Oppppps!

When we goof, we really do a good job of it. Just to make sure that the retractions get even more exposure than the story,

we decided to put it on page one.

Our "Gas Up 8 cents" story in the May 25th issue of the ISLANDER needs some clarification, as it turns out, due to an error in understanding of one of our staff writers. The Sanibel City Council discussed the matter at their meeting of May 18th and our staff writer reported it verbatim as he heard it. Unfortunately, the council was discussing the "eight cent" of the existing gas tax rather than the imposition of a new "eight-cent" gas tax, which distinction our reporter was unable to grasp, due to the toll that thirteen years of loud rock and roll music has taken on his hearing, which was at best imperfect to begin with.

By way of clarification, the eighth cent of the gasoline tax package currently in effect is earmarked for road improvements, and the funds are distributed on the basis of revenue sharing. As Lee County presently receives all of these road improvement funds for the area, Mayor Goss met with County Administrator Lavon Wisher to see if there was any way that the city could get a portion of the eighth cent gas tax revenues for road improvements on Sanibel. Their intent was not to institute an eight-cent gas tax on the Island. So, our apologies, and we hope that the matter stands corrected.

IWA may buy Pine Island water

The status of Sanibel's potable water supply and the ability of the Island Water Association to meet the city's ever increasing water demands have the subject of much discussion on the Island in recent weeks, and in accordance with this growing concern, the Sanibel City Council established a Water Conservation Committee at their meeting of May 18.

Last week, the I.W.A. came up with an alternate proposal to a possible $3 million expansion of their facilities, which for a time had been the only solution under consideration for meeting the Island's future water needs. The proposal involves the I.W.A. buying water from the Greater Pine Island Water Association at a cost of $1.50 per thousand gallons, scarcely more than half of Sanibel's own treatment cost of $2.90 per thousand gallons, although I.W.A. president Larry Snell told the ISLANDER last week that "it would end up about the same as it is now, cost-wise," due to the cost of pumping the water over to Sanibel from Pine Island.

The two water associations are already connected by an eight-inch subaqueous transmission line buried in Pine Island Sound, vestige of an long standing arrangement which was in effect long before the completion of the I.W.A.'s own desalination plant in 1973. Prior to that time, Sanibel got all of its water from the Pine Island system. Since then, the arrangement has been maintained to enable either island to help the other one out in times of water emergency.

The Pine Island association is able to offer the I.W.A. as much as half a million gallons of water per day (gpd) for the next five years, due to the fact that they are currently using only 300,000 gpd of their plant's 1,500,000 gpd capacity, said Snell. Sanibel's water usage, on the other hand, has approached the I.W.A. plant's operating capacity of 2.1 million gpd during peak tourist months.

"We are quite fascinated by the idea of looking into the proposal for the winter months when we have problems," said Snell, "and we like the idea of having that reserve supply available, especially when we are not committed to use it when we don't need it."

Snell predicted that the Island could have severe water problems by 1978 if the current rate of increasing demand continues.

The I.W.A. has invited Greater Pine Island Water Association president Paul Bollinger to address their board of directors on the matter at a meeting to be held on June 23rd.

FRED LASSWELL

Snuffy visits Sanibel

Fred Lasswell, his wife, Josephine and their daughter arrived at the Southseas Plantation on the 26th on their boat "Snuffy". They are on the island for a two day celebration of Josephine's birthday.

The Islander advertising staff, Kathie and Bill met

Fred at the Coconut Lounge at lunch. Fred was cooling off from a long hot morning of sightseeing and shopping for a birthday present but said that he was thinking about sitting under a coconut palm and drinking the champagne he had just bought which was getting warmer by the second in the trunk of his car, but then thought better of the idea.

This is their first trip to the islands. They like the native sights and sounds and will return to partake of more of the island life.

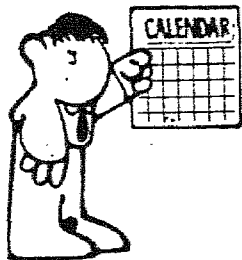

Fred is the creator of Snuffy Smith, the famous comic book character.

Solar system installed in Sanibel home

BY Carol Quillinan

Clarence and June Naas, owners of Solar Servants, Inc., have recently completed a solar water heater for a new home on Sanibel. The solar collector is 48 square feet and is placed at 36 degrees south on the roof. It is designed to withstand 120 mile an hour winds, weighs 3 pounds per square foot, is guaranteed for 5 years and has been accepted into the building codes for construction.

A small, 1-200 horsepower circulating pump pumps cold water into the collector pipes and, after the sun has warmed the water in the copper tubing, the pump then pumps the hot water down to a 120 gallon storage tank.

Naas said that the storage tank is also a regular hot water heater, the element of which will kick on as an auxiliary heat source on days that the sun does not heat the water to 140 degrees.

The 48 foot collector is expected to serve a family of five resulting in a saving in electrical usage of about $20 per month. A normal household water heater of 40 gallons uses 650 kw of electricity per month.

With the addition of a solar collector, the electric usage would drop proportionately with the number of sun days versus the number of cloudy days, conceivably dropping to as low as 3½ kw, which is the amount of electricity needed to run the circulating pump in a month which has no cloudy days.

The cost installed, of the 48 foot collector for a family of five, is $1,173, a smaller 20 square foot collector for a family of two is $625. Naas said that each job is specifically designed for each household according to its needs.

The company is also installing swimming pool solar heaters, solar water heaters for laundromats and is working on an effective airconditioning system using power from the sun.

The solar water heater was designed in conjunction with Naas by Clarence L. Kimball, professional engineer, who has an office in the Legel building on Sanibel.

SW Fla. chefs meet at Castaway's resort

Chef Judy Watson of the Castaways Resort hosted two very successful firsts on May 15th at the Castaways Restaurant. She is the first female member to host the Chefs of Southwest Florida and the meeting was a first for Sanibel.

A lecture and demonstration on preparing and cooking fresh Florida seafoods was given by chef Watson, assisted by 1st cook Gerald Wright. Several meats were cooked together in a new time-saving piece of equipment called Smokaroma by Bill Joyner, who has the distributorship for the equipment. Stan's Coffee Service provided the coffee for the large crowd and Joe Lee made his famous onion soup in Chef Watson's kitchen. Joe Dexter and John Suggs prepared clam chowder, Dungeness crabmeat, fried scallops and oysters, maine lobster and marinated herring in white wine sauce. There was an abundance of well prepared food from smoked turkey, barbecued ribs and chicken as well as the many varieties of seafood.

Chef Watson would like to say a special thanks to everyone, especially Bill Joyner, Smokaroma, Joe Dexter and John Suggs of Joh's Pass Seafood, Lee of Stan's Coffee Service, Lance Cracker Co. Pepsi Bottling Co., Cronin Distributors, Gerald Wright, Mary Bell, Bill Rodgers and the Castaways owners, June Hendry and Betty Gardiner.

The Southwest Florida Chef's Association is a newly formed group of professional culinary artists comprised of 1st cooks and chefs. The Association is a continuing educational group for the purpose of sharing skills, new methods and delving deeper into the culinary arts.

More than 100 chefs at the gourmet's delight came from Punta Gorda, Fort Myers, Lehigh Acres, Bonita Springs, Miami, Pine Island and Sanibel.

The next meeting of the association will be held at 9:30 a.m. at the Matador Room in Lehigh Acres on the 12th of June. The program will be the dressing out of beef.

Around town...

by georgie mankin

Sunshine interspersed with rains is the rule of most of the days here on the Islands now. We are still (more or less) expecting a "good" hurricane to hit as we are long over due. So far, there have been no complaints due to this fact!

The students at Sanibel Elementary School went on a field trip to Edison's Home and Shady Oaks Park on Friday, May 28. A marvelous time was had by all—there were no problems in getting the kids to bed Friday evening!

