Mariner gets amendments

At a regular meeting held last Tuesday in MacKenzie Hall, the Sanibel City Council voted to approve three specific amendments to the city's comprehensive land use plan (CLUP), two of them requested by Mariner Properties President Robert Taylor.

In his first hearing of the morning, Taylor was granted a variance from the CLUP's minimum height elevation (flood proofing) and density requirements to permit the construction of the final 8 units at the Mariner Pointe Condominiums on Causeway Road.

Although the council has in the past consistently required developers to abide by the 13.5 foot minimum height elevations required under the plan they chose last week to allow Mariner to build at an elevation of 10.5 feet above mean sea level because of the transitional nature of the Mariner Pointe development, which was begun prior to the city's incorporation in 1974.

The variance was imperative, explained Taylor, in order for the new units to maintain the character of the completed portions of the project, which were built at an elevation of 8.5 feet under permits issued by Lee County. He did, however, ultimately agree to a compromise elevation of 10.5 feet.

After careful deliberation, the council voted 4 to 1 to overturn the city planning commission's recommendation of denial for the proposal, with Councilman Charles LeBuff casting the dissenting vote.

Upon completion, the final 8 units at Mariner Pointe will bring the project as a whole up to 105 units on approximately 13 acres of land.

Shortly thereafter, Taylor was granted a second amendment, enabling him to build two duplexes on a Gulf-front lot at the corner of Gulf Drive and Seagrape Lane.

Because of a technicality, a waiver from the front yard setback requirements contained in the CLUP was needed to permit the proposed work.

In asking for only four units on the site, Taylor proposed to build at a lower density than that which was allocated to him in the plan. Although the plan allotted him six multi-family type units for the property without requiring the setback variance, Taylor said he would prefer to build only the two duplexes in hopes of preserving the single-family detached nature of the neighborhood.

Despite opposition to the proposal registered by a number of homeowners in the area, the council voted unanimously to approve the requested amendment, although City Manager Bill Nungester informed the group that no development permit would be issued for the work until such time as Mariner replaces an amount of native vegetation which they had unlawfully removed in order to run water lines to the site last week.

Due to what Mayor Porter Goss called a "unfortunate misunderstanding," Mariner had cleared an area of sea oats, gumbo limbo, cabbage palms, and one large buttonwood tree without obtaining a vegetation clearance permit from the city.

In a letter to Nungester, Taylor had advised him that Mariner was planning to "clear and trim some Casuarina" at the site unless advised otherwise, and thus took the city manager's silence on the request to be a tacit approval of the work. The removal of Casuarina in the city, an undesirable exotic, requires no special permit under the plan.

As Taylor apologized for the oversight and promised to restore the vegetation, the matter was dropped by the council, who only instructed Nungester not to issue a permit for the construction of the duplexes until he is satisfied that the damage has been repaired.

Earlier in the session, the council narrowly approved a specific amendment involving a waiver of the CLUP's front yard setback provisions to permit Peter L. Sabin to construct a single-family home in the Kearn's Subdivision at the corner of Gulf Drive and Hurricane Lane.

According to the petitioner's representation, Bill Edwards, the variance was needed because of the "peculiar shape of the lot."

The amendment passed by a very slim margin, with two of the councilmen voicing strong opposition to the request.

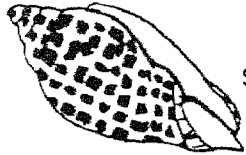

"The problem is that these people are trying to put too big a house on too small a lot," argued Councilman Duane White. "It's not our fault the lot is too small."

The motion to approve the petition passed 3 to 2, with Councilmen White and Zee Butler opposing the amendment.

Water or vegetation?

Island environmentalists and officials of the Island Water Association (IWA) exchanged harsh words last Tuesday before the Sanibel City Council as the plans for the IWA's proposed 2 million gallon storage tank facility were once again brought up for consideration.

The storage tank proposal has had a long turbulent history of postponements dating back to the days when Sanibel was still a speck of unincorporated Lee County, and last Tuesday's discussion before the city council was no exception to that long-standing controversy.

Originally, the proposed tank was to be built on a site off of Dixie Beach Boulevard until a concerted outcry from residents in the area forced the IWA to seek another location for the massive storage facility.

In an attempt to situate the alleged unsightly tank in a non-residential area, the IWA next purchased a lowland site off Wulfert Road at the Island's west end and requested city approval of the relocation proposal in mid 1975.

The city planning commission held a hearing on the request on July 14, 1975, and recommended unanimously that the city approve the proposal, while commending the IWA on their foresight in recognizing the need to expand their facilities to keep pace with the Island's rapid growth trends.

The matter came to a hearing before the city council on August 5 of that year; but no action was taken pending the completion of the city's comprehensive land use plan (CLUP). It was at this meeting that Councilman Charles LeBuff noted the "unique vegetation" in the area of the proposed site and asked the city's Vegetation Committee to conduct a vegetative survey of the property.

The council heard the proposal again on November 18 of last year and again deferred action to await the adoption of a plan for the city. It was at about that time, according to IWA General Manager Larry Snell, that the city planners promised to designate the proposed site as a "special use" in the CLUP.

