day of the iguana...

by betsey mallett

I'll tell you this...

Kids birthdays aren't what they used to be. I mean, presents these days are big time, and a big hassle.

It's all because of my son's tenth birthday this week that Carlos has come to live with us.

Now... I'm a modern parent. I try to be really into the educational bit.

"Offer your kid the best in learning experiences" and all that.

And that's why Carlos is living with me today.

Pete's first choice for his birthday was a bow and arrow. "Violence oriented," I thought, and uttered a resounding "No... you'll have to consider something else."

The twinkle in his eye should have warned me that I was about to be pushed between a rock and a hard place.

"An iguana," he said in a whisper, "My own iguana."

"An iguana," I yelled. "A reptile in my house... never... never... nev..."

Bow and arrow versus iguana.

Pete named him Carlos, and he's a planning commissioners meet with city officials

Mayor Zee Butler and City Manager Bill Nungester met with the Planning Commission Chairman, Ann Winterbotham, and Commission Vice-Chairman Twink Undershill Friday morning, June 16, for the promised three way discussion on priorities for the Planning Commission.

The meeting got off to a good start when Mayor Butler announced that the intent of the gathering was to establish "guidelines for a smoother way to work together" and "to tighten up some lines of communication." When Mrs. Winterbotham interjected, "I thought we were here to discuss priorities," and the meeting progressed along those lines.

The Planning Commission continues to complain that their priorities do not seem to be in line with those enumerated by the city council, and Mrs. Underhill stressed that, "We can't continue working this way and get any planning done."

Planning Commission meetings continue to be over-scheduled with hearings on building and development permits and requests for specific amendments to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, according to Mrs. Winterbotham. On top of that, when the Planning Commission does establish a work load to cover planning priorities, those priorities get lost with the regular housekeeping chores that the Planning Department must accomplish, she continued.

Mrs. Winterbotham suggested that the recent capital improvements budget might be used as a starting place to determine priorities, a suggestion greeted enthusiastically by all concerned.

The Planning Commission has been advised time and again by the Mayor and City Council that it is within their jurisdiction to establish their own agendas, and this point was established again on Friday. The Planning Commission apparently feels that any effort to do this is thwarted when the Planning Department issues legal notices on a hearing, and that item must be scheduled two weeks hence, regardless of whether the Planning Commission wants to hear it at that time or not.

Some discussion of this procedure led the three bodies involved to determine that legal notice of a hearing would not be automatically scheduled at the time the applicant appears before the Planning Department but would have to wait for the Planning Commission to

COTI clarifies position

Monday afternoon, June 12, the Planning Commission held its first discussion on the ordinance proposed by the Committee of the Islands (COTI) to limit growth on the Island to 180 dwelling units per year.

Ever since the rate of growth ordinance was requested on May 30 by Milena Eskew, Chairman of the Task Force initiated by COTI to investigate the need for such an ordinance, questions have arisen about the need for such legislation. Before the need can be established accurate figures as to how many units are currently built, and how many permits have been issued for units yet to be built on the Island must be compiled.

Those accurate figures seem hard to come by. COTI came up with one set of figures, Planning Commissioner Don Manchester came up with another, and Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham decided: "We're just going to have to get one version that everybody agrees on."

COTI held a press conference on Tuesday afternoon, June 13, to "clear up COTI's position," according to spokesman Peter Smith. To answer the charges that COTI is playing a numbers game, Smith, Milena Eskew and William Kimball agreed that the final numbers should come from the City, and that the results of accurate accounting of building on the Island would not substantially affect what COTI feels is a problem with the rate of growth. We feel those numbers will show that growth has not been controlled and thus support our proposal," emphasized Smith.

Definite counts on single and multi-family units are varied, so far. Through "error" the figures on multi-family units were destroyed, but the Island Water Association (IWA) accounts for a total of 5,261 existing water hook-ups on the Island to date, according to figures given to Smith by Joe Winterrode, President of the Board of Directors of the IWA. 1,622 of those are single family hook-ups, and the remaining 3,639 are divided between multi-family (2,600) and motels (about 1,000).

The 180 figure designated as the yearly limit for building is, according to Smith, a "reasonable figure" based on several considerations:

It is in line with the 6 percent per annum growth rate in Lee County and is consistent with the number of permits that City Hall is able to process and inspect weekly. (According to Smith, City Hall is presently processing about three permits a week.) More importantly, Smith explained that the number conforms with the principles of twenty year planning which most major utilities utilize in growth anticipation exercises.

These three COTI spokesmen emphasized that the proposed ordinance favors the single family unit dweller, a measure born from the Island wide poll which indicated that residents have had enough of multi-family building. COTI feels that the final decision on merits of building plans rests with the Planning Commission and City Council. These bodies would evaluate applications for development and building permits perhaps three times a year and these permits would be issued on various merits of design. According to Smith, this procedure would allow the Planning Commission an "opportunity to use a more factual basis for issuing permits." It would allow the Planning Commission to "plan properly," explained Smith.

Two areas presently seeking an increase in density allocations - the Wulfert Point Suit and the Sanibel Bayous Suit - may be granted injunctive relief through the courts, and if that is so, it would be up to the City to decide whether to grant these building projects phased development or immediate build out. According to the COTI proposal, while 180 is the recommended yearly limit, the City might allow more building during one year, if the excess was subtracted from the following year.

