City Manager Apparent Target of City Hall Probe

Jean Nichols . . .

Administrative Assistant to Planners

William Nungester . . .
City Manager

By Gwen Stevenson and John Kane

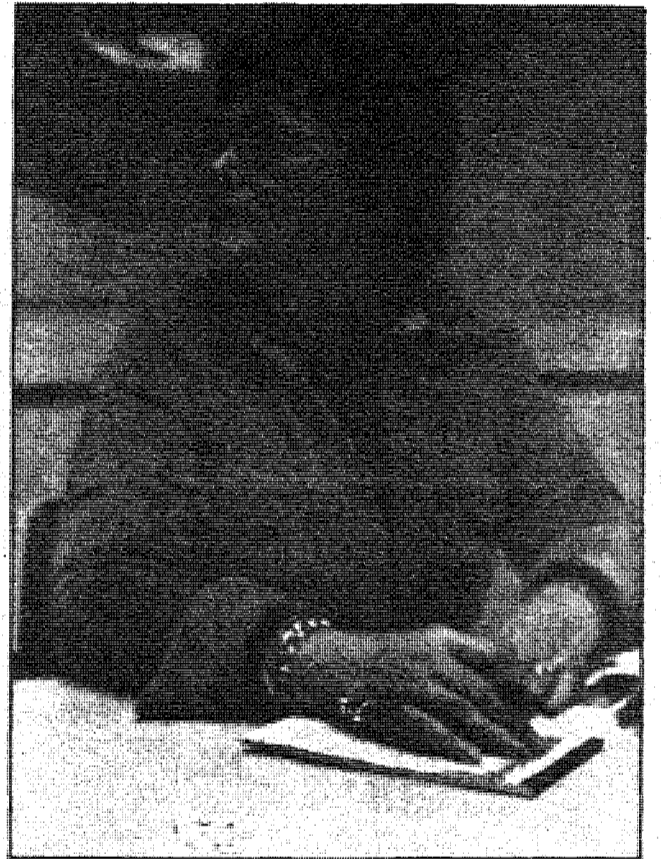

The office of the city manager and the building department of Sanibel have come under close scrutiny lately as the State Attorney's office and the Lee County Sheriff's Department (LCSO) continue their investigation into allegations made by two former city employees concerning questionable practices by some of the island's highest officials.

Sources close to the investigation report that authorities are attempting to discover whether or not, in his capacity as city manager, Bill Nungester may have misused his office by usurping the functions of the building official. Misuse of public office is, under Florida law, a felony.

To be a building official, according to the Southern Standard Building Code, a person must "have at least, 10 years experience or the equivalent as an architect, engineer, building inspector, building contractor or supervisor of building construction or any combination of these for five years in which he shall have been in responsible charge of work.

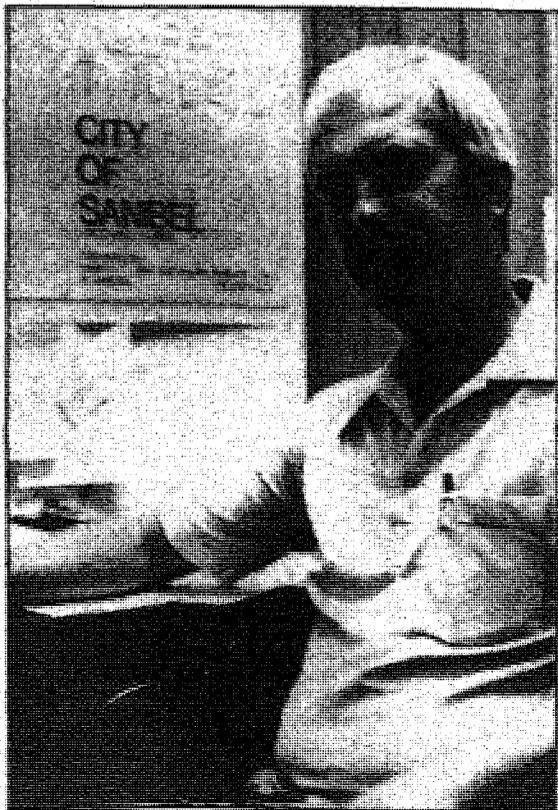

Last Wednesday, the Sheriff's office subpoenaed files on three projects from the building department and LCSO Capt. Don Schmidt interviewed five

Workshop Discusses COTI

City Council met with members of the Planning Commission on Tuesday, June 22, to discuss the ordinance proposed by the Committee of the Islands (COTI) which would limit growth on Sanibel Island to 180 dwelling units per year.

While the Planning Commission has yet to issue a formal recommendation on the proposal to Council, Commission members individually discussed their reactions to COTI's proposed legislation.

The Planning Commission as a whole agreed with Don Manchester when he stated that the figures on growth on the Island are accurate, and that the prime concern of the Planning Commission now becomes how to administer justly a growth limitation...The Planning Commission feels that there are certain aspects of the proposed ordinance that are discriminatory. As COTI proposes, the 180 units which would receive permits would be those plans which best comply with elements of the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, and in addition to that, those plans which also merit consideration through various elements of design. It is that consideration which gives Planning Commission pause. Since they are the body which initially recommends approval of development and building permits, it would be up to them to review plans submitted for permitting. Commissioner Betty Robinson expressed the need for leeway in individual thinking, and indicated that she feels that as the proposal stands, there will be an advantage for the person who has the money to pay for design. Urging that there is a need for a heterogeneous mixture on the Island, Commissioners Robinson, Fenton and Workman echoed Mrs. Robinsons sentiments.

Day trippers surfaced in the workshop session, with the statement by Twink Underhill that she feels the short time visitor to the Island is an "enormous problem," which has taxed the public services.

Mayor Butler also agreed that there is a great concern or "who is going to have what say over what goes on the ground in Sanibel" and City Council members reiterated the Planners concern for the difficulties in administering fairly the COTI proposal.

Mayor Butler indicated that COTI has done a "great service" to the City with its focus on the major concern of all Sanibel residents. She emphasized her concern for the multi-family dwelling. The condominium units which are a plague to many Island residents and home to a great many others. "They don't look like Sanibel, she said, and added that she felt it was not rate for growth that is a problem on the Island, but rather that multi-family structures have out-paced the rest of growth on the Island.

Present at the meeting was Jim Humphries, who is the legal representative for the Committee of the Islands. Mr. Humphries was invited by Mayor Butler to answer question from the Planning Commission and Council on implementing the intricacies of the COTI proposal.

Multi-Family Dwellings ... Should Voters Decide?

In City Council Session tomorrow, July 5, Council members will consider an ordinance which would amend the City Charter and require that a development permit may be granted to a developer of a multi-family unit, but that that permit would not become effective until a referendum vote by residents of the Island was held with resulting majority affirmative action by those same voters.

Mayor Butler presented the resolution to the City Charter on Tuesday, June 22, at a workshop meeting between the Planning Commission and City Council, for consideration in anticipation of Wednesday's Council meeting.

"This amendment would be another way to find a solution to what is a real concern to Sanibel Islanders," Mayor Butler responded when asked about the proposal. "Based on the COTI questionnaire, the results of that survey seem to indicate to me that residents feel the problem on the island is the multi-family dwelling. This (resolution) would be another interpretation of that problem." When asked if the resolution on multi-family dwelling was an alternate to the COTI proposal, Mayor Butler replied:

"We're not trying to second guess COTI. This is another way to find a solution to what is a real concern to the residents of Sanibel.

Although Mrs. Butler has placed the multi-family resolution on the Wednesday agenda at the request of City Attorney Neal Bowen, she denied that she was the one that asked that the resolution be drawn up. "I think Porter (Goss) had some discussion with Neal (Bowen) and Fred (Bosselman) on that," she replied, and Neal Bowen affirmed that Porter Goss was the one who requested that the resolution be drafted. "I can assure you that this was a singular effort on Mr. Goss's part," added Bowen, when asked if Goss had worked with other Councilmen on the resolution.

