Alligator flushed out

Shell Show winners announced

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

Wednesday at a special preview dinner to the 1994 Sanibel Shell Fair & Show, the winners of the various competitions were announced.

This is the 57th year for the world-renowned shell show, which began with islanders displaying their collections at the Island Inn.

The fair and show runs today, tomorrow and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Center. Parking and admission to the fair is free; admission to the show is $2.

Winning the Master's Award for 1994, Sue Stephens, a Sanibel resident of 18 years, had to admit she was very excited. Looking down the glass-topped cases that extended 35 feet across the exhibit area, Stephens said, "I've been collecting and putting this exhibit together for a long, long time. Some of the shells I've had for over 20 years." Her collection is considered a scientific exhibit.

Criteria for winning the master's was that the exhibit had to have won either the Conchologists of America Award (COA), The Dupont Award by the Delaware Museum, or the Smithsonian Award. Stephens' exhibit had already won the COA and the Dupont.

"Now, there is nothing left to win with this exhibit," she said. "I have to take it home and put it to bed and start on something new."

Stephens has two fossil shells named after her. One has already been published, and another will be released soon. These are fossil shells that she dug up; believing them to be unidentifier' shells, sent them to researchers who studied them and after verifying they had not been previously identified, the shells were given Stephens' name.

Another big winner in the 1994 show, this one in the Artistic Division, was Goz Gosselin, formerly a Sanibel resident, now of Fort Myers. Gosselin submitted eight entries and won eight awards.

The one he was most proud of was a fossil mirror first prize plus the Dorothy Putnam Award.

Council to refinance CHR debt

By Jennifer S. Thuma
Staff Writer

The Sanibel City Council opted to refinance the Community Housing and Resources, Inc. $1.8 million debt at an approximate interest rate of 4.7 percent for 15 years Tuesday.

The facilitator of the city's federally mandated Below Market Rate Housing (BMRH) currently pays eight percent on the loan.

Annual payments under the new financing would be an estimated $168,578 with no remaining balance at the end of the term to be refinanced.

Due to the currently low interest rates, the refinancing would be considerably lower than the interest rate currently paid.

Most of the debt is and will continue to be paid by the residents of BMRH. Jan Hyatt, director of CHR pointed out that currently BMRH residents contribute approximately $145,000 of the $168,578, while the remaining sum is covered by the city, which addresses maintenance needs, insurance costs and other miscelleaneous expenses.

The other option presented by NationsBank and considered by the council would have refinanced the $1.8 million at 4.75 percent over a 10-year period with annual payments of $140,408, with a remaining balance of $1,107, 455 to be refinanced at the end of the term.

Legal fees for both options would be around $5,000, although City Attorney Robert Pritt believed the fees would probably be somewhat higher than the figures quoted on the memorandum.

In order to proceed with a plan, City Manager Gary Price

CEPD details $10.9 million beach restoration proposal

By Max Friedersdorf
Staff Writer

The five Captiva Erosion Prevention District (CEPD) commissioners waded into the murky waters of deciding how to divide a $1.76 million federal rebate Wednesday evening.

After listening to a complex recommendation by the district lawyer, Nancy Stroud, the commissioners decided to delay a final decision on how to divide up the money among Captiva property owners.

At the same meeting the commissioners also received the first formal glimpse of another beach renourishment project slated for 1996 with a $10.9 million price tag.

District engineer Tom Campbell got the go-ahead from the commissioners to proceed with details of the project which will extend the 5.8-mile Captiva beach up to 90 feet in some of the worst eroded spots.

Campbell said the Captiva beach erosion continues to be a serious problem, particularly with the heavy wave action experienced this week, "but, I don't see a disaster; the erosion is not of critical proportions."

The $10.9 million renourishment will go through a series of public hearings and a referendum on Captiva before final approval.

When Captiva last renourished its 25,000-foot long beach in 1988-89, Captiva property owners paid $5.9 million of the costs through a special assessment, but property owners were promised a rebate when the federal reimbursement was received.

Five years later, Captiva officials have received word that a $1.76 million reimbursement is on the way.

On Wednesday night, Attorney Stroud presented the commissioners with a written legal opinion that, based on contract agree-

Council to discuss sewer's future Tuesday

A special Sanibel City Council Town Hall-type meeting will be held at the Sanibel Community Association Tuesday March 8 at 6:30 p.m. The adoption of an island-wide Wastewater Master Plan will be the topic of discussion

The city council will be discussing possible expansion of the city's sewer system. If council members decide to expand, state law requires that property owners connect to the system within 365 days of installation. Although sewer expansion could benefit the island's environment, connection to the system would be costly to property owners.

CHR REFINANCING

instructed council members that they needed to make several decisions; the first: decide whether they would be willing to pledge the causeway surplus funds as a backing in case CHR would ever default in the future; whether the city would require CHR to deed the BMRH units and land to the city; or whether the city would preclude CHR from issuing debt on the property in some other legal fashion. Price said that the city would have to be willing to pledge the causeway funds, which are usually around $700,000 per year, because at this time there is no other revenue available for refinancing.

In addition, the question of whether to attach the financing of new BMRH units to the refinancing of the current debt had to be decided. Approximately $2,600,000 would be required to refinance the existing debt as well as to provide funds for new BMRH units, known as Valtin Court. By adopting the second option, the city could take advantage of current interest rates, but would be paying interest for a project that has not yet been developed, and whose future is uncertain. By electing to join the issue of the new units with the current debt, however, the city could incur higher interest rates in the future when refinancing options could be less attractive.

Price's recommended to the council that the current debt either be kept seperate from the Valtin Court project completely and left until a later date when plans for the project were reviewed and approved by the council, or that the refinancing and the project be put into two separate draws under the same loan.

Price said he favored financing the debt for 15 years at a rate of 4.7% under the NationsBank plan in part because of the uncertainty of interest rates in the coming years.

Price also said that he and the city attorney were concerned about underwriting the debt for CHR, and that there was a question as to who really owns the housing property. He said that he was concerned also that the public might get the message that the issue is "a done deal," and that the public is concerned about the entire project in general.

Pritt added that he was not in complete agreement with all terms of the financing, but that the refinancing could definitely be done. He wanted to make certain that the city, however, got something back in return.

"If you indicate that we are going in the right direction, we need to fine tune it. We need to have something to keep CHR from walking away after borrowing the money." Perhaps they could look into mortgaging the property to the city at some later date, he suggested.

Sanibel resident John Liljequist said he was concerned that the issue was not clear to the public or the council and that a hasty decision might be made without the input of citizens. Referring to the council he said, "People don't even know what they're voting on up there."

"In 1984 we were told that BMRH would only use $25,000 a year. Now we're talking about $1.8 million indebtedness...We're talking about pledging $200,000 a year of excess causeway funds. When will this stop?" asked resident Maggie Greenberg.

Other residents believed that the proposal to refinance the debt sounded like a good one. Richard Curtain, of Committee of the Islands (COTI,) said he strongly recommended taking action. "The city is on the hook anyway. We might as well get better interest rates. At least we're getting the rates down to a reasonable level."

The council decided to pursue further investigation of the first option offered by NationsBank of refinancing the debt for $1.8 million. This would leave a zero balance at the end for refinancing, at an interest rate of 4.7% for 10 years. Council members added that they hoped that action could be taken quickly to take advantage of the currently lower interest rates. Any new BMRH housing units will then be discussed separately in the future and will not be tied to the refinancing of the $1.8 million.

ments, and in the interest of "equity," the money should be split four ways, including:

1. Current property owners who previously prepaid their assessments;

2. Lee County, which had contributed $1.5 million to the project;

3. Property owners who have only partially paid off their assessments, and property owners who may have paid assessments and have since sold their property and moved away, and

4. Current property owners still subject to the special assessment if agreed to by the bondholder.

Attorney Stroud said she could find no Florida statute or case law applicable to the Captiva rebate question, and the federal agreement does not require the monies be distributed in any particular way.

Her proposal drew immediate fire from the members of the public audience in attendance and the commissioners.

Two members of the audience quickly questioned the money being shared with Lee County, characterizing the project as mainly financed by Captiva residents.

The project would not have been possible without the support of the Captiva Community Association and funds from an escrow account which were put entirely into the project, according to Gene Peck, a Captiva civic leader.

"Lee County did not help out all that much," commented another member of the audience.

Another attendee who identified himself as a Captiva beach front property owner, told the commissioners that he had prepaid his $18,000 assessment based on the rebate promise, "and, I assumed I would be number one on the list."

Commissioner Nolan Murrah questioned Stroud at some length about her recommendation, and commented that unless the contracts in effect are renegotiated, the commission is obligated to fulfill them.

Commissioner Sheila Hoen said she believes members of the commission who are property owners on Captiva have a basic conflict of interest in the rebate decision, and should accept the legal advice of their attorney.

Commissioner Doris Bowen disagreed with Hoen's view, and emphasized "we have not decided anything here tonight."

