As the curtain rose on September eighth, the students and faculty of Red Bank Regional prepared for inevitable changes. For a time the opening of a state supported performing arts program seemed in jeopardy, but the Board of Education firmly supported this innovation. The school subsequently welcomed new students from other districts, underclassmen, teachers and an advisor to oversee the operation of the arts program. It seems now as if "There's Just No Business Like School Business."

Performance Based Curriculum Prepares Students for Future

Business companies hired seniors to work through the Cooperative Vocational Education Program (COE). By learning firsthand experience in different facets of employment, students understood that the key to their future begins with proper training early in life. For college-bound students, the discussion of future career plans, SATs, colleges and course selections seemingly never ended.

As seniors began counting the days to graduation, participation in extracurricular activities helped the days go by faster. Pep Week got off to a slow start, but by the end of the week "the audience" was "psyched up" for the first football game. During these few moments we forgot formalities, relieved daily pressures and maintained our sanity.

As for the school's curriculum it enables a student to face a world of college or jobs. The Basic Skills Improvement Program (BISP) helped students to increase their reading, writing and math skills. Vocational classes, such as Building Trades, prepared students for carpentry or construction careers. The future seems bright for Red Bank Regional students, the opportunities are endless and the rewards will be great.

After endless hours of practicing a new half-time show, new cheering routines and offensive plays, the first football game arrived. The "Buc" marching band, the cheerleading squads and the varsity football team were "psyched up" for the season opener. The newly built concession stands were ready for business. The anticipation from the new season drew huge crowds of parents, visitors and Red Bank Regional students.

Participation in various clubs helped students face responsibility. The Art Club began this year to encourage the development of young artistic talent. The Log faced many early deadlines, but pulled together to make this year's yearbook. Hard work began only after the conception of workable ideas.

Activities provided both students and parents with opportunities to become involved in events in and out of school. Working to make money for various uses united students in the senior class and parents in the Booster Club. School spirit brought the whole student body together during Pep Week, while the Junior Play helped the Class of 1985 work together. Students with a particular interest also had activities just for them. Science-oriented students became involved as Lab Assistants and those with a flair for the dramatic participated in the Haunted House. Whatever activities the students and the community participated in, their purposes were always tied together by school business.

Juniors Chosen as Class With Most "Pep"

Pep week "psyched" the students for the sports season as well as reunified the student body after the summer. Students showed spirit and support for the school by dressing up to fit the day's theme.

The student council brought everyone in the school together as one unit through promotion of the week on bulletin boards and through announcements. They also encouraged each class to participate separately by recognizing the best spirited class, the juniors, at the pep rally.

Each day, beginning with Monday, September 19, had a representative style. Monday was "punk day" with spray-painted hair and wild sunglasses. Tuesday brought out stripes and solids together as "clash day." Wednesday, twin day, brought friends together. Thursday was "class day." Seniors carried out the summer as beach bums; juniors wore their clothes inside out; sophomores were a throwback to the sixties as hippies; and freshmen dressed up. Friday culminated the week with the traditional "maroon and white day."

Friday afternoon all the students gathered in the gym to get rowdy. Allison Reid, a senior, summed up the feeling when she said, "Go for the glory, Bucs!"

Cheerleaders and twirlers showed spirit by wearing uniforms throughout the day and by performing to the accompaniment of the band. The fall sports teams donned their uniforms as representation of the sports program and the school.

The spirit continued to flow as the football team members were introduced. Mr. Steven Johnson, however, a history teacher and tennis coach, commented, "I wish more students and teachers would get involved." Whatever way the students showed their spirit, be it by dressing up, wearing their uniform, or just by cheering at the games, they did it with style and enthusiasm!

New Concession Stand Provides Comfort and Profit

The Class of 1984 was fortunate to be the first to use the new concession stand constructed by Mr. Booth's students. This new stand was much larger than the previous year's stand and allowed all business to be carried on from inside the stand. The addition of the permanent building made the old stand available for use on the visitors' side.

Operating the stands was a group of dedicated seniors who gathered early on Saturday mornings to prepare the food the hungry football fans would purchase later in the day. The group loaded the van with hot dogs, candy, and coffee pots and set off to ready the two concession stands.

The main stand sold candy, cookies, and soda, and such hot foods as coffee, hot dogs, and hot chocolate. The visitors' side sold only cold food. Mary Tobin, senior class vice-president and coordinator of the visitors' stands, said, "Running the stand was a big responsibility, but I had fun and enjoyed helping earn the money my class needs."

Despite the loss of executive board members Tracey Bruns, Patte Steele, and Judy Williams to the band, Class Advisor Mr. Lock believed, "The united effort of the executive board and student body enabled the Senior Class to raise over $5000 during the season."

The spirit and dedication of the seniors who worked on those crisp fall Saturdays was appreciated by the senior executive board and those who gave their time remembered the fun and enthusiasm created by working together.

Science Labs Prepared by Assistants

The lab assistants carried their tradition of hard work for the science department into their seventh year. Ten students participated in this vital science program.

The lab assistants' basic functions were to prepare and set up labs and complete paperwork. They saved the science teachers time by running off ditos, correcting tests, taking inventories, and assisting students who needed help. Mr. Pierre Layton, the program organizer stated, "The lab assistants make the program work."

Acceptance to the program required good grades, especially in math and science, and a favorable application and interview. Selection was a difficult process. Only four students were chosen from approximately sixty applications.

The lab assistants were required to give up either their study or their lunch four days a week. In return, the students received a bonus in their science grades. Senior Beth Forys, who was in the program three years said, "I have enjoyed working as an assistant. It helped me decide to study science in college." Sophomore Sue Kearney, a first year lab assistant, when asked how she felt about the responsibility of the job, commented, "The work is interesting. It makes me appreciate science more."

Lab assistants, whether or not they planned on a career in a science-related field, felt the program was worthwhile. Fulfilling their responsibility to both the science teachers and the entire science department gave the students a feeling of satisfaction.

Drama Students Haunt Library

On Saturday, October 29, 1983, interested students participated in a Haunted House at the Monmouth County Library in Shrewsbury. The students signed up in drama classes to take part in the activity.

The students were given scripts to learn and worked together to perfect their parts. Senior Patti Steele said, "The program was set up well and the sets were nicely constructed beforehand." The day of the program the students dressed up in ghoulish costumes to scare the visitors. The Haunted House was open for six hours and was quite popular. Over 1291 guests went through the house in the time it was open.

In a letter of thanks for the students' help, Charlotte Lesser, Coordinator of Children's Services at the library, said, "It was fun but a lot of hard work."

Holocaust Studies Influence Junior Play

In keeping with a state requirement that the Holocaust be taught to students at all grade levels, the Class of 1985 chose the drama The Diary of Anne Frank as their Junior Play. The play, presented on November 17, 18, and 19, 1983, illustrated the difficulties the Frank family encountered while they were hiding in war-time Amsterdam. The drama was adapted from the diary Anne kept during her years in hiding.

Directed by Mrs. Renee Maxwell, the play presented some challenges usually not tackled in a play. The complete hiding space of the Frank family and their friends was open for the audience to see; therefore, the actors were required to be on stage and in character throughout the presentation. Mrs. Maxwell stated that it was "a difficult play acted beautifully and with great sensitivity. They understood and appreciated the sufferings of the Frank family." Assisting Mrs. Maxwell as student directors were Mary Riegleman and Michael Spiller.

Technical difficulties were tackled by Mr. Richard Spencer with Francis Hankins and Matt Held as student tech directors. They were required to build a two level set and produce many lighting and sound cues. Bill Joo handled the play's sound.

The cast featured Stephanie Lessom as Anne, James Gans as Mr. Frank, Tara Burke as Mrs. Frank, Sandy Giordano as Mrs. Van Dann, Mark Eulner as Mr. Van Dann, Jordi Ash as Peter, Lisa Clark as Margot, Melissa Levine as Miep, Doug Standley as Mr. Kraler, and Greg Brooks as Mr. Dussel.

The cast and crew overcame the difficulties of a different kind of play to perform a successful show. In addition to the night performances the cast gave a special matinee for the freshman and some area eighth grade students to make them aware of the impact of the Holocaust on modern history.

Twenty-two Colleges Visit College Fair

The College Fair, Wednesday, November 9, 1983, was the setting for twenty-two New Jersey colleges to confer with juniors and seniors considering attending college. Two of the various colleges, Rutgers University and Princeton University, provided students with an opportunity to look at the state's most prestigious schools.

The fair was open to juniors, in preparation for their junior conferences, and for seniors who had last-minute questions to ask before application deadlines or to get a last look at other college opportunities. Mrs. Sharon Hackett, organizer of the event, was pleased with the results. She believed, "The students are more receptive every year."

Senior Peter Culos felt the fair was "a chance to compare colleges without having to leave the school." In addition, to upperclassmen, the fair was open to the community. Mrs. Hackett said, "It was an ideal opportunity for parents to learn about colleges firsthand." The opportunity for parents to be involved was a unique feature of this year's college fair.

“Breaking” in a New Beat

“Egg roll,” “inch-worm,” “centipede” “crab,” “3-,” and “moon walk” — not words from outer space — or even from the garden — but terms used in the new form of dancing called breakdancing. These moves were only a sampling of those performed at the breakdance contest during the highly successful Christmas Dance.

The dance, held on Friday, December 9, 1983, and sponsored by the Class of 1984, far exceeded the hopes that were held by the class executive board. The dance netted an overwhelming $800 for the senior class treasury. Chief organizer of the event, Senior Representative-at-Large Judie Williams felt, “As this was the first time that the executive board of 1984 attempted to organize any function of this sort, I feel that the outcome of the Christmas Dance was fantastic.”

Midway through the evening the floor was cleared for the contest. Each contestant took the floor in turn and performed their dance. The winners were chosen by the reaction of the crowd. Four-year-old David Moltrie of Red Bank captured the first place spot.

The undeniable success of the Christmas Dance was attributed to the high attendance, the music, and the contest. The executive board was prompted by the turnout to plan another dance and Judie Williams could “only hope the next dance would be half as successful!”

Howe Leads Crew Behind Closed Curtains

Do you remember "Anne Frank" or "Anything Goes"? Chances are you remember who played the lead parts, but how about the set, the lighting, or the sound effects? The stage crew was a vital part of the school shows, but they have received little credit. With the addition of the Performing Arts School, stage crew became nearly a year-round activity.

The duties of the technical crew expanded to include the Junior and Senior Plays as well as the Variety Show, the Performing Arts School, including the Open House, and also summer dance groups. The demands for the stage by various groups required the tech crew to construct all sets within a two week period.

The tech crew was led by Mr. Richard Spencer through the first half of the year then advised by Mr. Alex Howe. Student directors included Peter Culos as Senior Art Director, Senior Stage Directors Ed Flego and Shawn Acheson, and Junior Director Francis Hankins.

Senior Ed Flego felt "the strong foundation built under Mr. Spencer will continue under Mr. Howe and the hard work of the tech crew will continue through all upcoming shows."

Wizards, Faculty, and Alumni Help Booster Club

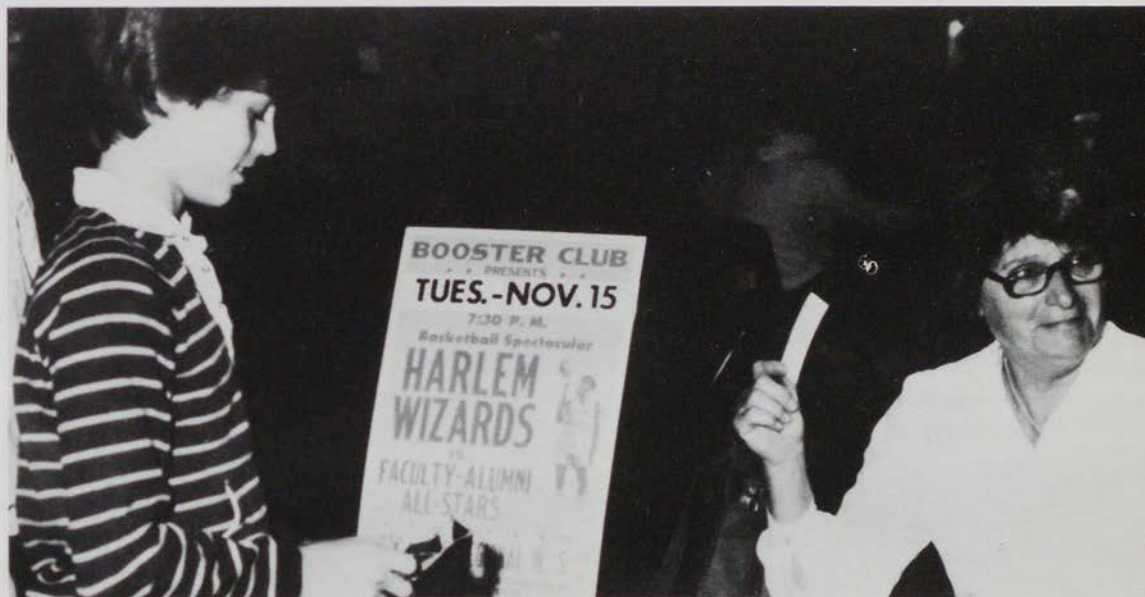

"Number 82, the ball's on you and he gets two!" was the repetitious foul call by the referee during the Harlem Wizards vs. Faculty-Alumni fund-raising game for the Booster Club. The Harlem Wizards, a touring comedian basketball team, contacted Mr. George Fallon, Athletic Director, last year to participate in a benefit game. The Wizards, formed in 1962, beat the Buc Faculty-Alumni 103-59 before a very excited audience. The Wizards boast a 3,001 wins record against only 10 losses.

Touring with their agent Howard Davis, the Wizards' team included: "Question Mark" Nate Harris, Smitty Johnson, Ken "Spider" Webb and Tex Barnwell. They began the game with an "Around-the-world" routine similar to the Harlem Globetrotters. They also performed a half-time routine named "Catch the Ball" with children from the audience. The Wizards performed hook shots, "dunks" and "slams" to the cheers from the crowd. "Snap-back" rims were put up prior to the game because of the intensity and power of the Wizards.

Coached by Mr. George Fallon, the Buc team included faculty members Mr. Nick Pizzuli, Mr. Bill Kunze, Mr. Steven Johnson and Mr. Mike Iannucci. The Alumni members included Gerry Agee, Sam Saunders, Dan O'Hern, Anthony Stothoff, Brian Maith and Anthony Saunders. Sportsmanship plays were made by Mr. Arnold Booth, an alumni and staff member, and alumni Mark Williams.

In the end the game created a sense of unity among the faculty and former students. Mr. Fallon remarked "It was very enjoyable. Many people in attendance were very delighted with a fun-filled evening. I'd like to thank the faculty and former players who participated, as well as the Booster Club."

Performing Arts School "Thrills" Audience

The lights went down; the audience quieted. Suddenly a spotlight beamed across the stage. No this was not the opening of a Broadway play, but the debut of The Performing Arts School. The Open House, January 26, 1984, allowed the community to look into the newest addition to R.B.R.H.S.

Each division of the school, creative writing, drama, dance, and television production, had a block of the program to show its accomplishments during the first semester.

First on stage was the creative writing department performing "The Writer's Block." The writers shared their work by interpreting them onstage. They were featured under spotlight reciting and sometimes adding acting to give full understanding to their thoughts.

"The Acting Lab" followed with an ensemble and three monologues. The ensemble created a dramatic mood by having each participant describe their feelings about theatre. Three members of the drama class, Stephanie Lessom, Sandy Giordano, and Jennifer Woods, gave the feeling of a real show through monologues.

The dance class brought the lights up next. They depicted three divisions of dance — ballet, modern, and jazz. The climax of the dancing exhibition was the performance of Michael Jackson's "Thriller" featuring Jami Josephson.

Following the onstage portion of the show was the airing of the T.V. production majors' tapes in the commons along with a tour of the school and refreshments.

As the curtain rises, the stage is seen as a Buccaneer playing field, court or track, with the characters, our dedicated athletes, waiting in the wings, the sidelines, ready for their entrances. The proud actors in their costumes of maroon and white prepare themselves to entertain the audience, the fans, in the stadium, by delivering their best performances. During the production, the game, the plot thickens with Buccaneer athletes stealing, capturing, scoring, and proving their importance to Red Bank Regional's spirit of victory. While each individual character, athlete, displays his other personality, and talents, the entire cast, our Buccaneer team is well-deserving of its standing ovation from the jubilant fans.

Taylor Unbeaten in Shore Conference

Senior Tim Taylor, known for setting an unbeaten Shore Conference record in the 400 meters with a time of 52 seconds, led an inexperienced boys' track team that was dominated by athletes who performed their personal bests as a result of hard work and extra effort.

The team opened up the season with a 47-83 loss to Red Bank Catholic, but during the meet, Taylor was able to jump 19 feet in the long jump and run an 11.3 second time in the 100 meter dash. Junior Dominic Fazzarro also added points with his time of 24 seconds in the 200 meter event. The team continued the season with a 17-126 loss to Long Branch. But, in the meet, Taylor won the 400 meters in 52 seconds, a new Shore Conference record. Sophomore Ronny Forehand placed second in the long jump with a distance of 18 feet.

The team was led by Taylor, senior Joe Powers, and senior Oscar Johnson. During the team's only win over Shore Regional, an entire team effort led to a 76-55 victory. Junior Keith Torchia won the pole vault at 9 feet 6 inches. Fazzarro, sophomore Jim Senkeleski, Johnson, and Taylor won the mile relay.

