNeil. McNeil has been just about as visible in the two previous exhibition (let's call them what they really are) games as the Giants' Joe Morris. Of course, Morris is AWOL from the Giants' camp.

However, in reprisal, the Giants may unleash Lionel Vital and Van Williams, a pair of household names.

More likely, Giants Coach Bill Parcells, who was never a Jet, will turn quarterback Phil Simms loose. Without Morris, and with George Adams still subpar, the Giants have no running attack. But Parcells does have Simms, and he wants to work in his two fleet rookie receivers, Solomon Miller and Vince Warren.

Yankees frustrate Andujar

By JOHN NELSON
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK — An error, a stolen base, a balk, a bloop single and the winning run was home. A typical day's work for New York Yankees basepath entrepreneur Rickey Henderson.

"Sometimes the pitchers worry so much about me, they forget about the hitter," Henderson said.

"I get on late in the game, and I'm going to steal a base. My biggest hope is my hitter gives me a pitch to run on."

The Yankees and Oakland A's were tied 2-2 last night when Henderson led off the eighth inning with a cue shot off the end of his bat down the first-base line. First baseman Carney Lansford mishandled the ball for an error, allowing Henderson to reach safely.

Henderson promptly stole second base, No. 71 on the season. Bobbing back and forth as if to go again, Henderson got A's pitched Joaquin Andujar so out of joint that he twisted his shoulders toward second without taking his foot off the rubber. Third base umpire Rich Garcia immediately called a balk, moving Henderson to third.

"I think I got him a little upset," Henderson said. "Of course, I think he got angry that I got on by an error in the first place."

Willie Randolph followed with a flare single into right field that scored Henderson, giving the Yankees a 3-2 victory.

"I'm a winner," an angered Andujar said. "I'm no loser. I don't want to lose a game like that. But that's what happens the whole year. I was waiting for that. I expected that ..."

"How many guys do I pick off at first base, and they never call them out, but they see the balk every time," Andujar said. "... If they want me out of baseball, they're going to get it. I'm retiring after next year. I'm serious. I will retire after next year."

Yankees left-hander Dennis Rasmussen, 13-4, who had lost two straight, gave way to Dave Righetti to start the ninth. Rasmussen allowed just four hits.

Andujar, 7-6, now a loser of four of his last five, allowed seven hits in going the distance for Oakland.

A's Manager Tony LaRussa admitted he saw the hotly contested balk, but added: "There's no way you can call Andujar the losing pitcher, but that's the what it's going to say tomorrow morning."

Righetti pitched the ninth and became the first in the majors with 30 saves this season. Righetti retired Jose Canseco on a pop-up for the final out, extending his hitless streak to 0-for-37.

After Mike Pagliarulo homered to lead off the third inning, the A's went ahead 2-1 on a two-run homer by Lansford in the fourth.

The Yankees tied the score with a run in the bottom of the inning on Dave Winfield's RBI single. Pagliarulo's homer was an opposite-field shot to left, his 27th of the season. The homer was only the third to the opposite field this season by the left-handed hitting Pagliarulo.

Lenn Sakata singled before Lansford homered off Rasmussen, who has given up eight homers in his last seven games.

With two outs in the Yankees fourth, Dan Pasqua doubled off the wall at the 411-foot mark in left-center and scored the tying run on a single by Winfield.

Ciambrone games at 4 sites

Tourney named for Fred Jr.

By JACK OAKLEY
The Register

RUMSON — The tourney has been running for six years, but Fred Ciambrone, Jr. died last year, prompting a name change.

Young Fred was stricken by cancer and his family has fittingly renamed its tourney the Fred Ciambrone, Jr. Memorial Softball Tournament.

The tourney will take place tomorrow at 9 a.m. at four Rumson locations, Piping Rock, Meadow Ridge East, Riverside Park and Forrestdale School.

Most of the local fans are familiar with the tourney's format, but for those who aren't they are in for a treat.

The feature attraction of the afternoon, or at least he thinks he is, is the Mouth of Fair Haven, Rumson, Sea Bright, and all surrounding points Richie (One Beer) Brister.

The fledgling politician puts his mouth to the severest test as he tries to announce the final game over the public address system.