Field Day is scheduled for Thursday, June 10. Be sure to make a crazy hat, dress casually and come out and have fun with your children.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Harrison of Pittsburg, Pa. are having the time of their lives shelling and swimming and just simply beach-combing.

Mrs. Jeannette Carroll is visiting the Islands from New York City. Jeannette is trying to get into as many shops on the Island as she can while she is here. She writes for a popular magazine and puts items and where to find them. She tells us that there are more unusual items per square inch here than any place she's been.

Ruth and Joe Patterson of Newark, New Jersey, are sunning and funning for the next couple of weeks on Captiva.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Brady of Wierton, West Virginia, have been sailing around the area in a gorgeous sloop. They were out one day when it was extremely rough and Carol said a couple more times like that and she may decide it isn't quite such fun to sail.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Towson of Richmond, Virginia enjoy their yearly visit to Sanibel much more than the trips they make to Va. Beach. Sanibel is still not as commercialized according to them—they request that all of us fight further development to preserve the beauty and uniqueness of our islands.

A certain Sanibelite was fishing last week and caught a sizeable fish—put it on his stringer—went back to where he had been fishing—fished a while—went back to get the stringer—and it was gone. Also gone was the young fisherman standing down a bit from him.

Graduates, remember to notify us as to when you graduate and from which school, and also, what you plan to do after graduation.

The City and the Plan. . .

First official reading of CLUP by council

City council had a first reading on the Comprehensive Land Use Plan (CLUP) May 24 as scheduled at the Casa Ybel meeting room.

Item one on the agenda concerned a presentation by Sanibel Planning Commission chairman Duane White of the reviewing agencies' comments on the plan. The Lee County Planning Commission had "no specific conflict" between the planning efforts of the City of Sanibel and the planning efforts of Lee County. However, the County Planner's report specifically pointed to the economic assumptions regarding the loss of revenues, if not forthcoming, as being a burden to Lee County.

The Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council staff had "no objections to Sanibel adopting the Comprehensive land use plan" in that it was compatible with the goals of the region, White reported.

There were several main points under discussion in the report; however they were not discussed at length and copies were not available. The report by regional planning council staff head, Roland Eastwood, indicated that the CLUP was "very well done," said White.

Vernon MacKenzie interrupted White's report to say that the key word in 75-257 (the state's enabling legislation regarding land use planning) was "objection."

"None of the reviewing agencies have made an 'objection,'" he said. "They have been careful not to make objections," and therefore, the adoption of the plan "need not be held up" because of the reviewing agencies' comments."

The State of Florida's Planning Commission's report said that the CLUP was "adequate, that they presented no objections to the plan but that certain aspects should be looked at: e.g. coordination with other governmental agencies; the economic assumptions, the need for a cost benefit analysis, planned unit development, long range water budget, educational facilities, medical facilities and preservation of historical sites. White's presentation continued.

The Florida state department of transportation said that the traffic circulation in the plan had limited impact on the state highway system but that the city should continue to work with the county and regional DOT's. The department of Community affairs said that the plan was compatible with the overall objectives of the state and that the plan appeared to have been prepared with the full consent of the citizens of Sanibel, White said.

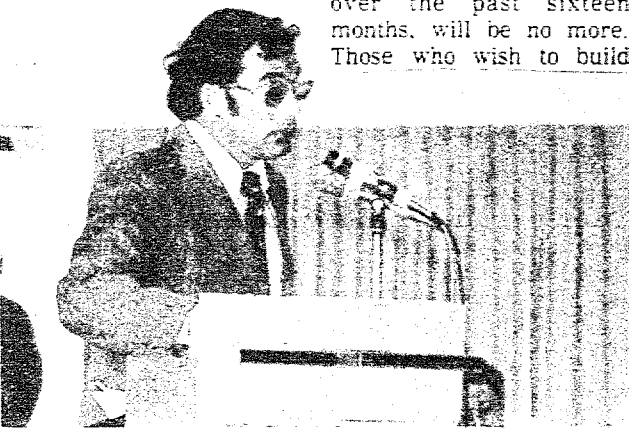

The Council's comment was relegated to Vernon MacKenzie, who said that the agency comments were "generally favorable," that the problems of intergovernmental coordination with Lee County were not out of persistence or lack of good faith on the part of Sanibel, and that perhaps "we should push Lee County a little harder that we have." MacKenzie took exception to the effects of the plan on the tax base; the prognostication by most of the council members was that the plan would have beneficial effects on the tax base; that property values would rise and as such preserve those values which brought people to Sanibel. He felt that low cost housing was a difficult problem but that any city should be compassionate in considering the need for low cost housing.

The rest of the council members deferred to MacKenzie in agreement. Zee Butler added that most of the comments were already flagged and in the "Black Book" for consideration. LeBuff merely agreed with MacKenzie. Francis Bailey said that the "value of property is not going anywhere but up."

Duane White said Lee County did not have an adequate understanding about what was going on on Sanibel regarding the economic assumptions. Joe McMurtry suggested a housing authority for low cost housing.

Public comment was called for. Ruth Hunter wanted to know how binding the comments were. Mayor Porter Goss said "Not at all." After a few more comments, the mayor asked if the city had satisfied the legal requirements under

Sanibel Mayor Goss

257, the attorney said "yes."

The second item on the agenda concerned a list of fifty items which have been set down in the Black Book for consideration. Sam Shannon read out the items.

Some were: commercial areas, density allocations, non-conforming uses, economics, floor heights, yard setbacks, open space ownership, clustering, variance procedures for DNR setback line, definitions for resort housing structure and others, plus many "personal case" problems.

The items in the Black Book will be discussed by the planning commission starting at 9 a.m. the 7th of June. Letters of concern, personal or otherwise, should be in the hands of Sam Shannon, city planning director, no later than June 4th.

PC hears what may be last "respites"

The Sanibel Planning Commission met last Monday, May 24, following their joint morning session with the city council, for an afternoon of what may have been one of the last rounds of respite hearings in the young City of Sanibel. If the proposed comprehensive land use plan (CLUP) is adopted on schedule on June 29, then Emergency Transition Ordinance 76-1 which mandated the respite procedure, bane to both councilmen and developers over the past sixteen months, will be no more. Those who wish to build after the adoption of the plan will only have to go the hearing route if their plans fail to conform with the city's overall master plan, or CLUP.

In respite hearings last Monday, the commission moved to grant recommendations of approval to two petitioners, while continuing the hearings of two others until their next meeting, which is slated for June 7. Both approbations passed unanimously, one of them to Michigan State Senator Gilbert E. Bursley to build a single-family home on Lot 2 in the Gulf Pines Subdivision on Gumbo Limbo Lane, and the other to William H. Snyder to construct a single-family residence on Lot 9 of a non-recorded portion of the Rocks Subdivision on Gulf Drive, the latter subject to the condition that the petitioners submit a drainage plan, vegetation map, and engineering survey showing where the proposed D.N.R. setback line falls on the property to the city before the case can be heard by the city council.

The request of Charles S. Rawson, Robert Stevens and Dan Royal, Jr., to build a 59-unit condominium complex, 2 tennis courts, a swimming pool, and a retention canal off Gulf Drive was continued on the grounds of insufficient data with which to judge the merits of the project. In particular, the commission was doubtful with respect to the D.N.R. setback line, the drainage pattern, the impermeable surface allotment, and how the proposed retention canal or lagoon will be dug for the 10.88-acre site. The commission was also dubious of the petitioners' request for permission to extend Gulf Drive to their property line on land which they claim to have dedicated to the city. The development is to be called "Breakaway Condominiums."

of Hopewell, New Jersey, to build a single-family home on Lot 18 of the Sanibel Estates Subdivision on Lighthouse Way. The hearing was continued to give the planning commissioners time to study the site plans for the proposed home, which weren't received in city hall until the morning of the hearing.