The amendment to the City Charter would allow for a referendum vote on development permits at least once, and possibly twice a year, but initial reaction to the proposal was guarded. The Comprehensive Land Use Plan currently allows that a development permit will be granted if all the requirements of the plan are met. This amendment to the City Charter would supercede this element of the plan, and would be the operative law of the City in matters concerning development permits.

IWA Presents $$$ to City

At the Sanibel City Council Meeting, tomorrow, Wednesday, July 5, 1978, Mr. Joseph G. Winterrowd, President of The Island Water Association, (IWA), will present a $65,250 check to the city in payment of overweight charges for fill needed to construct the new reverse osmosis plant and storage tanks. This payment will be the first of several payments which will eventually exceed $100,000 before the project is completed next winter. According to City Manager Bill Nungester, Manager, this IWA payment slightly exceeds all the revenue received from overweight charges since the commencement of the program.

Mr. Winterrowd will reiterate the IWA's position that the overweight charges are an equitable means to solve the problem of road deterioration by heavy construction vehicles. He hopes the city will promptly use the money to solve some of the current road problems. He will also ask the city to exercise a little more vigilance in policing the program. "Too many overweight trucks are entering the island early in the morning and late at night when the weight station is closed," Winterrowd said last week.

"I understand how people can feel that way," commented city Manager Bill Nungester. "We know there are trucks coming in after hours, but we have that situation under control. The toll collectors call us when there is an overweight truck on the Island and the officer on duty will check the truck.

people Friday as the investigation continues. The projects under examination included Golden Beach duplexes on South Winds Drive, Joey's Restaurant on Periwinkle Way and a West Gulf Drive quadruplex.

According to these sources each project had inspection problems and each involved a situation where the decision of the building inspector was either overturned by the building official or he was reportedly required, under threat of termination, to comply with a decision with which he did not agree. The commercial inspector at the time was Howard Barham. Barham would not confirm or deny whether or not he was one of the two former city employees allegedly responsible for making the charges.

John Goode, building official at the time for the City of Sanibel, emphatically denies that he ever threatened the job of a building inspector. "I had no reason to," Goode said, "the building inspector worked for me. If I didn't like something, I had the right to do something different." Goode was one of five people subpoenaed last Friday by the LESO.

One of the two former employees, a lifelong Florida resident, told the Islander Friday that Nungester repeatedly violated procedure for several building projects on Sanibel by ignoring the recommendations of the building director and building inspector.

This former employee also told of many other possibly questionable activities among what he called a "clique of community leaders" including City Council members, city employees and other involved in the building industry on Sanibel. Because some of the allegations made could not immediately be corroborated by other sources, the Islander is unable to print the charges completely.

Files subpoenaed by the state attorney's office have been tampered with and several correspondences that at one time were included in those files are now gone.

Sanibel Public Works Director Gary Price confirmed that the files for the Golden Beach duplexes and the West Gulf Drive quadruplex were arranged in a haphazard fashion, but the file for Joey's restaurant appeared in order.

With Joey's Restaurant, there was a problem with the restrooms not meeting the handicap requirements, but modifications were requested and made, according to Nungester. Joey's is owned by Robert Hollopeter, Stan Johnson and Joe Underriter and was constructed by Kenleen, Inc.

The source alleges that Robert Hollopeter appeared in Nungester's office after building inspector Howard Barham had refused to issue Joey's Restaurant a final certificate of occupancy because of apparent violations of laws regarding provisions necessary to accommodate the handicapped.

Hollopeter was told by Nungester at that time he would "put pressure on then Building Official John Goode," the source said.

Goode told the ISLANDER that the allegation was patently incorrect. "I was never ordered to do anything illegal by Bill Nungester."

Hollopeter denies ever meeting with Nungester to discuss the problem and said Friday that all the handicapped provisions had subsequently been met.

According to the other former city employee who is cooperating with the state attorney's office, Nungester told Goode to issue the certificate of occupancy after Hollopeter's visit. Goode allegedly then directed the order to Barham and reportedly told him that "politics were involved" and his job as building inspector was in jeopardy if the certificate of occupancy was not issued. Barham then issued a final permit and labeled the project conformance to building standards as "marginal."

Hollopeter said the only problem of which he was aware concerning the restaurant was the city's claim that there was too much vegetation removed at the building site during the construction of the restaurant.

Golden Beach duplexes, developed by Construction Managers, Inc. had a problem when neighbours complained that one of the units was occupied before the building had a permanent certificate of occupancy. The buildings were completed, carpeted and furnished, according to the Squires, but there had been an inadvertent omission of gutters and downspouts. After Squires posted a $1,000 bond with the city to ensure the installation of the gutters and downspouts, he was issued a temporary certificate of occupancy by Frank O'Neil, who was at that time the residential building inspector for the city.

Barham apparently wished to have the occupants of the building arrested, but allegedly maintains that he was unable to do so, by the Sanibel Police Department (SPD). According to SPD Chief John Butler, the required procedure for an inspector to follow in that case would be to take a sworn affidavit to the state attorney's office.

The county procedure in the case of illegal occupancy, according to Assistant Building Director Bob Shalley, is to cite the developer and give him seven days to remedy the offences.

A temporary certificate of occupancy is permitted by the Southern Standard building code for portions of a building not completely finished.

In the case of the West Gulf Drive quadruplex, charges have apparently been made that the city manager "arbitrarily waived" certain building requirements. Jim Humphrey, as attorney for the project builder, Bill Frey, refutes this.

"After the job was red-tagged in December, we had a meeting with the engineers and agreed to do certain things including the certification of the structure by a registered professional engineer," said Humphrey. "After the remedial work was completed, we submitted the certification to the building department and it was not accepted. We did further work and had the building recertified. We resubmitted the certification and did not get a response. My client was running out of time to appeal... with the Code Compliance Committee. We had told the city manager that we were prepared to seek relief through the courts and in the interest of avoiding litigation for the city, Nungester arranged a meeting with the city engineers, Howard, Tammen, Needles and Bergendoff who were acting as the city's building official, and us to review the necessary requirements to meet the city's standards. At that meeting, Nungester reasserted the city's position that the standards be met and, as a result, my client hired additional engineers to conform to their requirements."

People who have been subpoenaed to by the Lee County Sheriff's Office in the investigation thus far include Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham, Planning Department Administrative Assistant Jean Nichols, Vernon Lynch and Jack Karmen with HNTB and former building official John Goode.

Steve Maxwell, who was terminated from his job several weeks ago as assistant to the city manager because of what Nungester termed "attitudinal problems" maintains he and Mrs. Winterbotham approached each other on mutual interest concerning better city government on Sanibel in late May.

A previous report said that Mrs. Winterbotham met with Maxwell at Maxwell's urging Maxwell said he wasn't approached by Mrs. Winterbotham nor did Mrs. Winterbotham approach him, but "we approached each other because of mutual interests.

At that meeting, Maxwell said he told Mrs. Winterbotham that during and subsequent to his employment in Sanibel's city government he noticed many administrative problems.

According to Maxwell, he and Mrs. Winterbotham decided "there was a need to make further inquiries" regarding the alleged improprieties in city hall.

What they failed to agree on was the method in which to pursue the inquiries, Maxwell said.

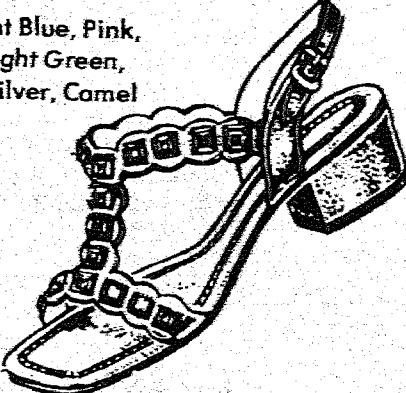

Mrs. Winterbotham denies agreeing "there was a need to make further inquiries."