Mrs. Eskew commented that the ordinance is meant to fill the gaps left by the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, and would be subject to review, as is the land use plan.

schedule it more conveniently with the framework of available time.

Mayor Butler chastised the Planning Commission concerning the minutes of their meeting, stating that she felt that very often City Council asked applicants to repeat some procedures that they had already accomplished for the Planning Commission, since the minutes of the Commission meeting did not reflect those considerations. Mr. Nungester suggested that the minutes could be more explicit and agreed to emphasize that point to the clerical help at City Hall.

Before the meeting adjourned,

Mayor Butler suggested another three way meeting between the Planning Commission, the Planning Director, and the City Manager to keep track of "who's working on what."

Mrs. Winterbotham indicated that she was pleased with the outcome of the meeting, and felt that they had accomplished as much as they would have if the meeting had been held as an executive session, as originally planned. (Notice of the meeting was dated Tuesday, June 13, so that the public might attend a meeting of general interest to them.) "I think we made some headway," she said. "We'll just have to continue from here and go up another step in the ladder."

doing the sanibel shuffle

It is that time of year again, when those flat grey pancakes, with beady eyes and long barbed tails share our area waters.

The hordes of stingray – or skates – begin breeding in the warm Gulf waters, according to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Rays feed on shellfish and mollusks, food that is plentiful in our area, and draws the rays in large numbers this time of year.

Rays do not attack or bite, according to the service, but the danger lies in the ray's menacing tail.

To avoid getting stung by a ray, bathers are urged to enter the water slowly, shuffling their feet as they do so. The noise and agitation will scare the ray and they will swim away.

The reaction to a ray barb will vary from individual to individual, depending on the tolerance of the person involved.

If you are stung, medical authorities offer the following suggestions:

- soak the wound in hot water for 45 minutes.

- get a tetanus shot.

- keep the wound elevated for 24 hours and notify a doctor if swelling or pain increases.

Stingrays vary in size and appearance. They can weigh up to 10 pounds and have a wing span almost two feet wide, but the average stingray is likely to be about a foot across and weigh only a few pounds.

The only disadvantage to doing the Sanibel shuffle comes when there are many bathers in the water at one time and a stingray that is scooting away from a shuffler down the beach might run into someone a little farther along. Caution is still the best protection.

new trash dump to open

County officials said last week that it would be a minimum of two to three weeks before a trash fill would open in the south part of the county.

Several weeks ago, the closest dump to Sanibel and Captiva Islands closed because its permit expired.

Since that time, Islanders have been forced to travel to the far eastern side of Fort Myers to dump trash, sending the cost of dumping sharply upward.

In an effort to speed up negotiations with Waste Management, Inc., which holds an exclusive trash hauling contract with the county, the Lee County Commission last Wednesday directed Jack Harper, director of the Division of Environmental Protection, to finalize arrangements with the firm upon the approval of the county attorney.

Harper says that he sees no obstacles in the negotiations and hopes the landfill will be operating before July 1.

Harper also told the commission that the present zoning on Pine Ridge Road is agriculture and a variance will be needed to reopen the dump. The dump was closed about four years ago, according to Harper, because it had been filled to capacity. At that time it was a sanitary landfill and the hole had been filled to the level of the ground.

The dump will now be used, however, for non-garbage materials such as construction debris and tree clippings and can be piled on top of the existing dump, Harper said.

executive sessions violate sunshine law

Last week saw the first of what promises to be a series of small meetings between the heads of various city departments or committees and the mayor. The purpose of the meetings is laudable; city officials have determined a need to set priorities in their departments' workloads and get away from situations where everyone has a different concept of what their jobs should be.

All well and good.

What wasn't so well and good was that these meetings were very nearly held "in the dark" out of the sunshine.

When they were first suggested during a city council meeting, the city attorney advised that these meetings could be held "in executive session" without public or press. We disagree. According to our interpretation (and that of an attorney who specializes in the sunshine amendment) — the only sessions allowed to be held that way revolve around wage and labor disputes. That was not the proposed agenda.

Florida statute 286.011 states, in part, that "all meetings of...any municipal corporation or any public political subdivision...at which official acts are to be taken are declared to be public meetings.." And the courts have interpreted the meaning of "Official acts" very broadly.

Anyone participating in such a meeting not open to the public is liable to a second degree mid misdemeanor charge.

All this notwithstanding, it seems to us, that with the current political climate and the attitude of Sanibel residents, the more open our city government is, the more trust will be engendered in our citizens. Such trust should be initiated by those who govern us and not be imposed upon them by a court and we truly hope that this will not be necessary.

conservation center states position

The following is a policy statement adopted by the Board of Directors of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation on June 7, 1978 in which they express their disapproval and opposition to the hard surfacing of the "Ding" Darling Memorial Wildlife Drive:

The Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation, formerly the J. N. "Ding" Darling Memorial Committee, has worked in the past for the creation, expansion and protection of the J. N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge. Having a major interest in the environmental quality and general management of the Wildlife Refuge, the SCCF board of directors opposes hard sufacing of the "Ding" Darling Memorial Wildlife Drive.

The purpose of the drive is to provide access for the passive observation of nature to the otherwise generally inaccessible tidal mangrove community. Users are expected to participate in this recreation at a leisurely pace and speed limits posted reinforce this objective. Hard surfacing of the road in our opinion would detract from the ambiance of current recreational use and encourage faster travel on the road which would further degrade the experience for serious users. Those who truly appreciate the experience offered by the wildlife drive are not as inconvenienced by the irregular sand and shell surface as they would be by the speeding and changes involved in the experience.

