PROFESSIONAL EVALUATION ON FLOOD INSURANCE

GIVEN BY GEORGE BAIL, A.I.A.

Prompted by a deep concern over the effect of the National Flood Insurance Program on local architecture, the Fort Myers Chamber of Commerce asked for professional advice from member, George Bail, A.I.A., of the firm of W. R. Frizzell Architects, Inc.

Mr. Bail writes, "Three quarters of the earth's surface is covered by water. At least once before you reach your hundredth birthday it may all surge this way, washing the dust off the top of your refrigerator and hanging your wash from the TV antenna. That is, if you live in an area designated as a flood plain under the National Flood Insurance Program and fail to comply with the program's flood-proofing regulations.

It is but a matter of months until the county and municipal governments will be required to incorporate the new regulations into their building and zoning ordinances. How will these regulations alter our man-made environment? How much will they increase construction costs? Where will we find enough fill dirt and piling to elevate structures above the 100-year flood level? How will the requirement for elevated floors be reconciled with other legislation to provide access for the physically handicapped? How about gas stations and hamburger drive-ins, and drive-in banks? What about flood-proofing of sewage disposal facilities? Will they too be overhead? At present more questions may be asked than answered.

When the public at large finally realizes how much the flood insurance program will add to the construction cost of buildings and utilities, pressure may be exerted successfully upon Congress to ease the restrictions, particularly in areas subject only to minimal and infrequent flooding.

Supporting a 1200-square-foot residence on pilings with the additional cost of a structurally supported floor will add more than $3,000 to the cost. At current interest rates, this would cost the owner around $7,500 during the life of a 25-year mortgage. Furthermore, because it is costly to support masonry walls on piling and to construct structurally supported floors of concrete, the regulations will encourage the use of wood frame construction in lieu of concrete block with a resulting increase in fire insurance and maintenance costs. Add to this the extra hazard of stairs and the increased likelihood of wind damage and it becomes obvious that, in areas where only minor flooding could occur, the cost of flood-proofing may be far out of proportion to the extent of damage which would be anticipated if the 100-year flood should occur during the life of the structure.

There is little doubt that the present act is intended to discourage development in flood prone areas. There is also little doubt that people will continue to build in these areas despite increased costs. Many practical solutions will be found to minimize the flood hazard.

The 5000 year old dikes along the Yellow River, the Sampan in Hong Kong harbor, the palaces of Venice, the tulip fields of Holland, the Seminole Chickee, the pontoon bridge, the submarine, all suggest practical solutions to the problems of rising water.

In or near the beaches, the possibility of impact and scouring damage from wave action will necessitate construction on "stilts." In such areas the new regulations require that the water be permitted to flow beneath all buildings with minimum obstruction. No alternative is mentioned.

For apartments and individual residences this presents no practical problems other than the additional cost and inconvenience of stairs or ramps where the project size does not justify the cost of an elevator. It will certainly accelerate the trend from single family to large multi-family apartments, for the cost of elevating the first floor becomes much less of a burden when it can be divided among all of the tenants in a multi-floored structure.

Who's Who

JOHN and ELIZABETH JACOB, Jr. said, "The campground is one of the nicest we've been in." They are from Beverly, NJ.

DEBBIE CORSCADDEN from Philadelphia, PA, has come back to spend the summer with her aunt, BLANCHE FORD. Debbie is now working part time at the Dairy Queen.

ALAN and DELORES PARKER from Mt. Sidney, VA, have been admiring the many beautiful birds in the pond in Periwinkle Park.

JACK and ELIZABETH HEARNE from Port Charlotte, and their daughter, EMILY PETERS, and her daughter, JUSTINE, from Atlanta, GA, are enjoying Sanibel.

DWAYNE and ARLEEN KOLILIS from Carrollton, GA, also enjoy Sanibel. They call it, "This beautiful place."

OPAL POOLE from Gainesville and her daughter, HELEN SMITH, and granddaughter, BONNIE LOHNES, came to the island to check on their winter home.

JOSEPH and NATALIE JOHN and their children, DANNY, DOROTHY and DALE from West Orange, NJ, told us, "We think Periwinkle Park is good, beautiful and shady."

