CLEANUP SPONSORED BY THE BOY SCOUTS AND LIONS

Scouts of Troop 88, Lions, and trucks were assembled at Lion Don Marshall's house in the Rocks at 9 a.m. Saturday morning, the 17th. Teams were formed as follows: Team 1, Lions Paul Stahlin and Karl Wightman, Scouts Gary Holtzman and Lee Woodring. Team 2, Lions Francis Bailey and John Cook, Scouts David Zajicek and John Cimato. Team 3, Lions Hap Payne and Bill Romizer, Scouts Wayne Woodring and Hans Wilson. Team 4, Lions Wally Henderson and Bob Dormer, Scouts Paul Zajicek and J. R. Broadbent.

Each team was detailed to cover certain roads of both islands, Lion Don Marshall, chairman of the project, coordinated and directed each team by visiting each assigned area. At 11 a.m. it became clear to Don that the job could not be completed in one morning -- or in one day for that matter. Another task force would have to be formulated at another time to finish the job.

At noon all trucks pulled into the parking area at the shopping center. It was ascertained which team collected the most trash. Then the trash was transferred to a large dump truck and transported to the County Dump. Besides driving the dump truck, assistant Scout Master Chuck Hollaway acted as relief driver for the pickup truck drivers. The Sanibel-Captiva Lions put up $100.00 in prize money for the scouts. First prize $40.00, for collecting the most junk from the roadsides, went to Team No. 1, Gary Holtzman and Lee Woodring. Second prize of $30.00 went to David Zajicek and John Cimato. Team two and four were about even. Actually, all the money was turned over to the Scout Troop but the boys themselves in each team are to determine how the amounts are to be spent for troop projects.

Mrs. Adelaide Bailey made the signs for the trucks.

Mr. Homer Thacker, proprietor of the Snack Shack, picked up the tab for lunch for most of the Scouts and Lions. Lions Stahlin and Wightman treated their lads to lunch at the Harbor House. Mr. Floyd Snook kindly offered to pay for everyone's lunch.

At the critique following the pickup session, it was recommended that the job be done more frequently, that it be a community effort and that private citizens and members of civic organizations be urged to participate in all beautification projects; that visitors, business people and residents would all stand to benefit. At the Lions' regular bi-monthly dinner this past Wednesday, it was decided to contact all organizations in order to sound them out as to their ideas for future beautification projects. The Lions and Scouts hope to finish what they have already started.

NEW COUNTY LIBRARIAN

Sanibel Public Library is pleased to welcome Fayette Hall Storm (Mrs. Ronald) as our new Lee County Librarian. The Storms will soon be in their new Cape Coral home. Mrs. Storm is well known in the Ft. Myers area as her father, the late Capt. Ernie Hall, was a well known writer for the News-Press through his column, "Along The Waterfront."

Mrs. Storm's sister, Mrs. Marion Gaylor, is associated with the Lee County Health Department. Mrs. Storm was head librarian in Ohio at Lebalon Public Library and Warren County Library. Mrs. Storm and her husband, the Reverend Ronald Storm, are both amateur radio operators and are also interested in music and church activities. We welcome Mrs. Storm in her new position and look forward to working with her for better library facilities in Lee County as well as here on Sanibel.

SANIBEL PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Library is interested in receiving issues of any vintage to the magazines Sea Frontiers and Sea secrets. Can you help or maybe you would want to subscribe to an annual membership for our use? Thanks for thinking of us.

CONSERVATIONISTS HIT AIRPORT THREAT TO EVERGLADES

Many of the nation's foremost conservation organizations have joined in asking Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe to halt construction of a planned supersonic jetport near the Everglades National Park, the Wildlife Management Institute reports.

The Department of Transportation has a major role in selecting the site for the airport because of the large federal subsidies that are needed. For this reason, conservationists are asking Volpe to recognize that the jetport would create heavy air pollution, interfere with the movement of surface water into the Everglades Park, and create problems of waste disposal and run off of pesticides and fertilizers.

CORAL GABLES

Robin Hunter, speech Pathologist at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami, and daughter of Ruth and Phillip Hunter of The Pirate Playhouse, Sanibel Island, was entertained at the home of Mrs. Betty Jane Phillips of Coral Gables, Miami.

The shower was attended by twenty five friends and fellow staff and faculty members of the University of Miami School of Medicine, with which Miss Hunter is professionally associated.

Helping with the beautiful refreshments and decorations were Mrs. Steven Opler and Miss Rhoda Jacobs, Maid of Honor.