What comes out usually is hilarious and worth the price of admission alone.

The tourney features 16 of the top softball teams in the area and the test is the arc pitch.

Some of the teams are used to the fast or modified pitch and a lot of the players have trouble with the arc.

However, tourney president Dave Ciambrone has acquiesced to some of the teams demands and has installed a one to three foot arc for the event.

If the teams match up both fast pitch or modified teams, their rules will prevail.

The preliminary round games will be of seven innings duration with a 10-run slaughter rule after five innings.

The final game will run nine innings. There was some question about Brister being able to talk for that length of time, but those thoughts were quickly dispelled.

All games will be umpired by Tri City Umpires. The association has donated its services for the event.

Refreshments will be served at tourney "head-quarters" Piping Rock Field and the goodies will be ready at noon.

Those famous succulent clams from Jayson Harvey's Sandy Hook Seafood Emporium will be one of the gourmet foods served.

And Ciambrone must be a miracle worker to get Harvey to donate the bivalves.

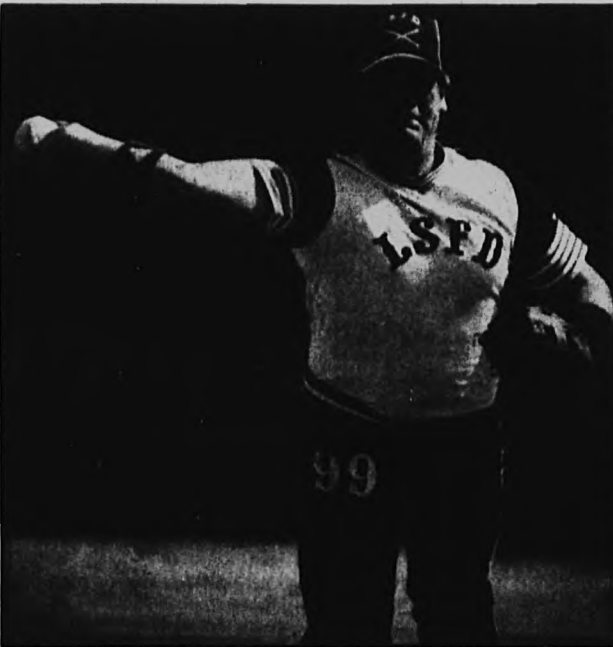

The final game will be preceded by the singing of The National Anthem by the Ciambrone's daughter, Carol and it is hoped a color guard will be present from Fort Monmouth to show its support for the Disabled American Veterans.

The DAV is the beneficiary of this year's tourney's proceeds.

There is a $10 admission cost for adults and the tariff is $5. for young adults. Children under 12 go for free.

The children will especially enjoy the release of 1,000 red, white and blue balloons signifying the start of the final game.

The 16 teams will start play at 9 a.m. and the final game is slated for "around" 1:30.

LITTLE SILVER ENTRY — Nick Hubbard, Little Silver Fire Department shortstop will be in action tomorrow morning during the Fred Ciambrone Jr. Memorial Softball Tournament. Sixteen teams will compete. The championship game is slated for 1:30 p.m. at Piping Rock Field in Rumson.

Taiwan, Tucson to meet in LL World Series finals

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Tainan, Taiwan will play Tucson, Ariz., today for the Little League World Series championship, but don't expect a bunch of nervous 11- and 12-year-olds.

Both teams stayed calm in yesterday's semifinals, coming from behind to win. Tucson beat Sarasota, Fla., 4-1, thanks to Edward DeBaca's RBI single in the fifth and Troy Kelly's two-run insurance homer in the sixth.

Tainan was within one out of being eliminated by Maracaibo, Venezuela when Yen Hsin-Ho hit a two-run home run to force extra innings, and the Taiwanese erupted for seven more in the eighth for an 11-4 victory.

"I was a little worried," admitted Yen. "But we have confidence in ourselves. I just waited for a high pitch."

"I told them to calm down and do their best," said manager Lee Ming Chen. "We were behind by three in the sixth in the Far East regional once, and we won."

DeBaca's two-out single came just in time for Tucson.

"I got a little anxious, I thought the inning was going to run out on us," said manager Sam Tullous. "We're gonna go out and get 'em tomorrow, or try to get 'em."

