Easter on the Islands

Easter Program Chairman, Ann Atkins was named the "bunny holder" when she pulled the rabbit, named Peter, out of a cage and showed it to admirers.

photos by oliver evans

It was an elementary Easter last Thursday afternoon when students at Sanibel Elementary School partook in the celebrations. All the basics were there including parties in every room complete with little visitors: chirping chicks, furry rabbits and scruffy ducklings.

The main event was the egg hunt. Each student had dyed and painted several eggs a day prior to the hunt. To insure that each youngster would have a good chance to find as many eggs as he or she had painted, separate areas outside were designated for each of the grades.

Ann Atkins, Easter Program Chairman, estimated about 450 eggs had been hidden and found.

committee sets April 23 as housing questionnaire deadline

by gwen stevenson

A deadline of Monday, April 23, was set by the City's Moderate Cost Housing Committee for the completion and return of the questionnaires distributed on Sanibel two weeks ago. (Forms may be obtained at the Library, post office or Bank of the Islands and should be returned to the Council Office in City Hall.) The Committee will review the data in the questionnaire at its next meeting, Friday, April 27, at 10 a.m. at MacKenzie Hall.

According to Dr. Louise Johnson who coordinated the questionnaire process, the data is being compiled by Drs. Enid Bever and Frances Faldey who have both been statisticians. She also stressed to the committee at Friday's meeting, after receiving accolades for the work done on the questionnaire, that she had much help. Dr. Johnson cited Charlotte Hamlet, Sue Johnson, Mary Lou Husler, Bobbie Dahlman, Ellinor Anspacher, Hilda Rush, Claire Smith, Jeanette Clegg, Dr. Eleanor Goldbloom, Mary Johnston and Arthur Johnson. Dr. Johnson also pointed out that not all her helpers favored moderate cost housing but were still volunteering to help out the city.

Both Zee Butler and Francis Bailey said they had been approached by many Islanders who are adamantly opposed to moderate cost housing and the committee decided that a public meeting would be held in May that would be carefully structured and would address the issue of moderate cost housing in relation to community goals.

"People who are running around screaming and yelling about moderate cost housing who are against it just don't know the facts," Committee member Dick Workman stated. "They don't know that the City is mandated to do it. It isn't legal to handpick your neighbor anymore," he stated. Workman suggested that the legal situation be presented at the outset of the meeting. By setting the meeting date for sometime in May, Zee Butler felt it would give anyone who would not be on the Islands at that time enough time to present their views to the committee in written form.

Workman, who is in charge of developing a committee to establish guidelines for moderate cost housing eligibility initiated the suggestion for a meeting to determine community goals. "Once we can establish community goals, it will be easier for all of us to work on our assigned tasks," he pointed out. Zee Butler agreed. "We'll have the questionnaire results then," she said, "and then we can investigate what they (possible moderate cost housing candidates) can expect and what we can provide. Some of the possible criteria for eligibility include where on Sanibel a candidate works, for how many months a year, what the gross family income is, and length of residence on the Island.

Fenton reviewed his approach to the "where" of the moderate cost housing question. "I believe it should be spread out all over the Island," Fenton said. It won't have as much impact on our resources and it won't create the stigma of living in a project." He has suggested investigating possible conversion in restricted commercial by allowing a restricted commercial development some leeway on the impermeability of the land use plan to provide an extra parking space for a residential unit. Another area that Fenton wants to explore is the possibility of housing in commercial zones, which isn't now permitted. "That has the advantage of both security for the commercial property and 24-hour usage of the land," Fenton said. Another area Fenton wants to explore is residential existing and new subdivisions to see if it is possible to increase their density minimally for one or two units of moderate cost housing. Modular or pre-fabricated housing is another area Fenton wants a committee to explore. Fenton said that modular or pre-fabricated construction is one way to keep construction costs down.

At the next meeting, the committee will review the questionnaire results and consider plans for the public meeting.

C.R.O.W. meets Thursday to decide future

A notice has been sent to the 22 members of the Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife (C.R.O.W.) board announcing a meeting this Thursday morning to decide if the group should continue operations as they have in the past or terminate them, giving C.R.O.W. a "decent burial."

Although C.R.O.W. has raised almost $30,000 in capital funds, C.R.O.W. president Adelaide Cherbonnier feels that spending money on operations would seriously hamper the organization's ability to construct a permanent facility if they can obtain the land.

According to the meeting notice, there is no evidence that a lease, gift or funds to purchase lands is forthcoming. C.R.O.W. did have a commitment from the Island Water Association (IWA) to lease 14 acres but the offer was changed to a "footprint" lease offer when the IWA was advised by their attorney that the lease might hamper the IWA's ability to expand in the future. "But we have never had a formal response to the "footprint" agreement," IWA general manager Ralph Zeiss said, adding that he had had the impression in earlier discussions with Ms. Cherbonnier that they were interested in the use of the land, not the lease of the land. Zeiss had said the IWA is willing to allow C.R.O.W. to use the land it needs for feeding ponds but they just do not wish it to be in a formal lease. Ms. Cherbonnier has indicated that she is wary of committing the funds necessary for the structures they need under the IWA's proposed arrangement.

A monthly expense sheet that accompanied the letter to the Board members points up an operating expenditure of approximately $2,210, depending on how many patients there are, the nature of their injuries and the use of the van to transport them.

C.R.O.W. employs two full-time people and is currently housed on Ms. Cherbonnier's Captiva property, but that arrangement is short-term because there is not enough room for the number of patients C.R.O.W. usually has and there is no privacy in the employees' living quarters.

When Cypress Lake Senior High School students have a Skip Day they really know where to skip out to — they headed straight for the beach last Thursday. Hundreds gathered at Bowman's Beach for a day of sun, fun and flirting, frisbee games, and football. You get the picture.

city to apply for matching funds for well plugging program

City Manager Bill Nungester will ask the City Council to approve an expenditure of funds at their meeting today to match a grant by South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD) to plug old wells on Sanibel. Nungester estimates that the total cost, which is still indefinite, will run between $10 and $15 thousand. According to Bill Nungester, South Florida will assist in the inventory of wells on the Island together with the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation and the Island Water Association. "SFWMD has an electric logger and they will send that equipment and personnel to Sanibel in addition to the financial aid," Nungester stated Friday. He added that he wished that any resident who has a well on Sanibel would contact the city — even if they don't want it plugged. "We'll be able to check the condition of the wells' casings, the depth and whether or not there is any leakage," Nungester said. "We won't repair them, of course, but we will tell you what condition they are in."

If City Council gives its approval, and that seems to be likely, Nungester said they would try to be on the agenda of the District's Board meeting which will be held this Thursday and Friday in Fort Myers.

"It's a very big program with a lot of legwork involved," Nungester concluded, "but it is something we have wanted to do for a long time."

county to discuss Sanibel bond issue

By ROBIN TROESTER

Lee County commissioners will discuss what to do with their disappointing victory concerning the $18 million Sanibel Causeway bond issue at their meeting Wednesday.

"Selling the causeway (to Sanibel) may have some merit," Commissioner Wade Scaffa said, in light of the Supreme Court decision last week.

The court validated the bond issue that has been in litigation for several years but limited the use of the money so much that most of the commissioners are not sure they now want to proceed with the bond issue.

Former county attorney Jim Humphrey is scheduled to appear before the commission Wednesday to discuss the court's decision.

"tell us what we can and cannot do," Commission Chairman Dick Steele said this morning. Humphrey was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

The alternatives are to either sell the bond and build the project as outlined by the court or forget the idea altogether, Steele said.