After meeting with Capt. Don Schmidt concerning the investigation, Mrs. Winterbotham said she was questioned about her relationship with other city departments in reference to her role as chairman of the planning

letters to the editor

In reference to the article in the May 16 issued of the Islander —

I just felt I must say something, as it really upset me. I thought it was fresh, insulting and rude.

The interpretation of my character is not me at all and I really resent it very much.

Due to the fifteen minutes allotted me, due to lateness of interviewer, the story was completely mixed up and words and statements were never used by me.

After being here all these years and loving it dearly, I resent having my words mis-understood and used improperly. It is very discouraging to me.

Sincerely,
D. STEARNS

Editor's Note: It was certainly not our intent at all to insult one of the Various Island Personalities, and we apologize to Mrs. Stearns for any inconvenience this has caused.

Dear Editor:

The logical sequel to the overwhelming approval of Proposition 13 by the people of California would be the adoption of an Amendment to the U.S. Constitution mandating a balanced federal budget and prohibiting deficit spending. It is widely acknowledged that deficit spending by the federal government is the single greatest cause of inflation. At the same time, recent surveys have shown that inflation is the number one concern of a majority of the citizens of this country.

Five and a half years ago, I introduced into the 93rd Congress a Resolution to amend the Constitution mandating a balanced federal budget except in times of national emergency. This Resolution also requires the repayment of the national debt - now approaching three quarters of a TRILLION dollars - at the rate of 1 percent per year for the next 100 years.

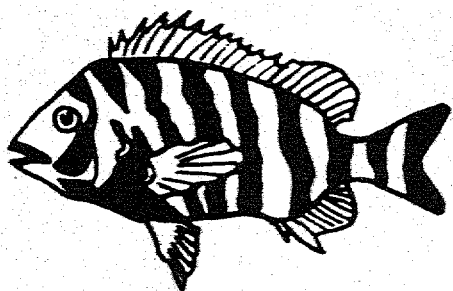

The legislation was re-introduced in the 94th Congress and again in the 95th Congress as H.J. Res. 14. It presently has 61 Congressional cosponsors. Unfortunately there has been no action taken on this proposal as yet. It is hoped that the recent experience in California will serve as the impetus to initiate expressions of support for this fiscally responsible legislation. Hopefully, also, taxpayer-oriented organizations all over the country will begin to marshal their forces to assist in focusing Congressional attention on the need for the action.

The approval of Proposition 13 has become popularly known as a "taxpayers' revolt." To me, this is somewhat of a misnomer. The term "revolt" has connotations of violence perpetrated by unthinking radicals. I prefer to think of this action as an "awakening" of concerned and knowledgeable citizens who are becoming more aware of the direction our great nation is heading and who want to do something about it before it is too late.

Those who join in this effort will not only be doing themselves a favor, they will be insuring the long-term economic health and well-being of our country.

Sincerely,
L.A. "Skip" Bafalis

HOT DOG INVENTED IN LEE COUNTY

It is an actual unknown semi-fact that the Hot Dog, as we know it, was concocted here in Lee County over a hundred, give or take fifty, years ago. A sausage maker named Bunn had a shop next to a Baker on a street just off the town common in the city of Sanibel. As fate would have it during the annual fourth of July picnic, which was held until the late eighteen seventies on the center island of the causeway, that someone put Mr. Bunn's Frank into Mr. Frank Bun. This combination was tried by many of the picnickers who exclaimed "Hot dog."

You can sample this island original at THE FROZEN YOGURT STAND next to Baileys, just a scant 4 miles from the spot where Mr. Bunn's Frank and Mr. Frank's Bun first became what we know today as a Hot Dog.

A FINE HOME IS TAYLOR-MADE

police report

Two "dead bodies" were reported to the Sanibel Police Department...at separate times, but wearing similar clothing. Investigation by the SPD failed to uncover the "bodies", which were clothed in red swimming trunks, either time. The first "body" appeared some 400 yards in the Gulf off Blind Pass, then disappeared beneath the surface, only to bob to the top one more time, then disappear for good. The second "corpse" also appeared on the surface near the Sand Castle Motels, then disappeared beneath a wave.

Sounds like some skin diver in red trunks is making himself known the hard way!

One has to give credit for spunk to the lady who asked the police to check her home for a pot she thought she might have left on the stove with heat under it. How many times have we returned a long way home to double check just such a matter? Glad to know the SPD is on call for such domestic services!

A concerned citizen called the SPD to report a sailboat in the Gulf that hadn't capsized, but just "couldn't get going"! As sailors, we know that problem and are glad to hear that SPD can offer sailing advise now, too!

Aren't people strange when it comes to a crisis? One frantic lady called the SPD to report a "drowning in progress"...her concern was unwarranted. Apparently two boys were frolicking in the water and she mistook their fun for danger. Glad she called the SPD...but wish she had stayed where she was to help instead of running for a phone.

As always in warm sun-filled days on the beach...lots of "lost" kids. There's nothing that strikes fear in a parent's heart more than turning your back for a minute and not being able to spot your little one on the beach just moments later. Have safe and happy times on Sanibel beaches, and keep a sharp eye out for your kids.

Definition according to Webster: "Bug"...any of various wingless insects"...with this definition, can't imagine why anyone would call the SPD to report one of the "creatures" on his phone! Shouldn't one call "Orkin" instead? Oh, Sanibel...where are your former "bug free" days?

The new McKenzie Hall boasts this sign, but Planning Commissioners and visitors ignore it.

We raise the question . . . can you smoke during Planning Commission meetings?

New students require immunization

All students entering a Lee County School for the first time from out of county or out of state must present a Certificate of Immunization or Certificate of Exemption to the school before they will be admitted to class.

This is in accordance with Florida Statute 232.032 and applies to all grades K through 12.

Certificates and Exemptions may be obtained from the office of a private physician or the Lee County Health Department, 3920 Michigan Avenue, Fort Myers.

Anyone who does not have a private physician may go to the Health Department between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and between 5:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. on Mondays for immunizations, certificates, or exemptions. There is no charge. Immunization records should be taken to the Health Department with the student.

Immunization is
Polio, Measles, R Measles), Mumps,

tussis, and Tetanus.

Immunization is receiving increased emphasis nationwide. A National Immunization Initiative has been established by President Carter and is being conducted by Secretary Califano of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The problem, as they have stated it, is that of the fifty-two million children 14 years old or younger, approximately twenty million have not been adequately immunized against childhood diseases including polio, measles, rubella, diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus and mumps.

The incidence of measles has increased steadily since 1973. As of September 10, 1977, there had been an increase of fifty-five percent in the number of cases of measles reported over 1976.

One of the objectives of the National Initiative is to raise

by mike fuery

The first big summer weekend is over and I bet that if you were out there on the water, you have some stories of near-miss boating accidents, lost fish and perhaps have a boat rescue to your credit.

For some reason, many people select weekends like the Fourth of July to get the boat out for the first time in half a year. Every weekend I see them launch their boat and not much later they are headed back to the dock, being towed in. That keeps the U.S. Coast Guard and Auxiliary, in addition to helpful boaters, active all weekend.

There are a couple of suggestions that I would like to make for boaters new to the area, and there are many such people coming to the Islands each weekend.

This time of the year we get many visitors from Orlando, other Central Florida areas, and the Miami area.

They are not familiar with our waters and particularly the passes between the islands.

I saw this happen the other day: A group in a small boat pulled the boat up on the sand at Redfish Pass. What this does is lower the transom to near water level. They weren't gone 10 minutes when another boat came from the Gulf and drove a large wake towards the beach. It swamped the lowered engine on the beached boat and filled the transom area with water. The secret is not to anchor in the passes and when you do anchor, put out a bow anchor and tie the stern to shore. That way the boat can ride into wakes and remain high on the water.