Coach Herbert Reed gave his feelings on the team, "I hope the individuals who ran track will continue to gravitate to better track. Our strength seems to be in individuals rather than team effort."

Other individual leaders for the team were senior Frank Terry (shot put and discus), freshman Darrel Hose (mile, 400 meters and 100 meters), and senior Joe Powers (pole vault and javelin).

Strength of Underclassmen Valuable

During the season, although victories were few, the underclassmen on the girls' soccer team proved their strength and value. Senior captain Doreen Riddle commented on the younger members' performances as being a very strong and important part of the team. Doreen admitted that the "season was not too great, but there is hope for next year."

The girls opened the season with a victory over Monmouth Regional (4-0) which brought encouragement to the team, especially the new members. The team's only other win was over rival Rumson Fair Haven (2-0) about halfway through the season. A total of seven goals was made by the team during their games: three were scored by senior forward Leslie Bruno, also a captain, two goals by senior Kathy Donohue, two by sophomore Chris McGhee and one by freshman Mollie Peer. The individual performances of the girls along with the total team effort was nothing short of outstanding.

Junior Allison Reid looked back at the season and commented, "I feel that everyone worked very hard. Even though we did not win many games, we all played our hearts out and I'm glad that I have been a part of the team for the past years. Sophomore Meredith Buchner said that she was looking toward next year when everyone will have another year of experience.

Muller Sets New School Records

This year's girls' track team, with a combination of distance runners, sizing sprinters and strong shotputters, went 5-5 in conference competition during a season capped with breaking school track records.

Although track is a team sport, the girls also regard it as a personal challenge. "I do it for the team, and if I lose, I do it better for me before I do it better for anyone else," commented sophomore Brenda Jones, who set the school record for the high jump at five feet two inches.

A number of personal victories were gained during the season. Senior Peggy Muller set school records in the mile (five minutes 38 seconds) and in the two mile (12 minutes 48 seconds). The girls' track team participated in the Shore Conference Championship Meet where freshman Regina Jones won first place in the 200 meter dash and second place in the 100 meter dash. Regina was also a Central Jersey Champion in the 100 and 200 meter dash events. At the State Sectional Meet, senior Monica Bason placed second in the 200 and 100 meters. Senior Christine Brace placed second in the high jump.

Besides the struggle towards personal goals, there was also a struggle for a victorious season as a team. "We got so psyched before a meet," said junior Kathy Welstead. "It's different from any sport I've ever played." The support that each member received from her teammates undoubtedly had a positive effect on her individual performances.

Cardiac Kids Come From Behind

For the second year, returning seniors Ed White and Bruce Wong (8-10) covered the first doubles position. Called the "Cardiac Kids," this doubles team brought inspiration, not to mention amusement to the entire boys' tennis team. "We were nicknamed the 'Cardiac Kids' because of our intense come-from-behind victories and drawn out three set matches," explained senior Ed White.

Thanks to the incorporation of returning experienced seniors and skilled underclassmen, the team put out a tremendous effort while competing in the tough B-North Conference. Coach Steve Johnson commented that it was an "enjoyable" year despite the hard work and the underdog position which allowed for exciting comebacks from such team members as the "Cardiac Kids."

The Bucs' conference record was 3-10 and the team went undefeated in their five non-conference matches. "They worked hard in practice," remarked the proud coach Johnson. "They represented the school very well in terms of attitude and hustle."

Coach Johnson described the weather as "horrible." As the boys entered the season, they often found themselves playing matches in 45 degree temperatures. Despite the inclement weather conditions, the boys ended the season with a final record of 8-10.

Seniors dominated the key positions on the court, but the talented underclassmen rounded out the team. Seniors Matt Mazzuca (11-7) and Darryl Popper (8-7) maintained their first and second singles slots for a second year; but, a freshman, Mike Cremeans (3-8), filled the third singles position. While the "Cardiac Kids" played the first doubles, sophomore Scott Redden (1-0), junior Bruce Doole, freshman Ed Devine, and senior John Kettyle alternated their playing time in the second doubles (3-15).

The Buc baseball team got off to an explosive start with two wins and one tie in the first three games for the B-North pennant. Although failing to win a title, the Bucs had two players named to the All-Monmouth County Team.

Catcher Mike Mazzacco and designated hitter Greg Montgomery were named to the All-Monmouth County Team. Mike led the Bucs with twenty-nine hits, six doubles, one triple and two homers. "Against St. John," Mike said, "I had three hits and threw out two runners back to back." Greg had twenty-seven hits with three doubles, two triples, and four homers. His best pitching performances were in both games against Rumson-Fair Haven.

Inexperienced Softball Team Makes States

With a combination of powerful homerun hitters, promising underclassmen, ace pitching and an eight game winning streak, a young girls' softball team was able to win eight of their ten games to qualify for the State Tournament. The team opened the season with an 8-5 loss to Monmouth Regional. Later in the season, they had a 9-8 win over Rumson-Fair Haven with junior Karen Fisher and sophomore Debbie Homefield each adding one homerun. The team was led by captains Kelly Aumack and Karen Fisher, both juniors and three year varsity letter winners.

In the opening game of the Central Jersey Group II State Tournament, the team beat New Brunswick 22-4. Freshman Nina Johnson slugged a grand slam homer and Debbie Homefield added a solo homer. Sophomore Rosemary Murphy chipped in with two-run singles. In the second round, the team lost 12-3 to Delaware Valley. The Buc team closed the year with an 11-9 overall record.

Junior Robin Hall stated, "I think the team did well despite our inexperience. Next year we'll win the states." The season was also described by Coach Andrew Russo, "Through hard work, dedication, desire and the team's eight game win streak in mid-season, the team was able to qualify for the State Tournament. We're a young team. We developed as the season progressed but our season ended in the semi-final round of the State playoffs at Delaware Valley."

Individual leaders of the team with high seasonal averages were ace pitcher Kelly Aumack and Karen Fisher each batting .369, sophomore Marianne Fisher (.258), senior Denise Tarricone (.245), junior Robin Hall (.276), and sophomore Laura Ruzicka (.293). The outstanding player of the season was Debbie Homefield who batted .435 with three homers and twenty-eight RBI's.

Highly-Ranked Monmouth Nearly Upset

The talented golf team ended their season with a record of four wins and eleven losses and one extremely close match which was lost in extra holes to highly-ranked Monmouth Regional. "It would have been the upset of the year if we had won," said Mike Creedon in reference to the match. The close score displayed the golf team's potential and ability which aided them in nearly outplaying a top conference team.

During the season, the team's wins were over Shore Regional, twice, Rumson, and Long Branch. With the talents of three returning lettermen, Mike Creedon, Scott Curtis, and Tom McManus, the team received some of its needed experience. First year player junior Chris Tierney was ranked number one on the team and proved to be a vital part of the team's effort. Freshmen Chris Olsen, Ricky Horn, and Tim Ticehurst added to the team with scores all in the fifties.

In the five starting players' repertoires were a combination of talents. Scott Curtis was known for his putting skill while Tierney's forte was his powerful driving. Tom McManus also contributed strong and effective drives. Mike Creedon's strong points were his long irons or second shots. Olsen added the perfect ingredient with his consistent accuracy.

Because of Creedon's handicap, a sprained ankle after the third match which caused him to miss the following five matches, the team's ranks were changed with Tierney in the number one position with a year average of forty-three, and Scott Curtis in second position. Freshman Chris Olsen showed much promise by placing fifth for the year. Olsen remarked about the year, "I enjoyed playing on the team this year because it was good experience. I learned to play better golf through the team."

Throughout the season, and especially after the Monmouth Regional match, the golf team maintained good morale. Mr. Leo, coach for the boys, remained optimistic about the season and the future of the team.

Homefields' Record Fabulous

Finishing the season with a record of twelve wins and one loss, the Homefield sisters — Linda, a sophomore, and Debbie, a junior — provided a consistent foundation for the girls' tennis team. The strength of the underclassmen allowed the team to compete successfully in tough matches. Debbie and Linda played first doubles for the Bucs and lost only one match to undefeated Red Bank Catholic.

The conference record for the tennis team as a whole was 5-9. First-year coach Mr. Steve Johnson stated, "It was a very enjoyable season because the girls were willing to work hard. The team was very competitive." In victorious conference matches, the girls beat Shore opponents in both confrontations, first with a score of 3-2, and then, with a score of 5-0. Red Bank Regional also triumphed over Long Branch 4-1 in both matches. Coach Johnson was extremely pleased with the finish of the season because it ended with a positive note after the team's second win over Long Branch, and its non-conference win over Asbury Park 5-0.

Members of the girls' tennis team were mostly underclassmen except for one junior, Debbie Homefield, and one senior, Allison Reid, who led the team as captain. Freshman Eileen Reardon played first position in singles with Allison in second and another freshman, Melissa Apy in the third position. While the Homefields played first doubles, the second doubles position was filled by combinations of team members: Stacey Denton, Julie Barnes, Cori Cather, Kelly O'Brien, and Gretchen Mindich. Captain Allison Reid commented, "The team worked together very well this year. We have some strong underclassmen and I believe we will have a fantastic team next year. I am sorry I won't be here to be a part of it. This year was the best on the team for me."

Bucs' Team Effort Clinches Victory

Although plagued by fumbles, penalties, and injuries, the Buc football team had moments during their season when the meaning of team effort appeared clearly. While frustrated Red Bank Regional players stood on the sidelines cheering offensive or defensive teammates in the game, the tasks which needed to be accomplished were simply too overwhelming.

The Buccaneers fought commendably against tough B-North conference competitors and even tougher non-conference teams. In one victorious game, Red Bank Regional defeated the Rumson Bulldogs 7-6. The Bucs demonstrated the importance of team spirit and determination by stopping a two-point conversion attempt by Rumson. The Buccaneer goal was possible because Brett Woodward intercepted Rumson's pass, thus placing the ball in the hands of the Bucs. Red Bank Regional went on to score the first touchdown of the game and of the year with Steve Montgomery's pass to senior tight end Bill Bowie who was alone in the end zone. Montgomery, a junior with many different talents kicked the extra point.

In a pre-season interview, an optimistic first-year coach, Mr. Woodin, stated one of his goals was for "all the members to play together as a group," and that, the Buccaneers accomplished.

McNeil and Culos Named Scholar-Athletes

Two outstanding senior players of the Buc football team, Chris McNeil and Peter Culos, were named as scholar-athletes in a prestigious competition held annually by the Daily Register newspaper. Due to an injury to his arm in an August practice, Culos, an honorable mention recipient of the award, was unable to play until the last three games of the season. Playing as an offensive lineman, he was voted to serve as captain for the Bucs in his first game back. McNeil, both an offensive and a defensive lineman, was a semi-finalist scholar-athlete. He captained for Red Bank Regional for all of the other games. These two outstanding players, along with the rest of the seniors remained dedicated throughout a difficult season.

According to first-year coach Mr. Woodin, as the season progressed, the players never drifted off; instead, the team's effort became stronger and the concentration became more intensified. Mr. Woodin stated his gratitude for the older members of the team, "Thank you very much for the great job that the seniors did in setting a foundation of dedication for our younger athletes to look up to." Along with a new coach, Red Bank Regional also gained many first-year players, returning athletes, and transfer students. Defensive back Warren Towns, wide receiver Jim O'Hara, and defensive end Chris Tierney contributed their talents to the Bucs and played major roles in the team's performances.

Despite a disappointing season, the Bucs had an eighth game victory over Monmouth Regional with a final score of 12-7. Junior Steve Montgomery, quarterback for Red Bank Regional, completed a pass of forty-one yards to senior Vincent Hill for the first touchdown. While the point conversion failed, after a succession of passes towards the endzone, Montgomery handed the ball off to senior Dan Muller who set the Bucs up on the one yard line by sneaking up the middle with a ten-yard run. Montgomery scored the second touchdown for Red Bank Regional. Junior John Hayes' work on the kicking teams was vital to the success of the Bucs.

For Chris McNeil, "the hardest role was keeping everyone together in the losing times." As a senior, "trying to set an example all the time and in all situations" was part of the role McNeil played for the Bucs. With the strong foundation set by the seniors, future Buc teams have an example of dedication, commitment, and determination to look towards. Overall, Culos commented, "even though we weren't successful, we never quit or gave up."

New Coach and Players Create a Team

Ending the season with a record of five wins, fourteen losses, and one tie, the boys' varsity soccer team demonstrated that 1983 was a year of learning to cooperate, and to develop talents. First year coach, Mr. John Knodel, faced the tough problem of coordinating a young team with whom he had never worked.

Several veteran players, Chris Soldo, Ed Matthews, Brendon Brennan, and Robin Tellechea, all seniors, along with first-year team members discovered the difficulty of combining efforts and working together. Senior Keith Torchia explained, "We had a lot of talent and I think that by next year the team will be used to the new coach and be able to work together better. We had a young team and all we needed was discipline. The talent and coaching was there."

Early in the season, the team showed its strength by upsetting the division champions, Long Branch. Anselmo Bryan scored twice along with one goal apiece from Chris Soldo and Anthony Samuels to enable the Bucs to triumph over Long Branch 4-3. Later on, in one of the victories over Asbury Park, Samuels and Soldo both scored goals, with goalie Ed Matthews thirteen saves to end the game with a score of 2-0; then, in Red Bank's second game against Asbury Park, Robin Tellechea scored the first goal, but Chris Soldo's goal with an assist from Mike Dorney gave the Bucs their victory in second overtime. Red Bank goalie Matthews had seven stops as the Bucs had a 19-14 shot advantage. In another successful game, the Bucs triumphed over Red Bank Catholic 1-0 with a goal by Tellechea and 13 saves by Matthews.

Later in the season, injuries dampened team spirit when Ed Matthews broke his finger while making a save for the Bucs; however, younger brother Tom suited up to replace him. Youth was a key factor in determining the season and also in showing the potential of the future teams. Senior captain Brendon Brennan summarized the season by commenting, "Our team had great talent. One of our opponents' coaches said that our record did not show our ability. It was tough for Coach Knodel to start fresh with a team he did not know, but he did a great job."

Team Spirit Creates Obstacle for Rivals

Despite a disappointing record of 2-8-1 in conference games, the girls' field hockey team demonstrated its overwhelming spirit and cooperation against hard challengers. According to junior Meg Bayliss, in games against two of the highest-ranked teams in the B-North conference, Monmouth Regional and Shore, Red Bank Regional put forth a tremendous determined effort. Although the Bucs failed to win the difficult games in goals, beaten by Monmouth Regional 2-1 and beaten by Shore 1-0, the girls displayed their strength and potential as a young team.

In a pre-season interview, Miss Wendy Patterson, in her first year of coaching the varsity team for Red Bank, commented, "the team is very young this year. They are doing very well and they are playing with confidence. Team play is improving." While experienced players and special instructors helped the girls prepare for their tough schedule of B-North competitors, the spirit of the team "seemed better than last year" according to sophomore varsity team member Sayumi Neufeld.

As an entire team, the girls combined their talents. Goalie Debbie Rosenthal, who was in her second year of playing her important position for the Bucs, made numerous stops in the goal which were necessary to the success of the team. Senior Dolores Dixon scored three goals in one game which was against Matawan and she led Red Bank Regional to a non-conference victory with the help of goals scored by Chris McGhee, two, Mollie Peer, one, and Lia Bruno, one. Other outstanding players for the Bucs were freshman Kirsten Monier, and juniors Rosemary Murphy and Meg Bayliss. The captains for the team were juniors Sherri Meade and Lia Bruno, both vital players and leaders for the Bucs.

Boys Qualify for State Finals

Despite the fact that the Buc Cross Country teams were only in existence since the 1982 season, this year's team finished with outstanding records for both the girls and the boys, showing the diverse interests of the students at Red Bank Regional. In overall conference meets the final record for the girls was 2-5, with a non-conference record of 1-1. The record for the boys was 4-3 for all conference meets and 1-1 for non-conference meets.

The boys' varsity cross country team placed a remarkable thirteenth out of twenty-six teams in the Monmouth County Cross Country Meet; then, in the Shore Conference Meet, the boys placed twentieth out of fifty-six teams. While their record was extraordinary as well as their other accomplishments, the boys went on to qualify for the state finals by placing fifth in the first round involving the Central Jersey Group II teams, Junior Marty Houlahan placed tenth in the individual wins in the Monmouth County Meet. Although many odds were against them, the boys won thirteenth place in the NJSIAA Cross Country Team Meet.

Freshman sensation Kristin Nivison

and senior Jen Slechta consistently led the girls' team with Nivison finishing first in those against Keansburg, Ocean, and Shore Regional. Slechta, an important member of the team, commented on the fact that cross country was only in its second year of existence, "We did very well and I especially appreciate all of the encouragement which the team members gave to each other." Cross Country Coach Mr. Cheyne confidently stated that the team had "lots of strength with the young runners and it shall only lose two seniors at graduation."

New Buc Team Captures Second in Classic

In the Buc Holiday Classic, a new tournament started this year by Red Bank Regional's Director of Athletics Mr. George Fallon, the Bucs, seeded third out of eight teams, played the Middletown North Lions. The Bucs captured their first win of the tournament with a score of 61-40 with Vince Hill scoring twenty-three points. Next, the Bucs met Toms River East and won 58-53 for the semifinal. In the championship game of the tournament, the Bucs faced one of the Shore Conference's best teams, Mater Dei. Red Bank Regional was defeated 61-79 by the Seraphs in a frustrating game dominated by Mater Dei's height and experienced playing.

Still, the Bucs finished second in the first Buc Holiday Classic and showed the fans potential.

Senior Vince Hill, who scored the most points for the Bucs in each game of the Classic, was named to the All-Tourney Team.

