AUDUBON SEASON OPENS TONIGHT

The 1968-69 season of the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon gets underway tonight, Thursday, December 12 with an interesting program to be held at the Sanibel Community House at 8 p.m. As usual, the gathering is open to the public. Shown will be "The Colonial Naturalist," a color film in which flora and fauna of Virginia in 1712 are seen through the eyes of Mark Gatesby, who wrote and illustrated the most important natural history of North America before Audubon. Beautiful wild life filming by Ty and Julie Hotchkiss is complemented by authentic sounds of nature, informative dialogue, and a superb performance by Donald Moffat as the naturalist.

The entire program for the Audubon season promises to be among the most ambitious and comprehensive to date. It will include ten indoor shows and five outdoor events taking place from December 12 to April 10, 1969. Among the former will be return appearances by Hal H. Harrison and Leslie R. Severinghaus, who last year conducted two very successful programs. Other outstanding speakers will include Dr. Andrew J. Meyerriecks, Henry H. Briggs, Mark M. Keith and Mrs. Bradley Fisk. The Audubon's president, Mario F. Hutton, will present two of his newest "photo-verse" shows, and also conduct an outdoor tour on nature photography. In addition to the Annual Bird Count on Dec. 28, there will be several bird-watching and nature walks, of which Griffing Bancroft, Charles LeBuff and Hervey Roberts will be leaders. The Audubon will also cooperate closely with the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation, that will sponsor a Gala Benefit on January 23.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

M.T. Dixon, Director of the Florida Department of Veterans Affairs, announced today that the House Committee on Veterans Affairs in Washington, D.C., has again asked that a form be sent to some 35,000 veterans receiving either VA compensation or pension.

Dixon says the survey is being conducted in connection with the Committee's continuing review of the VA hospital program. A similar questionnaire was sent to 36,000 veterans in May 1967.

Dixon said that the veteran's signature is not required and that he encourages all veterans who receive the form to cooperate in the survey by completing the form and returning it to the Committee in Washington, D.C.

LOST AND FOUND

Holly Moore of Periwinkle Apartments lost her diamond from her engagement ring while having some clothes washed at the laundromat on Sanibel Island about a year ago. A thorough search was made by Holly and the owners of the laundromat. Recently, the owners of the laundromat were having some machines overhauled and, having been on the alert for the diamond, found it in perfect condition. The owners were so happy that they called Holly immediately. Now Holly is going to have a new engagement-wedding ring for Christmas.

SMALL WORLD DEPARTMENT

The first two guests signing the guest register at the Artisan Shop Saturday were both Mr. & Mrs. Robert Shipman. One from Gastonbury, Conn., and the other from Wallingford, Pa. They never had heard or had met each other--but they probably have by now.

We Do Take Great Pride In Your Gifts

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"
by Russell Kay

It is possible to prophesy events far in advance of their occurrence? Can seers who predict the future really see what will actually happen? Are such predictions lucky guesses or the result of an unusual gift?

While all predictions have not panned out, enough have to give cause for serious thought. The current issue of Fate Magazine features an article by Brad Steiger and Warren Smith entitled "How the Seers Scored in 1968" that indicates there is more to the question than meets the eye or ear.

Best known among present day seers is probably Jeane Dixon of Washington, D.C., who predicted the assassination of both President and Senator Kennedy along with many others that actually came true.

The late Edgar Casey appeared to have the gift of prophecy and many of the events he foresaw have actually occurred. Irene Hughes has had enough of her prophesies come true to make us sit up and take notice, as have those of a number of lesser known seers here and abroad.

R. C. (Doc) Anderson, the Georgia seer, predicted the slaying of Martin Luther King as well as that of Senator Kennedy. However his prediction that George Wallace would win the presidential election was a clean miss.