Finally, on January 20, 1976, the council voted unanimously to uphold the planning commission's recommendation of approval for the proposal, while emphasizing that the IWA should consult the Vegetation Committee and then apply for a city building permit before initiating construction of the facility. At that meeting, IWA Attorney John Schumacher informed the council that construction was not contemplated for at least two years from that date.

For a time, everyone seemed happy with the outcome and little was heard of the matter until just recently, when the long-awaited vegetation inspection was finally conducted by Vegetation Committee Chairman George Campbell.

The results of his study, he said, indicated that much valuable native vegetation would be destroyed by the construction of the proposed storage tank on the site, including many mangroves, some buttonwood and a fair amount of the rare and sensitive Joe-wood (Jacquinia keyensis), among others. Campbell further concluded that the site was unfit for the proposed tank because the amount of vegetation to be cleared in the undertaking (roughly 46 per cent) is far in excess of the 20 per cent clearance permitted in Island lowland areas pursuant to the CLUP.

According to Snell, the proposed storage tank is to be 110 feet in diameter and is to rise 20 feet above ground, although the city's approval of the proposal called for the tank to be screened from view by landscaping and a serpentine access road.

Thus, Snell and IWA President Jim Robson approached the council last Tuesday to request that they be permitted to proceed with construction of the tank. Citing a 22 per cent average yearly increase in water consumption on the Island as the necessity for moving quickly toward the construction of the facility, Robson told the council that the IWA would need the new tank by next year if it were to meet the peak tourist season demand for water in the city.

Snell added that the IWA had hoped to begin hauling the necessary fill to the site before the heavy Christmas traffic set in, but that they wanted to clear the land within the week in order to take soil borings and accordingly requested that the city issue them a

Aries: Some surprise is likely when experimenting with new methods. Small problems will arise concerning small trips. Gains through property deals possible now.

Taurus: Others may be undependable or uncooperative in money dealings. More than usual local travel because of unexpected turn of events. You may have to rearrange holiday plans.

Gemini: This is not the time to be too outspoken or bring up touchy subjects. You'll have a good chance to collect a debt. Look at things from the other person's point of view.

Cancer: Probable emotional upsets in job environment will quickly pass. Work with someone else on a creative project for best results. Be sure and keep everything about board where the family is concerned.

Leo: A hard choice ahead where your love life is concerned. This is not the time to be careless in health matters. There should be some improvement in partnership matters.

Virgo: You are likely to be considering new ways of earning money. For best results seek pertinent data early. Keep an open mind where family, residential and property matters are concerned.

Libra: Don't trust influential people too much where written commitments are concerned. New ideas for advertising and promotion will turn a profit. Use caution driving long or short trips.

Scorpio: Keep career aims to yourself and you will achieve a certain goal easier. Be wary of the money-making schemes of others. You could get lucky, but don't count on it.

Sagittarius: Some friction could cause a temporary change of locale. Your restlessness could cause you to have little consideration for others. Find out what you're expected to pay.

Capricorn: Don't doubt your capabilities. Grab that golden opportunity. Some problem likely for those with pets. This is a good time to make those travel plans.

Aquarius: Don't take sides in a fight between friends. News from a distance should be good. You're riding a little streak of good luck. Keep plans flexible regarding socializing.

Pisces: New domestic projects beginning should do nicely. Put your cards on the table where community affairs are concerned. Don't take things too personally when dealing with in-laws.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor:

I am indeed sorry to hear of the dog controversy which appeared in THE ISLANDER Nov. 23, 1976.

Mrs. Snyder and I have been wintering on Sanibel even before the causeway was built, and always with our well-behaved dog.

Dog freedom is the basic reason for our picking Sanibel and I might add that we spend several thousands of dollars in Sanibel each year.

Should dog freedom be markedly curtailed, we will need to look elsewhere after this year -- this year, because our deposit for January and February have already been credited.

I trust the members of the city council will give this proposed amendment proper consideration.

police

reports

An unusually large number of vehicular moving violations, improper equipment and speeding citations were issued this past week by the Sanibel Police Department ---ten in all, including three for speeding. (Also, somehow or another the department was the recipient of a brand new typewriter ribbon, which really doesn't have much to do with fighting crime, but certainly makes typing this report a lot easier!)

Various and sundry alarms went off a total of nine times, one of them three times in the same place, and the rest scattered here and there. Four "dark house" checks were intensified, although all proved negative, the am-balance was called upon three times, the SPD rendered assistance of one sort or another six times, and a sail boat and a purse were reported found.

Mopeds (those cute little motorized bicycles) were reported being in the wrong place. They were, and person who rents them was asked to tell customers to keep them off private property. Rentor said he would so advise.

Mopeds reported in wrong place again --- this time, on bike path. GOA (Gone On Arrival).

Complainant came in that two juveniles were firing a gun into a pond. Turned out to be playing with plastic replicas of guns. No shots fired.

Complainant came in about "improperly" parked car. Car moved by time officer arrived on scene.

Complainant stated that nude bathers were not only naked, but were acting in an obscene manner. They were and were duly arrested.

Call came in asking assistance since caller's dog had been hit by a car. When officer arrived, complainant was burying dog, and said it was the dog's fault, as it had run in front of a car.

Dogs reported running around loose. They were, but not in front of officer.

A dog owner reported that someone had mysteriously removed a collar and choke chain, and owner was in fear that someone would report dog as running around loose.