Despite the loss of starting players and substitutes at graduation, Coach Nick Pizzuli reorganized and started the season fresh with a new team. During their first games, the Bucs found difficulty in putting the team and plays together; but, as the season progressed, Red Bank Regional proved its talent and perseverance.

Improved Buccaneers Find Victories

Midway through the season, Red Bank Regional began to grow together as not only a talented group of players, but also, as a winning team. Ranked number ten in the Daily Register Top 10, the Bucs won seven games late in the season while losing only two and qualified for the state tournament. They also headed to a place in the Shore Conference Playoffs.

The Bucs capped their hot streak of five wins with a 68-67 overtime thriller over Red Bank Catholic. The improved Buccaneers downed the Caseys and forced them to share the Shore Conference "B" North Championship title with Long Branch.

In the game against Red Bank Catholic, junior Charlie Mann scored 20 points for the Bucs and proved vital to the team's winning effort. At half-time the Bucs had a 35-26 lead, and late in the third quarter, they still maintained quite a lead of 49-35. In the last 23 seconds of the game, the scoreboard froze at 67-67 until overtime play began. Finally, with a minute and twenty seconds to go, junior John Hayes sunk a foul shot which brought the Buc fans to their feet and the victory to the team. No other scoring occurred and Red Bank Regional held onto its thrilling win.

In the Shore Conference Playoffs, the boys put forth a tremendous effort, losing to Lakewood, a tough competitor in the conference. In the State Tournament the Bucs also lost in the first round; but, overall, they won pride for their accomplishments.

The sound of the starter's gun and the cheers from the fans for the young but competent team were typical sounds heard during a Buccaneer track meet held at Red Bank Regional's fieldhouse. Coach Robert Rudrow, a new addition to the Buc Track team, believed in the outstanding individuals who comprised the team.

These Buc athletes met each day after school from two-fifteen to four-fifteen to work out and to improve its skills since many of the team members were underclassmen. Coach Rudrow gave much of the credit for the Buc's success this year to assistant coach Nancy Fitzgerald, another new addition to the team. Primarily, Coach Fitzgerald helped the long distance runners.

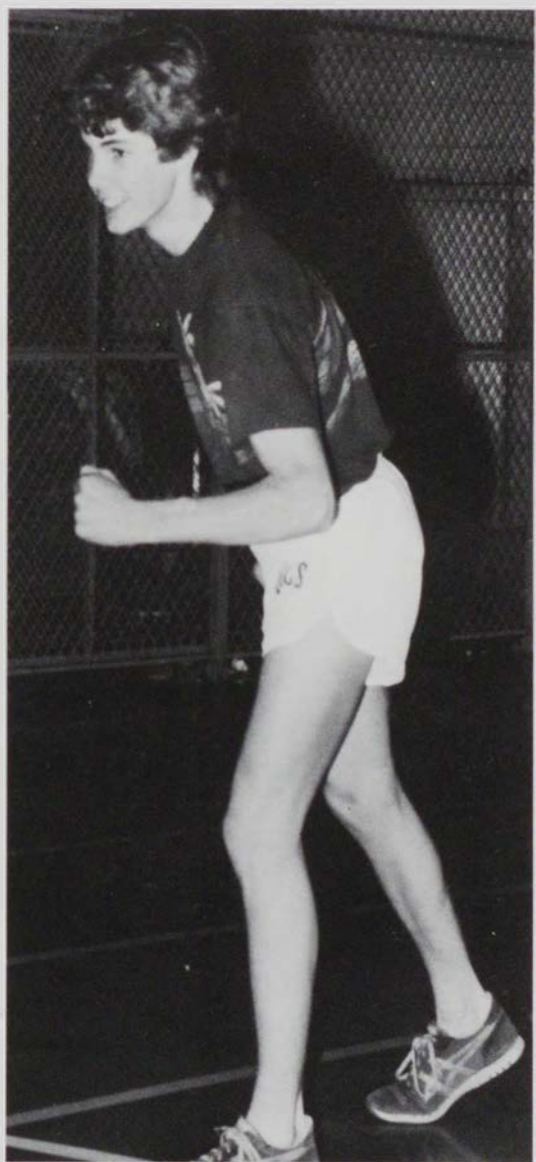

Senior Brendon Brennon burned up the track with his 400 meter run while senior Dominic Fazarro, also cruised past his opponents in the 800 meter run. Freshman Christina Emrich, sophomore Mike Houlihan, and Lanora Getter were valuable assets to Red Bank Regional. Junior Brenda Jones starred in the high jump event. In these younger athletes, the coach saw potential for the future. He believed that "one can look for a Shore Conference champion by the time the freshmen are juniors."

According to manager Dina Johanneman, "compared to last year, this team seemed happier with its running." Coach Rudrow appreciated the work of the team's managers, Dina and Edward Squire.

Swimmers Led by New Coach Dana Mihlon

Although a team usually needs time to adjust to a new coach, the Buc swimmers and Dana Mihlon proved quickly their ability to be a winning team. The girls captured the Monmouth County Championship title for the third year in a row, and the boys took second place.

Juniors Megan Apy and Heidi Hertler were both triple winners in the Monmouth County Championships. Apy won the 200 yard freestyle and the 100 yard butterfly events. Hertler took first in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events. Both girls were members of the winning 400 yard freestyle relay team. Apy received the most valuable player award in the meet. Also new to the Buc swim team was senior Kathy Sayko who shared the leadership of captain with Apy.

Senior Warren Towns went undefeated in the 100 yard breaststroke all season, winning the gold in this event at the Monmouth County Championships. Senior Mike Gough was a strong swimmer in every event, and was captain along with Towns for the boys. Towns and Gough were members of the boys' winning 200 yard medley relay in the championships.

In diving, senior Kris Lopez placed first in this meet for the boys and junior Meredith Buchner took second for the girls. The divers were coached by Mr. H. Lopez and the entire team was grateful for all of his time, effort, and knowledge.

Dixon Breaks Records to Lead Bucs

In Red Bank Regional's game against Manalapan, Dolores Dixon broke her own school one-game record with a 38-point performance. She led the Bucs in crushing Manalapan 75-44 in a non-conference game. During her performance, Dixon also pulled down 20 rebounds. In addition to this broken record, Dixon surpassed her previous season record of points overall of 1370 and strove to set a higher goal of 2000 on the record board at Red Bank Regional.

Junior Sharice Richardson scored 19 points for the Bucs and junior Rosemary Murphy 10. Sophomore point guard Nina Johnson tied her school record for assists with 12. The entire team turned in an outstanding performance all-around.

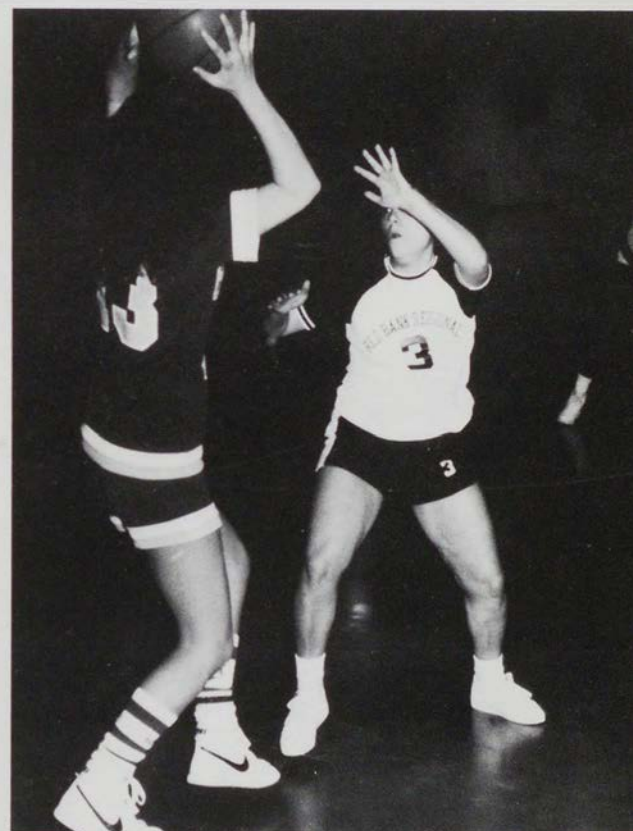

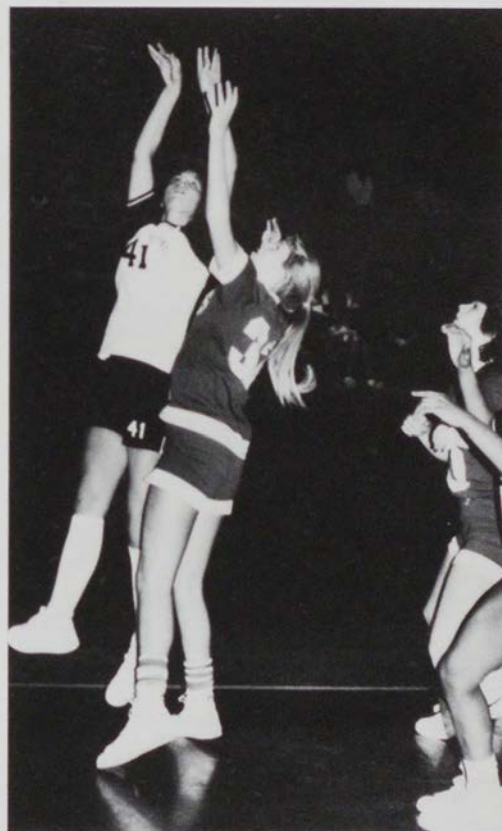

In the Daily Register Top Ten, the girls were ranked fifth with their 12-5 record late in the season. They continued to turn in better performances to qualify for playoffs.

These girls from Red Bank Regional held back Red Bank Catholic from receiving the Shore Conference "B" North Championship title. The Bucs scored their toughest victory over the Caseys with a score of 51-48.

Lady Bucs Shoot for States

According to Coach Bill Kunze, the girls' basketball team was much improved by late season, in time for the Shore Conference playoffs and the State Tournament. The girls also proved to be a whole team, not just a one-player team.

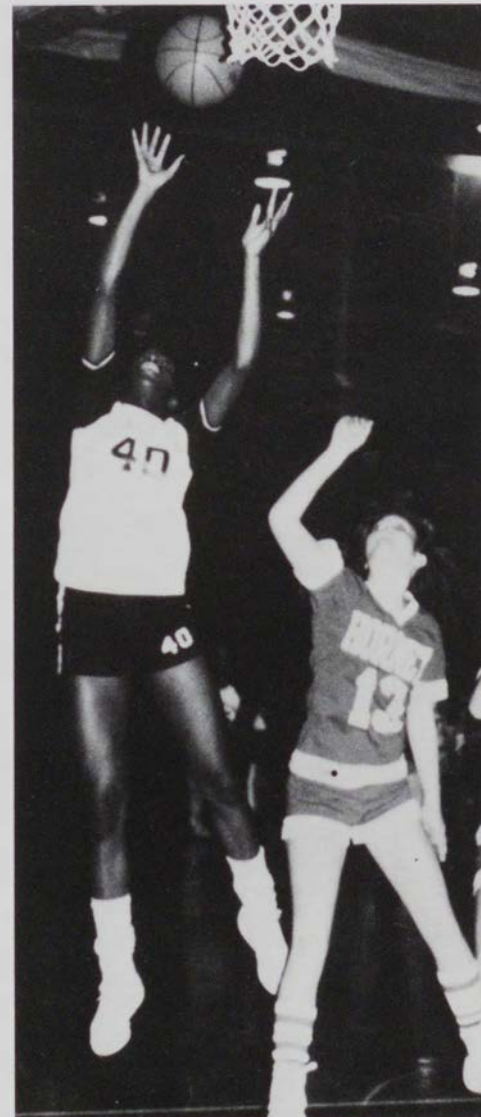

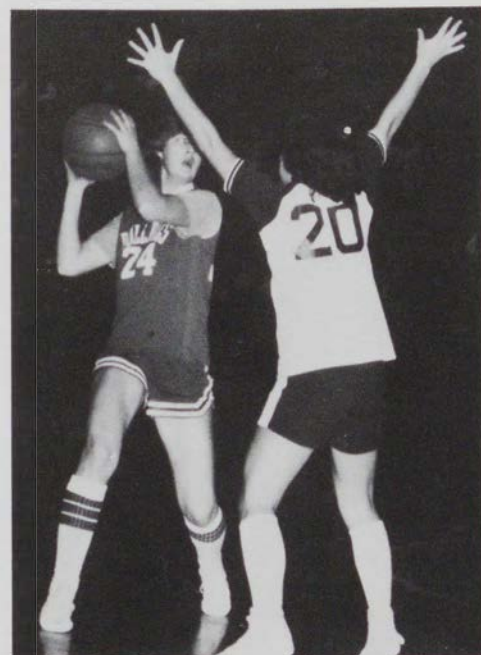

Dolores Dixon, senior starter at five feet eleven inches, led the Bucs in average points (20.5) and rebounds (13). Dixon also captained the team. Junior Sharice Richardson, according to Kunze, turned "outstanding" with more drives to the basket and ten average points per game. Sophomore Nina Johnson was "a super passer. She was the kind of player who made others look better," commented Coach Kunze. The other two starters for Red Bank Regional were juniors Rosemary Murphy and Lia Bruno. Murphy's strength was in foul shooting while Bruno added her skillful defensive plays.

In the Shore Conference playoffs, the girls lost to Long Branch, one of the toughest teams in the league. Looking towards the State Tournament games, the girls and Coach Kunze were quite optimistic about a first place win. For their first round, the Bucs traveled to Carteret and returned home with a victory and a step closer to a State title. Next, the team went up against Somerville in the second round of the states. Here, the girls lost.

Although losing senior sensation Dolores Dixon, the team gained great experience for its many underclassmen in developing offensive and defensive skills as well as team spirit.

Buc Solo Performances Win Applause

While Red Bank Regional offered many team sports, many students developed and competed in individual sports outside of school. Outstanding performances were given in such athletics as archery, downhill skiing, horseback riding, and ice dancing. Though these athletes chose to march to different drummers, their achievements on their own deserve a standing ovation.

One student, senior Lee Poole of Red Bank learned the difficult art of archery. When she was younger, after seeing this skill performed, Lee became interested and proceeded to master the intricate sport of archery. "It isn't as easy as it looks," claims Lee; however, she greatly enjoyed the sport and encouraged others to attempt it as long as they had a great amount of patience.

Among many students who ski, senior Allison Reid of Little Silver emerged as an athlete who was fun-loving and daring. She skied downhill since she was about twelve years old and thoroughly enjoyed the sport. Skiing took a lot of skill and courage, and Allison performed her sport with a real flair.

Another individual sport athlete was senior Carolyn King of Little Silver who competed with her horse Tetley in numerous shows. Carolyn and Tetley rode away with the awards at the Central Jersey Horseman's Association in July of 1983. They placed first in Senior Equestrian Over Fences, Working Hunter Under Saddle, Working Hunter Over Fences, Senior Pleasure, Senior Equestrian on Flat, Model Hunter and Hunter Hack. Overall, these two won the Grand-Champion-Senior Division award. For Carolyn, who devoted many hours to grooming and training her beautiful horse, the awards which the two have won surely bring a sense of pride and satisfaction.

Finally, another student, freshman Christina Emrich of Shrewsbury, although participating in both indoor track and cross country running, continued her interest in ice dancing along with her father, Ernie Emrich. These two have skated together in competition since Christina was seven years old. They now skate at the fourth level of ice dancing silver, and compete in the junior nationals. Christina was inspired by star Dorothy Hamill when she was six and a half. This father-daughter pair is coached by five time US National Dance Champions, and 1976 Olympic team members Andrew Stroukoff and Susan Kelly. Among their many prestigious awards, Christina and her father placed first in various New Jersey and New York Dance Championships. They also won a gold medal at the First Competition Lake Placid Ice Dancing.

There's no business like school business, and clubs were of primary interest in school business. Many students were committed to the challenge of honor societies while others enjoyed the enthusiasm of cheerleading. Through the years, Red Bank Regional club members worked hard to achieve outstanding productions in such clubs as the Crow's Nest, the Buccaneer, and the Log. Competitions were entered by performers in DECA, FBLA, and Auto. The Ski Club used the Vermont Mountains as a back drop while the Trainers Club used the athletic fields as a stage. Whatever the stage was the clubs performances were excellent and now new such clubs as FBLA and the Gospel Choir added to the successful list of long running clubs.

Seniors Keith Torchia and Darryl Lewis place nails a certain distance apart on the boards to create a solid framework. These carpentry skills were demonstrated at the State VICA contest.

CIE Provides On-the-Job Training

Mr. James Dadenas started the Cooperative Industrial Education Club eighteen years ago for students who participated in the on-the-job training programs offered by the CIE Program.

The Club had vigorous fund-raising activities at Christmas and Easter to raise money to send selected members to the VICA State Competition and for an employer-employee banquet held at the end of the year.

Members of the club elected officers including a parliamentarian. All meetings were conducted under Roberts Rules of Order.

The purpose of the club was to help students get along with people, learn how to deal with problems on their jobs, and gain experience in the skills of their selected occupations.

Auto Club Gears Up for Tenth Year

The Auto Club in its tenth year continued practicing for and participating in many competitions. The Auto Club provided students with extra time to work on vehicles or complete any classwork they had. During the club's meetings on Thursday afternoons, members practiced troubleshooting skills for the VICA contest. Another competition, the Plymouth Troubleshooting Contest, was revived this year. Students also prepared for these competitions during their free periods.