The application of Norman Chambers, vice president and treasurer of Cui-Nud, Inc., to construct a 34-unit rental apartment complex with appurtenant amenities on the Island was withdrawn, due to the developer's misunderstanding of the zoning of the property.

Early in the meeting, city consulting attorney Charles Siemon told the commission that any substantive changes made in the proposed CLUP during the city's upcoming final review sessions before adoption, that reflect a change in the overall planning philosophy of the city, could very well necessitate the plan's going through the state, regional and county review processes once more before the long awaited adoption can become a reality.

Said Siemon, "I think one indicator will be if you make a change that causes you to make other changes, then it might be something that the review agencies would care to reevaluate." By way of a warning, he cited the case of Key West, where the court ruled the city's land use plan invalid because of too many changes made during the final review and adoption phase. The city's black book could very well hold some distinct policy changes for the plan, Siemon opined.

City planner Sam Shannon reported that an agenda of black book item review hearings will be made available before June 7, which is slated for the consideration of black book items and reviewing agencies' comments by the planning commission.

While asking about rather desperately as to whether ANYONE had any good tasting summer cooking (which means as little heat and fuss as possible) dishes or meals, we ended up with three — all unique, all yummy and while one of them doesn't exactly fall into the "no effort" category, it is so islandish, we couldn't resist it.

The first is simplicity itself and shouldn't even start a gleam of dampness upon thy brow during its preparation. It is called "Five Cup Salad" for a delightful reason — it takes five cups of things to make it.

Start off with a medium large bowl and put in it one cup of shredded coconut (which you either get from a can or get your kid to shimmy up a tree and get one for you — be sure to let him shred it, though, so you can keep your cool with the greatest of ease) to which you add one cup of mandarin orange slices, one cup of little marshmallows, one cup of pineapple chunks and one cup of commercial sour cream OR a cup of whipping cream. Mix lightly but thoroughly, cover, refrigerate overnight and serve when ready. Gridley! 'Tis delicious!

The next dish, which is also delicious is also very filling, so that even if you do have to turn the stove on, it's worth it, since a little goes a long way. (This notion, of course, does not apply to anyone with resident teen agers.) Its rather prosaic title, Red Kidney beans with Cheese, is much less exciting than its taste.

First, in a thick bottomed sauce pan or skillets, melt 1 Tbsp. of butter. Then put a chopped up SMALL onion in the butter, stir a bit, but don't get brown, and then add a can of red kidney beans (undrained) and a minced small green bell pepper. Stir, turn heat on low, cover and cook till pepper is tender. At that time, stir in one and a half cups of grated cheese (chedder or an equivalent sharpish flavored cheese) till it melts, and serve immediately.

Now here's the recipe which may not be so easy, but it's local and surely sounds good. It is Mark Batholomew's recipe for shark steaks (more or less.) The work part comes in by the very fact that one needs a shark, and unless you happen to have one handy, we suppose you'll have to catch it. Then you skin it and take out the insides. Once you get to that point, you're supposed to be able to slice off pieces of shark.

Cut the chunks into one half inch strips, and cut away any cartilage and any (AND ALL) red meat. Soak the cleaned strips in a mixture of one half milk and one half water for two to four hours.

Then, says Mark, the meat is ready to be cooked in the fashion of your preference, whether it be fried, sauteed or broiled. Mark's favorite way is to sautee it in garlic, butter and sautern wine. You may either eat it right away, or you may cook it, chop it up and add it to macaroni salad. Well, HE says it tastes good that way!

Cinderella attracts large audience

by Carol Quillinan

I don't want to be a play reviewer who is one of those "I told you so" people, but I just have to brag about my predictions about "Cinderella." Those of you who missed opening night (May 20) missed a super performance. The timing was good, the cast was on their toes every minute and frankly, I got so involved in the lovely songs and the magic of the love story. I forgot to take pictures, especially during the dance scenes.

Cinderella entered the ballroom up center aisle looking like the princess she really was. Everyone on stage stared out into the audience as she walked slowly up the aisle and every head in the audience was turned around to see the arrival of the charming creature.

The audience "Ohed" and "ahed" as the Prince caught her up in his arms for the dance.

Later, the two step sisters, in a lament as to why the Prince fell in love with someone else besides themselves, were lively and fun to watch.

The Prince could have shown just a bit more distress in not finding the right foot to put the glass slipper, on but the fairy godmother who was just flat out beautiful, did a bang up job of saving the day for the Prince and Cinderella.

All in all, the play was well cast, good fun and well done.

Unfortunately, the Seven Lakes Auditorium is not conducive to good viewing, especially for audiences as large as the one opening night. Hopefully, the next play sponsored by the Church of the Resurrection Drama Guild, will have better facilities to show off the talents of the director, Edward Meszaros, Jr., his cast and crew.

Tides courtesy of Priscilla Murphy, Realtor, Inc.

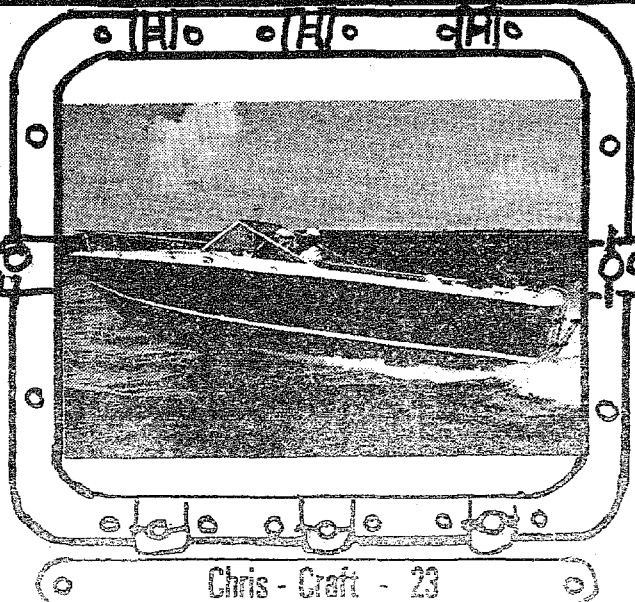

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (north tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every hi tide, and subtract two (2) minutes for every low tide. (NO, we don't know why, but it works. Instructions following are even less sense-sical but, as we stated, they do work.)

For Captiva Island, Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract 1 hour and 15 minutes for each low tide.

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (bay) side, add 1 hour and four (4) minutes for each high tide, and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points on gulf or bay -- guesstimate -- and have good fishing and/or shelling.

Troutman hearing turns into marathon

BY Rich Arthurs

Between three and four-hundred people turned out at the Fort Myers Exhibition Hall on May 25 for what proved to be a marathon public hearing before the Lee County Board of Commissioners on the massive 28,500 unit "Estuaries" development proposed by Atlanta developer Robert Troutman for the shores of Estero Bay. From the audience alone, there were forty-three people registered to speak at the hearing, thirty-one individuals and twelve representatives of groups.

The morning session was dominated by the presentation of Troutman and his staff. Troutman opened the discussion with a prepared statement requesting that the commission approve the development as proposed, at a density of 4.1 units per acre for the entire 8,500 acre site. The land is currently zoned GU-1, allowing for 1 dwelling unit per acre to be built. The projected population of the development is 35,000 people by the year 2000, with 55 per cent of the housing to be "second homes," 26 per cent retirees, and 9 per cent working people, according to Troutman.

Although Troutman claimed that Lee County public facilities will be adequate to accommodate his proposal and that local taxpayers won't have to foot the bill for the new residents' services, he also stated: "We had to assume that throughout the period there will be an effective public road system, and sufficient fresh water for the county overall. If not, neither our new dwellings nor any other new dwellings should be permitted."

Following Troutman's statement, Miami environmental biologist Dr. Eric Heald, addressed himself to the need for Troutman's proposed interceptor waterway for the five village development. If the proposed seven-mile long, 400 feet wide, five feet deep waterway is completed as planned, it will involve the removal of 1,100 acres of impounded mangroves, with an anticipated loss of between four and six per cent of the total resource base of Estero Bay, said Heald.