One other piece of advice, for what it's worth. These summer months are famous for violent thunderstorms. Keep a place in mind where you can seek shelter when you see a big thunderstorm coming your way. When you are the tallest point on the water, you know what that draws!

There is a place called Safety Harbor near the north end of Upper Captiva Island which offers excellent protection from high winds and waves should you be caught in the northern end of Pine Island Sound during a storm. Most of these rains only last a short time, but be prepared to wait out a couple hours. That's why I say get somewhere that you can tie up or anchor. Tarpon Bay, towards the southern end of Sanibel Island also is a good place to dodge a storm and perhaps catch some fish at the same time.

If you are a dedicated beach swimmer, you are most likely going to be seeing many small rays. They are just at the line where the waves are breaking on the beach, because that's where they feed. Be careful of these graceful creatures, but don't let them keep you from enjoying a swim. Usually, if you wade into the surf, shuffling your feet, you'll scare them away long enough to enjoy a nice swim.

Yes, you can be injured by stepping directly on the "stinger" or barb on the tail of these flat fish. Give them room to look for food and you are all set.

On the fishing scene, the snook have finally started to bite. Some of us were afraid that the winter weather had really damaged the annual snook run in the passes and back bays, but although they are late, they are here. The limit is four per angler. I've seen many boats come in with the limit of snook in a couple of hours. And I've seen twice as many come in with nothing. Snook fishing is half religion and the other half luck. The big line-sides are out there, taking pinfish, pigfish and artificials. Now, the next trick is to get them to bite, right?

In the first game Sunday, July 2, Island Reporter forfeited because they could not come up with more than 8 players. This will cost the team $10.00. They were to play West Wind. West Wind beat Top of the Mast II in the 2 o'clock game by a score of 11-9. Oscar Gavin hit 3 homeruns for West Wind including the game winning three run homer in the bottom of the 7th inning Mark Heilman had an in the park homerun for West Wind, and Tom Trott and Andy Kern provided homeruns for Top of the Mast. In the second game ESI beat Sanibel Trucking 9-5.

Tides courtesy of THE REAL EEL - Herb (Skip) Purdy

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (north tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every hi-tide, subtract two (2) minutes for every low tide. (NO, we don't know why, but it works. Instructions following are even less sense-sical but as we stated, they do work.)
 For Captiva Island, Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract 1 hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.
 For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four (4) minutes for each high tide, and add 52 minutes for each low tide.
 In between these points on gulf or bay ... guessimate ... and have good fishing and-or shelling.

fishing news

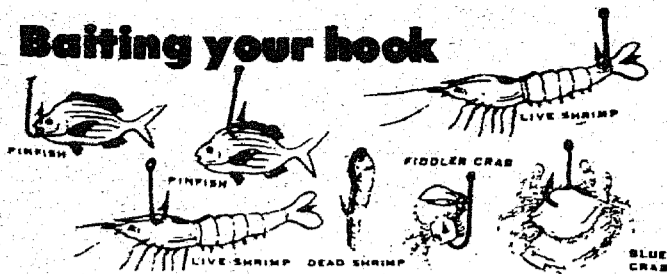

How does that song go...summertime-fish are jumpin' etc. Well now-it's summertime alright, but the fish are not exactly jumping or rather should say not jumpin' into the frying pans.

The sun has kept a few fisherman off the waters. Those hardy souls who are true aficionados of this sport, however, are having a time for themselves. Plenty of trout are still being caught, especially off the pier, and they're using live shrimp and tout jigs with equal success. Captain Cole is catching snook with fair consistency as they drift by the point, and Tarpon is still being found under the causeway at Knapps Point and in the mouth of Tarpon Bay. Still no word on grouper or redfish. For those who enjoy shark fishing I can only say these days were made for you-(90 degree water temp and plenty of tarpon are probably a couple of the reasons why). Shark are abundant with several of those in the know remarking they can't remember when there were so many in the waters hereabouts at this time of year. They don't usually arrive in more shallow waters (15' or so) or in such numbers until August. Some are being caught off the fishing pier at night.

A new and evidently hungry newcomer on the scene is the Triple Tail. They are being caught around the markers and buoys in the sound as well as around the crab pots. You can lure him best with a pinfish. He's a sports fish and might good eating.

All in all there's not much doubt but that this will be a happy 4th for all who wet a hook-Good fishing-Good catching!

boatnotes

by al stresen-reuter

by Capt. Al Stresen-Reuter

(The Papa Nui and crew are on a vacation trip and are now docked at Miller's Marina at Boca Grande.)

On the way to Boca Grande, we crossed Boca Grande Pass and Ship Channel. On the South side of the channel are the "Johnson Shoals."

These are a group of sandspits from an eighth of a mile to a quarter of a mile offshore from Cayo Costa, the barrier island forming the south entrance to Charlotte Harbor. To pass inside of these islands to the delightful little bay formed by these sandspits, a vessel must carefully negotiate an entrance close to the shore of Cayo Costa but not too far out in the Boca Grande channel, as there are shallow bars, too shallow for the Papa Nui out in the channel itself. On the way to Boca Grande we did try to make the pass, but the wind was hitting about 20 knots and the seas made it impossible to read the water. We decided to try it again at a later date. Meantime, we docked at Boca Grande in the same spot we had five years before on our first trip out of Fort Myers Beach.

Vickie Richardson and her husband, Ron, had never been to Boca Grande, while Cris and Hurdis Thomson had been there many times, as had Fid and I.

Boca Grande seems changeless. It reminds me a little of the summer resorts we used to visit in the summer up north. The well-kept, old hotel, whose dining rooms always were high ceilinged, had excellent service, a head waiter who was glad to see you, and waitresses who seemed to enjoy seeing all of the small monsters again. The crossroads, with a combination drug store, and whatever else seemed to be in demand. A gas station and the usual small-town, quick-order restaurant.

Boca Grande also has the Tempation Bar and the Pink Elephant. Both are excellent food and drink establishments.

And both have to be visited. This is a requirement. If these have not been on your agenda, you have not seen Boca Grande. But this is only after all of the other things to do in this beautiful place have been exhausted. Walking is the way in Boca Grande. Bicycles can be rented at Miller's Marina for the fainthearted, and if you are really out of it, Miller's will place their truck at your disposal. This happened the first time I ever visited Boca Grande and has been offered ever since. I don't think we ever had to make use of the truck. It was one of the pleasant gestures.

We start exploring Boca Grande on foot. Our first objective is the beach. This walk is past Cap't Sam's dock and store. This has to be seen to be believed. Cap't Sam runs this store, a general store with everything in the world in it - but Cap't Sam is the only one who knows where it is, and generally won't let you beyond the front two piles of stuff. Some stuff is very new but most is very, very old. Cap't Sam is a character. Peanuts and Charlie are no longer with us and they were their only ones who could steer you properly with Cap't Sam. Sounds like a good beginning of a walk? I was already exhausted.

We walk past the old private school now converted to a kind of social hall; take a detour through Banyan Street - completely arched with banyans; cross the railroad tracks and several blocks more and we are at the beach. It is hot and even Fid is careful where he steps. I never thought that dog feet could feel the heat. I guess they do.

We turn south on the beach road toward the lighthouse.

The lighthouse sign reads "No trespassing" and "Do not enter." We climb to the top. The view is absolutely gorgeous. We can see 20 miles in every direction. It is hot up there. We climb out on the balcony. It doesn't help the heat. It's best we descend and no one yet realizes how much they've stretched muscles on the walk up and down. This they will feel later when the legs start screaming.

We still have several miles to go to the Pass.

We finally make it and exhaustion reaches a peak when we remember that we have to walk the rest of the way back. Meanwhile we explore the unloading and loading docks for the phosphate fertilizer from Bartow and Plant City where it is mined and processed. Also the unloading and loading docks for oil products. The phosphate will be shipped all over the world, and the unloaded oil will fill the tanks of industry and private homes in Charlotte, Lee and Collier Counties. Boca Grande is the fifth largest port in tonnage in the state of Florida. I have never seen anything loaded or unloaded at any of the facilities. There just wasn't anything going on at the same time I was there.

