WHO'S WHO AND WHY

Visiting in their new home on Gulf Drive are Mr. and Mrs. GEORGE CANTOR of Stamford, Conn. A report from Mr. and Mrs. B.K. TREMAINE of West-town, Conn., advises they are going to Bermuda for the holidays and hope to be in residence their new gulf front home on Gulf Drive about April 1.

Mrs. E.M. DURSTINE flew in from Tampa last Sunday to get the Durstine's new home on Sanibel's gulf front ready for an invasion by the entire family for the Christmas holidays. Boxes of Christmas gifts have been pouring into the Sanibel postoffice for the family's first holiday get-together on the Island.

ONE WAY TO RETIRE

Last week was a typical one for Mario Hutton, the "retired" Islander. On five successive days he: attended the opening of the Art League Exhibit on Captiva, featuring some of his color photos; gave a "photo-verse" show attended by over 300 people at the Women's Club in Naples; conducted a slide program for the Science Club of Lake Cypress High; presided at the first meeting of the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon; wrote his December quota of five monthly scripts for the Voice of America. On the sixth day, as has become a habit (or "a disease," he puts it), he got away from it all, to go fishing on the Blue Heron. He told us with a straight face that in order to enjoy a day of complete relaxation he managed NOT to win the jackpot.

Mr. and Mrs. HENRY PETERS of Higgins Lake, Mich., have returned to Beachview for their 7th year and have with them for six weeks their daughter, Mrs. EDWARD KOZLOWSKI, and young daughter, ANN. They are all looking forward to their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. DONALD MENGE of Warren, Mich., arriving this week as they are all planning some extensive fishing and shelling trips with guide Belton Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. SPENCER HARRIS of Atlanta, Ga., also are spending their annual visit and have their daughter and son-in-law and family, Mr. and Mrs. SYDNEY E. SMITH and SUSAN, WADE and PEGGY LYNN visiting for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. RALPH C. LEE of Carmel, Ind., spending their annual three week vacation were quite pleased to find three bumperless wheelks.

Mr. and Mrs. PASI J. RUTANEN and two sons now living in McLean, Virginia, and who is a Finnish news Correspondent with Finnish Television and Radio Broadcasting Co., have thoroughly enjoyed two weeks on our Islands.

"NOAH'S ARK"

The Thrift Shop of St. Michael's and All Angels Church will be open for business on Thursday, Dec. 21, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The shop is in the new building beside the church and will be known as Noah's Ark.

Come by and do your last minute Christmas shopping. There are many exciting bargains.

LIBRARY TO SELL DUPLICATE BOOKS

Readers old and young will have an opportunity to buy books from the Sanibel Public Library, and for the support of the library. The sale will be held in front of Bailey's General Store in the Shopping Center from 9:00 a.m. to noon on Saturday, December 16.

The books to be put on sale are duplicates of books already on the shelves. Friends who donate books to the library frequently duplicate those already on hand, and these are being sold to provide money for new titles. Library officials report that the budget for new books is so thin as to be practically invisible. The sale is being held to nourish that budget.

The Date: Saturday, Dec. 16
The Time: 9 a.m. to Noon
The Place: Bailey's Store.

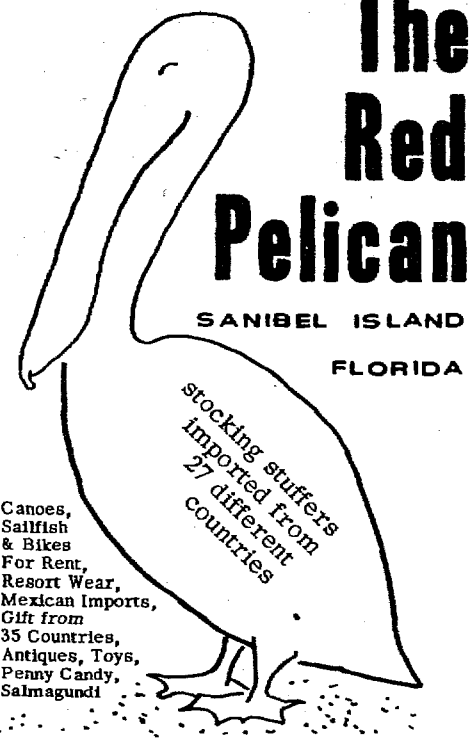

Priscilla Murphy Realtor reports the sale of a parcel of land in Section 20-46-22 by Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Roberts of Philadelphia, Penna., to Jamestown Beachview, Inc., of Jamestown, New York.