A cottage occupied by a visiting couple was the scene of an early morning B&E, when assailant entered same by means of tearing a hole in the screen door and turning the door handle. Occupants awakened, which effectively stopped the "B" part of the B & E.

Locked and parked car was broken into, with the result that a briefcase (which didn't contain anything of real value) was missing.

Call came in that a house on Captiva had been "stripped --- including the refrigerator." It had been. Investigation continuing.

A fire extinguisher and its bracket were removed from the wall of a rental property.

Those dogs were reported loose again. Officer located them, at apparent place of residence. Since dogs were in emaciated condition, a note, along with some dog food, was left for owner.

A charge of assault was changed to B & E between east-while friends. After a lot of investigation and quite a bit of conversation, $40 involved ended up in rightful owner's possession.

The SPD wants YOU!

Police Chief John P. Butler of the Sanibel Police Department is requesting any man or woman, living on Sanibel or Captiva, over the age of 18 years of age who would be interested in joining the Sanibel Auxiliary Police to see the Department for an application.

The required 86 hours of training for Auxiliary Police Officers will be held at City Hall from 7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. beginning December 6, and will end the latter part of January, 1977.

Auxiliary Police candidates are required to have a high school diploma, copy of their birth certificate, military service record (where applicable) and have a medical examination and successfully pass a job-related physical fitness test administered by the YMCA.

A MOST IMPORTANT MESSAGE

from the ISLAND PUB

For two years the Island Pub has been serving Southwest Floridians the finest Seafood, Prime Rib, and Steaks that money can buy. Throughout this time we have maintained our pledge:

- NEVER to increase prices more than necessary.
- NEVER to compromise the high quality items used in the preparation of our fine menu.

Your continued patronage has been our reward. It is for this reason that we would like you to know:

- IN SPITE of severe inflationary pressures.....
- IN SPITE of the imitation of others who will follow a natural leader.....
- IN SPITE of all the complicated and restrictive pressures of daily living.....
- IN SPITE of the rampant turmoil involved.....

We stand alone, beaten, torn and humbled but we will NEVER compromise NEVER succumb to the outside pressures NEVER betray your trust.

We will NEVER raise the price of our house special the ISLAND PUB ORIGINAL OPEN FACE PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH

It will continue to sell for the very reasonable price of $17.95

($17.95 This in no way reflects our reactions to the recent Presidential Election.)

More thoughts on San-Cap Merger

The following letter pertaining to the proposed merger of Captiva with the City of Sanibel was sent out by the Captiva Civic Association to its membership on November 26.

The merger proposal was initiated this time around by a group of Captiva residents who began to make their idea known during the latter weeks of October.

The Civic Association's current study of the annexation matter was the subject of an article in the November 9 issue of the ISLANDER, which will continue to bring you timely reports on further developments in the oft-discussed undertaking as they arise.

Dear Friends:

"As many of you know, the Board of Governors has agreed to sponsor a study of the advantages and disadvantages of a merger of Captiva Island into the City of Sanibel.

"Our one and only objective is to produce an unbiased report on this subject for the Civic Association will not attempt to persuade island thinking either for or against a proposed merger.

"All registered voters on Captiva will receive a copy of the report and, of course, all members of the Association who vote elsewhere will receive a copy.

"After the report has been distributed, hopefully before the end of February, the Civic Association plans to conduct two separate referendums to ascertain Island sentiment regarding the proposed merger. One referendum will be conducted among Captiva's registered voters and one among those Captiva property owners who vote elsewhere.

"Under Florida Law any concrete action taken towards a merger would have to be initiated by the City of Sanibel - which would not want to consider such a move unless it had reasonable assurance that the registered voters of Captiva would approve it.

"Any proposed merger would require approval by the Sanibel City Council and would then require ratification by the voters of both Sanibel and Captiva.

"Our Study Committee will be composed of Edward Lowry, Chm., assisted by Marty Holtz, Dewitt Jones, Charles Stevens and Barbara Trimble. The Committee is inviting those of you who may wish to do so to pose questions for committee study or to contribute any factual material that will be relevant to their work. Please send your letter to Mr. Edward Lowry, Box 171, Captiva. Your constructive assistance will be most welcome.

Samuel D. Conant,
President"

"Pagan in the Parlor"

"Pagan in the Parlor," by Franklin Lacey which will open the 13th season at the Pirate Playhouse on December 22 is an hilarious farce about two old maid sisters who inherit a South Sea Island native as a stepmother.

The cast of players is a fine one—Mary Blumenauer, Elaine Patton, Liz Harris, Alan Pote, Margaret Krueger, Allan Mainard, Jean Culpepper, William Krueger, Kristin Kohlbranner, Ruth Hunter, as well as Philip Hunter, who also directs.

If you would like to know what happens when you drink Poon-a-su from the Island of Walajun, be on hand for opening night, or the day after Christmas, Dec. 26. The place is the Island's own delightful arena theater, the Pirate Playhouse and tickets are available at the box office or Phone 472-2121.

And remember the dates, Dec. 22 - Dec. 26. Curtain 8:15 p.m.

Current plans for the undertaking include a local news program slated to be broadcast over Channel 2 at 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays, and a feature-type program of at least a half-hour in length to be aired on Fridays at 5:00 p.m.