The water in the pass and on the beaches is much clearer than it is around our island. It could be that Charlotte Harbor which empties through Boca Grande Pass is so big that it dilutes the mangrove stain and silt that makes our water so cloudy. (I also have the opinion that our water will

by kay pratt

Permanent residents of Sanibel and Captiva, who have lived on the Islands for many years, have watched the changes that have taken place with great interest and a certain amount of consternation. In order to accent the positive, we thought the following information, in a nutshell, might remind the so-called "old timers" of some of the blessings that they now take for granted, as well as being of interest to those people who have moved here since 1973. Also, the many visitors might appreciate the information.

Five years is not a very long time. Let's start with the doctors now practicing on Sanibel. (and this is NOT in any way an advertisement. It's simply a list of names. Legally, we cannot give any opinions, addresses, or office hours). This article is strictly an illustration of how much has been accomplished in a comparatively short time, medically speaking.

Before 1973 there was only one doctor on the Islands. Dr. Mordecai Haber, a psychiatrist with a background as an M.D. and a surgeon. He and his wife had an office here, but they became swamped; it was too much to handle for one man. Dr. Haber is now practicing only in the field of psychiatry in Fort Myers.

In September, 1974, Stanley P. Wegrzyn, MD., FACS, opened the Wegrzyn Memorial Clinic, built in memory of his father. He was joined by his associate, Stephen Halabis, MD., FACS, in October, 1974. In November, 1974, Jean Gentry, M.D., opened her office for the practice of general medicine.

In 1975 the new City of Sanibel welcomed the following members of the medical profession to the community:

Harry G. Kair, D.C., P.A., Chiropractic services.

William J. Shorack, D.D.S. and Roger A. Dumphy, D.D.S., who started their joint office for the practice of general dentistry. They are here on a rotating basis. Both have the same association in Fort Myers.

Dr. Robert G. LeSage, Optometrist, who also has an office in Fort Myers.

Paul R. Douglass, D.V.M. and his wife, Phyllis, D.V.M. started their veterinarian services, practicing on the Island last year.

Without breaking any laws of non-advertising, it would seem that we should be allowed one opinion. None of these professionals have been known to complain about not being busy enough.

There was no drug store, as such, on the Islands until Leonard Kessler, Pharmacist, and his wife - (known as Len and Sandy by their many friends) opened the doors of the Island Apothecary on November 1, 1973. They own and manage the store.

In November, 1975, the Corner Drug Store became the second one ready to serve the public. It is owned by Carl Gaffin and Ross Webb, two partners who also own and manage other similar drug stores in Fort Myers. How fortunate can two small Islands become in a couple of years!

Medical matters cannot be mentioned without adding the importance of the Police and Fire Departments. Unfortunately, there are too many dire emergencies.

When Sanibel became a city, on November 5, 1974, it, in effect, became independent of Lee County and many changes had to be made. For instance, the Fire Department, which had always been manned by volunteers, under the jurisdiction of the Lee County Emergency Medical Service. Philip Verdung, a long time volunteer, became the first paid fireman on Sanibel in July, 1972, and is now the Administrative Assistant for the Sanibel Fire Control District. Allen Nave, at present, and still on a volunteer basis, has been the Fire Chief for "too many years to add up", he says.

There are approximately fourteen volunteer firemen always on the ready.

It's an endless miracle how quickly they get together and roar out of the firehouse - reaching their destination in a matter of minutes. Anyone who had made use of their services, or seen them in action, knows and appreciates this inestimably.

The Lee County Emergency Service (EMS) assumed the responsibility for all emergency service on the Islands when the Rescue Squad was established and the first man placed on duty was sent over in January, 1974. A second man was soon added, and, combined with the Sanibel Fire Department, paid for through general revenue, the 24 hour a day emergency service became available.

The two emergency medical technicians, trained to become paramedics in 1977, are quartered in bedrooms in the firehouse on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Along with the helicopter service which started in 1975. The 'chopper based at Page Field, takes about seven minutes to get the Island, pick up the victim, and deliver him or her to a Hospital in Fort Myers in about another seven minutes. (Compare that with the really old days before the causeway...)

When an accident occurs, the police and the emergency squad are notified simultaneously. The new rescue van, equipped with all the latest life-saving devices, when reaching the site of the accident and examining the extent of the injuries, is used by one of the paramedics as a means of sending an S.O.S. to Page Field, when necessary the rescue van is also an ambulance, of course, and has saved many lives, especially heart attack victims, by being able to give professional treatment on the way to a hospital.

John P. Butler was appointed Chief of Police in February, 1975, and his staff has increased considerably since then. At first, he and his secretary-dispatcher, Betty Balph, were alone. But not for long. At present the police force consists of eight sworn personnel, one secretary, one superintendent of dispatchers, three dispatchers, and six police aides.

They are all the greatest.

We salute the wonderful men and women who make Island Life Styles so much more secure and as safe as possible. What would we do without the doctors and the police and the firemen-rescue squad combination?

Eight scouts and 1 leader head for scout camp, Dr. Franklin Miles, for their 1st scouting experience, as a scout troop June 26rd through July 1.

The scouts will be working on advancement, learning new skills and living with nature itself (I suspect they will also be having one heck of a good time too).

Transportation was provided by the Kiwanis, Dick Berger and Al Duncan will be bringing them back. Those in attendance were Scout Leader Ron Sebald, Patrol Leader: Dan Burns, Ass't Patrol Leader: Peter Evans, and scouts: Brad Haynes, Greg Hermes, Larry Raulersom, Eric Wightman, David Krepin, and Keith Wainwright.

This ritual emphasizes the difficulties encountered by blind persons, and gives new Lion members incentive to devote time and energy to projects for assistance to the Blind.

The Award of Lion of the Year was given for the second year in succession to Lion Hap Payen.

Past Dist. Gov. Van Duser installed the following newly elected officers to serve for one year: Pres., James Hermes, 1st Vice Pres. Art Corace, 2nd Vice Pres. William Hatcher 3rd Vice Pres. clear itself of algae when our new sewers take off the effluent which is such good food for Algae.) Fishing in Boca Grande Pass for tarpon is traditional. It seems that at the right season tarpon are always in the pass. I have seen these monster gamefish rolling in the pass with 20 or 30 boats trying to snag one and not one will take any interest in the bait. There is a 60 to 70-foot hole in the pass where it seems that the tarpon school. I looked at my chart and found this hole very easily. The waters in the channel are charted at less than 46 feet. This hole is charted at 73 feet and is in the center of the channel slightly seaward of the beach line.

Speaking of charts, I often wonder how many people realize that our government prints charts of all areas of the world. Specifically, there are large charts of our coast and detailed charts showing the most interesting features of our island area. They are handsomely done, and are not only fascinating to look at, but can pinpoint places which do not show on any "land" map. These are available at most of the marinas. I buy my charts at Moss Marina, and so far have been able to take care of my requirements which range from Tampa around the Keys to Miami. They used to cost 75 cents, but inflation has raised this to $3. They are beautiful, and, framed, look very well on a wall. They make excellent birthday and Christmas gifts.

Our walk back from the loading docks took us, after the two mile trek through the hot boonies, to a Gulf Shore Drive. On the beach side of the road are mostly large homes. These are compounded with fences or greenery so that only small peeks can be made from the road. This always fascinates me as I can then imagine what is on the other side of the fence. Maybe someday I'll find out. A beach and tennis club of sorts, rounds out this section of our tour. Houses do continue for several miles beyond the town, but I have only seen these while driving.