WILLIAM and MILLY FLAHERTY and their children, BILL, STEVE, PATRICK and MAUREEN read an article in their local paper about Sanibel and its shelling beaches. They saved the article and dreamed of coming here. Finally they came. "We're not disappointed," they said. "It's lovely." They come from Pittsburgh, PA.

SONYA and JOHN ZEE from Montrose, NY, stayed in Periwinkle Park after taking a two-week camping trip. They told us, "This is the most peaceful campsite we've stayed in on our whole trip."

LORETTA and WALTER FARLEY from Homestead, FL, enjoyed camping in Sanibel.

BLIND PASS COTTAGES

Col. & Mrs. Sidney A. Bird, Jr. of Kapaa, Hawaii are here for a few days with their daughter, Lt. JG Meredith S. Bird, who is stationed at Jacksonville Naval Air Station. The Birds caught some nice snook, and gathered many shells. They were interested in the similarity of the flowers and trees of Hawaii and Sanibel.

Larry Blackmore of Troy, OH, is back for a couple of weeks' vacation. He has bicycled from one end of the island to the other and is losing weight as planned in spite of having dinner at Letizias several times and thoroughly enjoying their heavenly food.

Fred McConnell's daughter, Mrs. Shelley Cheadle, and her son, Josh, have been here for a couple of weeks. Mr. McConnell's son, Joe McConnell, was here also. They are all from Troy, OH; also from Troy, Jeff Stevens.

Mr. & Mrs. Ronald G. Williams of Newark, OH, here for a week, caught several 18 to 20 lb. snook off the Sanibel-Captiva bridge at night and are taking them home for a large neighborhood fish fry.

Guests from Florida are David and Pat Collier and their two sons of Apopka, back for one of the many visits during the year. With them also are the Robert Kennedys.

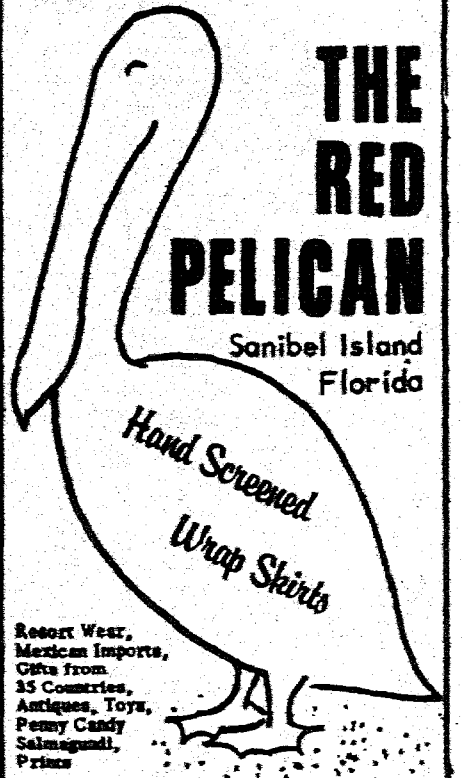

Other guests are the George Lamperts of Lakeland, M. S. Bowman and family and the Arthur Hayes, all of Bushnell, Mr. & Mrs. Jack McCollum and family of Kissimmee, the Robert Rizk family of North Miami, and Mr. & Mrs. Robert Padgett of Fruitland.

THE COLONY

This week's out of state guests at The Colony include: Mr. & Mrs. Wayne Cunningham and son, David, from Galesburg, IL; the Frank Forrest family from Speedway, IN; Mr. & Mrs. James Orandash and party from Nutley, NJ; Mr. & Mrs. Martin W. Barylski and family from Rockville, MD; the Edmund C. Montgomery family from Cincinnati, OH; Mr. & Mrs. David Sloan from Dayton, OH; Mr. & Mrs. Jerry Glendening and family from Cincinnati; Mr. & Mrs. Eugene J. Iasiello and party from Bethlehem, PA; Charles L. Germon from Gaithersburg, MD; Andrew Ulsamer from Rockville, MD; and Mr. & Mrs. Edward P. Bennett and Brother Edward Bennett from Massapequa, NY.