Scaffa said the county should probably explore other means of funding those road projects because, as the court outlined the permitted use of the money, the projects are just "piecemeal" solutions to the county's road problems.

Scaffa said perhaps selling the causeway to Sanibel would be an alternate way of getting money to build roads. The money from the sale of the causeway would not have strings attached like the bond issue.

If there's no other way for the county to buy those projects outlined by the court, perhaps then the county should use the bond issue, Scaffa said.

"We need those (court outlined) projects," Steele said. "I wouldn't want to drop it (the bond issue)."

Sanibel Mayor Duane White said he was very pleased with the court's decision and hoped that county action on it would not be delayed. White also said that he hoped that the county would elevate McGregor Blvd. just before the Causeway. "The elevation there is only four feet," White said, "and that is going to pose a major evacuation problem during a big storm or hurricane."

The court said if the county chooses to proceed with the bond issue, it must use the money to:

- Widen McGregor Boulevard from the causeway toll booth to Miner's Corner at San Carlos Boulevard.

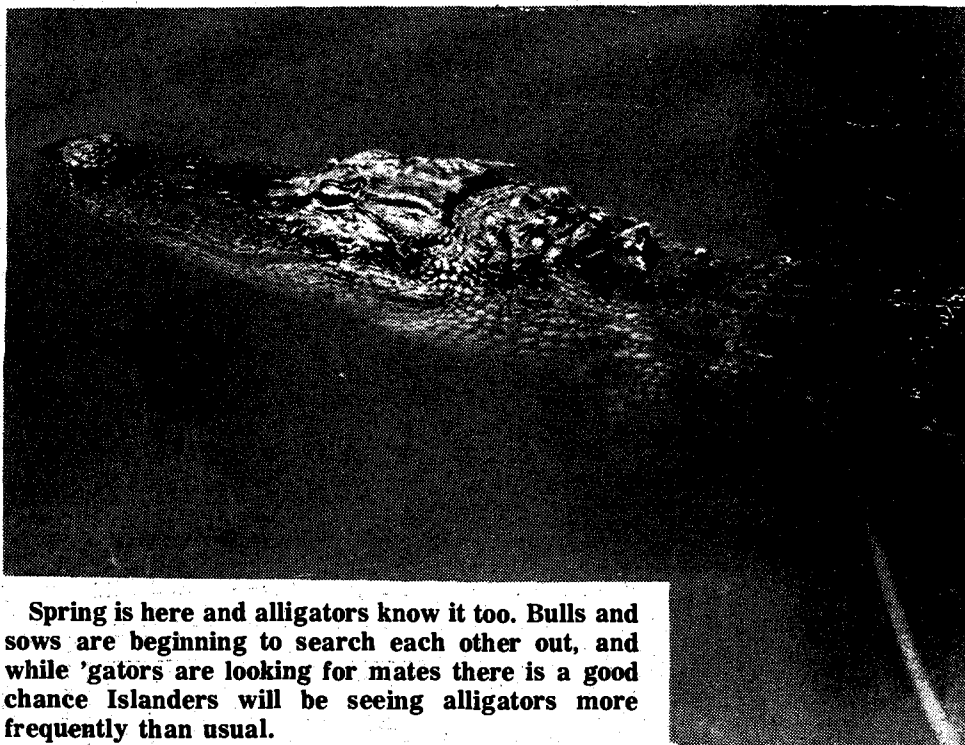

- Widen unbuilt State Road 869 from the planned two lanes to four lanes from McGregor to San Carlos.

- Construct a parking lot on Sanibel near the causeway, and for road construction and improvement on the island.

The court said the county's other plans for the money were not valid. The county wanted to use the money to also widen McGregor Boulevard from San Carlos to College Parkway, widen Gladiolus Drive from State Road 869 to U.S. 41, construct State Road 869 from San Carlos to Cypress Lake Drive and widen Cypress Lake from State Road 869 to U.S. 41.

The bond was to be paid off with revenues from the causeway toll.

In other business Wednesday, Jack Harper, director of County Development, will present commissioners with more information about the financial feasibility of the county purchasing the water company. The county has been investigating the purchasing of the company for several months.

Spring is here and alligators know it too. Bulls and sows are beginning to search each other out, and while 'gators are looking for mates there is a good chance Islanders will be seeing alligators more frequently than usual.

In their wanderings for mates, 'gators "do a lot of traveling around," says wildlife artist and naturalist George Weymouth.

With all this running around, 'gators tend to be more visible. They're seen crossing streets, golf courses, or getting into swimming pools and staying there until a licensed 'gator mover takes them away.

Should you find a visitor of this variety in your driveway or pool, don't be alarmed. If you feel uncomfortable entertaining such a guest you can call George Campbell, Mark Westall or Charles LeBuff and ask them to bodily evict the intruder.

commentary

The actions by the Island Water Association Board of Directors last week in ignoring the obvious feelings of their membership in their selection of the Board of Directors left an unpleasant taste in many water company customers' mouths — and the unfortunate part is that it was not necessary.

As our readers are aware, the Board president had asked a nominating committee to present them with a slate of candidates. When the slate was returned, and contained three names that were not the ones the Board wanted to see presented, the procedure was declared invalid. That was complicated by the fact that there was no Captiva representation on the Board, there should have been if, for no other reason than, human nature being what it is, unless there is a Captiva representative that Island is always going to feel slighted.

The Board was given a graceful "out." A motion was made to defer the meeting to allow all parties to participate in the selection of the nominees to the Board. They refused it. And it is too bad. We believe that both Jim Robson and Art Wycoff are hard-working and efficient Board members. And so, it seemed from the meeting, did the IWA membership.

But the method of re-election will continue to cast doubts about the actions of the Board and, like their initial re-elections tactics a week ago, so unnecessary.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In defense of Sanibel Airstrip

To the editor:

My wife, daughter and two friends and I have enjoyed a wonderful two weeks on Sanibel. You seem to have something for everyone — fishing, golf, tennis, birding, shelling, swimming.

My party flew down here from Western Canada in a small plane. We found the Sanibel airstrip very adequate and would not have come at all unless we had known you had an airfield.

There is no question it could be improved but I hope your readers realize what a valuable asset such an airstrip is to island business.

Sincerely,

Sherm Ewing

Dvorin sets record straight

Dear Editor:

In your April 10, 1979 article regarding the Interval Ownership Ordinance, you quoted Council Member Zee Butler as questioning my qualifications to comment on several legal issues.

To set the record straight, I received a B.A. in Political Science from Rutgers University and a Juris Doctorate from the Boston University School of Law. I have been admitted to the Bar in Massachusetts, the District of Columbia and Florida. Before moving to Sanibel in 1976, I spent five years in Washington, D.C., serving as an Attorney-Advisor to the U.S. Price Commission, Cost of Living Council, Internal Revenue Service and Federal Energy Administration. During that period, my primary responsibilities were in the areas of economic legislation and regulatory matters. I have been engaged by Captran, Inc., for the past year as a consultant on governmental affairs.

Without any prejudice to the Council or Council Member Butler's remarks, I am concerned that inadequate attention to constitution issues will result in unfair and unenforceable regulations. The City has already spent hundreds of thousands of taxpayer dollars to defend the Comprehensive Land Use Plan, and I fear cavalier treatment of legitimate constitutional questions may adversely affect the validity of the entire plan.

Thank you for the opportunity to clarify my position.

Sincerely,

James R. Dvorin, Esq.

QUESTION: What do you think of the job the IWA board has done, and what is your opinion of the IWA election of directors held Monday, April 9?

Charles J. Muller, Sanibel: "I didn't know a thing about it until I read it in the paper ... I'm not a stock holder."