We direct our course back toward Miller's Marina. This, with a few small detours, followed by groans from those members whose legs have been put to more use in three hours than in a month, take us past the Pink Elephant, and the Hotel. I don't think that there is a motel on the island. I hope not. I hope that there never is. Not that I dislike motels, it just doesn't seem that one would fit. Someday I hope to spend a night or maybe several at the Hotel. We also decide that we shall have dinner at the Pink Elephant. The sign on the door tells us that we can't do that until 7 p.m. We arrive back at the marina and Papa Nui in time for showers and some drinks before it's time to invade the Pink Elephant.

Dinner is served downstairs at the Pink Elephant. It is well served and is moderately expensive. The food is excellent. They serve little tidbits like specially prepared mushrooms and other goodies, which always make a meal more enticing. The bar at the Pink Elephant is located upstairs. It is a paradox to the rest of Boca Grande. It is mostly a "game" room. Pinball machines, pool tables, some of the newer games such as can be played on your television and the usual juke box. I saw none of this anywhere else in Boca Grande. Even the Temptation Bar tends more to serious eating and drinking. More of this later.

After our very tasty dinner we decided that we had had enough for the day. Back to the Papa Nui. Inspection of the new arrivals at the Marina took up a little time, and then one of the group suggested a trip back to the "game" room. Several of the group left, and the others finally couldn't stand it any longer and decided to see what was going on. Several hours later and after being taken at the pool table by the locals, (at the game, not money) and a round robin at the tennis machines, we took our second departure from the Pink Elephant.

Back again to the marina and the boat. As we approached, we saw a group of people on the outer dock. We found out that one of the pilot boats was being towed in and was in serious trouble. This was a tragedy, as one thinks of the pilot boat as a sturdy little craft able to take most of anything around its won water. We saw it being towed in and it really had trouble. Big trouble. It was almost to the edge of sinking. They towed it to Cap't Sam's dock as all of the marina docks were full. There, with help from the Fire Department truck with its pumps, they were able to get a patch on the hole and tow it down the canal to the pilot boats dock. What had happened was this: one of the duties of the pilot boat at Boca Grande is to take a ship's mooring line to the big buoys so that they can be well tied up while unloading. The pilot boat took the line out to the buoy, but before they could get clear, the ship started taking in the line. At that time the line was under the pilot boat. If they had waited several minutes, the line would have been clear. As it was, the 600-foot ship started its winches and literally lifted the pilot boat out of the water. When they finally saw what had happened, it was too late and the rudder and propeller had been crushed against the bottom of the pilot boat, and a large hole had been made near the rudder post. After the injured pilot boat was taken home, we all decided that it was time to get back to the Papa Nui and bunk up. Incidentally, during all of this commotion, Cap't Sam never showed. I heard that once he goes to bed about three in the afternoon, nothing will get him up until his usual rising time of 4:30 in the morning. We all slept very well that night!

food for thought

By JULIE GRAY
Food Editor

Last Wednesday night was a milestone in my grocery shopping life.

Accompanied by several of my children, I descended upon a local supermarket for my weekly shopping trip. I followed the rules for good shopping. I had scanned the ads for specials and coupons. It was just after dinner so I wasn't hungry, and the children I brought along have been conditioned to fear sudden death if anything unnecessary appears in the cart.

My bill came to $202.29.

During the past few months I have noticed prices leaping, not creeping, up. Prices have been going up so rapidly that if they had legs they could win the Olympics.

Remember the movie "Network" and its message to the world? "I'm mad as hell and I'm not gonna' take it any more!"

Many times I've felt that way myself, but usually I rationalize it away and just submit to more harassment.

After last Wednesday evening I can't stay quiet any longer. Sharing my anger won't solve the problem but maybe, we share a common anger and frustration and we can make things better.

My husband and I have six children, five of them teenagers. We both work. With our varying schedules, eating is more cafeteria style in our family than the conventional "sit down together" family dinner every night.

We eat far fewer meals at home than we did up north and we expect our home food bills to be far lower.

But my grocery bill last Wednesday evening still went over $200 for the week's shopping.

Let's look closely at that grocery bill and see why it was so high.

With five teenagers we do buy a few tubes of Clearasil and other preparations. Every family buys preparations suitable to their age group that equal the acne medications.

How about meat? The total meat purchase was two pounds of ground beef at $1.19 per pound and four cornish game hens at $1.59 each.

I asked the man in the meat section what was available that one could afford and he just laughed and showed me a Delmonico steak at $4.59 per pound.

Have you noticed the meat sections of the supermarket aren't as full as they used to be?

As I walked down the pet food aisle I noticed a couple who appeared to be in their 70's comparing prices on several brands of dog food.

They were very carefully considering the nutritional contents and the amount of meat in one brand - versus the other.

They were buying it for their dinner.

Farther down the aisle, there was a new item for sale - "Dog hero" the label read. "...Submarine, hoagie, torpedo, grinder, battleship, top energy protein treat."

It cost 98 cents. You won't find a hoagie for humans at that price. It was made in Japan. They say meat, especially beef, is expensive because we now export it to Japan and other countries as a part of different trade deals.

It is possible to eat in a restaurant more cheaply than at home. Why?

There are still some frozen dinners you can buy in the supermarket that are affordable. Some of them might not be any more nutritious than that dog food.

I'm not saying we all have to eat a lot of meat. I'm almost a vegetarian myself. But nobody should have to eat dog food, except dogs.

My daughter came in while I was writing this column, read a little and said, "You sound very angry Mom. What recipes are you going to use this week?"

I answered very seriously, "a recipe for action and change."

RECIPE FOR ACTION AND CHANGE

lots of postcard
stationery
stamps
pen, pencil or typewriter names and addresses of state and national representatives determination

Start writing and talking. Enlist the aid of everyone you know. Write to important people in government and enlist their aid. If you can't get people to write, write it for them and get them to sign. Have letter writing parties.

Do it before the only thing any of us can afford is dog food.

Where would we be in the summertime without chicken? It's not cheap (nothing is), but it's less costly than most barbecue choices. And the mild flavor takes well to spicy marinades.

The pictured chicken is seasoned with paprika, onion, garlic, mustard and red pepper.

PAPRIKA CHICKEN

Two thirds cup lemon juice
Two thirds cup water
½ cup ketchup
3 tabsps. dark brown sugar
3 tabsps. paprika
3 tabsps. onion powder
1 tbsp. garlic powder
1 tbsp. cornstarch
1½ tsps. salt
1 tsp powdered mustard
¾ tsp. red pepper
4 tabsps. oil
6 lbs. chicken pieces combine all ingredients except chicken. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens (about three minutes). Cool; set aside.

Cut chicken into serving-size pieces; sprinkle with salt, if desired.

To cook, place chicken on rack over low heat and grill, turning often and brushing frequently with marinade, until chicken is tender.

Cooking time varies with heat and size of pieces. Remove smaller pieces as they are done, and keep warm until all the chicken is cooked. Garnish with lemon slices, if desired. Serves 10 to 12.

Spit roasting is one of the best, and oldest methods of cooking meat. As the roast

League Completes Financial Drive

The League of Women Voters of Lee County has now completed its yearly financial drive. Approximately 1350 Leagues all over the country have done the same.

Sue Johnson, Chairperson for the fund drive for the Sanibel-Captiva Unit expressed satisfaction with the result, "It is so good to feel that our first financial drive has been successful. Many members contributed over and above their dues. But what really warms my heart is the response of the business community."

Helen Webb and Jany Myers, Co-Unit Leaders, feel the success of the drive reflects the encouragement of the community. "We shall double our efforts to make our program reflect community interest", they said.

The Unit wishes to thank The Red Pelican Boutique, Bank of the Island, The Muckey Duck, Quimbys, Nave Plumbing, B-Hive, Island Apothecary, Priscilla Murphy Realty, Mac Intosh Book Store, Tiffany Parlor, Shalimar International, Inc., Mid-Island Real estate, Fenton White Associates, Inc., Jeanette Daniel Tropical Fashions, Michigan Homes, Captran, Inc., Shell Haror Inn and the Fridays for support in their endeavor.