Hard surfacing further hs the potential of increasing water pollution by increasing runoff and concentrating hydrocarbon and heavy metal pollutants from automobiles to be flushed into adjacent waters from a paved road by rains.

Funds should perhaps be directed at providing alternative recreation to divert excessive traffic from the wildlife drive. A mangrove boardwalk or additional walking trails might be investigated.

letter to the editor

To the City Council:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I note that COTI is circulating petition to limit growth on Sanibel to 180 units per year; that they plan to submit the favorable results which they expect, to the City Council for implementation.

I do hope that, to be fair, you will: -

1. not implement this limit.

summer programs for kids

"Art in the Out-Of-Doors"

The Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation has announced a children's summer program at the Conservation Center.

"Art in the Out-Of-Doors," an introduction to ecology through creative activities for those youngsters who have completed kindergarten through Grade 2, will meet on Monday and Wednesday mornings July 10 through August 16.

The head teacher will be Cheri Weaver and the program will run from 9:30 a.m. through 11:30 a.m. The charge for the program is $8 per pupil.

Understanding our ecosystem and how people play an important role in it will be the subject of "Hows and Whys of Nature" to be offered to those children who have completed Grade three through five. Starting July 11 and running every Tuesday and Thursday morning through August 17, Mark (Bird) Westall will instruct this program through games, arts, and crafts and nature walks. The program will meet from 9:30 a.m. through 11:30 a.m. and the charge is $8 per pupil.

Environmental Awareness Program

J.N. "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge will be offering an Environmental Awareness Program for children 7-12 years old. The program being initiated on an experimental basis, will be held at the lighthouse on Monday mornings from 9:30 to 11:30 am for the next three weeks (June 19, 26, and July 3rd.). The program will be conducted by Laura Rider, temporary Biological Technician at the refuge.

The purpose of the program is to get young people actively involved in practical conservation. The children will become active "Little Raiders" participating in the campaign against litter while at the same time learning the purpose and need for recycling. They will also explore the beach and mangrove communities plus learn some of the local history regarding the historical Sanibel Lighthouse. At the end of each session all those participating will receive an Environmental Assistance Award.

For more information call 472-1100.

city files suit in Atrium case

In a suit filed in circuit court last week, the City of Sanibel lodged a complaint against owners, including planning commissioner Don Manchester and Mayor Zee Butler, the developer, architect, contractor and financial sources of the Atrium condominium complex.

Because of an apparent error in engineering calculations the condominium was built 24 feet seaward of the coastal construction setback line. The error became public in March.

The defendants include Sanibel Southwest Corporation (also doing business as Sanibel Southwest Developers Corp.) who were the original owners of the project, Vanderbuilt East Corporation, the successor to Sanibel Southwest Corporation, Surety Construction, Frizzell Architects, Ink Engineering, Inc., the Atrium Condominium Association, Inc.

The lending institutions named are First National Bank in Fort Myers, Port Charlotte Bank and Trust Co., Florida Federal Savings and Loan Assoc., and Bank of the Islands.

A site plan, signed by Gordon D. Meiers for Ink Engineering, Inc., showing that the buildings and pool walks and drain field are all located landward of the coastal setback line and a tabular summary, dated March 31, 1977, specifies that the rear setback line that the project would adhere to is the D. N. R. Coastal setback line.

The complaint also cites the Sanibel ordinance which requires the Sanibel building official to require a boundary survey, prepared by a qualified surveyor and authorizes him to accept a sworn affidavit from a registered architect or engineer stating that the plans submitted conform to the requirements and that the responsibility for compliance rests with the architect or engineer.

The city also alleges that certain portions of the condominium, the swimming pool, the drain and the paved walks have been constructed in violation of the CLUP by Surety Construction.

The suit asks that the Court permanently enjoin the use of any of the building that is in violation of the setback line "and requests the court" to remove those portions of the condominium that are located within the coastal setback area. Developers estimate that to do that would cost about $2 million dollars.

The defendants have 30 days to respond to the allegations. The case has been assigned to Judge John R. Schoonover in Lee County Circuit Court.

on the water

by mike fuery

I'm going to tell you a fish story this week, and you be the judge of what the odds of it being true might be.

Last Monday I had a couple from New Jersey and their two young sons out with me fishing for snook in Redfish Pass. Things were slow and as you might know, when the snook aren't biting there's not much to do until they decide to feed. This was one of those mornings. We were drifting the pass when the littlest youngster either got a very good strike or a snag—I never really knew which one it was. The little guy was having trouble with the rod and I took it from him and put the boat in reverse at the same time.

Before I could do a thing, the rod started to slip from my hand and as we all watched, it sank right next to the boat. A man near us tried to snag the lost rod, as did several others after they knew we had lost a $80 rod over the side. No luck. It was the first rod I had ever lost and coupled with a very slow fishing day, things didn't look too great at the end of the morning.

On Wednesday, at 6 a.m., I picked up my charter for the day, a man and his 10-year-old son from Ohio. We had a quick trip to Redfish Pass, and darn if the son didn't latch into a snook on the first drift. It got off, but he soon put the hook into a nice six-pounder. It wasn't long before he had a 10-pounder on the line and into the boat.

Then about mid-morning, after I had related the sad story about my last rod two days before, the little guy got what he thought was a snag. I took the rod and pulled back—whatever was at the other end started to move. I pulled again and it started off the bottom.