Mike Klein, Sanibel: "I think we're beating a dead horse ... I'm just sorry it (the way the election was held) happened."

Angie Hazelswart, Sanibel: "I really don't know too much about it, but I think Captiva ought to be represented on the board."

Pete Skehan, Fort Myers: "I have a funny feeling about the way they conducted the election ... I do believe two of the board members wanted to make it more equitable by postponing the election."

Tony Martin, Sanibel: "The people they elected are all right. As far as I'm concerned they're doing a good job."

administrative assistant resigns

by pat harmel

Tom McIntyre, administrative assistant to the Sanibel City Manager, has resigned his City post to take a position with the U.S. Postal Authority.

City Manager Bill Nungester said he was "sad to see (McIntyre) go," and that he had "done a good job for the City."

McIntyre, a CETA employee, is planning to return to college for a Master's degree in the field of law according to Nungester. McIntyre hopes to save enough funds to return to school by 1980.

Nungester said the City will not be filling the position left by McIntyre's resignation.

Greek Orthodox Church holds dedication

Dedication Ceremonies for the new sanctuary of the Greek Orthodox Church of Southwest Florida at Fort Myers was held last Sunday, morning. The new church is located at 3611 Cypress Lake Drive.

The Rt. Reverend John, Bishop of the Greek Orthodox Diocese of Southern States with headquarters in Charlotte, N.C. officiated at the Dedication Ceremony, assisted by the pastor of the parish, Father Arthur K. Kontinos.

An ecumenical spirit prevailed at this historic event with the participation of area clergymen of other religious communities. In attendance and participating were Father Stephen E. MacNamara, pastor, Roman Catholic Church of the Resurrection, Father Adelbert Buscher, OSB, priest-monk and Canonist of St. Meinard Archabbey, Ind., Father Thomas Madden, Episcopal priest, Sanibel, Rev. Robert Asmuth, Chaplain, Fort Myers Police Dept., Rabbi Samuel Silver, Jewish Community Center of Lee County, and Sister Vera Kleech, Immaculate Conception Convent, Ferdinand, Ind.

Bishop John made his first episcopal visit to Fort Myers for the Dedication Ceremony. His visit is of special significance for this historic event, since the new edifice is the first Greek Orthodox Church to be built in Southwest Florida. It administers to the religious, social and cultural needs of all Orthodox faithful in Lee, Collier and Charlotte Counties. Paul N. Kotsalis of Cape Coral is President of the Parish Council and John K. Kontinos of Sanibel is chairman of the Building Committee.

council passes law regulating high impact units

Sanibel City Council unanimously passed a general amendment to the comprehensive land use plan last week to control high impact units on Sanibel. The ordinance defines high impact as those units of more than 600 square feet available for rent at periods of less than one month.

The ordinance, initiated last fall by Zee Butler, was the result of several months discussion.

The ordinance controls units that are in the general rental market as well as those sold by unit weeks and contains some provisions relating specifically to interval ownership and - or time sharing units. It prohibits, for example, the conversion of a condominium to time sharing without the complete consent of 100 percent of the owners and the lien holders. The new law also mandates 7500 square feet of open space for each high impact unit.

The ordinance came under fire from community members but still passed unanimously. Mariner properties president Bob Taylor questioned Zee Butler on the data to support her contention that the people who use the "high impact" units create more of a drain on the Island's resources than others. "People renting for more than one month will not be of as much impact as those who rent for less than one month," Mrs. Butler explained in answer to a question from Pricilla Murphy Realty president Stan Johnson. When asked how she knew that, the council woman replied "from observation."

Captran attorney Tom Liber disagreed with the Council's interpretation of high impact use, citing a Captran interval ownership situation on Fort Myers Beach as an example. "We've decreased the number of people who use the unit by one-third, and increased its value 2½ times," he stated. Taylor, too, questioned the council on their interpretation of the issues. "You're saying that changing a motel use to interval ownership is changing the intensity of use of the land," Taylor remonstrated. "That's not what I'm doing - I'm changing the ownership. A change in ownership is not a change in development." Porter Goss, however, remained unshaken in his contention that it was still a change in intensity of use. "All I'm saying," Goss stated, "is that if you convert to time-sharing you might be changing the intensity of use and then the Planning Commission should look at it."

Goss said after the meeting that the new ordinance does not affect those units already in a rental or interval ownership program - only future development.

The final ordinance draft was also changed to allow rental programs on the site of interval ownership condominiums.

Mosquito Control District Bill passes House committee

by gwen stevenson

A bill authorizing the Lee County Mosquito Control District to spray within five miles of county boundaries and allows District employees the right of trespass on private and public property to eradicate mosquitoes upon the authorization of the Lee County Health Department passed the House Community Affairs Committee earlier this month. The bill also authorizes the District to use "any and all mechanical, physical, chemical or biological control measures" they deem necessary. If a property owner refuses to allow the District to eradicate a mosquito problem, the District will be allowed to enter into an agreement with the property owner whereby the owner is responsible for eliminating the breeding grounds in a manner the District approves and at the owners expense. If the District does not feel that adequate measures have been taken, upon the authorization of the Lee County Health Department, they can inspect the property and take their own measures.

The costs of the District's action becomes the landowner's responsibility and are to be considered as a lien against his property.

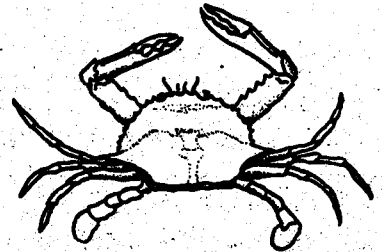

Reaction to the proposal has been mixed and Tallahassee legislative sources have indicated that there are doubts about the constitutionality of the proposed legislation. State Representative Frank Mann thinks that the bill's future is "uncertain" and admits that the "bill has some controversy." Paul Nuckoll's office pointed out that according to Mosquito Control Director Wayne Miller such extreme measures are only necessary in one percent of the cases and that the District has to declare the area a health problem.

The bill states, however, that the District only has to present information to the Director of the Lee County Health Department, "indicating a belief that a mosquito problem exists on said lands, which, if not eliminated, would adversely affect nearby properties or residents." The bill as it is now written does not specify that the presence of mosquitoes has to constitute a "health" hazard, merely that there must be a mosquito problem.

Other changes that Miller requested were eliminated by the House Committee who specifically ruled that the election of members of the Board of Directors had to follow general election rules.

on the water by mike fuery

The only deep water fishing most small boat owners can comfortably reach is in one of our passes between the islands, but unfortunately many people waste time working the wrong spots. This week, let's look at a couple of our passes where most action takes place.

Redfish Pass

This shallow pass, located between the Captiva Islands, just north of South Seas Plantation resort, is a relatively new pass. It was created in the '20s by a hurricane. It's not as deep as the other passes on the coast, but certain parts of it are excellent fishing posts.

One thing I've found, and this holds for most passes, is that the best fishing isn't in the middle, but around the edges and points of the passes. That's why Redfish Pass is very famous for snook fishing. Work the southern side of the pass, where the current has cut a path for deeper water. That's where you will find the snook in the summers. The middle of Redfish Pass is not deep at all and the outside of the pass changes all the time. Those outside, shifting sand bars often have schools of whiting and trout, in addition to small shark, catfish and pinfish.

It's quite often that I see a boater new to the area pull up in the middle of Redfish Pass, drop anchor (which is dangerous in any pass) and not catch a fish. Don't waste your fishing time in the middle of the passes unless you know that a certain type of fish, such as grouper are feeding there at the time.