Kelly, who has 10 home runs in 17 tournament games, said, "We felt like we had it all the way."

Today's title game is scheduled for 4 p.m. EDT and will be televised by ABC Sports.

Tucson's Daniel Fregoso allowed just four singles and struck out seven for the victory.

Chad Wilson singled off Joey DePastino to start the fifth and was forced by Richard Barcelo. After a strikeout, Scott Foster singled and both runners moved up on a wild pitch.

DeBaca followed with a single to left, scoring Barcelo, but Foster was cut down at the plate by left fielder Kelvin Parker.

Philip Johnston led off the sixth with a walk and Kelly hit his home run up on a grassy slope beyond the left-field fence.

CUT UP YOUR CARD? R.H.

Macy wants to shed nine of its department stores, including several in New Jersey, to help absorb debts incurred from a leveraged buyout by management earlier this year. At the same time, the company said it may rename all the Bamberger's stores Macy's, but spokesmen have yet to say how they'll implement such a change and what consumers ought to do with their Bamberger's cards.

SODA SALE REFRESHED

Dr Pepper Co. was to be sold to Coca-Cola Co. until the Pepper's parent, Forstmann Little & Co., canceled the sale recently because of antitrust objections from the Federal Trade Commission. Now the sale is on again, except with a different suitor and at a lower price. This time the buyer is a group of investors including some Pepper management, Shearson Lehman Brothers, and others. The price is now $417 million, down from $470 million.

TAX REFORM FORMING

The Senate and House of Representatives reached a tentative compromise on the proposed tax reform legislation, which seeks a simplification of the current system by creating two tax brackets of 15 and 28 percent.

TAKE A POWDER

For the first time in its history, Avon will depart from the door-to-door sales approach and sell its cosmetics through department stores around the country. Avon, the nation's biggest cosmetics concern, recently announced plans to enter the department store market with lower-priced products in partnership with Liz Claiborne, but this week said it would go solo and target the high end of the market.

CONSUMER PRICES

Inflation may make a mild return, the U.S. Labor Department said. The latest Consumer Price Index report showed little change for July, but experts put small stock in the inflation barometer since higher prices at the supermarket were camouflage by a continuation of lower energy costs.

BIG, SMALL BUSINESS

National delegates to the White House Conference on Small Business, which included four Monmouth County representatives for New Jersey, wrapped up their five-day conference in Washington by voting on proposals that included two pressing for an end to the liability insurance crisis and an end to government mandates that small business owners must provide employee health benefits and paid leave for parents. All seven proposals by the New Jersey delegation were adopted and included in a list of 50 proposals to be delivered to the president and Congress.

LITTON LAWSUIT

Litton Industries sued Shearson Lehman Brothers and admitted insider trader Dennis B. Levine for $30 million, claiming that actions by the two resulted in Litton's paying more than it otherwise would have for acquiring Itek Corp. The suit is the first time a company has sued for damages in the Levine case, but it may be just the first of many.

RECORD FINE

First Commodity of Boston was kicked off the MidAmerica Commodity Exchange and fined a record $3.5 million in connection with charges that the futures broker used unethical and fraudulent sales practices in its business.

LONG ROAD AHEAD

It may be quite a while and entail considerable damage to USX Corp. before a strike by union workers there is settled. The latest indications of a long road ahead come from Pennsylvania, which this week granted unemployment compensation to the workers.

BELL IS RINGING

Following a federal appeals court ruling, one of the seven regional Bell telephone companies indicated it may begin snatching up independent phone companies in its sister and brother regions. While only Bell Atlantic Corp. said it would begin shopping for possible purchases, analysts said the other regional firms are most likely planning to do the same and just not saying anything.

SLOW TO FOLLOW

Major banks have yet to follow the Federal Reserve Board's cut in the discount rate with a similar drop in the prime lending rate charged to preferred customers. The Fed's move comes as confidence in the economy grows cloudy because of the persistent trade deficits and record federal deficit of $230 billion.

The severe shortage in hotel & motel rooms in Monmouth seems to be a thing of the past

BOOM

BY FRANCES LYNAM

When a Shrewsbury business tried to find hotel accommodations for prospective buyers of its company last year, it learned more about the state of the hotel and motel industry in Monmouth County than it bargained for.