Another public attendee asked the commissioners what the procedure would be for interval owners on the island receiving their shares of the rebate.

Commission chairman Stephen Cutler suggested that more homework be done on the issue such as ascertaining the number of property turn-overs; consultation with Lee County, and examining tax collector records. "If we don't get some answers, it could cost us $100,000 to make sure the money gets to the right people," Cutler added.

Stroud agreed the commissioners need more information, and said she sees no legal conflict for the commissioners making a decision.

However, a member of the audience said that commissioner Hoen's point about conflict was well taken, "if there is even a perception of conflict."

"We are not going to get any further tonight," Commissioner Murrah concluded, and the commission put the issue over until the next regularly scheduled meeting, Wednesday, April 6.

While undecided about the $1.76 million rebate controversy, the commissioners gave the green light for serious planning on the $10.9 million 1996 project.

Engineer Campbell described the most serious erosion spot on the Captiva beach south of the Mucky Duck in the vicinity of the Jensen corner property.

Campbell said this portion of the beach will be extended 90 feet out toward the Gulf by the time the 1996 project gets underway.

In the 1996 project a total of 785,000 cubic yards of sand will be placed on Captiva beaches, and 312,000 cubic yards on Sanibel in the combined Captiva and Blind Pass Inlet project.

The Captiva portion of the project will cost $8.1 million and the northern Sanibel part will total $2.6 million.,

Engineer Campbell said that while there is no formal approval for combining the projects, that the various funding entities at the county, state and federal levels have expressed interest in seeing the Captiva renourishment and Blind Pass, affecting Sanibel, as a single project.

Campbell asked for direction on this issue Wednesday night and the commissioners unanimously, but without a formal vote, endorsed Campbell's recommendation.

Captiva and Sanibel officials have been for the past several weeks trying to resolve a dispute over responsibility for historically-high beach erosion on northern Sanibel.

Sanibel city officials have blamed the serious erosion south of Blind Pass on the 300-foot jetty constructed by Captiva just north of Blind Pass as part of Captiva's last beach renourishment and maintenance project.

Despite the peace talks in recent weeks, attorney Stroud sounded a jarring note last Wednesday night when she informed the Captiva commissioners that a law suit involving a property dispute on northern Sanibel will go to trial in April.

One of the issues in the suit, Stroud advised, is the responsibility of the Captiva jetty for the heavy beach erosion on Sanibel. Stroud warned the commissioners that if the impact of the jetty becomes paramount, the commissioners may want to enter the case. The commissioners on Captiva have long disputed the jetty as the culprit for Sanibel's disappearing beach problems south of Blind Pass.

Tax tips

Depreciation, take it now and reduce your taxes, because you will be taxed on it later regardless of whether you take it now or not.

Depreciation is an expense deduction allowed by the IRS for rental property owners to offset the loss in value of property due to aging and wear. Depreciation is allowed on buildings, other structures and appliances and furnishings. Depreciation is not allowed on the value of the land.

Depreciation is calculated by taking the applicable percentage from the IRS tables and applying it to the amount you invested in the property minus the value of the land. You can calculate the value of the buildings by looking at your tax bill which generally shows the assessed value of the land and the buildings separately. From your tax bill calculate the percentage of the total assessed value allocated to the building and apply that percent to the total amount you paid for the property plus any costs associated with the purchase to get the value of the building to use for calculating depreciation.

Appliances and furnishings in a rental property are depreciated separately from the building and require separate calculations, because they are depreciated over a much shorter period of time.

When you sell rental real estate, IRS form 4797 "Sales of Business Property" is required with your tax return. That form requires you to deduct from your basis (investment) in the property all depreciation you were allowed to take, whether you took it or not. Reducing the basis increases your capital gain, which will increase your tax.

Reduce your taxes now by taking all the depreciation you are allowed.

For more information on taxing income from rental property, get IRS Publication 527 Residential Rental Property. Call 1-800-829-3676.

A casualty loss results from a sudden unusual or unexpected event such as fire, storm, flood, shipwreck, earthquake or auto accident.

Theft is the unlawful taking of money or property with the intent to deprive the owner of it. Theft loss does not include the mere disappearance of money or property unless it results from an identifiable event that is sudden unexpected or unusual.

A loss on a deposit occurs when a financial institution becomes insolvent or bankrupt. If you incurred such a loss you have three choices on how to deduct the loss;

1) As a non-business bad debt-it can be deducted as a short term capital loss on Schedule D (Form 1040). The Capital loss that can be deducted after offsetting capital gains is limited to $3,000 ($1,500 if married filing separately) for each year.

2) As a casualty loss deduction with not maximum limit. In figuring the deduction reduce the loss by $100 and total losses by 10 percent of adjusted gross income. All itemized deductions must be on schedule A of form 1040.

3) As an ordinary loss on deposits at a particular financial institution. this loss is limited to $20,000 ($10,000 if married filing separately)reduced by any expected state insurance proceeds. Further this is taken as a miscellaneous itemized deduction on schedule A form 1040 and is subject to 2 percent of adjusted gross income for that year. You cannot choose the ordinary loss deduction if any part of the deposits related to the loss federally insured.

Losses on deposits may be deducted the year a reasonable estimate of the loss can be made.

Total casualty or theft loss must be reduced by 10 percent of your adjusted gross income from line 32 of form 1040. Apply this rule after you reduce each loss by any reimbursement and by $100. If you have more than one loss apply this rule only once to the total of all losses even is many pieces of property are affected.

If you do not itemize deductions you can not deduct your casualty or theft loss. Attach form 4684 to your return after listing each item for which you are reporting a loss. Transfer the total to line 17 of schedule A.

New 'McGroup' forms

To the editor:

We are deeply disappointed in the Sanibel City Council. By failing to make bicycle helmets mandatory for children another opportunity for continuing the rich tradition of Sanibel has gone by the wayside.

Our new organization estimates that in the six months following passage of this proposed law, we would have been able to arrest and incarcerate hundreds of free-spirited, independent thinking children. Money raised from the fines could have been used for turning the old library into a juvenile detention center where these "threats to our future" could be held until age 21. There would be hard labor during the day, followed by extensive brainwashing at night designed to break their uninhibited spirits and resign them to lives of conformity and fear. In other words, we could turn them into good old-fashioned Sanibellians.

We could train them to hate fast food, hate nude sunbathers, hate the poor, hate the infirmed, hate beach chairs, and hate the tourists. We could shape their impressionable little minds to think just like our public officials and community activists in order to perpetuate our time-honored beliefs.

We must stamp out their progressively open minded free thinking which threatens to end our unbroken tradition of discrimination, hatred, and fear. Otherwise our island will transform into a homogeneous society of young and old, black and white, rich and poor where everyone walks around happy, welcomes change and doesn't fear the future. It just won't be good old Sanibel anymore.

But we intend to fight back. That is why we have formed McLUDICROUS. It stands for Lock Up Delinquents Immediately Continue Revering Our Unfriendly Sanibel. The "Mc" in front is to show our support for all the other "Mc" groups on the island which helps in our struggle to stifle change, instill fear and preserve narrow thinking.

We will fight to make sure the "good old days" of dysfunctional residents and meddlesome government are not gone forever. We vow to keep these hopes alive. Unless, of course, we get sick and the Planning Commission makes us move off the island.

Steve Greenstein, President
McLUDICROUS

Replacement bridges should be low

To the editor:

Commissioner Manning recently commented on the replacement of our causeway bridges. He stated that bridge height is a factor in that during periods of high winds the causeway bridges have to be closed down. Being a sailor, I'm fully aware that the wind speed at 100 feet can be double that at the water surface. A doubling of wind speed quadruples the wind force.

Commissioner Manning should be aware that about a year ago, the high span to Fort Myers was closed due to high winds while our lower Sanibel bridges were perfectly serviceable. If it's necessary to replace the bridges I suggest that they remain low so we don't have to hear the inconvenience of closed bridges every time the winds get up to 40-50 mph.

McDonald's on Sanibel: 'DON'T DO IT!'

To the editor:

We are presently residents of Toledo, Ohio and receive your paper weekly. We enjoy it very much, finding it informative and entertaining. Our plan is to move to Sanibel in the future.

We want to comment on the issue of a McDonald's restaurant coming to Sanibel. DON'T DO IT! We live two doors away from the litter from a McDonald's that is a block away. Sometimes we get a whole trash bag full just from our yard.

Customers play their radios very loudly while waiting at the drive-thru for food. The drive-thru stays open until midnight. On quiet Sanibel, this racket would really carry a long way. Delivery trucks unload all during the night, banging cases about and playing their radios loud. Trash is picked up at night, too, producing such banging it will scare a sleeping person half to death. I think someone is breaking in when this happens.

There is also a problem with rats and mice because of the waste food in the dumpster. My cats bring rodents home all the time. Last but not least, it smells like stale grease around here often. It's not very pleasant and actually ruins your appetite.