Clifford Matthew Royce, the Chicago "Mr. Psychic" predicted there would be no recession in 1968. He said the greatest problem would be inflation. He successfully predicted the tight money market, rising interest rates and both U.S. and Russian internal problems. He foresaw the rapid escalation of military activity in Vietnam and America's world wide denunciation as a result. He also predicted the new type of influenza that would strike the U.S. this year coming from Hong Kong. He also predicted that the Republicans would win the election.

Malva Dee, Canada's seeress, foresaw the return to power of the Liberal Party in Canada. She also predicted the retirement of President Johnson as occurring this year and saw the march of poor people on Washington. She predicted the loss of an American submarine although she did not mention the "Scorpion."

Edgar Casey foresaw the return of the lost continent of Atlantis to the Atlantic with great tidal waves and volcanic eruptions that would do tremendous damage to our eastern seaboard.

I could sleep a lot better if so many of these predictions had not already come true.

SEASON SPIRIT COULD BE LIFE SAVING FACTOR

The Florida Highway Patrol today said the Christmas spirit, practiced throughout the year, could be a life saving factor on the State's highways.

Colonel H. N. Kirkman, Director of the Department of Public Safety said, "The approach of the Christmas season brings a new lift to everyone's spirits. This is reflected by an attitude of being more courteous, friendlier and more aware of the importance of life. If motorists would carry this attitude over into their driving, traffic accidents could be reduced and many lives could be saved."

The veteran Patrol commander emphasized the importance of courtesy in driving by saying that "in reality every violation of the traffic law is a discourteous act toward other drivers on the highways and a discourteous act in traffic could mean an accident."

Kirkman concluded by saying, "Don't leave this attitude of goodwill on the sidewalks or in the shopping carts. Extend it to your driving the year 'round - it could be the life saving factor for you and others."

HOW TO GET PUBLICITY IN YOUR LOCAL
HOMETOWN NEWSPAPER
Harrington (Del.) Journal

Before we start enumerating the ways of getting publicity into a newspaper, permit us to define the word, "release."

We define it "as an article someone wants published in a newspaper."

These releases are, for the most part, sent in by various firms and industries, always from a distance; federal and state agencies; churches, schools and civic bodies, usually from a distance. Some ways to get the release into print are as follows:

1. Do not subscribe to the newspaper to which you send the release. The editor will not know whether or not you are a subscriber.
2. To save paper, write on both sides of the sheet. Also, do not write "Over" at the bottom of the first page.
3. Be sure to write in long-hand. If you must use a typewriter single space your lines. If you double-space your lines, the editor might make some correction between them.
4. Be sure the release is written by the janitor or office boy of the firm. If you have an expert, in a particular field, in the firm, let him write the release. After all, it is not necessary to waste your time going to a journalism school to be able to write releases.
5. Be sure to send your releases to the daily newspapers first. The weekly newspapers will not mind running it, if it happens to be valuable, five or six days later.
6. If your release pertains to some shindig you are giving, with an admission fee, charge the editor for admission; do not give him a complimentary ticket.

7. When mailing releases, be sure to use a 3 cent stamp. It is cheaper than a 5 cent stamp.

8. Do not send the editor what he wants in the paper. After all, you are doing the work. Send him what you want.

9. Send the editor the release from your company and send the advertising elsewhere. In this way, you get better coverage.

10. If you have some news that should be of special value to the editor, withhold it. Just send him your regular release.

11. Be sure to tell the editor you want the release on the front page. While you are giving advice on how to run the business, you might tell the grocer to put his meat counter up front.

12. Do not use the local angle. This would mean including the names of persons and places with which the community is familiar. It would take too much time to dig up the material.

13. Be sure to make your release long. By that, we mean two or three typewritten pages. The editor has difficulty in "finding something with which to fill up the paper," and he will appreciate it.

14. If your release has already appeared in a newspaper, say, your local paper for example, just send the editor's clippings.