Slowly I cranked in the line and up from the bottom came a complete fishing rod and reel. It was rusted, but I couldn't believe it! That took care of the lost rod earlier in the week, I said.

We went back to fishing with the youngster's father getting his first snook, after missing a couple of good strikes.

Ready for this? He gets a "snag" and as he pulls up his line there is my long lost rod and reel—in perfect shape! I told you this was a fish story.

There was no name marked on the unidentified rod and reel and we asked around the marina, but I was the only one who had reported a lost rod in the pass. So father and son took home three snook, a rod and reel and pretty fair fishing story.

You believe all this, don't you?

On another subject, the bait situation is staggering between none and very few when it comes to shrimp. These little fish getters are once again difficult to net, so you might expect short supplies in your favorite marina or bait shop.

If you are coming to the islands from other parts of Florida for the weekend, you might consider getting one of those self contained bait buckets—the kind that circulate the water. Then pick up several dozen shrimp before you leave home.

These hot months often hinder shrimpers and even on good hauls at night, the size of the shrimp are generally smaller than you'll find in the winter.

Pinfish have become difficult to obtain for bait sellers—and just when anglers need them the most too.

fishing news

The shortage of bait shrimp definitely made itself known on this island last week and, as a result, this report is in all probability quite different had that not been the case.

Nevertheless still mighty good catches of trout reported both at the Causeway and Tarpon Bay. The redfish are also being caught in the bay but are primarily in the mangroves. Tarpon is still making some anglers happy out at Knapps Point, with Captiva Pass and Boca Grande most assuredly the other hot shots.

Pinfish are in good supply at Sanibel Marina and shrimp are available at Tarpon Bay Marina among other bait shops.

Some lucky soul caught a 22 lb snook at the Lighthouse Thursday night, perhaps the snook were celebrating an early Fathers day... At any rate-good fishing - good catching.

The Cape Coral Tarpon Hunters Annual Rookey Hunt Picnic was held Sunday, June 18, on the Sanibel Causeway. The only fish of the day was 145 pound, 72 inch tarpon brought in by Virginia Toohey. Miss Toohey was a guest on the boat of Jim Schreck. She is not a member of the Cape Coral Tarpon Hunters Club, but if she were, the fish would have won her First Place in the Ladies Division.

Dear friends,

We love meeting you when you stop into your deli. It is your deli because the menu reflects what you want. The menu boards now number two because you keep requesting new sandwiches and we think they sound good and share them with others.

Lately we have added such gastronomic wonders as the kielbasa reuben and the magnificent pastrami and corned beef reuben.

Your response to our salads has been fantastic. From our Captiva salad we have added Alan's famous Greek salad either vegetarian or meat versions, and now have added a roman fresh vegetable salad. At last count there are more than 17 different salads for either your luncheon, dinner or take home pleasure.

Yes, we sell our salads by the pound and this is the easy way to beat the summer time heat. Be a 'pampered' cook or hostess and fill either your salad bowls or ours with a choice of salads to delight your family or guests.

Remember you can either eat in or take home our foods. Our freezers are always stocked with quiches, crepes and other goodies and our new revolving pastry case will tantalize you with cheesecake and baklava.

Come in and visit... we enjoy you.

NOT FOR MEN ONLY...

Don Case and Oscar Gavin share the coaching responsibilities for the undefeated women's softball team, the Chevron Supremes.

Don Case almost had me convinced that coaching a women's team is little different from a men's.

"I've been coaching baseball for about twenty years," he said. "The thing is with women ... it just takes time. They work hard, and play as hard as they have to to win. It's a little harder to keep their spirits up than with men, but otherwise, no different."

Great, I thought, another round for women's lib. No tears when they lose ... no pouting when they can't play the position they want. Just like I knew it would be, I surmised, proud of my sister sportswomen.

Then Don Case blew it.

Don's wife pitches for the Supremes on occasion. "What if," I queried him, "what if she's not doing such a great job out there on the mound. What do you say to her?"

Don Case looked at me in disbelief. "Are you crazy?" he said softly. "You think I'm going to go out there and say something to her. No way ... I'm smarter than that. I let Oscar talk to her."

Poof ... My mental image of the rugged, take-it-on-the-chin Big League Women Player evaporated.

On the serious side, Don's proud of his team, and really likes coaching women's softball.

"You can see the improvement in them. I don't think playing ball comes naturally to most women. It's a learned thing. It's not the batting that's hard ... everyone likes to get up there and hit ... it's the throwing and the catching that are the two hardest things. No one's afraid to hit the ball ... but sometimes you tend to back off from a fly ball that's coming right at you. That's the hardest thing."

Don feels that women don't like the pressure situations. "They like to get out in front and stay there," he laughed. "They're into it more for the fun of it than the men. They like being out there and getting the exercise. They don't like it when the pressure's on, and boy, when that happens, you can't holler at them. I don't holler. I mean, I make myself heard, sure, but I don't holler at them. I don't lose my temper."

"I don't get any arguments from my team," he continued. "I tell them where they're going to play, and that's it. Women do tend to argue a little more than men over the calls at the home plate ... balls and strikes ..." Case conceded. "Oscar and I have our own strategy, and the girls go along with it."

Case reviewed the lineup of other women's teams on Sanibel. His undefeated Supremes came up against ESI on Sunday - "ESI's a good team," Case assessed. "They've got good hitters and a good infield from last years players. They play a real good game."