A McDonald's will ruin the pleasant atmosphere of Sanibel in every direction for a whole city block. Trust us on this—we have lived next to Wendy's for nine years. We don't want to see this happen to Sanibel. If you want them, we will gladly provide photographs or a videotape of this obnoxious situation for you as soon as the weather warms up. the noise and litter are the worst in warm weather—and all Sanibel gets warm weather.

Please keep Sanibel beautiful.

No harm to McDonald's becoming teen hangout

To the editor:

I was reading with interest your Feb. 11 issue concerning McDonald's plans to pursue a store on Sanibel. I have no particular preference either way, but I do take exception to one of the reasons for which there is opposition.

Apparently some are concerned as to the "possibility that the place could become a late-night hangout for teens." It is this kind of attitude that can make our teens on the island feel unwelcome in their own community.

As a full time resident for over 15 years, I can attest that once kids become teens, the prevalent attitude among some seems to be "have fun somewhere else." I'm sure if most of us look back on our younger days we probably had these same comments made about us...unfairly perhaps?

I don't really believe that McDonald's would become "such a place" but even if it did, I don't see the harm. Teens do need a place to meet and as things go on Sanibel, McDonald's would offer a nice respite.

If in face the "teen situation" is seriously being considered as a reason to oppose McDonald's, I don't think it speaks well of our community and perhaps consideration should be given to amending the "McSpoil" acronym to "McSpoiled."

These may be valid considerations for not wanting McDonald's on the island, but a "teen hangout" isn't one of them.

CROW's Critters

John Kubisz is the veterinarian/executive director for Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife (CROW).

By Dr. John Kubisz

The new white-tailed fawn with its spindly legs and large eyes has generated a lot of interest and even some donation. There are few wildlife orphans that are as fragile and endearing as a newborn deer.

As with over 90 percent of the animals that CROW cares for, the new fawn is the result of human interference. Its mother was hit by a car and killed instantly. Still in the early nursing stage, there would be no alternative except a slow death from starvation if not rescued and raised at CROW.

Over 80 percent of the orphans that CROW receives are released successfully to the wild. However, this particular fawn, according to the experts, only has a 50/50 chance of returning to mother nature because of its possible affinity to people. Some, no matter how tame, will begin to revert to their wild state at sexual maturity. All attempts will be made to eventually release this fawn, but the possibility of a captive existence must also be addressed, and a permanent facility is under construction.

The white-tailed deer is the most widespread and important deer in the United States. It is present in all parts of the country except the Pacific coast. The white-tail is a vegetarian, and its diet consists of twigs, shrubs and trees, but it will also eat grass, acorns and fruit.

The white-tail breeding season is usually in November, and the gestation period is about 200 days. Normally one, and sometimes two, fawns are born. Adults can weigh from 50-150 kg, and life expectancy is about 10 years. They are social animals for the most part, forming small herds.

Young fawns are usually spotted and can be raised successfully with the proper formulas. However, the first few days of the mother's milk, called colostrum, is essential to the health of a newborn. Small fawns need to be stimulated to defecate and urinate. Solid food is gradually introduced starting at two to three weeks.

CROW is a non-profit wildlife hospital that cares for sick, injured and orphaned native wildlife. To learn more or to make a donation, write CROW, P.O. Box 150, Sanibel, FL 33957. For wildlife in trouble call 472-3644.

From the desk of the City Manager

Gary Price is Sanibel's city manager. He submits his column, "From the Desk of the City Manager," for occassional publication in the Island Reporter.

By Gary Price

On Tuesday, March 8 the Sanibel City Council will be conducting a special town-hall meeting to discuss the future of the city's sewer system. The meeting will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the Sanibel Community Association, 2173 Periwinkle Way.

At the town-hall meeting, city council will be discussing one of the most important policy decisions to impact island residents and property owners in the city's history. That decision is whether to expand the city's sewer system to serve areas that now utilize on-site septic systems or package plants to treat wastewater.

Due to high groundwater and sandy soils that characterize Sanibel, a central sewer system is the most environmentally sound way to treat our community's wastewater. Even though an on-site septic system or package plant may be built to city and state standards, a concentration of such systems has the potential to contaminate the groundwater, thus impacting the health, safety and welfare of the public and the environment. A central sewer system not only safely treats wastewater, but provides reusable irrigation water for our island's golf courses, thus conserving our limited drinking water supply.

The city of Sanibel operate the only two central sewer systems serving the community. The Donax sewer facility, which was purchased in 1991, serves most, but not all, of the island east of Tarpon Bay Road. Since its purchase, the city has been furiously working to bring the plant up to serve the commercial area of Periwinkle Way,, between Tahitian Gardens and the Harbor House Restaurant. This area of Periwinkle Way was in great need of central sewer service, as many of the septic systems serving the developments along that route did not meet city and state standards.

The city also operate the Wulfert sewer facility, which currently serves only the Wulfert development. This plant was built by the developers of the Sanctuary, and donated to the city at no cost. It is designed to be easily expanded to serve the west end of the island.

If the city wishes to expand either the Donax or the Wulfert systems to serve areas that are not currently on central sewer, new State law requires that property now served by septic systems connect to the central sewer no more than 365 days after it is installed. As you can imagine, central sewer connection is not an inexpensive proposition, so although sewer system expansion is environmentally beneficial, connection will also directly and significantly impact the pocketbooks of many island property owners.

It is difficult at this time to estimate exactly what connection fees may be, as each area of the island will be assessed not only the basic sewer plant connection fee, but also must pay a portion of the cost to install the collection system to their specific area.

A good example of what the total connection fees might be would be those for the project just installed along Periwinkle Way. If you had, for instance, a single family home in the area of Periwinkle Way where gravity sewer was installed, your total connection fees today would be approximately $7,000. City staff has been using a ballpark range of $7,000 to $10,000 per single family home when discussing connection fees with the public. (These connection fees do not include the cost of abandoning the owner's on-site septic system.) I must stress again, that these numbers should be taken as gross estimates, and the actual connection fees on Sanibel may vary significantly, depending upon collection system installation costs.

If city council decides to expand the city's sewer system, the city will do whatever it can to reduce the cost to property owners, including providing financing if desired.

Details of the particulars regarding the future of the city's sewer system will be discussed on March 8. If you have any questions on this issue prior to that time, please contact my office. Otherwise, I hope to see you at the Sanibel Community Association building on the 8th at 6:30 p.m.

Man fined for injuring brown pelican with rock

On Feb. 22 a Fort Myers man was fined $1,000 in Federal court for a violation of the Migratory Bird Treaty act. The man pleaded guilty to throwing a rock at and hitting a brown pelican in the head in November of 1993.

Witnesses at the Estero Plaza Shopping Center, where the inciden occurred, pulled the unconscious bird from a lily pond located at the facility. The bird was transported to Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife (CROW) on Sanibel for treatment. The pelican suffered from a contusion to the skull, central nervous system damage, and temporary loss of coordination. Officials at CROW immediatley notified a refuge officer with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge to report the incident. After interviewing witnesses and investigating the incident, the refuge officer cited the Fort Myers Beach man for a "take" violation of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

The Migratory Bird Treaty Act was enacted in 1918 and has been amended seven times as recently as 1989.

The pelican fully recovered from its injuries and was released back into the wild three weeks after the incident. A portion of the man's fine will be stayed on the condition that he pay resititution to CROW for rehabilitation for the bird.

"This fine sends a strong message out to individuals about the seriousness and importance of protecting migratory birds," said Rick Huffines, refuge officer with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, who investigated the case. "This act is a strict liability meaning that regardless of a person's intentions, a violation of the provisions will result in liability for the offense" said Huffines. The maximum penalty for violating the act is 6 months in jail and/or a $5,000 fine for a person.

the entries, 'I would love to get my name on the Dorothy Putnam Award,' because I have such high regard for her. She ran the shell show for years." He got his wish Wednesday.

Another double award was a first prize and a Most Artistic Shell Flower award for a shell flower arrangement made only of natural shells—pen shells, rice shells, coquinas, and augers.

More awards for Goz: first place in one single flower class, first place in flower picture class, second place in tree class, second place in Christmas wreath class, first class in miscellaneous, second place in one single stem of multiple blooms.

Surrounded by congratulating friends he has worked with for years as a volunteer artist with Shellcrafters at the Sanibel Community Association, Goz Gosselin was a happy man.

Present to award a prestigious new prize in 1994, was Warren D. Allmon, Ph.D., director of the Paleontological Research Institution.

The award went to an impressive exhibit by Greta and Andrew Murray, a young couple with a new baby who could not arrive until the weekend. The exhibit consisted of fossil shells and the criteria for the award was to show the evolution of shells.

These shells had been taken from the world famous Alum Bluff in northern Florida and the exhibitors showed fossils from different time layers and different communities within the layers. These shells are from the Miocene period and are between 15 to 20 million years old.