To raise money for new parts and tools, the club raffled off oil changes, lubrication jobs, and other services. The car-owners add to the club's funds by paying for their repairs.

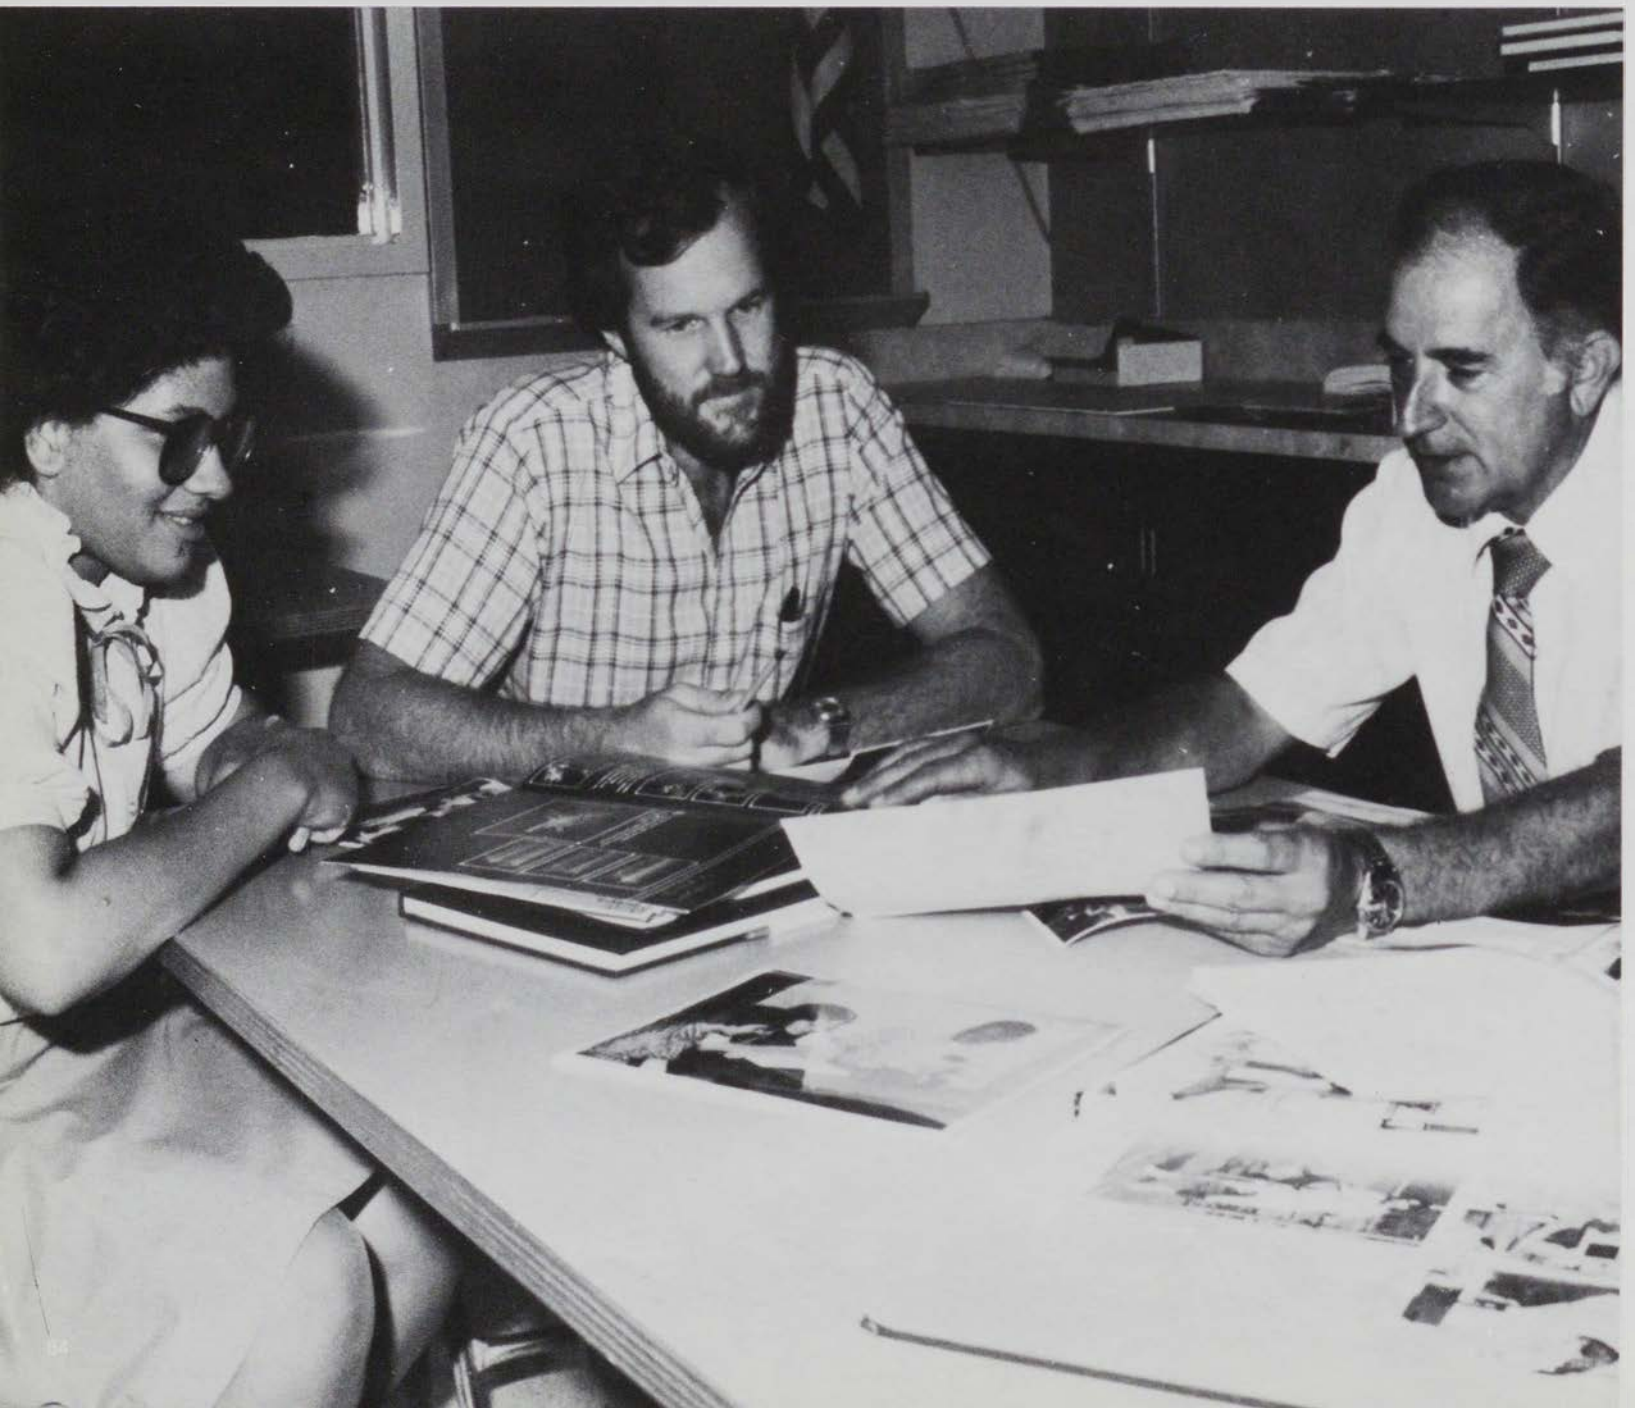

The club is headed by President, Andrew Alaimo, Vice President, Fulvio Figliola, Secretary and Treasurer, Chris McDowell and Activities Manager, Joe McChesney.

Advisor Mr. Wainwright commented that some students work on their projects for as long as two and a half hours at a time and he appreciates, "The value of having extra time and facilities for interested students."

Jones Guides Inexperienced Log Staff

In keeping with the new Performing Arts Program, the theme of this year's Log was "There's No Business Like School Business," and the yearbook staff worked diligently to discover the school's business. The Log was divided into five sections, each section having an editor. Said Clubs Editor, Cathie Darrah, "I enjoy working on the Log. It is hard work; however, the end product is well worth the time and the effort."

Lack of experience was the major disadvantage that this year's staff had to overcome. Only two members returned from last year's staff. Students Editor Mary Tobin said this about the staff, "Although the members of the staff were inexperienced, the number of people participating more than compensated for the lack of experience."

Guided by Advisor Mr. John Hird, the staff worked hard to overcome pressing deadlines, to investigate school events, to write and to edit stories, to design layouts, and to type quad-paks. All this was done to enable fellow classmates to reflect on their high school years with meaning and fond memories.

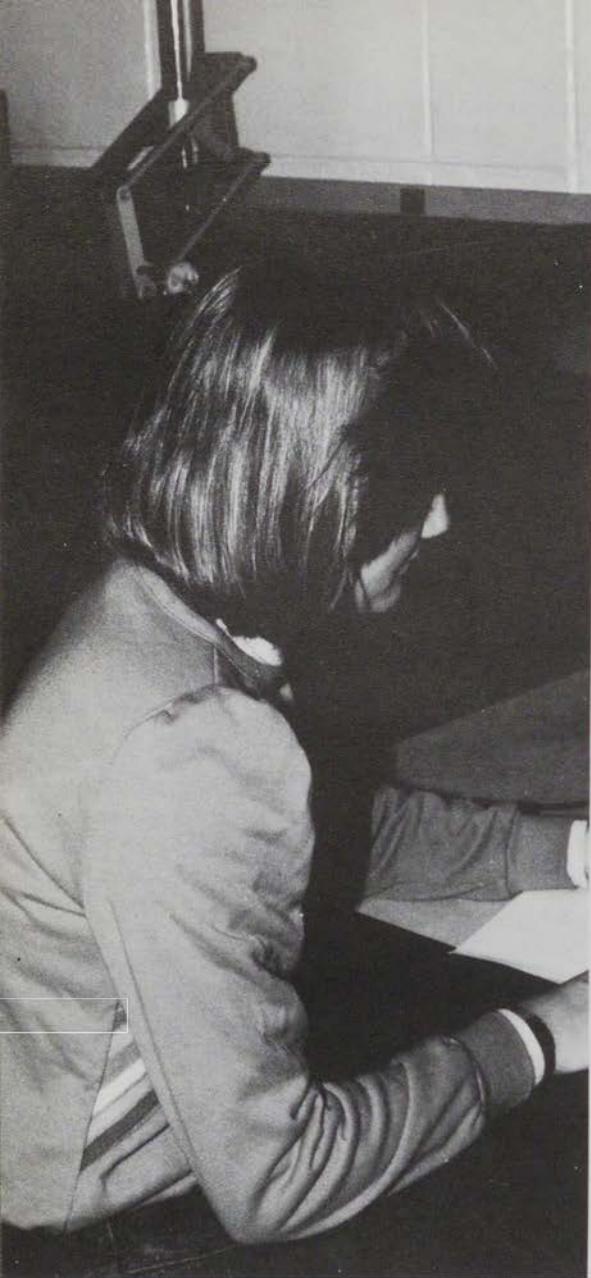

Editor-in-Chief Nancy Jones noted that, "The Log has achieved first or second place in past national competition." She also explained, "The experience of working on the Log is very rewarding. Much time and effort is demanded and sometimes I felt like giving up, but in the end I know the hard work and responsibility will help make a great yearbook in keeping with past tradition."

Buccaneer Explores Social Concerns

Teenage drinking and driving, a major concern of officials today, was one of the topics highlighted by the Buccaneer staff. In dealing with such a controversial subject, the staff polled Red Bank Regional students and also discussed drinking and driving with various high schools. The Buccaneer also worked on stories pertaining to new faculty members, sports, and the performing arts department. Co-editors, Alison Belford and Stephanie Keenan, both seniors, said that work progressed smoothly.

The Buc staff met in its own homeroom each morning to plan issues. This included designing layouts, giving the photographer, senior Jeff Lysiak, details about the pictures they needed, and assigning stories. Meeting in their own homeroom allowed the staff to get much more done than if their meetings were held a few days after school.

The newspaper focused on events that happened in or around the school. Senior Jen Slechta explained, "All homerooms receive a copy of the Buccaneer to be certain that all students and faculty members read the paper."

Advisor Mr. Larry Perrine said, "With the organization of the staff, the large number of participants, and the creative student editors, I'm sure the success of the Buccaneer newspaper will continue for many more years to come."

New ID Cards Help Keep Attendance

A good attendance policy was the aim of the Student Council when student identification cards were issued this year. The grey cards which displayed the homeroom representative's name and RED BANK REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT COUNCIL were given to the representative and alternate of each homeroom and taken at meetings to keep an accurate attendance record.

ID cards were used successfully by the Student Council and so was their own homeroom. As in past years the Student Council executive board met each morning in their own homeroom. This enabled President Tawana Mann and Advisor Mrs. Elizabeth Nicholson to update the other members of the board on current activities and on decisions to be made. Representatives from each class joined the executive board to help make final decisions on such items as a theme for the Homecoming Dance and on the preparations for the Sadie Hawkins Dance. Gifts were brought in to be put in a fruit basket for the Red Bank Convalescent Center. The Student Council brought gifts for the elderly to the Red Bank Medi-Center, a usual tradition at the Montgomery Nursing Home.

The student council goals were met thanks to President Tawana Mann who said, "At Red Bank Regional we consider our Student Council more than just an extra-curricular activity."

Eaton Attends Summer Clinic

With Terry Eaton playing the lead, "Doc" Porzio's team of trainers performed a strong show. Eaton, a student trainer, attended a sports medical clinic over the summer. It was difficult to be accepted into the clinic but with recommendations from certified athletic trainer "Doc" Porzio and other contributing factors like his avid interest as a trainer he was accepted and received a certificate for his work.

The main job of the trainers was to aid in the treatment for any injured athlete. With their keen knowledge and excellent facilities the trainers executed their jobs very well.

When freshman Joey Fields was asked what he liked about being a trainer he said, "I have fun being a trainer. You meet a lot of people, and it's great to help them. I like to help people."

The trainer's room was open year round from after school until five o'clock in readiness to help and care for the injured athletes.

Cheerleaders Add New Routines

After many years of side-line and half-time cheers, the cheerleaders added new routines to their repertoire of songs! They did their cheers to the many songs that the band played. Some of the songs were "String of Pearls," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," "Rock Around the Clock," and "Hawaii 5-0." The cheerleaders created the routines to go with these songs under the supervision of their new advisor, Mrs. Sharon Hackett. She had them practice every day to perfect their new as well as their old routines.

The girls showed their school spirit by leading the crowds at pep rallies and football games in the old familiar cheers of "Go Bucs Go" and "Let's Go Bucs." One of the cheerleaders told us, "We all really have a great time out there and I've met a lot of new people. It's a lot of fun, but it's still a lot of work."

The girls on this year's cheerleading squad had much more than pep and enthusiasm. They had to be able to do a split, a cartwheel, and a series of jumps called a clap jump. The individual routines that were seen at every game were composed even before the tryouts. The standards were very high and only fifteen girls made the squad.

"The cheerleaders are a great group of girls with lots of enthusiasm," said Jennifer Peer, captain of the varsity squad. Mrs. Hackett agreed, adding, "I think that it is a challenging experience trying to get fifteen girls together that all want to step on the wrong foot! But I'm sure that we can get it all together and have a really great squad."

Steele's Experience Helps Younger Girls

Whether the stage was a football field at half-time, a street at parade-time or a stadium during a competition, the Red Bank Regional front groups always displayed a strong performance. This year tall flags, batons, and flag twirlers worked hard during long practices to perfect their routines. These routines were the twirlers' way of showing school spirit.

Lynne Reilly, second year co-captain of the flag twirlers, said, "I feel that showing school spirit is an important part of high school. We always have a fun time on the field." The twirlers performed to such songs as, "String of Pearls," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," "Stardust," and "Bill Bailey Won't You Please Come Home." Meredith Buchner was the other captain of the flags. Beth Forsys and Patty Steele were co-captains of the baton twirlers. Regina Dolan was captain of the tall flags and Susan Kearney was captain of the color guards.

"Being captain and specialty twirler helps me teach other girls what I know about twirling," commented Patty

Steele who has twirled a baton since she was five. Teaching, learning, and showing school spirit was what the front groups were all about. The rewards were great whether they were participating for the third year in the Wall Township Band Competition or just watching themselves on video tape. "The twirlers enjoy what they're doing," says Heidi Mortensen, a senior baton twirler. "Cheering for the team and performing for the Buc fans is what twirling is all about."

Peer Tutoring Helps Younger French Students

This year, for the first time, the French National Honor Society established a peer tutoring program to aide students who felt they needed help in French. Members tutored fellow students during lunch and study periods. This service helped students learn French and enabled advanced French students to teach others.

When asked to describe the purpose of the French National Honor Society, Advisor Mr. Patrick McCormack commented, "It is not a social club. It is an academically oriented organization which fosters the interaction of its members with French culture."

The organization demonstrated its enthusiasm for learning more about French art by visiting the N.Y. Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Cloisters, and the Frick Museum.

French cuisine was sampled at the annual "French Dinner" as well as at the Induction Ceremony at the end of the year.

Nearly forty students, all of whom have maintained a superior average during at least two years of high school French, comprised the organization.

Among other exciting activities planned by the Spanish National Honor Society this year was a two-week trip to Spain during the Easter vacation. The members were very enthusiastic about going and fund raisers took place throughout the year to prepare for this enthralling trip.

To become a member of this society, there were certain requirements. First the student had to complete at least two years of the Spanish language during which time he/she had to maintain an 85 average or better as an active member of the Society.