15. Don't worry about your spelling and punctuation. Just leave it to the editor to make the corrections.

16. After you mail the release, ask the editor to send you four or five copies at his expense.

17. If you have reason to believe the editor might not run the release, give it to some citizen of the town in which the newspaper is published. He is surely to apply pressure on the editor to get it printed.

18. If the editor hesitates about publishing it, tell him it is news and the Podunk Bugle is using it. This is sure to make a hit, as the editor does not know the definition of news.

19. If you are doing business with the editor, tell him you "will take your business elsewhere," if he does not publish your article or release.

20. Be sure to include a photo. If it is a poor one out of focus, so much the better. If it shows up badly in the paper, you can tell your friends it is the fault of the newspaper's mechanical department.

21. If you are sending mats, be sure to have them made where you can have the work done at the "cheapest" price. After all, the newspaper will not mind going to a lot of trouble to make an acceptable picture from it.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the bazaar should take their goodies to Mrs. Velna Ridge at the Sanibel Trailer Resort or call Mrs. Ridge or Peggy Maloney and they will pick up your contribution.

SISTERS OF THE SWAMP

A boy watched from the distance as a woman in a blue uniform walked down the dirt road, climbed into a waiting row-boat and crossed the stream to the cabin on the opposite shore.

In some places she was known as "Sister" but the boy knew her as a nurse who traveled through the back country and swamps of Florida by foot, horse-back, car or boat to call on her patients. The public health nurse encountered belated train schedules, poorly prepared foods in out-of-the-way places, and uncomfortable sleeping accommodations. The year was 1914 and three public health nurses had been hired by the Florida State Board of Health to visit patients with tuberculosis, also known as the "white plague," in their homes. This was an earlier plan than tuberculosis sanitariums which the state, had not yet built to care for patients.

Later there were 13 nurses who visited patients. Though employed to assist patients with tuberculosis, their duties were expanded immediately to other aspects of caring for the sick in their homes.

The nurses were busy and productive. In addition to visiting patients in backwoods homes, they made a survey to determine how widespread the white plague had become. They talked to physicians, local authorities and influential citizens and these contacts resulted in anti-tuberculosis committees. Sponsored by local women's clubs, the committees provide financial assistance to indigent families and supported educational programs on tuberculosis.

Following World War One, budget cuts came and the "Florence Nightingale" of the swamp and her public health "sisters" were no longer seen on backwoods trails. During the next decade and half, the few public health nurses who were hired turned their attention to instructing and registering midwives and carrying for mothers and children. In 1923, of the five public health nurses in the health agency, two were busily registering midwives, one was busy with "Parent Education," a fourth was investigating communicable diseases. Only one was left for generalized public health nursing.

By 1934, as part of the federal relief program, nurses and supervisors were made available. The duties of the nurses became varied and they taught classes for mother, teachers, midwives and many other groups. They served in clinics, made home visits, made hookworm and pellagra surveys, served schools, checked birth registrations and cooperated with nurses from other state agencies.

As the years progressed, duties expanded. At the beginning the public health nurse was concerned mainly with tuberculosis patients. Then came responsibility for mothers and children. Now she works with the aged and those with chronic diseases in expanding community home nursing services. Short visits by a nurse at frequent intervals made it possible for the aged or disabled to remain at home, thus avoiding the expense of unwanted hospitalization—either for the family or the state.

In some urban areas, home visits are made by nurses from Visiting Nurse Associations and in a few localities these are voluntary health organizations. However, in many Florida communities and rural areas, the public health nurses from the county health department make home visits to expectant and new mothers, school children, the chronically ill, and persons who need rehabilitative nursing. Fees are collected for the bedside nursing according to the family's ability to pay, and the funds accumulated by an advisory committee contribute to the support of the community nursing care program.

Today the cabins of 1914 have been replaced with homes containing refrigerators, television sets and bathrooms. The three "Sisters" have given way to more than 800 public health nurses who visit many of their patients in automobiles driven over paved roads. The passing decades have brought many changes.