Dr. Allmon said the prize would be awarded each year from now on.

Flood insurance map may be redrawn

By Jennifer S. Thuma
Staff Writer

The Sanibel City Council considered amending city flood insurance maps that were revised in late 1992 Tuesday.

According to property owner George Slay, of Caloosa Shores, it appeared that a mistake had been made inadvertently while drawing up the maps which excluded part of the island. Residents in the publicly owned coastal areas such as Bowman's Beach, the J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge and the Bailey Tract are covered in the new zoning, while residents in small sections in areas such as Caloosa Shores were put into the category "Otherwise Protected Area" despite the fact that they do not differ in matters such as elevation or development patterns from covered areas.

"I can no longer get flood insurance...I want to lobby to get this corrected," Slay said, adding that it was probably an oversight in drawing the map.

The council agreed, with relatively little discussion, that an oversight had indeed probably occurred.

Council members voted unanimously to authorize a resolution which would urge the federal government, particularly the Federal Emergency Management Agency to review the National Flood Insurance Program Rate Map pertaining to Caloosa Shores and the Wightman Subdivision. City Manager Gary Price will send copies of the resolution to Congressman Porter Goss, Senator Connie Mack and the Federal Insurance Management agency so that action may be taken to remedy the situation.

Man arrested for DUI, possession

Kevin Michael Hall, an employee of a local restaurant was arrested for driving under the influence and possessing drug paraphernalia. In the early morning of Feb. 27, an officer observed him crossing the line on Sanibel-Captiva Road three times and when he pulled him over, detected the scent of alcohol on his breath.

Hall failed several alcohol tests and was taken taken to SPD for booking. The officer also saw a box containing residue of marijuana, which Gray tried to hide upon stopping the car. He told the officer the box was not his, but a friend's. He received citations for driving under the influence, driving with a suspended license, driving a car without a registration and the possession of drug paraphernalia, as well as driving a car with a tag not assigned to a vehicle.

Quilt for the needy

Sunday school children pose at the Sanibel Congregational United Church of Christ with a quilt they made for the Church World Services. Its presentation was a highlight of Blanket Sunday at the church. In addition to the quilt, church members donated nearly $2,000 for the Church World Service blanket program.

The program provides blankets around the world to those whose lives are at risk—perhaps a child shivering in the cold of winter or a refugee mother who has left everything behind as she and her children seek safe haven. Nina Klaudt is with the children in the picture. For more information call 395-1770 and ask for Gertrude Ford.

ABC Sale attracts 1,000 people, nets $41,000

By Barbara Linstrom
Special to the Island Reporter

By attracting about 1,000 people and earning about $41,000, last weekend's 28th annual ABC Sale and Auction set new records in terms of both attendance and sales.

"It was absolutely fantastic," said Paul McCarthy, 1994 chairman of the traditional Captiva event. "It couldn't have gone better."

By doubling last year's sales and topping the previous sales record of $34,000, the success of the volunteer-run sale and auction may be connected to new features as well as the restructuring this year of traditional aspects of the event.

"We decided to give the sale and the auction separate slots so that the event would be more focused," said McCarthy.

Previously the sale and auction have taken place simultaneously. However, this year, the sale was featured in the morning and the auction began at noon as the virtually empty sale tables closed down.

With a myriad of quality items ranging from vintage clothing to stereos that are donated by Captiva residents, the sale traditionally ignites a buying frenzy.

This year was no different in that respect. Buyers pushed and grabbed in a free-for-all, frantic quest for incredible deals.

Instead of having their attention diverted by an auctioneer's banter, the bargain hunters were able to focus solely on the sale. And, when the auction started, they weren't pulled back to the tables, which were already shut down.

Instead, they could focus clearly on the exciting deals up for bid at the auction.

"It turned out that we had better attendance and more lively bidding at the auction," said McCarthy, adding that the auction as well as all other sales departments broke records as well.

With a previous high for the auction at $6,000, this year's tally of $14,000 showed that bidders were serious.

And, the deals were outrageous.

A 1983 Mustang convertible went for $4,100; a signed Robert Rauschenberg print sold for $900; a cocktail cruise with open bar for 50 people aboard Captiva Cruise's Lady Chadwick went for $1,100; a week rental of a beach cottage on Cape Cod went for $850 and two round-trip tickets on U.S. Air to any domestic location sold for $750.

As the auction winded down and the sun broke through the clouds, the Southwest Florida Symphony performed a delightful pops concert.

The concert was funded prior to the sale through special donations.

It was the first time entertainment was the featured finale to a day filled with great deals as well as great food.

For the first time, restaurants donated delectable snacks for a mini taste of Captiva. The Bubble Room, 'Tween Waters and the Mucky Duck kept the crowd satiated with gourmet delights.

Also attracting attention, nationally-known authors Russell Baker and Jim Cannon sold and signed books.

All in all, the crowd, which was predominantly islanders, found plenty of fun.

In assessing the success of the day, McCarthy cited better organization and more sight-sensitive space utilization as key ingredients.

"We decided to do away with the big stuff such as furniture and building supplies that we've had in previous years in order to be more cost-effective," he added.

He also lauded volunteers for their assistance.

"I would like to thank all the volunteers and donors as well as the people who attended," McCarthy said. "It was a privilege to be chairman and I am grateful for the success."

Ten percent of the $41,000 in gross sales will go to the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) for the Loggerhead sea turtle project. The remaining earnings will go into the Captiva Civic Association's general fund as well as its scholarship fund.

Upon hearing that about $4,000 would soon be heading his way, Erick Lindblad, executive director of the SCCF, was practically speechless.

"That's wonderful...it's certainly a lot more than we expected," said Lindblad.

The donation will be especially helpful this year since the SCCF is planning for the first time to hire an intern to organize and administer its sea turtle project.

Last year's Loggerhead project helped protect and monitor 112 turtle nests on Captiva and 155 nests on Sanibel. While the project is largely conducted by volunteers, it also demands funding for two vehicles, materials and gas.

Last year about 40 volunteers assisted with the project.

"We definitely need people to help," said Lindblad, adding that anyone on Captiva or Sanibel is welcome to participate.

People are needed from May 15 until the end of August to serve as the project's beach patrol. Under a rotating schedule, volunteers walk from a half mile to a mile along designated stretches of beach in the morning before 8 a.m.

Their duty is to monitor the sea turtles' nests to make sure they are not disturbed.

Anyone who is interested in participating should watch the newspapers in early April to see when the first volunteer meeting will be held.

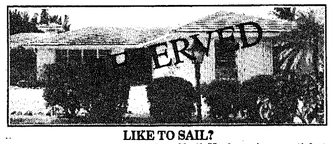

Excited by the donation and its potential impact on enhancing the project, Lindblad offered praise for McCarthy's efforts.

"Paul's efforts to expand the event really produced amazing results," he said. "We are very appreciative."

GERMAN DEVELOPERS CREATE ANDALUCIA IN FLORIDA

Andalucia, Spain, the home of beautiful Mediterranean resorts, homes & estates inspired a new Andalucia in Florida, on Tampa Bay. The developers, headquartered in Frankfurt, have created several masterpiece communities in southern Spain. Upon discovering a spectacular waterfront site in Florida, they envisioned an Andalucian village of fine custom homes in an elegant setting. It now has a finely detailed entrance with four fountains, a wide entry boulevard with formal landscaping, a Pavilion, over forty homes and six more preparing to begin construction.

Florida's Andalucia is located in Apollo Beach, which is half-way between Sarasota and Tampa, on the southeast shore of Tampa Bay. Here it is quiet, has little traffic, and is very peaceful. Residents are centrally located in Andalucia.However, you are close to everything needed for an active lifestyle. Within an one hour drive there are two major airports, and many attractions in Tampa, St. Petersburg, and Sarasota. Orlando is only one and one-half hours away.

When completed, there will be two hundred and twenty beautiful homes in Andalucia. To assure privacy, a Security Officer is on duty at the massive entrance twenty four hours a day. For recreation, residents have many options.Golfers will find a challenging eighteen hole course only two miles from the entrance. Tennis players will love the two lighted 'clay' courts. Bird watchers have hundreds of waterfowl to watch daily. And boaters will enjoy the challenging but safe waters of Tampa Bay for day trips and fishing. Boaters will moor their boats at the Yacht Club, or at their own dock. A Beach Club will be built in 1994 that will include a pool, deck and meeting room for parties.