Eager to impress some prominent Midwestern investors interested in a possible takeover, the company first tried to find accommodations for the group at hotels closest to the company. But when those establishments and just about every hotel in the area were booked, the president's secretary, who was new, unwittingly made arrangements at a low-budget hotel — complete with vibrating beds, ceiling mirrors and colored lights.

While it didn't hurt chances for the takeover — the investors later ribbed the secretary about the mishap — the incident underscores what until now has been a severe shortage of hotel and motel rooms in Monmouth County.

"I'd be willing to bet that anyone coming down here last summer without a reservation probably ended up sleeping in his car," says Terence P. Ryan, general manager of the Molly Pitcher Inn, Red Bank.

Today that industry is changing here. The same shortage that sent visiting businessmen to hotels in New York City has prompted others to plan more than 1,000 new hotel and motel rooms in the county. That will more than double the number of rooms that were available as recently as last year.

Fact is, area hoteliers say visitors to Monmouth County now have a wider choice of hostilities than at any other time in county history.

By the end of 1987, there will be new hotel rooms in virtually every region of the county.

What it means

The upshot is that the hotel boom will result in numerous benefits to consumers, but more competition and even some headaches for hoteliers.

For consumers, the increase of rooms will make booking easier. Both AT&T Corp. and Charles of the Ritz Group Ltd., both in Holmdel, have said that while they previously had to find rooms in New York City to house visiting associates, they now use the Oyster Point Hotel in Red Bank.

The variety of establishments, too, has significantly improved. Before the boom, most hotels offered limited service and mid-priced accommodations. Now the range is greater, with both upscale rooms and larger, more modern limited-service hotels.

Overall, hotel rooms also may be more attractive and offer better services to area residents than previously; heavier competition has made hotels aggressive. Right now many are busy updating their decors, rewriting their restaurant menus and improving their cocktail lounges.

Finally, the hotel managers indicated that an ongoing boom would help keep room rates down.

But the prospect of having to keep rates down has some hotel managers concerned that a continued growth in the local hotel market could eventually cut into the bottom line — profits.

"Everyone knows competition is good because it keeps us on our toes — it means cleaner rooms, more modern facilities," says Spiro Pappas, general manager of Howard Johnson, Middletown, which has spent more than $100,000 annually for the past two to three years on renovations.

"But of course we're concerned, too. We raised our rates only 5 percent this year, even though our costs went up more than that."

Seeing that more competition was on the way, the Tinton Falls Hilton Inn last year organized a complete overhaul of the hotel, lounge and dining area, which it just finished for a total cost of $4 million to $5 million.

"What does (the new competition) mean? It means we all have to work a little harder. The most important thing is to stabilize the customer base," says Barbara Hummel, sales director for the Tinton Falls Hilton.

Yearly contracts with area businesses for their conferences and rooms for their visiting associates are the best way to do that, she added.

But the Hilton hasn't stopped there. To get the word out that the renovations are complete, Hummel has set her sights on bringing more local residents into the hotel by offering special packages including dinner at the hotel, where participants leave their cars and take a bus for a concert at the Garden State Arts Center. After the concert, they're invited in for coffee and dessert at the hotel.

"We want to get as many people in here as we can to taste our food, see the new hotel and take advantage of what we have," Hummel says.

Help for blighted cities

The presence of a large and well-established hotel sometimes help improve an entire business community, which is the basis for revitalization plans in two municipalities in the county.

Asbury Park's $550 million waterfront development project virtually hinges on the success of the 264-room Berkeley Carteret, says Toni Vaccaro, hotel spokeswoman and city councilwoman.

In Long Branch, a major revitalization project has been planned around

Bonds will see effects of rate cut

Interest rates cuts, such as this past Wednesday's cut in the discount rate, have a direct impact on both the price and yields that bonds offer investors. A rate drop will cause the price of bonds to increase and its current yield to decrease.

This concept may seem confusing but if you invest in our plan to invest in bonds you should know about bond yields. Municipal bonds, for example, are extremely attractive right now. One can currently buy a tax free municipal and receive a higher yield than taxable Treasury bonds are now offering. Yields are the yardstick you must use if you want to compare returns on several prospective bond investments.