Heald was followed by Troutman's planner, Walter Taft Bradshaw, who explained the unique and unusual nature of the development concept, emphasizing in particular the fact that sixty per cent of the site would be left as open space, with 2,800 acres to be donated for the sake of preservation.

Before breaking for lunch, the commission questioned Troutman's staff on a number of aspects of their presentation, prominent among them the possibility of pollution resulting in Estero Bay from motorboats in the interceptor waterway. Dr. Heald acknowledged the possibility of such pollution.

The long afternoon session was reserved mainly for public input. Commission chairman Bob Whan reported that the county had received 36 letters and petitions urging approval of the project, 1,151 urging denial, and 10 undecided.

One of the few speakers who supported approval of the Troutman proposal was Arthur Barr of the Five County Builders and Contractors Association. The builders are attracted by Troutman's claim that the Estuaries will bring $678 million to Lee County during the build-out period, in the form of 2,900 new jobs.

Sanibel Mayor Porter Goss presented the commission with a resolution passed by the city council on May 18 opposing the approval of the project on the grounds of the county's inadequate water supply, roads, and the overburdening impact of the development's new residents on Sanibel beaches.

"Surely there must be a more reasonable use of this property with respect to the public interest," said Goss, who demanded that the county develop a master plan for the entire area as required by the state planning act. Goss cited the fact that Sanibel is the nearest municipality to the Troutman property as grounds for the city's concern.

Later in the afternoon, president of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation Dick Workman, asked that the commission strive to preserve Estero and San Carlos Bay in coming to their decision, and argued that the completion of the development as proposed would have a serious negative impact upon the area ecosystem as a whole.

Bill Hammond of the Environmental Confederation of Southwest Florida and Bill Miller of the Lee County Conservation Association, among others, also requested that the commission deny the application for development approval before them on environmental concerns during the course of the afternoon session.

The public hearing continued throughout the afternoon and long into the evening before the recommendations of the Lee County administrative staff could be heard.

The Lee County department heads were divided on the assessment of the development's impact.

Lee County Division of Environmental Protection director M.J. Harper concluded: "A planned unit development in the area known as the Estuaries certainly has its place, but I do not agree that the Estuaries as planned is an acceptable idea."

The county planning department recommended "that no alteration which would lead to the destruction or despoilation of the Estero Bay Aquatic Preserve should be allowed."

Director of the Division of County Development Don Molloy, on the other hand, stated: "If we accept the conclusion that large growth in Lee County is destined and inevitable, then it seems far better for the county government to work on problems in a large area like this with one developer who has shown a constant willingness to cooperate than to have to try to work with a great many small developers..."

After hearing all of the testimony and public input on the matter, the commission decided to hold a special hearing on the proposal at 9:00 a.m. on June 21 to decide the issue.

Pfaff warns CPOOS of "tax erosion"

Guest lecturer David Pfaff of David Pfaff and Associates said at Thursday evening's talk to The Concerned Property Owners of Sanibel (CPOOS) that if he had any advice to give to Sanibel, it would be to realize the benefits and the losses inherent in land use planning, governmental acquisition of land and rationally study which course is best.

His lecture centered around his findings regarding the Collier County tax base and budgets.

The Naples Board of Realtors asked him to do a preliminary study to see if a problem existed in the county due to government and non-profit organization's acquisitions of lands and "special treatment" zoning imposed by the county.

After a short three page report, which disclosed that there was sufficient evidence to indicate a problem, the board hired him to do an in-depth study.

The conclusion of the study showed that the county was on the horns of a dilemma, having a need for revenue, but at the same time, whittling away at the tax base, he said.

Pfaff said that the experience in Collier County has shown that the reduction in the amount of buildable land, which many thought would raise in value, was not to be borne out. Buyer demand was going down at the same time in which the base was decreasing, because of destroyed enthusiasm on the part of buyers, he said. Many investors were "getting out of Collier County" because of the uncertainties and future improbabilities which were not worth the investment, he continued.

In other business, CPOOS members discussed the opening of legally recorded beach accesses to the public and Sanibel residents.

Sanibel Harvesters

Not all gardening takes place in a rototilled garden plot. Some takes place in baskets. Zelma Herndon answered the question of why she grew vegetables hydroponically. "I get better growth for one thing and I also have two or three rabbits and raccoons who also like our vegetables."

"Yes, we have two friendly rabbits," Frank said. Then, turning and pointing out into the yard at two rabbits. "See my new grass cutter?" he asked.

The Herndons have harvested this year sweet and hot peppers, cucumbers, radishes and tomatoes. "We had a lot of tomatoes in spite of the bad weather this year. Well, not a lot but we had enough to eat."

Parsley and chives are still growing.

Not too many years ago Herndons' property was just another lot on a canal. Today is a garden not only with hydroponic vegetables, but a garden full of flowers, fruit trees, numerous cacti and flowering shrubs.

Bearing fruit trees are key and Persian lime, lemon, tangerine, orange, grapefruit and avocado. One "volunteer" citrus is coming a long, but neither Zelma nor Frank knows what it is. Herndons have just planted a banana plant, and several pineapple plants are almost old enough to bear fruit.

Native fruit bearing plants which are made into a yearly supply of jelly are natal plum and sea grape. A coconut tree, everbearing, provides enough coconut all year long.

As well as gardening, the Herndons are very much involved in community activities and the Pirate Playhouse. They will be remembered for their fine performances in "You can't take it with you" and others. Frank put on one of his recordings. "Don't let the good life pass you by," and at that moment the good life was just thinking of that pineapple, banana, coconut fruit salad to come.

Alligator policy under study

What makes an alligator aggressive? What misconceptions do people have about alligators? What effect does removing a large alligator out of an area have on the remaining population? Are there places in Florida without enough alligators?

These are some of the questions expected to be answered under a research program and management policy on alligators adopted Friday, May 21, by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

The policy includes provisions for an extensive research program on the reptile as well as a public education program. It also provides for limited commercial harvest of certain problem alligators.

Commission Director Dr. O.E. Frye Jr. pointed out that the alligator is still classified as an endangered species but is expected to be reclassified as threatened in Florida this upcoming summer.

"Adoption of the provisions of this plan does not mean we are going to start handing out licenses to take alligators tomorrow," the agency head said. "It is just a general philosophy towards this reptile that we will be working under."

"All alligator-people complaints must still come into the Commission for our personnel to act upon," he continued. "We have not relinquished our authority in these matters."

Frye said a public opinion poll is underway now to determine some of the fears and concepts people have about alligators and the possible public acceptance or rejection of alligator management. This will provide a basis for stronger public education programs and formulation of any management plan.

A four month old research study on the use of sulfuric acid as an aquatic weed control agent was temporarily halted by the Commission during the Tallahassee meeting.

The Commission cited a report from the staff and the problem with obtaining a permit from the Environmental Protection Agency as reasons for the decision to curtail any further research at this time.

"I don't feel it is the Commission's responsibility to do all the testing required by the EPA in order to use this acid in public waters," Commissioner George Matthews said. "That responsibility falls with the manufacturer of the substance."

In addition, the report from the staff indicated that the acid was detrimental to other aquatic fauna and could result in a spread of hydrilla, rather than a kill, through fragmentation caused by the acid killing the bottom of the weed.

The Commission indicated it would contact the chief advocate of use of the acid and offer the results of its investigations if private industry wished to pursue obtaining a permit to use sulfuric acid in Florida's fresh water systems.

In other business, the Wildlife Code for 1976-77 as well as regulations for the 50 fish management areas in the state were adopted.

Tentative approval was given for the inclusion of 180,000 acres of land in Taylor and Lafayette counties into the Tye II wildlife management area program, the landowner collects an access fee, is responsible for habitat improvement and posting with the Commission enforcing mutually acceptable regulations.