The Friday program will be geared to a "magazine format," according to production supervisor Don Whitehead, and will include such features as local news, an Island activities calendar, current fishing and weather reports, and interviews with Islanders, among others.

"We would like to begin broadcasting before Christmas," Whitehead told the ISLANDER last week, "although our plans are still largely tentative."

A new broadcasting firm is currently being formed to manage the Island television station, to be financed by more than a dozen Island residents. The firm is expected to retain the Island Reporter to supervise production, with Whitehead to be in charge of programming and Fred Valtin to handle the business and advertising aspects of the venture.

News and editorial notes

City files for rehearing

The long-awaited final decision in the Pointe Santo Development Corporation's suit against the City of Sanibel was at last received in City Hall last week, hearing, as had been anticipated, bleak tidings for the city fathers.

In his final court order on the case, Circuit Judge Wallace Pack decreed that the city is enjoined from interfering with the construction of the project, under the conditions of the original Lee County Building permits.

His ruling, therefore, reaffirms the decision which was handed down in the Sundial Condominium case by declaring the so-called "hip pocket" permits issued for the Island by the Lee County Building Department before the city's incorporation to be valid indefinitely.

The city council is awaiting a full report on the case from City Attorney Neal Bowen before attempting to decide what course of action the city will take in the matter. According to Sanibel Mayor Porter Goss, the council expects to hear Bowen's report at their meeting today in MacKenzie Hall.

"In the meantime," said Goss, "we are keeping our options open and the city attorney has filed a motion requesting a rehearing on the case to make sure that the judge hasn't erred in his decision."

Housing advisory committee formed

The Sanibel City Council last week authorized the formation of an ad hoc Housing Advisory Committee to study the problem of insufficient low and middle income housing in the city.

The council is expected to announce their appointments to the committee at their meeting today in City Hall, with the membership to include Vice Mayor Zee Butler, a member of the city planning commission, and one city official, among others.

Bertram to head CPOOS

The Concerned Property Owners of Sanibel (CPOOS), met last Tuesday evening to elect new officers for the coming year. Results of election are as follows: president - Peter Bertram, vice president - Mary Nix, Secretary - Joyce Blakely, and treasurer - Dr. Zelma Herndon.

Islander to testify

Attorneys involved in preparing the opposition to Atlanta developer Robert Troutman's massive Estuaries project proposed for the shores of Estero Bay began selecting witnesses last week to appear before a Cabinet-appointed hearing examiner at a public hearing slated to begin on January 17, in Fort Myers.

The Lee County Board of Commissioners and the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council are in the forefront of the many groups opposing Troutman's appeal for state approval of his 25,000 unit development proposal, which has twice been denied by the county commission.

Among those selected to testify last week were Islander Peter Larson, who has been retained by the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council to photograph the largely wetland site of the proposed development, and city traffic consultant Robert W. Hubenotte of San Francisco.

Roughly twenty witnesses were chosen by the attorneys last week, among them scientists, professors, planners and officials of both state and local governmental agencies, with witnesses from the private sector to be paid for their services.

Negotiations proceeding

The Sanibel City Council last week voted unanimously to approve an "agreement in principle" with Latham Corporation President Robert L. Johnson to permit the construction of the final 66 units in his King's Crown Condominium project on West Gulf Drive.

With both Johnson and the council's endorsement, the negotiated settlement needs only to successfully navigate the amendment-hearing route outlined in the city's comprehensive land use plan before work can be resumed on the halted Gulfside development.

According to Sanibel Vice-Mayor Zee Butler, who headed up the city team which handled the negotiations, the "agreement in principle" passed by the council last week "would constitute a tacit approval of an amendment to the plan."

The matter must be heard by both the council and the city planning commission under the amendment procedures.

The apparent success of the King's Crown and recent Sundial negotiations has prompted similar requests for settlements out of court from other Island developers caught in a difficult transitional situation with the young city. At their meeting last week, the council decided to lend a willing ear to similar petitions for relief from the developers of the Gumbo Limbo subdivision and from Shell Harbor Inn owner Dave Holtzman.

The council appointed Vice-Mayor Butler, Councilman Duane White, Planning Commissioner George Tenney, the city attorney and the city manager to handle the Gumbo Limbo talks, while Councilmen Francis Bailey and Charles LeBuff were appointed to head up a city team to negotiate the Shell Harbor Inn dispute.

Both developments are in litigation at the present time.

This shimmering surface with its odd angles is the new pool at the Sanibel Beach Club, and (obviously) this is a "before" picture. It is not accompanied by an "after" picture, as the whole thing isn't finished yet. When it is finished, according to Hugh A. Murrill, Jr., president of the Beach Club Management, Inc., it will feature (in addition to its unique semi-star shape) Chatahoochee rock for drainage, trellis, cooking grills, shade areas and a large deck area. It will also probably win an award for something. When you read this, according to Murrill, the pool whirlpool will be working, and hopefully, the pool will be ready for human use around the end of this week... at which point, we'll do an "after" pic!

Frank talk . . .

By Rep. Frank Mann

So often we hear of the red tape and bureaucracy generated by government agencies and how it can take days, weeks and months to have a simple problem resolved. Regrettably, this often is a true and unfortunate situation. Few people, however, are aware of the usually legitimate reasons behind the red tape, and few people are aware of the times the various governments and agency personnel react quickly to solve a problem.