There are several types of yields. The simplest to calculate is current yield. It is the annual interest payment (the face value times the coupon rate), divided by the bond's price. When you buy a bond at par, its face value, its current yield equals its coupon rate. For example, the current yield on a $1,000 per value bond paying 6 percent equals .06 times $1,000, or 6 percent.

Once the market price of a bond changes, the yield changes, too. For instance, if interest rates have dropped by the time you decide to buy that 6 percent bond, you might have to pay, say, $1,125. So the current yield would be $60/$1,125, or 5.33 percent.

A more useful yield figure — because it takes into account capital gains or losses on a bond — is the yield to maturity. Using the example above of the bond selling for $1,125 — and assuming it is a 20-year bond — its yield to maturity would be 5.06 percent. The yield to maturity is lower than the current yield because at maturity you will get back only $1,000 for the bond, but you paid $1,125. So you will suffer a capital loss.

The yield-to-maturity computation is more complicated than the one for current yield. You can do it yourself with the following series of simple arithmetic calculations:

- Subtract par value ($1,000) from purchase price ($1,125). Result: $125.
- Divide $125 by the maturity (20 years). Result: $6.25.
- Subtract $6.25 from annual interest ($60). Result: $53.75 (Write down this number.)
- Add par value ($1,000) to purchase price ($1,125). Result: $2,125.
- Divide $2,125 by 2. Result: $1,062.50.
- Divide $53.75 (from step 3) by $1,062.50. Result: 5.06 percent, the yield to maturity.

The yield to call is especially important to determine when you pay a premium over par value for a bond. Most corporate and municipal bonds are callable, which means the issuer may retire them before their maturity date, generally after a specified number of years after issue, by paying either the par value or a stated premium above par. Issuers usually do call high-coupon bonds when interest rates drop so that they can then issue new bonds at the lower rates. Calling a bond shortens its maturity, which means your yields to maturity declines.

To do a yield-to-call calculation, use the number of years after which the bond can be called instead of the actual maturity in Step 2. This will tell you what you will actually earn if the bond is called. If the bond in the example were callable after 10 years, your yield call would be only 4.47 percent.

To make sure you clearly understand what rate of return you can expect on your bond investments, ask these questions about any bond you're considering:

- What is the yield to maturity? (Don't settle for the current yield.)
- What is the earliest call date?
- What is the yield to call?
- What is the call price? (If it's less than the current price of the bond, you could lose principal.)

Beneficial Corp. considers sale

By PAMELA BROWNSTEIN
AP Business Writer

NEWARK — Beneficial Corp., the 72-year-old consumer finance outfit that is considering putting itself up for sale, should attract several suitors, especially those angling for a piece of the interstate banking market, financial analysts said yesterday.

Finn Casperson, chairman and chief executive of Beneficial, one of the nation's largest independent consumer finance companies, said other moves such as the sale of assets also were being considered.

But analysts said a sale of the whole company would be most likely.

They estimated that the company, based in Wilmington, Del., and with corporate offices in Peapack, could command $1.3 billion to $1.9 billion, based on the assumption that each of the company's 22 million shares sold for $60 to $90.

Beneficial's stock, traded on the New York Stock Exchange, shot up yesterday, the day after the company's announcement. The stock opened at $73 a share, up $28.50 from Thursday's close.

With 1,100 consumer lending offices throughout the country, the company could be an attractive acquisition for banks, other financial institutions or companies seeking to enter that business, and insurance companies.

"It would be perfectly logical to use as a base to move into interstate banking," said Dorothy Fels, an analyst with the investment brokerage firm of Parker-Hunter Inc. in Pittsburgh.

Fred Meinke, a vice president at E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. in New York, added that Beneficial's second-mortgage lending program will be especially attractive under the proposed tax reform bill.

He also said that not many financial institutions have become as involved in second mortgages as Beneficial.

The other large, nationally known consumer finance company, Household International Inc. of Prospect Heights, Ill., has taken measures to stave off buyers.

One problem area for Beneficial has been its property and casualty reinsurance business, which it has been shutting down.