NORM and ROSE CHAMBERS and ROY BAZIRE drove to Boca Raton last week to visit FRANK and SHIRLEY JURISCH and inspect their new Winterhalter Inn. Opening January 15, the seven story luxury apartment building has 70 units, all with private balconies.

The 1 1/4 million dollar resort includes private gulf beach, frontage on the Intracoastal Waterway as well with 200 feet of dockage, fresh water pool, putting green, patio, shuffleboard, recreation room, barbecue facilities. Restaurant is to be added later. The Jurisches had spent 10 months on Sanibel in 1965-66 researching a planned motel complex with golf course.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH PARTY

The Episcopal Church women of St. Michael's will hold their annual Christmas party on December 21, Thursday, at 8 p.m. in the Sunday School room.

NEW FLAG AT PIRATE PLAYHOUSE

Susan Karr presented the Pirate Playhouse with a beautiful new Old Glory which will fly from the schoolhouse flagpole for the opening of My Three Angels on Dec. 22.

This charming comedy by the Spewaks boasts a fine cast: Jim Maguire, Kenan Fishburne, Timothy Gault, Arthur Orloff, Robert Dormer, Roy Bazire, Ruth and Philip Hunter who also directs and a new actor and actress this season, Gene Karr and Gale Maguire, Molly Orloff is stage manager.

The gift of the flag to the Pirate Playhouse will mean that all "Rent" collected for the new poster advertising wall will go to feed the hungry through the Meals For Millions Foundation, Santa Monica, California.

"My Three Angels" will have an 8:15 Curtain, Box Office GR 2-3943.

CANOING ON THE ISLANDS

by rainer esslen

If you know how to handle a canoe, you can discover two worlds that are completely different from the shelling-beach scenery of Sanibel-Captiva and far less well known.

One is the Sanibel River, a meandering waterway which, with a few interruptions, runs the full length of the Island from the area behind the American Legion building to the tip near the lighthouse, where it has been widened and deepened for sea going boats. The other world consists of the bayous and mudflats on the bayside of the Islands.

While the world of the bayous has received some long-range protection through the creation of the Ding Darling sanctuary, the land along the Sanibel River is privately owned, and may one day be "developed," as in fact it has been along the lower end of the river. Yet in its best sections the Sanibel River offers a scenery as mysterious as a distant jungle stream in Africa, with impenetrable vegetation bordering the banks, alligator eyes staring at you from black unfathomable waters, and nosy herons with raucous shrieks alerting the animal world to your coming.

There are three sections of the river worth exploring. One stretches from the Tarpon Bay Road to the Casa Ybel Road, and it can be entered from either side. It is distinguished by centipeded mangrove thickets, some decorated with beards of Spanish moss, innumerable aningas perching on swaying branches to dry their wings, and probably the largest population of alligators of any part of the Island. The alligators, unfortunately, have become very shy, possibly because of poaching. In the old days, they often did not bother to move from the banks when you passed in a boat; and when in the water, they would keep their eyes above the water line to stare at you. You could tell by the distance between the eyes whether you were faced with a small or large alligator. Today, the alligators disappear under the water as fast as they can, and you know of their presence only by the trail of bubbles they leave on the surface.

