WHO'S WHO AND WHY

My, how we are expanding! Two new homes being constructed in The Rocks, side by side, and did you know that Sanibel Sesta will be adding more new units?

Just a few more days, and we will have a brand new Post Office, officially opening April 1, in its new location near the shopping center. Don't forget to use your new box numbers!

The Gallery Motel reports as their guests the following: Mr. and Mrs. ROBERT AKERS of Rocky River, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. ALLEN SACKS and family of Stamford, Conn.; Dr. and Mrs. C.T. GRISWOLD of Sparta, New Jersey; Dr. and Mrs. FREDERICK KINDER and daughter of Fairfield, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. MERLE HOLLO-WAY of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. HENRY SEVERIN and Mrs. STEPHENSON of Indianapolis, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. NORMAN VAN DE CARR of Rochester, N.Y.; and Mr. and Mrs. JOHN IRELAND of Rochester, N.Y.

Mrs. H.S. MILLS of Northfield, Illinois, staying at The Gallery for the past month, found her second Albino live Murex in front of The Gallery. Her first Albino Murex won third prize at the Shell Fair in the Unusual Shell category.

Another regular staying at The Gallery are the ALLAN TWYMANS. This is their seventh season. Mr. Twyman's watercolor scenes tied second place in the Shell Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. BARTRAM F. STIFFLER of McLean, Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. STANLEY CORFMAN of Darien, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. WARD LOVELL of Kingston, Mass., will be leaving the Melody Apartments, Sanibel, for their respective homes after spending four months here---their seventh year on Sanibel---on April 1st.

WANT AN EVENING OUT?

Do you need a change from sorting your days catch of shells or writing letters home to brag about those big fish you've caught? Then follow the ring of laughter and the sounds of gaiety that emanate from the Sanibel Community House on Friday nights and join the fun of "Game Night." Bridge, Canasta, Pennies from Heaven or Scrabble are played by friends and strangers alike, although no one remains a stranger for long.

For those who aren't "regulars" the invitation is open to come in and join the fun. Either make up your own table or come alone and meet a new friend. It only costs 50¢ per person to play and a door prize and table prize is given. Refreshments of coffee and cake are free. It is one of the friendly gestures of Sanibel Island residents towards winter visitors and their guests so do come on in and have fun at "Game Night" Friday night at 8:00 p.m. at the Sanibel Community House.

"MY THREE ANGELS"

Last Sunday night I spent one of the most pleasant couple of hours of anytime, at the Pirate Playhouse watching an excellent performance of "My Three Angels." Although Saturday, March 23, will be the last performance of this particular play, we are eagerly looking forward to the performance of "Pagan In The Parlor," which I understand is even funnier, if that is possible. The Bailey's, (Albert B.'s) were still laughing at breakfast about the book-keeping of the convict (played by Philip Hunter), and must say this reporter at present might be able to use some of his unorthodox methods, in fancy, that is.

REMINDER FOR ART LEAGUE

Today the Sanibel-Captiva Art League is putting on an Invitation Show of paintings, which will include the works of artists from the mainland and of Islanders. The League plans to continue these invitational shows from time to time.

The show will be hung at the "Exhibition Board" at the Captiva Post Office and the show hours will be from 9:00 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

Sanibel Islanders as well as Lee County visitors were delighted at the reception given Dotti's Fashion Show at Holiday Inn on Friday.

Definitely geared to please the average women who usually attend such affairs, the fashions ranged from slim to lavish both in price and figure sizes. (No large Economy sizes---no tiny unwearables.)

All models were local women who did a professional type job, showing the beautiful dresses to advantage. These included Mrs. Kenneth (Claire) Walters, Mrs. David (Marge) Wooster, Mrs. Robert (Scottie) Gale and Mrs. Leonard (Nippi) Long.

Mrs. R.C. HOILE (OLIVIA to her many friends on the Islands) and her handsome Siamese cat, IMP, from Columbia, South Carolina, are visiting PRISCILLA MURPHY for several weeks.

Both have had bad luck since their arrival---Olivia suffering a broken arm and Imp an upset which put him in the hospital, but in spite of all that, they are enjoying every day of their vacation here.