Captiva Pass

Captiva Pass is the quiet zone between Redfish and Boca Grande Passes.

It's not as exciting as Boca Grande during tarpon season, but this pass between Upper Captiva Island and Cayo Costa Island offers a good variety of catches. Again, you will find most of your action on the southern rim of the pass. This is where the deep water swirls and where you will find the largest grouper and tarpon in season.

The center of the pass offers small grouper and the inside of the northern rim used to be a top snook spot—but has been slim pickings recently. The outside of the passes—again fish near the sand bars on the deep side—offer trout, whiting and when they are running—bluefish.

There is a deep hole in Captiva Pass. I've talked with one diver who has gone part way into it. At the time, during a summer night dive, he said there were many, many snook lying there. The only trouble is you can't get a hook and line under the ledge. This doesn't mean you can't coax a grouper or snook out once in a while. Count on lots of break-offs in this pass.

Boca Grande Pass

This pass is world-famous for tarpon fishing. Only trouble is that it's getting to be that there are as many boaters as tarpon. A hooked, jumping tarpon will often foul a couple other lines from near-by boaters.

This pass also houses grouper and some formidable sharks too. This is bottom fishing and it helps to have a recording depth finder on your boat to pick out fish near the bottom from obstructions down there, also.

Again, the middle of the pass is usually unproductive, but the northern rim, this time, is where most of the action takes place. If you want to battle a grouper from out of the pilings at the phosphate docks, then fish close to the docks with cut mullet or live pinfish. There are snook up under those docks, but as with the grouper—they are difficult to get out once hooked. The fish saw off that leader and line on the barnacles as soon as they feel the hook.

Good fishing this week and remember to work the edges of the passes.

islander angling by oliver evans

Hey! All you redfish lovers out there! Your favorite finned friends are still in force at Wulfert Keys and all other places where there's mangrove and deep pockets of water.

Several 8-10 pounders were caught last week using, of course, live shrimp. The reds, like just about all the other fish you'll catch, thoroughly enjoy shrimp. In this respect fish are similar to humans — we all crave shrimp as well (but minus the hook).

Nothing like getting philosophical about fishing ...

Anyway, take it from me, the reds are all over the place.

A few snook are being taken in the creeks off Tarpon Bay, such as McIntyre Creek, and in Pine Island Sound off marker 18 on the Refuge side. What are the snook demanding? They're settling for shrimp but they also are delighted to have pin fish now and then. Pin fish happen to be plentiful in the bay, and that's what the snook are going after. Now you go after the snook.

Some 9-13 pound snook were brought in last week by people who were actually fishing for reds in the deep holes near the mangroves and in the passes. You might have luck here.

Big cobias are being ripped off too. They're cruising the grass flats near the causeway and in the vicinity of the second power lines in the Sound. Sanibel Marina reports a 25 pounder, taken with shrimp (but they dig pin fish also).

Grouper and jewfish are still hanging around the causeway, and tarpon have been spotted at Captiva Pass and hovering above the grass flats in the sound — and with that we close this week's installment.

Good fishing!
Good catching!

Tides courtesy of THE REAL EEL - Herb (Skip) Purdy

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (north tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every hi tide, subtract two (2) minutes for every low tide. (NO, we don't know why, but it works. Instructions following are even less sense sical but as we stated, they do work.)

For Captiva Island, Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract 1 hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four (4) minutes for each high tide, and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points on gulf or bay guessimate and have good fishing, and or shelling.

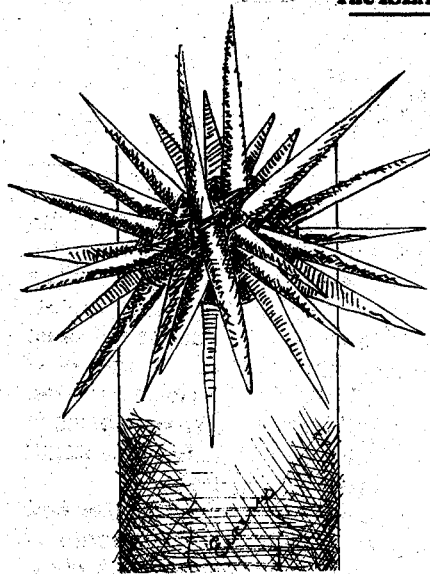

shelling tips by capt. mike fuery

One of the most misunderstood of all shells is the sea urchin. This little fella found in our waters takes the blame for more horror stories than any other of the so-called, "dangerous" shells.

If you shell along Sanibel and Captiva Island beaches enough you will come upon the remains of many, many sea urchins. They generally have long spines since died when they are washed up on the beach and it's also likely that they will have no spines on them. When the urchin comes up like this we call it a sultan's cap. The sultan's cap is used for shell decorations, but I've seen them with Christmas tree lights for seasonal decorations and it seems that creative people never find an end to new projects with the lowly sea urchin.

It's not unusual to find several hundred sea urchins come up on the beaches during a bad storm off-shore. Right now, on a small portion of a beach on Upper Captiva Island there are perhaps a thousand remains of urchins which died a few weeks ago. If you can locate sea urchins and get good ones before the sea birds peck them apart, then you will have good shells to add to your collection.

Obviously, there are many live urchins on the bottom surrounding the islands. These are the ones that get too much bad publicity. The type we see are often up to four inches across and have short, greenish spines. You would have to go out of your way to get stuck by one of these harmless little urchins. There are a few of the black, long spined sea urchins in our waters. These could stick you, should you walk directly on one, but they are so rarely found that the worry over them is minimal when you are shelling. Those black, round-bodied urchins make poor collector's shells because the spines seem to fall off as soon as the urchin is picked up and examined.

If you do get an urchin for your collection, and it's live, the way I usually suggest to my charter people to clean them is to take a knife and carefully remove the meat from the inside. If you are lucky, you won't lose too many spines, but then get a light, clear glue or similar material to keep those spines on. It's a tough job to preserve an urchin with its spines in place. Most end up as sultan's caps, without the spines.

Good luck shelling this week and keep in mind the two live shells per species, per person rule when you are out there on the beach.

(Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling and fishing trips from Tween Waters Marina, on Captiva Island. Call Mike at 472-5161 for more information).

The Giants clobbered the Angels at Fort Myers Beach Tuesday, April 10, with a score of 18 to 8. And it was bad luck again for the Angels on Friday the 13th, when they lost to the Giants, 18 to 10.

The Tigers had a depressing week, losing with a score of 9 to 6. Friday night's game was called due to an injury suffered by the Tiger's shortstop as she slid into second base. water test sites selected Mayor Duane White and a committee of four Islanders met last Friday to determine sites for water testing by the Lee County Environmental Laboratories. The committee selected 22 sites for the testing which will begin this week. Those sites are: Palm Lake; Lake Murex; back of Pine Tree Road; north of the Colony on the Sanibel River; salt water canal north of Shell Harbor; Shell Harbor south of Pectin Court; the east side of the Sanibel River weir; the Sanibel River at Donax east; the Sanibel River at Donax west; the canal between Skiff and Schooner Roads; Shalimar package plant; the Sea Shells of Sanibel; Sanibel Lake Estates; the Trost property 1/4 mile east of Tarpon Bay Road; the West Rocks; Tahiti Shores north east part of main lake; the Sanibel River just south and east of Bellmeade subdivision; back of Sanibel Elementary School; Gumbo Limbo package plant; Little Panama Canal behind Spanish Cay; mosquito control ditch on Bird Lane; the Dunes lake.

The tests will help determine the condition of Island water including chloroform content, bacteria, dissolved solids, and possible atrophy.