When Casperson announced that a sale was among several moves being considered, he also said $260 million would be added before taxes to reserves for reinsurance losses.

Meinke estimated that the problem could lead to a $50 million loss this year.

The reinsurance problem stems from huge liability awards and settlements throughout the insurance industry that were not anticipated when Beneficial entered the business 10 years ago.

The reinsurance mess was "the wagging tail that has dragged the company down for the last few years," said Mary Vanderverter Bousman, an analyst with C.L. King & Associates in Albany, N.Y.

Casperson said he hoped the reserve will "clear the deck," and analysts said it would make Beneficial attractive to potential buyers.

Bousman noted that the company has $100 million in untaken investment portfolio gains that could offset part of the reserve contribution.

Claire Percarpio, an analyst with Duff & Phelps Inc. in Chicago, said new owners could improve the company's "mediocre management."

In the 1970s, she said, Beneficial made a series of acquisitions, only to end up selling some of them in the 1980s because the company did not understand those businesses or could not integrate them into the company's main lines of business.

Those businesses included Western Auto Supply, a merchandising subsidiary, and Spiegel Inc., a mail-order catalogue business.

Casperson, who announced in a letter to shareholders that Beneficial is reviewing its structure, said the board decided that some key executives would receive 7 percent of any price above $70 per share.

He added that the company had received several inquiries but he declined to say how many or identify the industries of the potential suitors.

Several weeks ago, Alleghany Corp., a New York-based diversified investment company, informed the Federal Trade Commission it intended to acquire up to 15 percent of Beneficial's stock.

Alleghany did not return a telephone call to its headquarters yesterday.

Analysts said other likely suitors include large banks, insurance companies, and credit companies.

Social Security

By EILEEN F. SHERIDAN
District Manager

I just received a check from Prudential Insurance Company concerning my claim under Medicare. It says under a new law, they reduced my Medicare payment by 1 percent. Would you explain why?

Public Law 99-177, commonly known as the Gramm-Rudman Hollings Act, requires that payment for all Medicare services received from March 1, 1986, through Sept. 30, 1986, be reduced by 1 percent. This cut affects services from all providers, including physicians, hospitals, suppliers and laboratories. You, as a Medicare beneficiary, will not be affected if the provider has accepted assignment for Part B Medicare services. In these cases, you will continue to be responsible for 20 percent of the approved charges after the $75 deductible has been met. The deductible is not affected by the 1 percent cut. However, the Medicare carrier's payment of 80 percent of the approved charges will be reduced by 1 percent. You cannot be charged the 1 percent difference. If assignment was not accepted by the provider, you would continue to be responsible for the full charge while the Medicare payment to you will be reduced by 1 percent.

Can I return to work and still get disability benefits? I think I might be able to hold down a part-time job, but I don't want to lose my benefits if I find out that I can't.

Social Security has what we call a trial work period. It's for disabled people, such as yourself, who want to try to return to work. During your trial work period, you can return to work and earn any amount without affecting your benefits. The trial work period lasts for 9 months, and if at the end of that time you are able to successfully return to work, you'll continue to receive benefits for an additional three-month adjustment period. However, if during the 9-month trial work period you find that you can't return to work successfully, you'll continue to receive your full benefits. But remember, your trial work period lasts only as long as you are still disabled. If you recover from your disability during your trial work period, your benefits will end after a three-month adjustment period.

I've been getting Social Security retirement benefits for several years. But recently my former boss asked me to come back to work on a part-time basis. Frankly, I think I'd enjoy the change. Will I lose my Social Security benefits if I do?

That all depends on how much you earn in your part-time job. If you're under 65, you can return to work and earn up to $5,670 without losing any of your Social Security. If you're between 65 and 70, you can earn up to $7,800. If you exceed these limits, which we call the exempt amounts, $1 in benefits will be withheld for every $2 of earnings over the applicable amount. If you're over 70 or over, there is no limit and you can earn any amount without losing any of your benefits.

I have my check sent to my bank with direct deposit. Will I still get other correspondence from Social Security?

Yes, you will. And that's why we advise you to keep Social Security up to date with your mailing address. Then, when we send out notices and other important information, you'll be sure you receive your information right on time.

I recently received a letter saying my disability case would be reviewed. Could you explain what it's all about?