We have recently experienced one of these occasions here in Lee County, where not just one, but several, government agencies worked together for quick reaction to a situation—a situation which could have taken months to even approach.

The problem was the closing of Big Hickory Pass off Bonita Beach. Although the creation of a sand bar blocking the pass does not, at first glimpse, seem to be a crisis, the ramifications of this particular silting action were far reaching.

Big Hickory Pass not only provides access to the Gulf for Bonita fishermen, but also provides tidal flushing action which keeps the back bay area environmentally healthy. Without the Pass, the natural resources of the bay are threatened and the decline of water quality through stagnation could present a serious community problem.

The problem was being watched closely by the head of our local Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) office, Phil Edwards, and DER Environmental Biologist, Kevin Erwin.

An emergency meeting in Tallahassee called by that office brought 13 representatives from the Governor, the State Departments of Environmental Regulation, Transportation, Natural Resources and the Legislature. In a matter of hours, this group approved a plan for cutting a temporary pass through the sand bar, conducting a study to determine what causes the silting action so a permanent solution might be reached, and received a commitment for the necessary State environmental permits. But there was no equipment available to do the job.

Another government then became involved. The Lee

County Commission, within days, approved the use of County dragline and operator to clear the pass, and the Court Attorney worked with the owner of the property which had been extended by the sand bar to get his approval, which was obtained quickly.

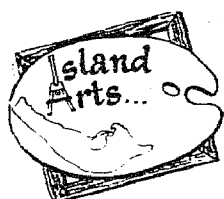

While this was happening, our local DER staff was working with a Federal agency, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, to relay the urgency of the situation so necessary Corps approval might be given without usual waiting periods. When the Corps put their permit in the mail, work was begun and an opening was cut.

All this was achieved in about one week, and a few weeks later a meeting at the University of Florida Coastal Engineering Laboratory in Gainesville produced the specifics of the study to be conducted, through the cooperation of that staff and DER.

Although each of the many people and agencies involved are to be commended, special recognition for initiating, coordinating and expeditious handling of the problem goes to Phil Edwards and Kevin Erwin, who are still working on a permanent solution to the Big Hickory Pass closing.

Heavy trucks stopped

A concerted outcry from Captiva residents last week put an abrupt halt to a convoy of heavy trucks hauling rock material from Cape Coral to the site of the Captiva Erosion Prevention District's terminal groin installation at Redfish Pass.

The Erosion Prevention District's proposal for two rock groins to be installed by the South Seas Plantation developers at the Island's northern end was the subject of a public hearing before the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers this past June. The controversial groins, which comprise only one phase of a three-phase plan evolved by the District to curtail the rapid erosion of Captiva's beaches, was subsequently approved by the Corps, as well as by the Department of Environmental Regulation.

Last Monday, dumptrucks owned by Foster Marine Construction of West Palm Beach, general contractor for the project, began transporting the riprap rock material for the groins from a Cape Coral excavation site to Captiva, where they began stockpiling the material in the vicinity of Timmy's Nook.

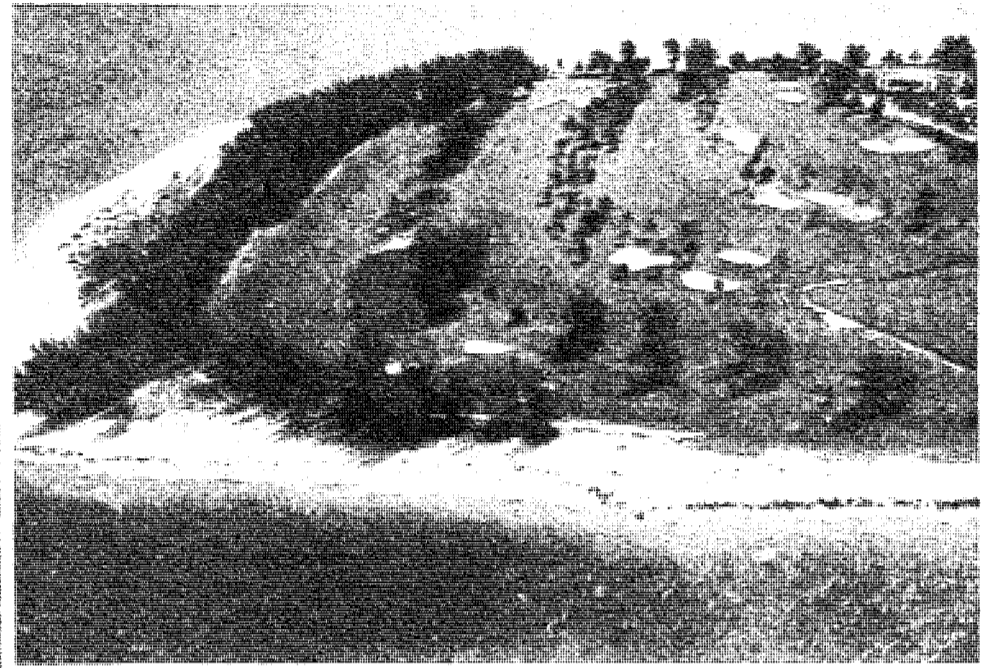

Shortly thereafter, telephones started ringing in the offices of the Erosion Prevention District as Captivans called in to complain about the heavy truck traffic on Island roads and the rapid accumulation of rock by "The Nook."