Members of the Commission are: Randolph R. Thomas, Jacksonville; E.P. "Sonny" Burnett, Tampa; Howard Odom, Marianna; Donald Rhodes, West Eau Gallie; and George Matthews, Palm Beach.

Mark and the Sanibel version of "Jaws"

As far as Mark Bartholomew is concerned, the lemon shark is a non-territorial, migratory animal that travels in schools, goes where the weather and water temperature is to its liking, and sticks around as long as there is food to eat. Mark thinks, however, that the lemon shark is good eating both smoked and fresh if and when a fisherman can catch one.

The lemon sharks are back in Sanibel-Captiva waters and for the next six months, Mark said, shark fishing will be good. His last catch took several hours of fighting to haul in a 9 foot lemon off of Blind Pass the fifteenth of May. His 4-0 reel and 62 pound dacron line held fast as the shark tried its best to get free.

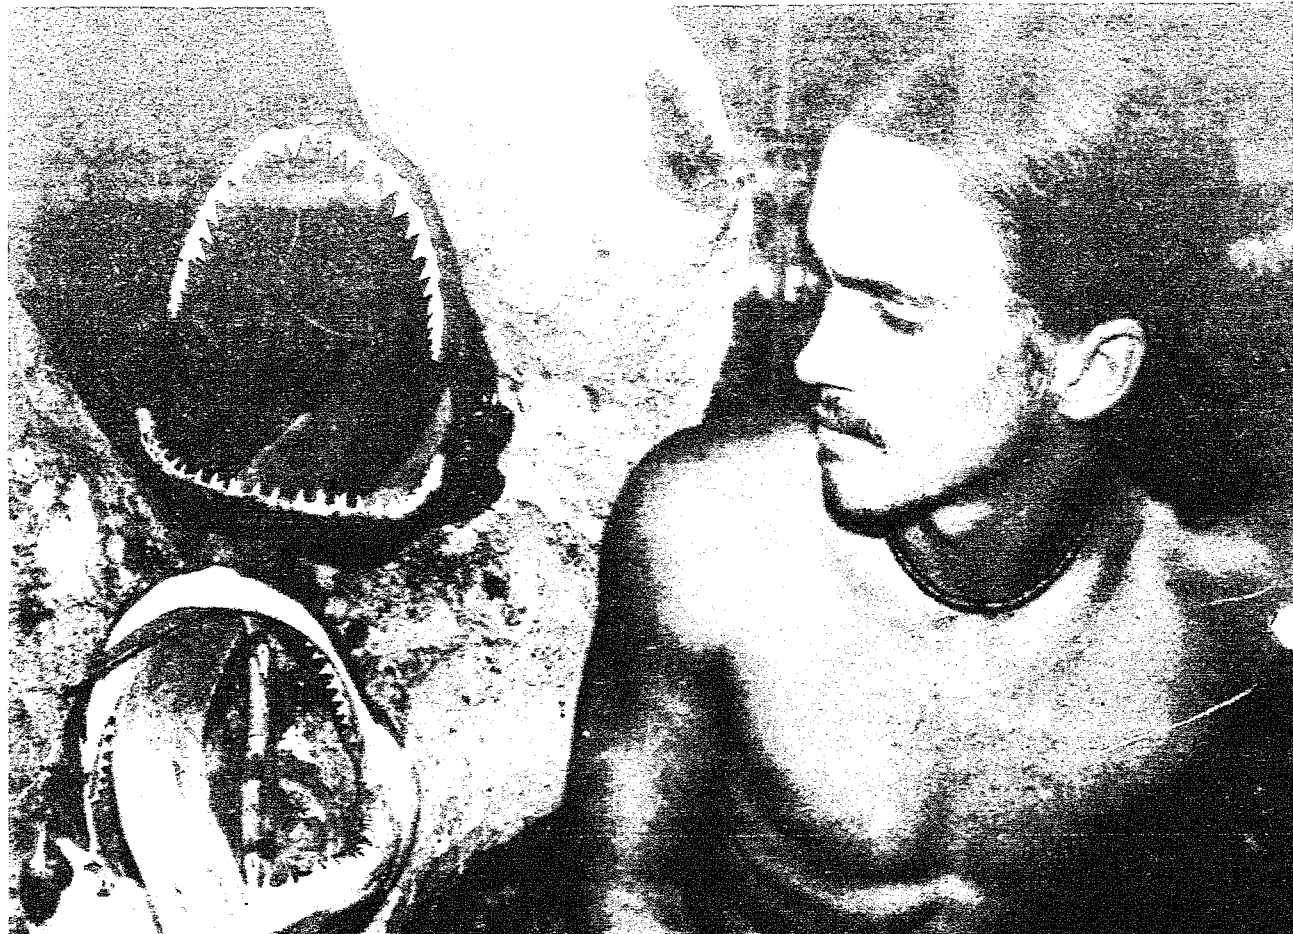

Within a half hour after the shark has been landed,

Mark said, it must be killed and bled immediately in order to have good meat. Otherwise, the iodine in the blood will flavor the meat too much. The gills are cut, the whole shark cut in half and the jaws cut out. Then the fish can be skinned and cut into steak. The rest of the carcass is then thrown back out to sea for food.

Mark tans the hide for leather and preserves the jaws as sale items. The steaks are smoked or eaten fresh.

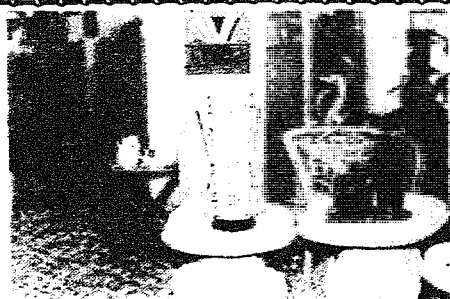

Shark fishing is not only a hobby for Mark but a source of money to buy wood sculpturing tools.

Mark's wood sculptures take many hours to carve and are a great source of satisfaction not only to those who are collectors of his works but to himself, a young man, full of creative energy.

(He likes sharks, especially cooked. See recipe on page 6)

Giants move to first place in girls' softball

The Sanibel Giants moved into first place in junior girls' softball standings after defeating the Lions Auxiliary Angels 15-7 Wednesday and 10-5 Saturday. Timi Voignier and Barb Bissell shared the mound for the Giants in the first game. Voignier, Bissell and Judy Purdy all hit singles while Morgana Anholt doubled. Hitting for the Angels were Kim Goli with two singles, Renay Thurman with a double and Lisa Nelson with a single.

In senior division play Kelly's Athletics downed the Bobbi-Dei Cardinals in two close games, winning 16-14 Tuesday and 14-11 Friday. Dawn Matthews was credited with the first victory and Elizabeth Brown with the second win. Hitting for the A's in the first game were Tee Kemp with two singles; Matthews and Paula Towell with a double each; and Heather Strickland, Mary Ann Brown and Jeannie O'Connor all with a single apiece. For the Cards Karen Hencry had a double and two singles; Tangela Nelson hit three singles; Cindy Lea had two singles; Janet Winslow hit a double; and Tuesday Marchall, Sylvia Harris, Mary Watts and Beth Van Duzer all singled. On Friday Mary Ann Brown and O'Connor each had two singles for the A's; Tina Rynearson doubled; and Elizabeth Brown and Tina Bailey both singled. For the Cards, Lea tripled and doubled; Winslow tripled and singled; Harris hit a double; Marchall and Watts each had two singles; while Hendry, Cinda McCoy and Van Duzer all had a single apiece.

The Sanibel Tigers did not see action last week.

Sanibel takes over Little League first place

Sanibel's Huxter's Plaza Yankees took over first place in Little League competition by beating the Kiwanis Pirates 6-4 Wednesday and 4-2 Saturday at Sanibel. Calvin Burney, the winning pitcher in the first game, allowed only two hits and struck out 10 batters. Eric Gavin had two singles and Mike Nichols singled for the Yanks. For the Pirates Mike Morse walloped a home run and Ronnie Thomas doubled. No statistics were available on the second game.