The Society was an organization which honored Spanish students who excelled in this field. Members of the Society were able to associate with each other in activities dealing with the Spanish culture. Mrs. Jean Dacey, advisor of the society, felt that "The Spanish National Honor Society is a place where good students get their due recognition." In other words if a student worked to maintain the standard of the Society, he/she was honored for this task.

"Foreign language is a lifelong course," explained Mike Gough, this year's president of the Spanish Society. He also pointed out that if studied during the high school years such a foreign language as Spanish is a practical tool for the future.

Crow's Nest Wins 2nd Place in Competition

Winning second place in the annual Columbia Press Competition, the Crow's Nest capitalized on the creativity and talent in its staff. The staff submitted its works from the previous year for the competition. Some members of the Crow's Nest attended the Columbia Press convention in the spring.

The Crow's Nest was an annual art and literary magazine composed of poetry, editorials, and many forms of art work from Red Bank Regional students. "Students can have their works published without belonging to the Crow's Nest," said Mrs. Farrell, Crow's Nest Advisor. The publication was led by senior Editor-in-Chief Ellen Christensen.

Honor Society Looks for Angels

In December, the National Honor Society participated in the "Be an Angel: Buy an Angel" fundraiser for multiple sclerosis at the Monmouth Mall. The angels were made by people from Monmouth County's Rehabilitation Center.

The 1983-1984 Edwin C. Gilland Chapter of the National Honor Society continued many of its annual public services this year. The members sponsored the Spring Senior Citizen's Luncheon in the spring, a program which included a special performance of the Spring Musical. The students of R.B.R. also benefited from the Honor Society members. Students who desired tutoring were provided with a member who was capable in the area in which the student needed help.

The eighth grade orientation program in early December gave the senior members a chance to relive their years here as well as present a vivid picture of the academic and social life to the eighth graders.

These functions were performed successfully by the Honor Society partly because of the diversity of the membership. All members were required to have and maintain a grade point average of 90, and exhibit high qualities of service, leadership, and character; however, within this group were dancers, artists, and musicians as well as those interested in math and science. Senior President Mark Wood embodied this sentiment by stating that the Honor Society was "a good way for academically artistic students to gain recognition beyond their classroom achievements." The other officers included Vice-President Stephanie Keenan, Treasurer Patti Steele, and Secretary Beth Forys. The faithful advisor was Mr. Francis Teeple, who helped to make the 1983-1984 National Honor Society a success.

Art Club Exhibits Work at Library

The Red Bank Public Library was the stage for the Art Club this year. The three exhibits held there enabled the students to display their art work in front of the public. The students enjoyed the opportunity to exhibit artwork.

The main purpose of the Art Club was to have fun while practicing art. Students who had an interest in art met weekly to rehearse their art skills.

Students worked with many different types of materials: charcoal, crayons, acrylic paint, oil paint, ink and pastels. They also worked with such craft objects as clay, cartons, cloth and tiles.

The group enjoyed the chance to experience different aspects of art. Mr. Brzostoski commented, "The purpose of the club was to advance the artistic talents of the students at Red Bank Regional."

D.E.C.A. Takes Part in Club Competitions

The Distributive Education Clubs of America (D.E.C.A.) in our school participated in three meetings with other schools this year. The seventeen members of the club competed in different events, depending upon what type of job they had in the club. Some of the events were Food Marketing, Apparel and Accessories, General Marketing, Restaurant Marketing, Service Station Marketing, and Advertising and Display. After the regional competition, they went to a three-day meeting at the Great Gorge Club.

DECA helped, not only its members, but other students as well. Many students received jobs this year with the help of the twenty-two year DECA advisor Mr. Joseph Farrell. President Ricky Kirk and Vice President Robin Hall worked in the Buc Stop, while many of the other members had outside jobs. They worked in gas stations, supermarkets, restaurants, and department stores. Robin Hall explained that, "This experience is very good for my major, fashion merchandising."

DECA is a club whose origins come from a need to teach its members retail marketing. Mr. Farrell explained the purpose of the club as, "Promoting vocational understanding, civic, consciousness, social intelligence, and leadership development." The Treasurer was Elizabeth Cooper and the Secretary was Barbara Vogt.

Any junior or senior was eligible for membership. The club had many benefits for its members. As well as getting pay for their outside jobs, DECA members received between five and fifteen credits for their involvement.

All of the members of DECA really liked their jobs and all of the educational benefits they received from the club. They felt that they really gained a lot from their experience. Ricky Kirk commented, "It is a lot of fun and a really great experience that will help me after I graduate into the job market."

Lee Wins First Place in Public Speaking

Attending the annual Spring State Convention, senior Donna Lee, Secretary of Red Bank's Regional Chapter of FHA-HERO (Future Homemakers of America — Home Economics Related Occupations) won first place in the public speaking category.

The members of the club also participated in such activities as artistic displays and banner competitions during the convention. To earn money to go to the convention, each student sold Avon Products.

Apart from the convention, the students provided the community with valuable services. For instance, Red Bank Regional continued to serve a nursery school open to residents of the tri-town area and staff persons of Red Bank Regional. The members of the club were employed as dietary aids, waiters and waitresses.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tibbets was the FHA-HERO Club's advisor.

FBLA Members Place in Competitions

Finishing its first year of existence, the Future Business Leaders of America "Helped bridge the gap between the classroom and the office world," according to President Audra Gutridge. FBLA also helped establish career goals, promoted aggressive leadership in business, and developed self-confidence and character. Red Bank Regional sent students to the FBLA regional competition at Rider College, where senior Tammy Bosco received sixth place in office procedures and freshman Michelle Bessey won in Business English. In April, these two students competed in the state competition.

FBLA successfully sold programs for the Buc Holiday Classic. The selling of the programs was a major fundraiser for the club. FBLA also hosted speakers from Katherine Gibbs and Berkely schools. Leading the club's thirty members were advisors Mr. Nicholas Pizzulli and Mrs. Suzanne McConaghy. The members of the executive board also included Vice president Dan Mancuso, Secretary Sandra Bynum, Treasurer Rochelle Dukes, and Historian Monica Cone. Co-advisor Mrs. Suzanne McConaghy summed up the club's activities by stating, "FBLA clubs enrich the students' business career and help them get involved with other students."

Tran wins VICA Olympics

Competing in the 1983-84 NJ VICA Skills Olympics, Junior Toan Tran won first place in the Small Engine Mechanics Repair Competition. During the week of June 25th, Toan, along with instructor Mr. Roger Schneider, traveled to Louisville, Kentucky to compete against winners from 49 other states.

The competition existed on three levels: National, state and local. The contest took place on March 2nd and 3rd. In the trade and industry section, VICA entered seniors Jim Hankins and Keith Torchia in the carpentry division. Senior Darryl Lewis was entered in Building Maintenance on the state level.

Seventy students comprised the cast of the VICA Club this year. This was VICA's highest membership ever and it included students of both sexes. VICA, Vocational Industrial Clubs of America, gave students a chance to promote skills in various vocational areas.

Advisor Mr. Morrison commented, "VICA's main goal is to promote leadership, human relations and vocational education."

IA Members Provide Useful Services

The Instant Action Club dedicated themselves to a year of useful services to the students and faculty of Red Bank Regional and the surrounding community.

Traditionally, the club ushered at such places as the Monmouth Arts Center, and other such school activities as

Back-to-School Night and the MAECOM Night School.

The club was likewise authorized to collect attendance cards in the emergency evacuations at the school and use walkie-talkies and their own foot power to assist Mr. John Moses. During each evacuation, they were seen walking through the parking lots, picking up the important attendance slips from the homeroom teachers.

The President of the Instant Action Club was senior Bill Joo. Vice President Chuck Morris, also a senior, explained that, "The Instant Action Club provides services that help the community, the faculty, and the students in various activities."

Vermont Greets Skiers With 3 Feet of Snow

What would make you get up at 6:15 A.M. when it was 4° and snowy? This question was answered by Buc students on the first ski trip of the year at Stowe, Vermont. Three feet of snow blanketed the ground and provided challenging skiing for the 131 people who went on this overnight trip.

The eager students boarded three buses on the afternoon of Friday, January 15 for the three day trip. When the students arrived at the Burlington Sheraton, the students were served refreshments and given their itinerary.

On Saturday the weather was snowy and 15°, Sunday it was sunnier but colder at 4°. Senior Alison Reid enthusiastically said, "The skiing was fantastic, everyone had a blast!"

Once back at the hotel on Saturday night there was plenty of entertainment. Many students and chaperones relaxed in the whirlpool while others ate at the pizza party.

The ski trip was a big success and enjoyed by all. Senior Ed Flego said, "The skiing was great, the accommodations were great, we all had a good time."

Charity Work Keeps Key Club Busy

Raising money for the Monmouth Center for Vocational Rehabilitation the Key Club participated in its annual "Be an Angel, Buy an Angel" fundraising campaign. Members of the club sold these Christmas ornaments at the Monmouth Mall on December 14.

The Key Club, a service organization that served both the school and the community, also participated in the Walk for Mankind, Special Olympics and the annual school Blood Drive. In addition, during the year the club delivered gifts to Riverview Hospital's Pediatrics Ward and helped the Salvation Army collect money during the Christmas Holiday.

"The Key Club is composed of a group of students who have a commitment to serve others in the community as well as in the school. They have a genuine concern to help other individuals and community members," summed up Dr. EdRoyal Scott, Key Club Advisor.

Choir Debuts at "Gospel Extravaganza"

"Tell me how does it feel when you come out the wilderness . . ." and "If you don't know Jesus in the pardons of your sins . . ." were just some of the first lines of the arrangements sung by the newly-formed gospel choir. The choir made its debut at Monmouth Regional High School's "Gospel Extravaganza" on February 3.

Mrs. Anhanette Clark, the choir's director, was assisted during rehearsals by Mrs. Linda Ward, the choir's pianist, and Miss Elizabeth Nicholson.

"It has been the desire of many students here to form a gospel choir. Finally, this dream of many has become a reality. It is hoped that the formation of this choir will serve to motivate young people in a positive direction," summed up Mrs. Clark.

The school's curriculum enabled a student to reach higher for his or her goals, to excel in academic achievement and to prepare for a vocational or college-related future. The students of Red Bank Regional displayed enormous talent, they survived the frustrations of a load of homework, college board examinations and term papers. All of this work was difficult, but the faculty knew how to prepare students for postgraduation. As the main purpose of the school, the curriculum expanded to include a Basic Skills Improvement Program, and a Performing Arts Program which featured Creative Writing, Dance, Drama and Television Production. All Buccaneers reached for the best, our aims were high and we made our school a great place to attend. Bucs tried to reach their full potential in life, we used the Media Center to conduct research, the Guidance Department to assist in preparing future career choices and the Board of Education to strengthen the necessary ties that held our school together. Whether our favorite class was Drama, Building Trades, Chemistry, Biology, Physical Education, Music or eighth period, the Bucs excelled for the stars and our goal was to someday reach them.

Computers Stress Commitment to Excellence

Stressing the school's continued commitment to excellence, the administration incorporated computers into the school's curriculum. Microcomputers were located in the Media Center, the "Buc Stop," and the physics classes. Principal Dr. Robert M. Nogueira felt that every graduating student should have some knowledge of computers because people are entering "the information age."

Aside from the incorporation of computers, the performing arts program began its first year. Students studied acting, creative writing, television production and dance in preparation for future careers.

Also, there were several new courses initiated into the curriculum program this year. These were the A.P. or advanced placement classes. Included in the new offerings were the History A.P., Physics A.P., and Computer Science A.P. The administration also enforced the Basic Skills Improvement Program (BSIP) to help students meet graduation requirements.

Preparations were also made for upcoming Scholastic Aptitude Tests (S.A.T.'s). A Saturday morning course was offered at our school for interested students. Also, class time was taken by teachers to present students with typical S.A.T. problems.

Dr. Nogueira summed up his views by saying, "We're an exceptional school; and when you're an exceptional school, everyone has to work hard to remain an exceptional school."

Board Ups SAT Scores

Proving that progress can be achieved if students get proper instruction and leadership from teachers and administrators, the State Board of Education commended Red Bank Regional for its increased scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT's). Red Bank Regional was one of eight New Jersey high school districts honored. Mathematics test scores rose about 35 points from the previous year.

Another issue addressed by the Board was the boost in the budget for the development of the Performing Arts curriculum. This program was designed for exceptionally talented students in dance, drama, television production and creative writing. Superintendent Dr. Donald D. Warner said of the arts program, "It is very unique. We are the only full-time performing arts school in Monmouth County and probably in New Jersey."

The Board also approved an alternative physical education program for those students who participated in a varsity sport. Students had to receive parental permission and a review of the student's request for exemption was conducted. But, students had to return to their regular physical education class when the sport's season ended.

Aside from the alternative physical education program, the study of computers was also stressed. Dr. Warner recommended that every student become involved in computers. In the school 80% of the staff was involved with computers. "Computers are not a fad, they are here to stay. Computers should be placed throughout the school because when students graduate, they will need computer skills to compete in the job market," stated Dr. Warner.

Art Exhibitions Display Talent

Increasing a student's artistic abilities, the art department, supervised by Mr. Arthur Albrizio, held three months of art exhibitions at the Red Bank Public Library. The exhibitions displayed young artistic talent to the general public from January to March. Other activities students participated in included the S.O.B.E.R. poster contest, the Teen Arts Festival and the annual Red Bank Window Painting Contest.

The art classes were taught by Mr. John Brzostoski and Mr. Carmine Forte. These men allowed a free but productive atmosphere for the students to work. Mr. Forte stated, "The students and I have become a family." The classes concentrated on such skills as pottery, painting and sketching.

Curriculum for the art department included Art I, II, III and IV. The Art I course was designed for the average students with the goal of increasing his/her artistic abilities and knowledge. This first year course taught students the many basic areas of art. The advanced art classes were designed to expose students to new kinds of art and art materials.

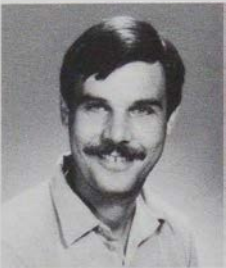

Anne Foster, a four year art student, stated, "Art class was a terrific opportunity to display individual talents." Mr. Brzostoski believed, "If Napoleon had been an artist, there would not have been a war."

Basic Skills Focuses on Developmental Lab

Highly concerned with providing supplemental assistance in areas of reading and math, the Basic Skills Improvement Program (BSIP) introduced a new Developmental Skills Lab for incoming freshmen. Miss Mary E. Johnson, director of the BSIP Program, commented, "The staff members are enthusiastic about their part in a program whose purpose is to provide students with the help they need to meet graduation requirements." Basic Skills teachers Mrs. Diane Browne, Mrs. Mary Pat Carroll and Mrs. Linda Ward taught developmental skills in all areas. Students met one period a day to set and achieve personal and academic goals. This lab also emphasized the study habits and techniques which improved student's ability to perform in all academic areas. Mrs. Linda Ward commented, "One of the reasons I enjoy it is that the students are talented in many other areas."

Home/School Coordinator Mrs. Anthanette Clark was also a major addition to BSIP. She worked in a two-fold capacity, by getting acquainted with students to better understand their needs and performances in a school setting and by serving as a liaison between the school and family. Mrs. Clark attended conferences with parents, students, administrators and teachers to help solve discipline problems and she regularly made home visitations to talk to parents about their child's performance in school.

The BSIP Program also provided continuation services for students who met graduation requirements but needed support to maintain the gains they made. Eight instructional aides worked with classroom teachers in English and math classes. Mrs. Brenda Tucillo, the program's secretary, handled all the record keeping and organization of work. The program's introduction to computers continued this year with the addition of new Apple II computers.

Co-Op Offers Occupational Skills

Covering a wide range of interest and career opportunities, the Cooperative Work Experience Program, supervised by Mr. Alan Morrison, gave students the chance to gain occupational skills and on-the-job training while still in high school. Students went to school for half a day to complete their required courses, and then they spent the rest of the day at a job of their choice.

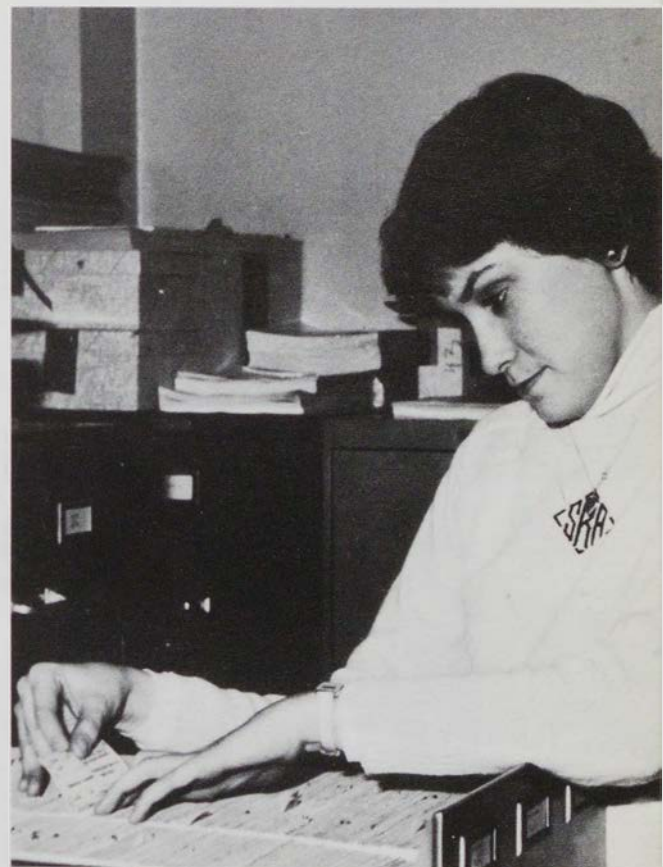

Aside from offering job training, the department infused microcomputers into the curriculum. The department offered word and data processing to adapt its curriculum to new job opportunities.