The District's consulting engineer for the project, Dex Bender of Duane Hall and Associates, was soon called in and by Wednesday the trucks were halted. As the approved plans for the groin construction called for the riprap to be barged in from the mainland rather than hauled by trucks, Bender worked out an arrangement with Foster Marine for the rock to be hauled to Punta Rassa and stockpiled, and from there to be brought to Redfish Pass by barge as needed.

According to Bender, the 400 foot-long terminal groin to be installed in the Pass will require 2,800 tons of rock, while the smaller groin to be placed on the east side of the Island near the mouth of the channel into South Seas Marina will require 740 tons of riprap to be barged in.

Riprap rock goes here . . .

. . . and here; both at South Seas Plantation.

Library readies for sale

With well over 1000 volumes in hand, the book sale which will be one of the features of the sixth annual Sanibel Library Arts and Crafts Fair will give book-lovers a choice of a little bit of everything, according to Helen Leonard, who is running this phase of the affair.

The sale will be held on Friday and Saturday, February 4 and 5 on the grounds of the Sanibel Community Association as part of the annual extravaganza which will also include working demonstrations of various crafts as well as a large display of sealeable items from the studios and shops of Island artists and craftsmen.

The gamut of subject matter of the books ranges from fiction, mysteries and westerns to biography, science and art, with a fair sprinkling of children's books.

According to Mrs. Leonard, the prices will range from "free to $10 per copy." Some of the books are from the Library shelves but most have been donated by Island residents. Additional books are still wanted and if these are delivered to the Library, each copy will be reviewed by the selection committee to determine if it should be placed in circulation or put into the sale, Mrs. Leonard states. The Library storeroom is overflowing with books and the excess are now being stored at the Bank of the Islands.

Applications for participation in the fair are still being received by Co-chairman Mary Ronk, who states that more than thirty Island crafts people have signed on at this time. The art exhibit and sale is being handled by the Sanibel-Captiva Art Association. Helene Sparkes and Phyllis Mount say that a representative exhibit is assured.

Tides courtesy of Priscilla Murphy, Realtor, Inc.

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (north tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every hi tide, and subtract two (2) minutes for every low tide. (NO, we don't know why, but it works. Instructions following are even less sense-sical but, as we stated, they do work.)

For Captiva Island, Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract 1 hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (bay) side, add 1 hour and four (4) minutes for each high tide, and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points on gulf or bay --- guesstimate --- and have good fishing and - or shelling.

Bumper crop of marijuana confiscated

Lee County Sheriff's Department agents successfully closed out a month of investigation and surveillance last Saturday morning when narcotics officials intercepted what Sheriff Frank Wanicka called the largest drug shipment ever to be seized in Southwest Florida.

Working closely with U.S. Customs officials and the U.S. Coast Guard, Wanicka's agents weathered a night-long vigil and a moonlit chase on the waters of the Gulf of Mexico to bring an estimated 5 tons of the illicit weed, marijuana, to justice.

A well-executed raid made about 6.5 miles off of Knapp's Point in the Gulf, early Saturday morning, netted lawmen seven accused smugglers, four boats, and almost 200 sixty-pound bales of pot, destined for sale elsewhere in the United States, Wanicka theorized last weekend.

County narcotics agents had kept the prospective smugglers under surveillance for some time prior to last weekend's arrests after a Fort Myers Beach resident tipped the Department off to the group. The band, it seems, had rented a seclusive canal home on the Beach for an exorbitant fee and remained largely hidden till the evening hours, when they would venture out in a 35-foot deep sea fishing boat to make dry runs of their projective operation, according to Wanicka.

The boat, called "The Calypso," was seized last Saturday as it made its moonlight rendezvous in the Gulf with a 65-foot Texas-based shrimp boat called "The Karen," which was likewise seized in the raid along with two smaller boats, one of which had been scuttled in the operation.

Marijuana

Also confiscated in the raid were one carbine weapon, some radar and other navigational equipment, and an estimated $20,000 in liquor found aboard the shrimp boat. The four confiscated boats are now destined for ownership by the Sheriff's Department, said Wanicka.

The four men aboard the Calypso who were apprehended during the moonlit loading operation last Saturday were identified as Thomas Lee Montgomery, 26, and Tommy Pinckard, 38, of Miami, Gene Murrell Tyner, Jr., 28, of North St. Petersburg, and Marshall Foster, 30, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Three additional men seized with the shrimp boat were identified as Robert Marshall Parr, 32, James Edward Parr, 35, and Larry Wayne Cressell, 29, of Newport, Rhode Island.

All of the men were charged Saturday with smuggling and possession of marijuana and are currently being held in the Lee County Jail on bond of $750,000 each. The bond was set Saturday by Judge James Thompson.