The Carlos Bay Braves topped the Sanibel Astros 6-5 Monday and won big at Sanibel on Thursday. Ken Weit was credited with the first win as Dave Hubbard doubled and Andy Hillman, Weit and Jim Lindquist all singled for the Braves. For the Astros, Sean Combs hit a double and a single while Jeff Thompson and Robert Metcalf each singled. No information was available on the second game.

The Rotary Red Sox did not play last week.

Want to buy a totem pole?

The mystery of Odyssey II was revealed last week as the Islands' newest shop opened for business. The store is a carousel of fascinating items which would turn any decorating scheme into a unique personal experience. The merchandise is essentially the collection of a collector. As such, there is nothing in the store which may be considered a standard or stock item.

Odyssey II is the pride and joy of Joan Yates, a woman whose talents and interests are as varied as the shop itself. The concept and direction of Odyssey II was developed over many years of collecting.

The dream of a shop originated while Joan was serving as president of the Women's Council for the Museum of Science in Rochester, New York. Joan transformed the bookkeeping office at the museum into a souvenir shop selling mementos and artifacts. The project proved very popular and snowballed to such a point that Joan began travelling extensively to find and purchase unusual items for the museum gift shop.

Joan's wide ranging interests brought her to the Southwest Florida area, where she has lived and worked on and off for the past thirty-five years. The past four years have seen Joan settle down in her home on Palm Lake Circle. The house itself offers a comfortable blend of contemporary Island living and Indian artifacts. A large screened porch provides a home for Joan's collection of orchids and house plants. The homestead is so inviting that a Great Blue Heron is often seen ambling about the backyard.

The relocation of Betty Carpenter's Odyssey Shop to 1554 Periwinkle Way provided the opportunity for Joan to establish her dream shop. Urged on by Betty and Claudia Carpenter, Joan organized her collections of antiques, Indian artifacts, and unusual decorative items and the Odyssey II came into being. Situated next door to the Odyssey Shop at the corner of Periwinkle and Palm Street, the Odyssey II is now open and ready for business.

Whether it be for gifting or for home decorating, the Odyssey II has something for everyone. Authentic Navajo blankets, and silver, English and American pewter, pottery, tinware, artwork, lithographs, and much, much more awaits your inspection. The next time you go shopping for a genuine totem pole or authentic Spanish spurs, stop by the Odyssey II and experience Joan Yates' dream come true.

Letters to the ISLANDER:

To the Islander:

Can't something be done about the noise coming from the Sanibel Inn?

This racket goes on until 2 a.m. and we are being forced to listen to this garbage!

The "music?" is so loud that no one at this motel can possibly get any sleep until after 2 a.m. when they FINALLY close!

We even have guests checking out in the middle of the night because of this noise.

People come to Sanibel to relax; only to find that the noise is greater than staying in the city.

If this HAS to be tolerated; why can't Sundial move their restaurant to their own premises; and force their guests to listen to this noise?

This type of noise pollution should not be permitted to dirty the air of our beautiful island.

I would like to add; that the Sanibel Police do their best to curb this every time I call; but as soon as they leave; it starts all over again.

To The ISLANDER:

I agree with Rich Arthur's review that "Rip Van Winkle" was lacking in excellence whether it be judged as serious theatre or as children's theatre, which should be no less excellent merely because it is presented for a young audience.

My disagreement lies in his giving best acting accolades to Spencer Eldridge, who overacted his part and scarcely portrayed a difference in the young and the old Rip - right down to the shuffle present in both but far more effective in the old Rip, and to Mona Eddy, who was much too old to be Rip's wife and whose curtness was too curt, whose scolding was too scalding, and whose henpecking was too contrived. In short, she, too, overacted her part.

But all that aside, the truth is he missed the best actor of all! One foot propped on a keg, a pipe in his hand, a steady gaze, and hardly the blink of an eyelash, intermingled with a bemused smile, a twinkling of the eye, and a slight nod of the head on occasion and the "picture" in the living room dominated the otherwise boring play. If one missed Michael Hanson's portrayal of Hendrick

Hudson in Act I, there was a second chance to observe his acting ability in Act II when the "picture" came to life with his roguish band of men, who, incidentally, also gave fine performances. Even the curtain call found him still in character. Perhaps his underplaying of the role was so outstanding because of the overacting by so many of the other players. At any rate, anyone who can do that much acting without any lines to speak certainly deserves the chance to show his abilities in a more substantial part. Let's hope Director Lukitsch gives this fine actor that chance soon.

Perhaps he will disagree with my appraisals, but, then, to paraphrase an old saying, "Good acting is in the eyes of the beholder!"

-s-Carole Weaver McGrotty

Captiva, Florida

To the ISLANDER:

Being a long time subscriber to the ISLANDER there is one section that could be deleted permanently. The "POLICE REPORT" which is always a repetition of the previous weeks report. It tells the readers absolutely nothing. I furthermore think it is an insult to our police department.

You implicate that they never catch any law violator. And when they do they get a slap on the wrist. Your report infers that the "prowler is gone by the time the police arrive." Furthermore you do not publish names of the suspects, or the police. Then there is "the door that is left unlocked." Who cares? A cat or dog is found who cares except the owner. What interesting reading. A "suspicious vehicle is reported in area." How do you determine a suspicious vehicle as to one that is not suspicious? Then "somebody stole a "quart of spirits from premises." How interesting. So you go on and on with junk writing. Get off your rump and hire a good reporter who can tell it like it should be. Change your format or drop this lousy reporting down the sink. Amen.

-s-Frank Herndon

Editor's note: In no way is the "Police Report" written as, meant, or normally read as a degeneration of the fine work of the Sanibel Police Department, nor as a degeneration of their performance. Its main purpose, indeed, is to illustrate not only what good work they are doing, but how many calls they have to take care of during a given period of time, no matter how trivial or silly the matter at hand may appear to someone else, since every "silly" call could possibly turn out to be a real emergency.)

number of loud crows in the wild. Spoke to bird's owner, who said bird was a quiet one, all right, and he didn't think he should have to do anything to make the bird quieter.

We're very happy to be able to report that no one left their pocketbooks and-or any other valuables in their locked or unlocked cars this week on the Islands, and therefore none were stolen.

Things were fairly calm on other fronts—while the commercial alarm went off an even dozen times (once turned on by heavy rains and once by a possible attempt at a B&E, altho if it were, nothing was broken into or stolen), two other alarms went off for reasons unknown, there was a minor accident involving a car and a pole, one call for assistance answered, one citation issued for a vehicular moving violation (a D.W.I., to be precise), and one found dog.

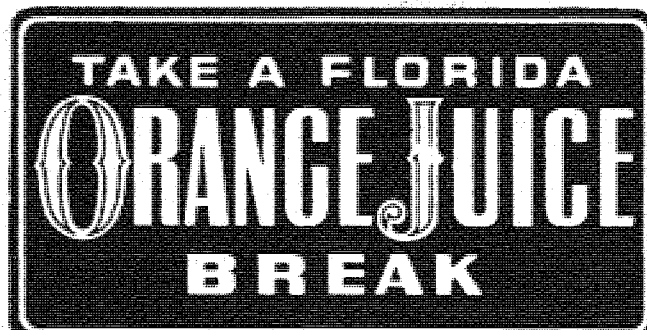

One accommodation owner complained that a neighbor in the same business had loud birds who made loud and disturbing noises, which bothered the first man's customers so much that some of them left the Islands. Officer arrived on scene and found a very quiet parrot in a cage, and a

(In case you ever run into a similar situation, Florida State Law forbids the keeping of any animal or bird which makes frequent or long continued noises audible at a distance of 100 feet from where the bird is between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Evidently, the bird may be as loud as it likes at other times.)