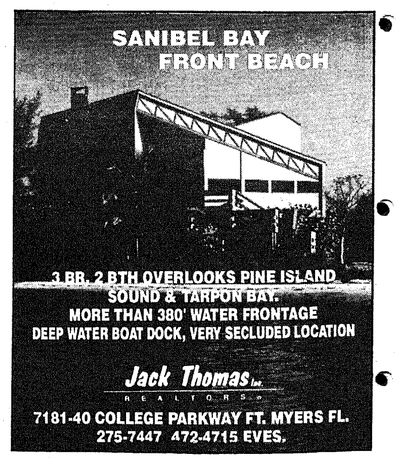

Prices range from $225,000 for a 2,500 sq. ft. (232 m2) home on a standard homesite; to over $1 million for a very large bayfront lot on Tampa Bay and a 6,000 sq. ft. home (557 m2). Interested? Call 1-800-393-0035 for further information. Or, drive north on I-75 to Exit 47(Apollo Beach); left at Big Bend Road; left at Highway 41; right on Apollo Beach Blvd. to the end, then left to the Andalucia entrance. Deutch Gesprochen.

Aqua Trek reveals

Saul Taffet

In Aqua Trek's aquariums, a nursee shark looks out menacingly. Other tanks contain friendlier creatures that can be picked up.

critters of the sea

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

What an amazing amount of information about sea life can be learned in just a few short hours at Aqua Trek in Wings Sport Center on Periwinkle Way.

Taking children or grandchildren to view the touchtank in the oceanarium or to make the outdoor cross-island exploration with marine biologist-owner, Carl Melamet, is not a necessary excuse. Melamet is used to adults expressing exuberant responses when making discoveries about his favorite critters.

The 500-gallon touchtank in the oceanarium is home to creatures which can be picked up, held, and examined. Creatures like sea urchins that are busy covering themselves with little shells as camouflage, starfish whose eyes are on the ends of their fingers, a large Florida Horse Conch that squirts water when tickled, and a little puffer fish that changes color and inflates itself to the size of a softball.

Other aquariums in the room house a shark that loves to gulp shrimp, a spotted sea hare that looks like a large, naked snail seeking a shell, a mature sea horse and babies, blue crabs, and even a moray eel.

Did you know the eel's body is covered in a slime of bacteria that can cause infection if it gets into the wound of a human?

A short slide show covers the best features of Sanibel from satellite view to microscopic view.

The satellite view shows the abundance of mangroves so necessary to protect the little critters of nursery age. Other sea life that is not easily examined is also shown in slides.

Then a specimen of sea water just brought in by Carl Melamet appears on the screen. There you see magnified critters swimming around. Plankton, barnacle larvae, crab larvae, copepods—all that you ingest in just one gulp of the ocean. Yech!

A three-hour cross-island exploration leaves from the center in which Melamet takes a group for a walk in the water of both the Gulf of Mexico and Tarpon Bay. Participants must bring a towel and wear wading shoes of some kind.

In the Gulf sessions, Melamet answers questions about the sea life which has washed up on the beach. Then a 50-foot seine net is taken 30 to 40 feet offshore and brought shoreward as handlers form an enclosure to capture the sea creatures.

"We usually get a pretty good variety of sea life from the Gulf," said Melamet. "Last time out we got a couple of kinds of rays, butterfly and an electric ray. We also came up with some mullet, drum or sea trout, sheepshead, and some small squid."

In the bay, each participant has a net and while walking along the mangroves and in the sea grass beds they will dip up miniature seahorses, anchovies, shrimp, puffer fish, pipe fish, hermit crabs of all sizes and shapes and lots of live shells that are thrown back.

Melamet discusses the layers of life found in the estuary. An estuary is a mix of fresh and salt water along a cost that is protected, in Sanibel's case by a barrier island, Melamet said.

The estuary is the key to the health and perpetuation of sea life. It allows attached plants to grow and these are nourishment and protection for juvenile sea life who spend their adult life in the gulf. Baby grouper and tarpon are among the little ones found in the sea's nursery.

Something akin to a spiritual experience happens to people as they realize they are wading right through a world of tiny critters. "Gradually, they forget about themselves and become totally engrossed in sharing a world of wonders with family members and others in the group," Melamet said.

In Aqua Trek Center is an opportunity to reclaim a bit of that childish wonder that may have been lost in becoming adult and to realize for a few short hours that we humans are only part of a fascinating world that depends a lot on us for its future.

The guided oceanarium tour is $5 for adults, $3 for children. The Sealife Encounter trip is $27 for adults, $18 for children, free under 5 years of age. Call 472-8680 for reservations.

Crescendo music section at MacIntosh Book Shop

By Marianne Strickland
Staff Writer

Two years ago, Kate and Phillip Armitage decided to try adding to their shop, cassette and CD music, a lost market on the island at that time.

In a cozy little annex behind the main book shop on Periwinkle Way, Kate took on the new space and made her music selections from two viewpoints.

In music, as in books, there are best sellers in every genre and beginning with these suggestions from music companies, she added the music she personally prefers—folk music by the Clancy Brothers, the Chieftains, and Scottish music, plus dulcimer and Celtic music.

Now, the music section has doubled in size and moved to the main part of the store, center stage.

In addition to the recorded music, a good selection of music books enhance the department. Piano books, from easy children's Disney songs to Haydn Sonatas are available. Resource books such as music dictionaries, opera guides, Karl Haas, country music, rock encyclopedias and biographies of composers are plentiful.

Armitage tries to keep an inventory with wide appeal, as music tastes of customers varies almost in correlation to age. The classics department is strong, and this genre, along with the big-band sound has strong appeal to older customers.

The 30-something crowd wants music from the 60s and 70s, Clapton, Beatles, Van Morrison, Grateful Dead, the Doors. These are the customers with young children and they also have their preferences—Disney tunes from his movies, Raffi cassettes to soothe little nerves.

Island teens like what is known as alternative music a combination of sounds, according to Armitage, like Pearl Jam and other groups that seem to come out of Seattle. When teens come in looking for something she has never heard of, she orders it for them.

Music that crosses generational lines and finds much appreciation are islandy-Jimmy-Buffett, country-western, jazz, blues, reggae, movie soundtracks, Broadway shows, soft rock like Michael Bolton and Mariah Carey, and piano music of any kind.

Working with the music end of the business is a pleasure for Armitage.

"I really have fun with this. It's a learning experience, and I learn more every day. I'm happy to order anything a customer wants that I don't have and it only takes 2 or 3 days if the company has it in stock."

Music inventory at the supplier is accessible through MacIntosh's computer. Just as with books, by looking up the title, Kate can tell how many copies are in stock, and if any are in her own store inventory.

The music section at MacIntosh Book Shop is attracting more and more music lovers but it has not overtaken the book inventory yet. Now the shop makes it easy to find the perfect background music to accompany islanders' latest book choices.

When 'A' is not good—the rating game

During the modern history of the life insurance business, major life insurance companies have always met their obligations in a timely manner. However, six large companies have been seized by insurance regulators since April 1990. Under these circumstances, it is not surprising that public concern exists about the safety of life insurance companies.

How should an individual evaluate the soundness of a company? In our opinion, the individual should rely on professional firms that are in the business of evaluating the financial condition of insurance companies. The individual should rely on professionals because the evaluation process if complex and requires a specialized knowledge.

We place our faith in five well established and responsible firms in the business of objectively evaluating and rating life insurance companies. these are: A.M. Best, Standard and Poor's (S & P) Moody's, Duff and Phelps (D & P), and Weiss. These five services use differing criteria and therefore differing opinions result as to the relative approach for an individual trying to choose a life insurance company would be to select a carrier that has at least two of the top ratings and does not have another rating outside the two highest categories.

S & P assigns claims paying ability ratings. S & P describes its claims paying ability as its "most thorough analysis" and a reflection of the financial strength of the company. Solvency ratings are also issued by S & P, and these are only a reflection of public information, not a detailed analysis by S & P. The highest solvency rating is a BBBq. One should not accept this rating by itself. S & P is paid by the insurance company for this service, and the insurance company reserves the right to not have the rating made public if there is a disagreement with the results.

Duff and Phelps assigns claims paying ability ratings also. They are paid by the insurance company, and if the rating is not favorable, the insurance company can disagree and request the rating not be published. Currently there are 166 companies which have acquired ratings, but only 46 have received the number one rating.

Moody's assigns financial strength ratings. The major difference between Moody's and the companies previously mentioned is that the insurance company cannot suppress the rating. As a result there are only 101 companies that have acquired a rating. Out of the 101, only 11 have received the number one rating.

Weiss assigns safety ratings, and the information is obtained form public financial statements and data which companies are requested to provide. Companies do not request ratings from Weiss. Of the most recent safety ratings on 1,445 companies, only 10 companies received the number one rating.

A.M. Best has given many companies very high ratings in the past, and it is normally suggested that most attention be given to the other services. Best is still the most authoritative rating service for net cost history and ranking of companies.

The problems in the ratings game have been due to the confusion that each service illustrates by the use of the letter "A." In the past, anytime one was told that a company was rated "A" one would assume that was a high rating. In fact, if a company received an a from any of the services mentioned, except Weiss, it would not be acceptable to the consumer.

When choosing a company, one should insist on the current ratings, with emphasis on Moody's and Weiss. The rating by these services can not be censored. If one has insurance or annuity with an unacceptable insurance company it doesn't mean that a change is automatic. Immediately request updated values and ratings. If an agent is uncooperative, request a copy of his or her errors and omission coverage and notify the state insurance department.

