"Where am I going?
None of your business!"

By Pat Harmel

Getting up at 5 a.m. to battle noseems, fire ants, drowsiness and Island travelers is hardly my idea of a good time - but it's exactly what I did last Friday morning as a participant in the City's Origin and Destination Study.

The O and D Study, conducted last Tuesday, Friday and Sunday (and April 5) is an attempt by the City to poll 25 percent of the Island traffic on the subject of where they're going and where they've been. Once colated, that information will give the City a statistical base to judge who, what, where, when and how daytrippers, tourists and residents are using Island roads.

The study is being conducted in an extra traffic lane set up across from the Chamber of Commerce office on Causeway Road. Between 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. seven to ten Island volunteers man four hour shifts to ask travelers leaving the Island 20 seconds worth of questions. A good idea? Probably. An informative experience? No doubt. A pleasant way to spend your morning? Not on your life.

I was unable to poll the various volunteer surveyors from the Kiwanis, Rotary and Women League of Voters on their experiences with travelers, but my own experience, and that of those who worked the morning shift last Friday with me, left me doubting the legendary inherent evil of tourists and wondering about the heritage of many of our Island residents.

Sanibel pioneer honored

By Betsy Zeiss

It is interesting to speculate but impossible to know the thoughts that the Rev. Andrew A. Wiren and his wife, Abia, shared with one another as the train on which they were riding left the rugged potato country of Arrostock County in Maine and threaded its way south to Florida. Their four children were all too young to attach much significance to the journey that was designed to save their father's waning health. The year: 1884.

Wiren, a Lutheran, had been the first man of the cloth in New Sweden, Maine, serving the community for 11 years. When he fell ill, he heeded the doctor's suggestion and headed for warmer climate. How or why the Wirens chose Sanibel Island is a mystery that goes beyond the scope of this article, but after they got off, presumably at Tampa, they took a sailing vessel to the barrier island, becoming one of four families living at the lonely outpost.

Six years later the Reverend Wiren succumbed to tuberculosis, and his widow gathered up all the family's worldly possessions and with them and her children returned to New Sweden, where for a number of years she served as postmistress. Florida left scant impression on the children, though one of them, Estella, in turn told her son, Vaughan Pearson, that she had lived in Florida when she was a child. She never pinpointed the area.

It wasn't until Vaughan and his wife, Bertha, moved to Cape Coral several years ago that his Aunt Alice, then 95, remarked, "Goodness, that's close to where we were when we lived at Sanibel Island."

Sanibel Island? The Pearsons couldn't believe it. Thus, after they had settled in Cape Coral, they began a search at the Lee County courthouse for any records pertaining to the Wiren family. They were lucky in finding what they did, since in 1894 Lee County had yet to be established. At that time it was part of sprawling Monroe County, with the county seat at Bustling Key West.

The Pearsons learned that Andrew Wiren purchased 80 acres extending from the present site of Page Field south to the Sheraton Inn, paying 25 cents an acre. In 1887 he sold the parcel for $350, making a substantial profit. It can be assumed that this land was for speculation since he actually homesteaded 160 acres of land on Sanibel.

The original frame homestead still stands but only someone knowing of its whereabouts could possibly find it, for it

City favors special taxing district for canal maintenance

By Rexford Anderson

Sanibel's City Council last week approved a draft bill which, if passed by the State Legislature, will allow the City to create a special taxing district for the maintenance and management of Island canals.

The tax would be levied on canal front property owners (after an area referendum vote) should dredging be deemed necessary for their area. With this system registered voters in each area will be able to vote "for" or "against" dredging in their canals.

The decision to approve a bill was reached at a special public hearing held last Tuesday, at the Sanibel Community Association building. City Manager Bernie Murphy opened the hearing by explaining the results of a questionnaire survey recently distributed to Sanibel canal front property owners. Survey questions included whether or not the property owners owned a boat; whether the canals in their area needed dredging, and whether or not they would be willing to pay for such maintenance if it were performed by the city.

Fifty-one percent of the total 1145 questionnaires distributed had been returned to the City by last week's meeting. The survey was broken into several geographic areas. Favorable responses were received from Sanibel Estates, Shell Harbor, Anchors Aweigh, Sanibel Isles, Sanibel Harbor, Betts Subdivision, Castaways Subdivision, and Del Saga Subdivision. Caloosa Shores was the only subdivision responding negatively.

Although public comment was largely favorable, some of the property owners were present to voice their dissatisfaction with the proposal. The staff planning report, coordinated by City Planner Ty Symroski, indicated that some owners were concerned about the environmentally harmful effects of canal dredging.