"Casa Ybel's a young team, and it takes time to get going. You'll see a lot of improvement in them by the end of the season. Like the Supremes ... we've got experienced players from two teams that disbanded last year ... the Lions and the Cedar Chest."

"The Fillies have got a good coach ... Tom Traucht ... and they're a good hustling team. We've beat the Foxes pretty good this year, but they'll improve, too. We haven't played the Island Girls yet ... They're a new team, too. It should be a good game."

"Women's softball is a lot like Little League ... It's great to see such an improvement in the players over the season."

Hoping to redeem my image of the female player, I asked Case again if his players gave him a lot of grief about what position they'd be playing, or game strategy.

"Nope ... they really don't," Case summed up. "Course," he hedged, "my wife might give me a little static. I let Oscar talk to her."

We're working on it.

Laura Rider, per request was telling us the story of her life one day in the office of the National Wildlife Refuge at Lighthouse Point. During the past year she has become a most welcome addition to the community - in more ways than one.

This young naturalist, who likes to be called Laurie, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, and during her early childhood her parents moved from place to place, ending up near the quaint town of Chagrin Falls, Ohio. Laurie lived in several cities but always preferred the country life because, as she said, "I had an uncontrollable passion for horses." To date, she has lived in all but a half a dozen or so States.

When the Riders finally settled down, more or less, they lived in Russell, just east of Chagrin Falls, famous for being horse country with endless miles of trails. Laurie became the proud owner of two and half horses. (The ½ turned out to be a registered appaloosa colt that she raised and trained).

"Those years were filled with wild and wonderful times," Laurie recalled. "For fourteen years I was an only child and my mother spent lots of time with me. We used to take long walks through the woods and countryside and she would tell me about the flowers and that the singing birds were talking to me." Her education began at that early age. Because of her mother's influence, plus many miles on horseback, Laurie learned to be constantly observant of all the beauty that nature has to offer.

When she was almost 15 years old,

Laurie said that "her mother and father blest her with a little brother, Jayson, and then a little sister, Jeni." Big sister adores them and misses them very much.

In high school Laurie was involved in

Laurie Rider

Student Council, Art Shows, musicals and stage crews. When the time came to pick a college, after much research, she decided to attend Ohio State University - "Harvard on the Hocking" it was called. She started her Zoology major there but soon changed to a program called B.G.S. which was designed for students who wanted a more liberal education with the option to mix several interests in one major. This allowed her to concentrate on Botany, Geology, and Outdoor Education and Recreation.

Laurie graduated from Ohio State in 1976, having spent summers that expanded her outdoors awareness by hiking, backpacking, camping and birding in various mountainous areas in the West. For almost a year after graduating she kept looking for work with Ohio's Department of Natural Resources but had no success in finding a job.

During this time Laurie came to Sanibel to stay briefly with Richard and Kathie Rider; the parents who were inveterate campers who had spent their vacations looking for Islands. They discovered their favorite Island in 1973 and after one visit with them, Laurie returned to Ohio with Sanibel sand in her shoes - "Never to be the same again."

That is how the biggest adventure of Laurie's life, so far, started.

Dick Workman had taken Laurie under his wing during one of her subsequent visits to Sanibel and had given her great inspiration by passing on some names and addresses of people and places where she might find work in the field of her greatest interest.

The young adventurer withdrew her savings in Ohio and came to our Island to live, for keeps - she hopes. After seven moves and doing all kinds of odd jobs, Lady Luck caught up with Laura Rider. Dick Workman received a grant for being the administrative director of Science and Education at the new Conservation Center last year and started looking for personnel to help plan programs, etc.

Laurie found out that she was eligible for a CETA (Comprehensive and Training Act) job and started working at the Center under Dick's direction; a jack-of-all-trades position. She was the first CETA funded employee, soon joined by Mark Westhall and Norma Jeanne Bird, who are still working at the Center.

An opportunity for advancement and a different job came along and Laurie became a member of the staff at J. N. "Ding" Darling Refuge office at the Lighthouse as a temporary biological technician under the direction of the chief manager, Del Pierce, last winter. She has been taking visitors on walking tours of the Wildlife Drive as well as answering the busy telephone and doing necessary paperwork at the front desk.

Apparently the difference between the Wildlife Refuge and the Conservation Center is not common knowledge - according to the many questions asked by local and out of state visitors.

"The National Wildlife Refuge is federally funded by the Department of the Interior, U. S. Fish and WILDLIFE Department," the young information specialist explained. "The Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation is a privately supported, non-profit Corporation dedicated to preserving the wetlands and many other preservation projects. Carol Davenport is the director of volunteers and new members are always welcome. The Foundation's budget relies primarily on donations from members and a few small grants. It is really, an unofficial guardian of our environment. "Of course we work side by side but not hand-in-hand."

At present Laurie is living with a friend on a 36' Chriscraft cabin cruiser built in 1931, the Suzan-Tou, moored at the Sanibel Marina. A bit cramped, she admits, but Laurie loves being on the water. She goes sailing with friends as often as possible - and the rent does not eat up all of her modest paycheck.

The young naturalists mentioned have been doing a very good, dedicated job and of course want to keep on working right where they are. The sad part of it is their involvement with the red tape connected with being under the thumb of federal guidelines. CETA has become unreliable and so has federal funding. Their jobs are threatened; their futures uncertain at this point.