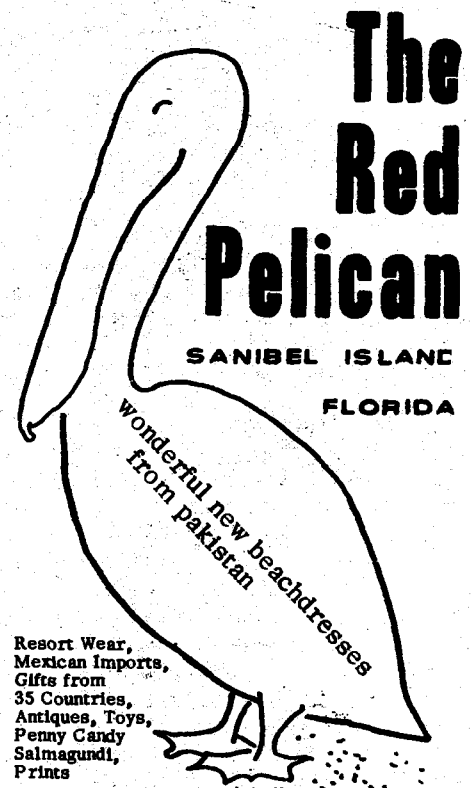

SYMROSKI - CULLINEY

Col. and Mrs. L.E. Symroski, Robins AFS, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Ann, to John Lawrence Culliney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Culliney, North Haven, Conn.

Miss Symroski is a graduate of Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga., and is working toward a Master's degree in Marine Biology at Scripps Institute of Oceanography, California. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. J. Ross Mayer of Sanibel Island, and the late J. Ross Mayer, and the Mr. and Mrs. E.S. Symroski, Braddock, Pa.

Mr. Culliney is a graduate of Yale University and is currently working on his Ph.D. in Marine Biology at Duke University.

The wedding is planned for the fall at Sanibel.

LETTER FROM A HAPPY GIRL

To the Community Association:

I think you must know how absolutely delighted I am at having won that beautiful shell table.

My thanks go to Dr. Tucker Abbott for drawing my ticket stub and to the person who had the lucky ticket book from which I purchased the ticket.

The table will be a constant reminder of my lovely visit to wonderful Sanibel!

Will you be kind enough to send the table to me at my New York address. I will have a black and white photo you requested taken and sent to you for your 1969 Shell Fair Brochure.

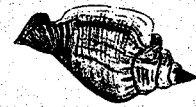

My friends are as thrilled about the table as I am. May I thank you for the opportunity to have won the beautifully conceived and crafted table.

With every good wish for future Shell Fairs.

Sincerely,

/s/ Jean McGrail
1 Sutton Place South
New York, New York

Incidentally, the ticket was sold by the Elsie Malones in their shop and the stub turned in last January. The shells are being packed and the table gotten ready for shipment as we close another year of Shell Fair activities.

FLORIDA GARDENING

Is there a bare corner in your home, your business building or your industrial plant that needs "something"? Nothing is more attractive than a low planter filled with colorful tropical foliage plants arranged in pyramidal fashion to form an interesting pattern against the wall, says President Richard Johnson of Florida Nurserymen and Growers Association.

In selection of plants for such a planter you will want an accent plant. This might be a tall palm, a bold-leaved sea-grape, or a fiddle-leaved Ficus Pandurata---or even an orange tree! This is your "piece de resistance" or accent plant. In selecting other plants you will want to select plants for contrast in foliage shape, size, and color---and it may range from the bold-leaved Philodendron to the fern-like pilea!

Color harmony and color contrast are important. You will need some glossy green foliage, some variegated foliage, some gaily colored foliage. Since this plant is to add life and vibrancy to the room you will want to try several plants to make sure the arrangement is working out well.

When selecting plants for planters, compatibility has to be considered. Most people have an idea that compatibility is a term used in divorce courts, but plants, to be as beautiful as they should be, must also be compatible. It is not wise to plant plants that need lots of water in a planter where there are plants that should be kept on the dry side. If you are not sure as to what plants are compatible in sun and moisture requirements, then you should consult with your FNGA nurseryman. He can help you select those that will give the proper effect to your planting, and yet thrive under the same care.

Many people do not remove the plants from the pots, but plunge the pots into the peat moss or fill soil and feed and water each plant individually. This takes a bit more time. If you are careful to get compatible plants, you can plant them into the planter and care for them all at the same time ---and usually these plants will maintain loveliness longer, since they have root space to expand. Sometimes you find a need for pruning to keep your planter material from getting out of bounds in size. When this is necessary, it is far easier to remove the tips of the taller plants and hold them at a height that is pleasing. This should be done from the time the planting is installed, and thus omit the need for heavy pruning.