Periodically, we review almost all cases to make sure those who get disability payments still meet the requirements for them. Basically, we want to verify that you're still disabled and that you haven't returned to work.

I'm nearing 65 and I'm wondering if I'll have to apply for Medicare?

If you already receive Social Security benefits, you'll automatically be enrolled in Medicare when you reach 65. However, if you haven't retired yet, you should sign up for Medicare at a Social Security office two to three months before you reach 65.

Hotels

the proposed 450-room Hilton hotel along that city's boardwalk. While the Hilton application is just going through the Planning Board now, already many stores and businesses have been relocated based on plans for the Hilton.

Other municipalities that aren't blighted hope a new hotel will boost their appeal to relocating businesses. The borough of Eatontown, for instance, has said the 208-room Sheraton Meridian under construction in its industrial park may lure companies to the area, since it will be convenient for them to hold conferences close to their company headquarters.

Where they are Nationwide, the bread and butter of a hotel or motel business is the corporate traveler. Of the $42 billion revenues generated by hostels in 1985, 68 percent was from the business community.

As a result, most of the new hotel rooms going up in the county are close to industrial parks and growing business districts. In the north and east sections of Monmouth County, new hotels include the just-finished 58-room Oyster Point Hotel in Red Bank, the 208-room Sheraton Meridian hotel under construction in the Eatontown industrial park, the 124-room Appleton Inn being built in Tinton Falls near the Garden State Parkway and the newly refurbished Tinton Falls Hilton Inn, which is adding 47 rooms and is also near the parkway.

In western Monmouth County, both the Sheraton Gardens Freehold and the Freehold Motor Inn plan to add 50 rooms each. Both are within minutes of new corporate developments that list Merrill Lynch & Co., the nation's largest brokerage house, and many other prominent companies as tenants.

Further south, the 254-room Berkeley Carteret in Asbury Park opened its doors a year ago this month following major renovations.

Hotel lounges seeing rebirth

By FRANCES LYNAM
The Register

It appears as though the prevailing theme of hotel cocktail lounges these days could be "... where once there was dark, now there is light."

While no one seems to know exactly why, area hotels are nevertheless starting to put more emphasis — and money — into their cocktail lounges.

Perhaps realizing the sizable amount of business they could drum up from a successful lounge, hotels have recently been transforming their bars from dark, sometimes dreary drinking rooms to a new and brighter, California-style decor with heavy use of light wood, glass, plants and brass.

"We want people to come in for a nice evening with their friends, for socializing and dining out," said Joanne Cottrell, spokeswoman for the Oyster Point Hotel in Red Bank during a recent tour. Nestled on the Navesink River, the hotel lounge features paisley brown wall coverings, a long, slow curving bar and a deck overlooking the river.

The Tinton Falls Hilton, too, has replaced its dark green walls and paintings of horses and the racetrack with white-painted and glass walls. They've pulled the old carpeting, too, and installed beige ceramic tiling. Ceiling fans and small palm plants finish the picture.

Perhaps an outgrowth of a more health-conscious society, the "social" emphasis, too, is moving away from drinking. More often than not, cocktail lounges are starting to offer more than just drinks.

Many now have music video shows playing on television screens around the lounge, along with dance floors and a disc jockey. Also, there is more emphasis than before that the cocktail lounge is also a place for eating. Currently, many of the lounges have expanded to a full range of light snacks such as quiche, potato skins and other delectables.

"The point is that the business traveler who's gotten off a plane and doesn't want a full meal can still get something good to eat," says Barbara Hummel, sales director of the Hilton Inn at Tinton Falls.

'Hillbillies' boost wine cooler sales

By GEORGE LAZARUS
Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO — For a marketer, happiness is getting customers to hum your jingle or ask for your product by referring to a particular advertisement.

At one major Chicago spirits retailer, three or four customers almost daily in recent months have asked "for that wine cooler with the two hillbillies in it."

The "hillbillies," of course, are the fictional characters Frank Bartles and Ed Jaymes, who in clever, homespun television commercials, have been hawking the Bartles & Jaymes wine cooler for E&J Gallo Winery. And with extraordinary success.

In early 1985, Gallo got into wine coolers, a business that pretty much had been dominated by California Cooler.