Florida guests are Matthew C. Stewart from Largo; Dr. Hank Gosch and party from Largo; Frank Rau from Boca Raton; the Charles Gravitts from Hialeah; Mr. & Mrs. Roy Nelson from Hialeah; Mr. & Mrs. Kimball Spahr and child from Tarpon Springs; Mr. & Mrs. Robert A. Tolmie and their three daughters and one son from Pinellas Park; N. Douglas Pritt and family from Lauderhill; R. A. Murray from N. Miami Beach; the A. O. Stricklands from Lakeland; Mr. & Mrs. Donald McCraney from Lakeland; Mr. & Mrs. Olson from Miami; Mr. & Mrs. Bickford from Hialeah; and from Miami, James Koepo.

AUTO TAGS TO LAST THREE YEARS WITH ANNUAL STICKERS

The Florida Division of Corrections motor vehicle license manufacturing system is already gearing up for production of validation stickers which will be sold next year in lieu of new metal license. Division Director Louis L. Wainwright said.

According to Bill Kelley, Chief of Industries Operations for the division, new equipment has been ordered for production of the one-inch by inch-and-a-half rectangular stickers. A supervisor for the new sticker production system is also being hired, Kelley said.

Because each sticker will cost the state about five cents compared with the 55-cent price tag per metal plate, it is estimated the state can save up to $7 million during the next three years, Kelley said. Motor vehicle owners will retain their 1975 reflectorized aluminum orange-on-white plates through June, 1977, affixing validation stickers to the tag corners in each of the next two years.

Each of the new stickers will be imprinted with a serial number, the date of the year and an outline of the State of Florida on a specially designed counterfeit-proof background. The 1976 stickers will be kelly-green and white. Colors for the 1977 stickers have not yet been chosen.

Backed by a powerful adhesive, the reflectorized stickers will not be removeable from the metal tags -- without sticker destruction -- once they have been properly affixed. Directions for affixing the stickers to the proper corner of the metal tags will be printed on the clear plastic envelopes in which the stickers will be sold.

Approximately 7.5 million of the new validation stickers will be produced to meet the needs of the state's increasing population of motor vehicle owners, Kelley said. Almost 7.5 million of the three-year metal tags were produced to meet the demand this year.

The initial renewal period for the 1974 one-year metal license tags is from July 1 through August 20, 1974.

This Week at the Sanibel Library by Hal H. Harrison

"The Unknown Story of Sanibel and Captiva," the long-awaited definitive history of the islands by Florence Fritz, is now available at the Library. Indeed, anticipating the demand for this publication, we have acquired two copies so that our patrons will not have to wait so long to read it. Florence Fritz, also author of "Unknown Florida," and the first woman mayor of Fort Myers when there were only three female mayors in the United States, died in 1969. She left behind her 30 years of research into the history of Sanibel and Captiva. The book, published posthumously, might have been lost had it not been for the efforts of Lelia Morris Cunningham, who edited the manuscript and saw it through the long process of publication. Interviews of old-timers and scores of old photographs give a lively interest to this important and interesting history.

Another book, broader in its scope than Mrs. Fritz's fine book, will be of interest to many Islanders now and in the future. It is "Florida, a Chronology and Documentary Handbook" by Mary L. Frech, editor. This is one of 50 volumes for all the states. It provides a concise ready reference of basic data on Florida, and serves as a starting point for a more extended study as the user may require.

Back in the 30's, a new series of books called the "Rivers of America" was born in the office of publishers Farrar and Rinehart. Now, nearly four decades later, there are 63 titles in the series and the work continues with Holt, Rinehart and Winston as publishers. Carl Carmer has been general editor since the inception of this project. Five of the volumes are now out in paperback editions and the Sanibel Library has acquired them: "The Potomac" by Frederick Githeim, "The Columbia" by Stewart Holbrook, "The French Broad" by Wilma Dykeman, "The Colorado" by Frank Waters, and "The Hudson" by Carl Carmer.

To bring you up to date on more contemporary matters, we now have James Baldwin's "If Beale Street Could Talk," a love story about black people. This book, unlike many of Baldwin's publications of recent years, is a novel. It has been declared by some reviewers as "his finest work to date." On the other hand, Saturday Review World declares, "It is extremely sad to see a writer of Baldwin's large gifts producing, in all seriousness, such junk." Briefly, the story tells of black people living in contemporary Harlem.