"Well, Laurie said, rather wistfully, at the end of our interview, "hope springs eternal ..."

Did she know that she was quoting the English poet, Alexander Pope? (1688-1744. We had to look it up ourselves to be sure ...). His "Essay on Man," not written last week, included the familiar phrase: "Hope springs eternal in the human breast."

It's not a bad idea to keep reminding oneself of that line, these days.

Kiwanis

Kiwanian Curt Reinhart graciously served as speaker at the June 14th meeting of the local Kiwanis. Curt gave a very informative look at the city's sign ordinance and its effects. A general discussion followed revolving about the lack of school bus stop warning signs and the inherent dangers created for the children of Sanibel.

Frank Joyce reported that over 400 entries were received for the 1979 Kiwanis photo calendar. Following a three hour judging session, three have been chosen and a list of winning photographers will be published soon. Tides courtesy of THE REAL EEL - Herb (Skip) Purdy.

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (north tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every hi-tide, subtract two (2) minutes for every low tide. (NO, we don't know why, but it works. Instructions following are even less sense-sical but as we stated, they do work.)

For Captiva Island, Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract 1 hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four (4) minutes for each high tide, and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points on gulf or bay guesstimate ... and have good fishing and/or shelling.

11th Annual Police Olympics

Florida's central city, Orlando, will be the site of the 11th Annual Florida Police Olympics on June 21 and three members of the Sanibel Police Department will be matching their skills against some of the 1,000 applicants who will also attend the four days of events.

59 agencies from across the state will compete in every conceivable sporting event - from handball to golf - and while the number of this year's participants is almost double last year, the number of women competing is still slight: only sixty out of the total 1,000.

Sanibel Policeman Lew Phillips will participate in the Karate competition in the black belt division. There are only about eleven entrants in this area.

Sergeant Bill Trefny and Dick Noon will go up against 100 other swimmers in the senior and intermediate divisions. Trefny will swim the fifty and 100 yard free style in the senior division and Noon will compete in the 50 yard free style, breast stroke and butterfly.

"We've seen the times that won it last year, and we think we've got a good chance to place in the competition," said Noon.

Winners of the first, second or third place in the state competition will attend the National Police Olympics in San Diego the latter part of August.

police report

People continue to hope for the best ... even in a world filled with petty crimes and major felonies.

A couple at Sanibel Arms West called the Sanibel Police Department (SPD) around midnight on the fourteenth to report someone tampering with a car in the parking lot. SPD investigated, and found the car ... with the right front tire flat and laying on the ground, along with the hub caps and lug nuts. No one was around, and SPD left the scent, assuming whoever was around would fix the flat and go on their business. The couple made another call to the police about a half hour later and arriving on the scene, SPD found the right front tire missing ... and the left front tire ... and the right rear one! Wonder why they left the fourth tire. Didn't want it to look suspicious, I guess.

Also on the fourteenth, SPD was told to be on the lookout for a rented Ryder truck which was believed to have been involved in a drug run on Captiva. SPD, ever alert, spotted the Ryder truck in the parking lot of the Island Bake Shop, and caught the "smugglers" red-handed ... only they turned out to be a family from Pennsylvania in the midst of moving to the Islands. Bet they rent a U-Haul-It the next time they move to Sanibel!

Like a scene from a situation comedy, Paul Stahlin's daughter, Heather, was a captive in her own home. For a while, anyway. Heather got her finger stuck in the sink drain. Sanibel Fire Department removed it ... her finger, not the drain ... and Heather has one of those "Did-I-ever-tell-you-about-the-time-I" stories to share with her children.

A man at Beachview Cottage reported three suspicious youths hanging around, and went to Police headquarters to leaf through mug shots to identify them. He didn't come up with any familiar faces, and decided the best way to handle it would be to try and take pictures of the threesome the next time he saw them around. Wonder how he'll approach them ... "Pardon me, I've noticed you skulking around and wonder if you'd mind if I just take your pictures to show the police? That's right ... a little more profile, please" hummmm!

That stalwart observer of the Florida alligator, George Campbell, had Lorraine Abrams of the West Wind Inn

call the SPD and report an alligator in the Gulf. SPD responded to the call and dispersed the sizable crowd that had gathered, but did not "disperse" the alligator. Mr. Campbell was not available for comment on whether or not his telephone dialing finger is in a cast, as reported by a reliable source, so that he is unable to report these sightings himself.

Sanibel medics and fire department responded to a total of seven calls during the last week.

Busy visitors to the Island continue to report thefts. Last week accounted for several lost rings and wallets, and ... one very unusual item.

A man's watch of considerable worth was stolen near the Lighthouse. A unique timepiece, it chimes every twenty minutes and a small reporter figure with pencil and notebook pops out of the center and sings ... "I live in Cape Coral and love it." The theft of this unique watch was reported by a Fred Cull. That's C-U-L-L, as in Publisher of the Islander. Oh, yeah right, Chief.

fire district passes new budget

At a meeting last Monday, the Sanibel Fire Control District approved a budget of $330,900 for the upcoming 1978-79 fiscal year. This represents a drop of over $50,000 from the District's current budget.

The next step is to submit the budget to the Board of Lee County Commissioners for their review and approval. The budget goes into effect on October 1, 1978.