William Krueger, of 430 E. Gulf Dr., Sanibel Estates, voiced his fears at the hearing that dredging in the Shell Harbor canals might affect the canals in Sanibel Estates.

"Some of the canals, even though in two different subdivisions, use them as one system," he said. "Shell Harbor and Sanibel Estates must be considered as one. If the canals in Shell Harbor are dredged, Sanibel Estates might flood. If you get the right wind and right tides and bring all that water into our canal, it will flood."

Also concerned about the possible environmental effects was Sanibel resident Joe McMurtry who commented, "I oppose any dredging of the canal in my area which will harm the mangrove banks."

Negative reactions were received on surveys returned from condominium owners in Sea Wind, Sanibel Arms, Sanibel Moorings, Tennisplace, and Mariner Pointe.

"In the study, it became apparent that the condominium owners are less favorable," noted Jim Irwin of Shell Harbor. "I personally made a count of the boats behind Mariner Pointe, and the count of boats behind Shell Harbor. This is how it worked out: Mariner Pointe, 22 boats, private residences, 4. It seems to me that condominium owners use boats just as much as, if not more than private owners. Yet they aren't willing to pay for canal dredging. If this is the way condominium owners react, I hate to think of the reaction from interval owners."

After hearing public comment, the Council commenced with the procedures necessary for filing a bill with the State Legislature. State Representative Frank Mann will be asked to introduce the bill the next session of the State Legislature, which begins April 8. If passed, the bill will authorize the City Council to create special taxing districts. The taxes will be used strictly for the maintenance of canals, waterways, and navigable channels. Cost to the owners will be decided at the time of a public referendum.

Taxation Committee told breakdown not required

By Jim Stasiowski

Indications are that Lee County is not legally required to delineate precisely how County money is budgeted in each of the County's three cities, the Tri-City Dual Taxation Committee was told last week.

Fred Zander, a Cape Coral resident who serves as chairman of the Committee, told the Committee that Lee County Attorney Jim Yaeger received a verbal report from the Florida Attorney General's office that a more specific breakdown of the County budget is not required.

"The indications are strong that there is no legal requirement for the County to provide the cities with a budget identifiable at the city level," Zander said.

He added that the law now requires only that the County differentiate between "countywide" budget items and "non-countywide." Formerly, Zander said, the requirement was that the breakdown be made based on "incorporated" and "unincorporated" areas.

"Now, it's even worse than it was," Zander said.

The Committee is delving into the lingering, volatile issue of dual taxation, the levying of taxes on City residents for County services duplicated by City departments.

In order to bolster the claims of Cape Coral, Fort Myers and Sanibel against the Lee County Commission, the Committee wanted to obtain a complete breakdown of how much the County spends in each city for specific projects. Thus, the County Commission was asked to seek a Florida Attorney General's opinion on the law requiring the budget breakdown.

Zander said Yaeger is requesting a written opinion to back up the verbal opinion he received.

The Committee will be meeting again to discuss a breakdown of County projects compiled by Zander. The breakdown includes a listing of County projects and whether or not the County Budget Officer considers each one of countywide or non-countywide benefit.

Committee members representing each city will review the list and offer opinions on whether the budget officer's designations are accurate.

From that base, the Committee will recommend questions that each city should present to the County concerning the possibility of dual taxation existing.

Under the Committee's tentative plan, the questions would be attached to a resolution to the County with the intent of determining "what services and programs are being financed by countywide revenue but provide no real or substantial benefit" to the individual cities.

The Committee members agreed that the County has the capability of determining how the budget items are split up among the cities, but County officials are reluctant to reveal that information unless specific questions are asked.

"They may consider it too much trouble or they don't want the exposure," Zander said.

"Somewhere in their system, they have it (the information), but they have made an intelligent decision not to put it in their machine (computer)," Zander said.

Committee member John Blomquist said the Committee should urge the cities to try to convince the State Legislature to draw up laws that could clarify the problems faced in determining possible dual taxation situations.

Intersection on today's Council agenda

The Sanibel City Council held a public hearing on the Causeway-Lindgren-Periwinkle Way intersection last week, in response to public outcry over the Council approved "Lopsided O" improvement design.

About 100 residents attended the hearing and, after listening to Council opinions, a historical review of the intersection problem, and a presentation of the possible options (presented by Harry Bertossa of the Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff engineering firm), for the most part remained opposed to the approved intersection design.