Little league for all kids

Major league teams on Sanibel? There are six of them as well as five minor league teams, four "T" ball teams, and two girls' softball teams. All are part of a thriving, high energy, fun filled little league organization right here on Sanibel. There are over 22 kids playing ball every week on the island. All games are played at the fields at the recreation center on San-Cap road at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings and starting at 9 p.m. on Saturday mornings.

Treat yourself to a visit Saturday morning when four games are going on at once "T" ball kids 4-6 are running around with more energy than skill, "major league" baseball for kids 9-13 and softball for girls 8-13.

All practices and games are done under the finest of conditions for the children with safe, good fields to play on and the most caring adults doing the coaching, umpiring and supervising.

More home plate umpires are needed but nothing else. Local sponsors support each team, coaches are busy teaching fundamentals, equipment has been bought and fitted and there is a wonderful feeling of sportsmanship rather than a "win at any cost" attitude. The kids can learn a competitive sport under ideal, non-threatening conditions. Everyone is invited to join. Call Steve Mullins at 472-9262 for more information.

Backhanded Remarks

By Steve Robinson

Steve Robinson is Director of Tennis at the Sanibel Inn. He is a USTPA P-1 certified tennis professional and a AAAI-ISMA certified personal fitness trainer and weight training consultant. For information or consultation, call 472-3181, ext. 341 or 454-5314. His column appears weekly in the Island Reporter.

Mental toughness

Of all the potential training areas in tennis or fitness, the mental aspect is probably the least recognized by recreational players and athletes. Bearing one's mind to working out in the gym or on the court is a key to athletic activity, setting progressive and realizable goals and mobilizing the will and emotions are all "elemental" to your involvement in training or playing. Assessing your own strengths and weaknesses is helpful as well. For example, "Will I seek out practice partners to work on rally consistency, knowing that my central weakness is failure to keep the ball in play?" Or "Am I one who can work out on my own at home or do I need a gym environment?"

The first steps, therefore, toward "mental toughness" begin with awareness. Next, you may consider your mental images and thoughts, such as "I'm not really a very good player," I can't last too long at this" or "I'm not very athletic" and so on. Put your thoughts and images in a positive light with an emphasis on becoming the same way. In this way, you won't contradict what is or what your subconscious may have ingrained. For example try," my tennis game is improving every day and every week." Basic athletic skills can be taught, from improving hand-eye coordination to enhancing balance. Core fitness can be trained with proper emphasis on blended programs. And "mental toughness", a learned (not innate) trait comes about through long experience or from knowledge of the "inner technology" which is accessible to all of us. Begin with awareness and build, giving the gift of positive thoughts and images about your tennis and fitness activities. You may just find that your workouts are that much more enjoyable. For more information about mental training for tennis, other sports or fitness, contact a certified professional.

'Bus Stop' story of bad men, caring women

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

With a comedy that has passed the test of time, as William Inge's "Bus Stop" has, and with a cast interpreting their roles so well you can only think in superlatives, Pirate Playhouse will be playing to full, satisfied audiences with this production.

The plot of the play—boy meets girl, boy gets girl, boy loses girl, girl gets boy—cannot be argued with. It is a chase that is always fascinating to observe as well as to engage in.

Coincidentally, a recent issue of Time magazine featured a cover story titled, "Are Men Really That Bad?," in which the writer looked at the bad rap men have been given in recent years.

Actor Timothy A. Booth, played cowboy Bo Decker to fit the mold perfectly. His swaggering, loudmouthed attitude, his mauling and unconsidered appropriation of Cherie, a darling blonde he heard singing in a lounge, is exactly what women have been complaining about for years.

Playwright Inge, certainly tried to make audiences aware that women melt to tenderness and that four-letter word, LOVE.

In a letter to Time referring to the "bad men" article, a counselor, Ronald H Rottschafer said,

"Women want and need genuine communication, basic respect and sensitive attention—in short, to be loved. While they will no longer wait or become selfless, as their mothers did, male bashing is mere ventilation and leaves woman yet unfulfilled. The fear of a full encounter with openness and love is still a culprit. We need to help each other."

That, in short is the "Bus Stop" story.

And when Cherie, is finally driven in frustration and powerlessness to slap Bo, some of the women in the audience burst into applause.

The emotional investment audience members make in this play is so great, it can only be looked at with humor. Masterfully, the playwright keeps the audience laughing throughout the play, as the characters remain lighthearted

Lighthouse art has great appeal

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

Donna Elias' first lighthouse painting was done five years ago while portraying local scenery around Cape May, N.J. which she featured in her own little gallery there. The lighthouse picture created so much interest, she went down the coast a bit to do the lighthouse at Barnegut, which began a career focused on a subject many find irresistibly fascinating.

She will appear at The Enchanted Mermaid in Periwinkle Place Shopping Center on Thursday and Friday, March 10 and 11 from 2 to 4 p.m. to meet other lighthouse lovers and sign prints that may be purchased. The Sanibel lighthouse is included in her collection.

"The Great American Lighthouses" series consists of watercolor renditions of American lights. Half of these are the popular "Sea Chart" series, where the artist has painted the featured lighthouse over a navigational chart of the region.

Besides their architectural beauty, lighthouses were generally built in intriguing settings: rocky coats, remote islands, long stretch-

Young Sanibel actress at Arcade

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

Athana Loughney has been performing on-stage ever since her mother, Jean, was involved in coordinating youth theater on Sanibel in the '80s. She clearly remembers her role as a dancer in "The Princess and the Pea" and the cute outfit she got to wear. She was a student at Sanibel Elementary School back then.

This weekend she appears in "On Borrowed Time," a play directed by Sam Capuano at the Arcade Theater enjoying excellent reviews.

A graduating senior at Cypress Lake High School, Loughney's fair-skinned, dark-haired, bright-eyed beauty mirrors the tenuous self-confidence of a young woman on the verge.

"I'll be 18 in 12 days," she said excitedly. Loughney has continued to study theater arts and performed in as many productions as her student time and mother's chauffeuring has allowed.

As a student of the Gloria King Theater Arts Workshop in Lehigh, she appeared as Dorothy in "The Wiz" and Bet in "Oliver." She has done some work at the Old Schoolhouse Theater, appearing in "Alone Together."

For several years she focused her study on dance, but she said referring to her part in "On Borrowed Time,"

Sanibel Festival begins this weekend with Amernet, Bach on the Beach

The month-long Sanibel Festival kicks off this weekend with a concert Saturday evening at the Sanibel Congregational Church and a free beach concert Sunday afternoon.

On Saturday night at 8 p.m., the dynamic Amernet String Quartet will perfom a concert of Mozart, Beethoven and Ravel. Tickets are $19.

At Gulfside Park Sunday at 1 p.m., the Suncoast Brass will present "Bach on the Beach," Sanibel Festival's annual gift to the community. The concert will feature the "Teddy Bear's Picnic." J.T. Smith of the Old Schoolhouse Theater will act as master of ceremonies, and Mayor Jerry Muench will officiate the opening.

Concert-goers are urged to bring folding chairs, family, friends and Teddy bears.

The Sanibel Trolley will offer free rides from the corner of Periwinkle Way and Casa Ybel Road where free parking is available. The trolley will pick people up between noon and 1 p.m., and drop them off after the concert between 2 and 3 p.m.

Later this week, the Sanibel Festival continues with the Pressenda Trio performing at the Congregational Church Thursday, March 10.

Tickets are available from Bailey's, MacIntosh Book Shop and the West Wind Inn. Or call 395-1928 or 336-7999.

and hopeful.

Cherie, 22-year-old actress Gretchen Moll, is played with wistful confusion. In what could have been merely a caricature role, Moll manages to imbue Cherie with a tremendous amount of appeal, not merely physical. You have to love this girl who doesn't give up in her search for love.

Elizabeth Keiser, makes of Elma the waitress, a cute, sprite of an adolescent, who is caught by the storm in just the place to learn something about the adult world she is about to enter.

She is a character who affects almost everyone else in the play. An engaging actor, one hopes to see more of Keiser on Sanibel.

Marilyn Mays, does a terrific job as Grace, owner of the restaurant. Her character is real flesh and blood, steamy but practical.

Eddie Dean, as Sheriff Will Masters, gets into his role as the play moves along toward showdown time in the little cafe. His character builds from the congenial village sheriff, to a take-charge authority, bringing in the climax of the plot with gusto.

Dr. Gerald Lyman, a tousled, white-haired, Max Jacobs, is the lost philosopher whose ideals never matched up to reality. He speaks some of the most poignant love lines in the play, and manages to make them stick, even through the voice of a drunk.

Bus driver, Carl the hunk, is played by James Shue who is unrecognizable from his role in "Italian-American Reconciliation." That is the true mark of an actor—the ability to change persona with role. Jim makes an excellent contribution to Pirate Playhouse's repertoire group. This is his second season.