Hunters and fishers contributed more than $195 million to the economy of Florida last year, says the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

Sharks will give birth to from one to two dozen young each year according to naturalist John Hamlet at Florida's Homosassa Springs.

Florida Trend Magazine says the state's 6 million residents and 20 million annual visitors make the leisure time industry a multibillion dollar foundation of Florida's economy.

LITTLE MISS MUFFET

Little Miss Muffet, who sat on a tuffet eating her curds and whey, had more going for her than she thought.

She probably had no idea at all that her curds and whey (milk broken down into its two basic forms) was actually contributing to a soothing of her nerves, no matter how frightening that spider was.

But, like so many of us, young and old, Little Miss Muffet had a lot to gain by learning more about milk.

Homemakers, obviously, don't have the time to go through all the clinical experiments required to literally "take milk apart" -- to discover its great dietary value.

However, others -- such as the South Florida Dairy Farmers, who provide most of the milk consumed in this area -- make it their business to find out about these things. And, much of what they've learned can be of tremendous help in planning family menus.

For example, studies made by researchers of the South Florida Dairy Farmers and other dairy groups throughout the country, show that a lack of calcium or niacin in the diet can contribute to nervousness.

Milk, these nutritional researchers have found, has a uniquely high concentration of calcium and a thing called tryptophan, which helps the body manufacture its own niacin. Milk, says the SFDF, could be described as nature's own "tranquillizer."

On the other side of the coin, lots of folks complain they just don't have the energy they need -- some call it tired blood. Did you know that tests have shown this feeling often is a result of anemia, and that milk is an important source of vitamin B 12 which protects against development of this condition?

If Little Miss Muffet had a clear complexion and seldom developed aching eyes, she probably owed that, too, to her curds and whey. One of the vital nutrients in milk is vitamin A, a major force in prevention of skin blemishes, night blindness and other eye problems.

Milk, to borrow an expression, is a many splendored thing.

It has vitamin E to help keep your physique in the shape you want it and, if you happen to bruise easily, it's an excellent source of protein and vitamin C, both of which do a great job in the making-bruises-vanish department. All this as well as such other important health aids as vitamin D, fats, phosphorus and vitamin B2 or riboflavin.

Americans, who consume an average of 153.3 pounds of milk and cream per person each year -- plus all the other milk derivatives such as butter, cheese, ice cream, dry milk -- are pretty much like Little Miss Muffet.

They've got a good thing going.

KITTENS KITTENS GENTLY PURRING IN THE FOREST OF THE DARK ROOM

The cat had kittens during the recent move of Huston Photos to 2330 Estero Blvd. Well, where else do you put a passel of cats but in the dark room under the print dryer? Of course production dropped off when everybody came to see the little mother and her brood.

Things are almost back to normal now --- our chief concern is that the cats don't get into the print dryer. Because who ever saw a glossy cat.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY" by Russell Kay

One of the first characters I met when I came to Florida in 1914 was a happy, smiling bouncy little fellow known as "Dr. Seald-sweet." He talked incessantly of the health value of Florida citrus fruits that were packed by mother nature with the sunshine vitamin. "Dr. Sealdsweet" worked diligently for the Florida Citrus Exchange promoting their trade-"Sealdsweet." There is no record of the person who originated the trade-name but it was suggested by the advertising agency that handled the Florida Citrus Exchange advertising at that time, the Jefferson Thomas Agency.

While old "Dr. Sealdsweet" gave up the ghost as a cartoon character a few years later, his name lived on as official name of the international sales organization that for nearly 60 years has marketed this state's choicest oranges and grapefruit, Seald-Sweet Sales.

Now, the famed trade-name will become the official registered name of the former Florida Citrus Exchange, which from now on will be known as "Seald-Sweet Growers, Inc." composed of the thousands of growers whose choice fruit is marketed by the organization.

Personally, I think this is a smart move for it will elevate the well-known trade name in the public mind and directly identify the growers with the capable marketing agency that has served them so many years.

"The name change, to Seald-

Sweet Growers, Inc., reflects our desire to keep pace with the advanced marketing concepts of the seventies," said John F. Nelson, official of the Golden Gem Growers, Inc., Umatilla, and president of the renamed organization. "We want to build on our 60 years of experience and use it as preparation for the development of an aggressive, forward-thinking contemporary marketing firm."