We have had Philip Roth's "My Life As a Man" for some time but I do not think I have mentioned it to you yet. If you liked "Portnoy's Complaint" I would predict that you will like this one. In this story (a utobiographical?), an esteemed young American novelist is obsessed with his disastrous efforts to achieve a virile and decent manhood — a mixture of brutally serious and tragi-comic encounters.

In the non-fiction department, we have the Literary Guild's selection for July: "The Woman He Loved, the Story of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor" by Ralph Martin, who also wrote "Jennie, the Life of Lady Randolph Churchill." Most folks, especially Sanibel retirees, will remember well when Edward VIII gave up the throne as emperor of the greatest empire in the world to marry the woman he loved — Bessie Wallis Simpson, a Baltimore divorcee. This book openly discusses the difficulties of the Windsors' marriage. It is filled with new facts and never-told-before stories.

Another Literary Guild selection (June) on our shelves now is "Go East, Young Man," an autobiography by William O. Douglas, who worked his way from a berry picker in the Western frontier to the U. S. Supreme Court. It is an inspiring tale of courage and self-reliance.

Finally, we have a new one by John Creasey (don't we always?) for our whodunit patrons. A murder, a jewel robbery, a threatened hanging — well, you know the routine. It is all here in "Danger For The Baron."

-FLOOD INSURANCE EVALUATION

With the large single story commercial structures the cost of raising and structurally supporting the floor becomes a major consideration. Warehousing, for example, may largely disappear from flood plain areas.

Some changes may be for the better. The elevation requirements will encourage the design of commercial establishments in a more coordinated fashion, sharing elevated walks and plazas to avoid a multiplicity of ramps and stairs.

This same concept may be carried one step further. You may one day drive downtown, park your car under one of the new business or residential buildings then take an escalator to the upper pedestrian level. There you may walk for blocks through landscaped plazas and streets (some enclosed and air conditioned), without encountering an automobile. Moving sidewalks, electric carts and bicycles may ease circulation. Some businesses may offer drive-in service at the lower level through booths connected with their place of business overhead.

Away from coastal high hazard areas where flooding but not heavy currents or wave action may be anticipated, other approaches may prove feasible. If, for instance, the natural ground elevation of a proposed residential or shopping area were but a few feet below the 100-year flood level, it could prove feasible to surround the area with an earth dam provided with drainage outlets which would be closed at times of flooding. Though this would require pumping stations or ponding arrangements to handle heavy rains or possible seepage during the period of flooding, the method should frequently prove more economical than elevating each building. If the Dutch can protect their principal cities and 40 percent of their land (below sea level) from the North Sea by the use of dikes, why can't we? Unfortunately, the present regulations do not allow this method as an alternative to elevating floors above the 100-year flood level except for commercial establishments. All occupied residential floors must be above the 100-year flood level.

For commercial establishments, many other approaches may be developed including:

- Flotation devices or jacking arrangements to hoist buildings above the flood plain;
- Methods of sealing wall openings to prevent infiltration of salt water and silt or sand;
- New and more economical construction methods and materials for the construction of elevated structures.

So many of our wildlife and preferred recreational areas are within the flood plain area, it is to be hoped that more of the land will be purchased by the County and State for public use.

And then there is the ultimate solution to the problem of flooding. Why should the program be based on a 100-year storm? Why not 50, or 500, or 50,000 years? For the latter the solution is obvious. You simply gather up a supply of gopher wood and pitch and set to work so that when it rains for forty days and forty nights . . . ."