Virgil, Bo's buddy, is played by James Walker and what a quiet, magnetic Virgil he is. As love in its many forms swirls around the cafe creating turmoil, Virgil calmly watches, listens, and acts like a friend. What is his secret?

The set designed by Bruce Bailey is so realistic, the audience definitely feels like a fellow bus rider waiting out the storm.

The storm raging outside the cafe sounds so cold and fierce—with actors hugging themselves every time the door opens to a gust of air—the audience began to laugh at itself as we, too, rubbed our arms and shivered every time the cafe door opened.

Director, Robert Cacioppo, chose the perfect cast for "Bus Stop" and they work together as a formidable team to pull us into that little restaurant for a few hours—just until the roads are cleared of snow.

The play runs through March 26. Shows at 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday, matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2 p.m. Tickets $12.50-$19. Call the box office at 472-0006 for reservations.

ACTRESS

"This is my comeback to acting."

She won consideration for the part because she accompanied her drama teacher to an audition for a different play. Her teacher persuaded Loughney to read for a part and though she was told she was too young for that play, Director Capuano called her several months later and said, "Guess what, I have a part for you."

For her role as Marsha, the housekeeper, Loughney said she prepared before performing by imagining. "I try to put myself in her character. How would I act if I was really in her position? How would I move and talk if I were her?" Loughney said.

On first reading the play, she did not think the role had much meat to it. "The lines were, 'Yes, ma'am....No, ma'am...' but eventually the character develops into a person who really has some influence on the story. Even though Marsha's the housekeeper, she's Gram and Gramp's friend and she looks out for them. She ties lots of the parts of the play together."

Loughney calls the play "...upbeat—a comedy, but a pretty deep play."

She plans to continue studies at Edison Community College after high school graduation and then go on to Florida State University to major in performing arts. "I want to try being an actress and choreographer. I've taken 14 years of dance lessons. Maybe I'll get lucky and be in musical comedy where I can use both," she said.

The Loughney mother and daughter team, Jean and Athana, would like to see many of their old island friends at this weekend's performances at the Arcade Theatre in downtown Fort Myers. "There's plenty of close parking," promises Jean Loughney.

Saturday, March 5 performance is at 8 p.m. and Sunday, March 6, a matinee at 2 p.m. Tickets are $12 in advance and $15 at the door. Call the Arcade Box Office at 332-6736 for reservations.

Theater With a Script: Once more before you leave

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

Theater With a Script ensemble, Charlotte Heimann, Bob Maxeiner, Ginger Parker, and Marsha Wagner are moving toward the end of another season of professional readings of plays at The Old Schoolhouse Theater.

These actors created a couple of months of Sunday afternoons an occasion for alternative theater—staged readings. The play of Feb. 27, "Eleemosynary," was a good example of what can be done with a script, a stool, and lights. That is what each actor had to depend on to project his role and the story within this play by Lee Blessing. Much is left to audience imagination.

A small but appreciative audience fed support back to the readers as they pondered the lives of three generations of women in a family. The bonds between these women, although of blood and genes, is skewed by tremendous individual needs. The far from ordinary mother-daughter-granddaughter relationship they share, is a struggle recognizable on another level as the sometimes futile striving of women to be more than child-bearers.

The play has many comic moments. The child, Echo, played wistfully and devilishly by Marsha Wagner uses her canny spelling skills to make her grandmother and mother proud of her. Her grandmother, Dorothea, played by Charlotte Heimann, made a delightful discovery after becoming an adult—an eccentric can get away with anything. Dorothea's daughter, Artie, played by Ginger Parker, suffers immeasurable humiliation in proximity to these eccentricities.

It is a very good story—of the closing down of emotions too deeply hurt and the opening up again of a soul through the will and hope of a child.

These actors are good. By voice—inflection, diction, attitude, and facial expression—with very little bodily movement they will transport you to their world.

On Sunday, March 13, Theater With A Script will present one its last offerings of the season. Charlotte Heimann, Bob Maxeiner, and Marsha Wagner will take the stage as Helen, Elsa, and Marius in South African playwright Athol Fugard's "Road to Mecca."

This play is new to their repertoire and won glowing audience reaction after its first reading in February.

It is a fanciful tale of friendship, trust, and acceptance of the self. The first act takes a bit of time to set up the situation, but be patient, the second act culminates in a glorious resolution.

Theater With a Script is an ensemble of veteran actors ably directed by Frank Wagner. They are long-time island residents whose talents should be seen and supported by all islanders. The Old Schoolhouse Theater Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of theater at the Old Schoolhouse, has sponsored these Sunday afternoon readings with proceeds going toward the foundation's worthy projects.

Support community theater. Go to the Old Schoolhouse on Sunday afternoon, March 13, 3 p.m.

Tickets are $10. Call 472-6862 for reservations.

When you comin' back to ECC?

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

A talented troupe of thespians at Edison Community College (ECC) took on a difficult task in performing Mark Medoff's gut-clencher "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" They did a creditable job. Richard D. Westlake, the director, is a one-man drama department at ECC where he has trained young actors for 16 years.

"I teach the drama courses and direct the plays," said Westlake. This year about 30 students are focusing on the drama program but Westlake said he has about 100 students annually who come through his classes.

Participation in the play gets college credit as any other drama course and anyone can sign up and take the course. As a part-time student, a registrant does not have to go through admission testing and can sign up to take his class.

Some of his students go on to professional careers in theater, some teach drama, many remain active in community theater. One is a major stunt man in Los Angeles.

The current production, "When You Comin' Back Red Ryder?" has a Sam Shepard quality about it with a setting in a small town diner in New Mexico. Sophie Parker and Brent Welch do a very believable job with their characterizations of the night and day employees of the cafe who have spent hours talking to each other only scratching the surface of their lives.

Parker, as Angel, portrays a sweet girl with a nervous giggle who wants to think the best of everyone. Welch, as Stephen, comes on successfully as a swaggering post-adolescent who is finding it difficult to step into manhood.

In the beginning of the first act there is so much stage business going on it tends to distract from the repartee, but eventually the busyness gives way to the real action.

Duane Mattingly, as Teddy, is a character the other diners, as well as the audience, view with fear and loathing. His partner, Cheryl, played by Kristina Lahm, did much to sustain the atmosphere of tension and anxiety that filled the little cafe for most of the play.

It is a pleasure to see a play on a proscenium stage in an intimate space such as the Corbin Theater. Voices from the stage are clearly audible and all the action is visible. In-the-round staging seen in Sanibel theaters loses actors voices at times and activity also loses something when viewed from behind.

The diner set was perfect, down to the little menu tents on the tables.

From this first experience viewing ECC student theater comes a strong recommendation to take advantage of the opportunity to see this play in particular and more of the theater that Director Westlake produces with his students.

"When I first started here, there was no competition. Now there are new theaters opening up all the time," said Westlake. This is true, and for the drama-lover it is a bonanza limited only by one's budget.

ECC theater has a few things going for it: it is good, it is close, and it only costs $5.

Performances at Corbin Theater on ECC Fort Myers campus are Friday and Saturday, March 4 and 5 at 8 p.m. with an additional matinee at 2 p.m. on March 5. Call the Barbara B. Mann box office for ticket reservations, 481-4849.

es of sandy beach. Stories of lightkeepers struggling to keep the lamp lit during terrible storms, and the romantic notion of the isolation of the lightkeeper and his family, bring many nostalgic ideas to mind.

Symbolically, the lighthouse metaphor has been used in hymns, by poets and politicians. It has a strong emotional appeal.

Now Elias, in her early 30s, travels the country finding picturesque sites to add to her collection of over 100 American lights. She has traveled to most of the lights she has depicted, working primarily with lighthouses in Michigan, and the East Coast from Maine to Key West. But she looks forward to rendering west coast lights from Alaska to California and Hawaii.

"I started buying lighthouse books and doing research on them. I don't think you could get tired of them. There must be over 2,000 in the United States and each one is beautiful," Elias said. The more she learned about them, the more concerned she became about their preservation and she tries to educate lighthouse lovers about the need to save many of the lights from decay and destruction.

The United States Lighthouse Society, of which Elias is a member, is a non-profit, historical and educational organization whose goal is to do restoration and preservation of America's lighthouses, as well as the collection of artifacts and lore about the lights.

"I'm pleased because Wayne Wheeler, president of the society, recently told me they are endorsing my paintings," she said.

Elias encourages others to join the Lighthouse Society as a way of preserving the proud structures of Victorian beauty which are being rapidly replaced by automated, rotating aero-beacons on monopoles requiring no maintenance personnel. She will be happy to answer questions about lighthouse lore.

On a peninsula between ocean and bay, Elias lives in a 100-year-old refurbished boat house in Clam Creek, where from her rustic studio she can see clam boats come and go and has a clear view of the Absecon Lighthouse in Atlantic City.