It is with real regret that I learned that the Rev. and Mrs. H.E. Sheely, now serving Community Church, will soon be returning to Pennsylvania. Their going will leave a deep rift, for we have all learned to love the good Reverend and his wife, and how we have enjoyed his pithy sermons and beautiful choice of poetry recitations. Each Sunday surpassed the previous one, when we thought it could not be possible.

Dear Mable:

We are enjoying Sanibel so much even tho some of the days have been rather cool and cloudy. I have no trouble keeping busy, I just visit the Black Pearl and pick up one of their Craft Kits (with complete instructions) in Ribbon Straw, Feathers, Burlap, Felt, Resin, etc. They make such nice gifts for friends or the kiddies.

Oh, we have had some lovely days with bright sunshine and warm breezes. And you know what, Mable, I have the nicest tan, been using Aloes' Fashion and After Tan Moisture Creme from the Black Pearl and it's wonderful.

Well, Mable, must run to collect more shells to make more goodies.

Sincerely
Myrtle

P.S. How do you like this note paper I bought at the Black Pearl with a sketch of the Lighthouse?

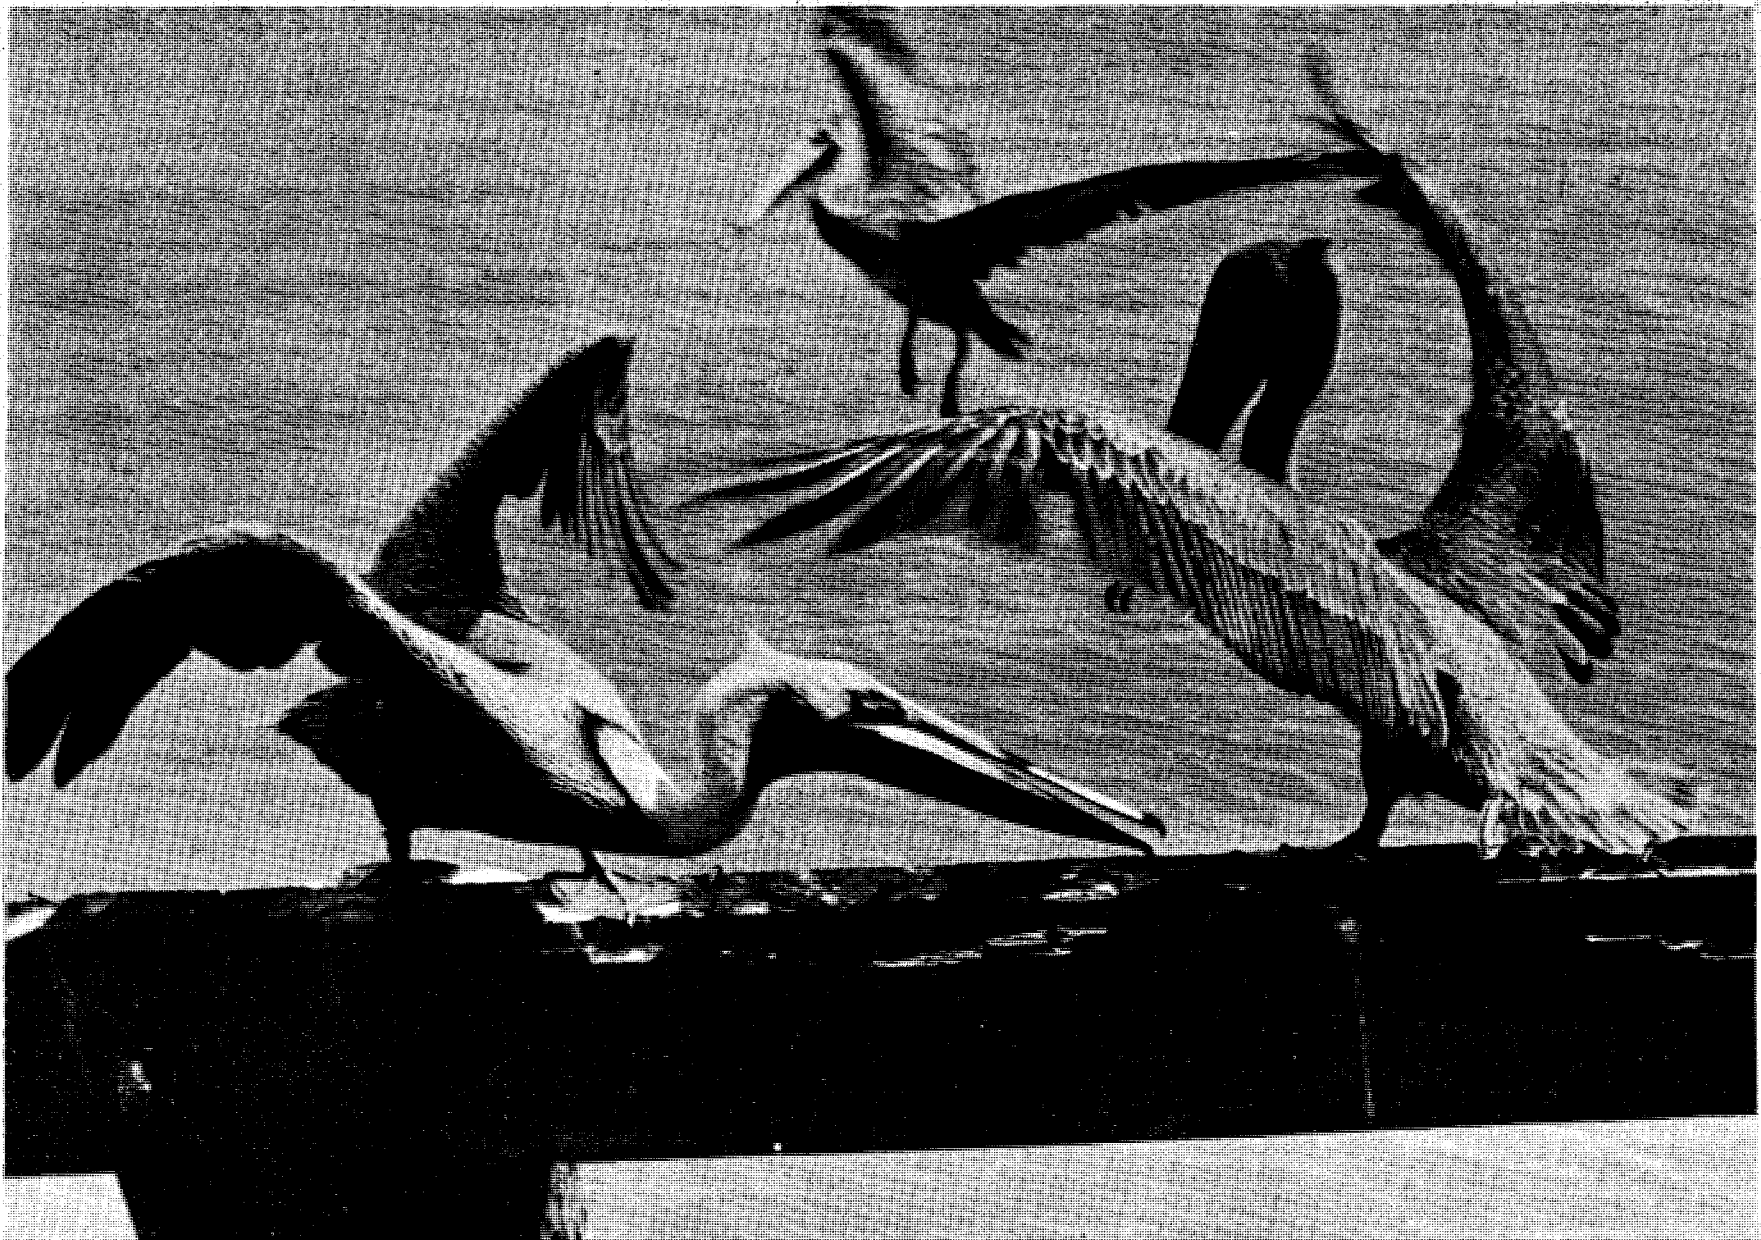

DRIVER LAW EXPLAINED

Colonel H.N. Kirkman, Director of the Department of Public Safety, today corrected some misunderstanding about Florida's new driver re-examination law by saying that no driving test, traffic law test or medical examination will be required.

In response to many inquiries about the law which was passed in the 1967 session of the legislature but does not become effective until 1971 Kirkman said, "Drivers must pass tests on eyesight, hearing and the ability to read and understand highway signs only."

"Even with these limited tests valuable results are expected from discovering and placing under corrective restrictions the drivers with vision and hearing defects," Kirkman said.

NEW LIBRARY BOOKS ON ARTS AND CRAFTS

Four new books on art and one for beginners in weaving are available at the Sanibel Public Library. These books supply everything but imagination, and the talent to implement it.