Gentleman visitor was found in car after over-imbibing spiritous liquids. Office issued a verbal warning about DWI (Driving While Intoxicated) after testing him for sobriety or lack thereof, secured car and escorted gentleman to residence. The car keys, kept in the SPD for safety's sake, were returned to the owner the following morning.

A B & E occurred in an Island Business, resulting in the loss of approximately $3,000 or more of native jewelry. Shops dealing in similar items in area notified; investigation continues.

Someone was fooling around with the bee hives in mid-Sanibel and did commit vandalism upon them by tipping them over. Off-Island owner asked officers to keep on checking the sweet stuff. They will.

Captiva fire alarm bar was lifted; Sanibel fire department was notified that they would be called if their help was needed in extinguishing a fire on Captiva. Fire extinguished without aid from Sanibel.

Complainant stated that motel guests were being literally shocked whenever they touched anything metal in the motel. SPD advised guests not to touch anything metal and also notified electric company of situation.

A call came in that someone might be "suspicious" because he said he needed key for an apartment in which he wished to do some work, and it was Sunday, and who works on Sunday anyway? (Ed: note: LOTS of Check disclosed that man was indeed working and wasn't "suspicious" at all.

Call came in that outboard was speeding in a canal. Upon officer's arrival, boat was speeding, and when warned it was illegal, boat's operator became abusive. Verbal warning issued for speeding in canals.

Call came in that a power line was "sparking." Sanibel fireman explained that such was not unusual for lines to spark, but if a fire should break out, please call back.

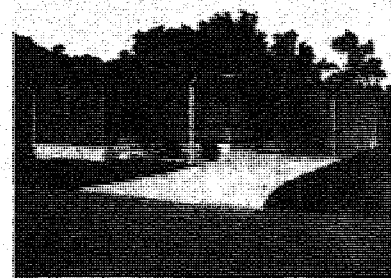

Two young men discovered liberating fuel from parked car which was not theirs. Owner of gas did not wish to press charges.

Your astrological week especially cast for the Islands

by Madam Dorinda (phone: 481-3051)

Aries: Any decisions of a legal kind will go in your favor. Listen closely to what other people have to say about starting trips and traveling. Good time for raising prices.

Taurus: New things for you where financial dealing, credit or tax matters are concerned. Try and stay composed when discussing politics, especially local. Be conservative in making any changes.

Gemini: Trip you're planning now could be very difficult. Now is good for opening accounts, applying for credit. Social activities, interests are fun. Be sure to get enough rest.

Cancer: Stay out of other people's problems or you could find yourself in a very explosive situation. Don't start trouble with your loved ones; you will be the loser.

Leo: You will have a chance to display leadership qualities now. You should be beginning new things in your work, involving more responsibility. Support the aims of friends and it will pay off.

Virgo: Your work activities will increase, and some of it with no money for your trouble. Avoid unusual food or drink, especially when taking that short trip.

Libra: Try not to be too stubborn with family and you can work out a congenial arrangement. Pay attention when you are being given directions about routes or instructions.

Scorpio: Good time to speak up on a topic that means a lot to you personally. Be sure you keep a tight grip on your purse strings where impulse spending in.

Sagittarius: Use your imagination in keeping ahead of the tax man. Aspects are good for patching up old misunderstandings. You will get personal recognition in an area you never expected.

Capricorn: Try to hold things together until after June 2. Personal matters are apt to be very difficult. Avoid waste where business funds are concerned, stick to the basics.

Aquarius: Keep on the move socially; there may be some mystery about persons met for the first time. Don't try to do more than you can in research; or a confidential role.

Pisces: What's expedient may not be ethical. Be careful in and with money where you work or in business. Keep track of papers or financial data, it will save you a lot later on.

Complaint came in that a boat was "close to shore, flashing a green light" which might be disturbing guests. Officers arrived; there was a boat, two miles off shore, with a flashing blue light. Officers asked dispatcher to phone Coast Guard; dispatcher was told "That is a Coast Guard boat out there." Nuff said.

Call came in that battery had been stolen from a tourist's parked car which was properly parked in parking lot of motel she was visiting, and further stated that the battery had cost $50.00 in 1972.

Driver of car arrested for wilful, wanton and reckless driving, after knocking down some barricades and then rolling car over while driver and two passengers were still in it. Other person also arrested for giving false information regarding an accident.

A well behaved and polite poodle had seemed to have taken up residence in golf course wearing nothing but a flea collar. Owner of poodle eventually found. SPD informed original caller that dog needs a Sanibel license tag.

Call came in that caller was having trouble locking place of business. Officer arrived and showed caller how to lock doors.

Call came in that a "suspicious person" was seen walking across church property for a while before getting into a vehicle and driving east. Officer found person, who is described as "the person who collects bugs at night."

Call came in that an ice machine had been vandalized, in that person or persons unknown had opened the machine, ripped a mesh screen from it, which they then stuffed with hibiscus blooms. Real cool.

Call came in that person were seen feeding alligators. Officer found workers, who were waiting for materials with which to work some more, had walked over to nearby pond to look at alligators, but said they had not fed the animal, just looked. They also said someone ordered them to clean up litter around pond, which they refused to do, as they said they were not responsible for litter in first place. Officer asked head of crew to stay away from alligators, that if the subject came up for discussion or something again, there was a Sanibel ordinance which forbid the feeding of alligators. Officer also formed original complaint of what had happened.

Man complained that large concrete buckets were stored on his property. Investigation disclosed that neighbor had so stored the buckets so they could not be seen from street, but hadn't gotten around to writing to ask permission to do so. The neighbors worked out a solution themselves.