Special thanks also go to the West Wind Inn which provides the League with a centrally located meeting room.

It is obvious that at this moment the League is in fine fettle, very happy with its environment, a proper patriotic mood for any League of Women Voters to be in to celebrate the 4th of July.

'Pajama

Tops'

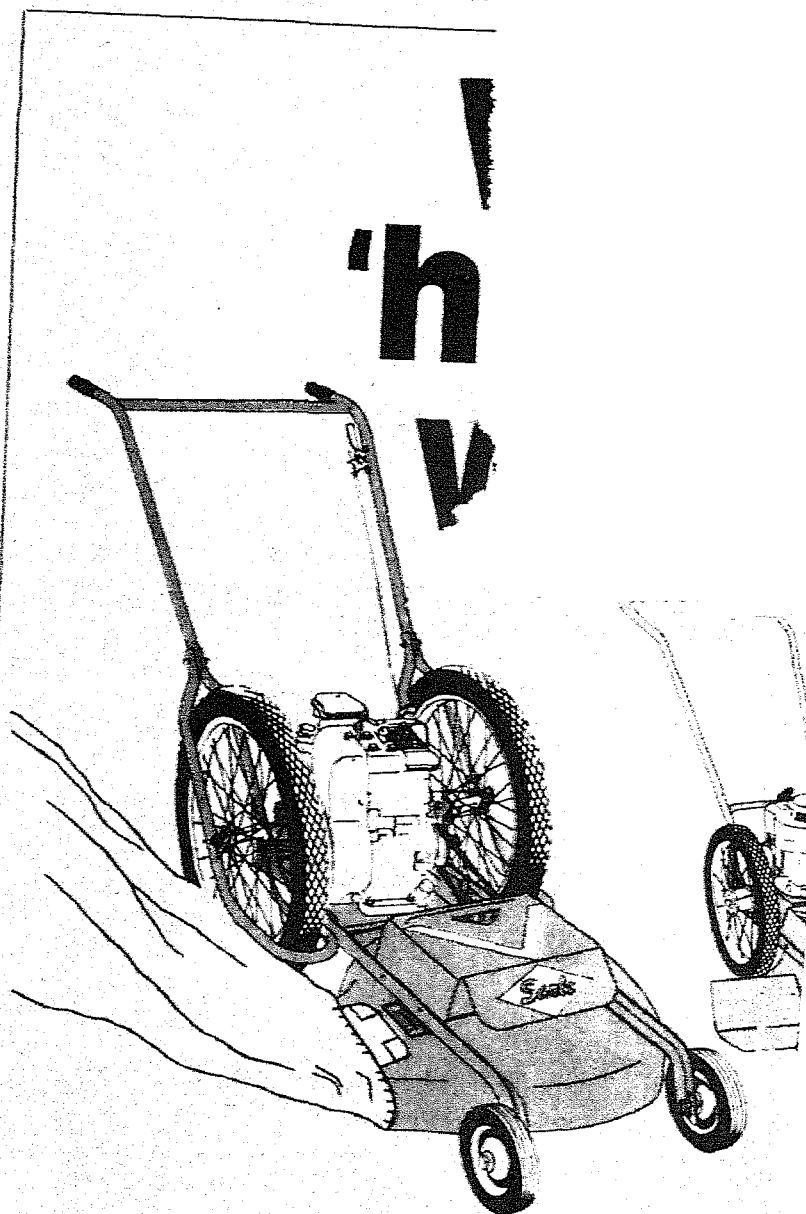

The next production at the Naples Dinner Theatre will be "PAJAMA TOPS" by Mawby Green and Ed Feilbert. This hilarious French farce played three years in Paris and five years in Hollywood before going to New York, and is now one of the longest run plays on the books.

The plot is pure fun. A husband has planned a business trip with a voluptuous girl, for philandering purposes, when his wife secretly invites the same girl for the weekend, and she thinks this girl is a business partner. The depart before an old friend arrives out of the blue with hands a-flutter.

An additional Johnny-on-the-spot character is the gendarme who delights in cherches-les-femmes. Rounding out the cast is a devilish looking butler, a maid who is practicing to be a coquette, as well as some hilarious artful dodging, all calculated to keep audiences howling.

Jim Fargo has directed "Pajama Tops" with BRYAN HARRIS, DONN SONTAG and ANN HODGES, two Naples Dinner Theatre favorites, in the cast.

CAPTRAN'S LATEST... Penthouse Beach Club

Dominating the skyline of lively and beautiful Treasure Island is the Glass Penthouse Motel whose owners have announced will become a Captran interval ownership project to be renamed the Penthouse Beach Club.

Interval Ownership, (not to be confused with time sharing is purchasing vacation real estate by the unit week or weeks which becomes real property, titled by warranty deed. Owners of interval weeks vacation real estate are buying selected weeks for their use, for the rest of their lives and the ownership can be willed to their heirs.

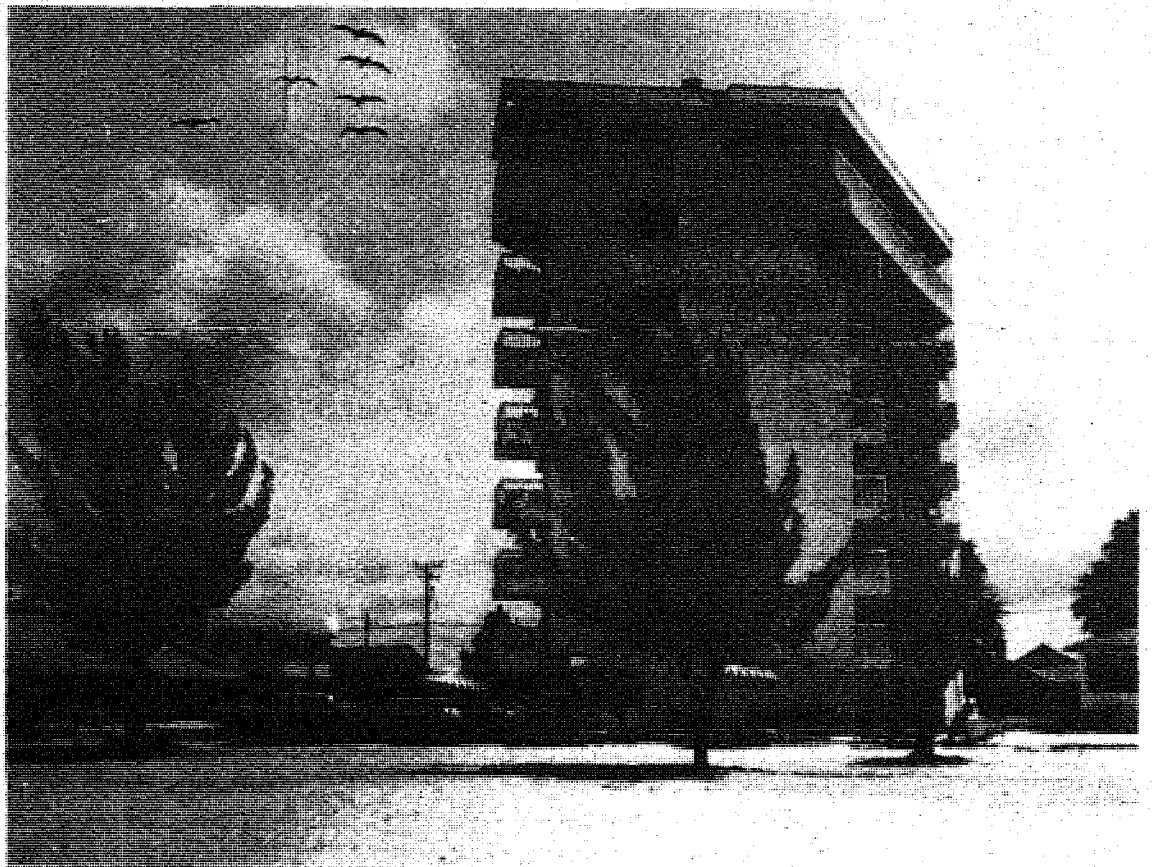

In addition to owning specified time periods at the Penthouse Beach Club, interval owners can also exchange their time periods through a network of over 90 international resorts known as Interval International, on a space available basis.