There were five "CO-OP" programs: Cooperative Home Economics (CHE), headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Tibbets, Cooperative Office Education (COE), headed by Mr. Nicholas Pizzuli, Distributive Education (DE), headed by Mr. Joseph Farrell, and three Cooperative Industrial Education (CIE) programs, supervised by Mr. James Dadeenas and Mr. Robert Lock.

The students in the CO-OP curriculum also belonged to its various clubs. Fifteen CIE students attended the Future Homemakers of America — Home Economics Related Occupations (FHA-HERO) convention this year. Most students in the COE curriculum belonged to Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), DE students belonged to the Marketing and Distributive Education Clubs of America (MDECA) and CIE students formed a club under the same name.

Mr. Dadeenas summed up the CIE program by saying, "All the CO-OP programs are very good. They serve the needs of the students. But, CIE is different in that it offers students a large variety of job opportunities. It challenges the student's abilities and skills in the various trades. It also challenges the coordinator to be able to supply career choices."

English Department Develops More Variety

Attempting to develop more of a core curriculum, the English Department re-evaluated its courses to give teachers a wider variety of literary choices. Supervised by Dr. John Cone, the English Department strove to increase a student's listening and speech skills. Dr. Cone commented, "Expression and clearness of speech must be emphasized more strictly."

The department's staff also paid more attention to reading comprehension and the ability to write based on analytical thinking. The department's writing center, located on the mezzanine of the Media Center, served this purpose. The center provided help to all students with writing difficulties.

Grammar, punctuation, sentence structure and vocabulary continued to be emphasized in an attempt to prepare students more thoroughly for the Scholastic Aptitude Tests. The English Department also provided students with detailed instructions for writing research papers. Dr. Cone stated that the new Osborne Word Processor was used as a possible writing tool for the department.

Another important aspect of the curriculum included drama. Mrs. Renee Maxwell's two plays added to the cultural aspects of the English Department.

This year the department was pleased to congratulate Dr. Cone on the publication of his fifth work — The First Rival of the Metropolitan Opera. The work celebrated the 100th Anniversary of the Metropolitan Opera and discussed the beginning of the Opera. "The English Department is always striving for excellence," summarized Dr. Cone.

Sloun Helps Aid Future of Languages

Adding a new dimension to the study of foreign language, the foreign language department, supervised by Dr. John Cone, incorporated computers into the language curriculum. In January the department hosted an assembly from New York's Fordham Preparatory School. Reverend Russell Sloun was the guest lecturer. The assembly was attended by language staffs from several area schools. Reverend Sloun spoke about the use of computers for teaching elementary foreign languages.

Aside from its concentration on computers, the department planned foreign films for the general public. Also, the possibility of a foreign language honors class within a few years was contemplated.

Two new teachers were incorporated into the foreign language staff. Mr. Walter Manheim taught German and Mr. Richard Stock taught French and Spanish. "I enjoy working with the students because they are serious and hard-working," commented Mr. Stock.

All in all the foreign language department began to make itself noticed. Senior Spanish student Sharon Lancero stated, "It's hard work. But, we also do a lot of fun things such as Christmas caroling for the other classes." Also, with the recent influx of foreigners to this country it was said by Dr. Cone that, "in this day and age, knowing more than one language is advantageous."

Guidance Sponsors College Tour

Students whose minds focused on a future four-year college went on a three-day, two-night college tour to seven colleges in the Boston area, through the guidance department. The colleges involved in the tour were Boston College, Boston University, Northeastern, Harvard-Radcliffe, Emerson College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Simmons College. Twelve college-bound seniors traveled with Mrs. Jacobson on the trip. Mr. Albrizio, head of the guidance department, stated, "We were the only school in the area with any overnight tours." In the spring Mr. Albrizio sponsored an overnight tour for juniors to various colleges in Pennsylvania.

In October, the guidance department provided an informational program for college-bound students when representatives from five colleges talked about financial aid and college admissions. The program allowed students and parents to have a chance to talk with the representatives. On January 19 the financial aid and admissions officers from Rider College, Mr. Davis, informed students and parents about filling out the New Jersey Financial Aid Form (FAF).

In addition to the college admissions program, the department also planned several college fairs. The annual NJ College Fair took place to give juniors and seniors the opportunity to ask questions and read about such New Jersey colleges as Seton Hall University, Princeton and Stockton State. There was also a NJ Vocational and Trade School fair for students who were interested in going into the vocational fields.

This year, Mrs. Sharon Hackett was appointed as a full-time guidance counselor following the retirement of Mrs. Joan King. Also, Mrs. Carol Freedman was appointed as Scholarship chairperson for graduating seniors.

Computers Prepare Students for Future

The math department provided programs to prepare students for their future careers. Several diverse programs were offered to meet the needs of the students.

According to Algebra teacher, Mrs. Burke, "Algebra is the keystone of higher mathematics. New teaching methods may be introduced but the basics don't change." Such higher math courses as Geometry, Analytical Geometry, Pre-Calculus, Advanced Placement Calculus and Trigonometry were designed to increase the conceptual and logical thinking of the students.

The computer math courses were designed to prepare students for the technical world of the future. Computer Math teacher Mr. Unger said, "No matter how powerful computers become, they will never match the complexity of the human mind which is the most powerful computer of all." The math department provided the opportunity for students to learn computer languages and their uses in solving mathematical problems.

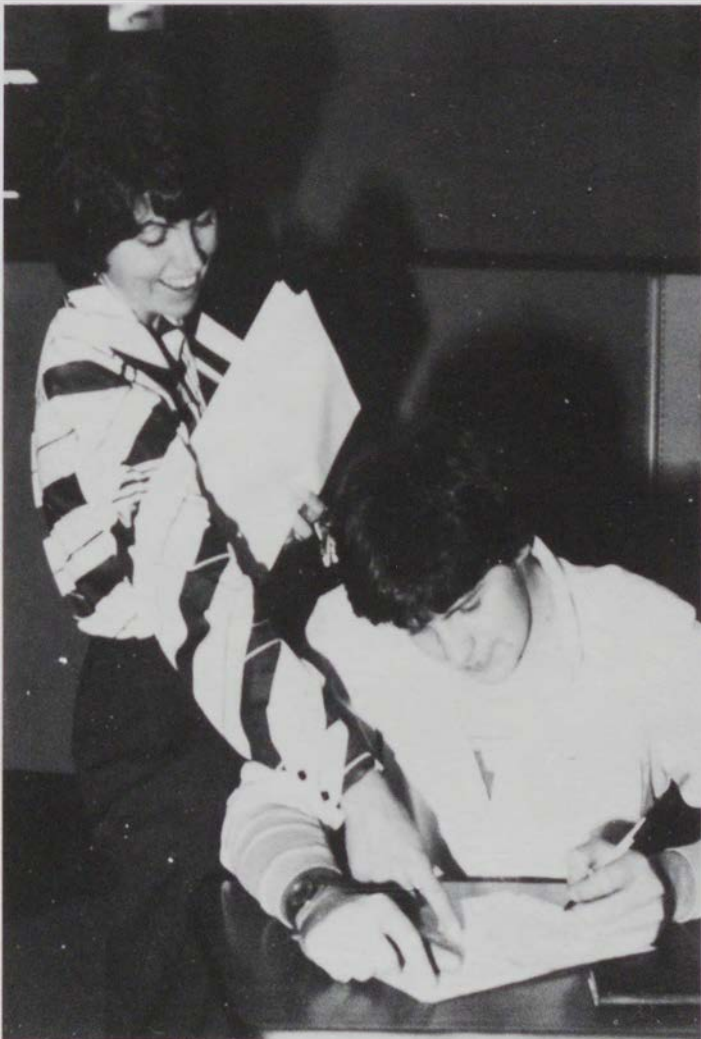

Offering individuals the opportunity to learn mathematical computations and their applications in daily living was the Basic Math program. Computer program packets were designed to meet the needs of this course. Students used the packets to supplement the material in workbooks. The use of the packets enabled the daily living problems to reflect current prices and needs within the community.

Department Chairperson Dr. Larry Seip expressed his belief that all levels of math teach logical reasoning skills which should enable students to solve situations which they will encounter in their future.

Preparing for a technically advanced future, the Media Center received a computer grant from the State Department of Education. This grant was used by the Media Center to buy disks that related to simulations in different job fields. "Introduction to Vocation: Computer Literacy Infusion," involved Mr. Hird, project director, Mr. Gance, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Cheyne in curriculum writing for field test purposes.

Also, the center issued a catalog of software and video tapes to the faculty. Mr. Hird, Media Center Coordinator, commented that, "It's incredible how the number of students who signed up to use the computers has increased dramatically over the last year. We have several computers open every period, of every day for use, by everyone, and they are constantly in use."

Aside from the computer grant, the Media Center held its annual Book Fair on November 14-16. Most of the new books that were purchased were fiction because they tend to be read the most. Also, the Media Center added art encyclopedias and books to its literary criticism section and telecommunication reference section.

Staff members of the Media Center included Mrs. Margaret Brown, who took care of secretarial duties, and aides Mrs. Mildred Scoppetuolo and Mrs. Genevieve Galatro, who checked out materials, managed supplies and shelved books. Also, sophomore Scott Burns worked two hours a day filling orders and shelving books. Scott spent most of his time putting equipment inventory on P.F.S., a computer software program. Scott commented, about his duties by saying, "I like working on the computer because it is very interesting."

Marching Band Visits "The Sunny Skies"

Dr. John Cone
Department Chairman

Mr. Steven Schleicher
Music Director

The tune "We need the sunny skies and palm trees of Florida" became repetitious in the minds of marching band members. Mr. Steven Schleicher, Music Director, and the marching band looked forward to the annual band trip to Florida. They played at Disneyworld, Seaworld and the futuristic Epcot Center. The marching band raised money through such fund-raisers as the selling of M&M's, cookies and Tom-Wat, a showcase containing an assortment of items. Each member was expected to raise $400 to cover air fare and hotel accommodations.

In addition to playing at football games, the band participated in the All-Shore Marching Band Festival, the Middletown Veteran's Day Parade, the 75th Anniversary of the Shrewsbury Fire Department, the Red Bank Halloween Parade and the New York St. Patrick's Day Parade. Also, the band wore its newly-purchased uniforms starting with the first football game.

Furthermore, the Band Parents of the marching band were to be commended for their active support. This group of concerned parents chaperoned football games, supervised the distribution of the new uniforms, organized fundraisers and planned marching band trips. "The Band Parents were one of the really outstanding groups in support of high school activity," commented Dr. John Cone, Department Chairman.

The music department also consisted of a chorus, orchestra and two band classes. The Music Theory class, which was dropped from the curriculum from lack of interest was back in the running and healthy once more. Also, Mr. Schleicher gave individualized instruction to students during their study and lunch periods.

A "hot" Jazz Band, Pit Orchestra, and Brass Quartet comprised the extracurricular activities of the department. These musical groups performed in the community as well as in the school. Also, the department held various concerts during the winter and the spring.

Mr. Schleicher summed up the department by saying, "This year was a banner year for the music department due mostly to the cooperation of the parents and students."

Dewhurst Strengthens Young Artists' Dreams

"Lights, camera, action, Red Bank Regional proudly presents the opening of its new performing arts school!" This new school was initiated by School Superintendent Dr. Donald Warner, and School Principal Dr. Robert Nogueira after the three "Day in the Arts" programs. A large amount of interest in the areas of drama, dance, creative writing and television production was noticed and this information was brought to the attention of the state government. The school was granted permission to proceed with the program and immediately held auditions.

The designation of the performing arts program opened the door to many visitors. Actress Colleen Dewhurst was among the guests who came to the school. Ms. Dewhurst, a veteran of the theater, and such movies as "The Dead Zone" and "Ice Castles" spoke to the performing arts students about the hardships of theatre life and the glories that come after the struggle. "If you want to do it, you can do it, but there will always be losses," commented Ms. Dewhurst. Ms. Dewhurst did not pursue an acting career until college. She also stated that the theatre was the "only true place where everything is equal" and that one must "remain vulnerable" to rejections. Mr. Jerry Alicea, the dance instructor, contacted Ms. Dewhurst for the interview. Ms. Dewhurst praised entertainers when she said, "When this country wants to show itself at its best, it does not send abroad its politicians, it sends abroad its performers."

"Substance, not flesh explodes from the arts program. The students will be involved in a variety of programs designed to help them refine their technical skills," said Ms. Midge Guerrero, director of the Performing Arts program. Ms. Guerrero's main job was to supervise students and teachers.

Ms. Pamela Farrell was the instructor for the Creative Writing program. She said, "The students and the instructors share their creative talents and the knowledge of professionals in creative writing careers." During the year, the class worked on editing, writing and putting together periodicals. The class was selected by the Dramatics Guild Professional Association of Playwrights for a workshop.

Mr. Joe Russo arrived at Red Bank Regional to join the staff as the drama teacher. He had previously directed the Monmouth Arts Council. Mr. Russo commented, "The performing arts kids have talent, desire and ability. So far they have been very attentive." The drama class worked on many such dramatic presentations as audition pieces, improvisations and body control exercises.

Mr. Alicea was a former dancer in "A Chorus Line" before he came to join the program's staff. He was assisted by Miss Carol Turoff. He stated, "The performing arts students have some experience in their craft. The talented kids are very enthusiastic." During the lunch periods, Mr. Alicea taught dance in the auditorium. Mr. Alicea would like to see more students in the dance program next year.

Mr. John Hird was the instructor of the Television Production program. In this program the students learned such basics of TV production as operating various equipment, writing scripts and the designing of sets. The class made news programs, commercials and documentaries. Mr. Hird stated that the class was "a valuable introduction to the different jobs available in TV production." The class also videotaped plays, sporting events and the instructional work of the Creative Writing, Dance and Drama classes.

The students also seemed to enjoy the first year of the Performing Arts program. One of the Creative Writing students, Kathryn Johnson, said, "It was a wonderful program that we are lucky to have." Another student, Rhonda Williams commented, "Performing Arts is a great opportunity to enhance one's future abilities."

Physical Education Implements Family Life Studies

Increasing a student's knowledge in health, the physical education department, supervised by Mr. Robert Strangia, fully implemented the state mandate on the teaching of family life education. This course was taught in ninth and eleventh grade health classes. This state mandate represented years of work involving students, staff and community members.

The CPR (Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation) and First Aid course continued to prepare seniors to handle emergencies. Sophomore health students received Driver's Education Training. This course enabled sophomores to take their written driver's test. Special units on substance abuse were taught through the regular physical education classes.

Athletic programs were changed so that freshman and sophomore students participated in competitive team sports. These sports included basketball, soccer and football. Junior and senior students concentrated on such "carry-over" sports as tennis, golf and volleyball. Cardio-vascular exercise and physical fitness, because of their importance, were stressed throughout the year.

Sophomore Anita Daniels commented, "I would have enjoyed the physical education classes more if it was non-coed and if students had more choices in the sports they played. But, overall, the programs were very successful."

"We offer a very detailed and comprehensive physical fitness program. This ascribes from the fact that we are fortunate enough to have the nicest physical education facilities on the entire East Coast," summed up Mr. Strangia.

Labs and Computer Pervade Science Studies

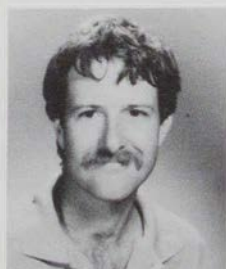

A new excitement pervaded the science department as students combined classroom theory with laboratory experience and the use of today's technology through the computer.

By emphasizing laboratory experiments, the students gained a far greater understanding of sciences by actually performing the experiments than could ever have been gained by merely reading about them.

The science department also incorporated the computer into the program. "We're using the computer to supplement the instruction in lab science. We're using it to analyze data to verify the results of experiments the students do," said Mr. Pierre Layton, Tri-Science teacher. The Advanced Placement Physics class also used computers regularly. The computer was used in the Physics class as well.

"A top priority is the introduction of the computer into the Everyday Science class," said Mr. John Woodward, Everyday Science teacher.

Clary Enhances Holocaust Studies

Highly concerned with increasing a student's awareness in the Holocaust and its impact on modern history, the social studies department, supervised by Mr. Robert Strangia, hosted a Holocaust assembly on November 16. "Hogan's Heroes" star, Robert Clary, was the guest lecturer. He spoke about his experiences in Germany during the Second World War. The assembly was attended by juniors and seniors from around the county. "It was an event where the biggest amount of people died without fighting an enemy," said Mr. Clary.

In addition to the Holocaust studies, the Social Studies Department added two new courses. The Contemporary Issues course, taught by Mr. Steven Johnson, emphasized contemporary issues at home and in the world. This two semester course covered such topics as minorities in America, substance abuse and world problems. The course was open to juniors and seniors as an elective.

The Advanced Placement History course was the other new course. The course, also taught by Mr. Johnson, was designed so that students could obtain college credit after completion of the course and achieving a suitable passing grade on the Advanced Placement test. Senior Michelle Most, an AP History student, said, "It was a good introduction to the history courses one may encounter in college."