HOW

SHRIMP BROILED IN SHELLS
Of Spanish origin where shrimp are served as snacks with wine in the small cantinas.

by
DON PATTERSON

Marinate shrimp in shells in olive oil - use a good oil, the milder flavor compensates for the extra pennies spent. Add lime juice and a lot of salt to the oil. Leave the shrimp in oil-lime juice for one hour or longer if jumbo size. The larger shrimp are easier to broil. Broil over charcoal until shells are brown to crisp - depending upon your preference. Shuck the shells as you eat, and eat, and eat - - -

ROASTING OYSTERS

by
CHARLIE GREEN

Oysters should be roasted over a bed of deep coals. Make a fire a couple of hours before the guests arrive. It should be in a pit about a foot deep and the area you can easily cover with a piece of sheet iron. After the fire has died to coals, place the sheet iron over the pit. Put the fresh oysters in a single layer on the sheet. Cover them with a wet croaker sack (burlap bag) and steam until the oysters open. Should be eaten with plenty of butter, good friends and cold beer.

Oyster roasts make excellent cook-outs for small or large gatherings.

SHRIMP FRITTERS

by
JUDY HAATAJA

- 1 pound-fresh shrimp
- 1/2 cup chopped scallions
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- 1 tbs. chives, chopped
- 2 eggs
- Salt, pepper, thyme
- Flour
- Cooking oil

Combine shrimp, onions, celery, pepper, chives and eggs with seasonings to suit your taste. Mix thoroughly, adding enough flour to make ingredients just stick together (about 1/2 cup). Drop from tablespoon into 1/2" of hot oil in frying pan. Fry until golden brown.

FISH CAKES

by
BETTY ANDREWS

- Boil 2 pounds of fish fillet in salted water until well done. Let cool. Remove any bones and flake into mixing bowl. Add 2 small onions grated and one small green Bell pepper grated. In a separate bowl put the following:
- 3 slices of bread, broken into small pieces
- 3 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 1/2 tbs. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 1/2 tbs. mayonnaise
- 1 tbs. baking powder
- 1 1/2 tsp. seafood seasoning
- 1 tsp. salt

Mix thoroughly and combine with fish flakes and shape into cakes. Fry in small amount of fat. Makes approximately 16 fish cakes.

CRABMEAT ROLLS

by
ROY CHAFFIN

- 1 lb. Crabmeat
- 1 cup of cracker meal
- 2 eggs
- 1 small diced onion
- 1/4 tsp. garlic powder
- Salt & pepper to season

Mix crabmeat, cracker meal, raw eggs, diced onions and seasoning with enough milk to make a soft consistency which can be formed with hands. Wet hands, form into rolls about 1/2" x 1" x 6" long and deep fry at 350 degrees until they float. Raw rolls may be kept refrigerated several days. Makes 12 rolls.

A Grain Of Sea Salt by betzi abram

The first thing you notice about Bill and Helen Snell is their eyes, so clear and unwavering, piercingly alert and yet kind. Hers are an incredible, vibrant blue and his are darker but it isn't the color it's the awareness that hits you.

We met as a result of the Mexican's high-handed treatment of the shrimp boat Vilco. They read the story in the Bulletin and, looking at one another, said, "Somebody should do something. Who?" "I don't know why," said Helen, "we've never done anything like this before, but we just felt that it might as well be us."

With countless letters, investigations, and phone conversations, the Snells proved that in this country two "ordinary people," as they call themselves, can have clout. The success of their 4-month effort in waking up our government to the Vilco's plight - and that of other fishing ships - and getting some action has already been published in the Bulletin. But, I wondered what kind of people were they really? Not what I'd call ordinary!

For one thing they are filled with energy, not the restless kind but the kind that keeps you perking along happily, their heads are well together and, based on their responses to two handsome, vigorous and outspoken young sons, they have equanimity and a sense of humor.

Bill is Senior Ocean Engineer in the Marine Operations department of Westinghouse, and Helen is his unofficial private executive secretary sharing and encouraging his interests. He started off at 16 in the Merchant Marine, switched to the Navy in which he rose to LCdr serving principally in salvage vessels, ocean-going tugs and cable laying ships. He participated in the nuclear test series at Bikini, commanded an ocean rescue tug with the appealing name of Tillamook, which he converted into a fully equipped oceanographic vessel, and once salvaged a destroyer which under tow had been driven well inshore above the mean high water line by heavy seas and flood conditions. He's done a lot of installations of deep-sea ship mooring which consists of easy little operations like co-ordinating one salvage ship, 3 fleet tugs, one ocean rescue tug and two work tugs simultaneously in the open sea, all positioned with extreme accuracy.