The Bartles & Jaymes campaign, created by Hal Riney & Partners in San Francisco, has been a winner in consumers' minds, at checkout counters and in ad competitions. A recent survey by Video Storyboard Tests, a firm that tracks performance of TV commercials, finds Bartles & Jaymes as one of the six most popular (the others being Pepsi, Coke, McDonald's, Jell-O with Bill Cosby and Miller Lite).

With megabuck ad spending ($35 million a year) by Gallo and the firm's well-oiled distribution system, Bartles & Jaymes has unseated California Cooler in the No. 1 position in wine coolers.

Pacemaker company sees healthier days

By SUZY HAGS
Orlando Sentinel

Cardiac Control Systems Inc. began in 1980 with a little money — $44,800 — and a big idea — to design and make superior pacemakers to keep human hearts beating. Years before it could begin saving lives or even begin manufacturing, Cardiac Control struggled to survive.

Paying bills always was a problem. There were a few months when executive vice president Simon Fuger wondered whether the company could pay employees. "Fear of going belly up is a great motivator to get things done," he said. "We never considered bankruptcy or closing. We never thought negatively."

Like thousands of young companies nationwide trying to stay in business and countless entrepreneurs trying to start a company, Cardiac Control has gotten money to operate from investors. The pacemaker manufacturer, which is based near Daytona Beach, Fla., recently culminated its fund-raising efforts by selling stock to the public for the first time.

Besides receiving a badly needed infusion of $1.8 million last month from the public stock sale, Cardiac Control profoundly changed its corporate life.

The company now is subject to complex regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Cardiac Control must send quarterly and annual financial statements to shareholders and the SEC — a costly and time-consuming activity. Anyone who chooses to can buy Cardiac Control stock and become a co-owner of the company.

Last year, 499 other U.S. companies went public by selling stock valued at $7.9 billion.

Cardiac Control's experience of going public exemplifies what a small, unprofitable company encounters.

By 1983, when Cardiac Control decided to convert to public ownership, it had raised almost $4 million by selling stock and warrants to private investors.

That amount enabled the company to hire about 30 employees, including scientists; design a pacemaker; contract with Harris Corp. and Raytheon Co. to build electronic circuits; and begin seeking Food and Drug Administration approvals.

In weak financial health, Cardiac Control had no sales or profit. The company had spent $3.8 million by 1983 but still did not have a product on the assembly line. "If you needed a nickel to get around the world," Fuger said, "we couldn't have gotten across the street." More money, about $6 million, was needed to begin Bankers were not interested in a fledgling company, said Dr. Charles Del Marco, Cardiac Control president. Venture capitalists were ruled out because they sometimes demand control of the company. Stock and management in return for financial support.

In fact, a power play by venture capitalists had prompted Del Marco, cardiologist, and two other executives to leave a competing pacemaker manufacturer, Intermedics Inc. in Angleton, Texas, in the late 1970s. Those officials eventually founded Cardiac Control.

Fuger contacted about 100 brokerages nationwide between early 1983 and August 1985. "We dialed and smiled," he recalled, but the typical responses were "You're too premature," "We don't want to do it" and "We don't like the idea."

Troubles in the pacemaker industry prejudiced brokerages against Cardiac Control as much as the company's instability did, said the company's lawyer Randy Fields of Akerman, Senterfitt & Eidson in Orlando, Fla.

That money enabled the company to establish a headquarters, hire 25 more people and begin manufacturing. Cardiologist and Cardiac Control stockholder Dr. William Munro implanted the company's first pacemaker in a patient in Hollywood in 1984.

Cardiac Control had received most of the final FDA approvals by August 1981. The company was beginning to make and sell pacemakers regularly. Revenue was starting to trickle in, but more money was needed to launch a full-scale sales campaign with full-time salesmen. Fugate could foresee running out of money in another six months.

Going public was becoming more important because continuing to sell stock to private investors was risky, Fields said. The company sells stock privately too often for the same reason, the SEC can declare those sales to be one public offering and force the company to repay investors, he said. About six months to one year should pass between private offerings, he said, but the SEC considers other factors, such as the kind of securities sold and the purpose of the private offerings.