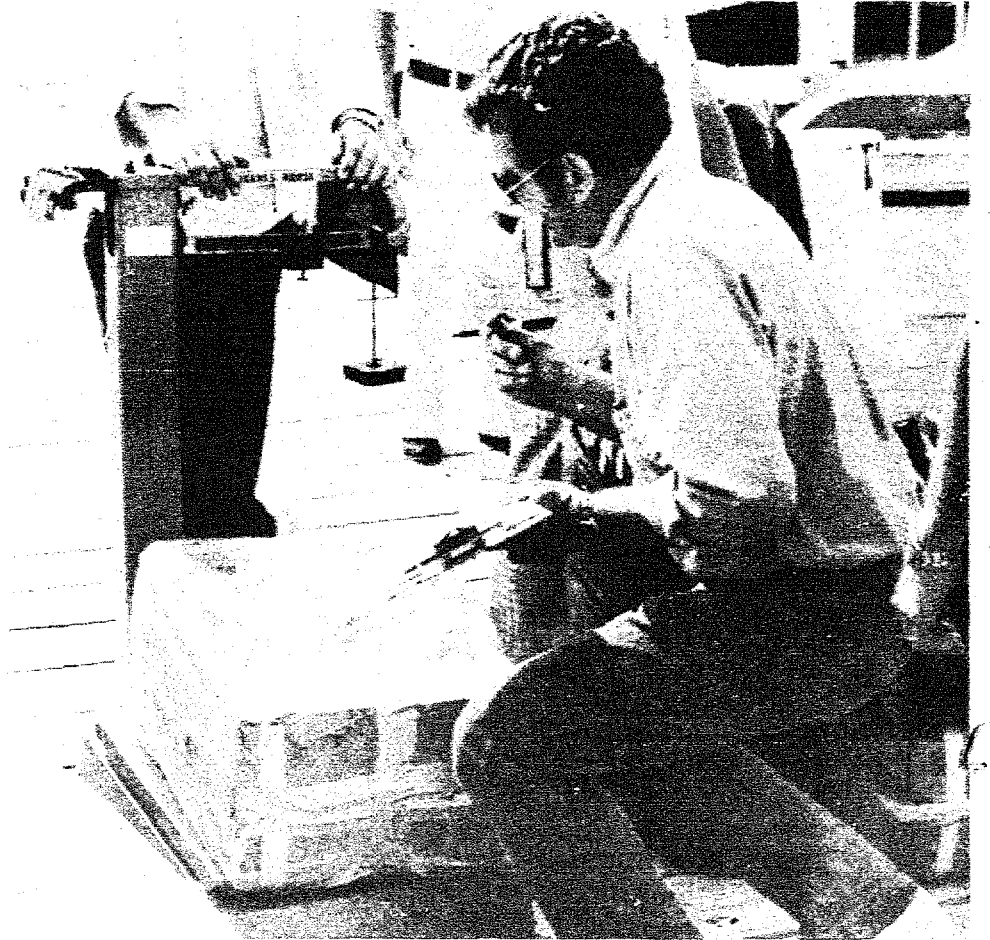

It was a time of jubilation for Wanicka and his men last Saturday morning as the contraband was unloaded from the boats to be weighed at the Coast Guard Station on Fort Myers Beach.

Armed narcotics agents who unloaded the weed onto the dock were literally ankle-deep in pot, due, no doubt, to spillage from the almost 150 plastic-bound bales which were weighed Saturday morning. Agents found numerous other bales floating in the Gulf later in the day, presumably from the scuttling of another boat used in the operation.

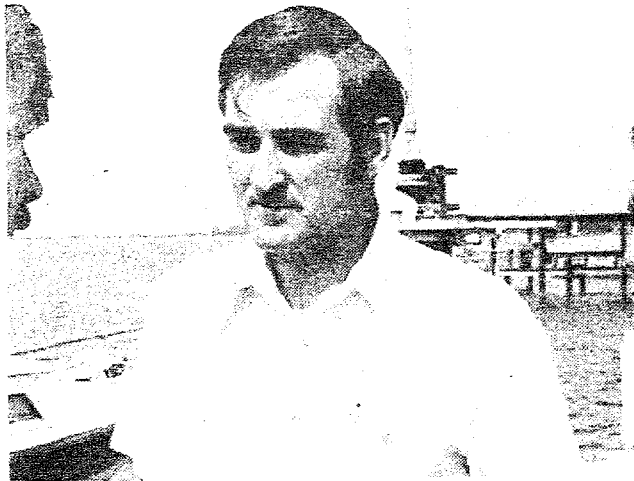

Most of the pot, which was estimated at just under $3 million in market value, will eventually be burned by Sheriff's officials, said Wanicka last weekend.

The Sheriff also claimed that another such smuggling bust would be forthcoming in the weeks ahead because of a similar surveillance operation currently being conducted by the department.

As of the Islander deadline last weekend, the origin and destination of the marijuana were still matters of speculation among the narcotics agents involved in the case.

The illicit weed tipped the scales at 5 tons

St. Luke's men's and boys' choir will be one of the feature attractions of the family celebration of St. Nick's day at St. Michael and All Angels' church at 7 p.m. on Sunday, December 12.

will be a pageant by children of parish families depicting the story of the Three Kings. All Island families with children are invited to attend.

The choir will sing Christmas carols and lessons and will sing an

Benefit Dinner-Dance coming Saturday

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! The Children's Center of the Islands' annual Christmas Benefit Dinner-Dance will be held this year on this coming Saturday, December 11, at the South Seas Plantation on Captiva.

Arranged by a parents committee headed by Bari Fischer, the evening's entertainment will feature the music of The Stardusters for your listening and dancing pleasure.

It should be noted that the annual event is, as always, open to the general public.