The test results will be used by the City Committee established to study sewage treatment on Sanibel. There is no cost to the City for the tests.

live shelling committee to design brochure

by oliver evans

In its monthly meeting last Wednesday, April 11, the Live Shelling Committee (LSC) determined the size and number of signs telling shellers of the two per species limit, to be posted on beaches and inside commercial establishments.

Following the resolution submitted by the LSC to the Sanibel City Council March 6, which met the council's approval, the signs will state: "Live Shelling Code: A Limit of Two Live Shells of Each Species Per Person, by Order of City Council Resolution."

Twelve metal signs to be paid for by the city, will be posted at all public beach accesses, and smaller cardboard placards will be affixed beneath the rate schedule on the doors of every motel room and other rental units on Sanibel. Larger poster size signs will be printed for use in shops.

Also discussed was a brochure of basic shelling facts that will be distributed at the Chamber of Commerce and all commercial establishments.

The purpose of the brochure is to educate visitors about molluskan life and breeding habits. The bulletin also briefly describes and defines the differences between gastropods and bivalves, and how a collector can distinguish a dead mollusk from a living one.

The draft was authored by Diane Walters who, although not a member of the board of the LSC, has done considerable research in molluskan life habits. She, along with LSC Chairman Pat Kair and life-long Sanibel resident Esperanza Woodring, have conducted observations in and around the island's grass flats and beaches in efforts to determine molluskan breeding patterns and impinging environmental influences.

Pending further revision, the brochure will be submitted to the Sanibel City Council for final approval.

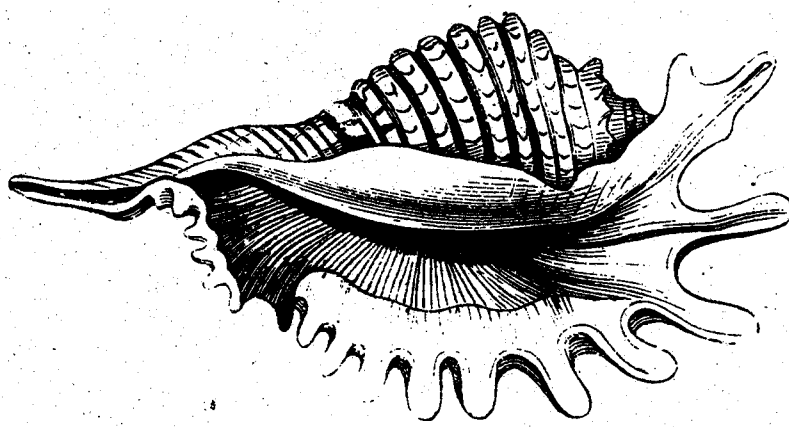

In other activity, Mrs. Kair announced that she had been considering resigning from her chairmanship. Citing the lack of time necessary for further in-depth field studies, Kair expressed her wish to devote more of her time to this area.

Board members Charles LeBuff and George Campbell suggested that the LSC need not meet every month since the most important measure, the "two-per limit," had been established. Consequently, the committee will meet every other month or when the need arises.

Following this decision, Kair responded that she will retain the chairmanship and called for a motion that the LSC become an advisory committee. Kair and others involved in molluskan research will submit data to the committee which in turn will direct the information to the City Council.

"There is nothing else to do," Mrs. Kair said, addressing the committee's accomplishments, and added, "Without a four-year study there is no reason to go any further ... we'll see what the impact is of the "two-per" resolution during the next few years."

The next meeting of the Live Shelling Committee is June 13.

A DAY IN THE LIFE:

To be a secretary is to be "one of the girls in the office." Never mind that some of the "girls" happen to be grandmothers. Never mind their qualifications, education or experience. All too often the office secretary is the coffee gofer, the fall guy, the guardian angel and the glorified watch dog.

Small daily humiliations, long-standing grudges, and the constant scramble for survival that are the mainstays of working life are intened in the secretary's world. An office is the real world in microcosm - and oases of escape are hard to come by.

The search for meaning, for recognition, for cash, is often futile in a world of values based on appearances. A secretary is not paid for intellectual contribution, and not rewarded for aggressiveness or competitiveness. Her sole worth is judged on her ability to follow orders - a trait not easily developed to the point of exclusivity by most of us.

The "girls" at Sanibel's City Hall are a rare breed. They are secretaries with minds. They battle daily with the restrictions of their jobs, finding it hard to keep quiet as they sit through the interminable City meetings, workshops and hearings, allowed only to take dictation and run tape recorders. They are mothers. They are activists. They are concerned citizens. They are the poets of the file cabinets.

Text by Pat Harmel

Lynn Bogue

Lynn Bogue describes herself as an "odd job girl Friday." Employed by the City for the last seven months her duties include answering phones, handling some of the City agendas, working with City purchasing, and being responsible for dog licensing. She has worked in yacht brokerage and real estate, has traveled the country as a houseboat tourist and has lived on Sanibel since 1974. She has three grown sons and now lives alone in a mobile home - and loves it.

"The saving feature of the job is that it's people work. I mean what can you say about paper busy work? It was a whole different world to me - completely new. We have a good time here. If you spend all your waking hours doing something, you had better have a good time doing it.

"Anytime you're involved in serving the public there's always a small percentage of rippers - but even those happen because people don't understand the system. The people really are the best part of the job.

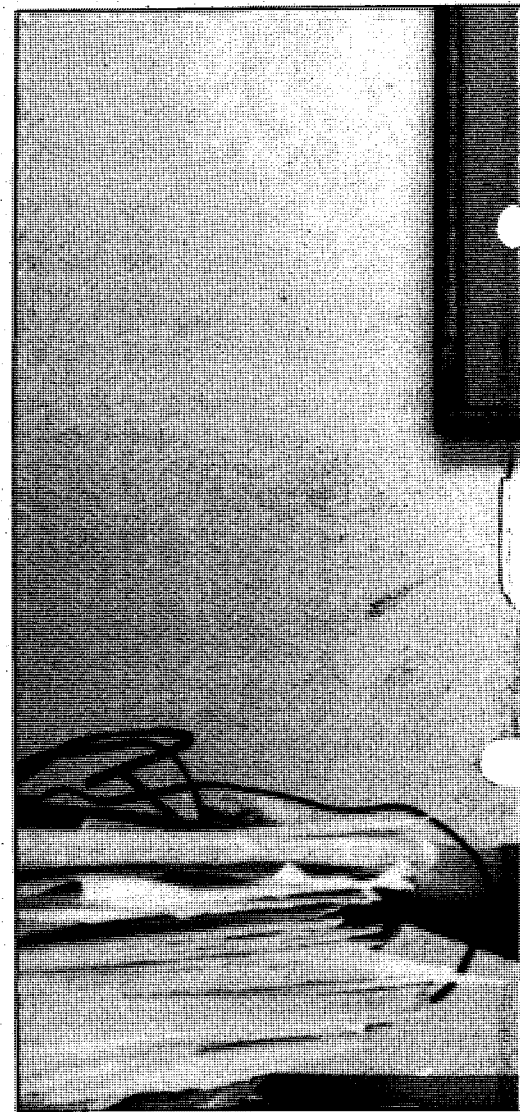

"I do wish the job were more creative. I'm used to writing my own letters and doing my own thing. This is strictly clerical work. There's lots of things I'd rather be doing, cruising or traveling of course! And I'd like to go back to painting - and all those things you only have time to do as a hobby. This is a demanding job, and I don't have time to do the things I did before I took this job. But I know I'm lucky to be living here and making a living. I really love Sanibel.