The four art books, all new and revised, are by Arthur L. Guptill, artist, writer and teacher, and former editor of "American Artist."

"Color Manual for Artists" contains fifteen full color plates of original charts, diagrams and color swatches. All phases of color in painting are explored, including color facts and theories, the qualities of color, pigments, equipment and basic techniques.

"Watercolor Painting Step-by-Step" provides instructive exercises and demonstrations for each step of the watercolorist's craft. The volume contains twenty-five chapters covering every basic problem of the medium.

"Oil Painting Step-by-Step" covers the fundamentals about painting materials and tools and how to use them. Illustrated by 170 plates in color and black-and-white, the author takes the reader through the technical aspects of painting landscapes, portraits, still lifes, nudes and clothed figures.

"Drawing with Pen and Ink" guides the student or beginner on the kinds of pens, paper and ink to use, through pen handling, value study and sketching. Works by other artists are shown to illustrate techniques.

"Elements of Weaving" by Azalea Stuart Thorpe and Jack Lenor Larsen, is a generously illustrated work on all aspects of the craft from the fundamental principles of simple looms and elementary weaves to more advanced textile designs. Detailed instructions are given for three weaving projects, and an analysis is given of the steps involved in producing plain weave, basket weave, rib weave, the twills, brocades, and lacy weaves.

by fuller warren

Mr. Historian: Why do politicians hunger and thirst for the presidency? They campaign 12 to 15 hours a day, six days a week, month-after-month, wearing their voices down to a hoarse whisper. Their tired eyes take on a glassy stare. Their fatigued bodies ache from exhaustion. Their punishing campaign schedule permits eating only at irregular intervals, and then they must gulp food down so fast that gastric disturbances often are induced.

Mrs. Historian: What makes presumably sane men punish themselves in pursuit of the presidency? Nobody knows, perhaps not even the candidates themselves. The burning yearning to be president seems to be a sort of obsession, unexplainable on rational grounds.

Mr. Historian: How far back has this obsession obsessed politicians pursuing the presidency?

Mrs. Historian: Almost from the beginning of the republic. Washington was about the only president who did not seethe with a gnawing ambition for the job; and even he may not have been so reluctant to serve as some historians claim.

One of America's most gifted statesmen, Henry Clay of Kentucky, spent most of his adult life trying to be president. As the presidential nominee of the Whig Party (putative parent of the Republican Party), Clay was defeated in 1824 by John Quincy Adams.

Eight years later, in 1832, as the Whig nominee for president, Clay was defeated by Andrew Jackson, Florida's first governor (territorial, 1821).

Twelve years later, in 1844, still carrying the Whig banner, Clay was cut down at the polls by James K. Polk of Tennessee.

In 1840, Clay tried in vain to get the Whig nomination for president.

In the twilight of a great and useful career, Clay, at 71, still sought that elusive phantom, the presidency.

He made his fifth attempt for the Whig Party nomination in 1848 but lost to Zachary Taylor of Louisiana, who was elected the 12th president of the U.S.

Florida's most famous adopted son, William Jennings Bryan, pursued the presidency almost as long---and as futilely---as Henry Clay. With the most sensational speech ever delivered at a national political convention, Bryan seized the Democratic nomination for president at Chicago in 1896. Bryan was only 36 when he thundered, "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

Making campaign speeches in nearly every state, Bryan lost to William McKinley, who campaigned mostly from his front porch in Canton, Ohio.

In 1900, Bryan again snared the Democratic nomination for president and again was defeated by McKinley.

In 1908, the relentless Bryan, in his quenchless quest of the White House, once more got the nod for the nomination and was trampled at the polls by Theodore "Rough Rider" Roosevelt.

Mr. Historian: Has any politician ever been more persistent in pursuit of the presidency than Bryan and Clay?

Mrs. Historian: Yes, Norman Thomas was nominated six times by the Socialist Party and defeated at each election, in 1928 through 1948, never polling as many as a million votes in any election.

Mr. Historian: Do you think the losers this time will continue to pine for the presidency?

Mrs. Historian: Yes, I don't doubt that some of the losers may be running again in 1972!

ALLIGATORS PROTECTED

Congressman Paul Rogers termed the endangered species passed out of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee as the most effective legislation yet designed to protect Florida's alligators.

The bill sets up federal machinery to prosecute dealers in poached alligator hides. The full committee passed the bill this morning. Hearings were held earlier in the subcommittee on fisheries and wildlife conservation, of which Rogers is also a member. Rogers supported the legislation and backed the amendment which included alligators among the species which the legislation covers.