With two separate dinner seatings scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. respectively, the cost for this season's annual feasting and fun will be $12.50 per person, with a cash bar to be provided. Those who plan to attend are urged to call 472-1551 well in advance to make reservations for the seating of their choice.

Judging from the event's success in past years, the 1976 annual benefit should provide the Children's Center with ample funding to carry on their worthy scholarship program and other activities for the young of the Islands.

For further information about tickets and reservations, you would do well to call the Center at 472-4538.

vegetation clearance permit on the spot.

Saying that the IWA had already borrowed approximately $767,000 for the project and could not be reimbursed by the FHA until the project is completed, Snell also requested a blanket approval of the proposed construction on the basis of the council's prior consent. He further charged that the city was being run by the Vegetation Committee and asked the council to disregard the committee's recommendation of denial.

Campbell argued against the proposed location for the tank and pointed out that the valuable Joe-wood in the area would not survive transplanting, as Robson had offered to attempt.

"You can't drink Joe-wood and make ice cubes out of it," Snell retorted.

The council as a whole seemed evenly divided on the issue last Tuesday, although they informed the IWA representatives that under no circumstances would they allow the construction to proceed without the group making application for a development permit under the procedures outlined in the plan.

"It's a dilemma," said Councilman Duane White, "but the law is the law." White further urged the IWA to apply immediately for a specific amendment to the CLUP's provisions governing vegetation clearance.

Councilman Francis Bailey, on the other hand, seemed to favor granting the variance. "I'm afraid I'd have to let them build it," he said. "After all, we've committed ourselves."

Councilman Charles LeBuff went on record as being opposed to the project, even though he claimed to have been the one who originally suggested that the IWA consider the site. Noting that Joe-wood had been considered for inclusion in the Fish and Wildlife Service's endangered species list, he concluded, "I can't in good conscience see that rare plant destroyed."

Following an extended round of bickering between Campbell, Robson, and Snell which was only quelled by the mayor's gavel, the three finally agreed to undertake an experimental pilot effort in transplanting one of the Joe-wood plants from the site after Campbell admitted to having seen one successful transplant of the species.

In the meantime, it was decided that the IWA would apply for a specific amendment to the CLUP's provisions governing vegetation clearance in hopes of avoiding further delay.

It was unknown at Tuesday's meeting whether or not additional permits from the Department of Environmental Regulation and the Army Corps of Engineers would be required for the water tank proposal.

Fair is foul, and foul is fair?

by Rich Arthurs

"Fair is foul, and foul is fair.
Hover through fog and filthy air."
Act I, Scene 1

The air was indeed foggy last Monday night (and cold, too!) as the redoubtable Islander art critic ventured as far as Sarasota to see the Ringling Museum of Art Classic Film Festival showing of Roman Polanski's gruesome movie adaptation of the popular Shakespeare tragedy, "MacBeth."

Released in the early 1970's, Polanski's "MacBeth" was billed as its director's attempt to revenge himself upon the violent and decadent society which had produced Charles Manson, the man who was convicted for the brutal cult-murder of Polanski's pregnant wife, actress Sharon Tate.

For a man intent upon artistic revenge of a bizarre ritualistic murder, there is probably no drama in the English language better suited to his purpose than "MacBeth." From the play's second scene until the final curtain, the stage of "MacBeth" is literally inundated with blood, to which the tragedy's famed witch coven provides the perfect literary analogy to the strange legends surrounding Manson's own satanic "family."

It was perhaps these apparent similarities between the theme of the play and what is known of the motives of Sharon Tate's killers that so inspired Polanski's interpretation of "MacBeth," for the film I had the pleasure of seeing last week ranked among the best adaptations of Shakespeare it has been mine to know.

Produced under the aegis of Playboy Magazine, the film suffers little from the dubious artistic talents of Hugh Hefner, and it may have been the skin magnate's one and only contribution to the production that enabled Polanski to go the Bard one better by portraying Lady MacBeth not as Shakespeare's ambitious harridan whose shrewish contumely shames Mac Beth into committing murder, but rather as the young actress Francesca Ann whose beauty seduces her master to murder and madness.

It was most likely at Hefner's insistence that Lady MacBeth's well-known sleep-walking scene in Act V was performed in the nude, and it is precisely this sort of experimentation with her character that lends and added degree of credibility to MacBeth's initial fall from grace.

Polanski even dared to stage MacBeth's fateful visit to the witches' sabbath in Act IV as a nude scene. As his witches are far from attractive, the scene is extraordinarily grotesque, although well in keeping with the macabre tone of the play.

Coupled with Polanski's gorey em-bellishments to the numerous murders in the story, his shocking rendering of the coven scene enables the film to achieve the full horrifying effect of Shakespeare's dramatic exploration of the evil side of man's nature.

In this, Polanski owes much to his special effects technician Ted Samuels for his vivid and realistic depictions of the production's many scenes of bloodshed over and above those envisioned by the playwright. Given the limitations of the Elizabethan theater, however, Shakespeare is not to be blamed for directing his murders to be committed offstage.

Despite his many omissions from the original text of the play, Polanski's "MacBeth" is sure to become one of the all-time classic productions of the Bard's most sanguine tragedy, if one can believe the intrepid ISLANDER art critic--always a matter of some uncertainty!