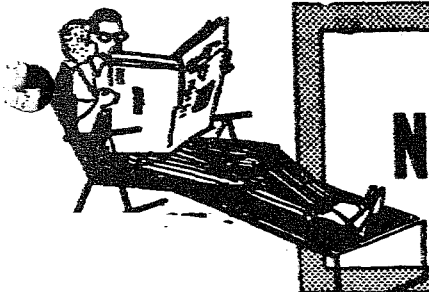

John L. Lesley, general manager, called the action "a wise and progressive move, one which lays the groundwork for an intensive effort to get growers and others to realize the importance of this organization in the overall operation of the industry.

"Selling Florida citrus fruit in fresh form provides competitive factors which tends to keep the prices received by the growers more stabilized and higher than would be true if all fruit had to go to a single outlet. Oranges, grapefruit and tangerines in the stores also are constant visual reminders to the housewife that Florida grows the finest citrus fruit in the world. This is a valuable advertising factor the industry cannot afford to lose."

Seald-Sweet Growers, Inc. will increase and streamline its efforts to market the output of the more than 40 cooperative and independent packing houses which are its members. This has been its principle activity for nearly three score years.

Over the years the Florida Citrus Exchange has built up an enviable reputation, highly respected by both the industry and the trade. Under the new name it will continue to maintain the leadership and progress that means greater satisfaction to its members and more money in their pockets.

SKI TOW BOAT IMPORTANT, TOO

An absolute essential to safe water skiing involves the driver of the tow-boat.

Ed Rehling, who in more than two decades has driven in some 17,000 water ski shows at Florida's famed Cypress Gardens, has sound counsel for those who pilot ski tow craft.

Requisites of being a good driver, Rehling points out, include the ability to execute smooth take-offs and smooth speeds once the skier is up, the ability to make smooth turns and the practice of maintaining constant vigilance.

Nationally known as a top boat handler, Rehling cautions drivers against starting the engine while anyone is in the water near the stern of the boat; the driver should avoid areas where people are swimming or fishing and a good driver, he says never starts until the skier is holding the handle, with ski tips or tip showing, and gives an audible or visual signal to "go."

As Rehling points out, "There is no room for misunderstandings in the sport of water skiing."

Rehling said a good driver, seeing a skier fall, will instinctively swing his boat around to return to the skier as quickly as possible. And an experienced driver will not make a sweeping curve around the skier, for this could mean entanglement in a towline. He should approach the skier slowly, in a straight line, so that the line may be grasped easily.

"A good driver sits securely in the driver's seat," Rehling continued. "He will never drive while standing. The fewer passengers the better, for more passengers cut towing speeds and make starts difficult.

"One passenger, however, is essential -- the observer. He watches the progress of the skier, keeps the driver informed of falls and watches for floating objects. The qualified observer should be a good swimmer."

A factor in making water skiing safe is a system of signals between skier and boat driver. When the skier is ready, he should signal the driver by shouting "in gear." When the line gradually becomes taut and the skier is moving slowly through the water, the skier commands the driver to "hit it." Full application of power then is applied to get the skier up and away.

From this point on, communication is primarily through hand signals. A palm down, with a downward motion of the hand, requests a slower speed. The opposite -- palm up and upper hand motion -- asks for more power and speed. For an immediate stop the skier imitates the traffic officer: flat palm with hand and arm stretched overhead. The signal for the driver to cut the motor is drawing the fingers across the throat.

To signal for a change of direction, the skier motions with outstretched palm. When he points with a finger, he is asking the driver to wing in the indicated direction so that he can "whip off." Palm extended in a slant indicates the skier wants to try the ramp.

These are standard and generally accepted signals recommended by the American Water Ski Association. There may be occasional variations, but in the main these signals are widely known and relied upon and have been a definite factor in the sport's fine safety record.

FHP PREDICTS 21
DEATHS FOR WEEKEND

The Florida Highway Patrol today predicted that 21 persons will die in traffic accidents in the State during the 78-hour Memorial Day Holiday period. The Memorial Day Weekend period begins at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 29, and ends at 12 midnight Sunday, June 1.

Coloney H. N. Kirkman, Director of the Department of Public Safety said, "The Memorial Day weekend will see the usual congestion of the streets and highways, but the usual accidents that go with the congestion can be reduced or eliminated by driving defensively."

Based on previous experience the Patrol estimates that one person will die in a traffic accident every 3.7 hours during the 78-hour holiday period.

Kirkman concluded by saying, "Don't let the Memorial Day Holidays of years to come be days of remembrance in your behalf. Drive defensively and enjoy the holiday."