"I would say that both the best and worst part of the job is the people you deal with. It's good that the people you work with here are pleasant - they're uppers, not downers. But I don't think of this job as a career - I hope there's more to life than this. But if you have to work this really is the nucleus of the island - this is the hub of activity."

Carolyn Smith

Carolyn Smith started out with the City as a licensing clerk. After doing that job for nine months she became secretary to the City Council and has remained in that position for over two years. She is married (husband, Peter) and is the mother of three daughters and a son. On the wall next to her desk she has hung a typewritten philosophy of her job. It says, "Nothing is so fatiguing as the eternal hanging on of an uncompleted task." Before moving to Sanibel three years ago from Ohio, she was seriously involved with the civil rights movement.

"I take dictation and type the Council members letters, keep a Council calendar, a mail log and phone log, make appointments, keep files, clip newspapers and am generally on call to any of the Councilmen.

"Clipping and filing are the very worst parts of the job but overall this is the best job for me in the City. I worked as a secretary right out of school and then stopped to raise a family after I got married. Eventually I went to work part-time but this was the first 8 to 5 job I'd had in 23 years.

"I enjoy working with people and I like the people I'm working with. The variety of working for five people instead of just one is great. But I don't take it home with me. I work that way - I'm more aware of it working for the government - but there's more to life than working. Eight hours a day is enough.

"I like greeting the public. Being a secretary is what I do. When I'm home I walk or swim. I like to read and to cook and have become interested in the environmental movement through my son. I sit on the Board of the Sanibel Resources Center. I really love the Island but I miss the social involvement that a big city offers, the involvement with social causes - civil

Jeany Cottrill

Jeany Cottrill has been the administrative secretary to the City Manager for four years. Originally from Ohio, she now lives on Sanibel with her husband Butch - a fishing guide on Captiva.

Jeany's job responsibilities are varied, ranging from filing and general office work to serving as watch dog and general garrison for the City Manager and his assistants.

One's first impression of Jeany is that she's a striking woman: strikingly attractive, strikingly efficient, and strikingly candid.

"I do all kinds of things in this job, but now that you ask me I can't think of any of them! I handle the City Manager's correspondence, screen his phone calls and his visitors, and do the same for his assistants. I distribute the mail, keep a calendar for MacKenzie Hall and the City Hall conference room, post notices, and do filing and office work.

"The worst part of this job is the irate citizens - the people who have moved here from somewhere else, or the people who are here on vacation - they're always trying to compare Sanibel's way of doing things to the way they do them 'back home.' And of course they always want to complain to the 'top man' even if he can't do anything about their problem. I really enjoy Bill (Nungester), he's an intelligent, compassionate man. He's a human being. Maybe that's why I try to screen his calls and visitors carefully and send them to someone else with their problems if I can.

"I was a legal secretary for eight years before coming here. At one time I wanted to be an airline stewardess - but I was too short! Then after I worked as a legal secretary I found I really enjoyed it and I gave up wanting to become a stewardess.

"One thing that's bad about this job is the working inside - I'd much rather work outside! I suppose I don't mind it so much as long as I have someone like Mr. Nungester to work for.

"Another big problem with this job is that when you go out at night or are somewhere other than work people are constantly coming up to you with their complaints about the City. They all have their own pet peeves and they think because I'm a City employee I can do something about them! I just tell them 'I work from 9 to 5!'

"Everybody here is pretty cooperative and we can work together very well. But I don't think I could make a career out of this job - my nerves can't take it."

Millie Campbell

Millie Campbell is married (husband, David), the mother of one son and one daughter, and the grandmother of five children. An accounting clerk for the City for the past two years, she doesn't look like a grandmother. Originally from Ann Arbor, Michigan, she has held numerous other jobs also dealing with facts and figures. Her current position is the preparation and processing of the city payroll, payment of invoices, daily cash receipts, and all kinds of financial statements. When I tell her I think her job must be boring she appears indignant and a little hurt. She is overwhelmingly enthusiastic about her job.

"The absolute worst part of the job is when errors (in the books) are made. It takes so much paperwork to make it up. We're pretty specialized here so everyone has certain responsibilities. I like it all.

"This is pretty much the same as other jobs I've had but I have less responsibility. At my age I'm glad to be cranking down. There is a tremendous variety within the job, we're always busy. There's too many facets for it to be boring. Of course I don't have to deal with the public."

The City Hall Secretaries

Kathy Smith

Kathy Smith from Ohio has been the City mail clerk for almost two years. She serves as errand runner and general supply-keeper-track-of for the offices. She is a thin, quiet girl. She does not want to talk to reporters.

"This is better than some jobs. I like it. But I can't tell you why. There isn't a best or worst about it. I would like to stay in government but this job is probably a stepping stone to something else.

rights, equal rights, those things are very important to me. The hardest part of the job is not being able to get involved with things I want to - like local issues. I want to get out my opinions, but that's not my job."

Gloria Berry, recording secretary for the Sanibel City Council, is one of the office "old timers." Originally from Connecticut, she has lived on Captiva for 12 years, the last four of which she has been employed by the City.

Gloria seems an unlikely candidate for the role of secretary. As a former researcher for Fortune Magazine, ex-WAC, and ex-assistant editor, Gloria hardly seems the type to sit in a paneled enclosure eight hours a day and transcribe tapes. She spent eight years traveling through Europe but today has no desire to really be anywhere other than where she is. "Age," she says, "has taken care of all that."

Since last February Gloria has gone through the trauma of two cataract operations and a detached retina. After a six-week absence she was greeted back at the office by a desk drawer full of Council meetings waiting to be transcribed. Today she is working on February.

"I tape meetings and then am responsible for transcribing and condensing them into about 8 to 10 pages of minutes. It would be an awfully dreary job if it weren't Sanibel. The things going on here are tremendously exciting and being involved since the very beginning of the City has been wonderful. I can't say enough about the people on the City Council here, they're dedicated, exciting, just wonderful really. It's especially interesting to me to watch what Sanibel's doing because I live on Captiva and I can see what's happening to them because they didn't in-

Susan Harris has worked for the City since last June, answering phones, taking in money, handling weight permits, and serving as front door greeter. When you ask for her exact title she replies, "I guess Permit Clerk is a good general description, as good as anything else." It's a troubling business, this question of titles, because everyone does everything. Or so it seems.