What is next after she has done all the lighthouses?

"Maybe I'll do lightships," she said. "The traveling is fun."

Elias' love of travel brings her to Sanibel at least a couple of times a year and this year she is happy to introduce some of her family to the area.

Chamber music on the light side at BIG Arts

By Marianne Dila Strickland
Staff Writer

How pleasant it was to relax in Phillips Gallery at BIG Arts on the evening of Feb. 24 hearing the marvelous music of the Myriad Ensemble, surrounded by art work of the Sanibel-Captiva Art League.

The music was well chosen. The pieces suited the ensemble's energy, were a perfect combination of old and new, and focused on the lighter side of chamber music. Island music lovers show their appreciation for gifted musicians host John Friedman brings us by filling every concert to gallery capacity.

The gallery this week, hung with subjects that island artists love most, made a fitting background for the ensemble. Paintings of landscapes, people, rooms, trees, shells, flowers, streets, automobiles, children and even fruits and vegetables enhanced the feelings evoked by the spirited music.

The first piece by Milhaud and played by oboe, clarinet and horn brought to mind three children walking home from school—chattering, singing, the oboe often skipping circles around the other two instruments. In eight short vignettes, the composition never failed to be interesting.

When Kathryn Brown joined the group on piano, her clear runs and graceful, expressive body movements echoed the musicianship and verve of the rest of the group.

In "Opus Number Zoo," composed by Luciano Berio in 1925, the musicians wove narration into their playing. An exciting interplay of music and words. One poem, text by Rhoda Levine, drew a communal sigh from the audience, "The Grey Mouse."

"By herself, by herself,
watching the party,
this small mouse upon a shelf.
Very old, very old, she felt no cheer
at the dawn of the New Year.
Friends, she said, young friends, she said,
Dance, my young friends, dance,
But do beware, I warn you.
For I too have danced and sung like you. I too have been young, so young, so young.
But alas, alas, pst, pst!
Time came to join in the dancing,
time came to join in the fun."

The five musicians of the Myriad Ensemble who played the concert are part of a larger group which performs throughout the Cleveland area and are the musicians in residence at the Cleveland Museum of Art.

Kathryn Brown, pianist, said that several of them met during the summer of 1989 at the Marlboro Music Festival and finding they were all from around Cleveland, agreed it would be pleasant to play together more often. Brown and harpist, Yolanda Kondonassis, were the forces who brought the group together and found occasions for them to share their sound with audiences.

Lynette Diers Cohen is principle bassoonist with the Ohio Chamber Orchestra. She said she was prompted to change instruments from clarinet to bassoon when a bassoonist was needed in the orchestra. Her parents encouraged her with "...it's a nice instrument," and she decided to make the change.

"More women are playing bassoon all the time. It isn't an instrument you can start on because it's too big. Small hands can't reach." She said the clarinet and bassoon differ in fingering, reeds, and it took some effort to make the change.

Jeffrey Rathbun, assistant principal oboist of the Cleveland Orchestra, has won many honors as an oboe player. He is also a published composer and has composed a piece which the full Myriad ensemble performs. Perhaps next year we will hear it.

Two of the group claimed to be cat lovers—Joshua Smith, principal flutist with the Cleveland Orchestra, and Kathryn Brown, pianist. Brown teaches at the Cleveland Institute of Music. She misses her husband, a physician, who is currently studying at Yale University.

Richard King, associate principal horn of the Cleveland Orchestra builds up his stamina by running marathons.

Each instrumentalist's biography lists many prestigious credentials, making any one of them of formidable reputation on his own, but it was apparent they enjoyed playing together. They were unanimous in saying how pleased they were to be playing for us on Sanibel.

TRASH OVER THE FENCE—A complaint was filed on Feb. 26 with the police alleging that an unknown person had been dumping vegetation and construction trash behind an unoccupied building on San-Cap Road. No evidence was found. The officer advised the owner of the building to establish a fence to decrease access to the area.

MANGROVES ARE NOT SEA GRAPES—On Feb. 26 a call was made to the police that his neighbor was cutting mangroves. Upon investigation, the said individual was found only to be removing seagrapes from his yard.

LAWN JOB—A Sanibel woman contacted the department on the morning of Feb. 26 and said that a vehicle had driven through her yard leaving tire marks. She said the incident occured in the early hours of the morning. She said that this happens often, and requested that an area check be done.

THEFT ON MIDDLE GULF—A man suffered over $900 in losses when unknown subjects entered and removed items from his condominium on Middle Gulf Drive. The daughter of the victim said that food had been taken from the house in October of the previous year. Condominium personel had access to the place to do work, but they reported no disturbances.

CD tapes, beer, diet coke, and beach towels were reported stolen by the owner. There are no suspects in the case.

STOLEN GOODS—A man reported parking his motor home in the parking lot on Tarpon Bay Road on Feb. 25 in the afternoon, when he returned to find the glass broken out of one of the windows. A video camera and film, plus $50 had been taken. The goods were worth over $1,600.

BAT TRAP—A man in Gulf Pines reported a trapped bat on the morning of Feb. 25. An officer was dispatched to the scene where he promptly captured and released the disturbing creature.

SICK OF BEING ARRESTED—Donald Gray, a maintenance man on Sanibel, was arrested for disorderly conduct at a restaurant on Periwinkle in the late hours of Feb. 24. The manager of the establishment said the man had been causing problems at the bar area, and when asked to leave, grabbed the manager by the tie. Officers were called and requested that the man step outside. Again he refused, and had to be physically removed. Outside he began to threaten the officers and to yell obscenities. He was then placed under arrest for disorderly conduct. While on the way to the Lee County Jail, Gray said he was going to kill both the officers, and that he was tired of the SPD arresting him.

BATTLE OF WORDS—A man of West Gulf Drive filed a report with the police stating on Feb. 24 in the afternoon that a maintenance person had gotten into a verbal confrontation with him over the repair of gas grills. He alledged that the suspect then knocked him to the ground and hit him in the face and chest. The suspect told police they had argued but only bumped into each other and both had fallen to the ground accidentally. The victim refused to press charges.

TROLLEY TROUBLES—A car backed into a parked trolley car the morning of Feb. 24 at Jerry's supermarket. There were no injuries to the 15 passengers on the trolley or the woman driving the car.

ISLAND REPORTER ADVERTISING GETS RESULTS!

"IT directly resulted in The Sale of That Property"

Ms. Patty Bauer
Island Reporter
2340 Periwinkle
Sanibel, FL 33957
Dear Patty:
Please find enclosed a copy of an ad three of my Associates and I placed in the 11/19/93 edition of the Island Reporter. Imagine my surprise and delight when I received a telephone inquiry that very morning(!) relating to one of the properties featured.
Not only did I meet the prospective customers before noon that day, it directly resulted in the sale of that property!!! Talk about RESULTS!
I have been in this business for many years and this was really one of the times I was able to track the advertising exactly, it was gratifying and exhilarating. I am truly pleased.
Thank you for your creative efforts on my behalf.
Sincerely Yours, Mary Lou Bailey

"This form of advertising has brought me more business than anything else I have done over the past 3 1/2 years!"

I recently decided to run a large sale in my shop and thought flyers would be great. I was in the process of calling around for prices when Patty Bauer arrived from the Island Reporter. After giving her the design, all else was taken care of for me. The flyers were printed & stuffed into 3,000 copies of the paper & distributed locally.

This form of advertising has brought me more business than anything else I have done over the past 3 1/2 years. I can't thank Patty enough for her help in getting all this organized.

By the way – not even Office Depot could match the Island Reporter's prices. Marsha Paplham

"TWO of the last five properties I advertised are now SOLD!"

I would like to thank you for doing a great job on my advertising in the Island Reporter. Two of the last five properties I advertised are now SOLD! Besides helping to sell those two properties, I have received many quality inquiries as a direct result of the ads. In fact, another agent saw the recent ad I ran on a Gumbo Limbo home, and quickly set up a showing. Although it didn't "sell" the home per se, it did get a qualified family to tour a great home that they otherwise may never have taken a good look at.

Because of the results I have decided to scale back some of my advertising dollars in areas that just do not make the phone ring, and increase my budget with The Island Reporter. It's important to my clients that I get the best value for my advertising dollar. The professionalism with which you handle my account, the numerous inquiry calls, and the favorable comments I have received on the advertisements from fellow Realtors, all tell me that it is money well spent.
Sincerely Yours, Charlie Sobczak

"My Ad On The Fourth Of February Is Already Under Contract."

Ms. Patty Bauer
Island Reporter
P.O. Box 809
Sanibel, FL 33957
Dear Patty:
After many years of advertising in different Real Estate magazines and newspapers, I decided to concentrate on just the newspaper this year. To my surprise, my ad featuring a single family "Place In The Sun" on the fourth of February is already under contract.

Thanks for your help and lets do it again.
Sincerely,
Barbara