Trowbridge, who was recently elected director of the national Resort Timesharing Council, based in Washington, D.C., was selected by Penthouse Beach Club principals Douglas and Bill Carlson of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and Novan Schafer of Vancouver, British Columbia to manage their project because of his outstanding record of success in the field of interval ownership.

Penthouse Beach Club, overlooking the powdery white sweep of Gulf beachfront on Treasure Island, has been re-designed in a nautical theme by Captran's design division director, Dick Hartmann. Its thirty units will have 24 "sea cabins" and six "staterooms". The glass Penthouse will become the "Admiral's Quarters", akin to a salon aboard ship.

A glass enclosed elevator will skim up and down the side of the Beach Club depositing owners on their respective "decks". Elevator service to the top deck "Admiral's Quarters" will be secured by a twist of private-owners passkeys. The Admiral's Quarters will feature lounge and recreation areas and will be the site of weekly owners cocktail parties, a custom at all Captran resorts.

Other amenities include a heated swimming pool and beach front lounge areas.

The average price for a life-long week is $2,000. There are terms available with local banks with a 25 percent down payment and terms up to five years. It's been estimated that up to 50 percent of the purchases will be financed.

"Buying one, two, and three cars per family has become commonplace," says Trowbridge. "With interval ownership we're making luxury vacations for a lifetime available to the average man for about the same cost of used and new automobiles—and without the high depreciation factors associated with cars."

In addition to the original purchase price a yearly $50 maintenance fee is charged covering management, maintenance of grounds, electricity, water, sewer fees, refuse removal, taxes, replacement, repair, and insurance. There is also a $5 per diem fee for every day the suite is occupied by owners covering water, electricity and a cleaning fee.

During their weeks owners enjoy fully and lavishly furnished suites with complete and efficient kitchen facilities and each "sea cabin" and "stateroom" has its own exclusive view of the Gulf of Mexico. In addition, copies of the ten best sellers, subscriptions to four magazines, bicycles and sailboats are available for all owners. Another Captran tradition is every owner finding flowers in his accommodations on arrival.

Penthouse Beach Club will be managed by Leslie Schurck who is now in residence at the Club. An industrial engineer, he was formerly associated with the Lighthouse Resort and Club.

Prior to that time he was director of sales and marketing for the Lake Placid Holding Company and the owner of a management consulting firm in Tokyo, Japan.

Open hours for model "sea cabins" and "staterooms" at the Penthouse Beach Club will be 0900 to 2100 or 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. every day of the week.

turns, it bastes itself for juicy perfection.

SIRLOIN SPIT ROAST

1 cup dry white wine
2 tbsps. olive oil
2 tbsps. minced parsley
1 tsp. anchovy filets
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 lbs. sirloin tip roast
1 lemon

Combine wine, oil, parsley, finely minced anchovies, nutmeg, salt and pepper in plastic bag. Add beef and marinate, refrigerated, overnight. Turn occasionally.

Balance beef on rotisserie spit, fastening forks at each end. Cook eight to 10 inches above medium coals about 1½ hours. Baste occasionally. Cook to desired doneness, checking internal temperature with meat thermometer. Serve with lemon wedges. Serves four to six.

Whether the fish comes from a lucky day at the lake, or from the nearest fish market, nothing tastes better than grilled fish which has been marinated in herbs and lemon.

If it's a big fish, stuff it with a mixture of your choice. Be careful not to overcook it.

Fish is done when it flakes. For large fish a wire basket or poultry netting is a good idea. The fish can be turned without breaking apart.

HERB GRILLED TROUT

6 ready-to-cook trout (1 to 1½ lbs. each), or firm-fleshed fish steaks
1 cup lemon juice
two-thirds cup salad oil
3 tbsps. onion powder
2½ tbsps. salt (or less to taste)
2 tbsps. garlic powder
1 tsp. black pepper
3 tbsps. parsley flakes

If using trout, make slits on top of both sides of each fish. Place fish in a snug fitting dish. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over fish.

Cover and refrigerate one hour or longer (fish doesn't need overnight marinating).

Remove fish from liquid, reserving marinade for baste. Place fish on oiled grill over hot coals and cook about 10 minutes, turning once and brushing frequently with marinade. Serves six.

FROZEN PARTY SALAD

1 cup salad dressing
1 8-oz. package cream cheese
1 20-oz. can pineapple chunks, drained
1 -16-oz. can apricot halves, drained and quartered
½ cup chopped maraschino cherries
2 Tblsp. confectioners' sugar few drops red food coloring
2 cups miniature marshmallows
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Gradually add salad dressing to softened cream cheese, mixing until well blended. Stir in fruit, sugar and food coloring; fold in marshmallows and whipped cream. Pour into 9x5 inch loaf pan. Freeze. Unmold. Makes 10-12 servings.

ALMOND COLESLAW

1 cup dairy sour cream
2 Tblsp. vinegar
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. dry mustard
4 cups shredded cabbage (1 small head)
¾ cup thinly sliced and halved cucumber
½ cup sliced almonds
½ cup chopped celery, cut in ½-inch pieces
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion.
In a bowl blend sour cream, vinegar, salt and mustard. Cover and chill. In a large bowl combine cabbage, cucumber, almonds, celery, green papper and onion; cover and chill. Just before serving add dressing to vegetables and toss lightly.

GRILLED RED SNAPPER

½ cup butter
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tsp. worcestershire sauce
¼ tsp. onion salt
2 lbs. red snapper
chopped parsley
Melt butter in 1 qt. saucepan; add lemon juice, worcestershire sauce and onion salt; mix well. Remove from heat. Place fish in hinged wire grill. Grill, basting occasionally with sauce for 5-8 minutes on each side turning only once, or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Heat remaining sauce and serve with fish.

Everything is supposed to taste better when it's eaten out of doors. Whether it's a picnic, a barbecue, a camp-out, or even a big family reunion under the pines, people find it fun to brave the ants and the flies to mix fresh air with their food.

Here are some outdoor eating ideas:

SUMMER POTATO SALAD

12 medium potatoes (4 lbs.) peeled two-thirds cup vinegar
¼ cup salad oil
½ cup water
1 envelope Italian salad dressing mix
1 cup halved cherry tomatoes
4 green onions, coarsely chopped
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Steam potatoes 25 minutes or until tender. Meanwhile, to make dressing, in jar with lid combine vinegar, oil, water, mustard, and salad dressing mix. Shake to mix well. When potatoes are tender, drain and cube into large bowl. Pour dressing over potatoes. Refrigerate to chill and marinate. Add chilled cherry tomatoes, green onion, and hard-cooked eggs before serving. Makes 12 servings.

commission.

"I am doing my job," Mrs. Winterbotham said Friday. "I engaged in no criminal activities, I took no bribes," she added.

The investigation does not concern me at all," she said.

Mrs. Winterbotham denied a report that she, Dr. William Webb and naturalist George Campbell hired Fort Myers attorney Steven Carta to investigate city government on Sanibel.

She did, however, admit knowledge of the report and its contents, but would not comment further.

She said her meeting with Maxwell was not to discuss "mutual interests" regarding city government, but to hear Maxwell's version of corruption in city hall.

"I decided not to pursue it further because I saw nothing to substantiate his allegations," Mrs. Winterbotham explained.

Maxwell is the latest in a string of three assistants to Nungester who have been fired during Nungester two year employment as City Manager.

More subpoenas can be expected if investigators find corroboration of the two former employees testimony, and, according to sources close to the investigation, those subpoenas could involve many current and former city officials.