He's also made numerous trans-ocean tows - which, when you consider what's involved in just towing an 18' power boat from Knapp's Point in to San Carlos Marina for instance, must be quite a feat. Imagine towing the cruiser Springfield from San Francisco to Balboa, Panama! (This ridiculous picture springs to my mind of Bill swimming along with the towing cable between his teeth. Naturally, he didn't do it alone, but when you have to command a lot of strong-minded men, that's impressive too.)

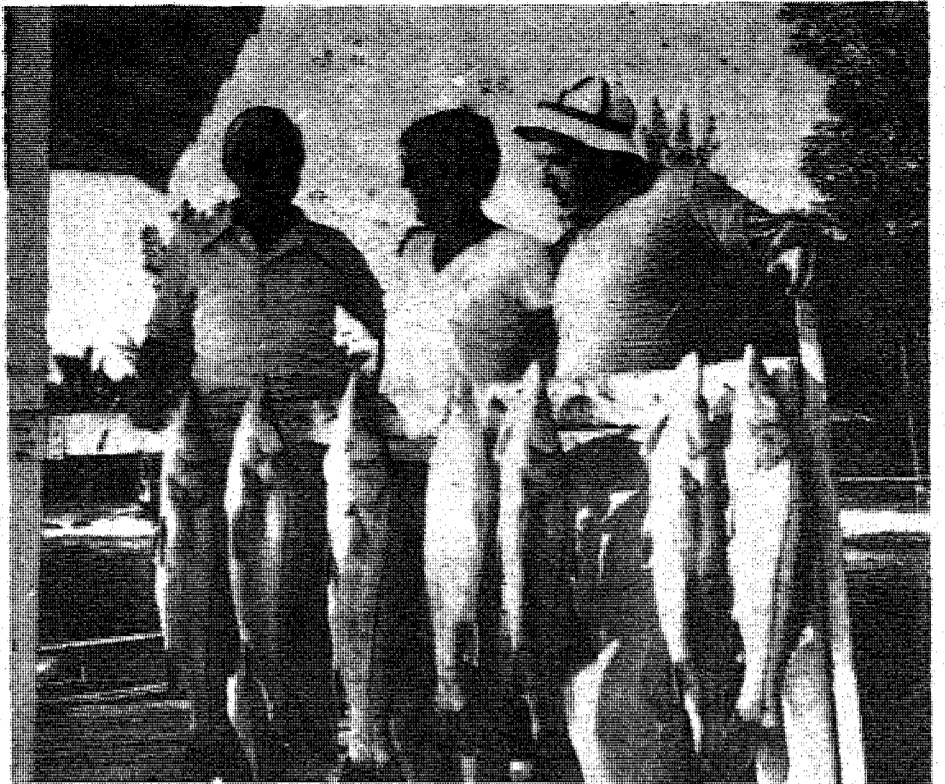

Right now he's spear-heading a project which Westinghouse will submit to the National Science Foundation to produce energy by sinking a pipe (100 ft. in diameter) down 4,000 ft. into the sea through which the icy-cold water of the depths will be pumped up to a barge anchored about 300 ft. under the surface where the water is warm. There the water would be run through a condenser and the temperature differential would produce the energy.

There are a few sticky problems - for instance the "anchors" needed would have to be equivalent to 10 old battleships, loaded with concrete and sunk in water up to 6,000 ft. deep. The mooring "legs" would have to be giant cables with the largest links ever made. The spot chosen would have to have a minimum current of 3 1/2 knots so that the cold water, upon reaching the surface, would quickly flow away. If it stayed in the area, it would soon chill down the temperature of all the water thus cancelling out the needed differential. However, a current of this speed would exert a line force on the mooring of about 16 million pounds - or about 300 times as much as that pressing against the largest off-shore installation ever made. I have no doubt that Bill Snell and his men will figure out how to do it.

All four Snells love Fort Myers Beach. Bill says it is the area on the mainland most like Hawaii in scenery and temperature and they visit here as often as possible. To keep the vibes in touch, Helen even took a coconut home last year and succeeded in making it sprout. She now has the only coconut palm in Severna Park, MD.