The second river section stretches between Rabbit Road and the bird sanctuary near Tarpon Bay Road. However, the river is impenetrable in the sanctuary area. To enter it from that side, you have to launch your boat in a drainage canal that runs at right angles to the Sanibel River between Island Inn Road and State Road 867, just a few hundred yards west of Tarpon Bay Road. This section has more open banks, lined with palm trees, and with water pockets overgrown with cattails, which are a favorite hang-out for ducks. Whenever you quietly round a bend---and there is no craft that lends itself better than a canoe for absolutely noiseless gliding through the water---you are liable to stir up a flock of ducks, chattering with indignation, and often not bothering to fly but rather run away on the surface of the water with wings flapping noisily. It was in this section that my wife and I once saw a couple of sandhill cranes. We first didn't believe our eyes. They were so large that we thought they were two tree stumps---until they quietly took off.

One of the most popular spots for birds is a shallow pond adjacent to the intersection of the drainage canal and the Sanibel River. Anhingas, herons and ibises perch in the trees, and the ducks busily scoot about the water's surface. The minute you try to enter the pond, everyone of them takes off, and as long as you are visible, none of them will return. But if you are patient, hide yourself in the cattails and cover the exposed parts of your body with insect repellent, you may be rewarded by seeing them all come back one by one.

The third section of the river is best entered at Rabbit Road, heading northwest. You may have to fight your way through a lot of cattails at first, but you will encounter worthwhile new vistas at every bend of the river. Formerly, it was possible to paddle a canoe without obstacle as far as the road leading to the Chateau sur Mer development, close to which there is another shallow pond full of bird life. Presently, however, several dirt roads stop your progress about a mile down-river---unless you want to portage the canoe. According to Charles Le Buff, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Officer for Sanibel, the roads are put in only temporarily to allow the Mosquito Control Department to dig some more drainage ditches. When the work is finished, the plugged waterways will be "unplugged" again. Incidentally, Mr. Le Buff also points out that the work of the Mosquito Control Department has resulted in a higher and more stable water level throughout the Sanibel River water system, greatly enhancing fish and bird life.

On the bayside, some excellent canoe trips can be started from the road running through the Ding Darling sanctuary. In fact, an "official" canoeing route is staked out by markers with a white pelican whose one wing points in the direction the about six-mile circular course runs. However, according to Mr. Le Buff, the route may be changed in the future. At the moment, it takes you for quite a distance through the ditch running alongside the road and then it turns off through the mangrove-lined bayous, where you will encounter pelicans, cormorants, wood storks, herons, ibises and dozens of other water birds. Once you get away from the road, you may be better off with the official Nautical Chart 856 SC, which can be purchased in Fort Myers. Some of the markers have lost their pointing pelican, and the mangrove shores all look so much alike that, without a chart, you soon may no longer know where you are.

On a calm day, you may even want to venture out into the bay. One of our favorite spots is one of the Wulfert Keys, a roost for hundreds of pelicans. But it's not the pelicans that attract us---rather the company that searches them out---the frigate birds, one of the most graceful species aloft. For its body weight the frigate bird has the widest wing span of any bird. It sails like a glider through the air, waiting to dive onto a pelican to rob it of its catch. (For the frigate bird disdains doing

SHELL CLUB MEETING

The Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club will meet at the Sanibel Community House Dec. 18 at 8 p.m. The program will be "Batangas Bonanza" slides and comments by Jane Cate on Philippine shelling. As fun part of the evening there will be a shell exchange. Shell value if bought to be $1.00 value.

Visitors welcome.

The Sanibel and Captiva Shell Club as well as many residents of the Islands have long been concerned about the quantity of live shells that are being taken, and it has always been "Take all the dead shells you want, but leave the live ones to reproduce." Our live shells are being taken at an alarming rate. If this continues our beds of live shells will become depleted. As many of our "Guests" come to the Islands because they are they best in the Western Hemisphere we in time will lose this distinction. The Sanibel-Captiva Shell Club has had 50,000 fliers printed of the Conservation Poster in the Chamber of Commerce Building. We ask the cooperation of all businesses on the Islands to help distribute them. If motels will post one in each unit, and give one to each guest as they register; if the stores and shops will place them so customers can pick them up and if the Chamber of Commerce will give them out to transients we should cover about every one who comes to the Islands to shell. These fliers will be available at the Chamber of Commerce, Mary Aleck's Beauty Shop, Bernice McCaul's Driftwood Shop, the Harvey Meyers and Glory of the Sea. Any Shell Club member will be glad to deliver them to any business if they cannot arrange to pick them up.