The major capital expense in the new budget includes $85,000 for the purchase of a new pumper. Another $55,000 was allocated for the purchase of fire hydrants to be bought and installed by the Island Water Association. The Sanibel Fire Control District is comprised of Mark McClintock, Floyd Wakefield and Ray Carner.

food for thought

By JEANNETTE BRANIN
Copley News Service

Luxury resorts and "fat farms" charge rates that are sometimes eyebrow-lifting, to say nothing of hair-raising, to put the desperate on a vegetarian diet and daily exercise regime.

You can do this at no added expense in your own home. You can enroll in free exercise classes. You can give yourself a "new you". Ask about exercise classes. Get to know the produce department of your food market far better than the baked goods section.

Learn to love vegetables and fruits by learning delicious ways to prepare them. Here are some of those ways.

DEVEILED SQUASH

1 medium butternut squash
2 cans (4½ ozs. each) deviled ham
1 cup prepared stuffing mix
Two-thirds cup crushed pineapple, drained
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. prepared mustard

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Cut squash in half lengthwise and clean out seeds. Place squash skin side up in a baking dish; pour in water to ½ inch. Bake 30 minutes; turn over and continue baking for another 30 minutes. Hollow out the squash, leaving skin intact. Mash squash in a bowl with the remaining ingredients. Mix well and return mixture to shells. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Serves four.

BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

6 stalks broccoli
4 tbsps. butter
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tbsps. flour
½ cup water
1 cup grated natural Cheddar cheese
3 eggs, well beaten
½ cup cracker crumbs or bread crumbs

Wash broccoli and peel heavy stems. Cut into servig-sized lengths. Place in a well-greased 1½-quart casserole. In a large sauce-pan, melt two tablespoons of the butter. Add onion and cook over low heat until soft. Remove from heat and add flour, mixing well. Add water and cheese gradually, stirring well after each addition. Cook over medium heat until bubbly and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in beaten eggs. Pour this mixture over broccoli in the casserole. Melt remaining two tablespoons of butter, stir in bread or cracker crumbs and sprinkle them over the broccoli. Bake at 325 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves six.

QUICK HERBED TOMATOES

2 tbsps. margarine or butter
¼ cup finely chopped onion
4 cups (2 can, 1 lb. each) peeled tomatoes
1 tbsps. brown sugar
¾ tsp. salt
1½ cups herb-seasoned croutons

Melt margarine or butter in large saucepan over low heat. Add onion; cook, stirring frequently, until onion is tender but not browned. Stir in tomatoes, sugar and salt, cutting tomatoes into pieces with a spoon. Cook over medium heat about 10 minutes until thoroughly heated, stirring occasionally. Pour hot tomato mixture into individual vegetable dishes. Sprinkle croutons over tomatoes (croutons may be crisped in margarine or butter, if desired). Serve immediately. Makes eight ½-cup servings.

CARIBBEAN FRUIT AND CHEESE SALAD RING

1 small orange, peeled and sectioned, or ½ cup canned mandarin orange sections
1 medium banana, diced
½ cup pineapple chunks canned in juice (not syrup)
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 cups water
2 tbsps. orange extract
1 tsp. coconut extract
2 to 3 drops yellow food coloring
Lettuce
One and one-third cups cottage cheese
Sprig of mint

Combine drained orange sections, banana and drained pineapple and arrange in a ring mold. In a saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over one cup of water to soften. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in remaining water, extracts, and color as desired. Pour over fruit in mold and chill. Unmold on bed of lettuce. Fill center of ring with cottage cheese and garnish with sprig of mint. Makes four servings.

Microwave cooking

Microwave tip:

Lest you share the opinion of many that a microwave oven is the world's greatest potato baker, we have new information for you.

Try taking an ear of corn on the cob, husk, silk and all, and putting it in your microwave for about three to four minutes.

Remove from oven, grab with a pot holder and peel the husk and silk off. Slather with butter. Bet you'll become more addicted to this than some people do to baked potatoes.

A new microwave item on the market is a popcorn maker. Priced at about $30, it is available at many area Amana dealers.

day of the iguana . . . from page one good eighteen inches longer than I had hoped he'd be. A lot of it is tail, but more of it's solid body in a beautiful shade of iridescent green.

Pretty non-committal about his new home, Carlos munches fruit cocktail and poinciana flowers from his $2.35 "guaranteed sterilized - won't introduce infection to your pet's habitat" tree limb.

"Don't take him out," I warned Peter. "Don't take him out until he's used to us and his new home."

About fifteen minutes later Carlos emerged from his cage on Peter's arm, calmly munching a leaf. Since then, he travels placidly from room to room, on a shoulder, or an arm.

Not on my shoulder, you understand, although Pete urges me to hold him.

I am content to look and consider how much bigger he can get before he takes over the house.

A handy pamphlet informs me that Carlos can reach a fully grown stature of six feet. I wish in the same paragraph the author would advise me as to the chances of Carlos living long enough to reach that size. Instead, wise author suggests to me in my panic that I might want to opt for letting Carlos run loose in the house. Apparently if I provide him with a constant food and water area, he'll be happy to fit right into the household. I suppose visitors to my home would drop off for a while, until they got used to seeing Carlos lounging on the sofa or drooping from the drapes. Author of "Iguana as Pets" also suggests I adapt a parakeet leash to fit Carlos and walk him for exercise.

I hope you begin to see what I mean

Iguanas are reptiles. Carlos is a green Iguana, "iguana iguana," and comes from northern South America. (You can see why we couldn't name him Henry). This lizard may grow to a length of six feet, although such large specimens are rarely found, because they are eaten regularly by the people who live in the animals homeland. The tail is the only part that is eaten and tastes much like roast chicken, they say.