On January 31, after 19½ years of dedicated service, US History teacher

Mrs. Sue Hoffmann resigned. Mr. Strangia commented, "She was a dedicated, loyal, outstanding teacher who will be deeply missed by both the students and her colleagues." Mrs. Hoffmann's classes had the opportunity to become involved in political campaigns, writing contests and school elections. Mrs. Hoffman stated, "I think that the students of Red Bank Regional were very aware of the world in which they live, and they were very inquisitive. Those qualities have made teaching very exciting."

"The new courses offered are part of the continuing efforts of the social studies department to provide for student's needs when they graduate," summed up Mr. Strangia.

Clean Sweep by Coastal

Trying to establish a more efficient school system, a new janitorial system, supervised by Mr. Rick Ruckdeschel, was contracted on July 1. The new system, Coastal Building Maintenance, included eight custodians previously employed by the Board of Education. "For me, it has been a year of surprise, excitement and learning. I can only hope the relationship between Coastal Building Maintenance and Red Bank Regional will continue to achieve our ultimate goal of being the best we can be," summed up Mr. Ruckdeschel.

Aside from the new janitorial service, the cafeteria service also changed. A new food service establishment, Ja-Ce Company, was hired to manage the cafeteria aides. Mrs. Priscilla Berberian was appointed the new Supervisor of Food Services. This year a larger variety of hot sandwiches and a la carte items were served. French fries were also served daily.

Enforcing the rules of the school were the three hall aides who kept students in line and made certain school policies were enacted. Teachers also had hall monitoring and in-school suspension room duties to aid in the enforcement of rules.

New Equipment Enhances Vocational Education Department

The Vocational Department, supervised by Mr. Allan Morrison, had an effective year because of the balance of emphasis among modern equipment, up-to-date curriculum, and competent, interested instructors as well as emphasis on jobs for today leading to careers for tomorrow.

A valve grinder and upgraded diagnostic equipment were added to the Small Engines class. Additional measures for operator safety included automatic blade stoppers and ignition shut-offs, Graphic Communications received a new offset press, while the Electronics classes were enhanced by the addition of digital and logic trainers. Building Maintenance added a training carrell for alarm systems. Keeping pace with the electronic office, Office Procedures classes received machine transcribers, word processors and four Apple II computers. This additional equipment helped an already outstanding vocational facility maintain its ability to graduate students with the skills necessary to meet the current needs of the community.

Another step taken to ensure that the skills being taught were current was the continual process of updating curriculum. A second year of Electronics Technology was added to the curriculum; Automotive Mechanics was extended to three periods a day.

Curriculum changes in the future were likely to deal with computer technology; consequently, several staff members throughout the school including many from the vocational department took a course in computers this fall. Mr. Schneider, Small Engines teacher, felt that "the course exposed him to the world of computers as applied to his trade."

The department gained a new staff member in Mr. Howe who taught courses in Employment Orientation, Technical Drawing, Exploring Construction and Building Trades. Mrs. Naomi Werse retired after thirty-five years.

The purpose of teachers, curriculum and equipment was to encourage students to look for jobs which will be stepping stones for rewarding careers. A measure of the success of the program was the increased student participation in the vocational clubs. The Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA), Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA), Home Economics Related Occupations (HERO), and Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) greatly expanded their programs this year.

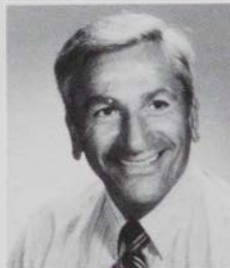

In addition to the coordinators of the various work experience programs, Mrs. Sharon Hackett, Job Placement Coordinator, helped many students to locate such jobs. She also provided valuable help to vocational students in the area of career exploration.

The stage was set. The lights were low. Out came the cast of characters that made Red Bank Regional unique in 1984 — its students! The players consisted of scholars, cattle rustlers, hobbie masters, and champion gymnasts as well as Performing Arts dancers and actors, who reached deep within themselves to catch a star or a plane! Whether it was to perform well on the PSAT's or to learn how to operate a private aircraft, Red Bank Regional students "broke a leg" in order to accomplish their goals.

Bells Ring for Melissa and Lynne

Do the names Melissa Kline and Lynne Reilly ring a bell? They should because they were very dedicated handbell ringers at the First Presbyterian Church in Red Bank. The two seniors were six-year veterans of the program and were members of the Calvin group, the most talented bell ringing group of the church. The girls practiced twice a week in order to perfect their talents.

Throughout the year Lynne and Melissa performed at other churches. Lynne said of their performances, "Ringing bells for audiences is a unique experience that I love doing because the bells are fun to play and they sound beautiful. When our whole group performs together and perfects a song, the long hours of practice are totally forgotten."

Each year a bell tour was organized. The hand bell groups traveled by bus to such places as New York, Michigan and Canada. This year the tour went to Disney World in Florida. When asked about the importance of playing hand bells, Melissa commented, "Being in bells is like being in the honor society of a student body."

Marlow Learns Lesson at UCLA

Summer for most people meant spending time with friends or lying on the beach. But for Laura Marlow, summer was a continuous learning experience. While her friends were soaking up the sun, Laura was working hard, taking an acting course at UCLA in California. At the University she attended three classes: Interpretation of the Stage, Basic Acting, and Special Problems in Performance Technique.

Since Laura was 10 years old, she had an ambition to be a profession actress-singer-dancer. "She started in a small group called the "Red Sneakers", and is now involved in a group call "The Explorers"."

Throughout high school, Laura participated in many theatrical productions. As a freshman, she had a small part in the Junior and Senior Plays. She had a minor part in the Junior Play as a sophomore. It is Laura's opinion that it is "important to have small parts and participate in plays. In her junior year, Laura had a lead in the Senior Play, "Guys and Dolls". Also during that year she sang on stage for her first time in a musical performed at the Monmouth Arts Center. As a senior she was involved in the Performing Arts Program.

At UCLA, Larua learned and experienced competition on a college level. She was able to understand self-discipline and the importance of self-expression. "I found the courses difficult because I didn't stand out." Laura commented, "I was just another student and that taught me a lesson. It raised my personal standards concerning my acting."

Gomez Finds Happiness in the U.S.

Discovering opportunities for happiness in the United States, Carmen Gomez of Spain came to live and learn in Little Silver this year through the efforts of Y.F.U., Youth For Understanding. Living with the Sieben family, Carmen received firsthand knowledge about life in the U.S. When asked about her American "family," Carmen replied, "The Siebens are wonderful. I feel very close to all of them."

Carmen seriously began to consider becoming an exchange student last year, influenced by her brother, Francisco, who left Spain last year to live in Pennsylvania as a Y.F.U. transfer. At that time, Carmen and her family sponsored an American girl in their home for the year.

Carmen, who planned to major in mathematics, hoped that her stay would make her more fluent in the English language. She is also very interested in the American people. "I like to learn about things and other people," Carmen said. "I came to the U.S. to discover the people and their lifestyles."

Carmen planned to return to Spain in June, but said she might come back here someday to live. She said, "If you find good people and good possibilities in another country, then you should find happiness living there."

Verkooyen Places in North Americans

This past summer Senior Johanna Verkooyen visited Fort Worth, Texas to participate in the Junior and Senior North American Lightning Championships as part of the Monmouth Boat Club Sailing Team. These regattas, involving three-men sailboats called Lightnings, lasted one week each. In the Juniors, Johanna and the other members of her crew tied for first place with two of the other twenty boats involved in the race. In the Senior Americans Johanna placed thirtieth out of the eighty contestants.

Johanna has sailed competitively ever since she was seven years old, when she took lessons from the Monmouth Boat Club. For the past nine years, she has received various awards for winning races and placing in others, but none as prestigious as the North Americans.

Johanna also spent last summer as a sailing instructor for the Club. "It was something I looked forward to doing ever since I was a little kid." Johanna said, "I enjoy teaching younger kids about sailing."

Doole Attends Governor's School

While some people experienced the monotony of summer, senior Bruce Doole received a sample of college while attending the First Governor's School of New Jersey. Bruce was selected by our guidance office to represent Red Bank Regional High School in the program which was held at Monmouth College during the month of July.

Students nominated as candidates for this honor were selected on the basis of academics mixed with world travel, mastery of a foreign language or participation in community activities. Aside from being an excellent student, Bruce visited the Soviet Union, the Middle East, and all of the countries of Western Europe. Only 113 of the 600 candidates were admitted to the program; they were selected proportionately regarding the number of schools in each county.

The students attended evening seminars conducted by representatives from such organizations as RCA, NASA and Bell Labs. The theme of the program centered around state and global issues including such areas as energy conservation, the nuclear struggle and world hunger. Other guests included Governor Kean and Gerald McCarn, mayor of Jersey City.

"It was like mini-college," Bruce said. In the mornings the students split up into groups called intensive courses where they discussed the seminars with respect to the courses they were taking. Bruce's class was called Global Futures and Emerging Technologies. School was over by noon leaving the students time for normal summer activities and friends.

Bruce reflected on the knowledge, the fun, the memories and new friends acquired during that month and commented, "I wouldn't mind if it lasted a lot longer."

Doole and Dixon Honored by Congress

Although they were given only three days to gather information and complete applications, Bruce Doole and Delores Dixon won Congressional Awards for their achievements in public service, personal development and physical fitness.

The Congressional Award was established by a law developed from a bill sponsored by Congressman James Howard, to recognize the achievements of young people between 14 and 23. It was awarded in three degrees: gold, silver and bronze. Both Bruce and Delores were silver medal winners.

Their achievements varied widely. Delores made the All-State Girls' Basketball Team and participated in the AUU Basketball Tournament. She worked part-time for the school and was a Sunday School teacher at the Calvary Baptist Church. Bruce's achievements included being an Eagle Scout, writing a paper on Greek political history, winning a poetry contest, and attending the First Governor's School of New Jersey and the World Hunger Conference. Bruce participated in a graduated lifting program and benched 290 lbs. He also designed and distributed 6,000 flyers in two military housing areas in Germany while traveling in Europe and prepared an emergency evacuation backpack.

Both Bruce and Delores were proud of their achievement. Bruce stated that the award "demonstrated the good that kids can contribute to the community." Delores had this to say: "It inspires you to set more goals for yourself because you know that you are getting recognition for something you have done."

Williams Not Just Selling Cookies!

For senior Judy Williams, Girl Scouting was not just selling cookies. It meant more than camping and acquiring badges to those young women who dedicated themselves to the program.

Judy was quite advanced in the Girl Scouting program. After filing an application, she was accepted to represent Red Bank and a percentage of Monmouth County Scouts at the 1983 National Program Conference. The convention of scouts from across the nation met in the spring of 1983 in Hershey, Pennsylvania for four days. During her stay, Judy attended workshops and brought the information she learned back to her local troupe.

The year following acceptance to the National Program Conference, a scout may apply for a program on a higher level. This year Judy was accepted to attend the "International Events Abroad" Conference. In this "exchange-student" program, scouts may visit anywhere out side the continental United States for a minimum of a week. However, her destination was not revealed before she applied for the program. "You go into it blindly", Judy explained, "because it's such a wonderful opportunity." The program gives a Girl Scout the chance to either work on a community project in another country or live with a foreign family like an exchange student and experience another way of life.

Keenan and Wilkens Qualify for NMSQT

Congratulations were in order for seniors Eric Wilkens and Stephanie Keenan for becoming National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists. This Scholarship was for people who scored in the top .05% on the PSAT's. Finalists received at least $1000, an amount which could be increased through corporate scholarships that operate through the National Merit Program.

Eric and Stephanie, who both planned to major in engineering were recognized by the New York Times for their achievement. "To advance to the finals your SAT's have to be of the same caliber and you must have academic achievement," explained Stephanie, who applied to MIT, Rutgers College of Engineering, and The Naval Academy. She also received a 4-year Rutgers Presidential Scholarship.

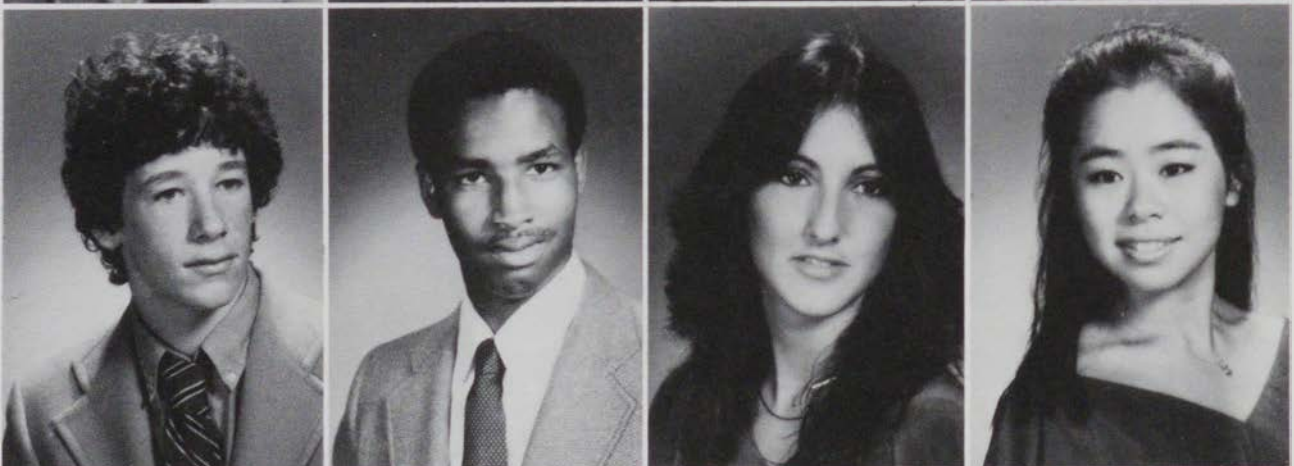

"College is going to cost Mega-Bucks, so I need all the help I can get," commented Eric, who applied to Cornell, University of Colorado, MIT and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Nichols Explores Air for Possible Career

Someday, ten years from now, on your annual trip to Bermuda or Florida, you might find yourself "flying the friendly skies" with Captain Scott Nichols, your pilot. Scott explored the airways for a possible career goal this year.

Scott was a member of the Civil Air Patrol's Bayshore Squadron. The CAP, a civilian auxiliary of the Air Force, taught cadets discipline. The group met every Wednesday night in the 400 area of Fort Monmouth. Scott achieved the position of Cadet Commander, the highest ranking cadet.

During the Summer of 1982, he spent a week at Lakehurst Naval Air Base, where he attended classes in Aerodynamics and Visual Flight Rules. He also went up in a plane with the instructors to practice flight maneuvers.

The Civil Air Patrol gave its members the opportunity to attend training schools. Scott attended the North East Regions Communication School and the Ground Search and Rescue School.

Scott also owned a solo license and had twenty-five of the forty hours required flying time toward his private pilot's license. Scott flew in aircrafts owned by the senior members of the Squadron. When asked about the danger involved in flying, Scott replied, "When you're up there it's extremely scary. Anything could happen. The planes are so small that you get tossed around like a ping-pong ball. That's what scares everyone."

Chergotis Dances to Perpetuate Heritage

Zorba the Greek once said, "To dance is to live ... to live is to dance." This opinion was held by many Greek people including senior Stella Chergotis, a member of the Hellenic Dancers of New Jersey.

This troupe, under the direction of Eleni Chakalos, consisted of 60 Greek Americans ranging in age from 13 to 25, who were interested in perpetuating their heritage. These young people performed authentic folk dances from the mainland and many islands surrounding Greece. Karpathos, Crete, Kassos, Rothos, Kriti and Kerkyre were a few examples of these islands. They also performed dances from the Greek colonies of Pontos and Asia Minor. Each "foresies" costume was carefully researched until the authentic style of dress for the region was reproduced down to the jewelry and other accessories. Stella dances in a Pygri, a bridal dress from the island of Hios. The estimated worth of the group's wardrobe was $50,000.

Stella was a member of the Hellenic Dancers for four years. The troupe traveled all over, performing their dances at such places as the Channel Club, the Meadowlands, Rutgers University, Kean College, and California. "Greek dancing," Stella commented, "has enabled me to expand my cultural background as well as make new friends outside of school."

Gordon and Held Provide Community Service

As members of the Little Silver Police Explorer Post 280, seniors Lisa Gordon and Areta Held participated in many community projects. Lisa, a four year veteran of the post, and Areta, a three year member, served under Junior Terry Eaton, the Post's Chief.

The Police Explorers, a branch of the Boy Scouts of America, performed many community services including directing traffic for Red Bank Regional home football games, the March of Dimes Walkathon, the ROP Walk for Hunger, and the Hunt.

Each member of the Post was required to attend the Police Academy in Howell once a week from November to March. At the Academy they received instruction in crime prevention, crowd control, and fire arms operation. Members were given the opportunity to supplement their training by returning to the Academy to take other courses. The girls were tested on the skills that they learned.

Lisa and Areta graduated from the Academy twice by successfully completing two training programs. "Being in the Police Explorers has been a great experience," said Lisa, "I've met and worked with a lot of really nice people and have learned a lot about law and law enforcement."

JUNIORS:

Costa Pushes for National Class

Last summer, junior Mark Costa decided to give up running to participate in the challenging sport of competition cycling. At the age of 16, Mark competed in the junior men's category with other racers from ages 15-18. His first competition took place in Redding, Pennsylvania, in August. He participated in the Tour of Red Bank, where he placed 17th out of the 50 contestants. But for Mark, his eighth place finish in Somerville was probably his best and most challenging race.

During the biking season, Mark combined distance riding with sprints a 150-200 miles a week. Through his training program long, steady, distance — he kept himself in shape and increased his endurance as he averaged 300 miles per week.