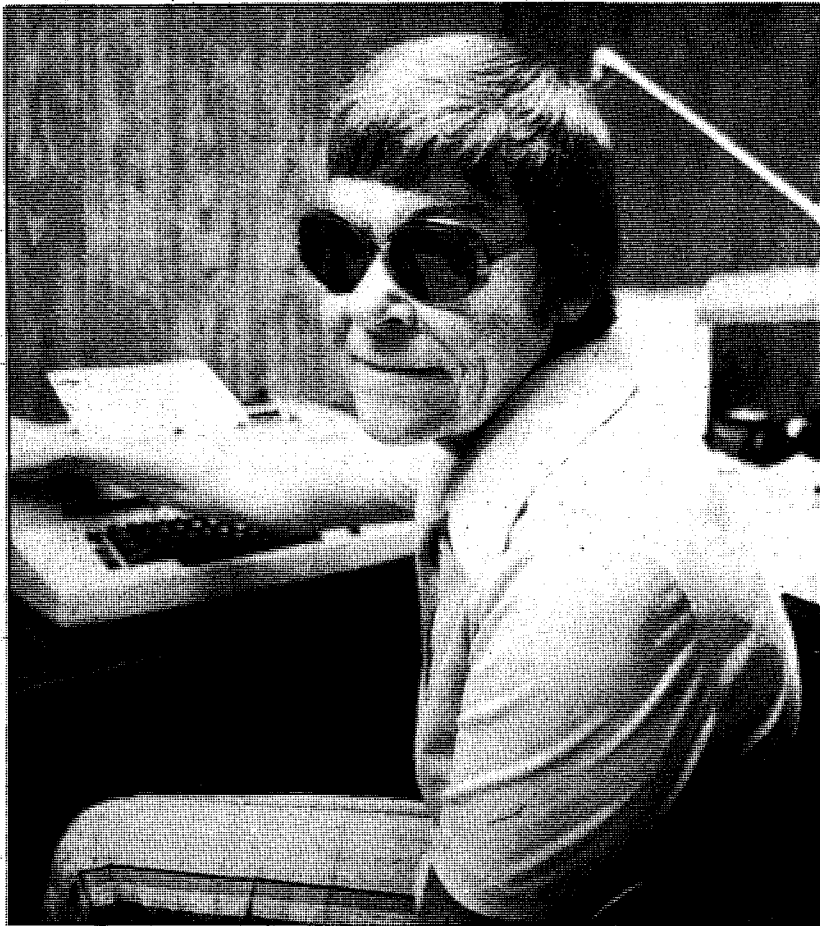

Susan is married (husband, Lynn) and has been in Florida for the last three years. Originally from Michigan she is experienced in the ways and means of office work, having been a secretary before.

"It's hard to say whether this specific job is different than working for another City because I have never worked in government before.

"One of the factors that makes this a good job is the diversity. I've never really given much thought to what's good or bad about it. I guess I would rather sit here and have a nice view than to be stuck back in a factory working on an assembly line. People come to Florida for the weather but most of us also have to work for a living. So you get a job and do the best you can with it.

"Most of the time when people come in and are upset you can understand it if you put yourself in their shoes. It's our job to administer policies but on the other hand we ARE public servants. This is different than other office jobs I've had. My job here is not that complex. The over-all operation of the City with all its Ordinances is complex corporate.

"The worst part of the job is having to work set hours. I never had to do that before. 8 to 5 is a real pain. I was very surprised to find a job here that I was qualified to do. I don't know if the people I work with get along with me but I get along with them! I really don't see the competitiveness here that might be in other offices. But then I really don't work with other people and I don't have to deal with the public. I probably couldn't keep my mouth shut if I had to deal with the public all the time.

"Sanibel is pioneering new and innovative ideas in land planning and I see them as obviously being in the forefront of ideas. It's very exciting to be a part of that."

though. That's why there's not just one of us that has to do everything. Government is different from other jobs because it's much more detailed.

"I don't know what else to say. I'm doing this job to pay the rent, to buy clothes, to buy food. If I were independently wealthy I might not be here, but on the other hand if I stayed home all the time I'd go bonkers."

former teacher revisits Sanibel elementary

by oliver evans

Nancy McCann visited Sanibel Elementary School last Thursday, recalling memories of her time as Sanibel's schoolmarm when the elementary school was in the Pirate Playhouse. The now-retired teacher came to Sanibel from Wheeling, Illinois in 1954.

Principal Charles Wainright provided Miss McCann with lunch and an opportunity to address the kids. She told the students all about the original two-room, wooden house which was vacated in 1962 when the present facilities opened.

Miss McCann toured the new additions, beginning in the most recent, the auditorium, and then going back in time, as it were, to other rooms that had been added subsequent to her retirement in 1965.

April ABWA meeting

Six more Island business women have joined the Sanibel-Captiva chapter of the American Business Women's Association. The new members are: Georgianna Gault (Sea Horse Shops), Patricia Ann Krepin (Sanibel Maintenance Service), Coralie K. Rumbold (Serendipity), Elizabeth Williamson (Sanibel Police Department), Jeanne G. Miller (Sanibel Realty, Inc.), Suzanne Pickens (Photo-Sanibel, Inc.).

At the April 11 dinner meeting held at the Sundial Resort, the Duggers of Tropical Village spoke about their careers as professional dancers, artists, and small motel (cottage) managers.

The vocational speaker was Maureen Smitt of Maureen's Travel Agency. Maureen is a former nurse from Britain, and has also taught English in Laos. After a second career in Business Management, Mrs. Smitt embarked on her third career with the travel agency business. Among the many guests present were Maureen's niece and mother-in-law from Jutland, Denmark.

The featured speakers at next month's meeting will be cartoonist Al Hartley, and realtor, Candy Kalbing.

SOAR needs help

Scoutmaster Ron Sebald has issued an urgent plea for pick-up trucks or vans to help in Project SOAR - Save Our American Resources - slated for April 28. On that day, 65 miles of roadway will be cleared of debris on Sanibel and Captiva by Island Scouts and adult volunteers.

Following the clean-up, there will be a chicken barbecue and the Sanibel Police Recreation Club is sponsoring bike inspections and a bike repair clinic. They, with the Bank of the Islands, are planning on giving away over 200 bike flags - mandatory on Sanibel for cyclists - and they are hoping to give away a girl's and boy's bike.

If you can help in the event, call Ron Sebald at 472-3788 (days) or 472-4719 after working hours.

NOTICE

Water will be off from midnight to 5 a.m. Friday morning, April 20th on the Eastern end of Sanibel. The area affected is east of a line starting at San Carlos Bay and running down Dixie Beach Blvd. to Periwinkle Way, along Periwinkle to Casa Ybel Road, down Casa Ybel to the area of Sanibel Highlands and from there to the gulf just east of the old steamboat. Sanibel Isles, Water Shadows, and the Dunes will have some water. The interruption in service is required for line and equipment maintenance.

The Island Water Association regrets any inconvenience caused its customers by this interruption in service.

Sincerely,

Resources Center walks for eagles

Would you walk a mile to save the life of an endangered bird?

Ten students from the Sanibel Resources Center walked considerably farther than that — they left their footprints all along Sanibel's Gulf beach last Thursday when they set out from the Lighthouse at 8 a.m. and trundled off with the sun behind their backs. Destination: Blind Pass. Purpose: raise money to save bald eagles.

Each student was sponsored by a member of the community who offered a certain sum per mile walked by that sponsor's protege. In all, about $400 will be going to the National Audubon Society's Eagle Fund.

Attended by teachers Linda Wassum and Linda McCarthy, the group (grades 5 through 10) managed to reach Blind Pass, albeit a little behind schedule. After a lunch and a rest period, the sand treaders resumed their trek and headed back East. Adam Smith, tenth grader and oldest member of the group, was the only student who finished the hike at Tarpon Bay. The hoped for completion point was to have been the Lighthouse, but a blistering sun circumvented the original plans.

The Sanibel Resources Center is a private school that has been in operation for three years. Located on Buttonwood Lane, the school provides academic as well as ecological studies.

Island kite day —

Let it be known that people can be quite attached to their kites. Last Saturday's kite flying contest, sponsored by Sanibel's Toys Ahoy! toy shop in Periwinkle Shopping Plaza, was a ripping success when nearly a thousand people gathered at the Lighthouse beach to set their papery flying machines free to the wind.

The only thing holding the fluttering, swooping kites within earth's atmosphere was string, lots of string—miles and miles of string. Sometimes the string connecting one kite to its human anchor on the ground would cross with another, or several, causing it all to wind up in a big tangled bunch while the kites succumbed to gravity, whereupon a group of kite enthusiasts would form a knot in attempts to deal with the complex situation.

There were winners for every category, and the list is as follows:

MOST BEAUTIFUL HOMEMADE KITE: Kathy Mehm and Sean McLoughlin.

SMALLEST KITE: Guy Fisher took the prize for this with his three-by-one and one-fourth inch miniature that managed to fly about 500 feet up.