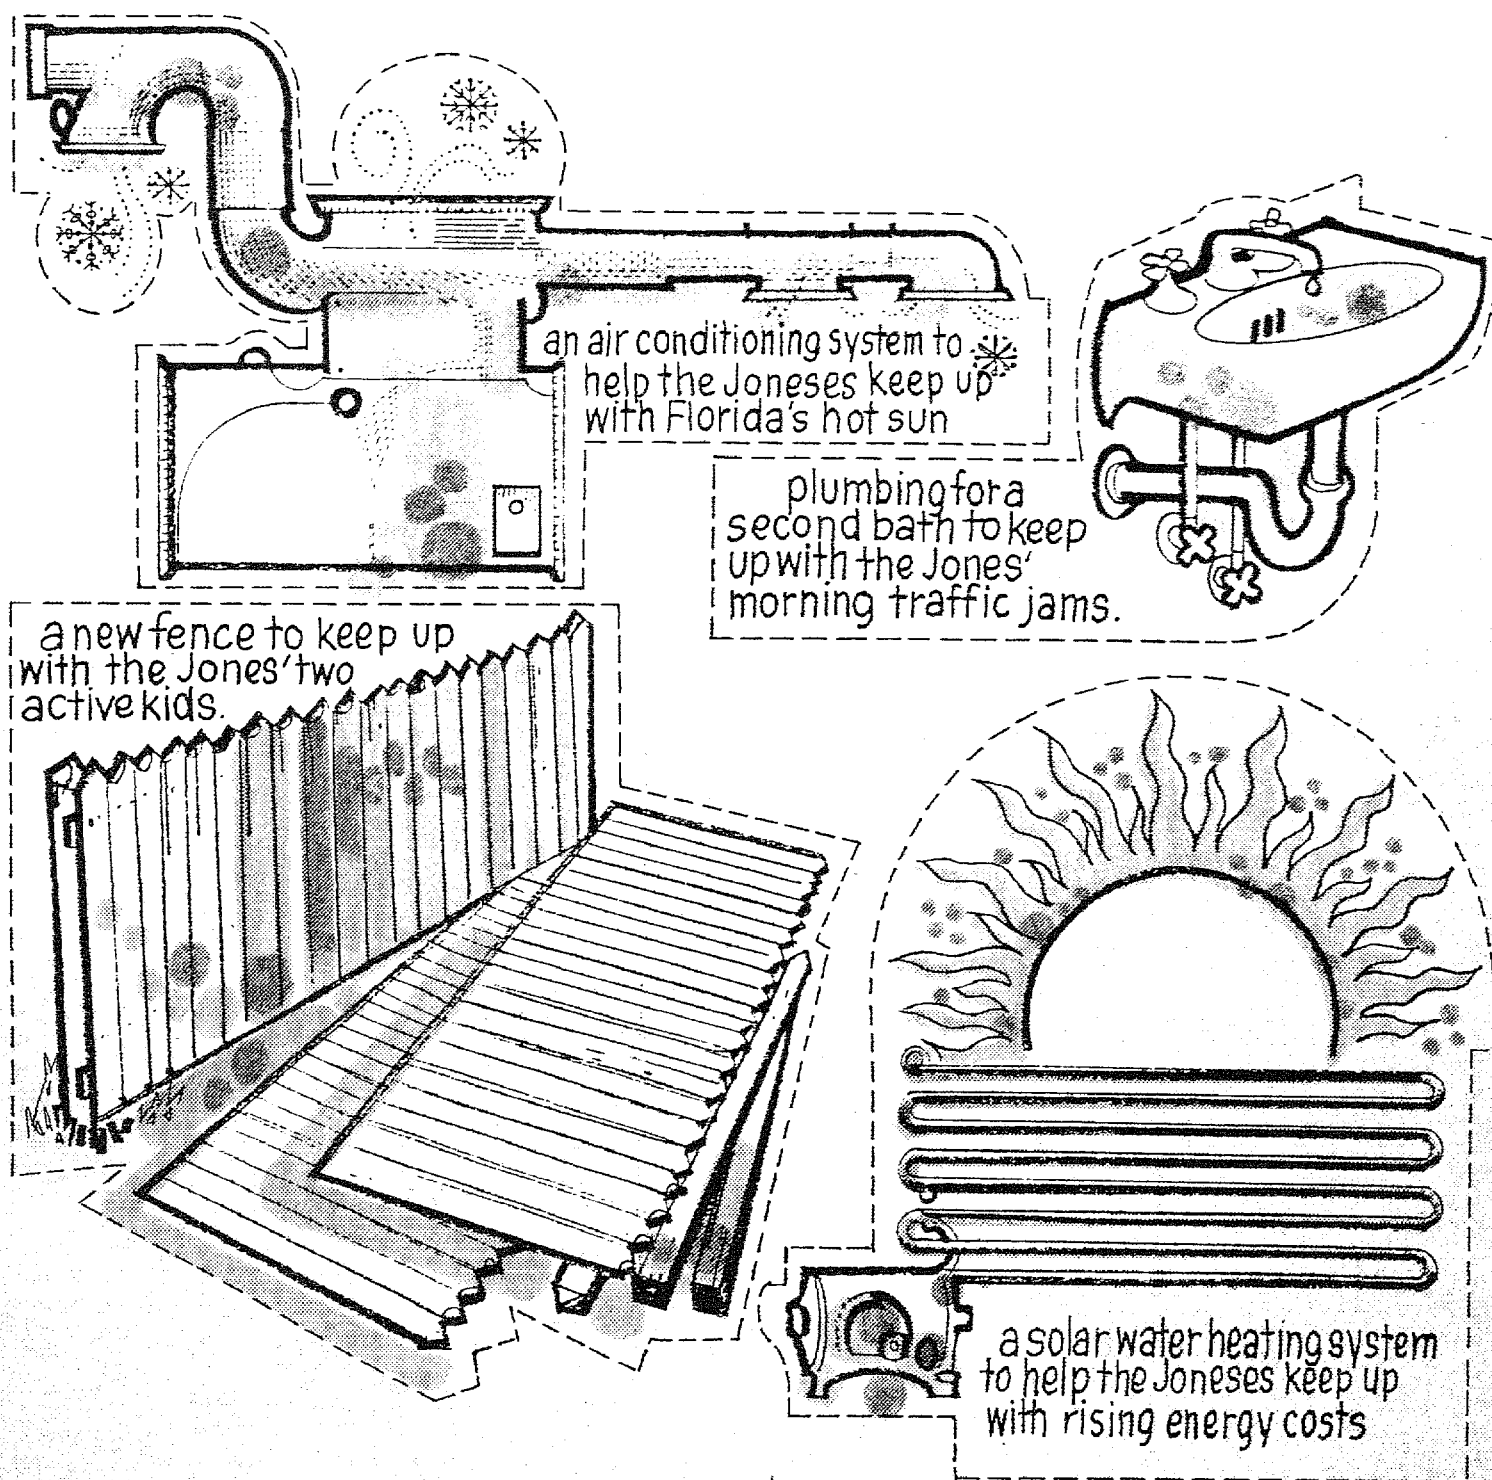

Complaint came in that a houseboat was on fire. SPD officers and firemen arrived on scene in eight minutes; three minutes later, off realized that live propane gas was aboard, at which point, it promptly ignited. All Sanibel and Captiva fire units responded to call, plus Medic 3 in case they were needed. Fire completely extinguished one hour and five minutes after first call came in and 56 minutes after SPD and firemen arrived on scene. Houseboat total loss.

Local dog evidently objected to early morning shelling, as the dog bit someone who was doing so, but who had not provoked dog in any way. Fortunately dog had had all proper necessary shots, tags and forth. Dog's owner said he would pay all medical costs incurred (dog bit sheller in back of left knee) and would also buy a muzzle for the dog.

Call came in that trees were being moved and possibly were the objects of theft. Turned out they were being moved from one piece of property to another piece of property belonging to same man. Tree mover's boss said he was unaware city permit was needed to transplant trees and then proceeded to city hall to obtain permit. Evidently did so, since SPD was later informed two trees were being moved.

Call came in that alligator had been run over and was hurt. Officer rushed to scene; alligator GO.

Stanley Roper of Orlando went a-fishin' with Jerry Way for snook in Pine Island Sound, and instead of his intended prey, hooked into a winner of a fish when he pulled in a three pound, 15 ounce sea trout (otherwise known as a weekfish).

If that doesn't sound like a lot of fish for salt water, let it be known here and now that a one half to full pound sea trout is considered a goodly catch! The fish not only made for a delicious meal, but also won Roper a first place in category in last week's segment of the First Annual Island Fishing Derby.

According to Jerry, who knows the Pine Island Sound fishing areas very well, the fish just might win first over-all in category, since they're aren't too many (if any) which are bigger.

Congratulations! Oh, we would LOVE to have printed a picture of Mr. Roper and his prize winner, but a picture was not available at press time. If YOU happen to catch a winning fish—or any fish at all, for that matter, give the ISLANDER a call at 472-1881 so we can come and take your picture while the fish is still wet—or ask your friendly guide to take a Polaroid snap shot of you and your catch, and we'll be delighted to print it!

Conservation Foundation considers wetland buy

Dick Workman

As of last Tuesday, the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation was considering the purchase of eleven county-owned lots in the Sanibel Gardens Subdivision.

The eleven lots, classified as wetlands under the city's proposed comprehensive land use plan, were put on sale on May 19th at the direction of the county commission, acting on a request of the Sanibel City Council that the county deed the lots either to the city or to the Conservation Foundation for the sake of preservation.

The lots, most of which are either 20 feet by 100 feet or 50 feet by 100 feet in area, were collectively appraised at $2,500 by the county. Some of the lots adjoin, while others are scattered about within the Sanibel Gardens Subdivision, in which the Conservation Foundation already owns 192 lots.

Said Foundation president, Dick Workman, last week: "I think that the appraisal is consistent with what we're accustomed to paying in the Sanibel Gardens area, and that the board will act favorably on such a purchase."

Workman was to meet with county administrator Lavon Wisner later last week to discuss the sale.