When asked why he placed so much importance on so challenging a sport, Mark replied, "I get a lot of satisfaction out of my accomplishments. This is a very individual sport. It isn't something that everyone is in to."

This year, Mark hoped to reach the National Class Races at Bear Mountain, where he would compete with racers from across the country.

Riegleman Devotes Time to A.R.C.

Everyone has heard about Junior Class President Mary Riegleman, the track competitor, but how about Mary Riegleman the A.R.C. volunteer? When she was not kissing babies for campaigns or getting in shape for track, Mary devoted her time to A.R.C., the Association for Retarded Citizens, helping the mentally and physically handicapped.

Four years ago Mary visited her sister at Elks Camp Moore, a camp for the handicapped. The counselors and campers liked her right away and, without even filling out an application, Mary became a counselor. During the summer, she spent a few weeks at the camp as an arts and crafts director.

During the school year, she spent time doing volunteer work for A.R.C. "It gives me a good feeling to be with the handicapped," Mary said. She was a Girl Scout leader for retarded citizens and the vice-president of her Youth Group.

Mary was nine when she first became involved with A.R.C. Her sister involved her in the Special Olympics and an event called "Hand in Hand," a program where volunteers agree to become the companions of mentally disabled persons. She also attended dances for the handicapped. "I enjoy going to dances to help out and to dance. When I leave a program, I feel I am leaving with a hundred friends."

“Tree-Swings” With Ornaments

Swinging snowmen, Santa Clauses, and Jack-in-the-Boxes helped boost the Junior Class treasury. Junior Class Advisor Mrs. Virginia George, Mary Riegleman, and the other members of the Executive Board were able to organize the sale of these Christmas Tree-Swing ornaments in the weeks before the Christmas Holidays.

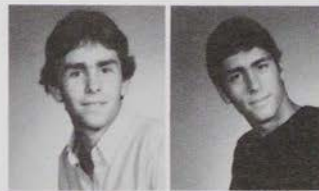

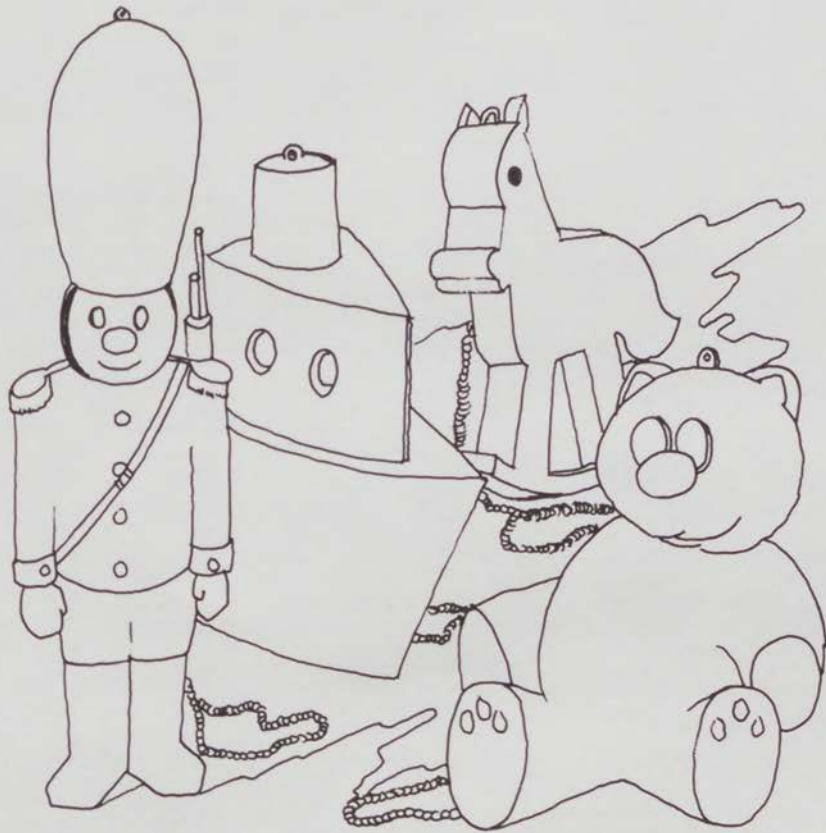

The Tree-Swings, the ornaments for the fundraiser, were tiny wooden figures of animals, rocking horses, children, Santa Clauses, snowmen, and Jack-in-the-Boxes. Each ornament sold for $1.50. “We made a small profit, not a large one,” explained Mary, the Class President. “They sold more outside the school than within.”

The juniors conducted numerous other fundraisers including selling peanuts and candy, and producing a class play, The Diary of Anne Frank. “The play was a lot of fun. We didn’t make a lot, but we came out ahead,” Mary commented. The most successful fundraiser was the sale of Reese’s Peanut Butter Cups and Reese’s Pieces candies.

Candy Corns Sweeten Class Treasury

When is 1144 a magic number? When it's a guess in the sophomore "What's Your Guess?" fundraiser, conducted at Halloween. Placed in a pumpkin-shaped glass jar in the Buc Stop window were 1144 candy corns. For a quarter one could place a guess with a sophomore who sold tickets during lunch periods or in the commons before and after school. Ticket sales started October 24 and lasted until October 28.

The winners were announced on Halloween Day during school. Mrs. Charon, a substitute teacher, was the closest to the answer with a guess of 1136. Jeanne Acerra, a sophomore, was the runner-up. The winner had the choice of the 1144 candy corns or a large pumpkin. Mrs. Charon chose the former, while Jeanne received the pumpkin.

Sophomore Class President Avita Daniels commented on the fundraiser saying, "It was a small success, and we had lots of fun doing it."

Mrs. Browne, the class advisor, added, "For the first activity, I think the class did a good job."

Barnes Tie-dyes for Fun and Profit

Sophomore Julie Barnes turned a favorite hobby into a money-making business. Whenever she had some free time, she tie-dyed. She decorated a wide variety of articles from shirts to handkerchiefs. She only required that the material intended for tie-dying be white cotton.

Julie began tie-dying as a hobby in the third grade. By the eighth grade, she had developed it into a profit-making enterprise. For the best results, Julie used special dyes. After the complex process of tie-dying was completed, fabric paints and crayons were used to add extra color.

Who bought these articles? The market was geared to teenagers, but adults were among her patrons. Julie charged anywhere from seven to ten dollars, which was a bargain compared to possibly paying twenty dollars at a department store.

Julie summed up her interest by saying, "I like tie-dying because you can be artistic and get surprises when you're done."

McCue — Bullish on Awards

When you talk "bull" to sophomore Tammy McCue, it's no nonsense to her. In fact, she probably knows more about "bull" than you do! That's because Tammy has been raising prize-winning steers for nine years.

Tammy's unusual hobby has earned her numerous trophies, countless ribbons, and widespread recognition. Her picture has appeared in the newspaper several times. She has traveled to Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Colorado with her steers to participate in both winter and summer cattle shows.

Every year, Tammy sells her bulls and acquires new ones. Last year, Tammy won second place in a show held in Flemington, New Jersey, with Spike, her present bull. Spike is a two-year old, Black Angus Bull. He is 7 feet long and stands about 4½ feet high. His earspan is 23 inches and he weighs about 1800 lbs. She also owns three cows and four smaller bulls: Bonker, Spunky, Sparky, and Pepper.

When asked what reward she gets from raising steers, Tammy replied, "I meet a lot of different people when I go to out-of-state shows and even when I go to shows in-state." She added, "It's a lot of work, but I enjoy it."

FRESHMEN:

Freshmen Begin Before Elections

Even before the freshman class held its elections, Mrs. Mary Pat Carroll, the Freshman Class Advisor, started a few students on their long, hard road to senior year, by organizing the sale of foam stadium seats at Buccaneer home football games.

The seats, bearing the Red Bank Regional emblem were sold to Buc fans as they entered the bleacher area for three dollars a piece by a band of first year students performing the first fund-raising activity of their high school career.

The election for class officers was held the first week of November, resulting in Erica Harowitz as President, Gina Baron as Vice President, Michael Czarnecki as Representative at Large, Eileen Reardon as Secretary and Michael Cosberg as Treasurer.

"The freshman class is showing some class unity and some interest in class activities," commented Mrs. Carrol. "Our unbeaten football and basketball teams have pulled them together."

Besides the stadium seats, the class also sold T-shirts and cookies. The cookie sale was the most successful of the three fundraisers, having 56 students participate.

Lock Participates in Emergency Radio Drill

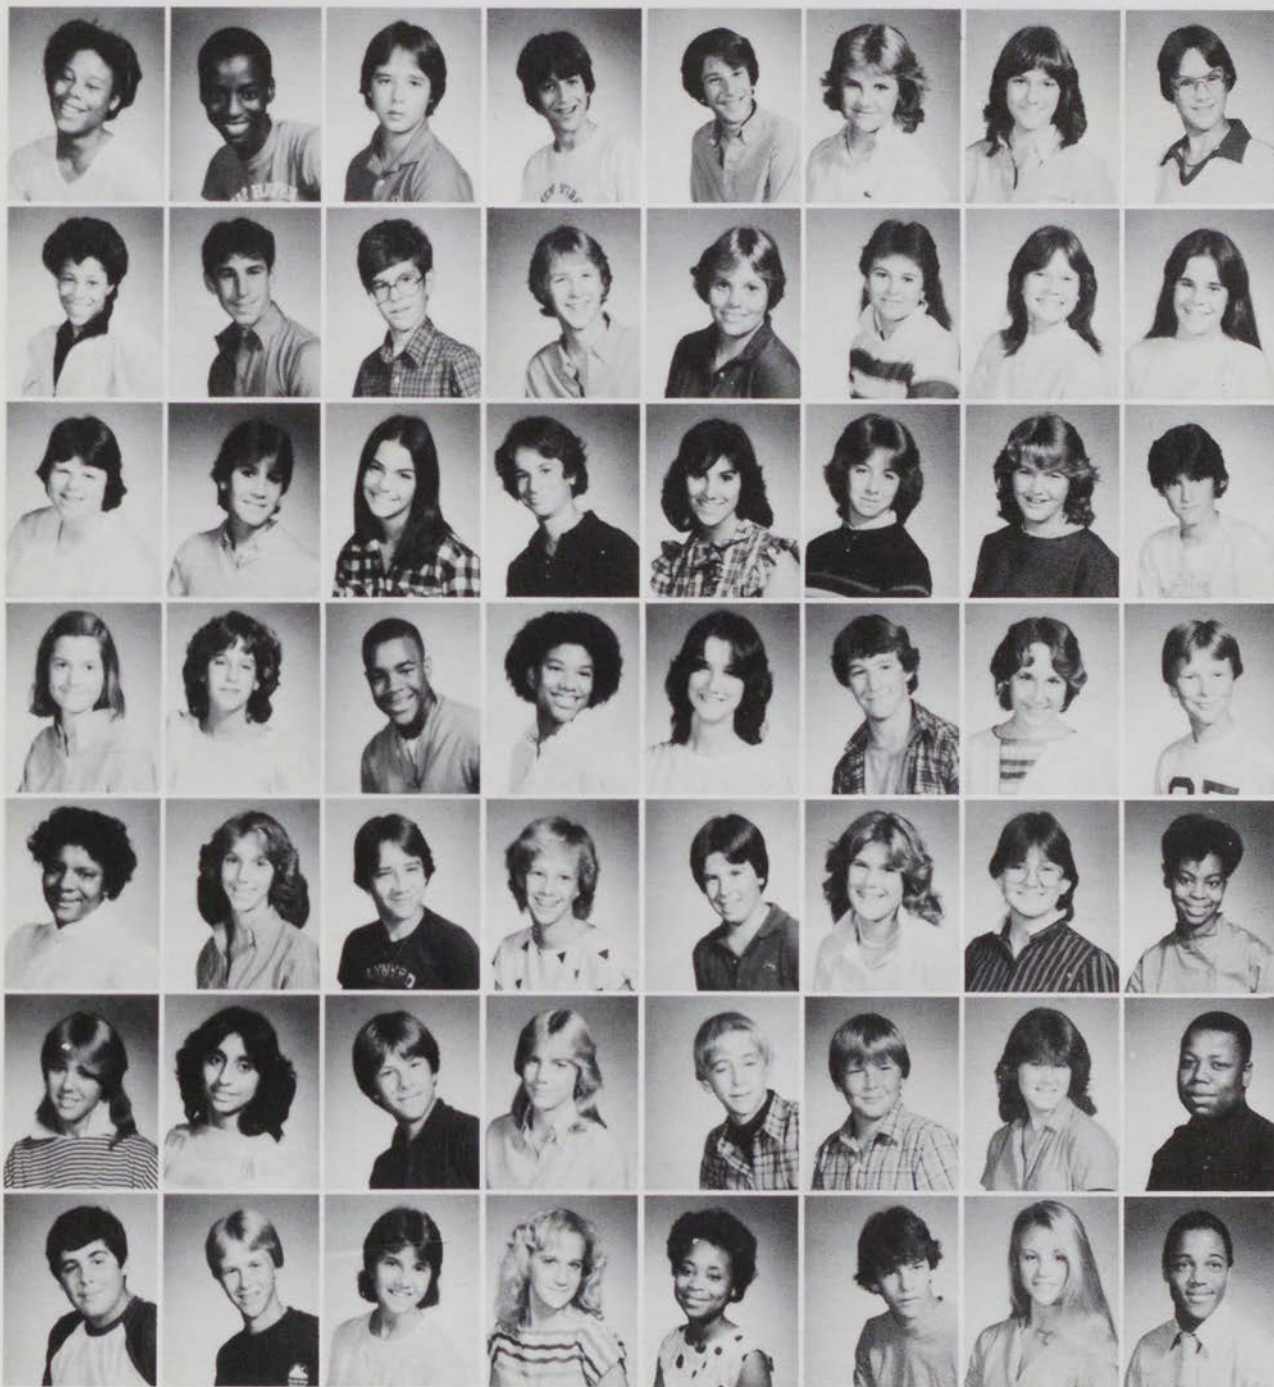

On the last Saturday in June, Canadian and American Amateur Radio Operators participated in an emergency drill. Thousands of ham radio operators throughout North America practiced contact procedures using both morse code and voice transmissions. A small group of local operators met on Sandy Hook with the cooperation of several staff members of the U.S. Coast Guard. Mr. John Orr, electronics teacher, Walter Lock, a freshman, and several RBRHS alumnae participated.

During the 24-hour drill, the local groups competed to see which could record the most radio contacts. Operators worked hard, long hours and enjoyed a special feeling of camaraderie. The camp atmosphere and friendly rivalry, however, were incidental to the drill's vital purpose. In a national emergency situation, commercial radio and TV transmissions may be disrupted. The ham operators were preparing to help maintain communications throughout the continent, in case such an emergency should arise.

Walter, who was an official operator for two years, had this to say about the program. "I wanted to do a service for my country and, being a ham radio operator, I found this to be a great experience. I learned that my skill could be used to help others in case of an emergency."

Cobbs Catches Second in Junior Olympics

Ten years of training finally paid off for fifteen year old freshman Tami Cobbs, when she achieved second place in the trampoline competition of the Junior Olympics held in Cleveland, Ohio, during the 1982-83 school year. Since Tami was five, she trained at the Shrewsbury Gymnastics School. "It's hard work," explained Tami, who was also a student of dancing in the Performing Arts Program, "but its something I want to do." She worked hard to perfect her trampoline routine, until her coach, Ed Soles, owner of the school, decided that she was ready for competition.

Tami achieved first place in the thirteen-fourteen year old division of the Regional Meets held in Edison, N.J. She then went to the National Meets, held in Cleveland, Ohio, where she competed again against other thirteen and fourteen year olds and won first place. The Junior Olympics was her next victory, where she competed against a larger age group of eighteen and under. Her second place score of 88.8 qualified her for the trampoline competition, sponsored by the U.S. Acro-Gymnastics federation. This competition, called "The Worlds," was equivalent to the Olympics for gymnastics. "Trampoline and gymnastics are different sports," explained Tami, who specialized in trampoline.

CLOSING:

Curtain Closes on Performance Year

As the curtain closed on June twentieth, the students and faculty of Red Bank Regional reflected upon a year filled with curtain calls, command performances and individual encores.

Performances in school spirit were displayed during the annual "Spirit Week." Students showed their spirit with spray-painted hair (Punk Rock Day), or stripes and-solids (Clash Day). The Harlem Wizards entertained the students through their "hook shots," "dunks," and "slams." The main event of the year, the Senior Christmas Dance-Breakdance Contest, displayed the individual performances of senior Ronald Delaney and junior Donny Morris.

For athletics it was a rebuilding year; however, certain players received curtain calls, senior Tim Taylor set an unbeaten Shore Conference record in the 400 meters and senior Dolores Dixon was named the Asbury Park Press Athlete-of-the-Week. She continued to dominate the Shore Conference in points and rebounds. Senior Chris McNeil was named a semi-finalist scholar-athlete.

Students Answer Individual Curtain Calls

The clubs stressed the importance to encourage individual talent. This year's Log staff answered the curtain call as the final deadline was reached. The Student Council's Martin Luther King Day Program strove to better unify the student body.

The curriculum answered many curtain calls by expanding its Basic Skills Improvement Program. The administration also developed a new Performing Arts Program for future talent.

Each class had individual performances outside school activities. Seniors Melissa Kline and Lynne Reilly were members of the Calvin handbell ringing group at their church. Freshman Walter Lock participated in a radio clinic at Sandy Hook.

As the class of 1984 left for future jobs or colleges they reflected upon a year of performances from students and a faculty who strove for better understanding between its students. At Red Bank Regional there really was "No Business Like School Business."