YOUNGEST AND OLDEST FLYER: A 15-month old baby and a man, Frank Scanlon, who is 75 years old.

HIGHEST KITE: Tim Foster
LONGEST KITE: Charles Epranian
HIGHEST AND LONGEST (Child's Category): Khalid and Miriam Mikhail (brother and sister).

LARGEST KITE (excluding tail; lifting surface only): Charles Epranian.

LARGEST AND LONGEST (including tail): Brian Welker had a 45 foot mylar dragon.

FUNNIEST PERFORMING KITE: Mike Kozitka; and Kristin Foster whose black octopus did spectacular aerial acrobatics.

MOST KITES ON ONE STRING: The team of Guy Fisher and Friends had four box kites on a string.

CHARLIE BROWN AWARD: This is presented to those flyers whose kites get eaten by trees, and it went to Jerry Isham.

Spot awards were also given out for huge success

various spontaneous criteria, like the longest swimming kite, the most creative tangle and the biggest crash.

Lastly, the Foster family was awarded for its involvement in the contests.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR THE FINEST OCEANFRONT RESORT RESIDENCE IN FLORIDA, HERE'S WHY SHIPP'S LANDING ON MARCO ISLAND SHOULD BE AT THE TOP OF YOUR LIST.

1. The pre-eminent location in Florida. People have been "discovering" Marco Island on Florida's Southwest Coast for centuries, attracted by its spectacular shell-covered beaches, its clear water and brilliant sunsets, its great golf and its nearness to the beautiful Ten Thousand Islands.

Now there's a marvelous place to live on Marco Island. Shipp's Landing. A $75 million resort condominium of uncommon, even bold dimensions, situated on Caxambas Pass at the southern tip of the island. It commands a breathtaking view of the Gulf of Mexico and the Ten Thousand Islands, and unquestionably is the finest oceanfront residential location in Florida.

2. Naples is your neighbor. Naples, one of the most cosmopolitan small towns in America, is less than a half-hour's drive from Shipp's Landing. It has scores of shops, fine restaurants, an excellent hospital and an inviting social atmosphere.

3. A typical Shipp's Landing residence is anything but typical. Shipp's Landing offers two types of residences - apartments ranging in size from 2,192 to 2,622 square feet (penthouses 4,100 to 4,600) and exciting two-story villas with direct access to the beach. No matter which you choose, you'll positively be pampered with thoughtful, luxurious touches and features.

Like separately air-conditioned solariums with floor-to-ceiling glass which can be opened to the sea breezes or closed on infrequent rainy or cool days. A room for all seasons.

And apartments which run the entire depth of the building, meaning you have views of the ocean in one direction and the Ten Thousand Islands in the other. (Considering that all apartments begin at the fourth floor level, everyone has sensational views!)

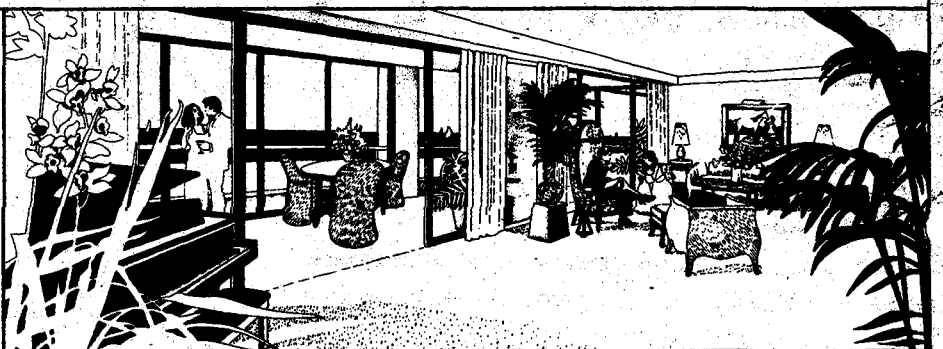

And private elevators serving just two apartments per floor.

And wet bars in the living room. Separate dining rooms. Separate breakfast areas. Separate utility rooms and kitchen pantries. Marble tubs and bath cabinet tops.

And tinted glass. And clear balcony railings for unobstructed views. And much more.

Apartment and villa residences range in price from $207,000 to $445,000.

4. Every conceivable amenity. Shipp's Landing will have five acres of undercover parking; a third of a mile of waterfront including a 700-foot sugar sand beach; three swimming pools; four professional tennis courts; squash court; a movie theater; card, billiard, party and exercise rooms; putting green; yachting facilities; saunas; library and reading rooms; private dining room; hobby and craft rooms; and on and on.

There's nothing else quite like it in Florida.

5. This will be the finest Shipp in North America. For more than 55 years, the Shipp Corporation of Toronto has been one of the most respected members of the Canadian residential building industry. The Company's pledge is more than mere words: Quality will be our first concern. Service will come before expediency. Perfection will be our constant goal.

Shipp's Landing comes to Marco Island with a proud heritage behind it.

Dorothy Erd visits Artisan Shop

A variety of techniques and media by Dorothy Erd are on display in the Artisan Shop and Gallery on West Gulf Drive. Last Friday and Saturday the artist was present to discuss her work with browsers and buyers, and demonstrated methods in oil, watercolor, printing and collage that have earned her many awards in the Chicago area.

The artist's thumb-print work is very unique. These miniature prints are wildlife scenes in which the animal's main body area is illustrated by a thumb-print. Other distinguishing characteristics of the raccoon or egret (or any other animal) are then drawn in to define mood and action.

Mrs. Erd's work is represented in numerous private collections throughout Florida, the midwest, and eastern states, England and Germany.

Dorothy Erd lives in Sarasota where she is active in several art associations.

sunrise service draws crowd

Dr. Fred Robinson was keynote speaker

by gwen stevenson

The pallor of a grey dawn did not diminish the spirits Sunday of the hundreds of people who gathered for the traditional Easter Sunrise Service on the Causeway. The procession of headlights visible in the pre-dawn darkness on Periwinkle Way was reminiscent of earlier pilgrims' journeys. Nor were they disappointed.

Susie Pickens, described by the guest speaker, Dr. David Robinson, Edison Community College president, as a "gentle bulldozer," coordinated the very difficult task of preparing for the service.

One of the crowd got a little more than he bargained for at the service. He had pitched a tent right in front of a 'No Camping' sign and went blissfully asleep with the gentle sound of bay waves in his ears, only to awaken with the first organ crescendo, poke his head out to find that his solitary splendour was now shared by the hundreds of early risers who had gathered for the traditional event.

Last year's speaker, Bruce Larson, asked everyone present at that service to take with them a reminder of the day. Rev. John Wilcox opened his year's service by recounting what he had done with his token; his rusty bottle cap has sat in his office as a daily reminder of the energy and spirit of Easter Sunday.

Dr. Robinson's message centered around the importance of food as spiritual and physical nourishment.

"In America, we get together to eat or we eat to get together," Robinson said after reciting a verse from John in which Jesus Christ told John that, if John loved him, he should "feed my sheep."

"My church is the eatingest church in town," Robinson added lunches and progressed to breakfasts. Is it that we all like 17 different kinds of casseroles? "Robinson queried," or is it something more important." When referring to food as nourishment, he said that spiritual food is nourishment for the soul.

Today, said Robinson, "we'll be given a chance to feed someone" and told his audience that it was important to feed the sheep in one's own family, even if they do not desire the experience. He also warned of people who can feed others, but are themselves unable to accept nourishment.

The service closed with hosts serving fish crackers to the assembled crowds to symbolize the significance of the spirit of Easter.