They hope someday to move down here. Even if they do, I doubt if they will be "retired." Bill has this really cool professional license: Second Mate, Oceans Unlimited. I think horizons unlimited would be even more appropriate.

MARY STOLZ TO GIVE ART DEMONSTRATIONS

From 2 until 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21, local artist Mary Margaret Stolz will give a demonstration of watercolor painting in the Island Arts Gallery, 1473 Periwinkle Way, Sanibel. She will also give art demonstrations in the Gallery several afternoons during the following week.

Mary Stolz was born in New York City, where she studied at local art schools and attended the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts (Parsons Institute) on an art scholarship. She has exhibited at several shows in the New York area and was an active member of the Scarsdale Art Association for fourteen years.

A resident of Captiva, Mary Stolz is a member of the Florida Watercolor Society, The Fort Myers Beach Art Association, and the Sanibel-Captiva Art League. Her work has appeared in many juried shows this season, and she has had two one-man shows on the Islands this year.

Mrs. Stolz' third one-man show this year will be in White Plains, NY, at the Burke Rehabilitation Center during the last two weeks of September. She will have forty watercolors on exhibit in the recently completed new wing of the center.

Mrs. Stolz and her husband retired here three years ago from Scarsdale, NY, where Mr. Stolz was an executive with the advertising firm of Batten, Barton, Durstine, and Osborn. The Stolzes have two married children.

Over thirty of Mary's paintings are on display at the Island Arts Gallery.

A shopping center that's hard to find?

We just don't have the regular earmarks of a shopping center. There's no asphalt. No flashing neon stuff. And you'll have to look for our entrance sign behind some giant Australian pines we can't bear to cut down.

We're so low-key many people think we're a group of private homes or a beautiful resort of some type - but we're not. We're a cluster of small shops that are as beautiful as they are fun to shop in.

If you're looking for a lazy lazy afternoon of browsing, why not drop in for lunch or a little ice cream. You'll like our shops as much as you'll enjoy relaxing in the shade by our Fountain.

PERRA-CAUSEY WED

Ann Louise Causey and Robert Gray Perra were married yesterday at a 2:30 p.m. garden ceremony at the home of her mother, Mrs. John R. Lynch of Bayfield Farm, Wakefield, RI, and Sanibel, FL. Officiating were the Rev. Thomas Madden of Sanibel, and the Rev. Thomas Driscoll of North Kingstown.

The bride is also the daughter of George F. Causey of Fort Myers. The bridegroom is the son of Col. Frank L. Perra, USAF (ret.), and Mrs. Perra of Granite Street, Westerly, RI.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Mrs. Jennifer Bloomsburgh as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Ovieda Perra, sister of the bridegroom, and Nora Causey and Katherine Causey, sisters of the bride. William McGuire served as best man.

A reception was held at the home of Mrs. Alfred Hudson Morse in Wakefield.

The couple will visit Europe on their wedding trip and will make their home in Albert Lea, MN.

The bride, a special education teacher, is a graduate of The Madeira School, Greenway, VA, Garland Junior College and Boston University. She is a granddaughter of the late Capt. Louis Dean Causey, USN, and the late Mrs. Causey of Indianapolis, IN., and the late Mr. & Mrs. Sibley C. Smith of Providence, RI.

The bridegroom is a coordinator of liturgical music. He graduated from Westerly High School and the Franciscan Fathers House of Studies in Washington, DC. His grandparents are Mrs. James Bolen Gray of Marshall, AR, and the late Mr. Gray, and the late Mr. & Mrs. Demitrio Perra of Westerly.

DR. BURNETTE RETURNS TO PREACH NEXT SUNDAY

Dr. Jim Burnette of Edison Community College will return to Sanibel to occupy the pulpit at the Sanibel Community Church this Sunday, July 21, for his second appearance. He is also scheduled to appear again on August 25 and September 22.

Dr. Burnette is vice president and Dean of Academic Affairs at Edison College where he has been serving since 1965. Dr. Burnette is a native of Florida, having grown up in Gainesville, and has filled in as visiting pastor for the Sanibel Community Church many times in the past.