Young iguanos hatch in May and are about eight inches in length at hatching. Their color is very bright green which fades as they grow to adulthood.

There is a large row of flexible spines which start at the base of the head and run the entire length of the dorsal line. The iguana also has a large flap of skin hanging from his chin, called a dewlap, which is used to show off before females or bluff adversaries or encroaching males.

The extremely long tail usually accounts for about three fifths of the total body length and is a powerful weapon of defense for larger iguanas. Its whiplike action can break a limb of another animal or send it bruised and scurrying for cover.

Iguanas are vegetarians. Carlos is happy with any leafy item and well-drained fruit cocktail. Iguanas must have water ... whether they drink it or not is questionable, but they do need it for bathing and soaking.

Carlos is presently housed in a ten gallon aquarium. The fact that his tail is cramped in this space already bothers me. I foresee housing problems in the near future. I suppose we could stake him in the back yard ... next to our daughter Jenni's rabbit, and let him play with the seven cats who also share out home. Or let him run loose in the house (over my dead body).

But I am relatively certain that my only hope of salvation lies in finding an itinerant South American native, passing through town, who might like to sample some "down-home" native cooking....Roast chicken, you say.

Carlos, your days are numbered. I'll give you 'til Peter's eleventh birthday

2. When COTI is then forced to place this limitation to a vote, you will insist that all Sanibel land owners be positively notified and be permitted to vote.

I ask this because I fully expect a majority of the established people on this Island to vote for such a restriction upon the unestablished people who own land on Sanibel.

It has become obvious to all of us (especially the guilty ones) that most people already settled comfortable on the island - even if only for a year or two - possess the completely selfish attitude of, "I've got mine - pull up the ladder."

Going through all of these motions of petitions and voting is a waste of public time if it is all limited to registered voters, since it is a foregone conclusion that the majority of those settled on an island often defined as "a body of land entirely surrounded by unselfish people" - will vote to keep the island all to themselves - and to hell with those who own land and are having it made useless.

Sincerely yours,

Jim Foley: reporter

A hit man goes to Washington

Big Lou sat on the bumper of his Rolls Royce polishing the barrel of a new .45 automatic with the tip of his silk, polka dot tie. Beside him, on the hood, lay a pamphlet on "How to Give Your New Piece a Silken Shine" before using. Suddenly, he stopped rubbing the rod and pointed it at a scrawny scrimp of a man who sat crumpled against a tree reading a Little Orphan Annie comic book.

"You know, Snipe," Big Lou said, shaking the gun like a finger, "I'm quitting the rackets. There just ain't no future in killing no more. It's a dead end."

"You, the best hit man in the business quit! No way. You can't, and they won't let you," Snipe replied in a low monotone.

"It don't pay no more. Last year, I make a hundred gees for four hits and I split almost 50-50 with the government."

"Didn't you have any deductions?"

"I tried deducting for taking a course on 'How-to-Become-a-Successful Hit Man,' but they wouldn't allow it. The day of the hit man is on the way out. Soon, I'll be a hasbeen. So, I quit while I'm on top."

"What ya gonna do for a living, Big Lou?" Snipe asked without looking up from Orphan Annie.

"Politics, Snipe. Politics. That's the only crime that pays these days. There's all kinds of opportunities, too. Corruption, burglary, bribery. A guy can really make something of himself."

"Besides, I get all kinds of deductions. I can put my pals' relatives and girl friends on the payroll. I can even give away canals," Big Lou said.

"Yeah," Snipe agreed, excitedly. "Gee, Lou, you can bug peoples phones, spy on countries, and tell all kinds of lies. Hey, maybe you can use the FBI and the CIA to keep the boys from putting out a contract on you after you quit the rackets."

"Sure, Snipe," Big Lou continued, "and if I get caught, I'll get a little time in one of those fancy prisons to write a book. I'll call it 'A Hit Man Goes to Washington'. I'll get rich just from the book and TV interviews."

"Maybe they'll give you a pardon and exile you to a California castle with a big pension," Snipe added.

"Napoleon should have had it so good."

"I remember him. He's the guy that used to scratch his stomach. But, Lou, don't you need a college education to get into politics?" Snipe asked.

"Naw. You don't need college no more. Now you can go straight into crime," Big Lou answered.

Snipe put down Little Orphan Annie, squeezed his eyes together in thought and turned toward Big Lou.

"Your name ain't exactly a household word. How you gonna get votes?"

"We got a protection business, right! So, from now on our customers buy protection with their votes, not money. And, we call in all I.O.U.'s. We'll get a vote for every dollar owed us," Big Lou replied.

"But, you need a campaign. You gotta make speeches, and kiss babies."

"Promises, Snipe, promises. That's the ticket. I'll promise everybody something. Whatever they want. I'll give them."

"That costs a lot of money, Lou."

"Sure, but it's taxpayers money, not mine."

"What about that Jarvis guy in California who led the taxpayer revolt. He ain't gonna like all this giveaways. Maybe, you should make one more before you quit the rackets," Snipe advised.

"I've made my last hit," Lou said, putting the .45 in his shoulder holster. "From now on, it's politics all the way."

"Gee, Lou, maybe you'll get to be president."

"Yeah, Snipe," Big Lou agreed. "If I'm tricky enough."