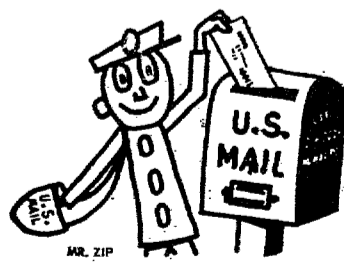

We have Fish and Game laws to protect our Wildlife, let's all get together Conservation-wise and save our shells.

TURN SIGNAL USE URGED

TALLAHASSEE -- In response to many inquiries still being received about the use of turn signals, Colonel H.N. Kirkman, Director of the Department of Public Safety, said today, "We encourage all drivers to signal every time they change lanes or pull out to pass another vehicle."

The veteran Florida Highway Patrol Commander said many people are still uncertain about the present law, but he pointed to the recent ruling by Attorney General Earl Faircloth that the use of turn signals for changing lanes is legal.

Kirkman concluded, "Such a signal to let other drivers know your intentions is good defensive driving, but be sure to turn off your signal when you have completed the maneuver."

JOHN E. SEMMES

John Semmes brought his wife, his daughter and her three children, his daughter-in-law and her child and her father to Tween Waters Inn the last winter of World War II.

He bought property the next winter in the Turner Estate and built one of the first cottages there. He and his wife lived there ten or twelve years and he certainly left a notable mark on the Islands. He was largely responsible for the paved road from Ferry Dock to Captiva's store. He, by inviting Bishop and Mrs. Wm. Remington to spend a winter with him and his wife, was responsible for reopening and rejuvenating our Chapel by the Sea and getting the Islanders interested again. I am quite sure he had a great deal to do with the organization of the Captiva Civic Association. In fact there was no civic effort in which he was not helpful and interested. He was much loved, admired and respected by all who ever knew him. After several years of retirement he returned to Baltimore and to a semi-active life of an attorney and Counsel.

He also was very active in his northern home in community service and in his lifetime left a notable mark on the history of Baltimore and of Maryland in this century. He was particularly influential in education, as chairman of a committee that arranged negotiations for Morgan College to become part of the State system, as chairman of a commission reporting to the Legislature on higher education in Maryland and for many years as a member of the board of regents of the University of Maryland. In another field, he was head of the board that planned the establishment of what is now Friendship International Airport, and maintained an intense concern over the progress of that enterprise; and this by no means completes the list of his interests. He was, of course, long a leader of the bar. He was a member of the board of The A.S. Abell Company, and was known for his unfailing good humor, infinite courtesy and persistent independence of thought.

SEVEN SEAS SHOP
BRINGS FISH PRINTING HERE

Centuries ago, before photography, the Japanese men made prints of their catches by painting the fish black and pressing on special paper which was then peeled off. They then ate their catch in the Highlands and returned home in the valleys with beautiful, exact-size fish prints to show their envious friends and neighbors. This ancient art of fish printing has come to Sanibel and Captiva Islands in an easy-to-use kit form.

Two years ago, Lon W. Ramsey, a vice president of the National Newspaper Syndicate, vacationed on Captiva. He thought what a boon to fishermen and their wives, seeking attractive wall decorations, a fish printing kit would be. Upon returning to his home in Winnetka, Illinois, Mr. Ramsey set to work developing the O'Fish'-All Replica Kit (also known as the No-Fib Fish Kit).

His O'Fish'All kit includes easy-to-follow instructions written in his own journalistic style, as well as yards of special absorbent paper for making fish prints, a brush and a proven black color for brushing on the fish which can then be eaten after prints are made.

Last spring Capt. Paul and First Mate Irene of the Seven Seas Shop on Sanibel Island heard of the kit through one of their customers and sought out Mr. Ramsey and obtained exclusive distribution of this wonderfully appropriate and practical item for the Sanibel-Captiva area.