Rogers explained that present law covers the transport in interstate or foreign commerce of many species, but the reptile family that includes the alligator, was not given protection under this law.

"We have included reptiles and amphibians and other such wildlife in the bill," Rogers said. "This means that the person who buys alligator hides and then sells them, or the person who buys them in another state now are violating a federal law.

"If a poacher is not caught in the act of slaughtering and can get the carcass of hide to a shipper, there is little state or federal officials can do under the present law," Rogers said. "But I anticipate the House will act soon on this legislation so that anyone dealing in the unlawful handling of alligator hides will be subject to federal penalties and fines."

The bill carries penalties up to a $1,000 fine and/or six months in prison. "Our alligators are fast vanishing," Rogers said. "I think this legislation is the most effective piece of machinery yet devised to halt this slaughter."

AUDUBON SOCIETY

A talk on birding and bird banding in Taiwan and Africa will be given to the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society by Leslie Severinghaus of Coconut Grove, Florida, at the Sanibel Community Center tonight (March 28). The meeting, to which the public is welcome, will start at 8 o'clock.

Severinghaus, recently retired headmaster of the Haverford School, Haverford, Pennsylvania, and a Trustee of Cornell University, has been interested in ornithology since boyhood. He has had extensive ornithological experience in southeastern Asia and Taiwan, where his son, Dr. Sheldon Severinghaus, is at present teaching biology at the University of Taipei. Together father and son have been studying the transmission of virus diseases by birds in that part of the world. They have banded birds up to levels of 10,000 feet in the Taiwan mountains.

Severinghaus and Mrs. Severinghaus have recently returned from a trip of more than 3,000 miles in eastern and southern Africa. Some of the pictures he will show were taken on that trip. During his last stay in Taiwan, Severinghaus and his son attended the meeting of the World Conservation Union in Thailand. Incidentally, first Audubon-sponsored trip was in Florida more than two decades ago. It was followed by trips in several other parts of the United States.

May we suggest that if you wish to view our lovely birds, and natural beauty that you please pull off the road and do so at your leisure, the person following you may have an important business engagement to keep. Thanks.

The Fish Fry held on the Causeway last Sunday for the benefit of the Ball League was a huge success. The weather cooperated beautifully, the fish were done to a turn, the hush puppies, baked beans and cole slaw added the finishing touches, and business literally boomed! With this type of support Boys, it's up to you, go out and win them all!

I would like to say a great big heartfelt "Thanks" to the many kind Islanders, who have stopped in the shop, "Erin's Blue Shamrock" to wish me well in the operation of a life long dream come true. Your good wishes are deeply appreciated, and I hope that this will be a delightful relationship of the community and floral shop.

May I say that the name Erin (meaning Ireland, of course) and the Blue Shamrock (Blue, due to the deep rich green of the growing shamrock in the Emerald Isle,) was chosen because, yes, I am Irish, and promise that on April 5, be the good Lord willing, Clan Cashon, (formerly O'Cashion of Leix, Ireland) will appear in force. Please come meet my family, and enjoy Irish punch and Shamrock cookies. We shall expect you!

REMINDER TO REGISTER

Secretary of State Tom Adams today reminded Floridians that there are only 10 days left in which to register to vote in the May primaries.

By law, the voter registration books will close in all counties on April 6, Adams said, and they will not reopen until after the May 7 and May 28 primaries are over.

"I urge all Floridians who are eligible but not yet registered to vote to make every effort to do so during the coming week," Adams said. "It's your last chance if you want to help select your party's nominees in the November 5 General Election.

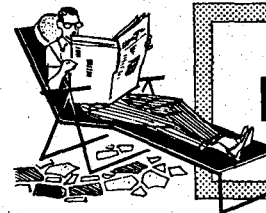

"If you don't bother to register and vote, you certainly won't have any grounds for complaining about the direction which our government takes during the next few years."

Adams pointed out that the voter rolls have been completely purged in all 67 counties, and "many voters will find that they are no longer registered if they failed to return their reregistration cards."

The Secretary of State, who is Florida's chief elections officer, explained, "The registration purge is required by law, and reregistration cards were mailed to the last known address of every voter in Florida. The new registration books in each county were made up from those cards which were returned.

"If you are in doubt about your voting status," Adams said, I suggest you immediately contact your County Supervisor of Elections."

Adams estimated that nearly 2,500,000 voters will be registered for the 1968 elections.