The majority of the residents in attendance favored traffic signalization or continued law enforcement traffic control over construction of a new intersection.

Islander Allen Miller presented the Council with an alternate proposal that utilized the present intersection and added "stacking" lanes. That proposal drew applause from the audience.

There will be a public hearing and review of the approved intersection design at today's Council meeting at MacKinzie Hall. The intersection is slated for 2:30 p.m. discussion.

Harry Bertossa, of the Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff engineering firm, appeared before an audience of 100 at last week's public hearing on the proposed Causeway Road intersection. Mr. Bertossa gave a detailed explanation of each of the six proposed intersection designs under consideration by the City.

Over 700 hungry people hulaed over to the Sanibel Police Luau Saturday night. Officer Dick Noon described the turnout as "fantastic - a real success for the Department".

The Luau was held to raise money to send members of the Department to the State Police Olympics at Tallahassee in June and the International Olympics held in New York during August. A goal of $4,500 to $5,000 was set before the event. Noon estimates that they came "close to the goal."

The Sanddollar with Doves Necklace

Legend has it that the sanddollar tells the story of Christ's suffering and his glory. The five holes represent the five wounds of Christ. On the front the Easter Lily-its center, a five pointed star representing the star of Bethlehem. On the back the outline of the Christmas Poinsettia reminds us of His birthday. When the shell is broken open, the five Doves of Peace and Good Will appear.

A lovely Way to wish someone special a Happy Easter.

In our opinion...

Despite the public outcry stemming from the initial shock of the recently approved Causeway-Lindgren-Periwinkle Way intersection, there appears to be very few Islanders contesting the basic supposition that SOMETHING must be done - even if that something is a mere traffic signal or continued police traffic enforcement.

It is true that the Islands' hurricane season falls during a time when Island-Causeway traffic is minimal.

It is true that the entrance to the Islands sets the tone for visitors crossing the Causeway. Whatever appearance the first Island intersection eventually takes on, the stress should be on slow speeds, attractive design and environmental suitability in keeping with the image we are trying to preserve.

It is true that the approved design - along with several other proposed designs - cuts a path across the recently purchased Causeway Property. But it is also true that a City complex is the favored use for that property - a use that will pose no small impact itself.

It is true that there has not been a single accident at the Causeway intersection in the last year - due mostly to the dedication of the Sanibel Police Department. But surely there must be more pressing business for the Police Department to attend to - like patrolling beach accesses, attending accidents, responding to emergency calls, patrolling the roads for speeders, investigating burglaries etcetera. Police intervention is now necessary at the intersection for two to four hours a day during the season. The experts predict that by Island build-out that peak period will increase to eight hours a day.

It is true that Lindgren residents are liable to have a hard time making the jump onto the Periwinkle 'O' - that's why construction of the intersection goes hand in hand with construction of the Gulf Drive connector - which is intended NOT as a main thoroughfare but for mainly residential use.

It is true that control of Periwinkle Way will be reverting to Lee County in 1982 and it is true that the County Commissioners are infamous for not only ignoring aesthetics and environmental concerns but residents' opinions as well.

It is true that negotiations are underway for Sanibel to buy the Causeway - but ownership will not guarantee ability to limit traffic. The County is not likely to sell without including provisions prohibiting a raise of the $3 toll.

It is true that the Island is not likely to fall into the Gulf the morning after the first traffic light is installed. But it is also true that during peak traffic hours a light would have to be manually controlled - most likely by a member of the City staff or Police Department.

It is true that we are not engineers - only concerned citizens. We don't pretend to know what is the safest and most effective solution to the Causeway intersection problem, we only know that SOMETHING must be done.

It is because we're not experts that we vote for Councilmembers we trust will hire learned City staff and consulting experts to act in our best interest. The Comprehensive Land Use Plan claims SOMETHING must be done with the intersection. The transportation consultants claim SOMETHING must be done, as do our City Planners and City Police. Our elected officials have recognized the need for SOMETHING and finally taken steps toward improvement.

To hold the position of City official is to hold the public trust in one's hands. We only hope that our trust is not violated or abused and that the SOMETHING eventually approved by the City to improve the Causeway intersection proves to be the wisest solution.

...In your opinion

Oh!

To: Editor, THE ISLANDER

One traffic plan ain't all that bad.
Its name is what is really sad.
Our islanders will never go
For something called "Lopsided O."

A Nickname Consultant has therefore been hired,
Who already of many of has inquired.
Some raunchy suggestions were thought to be mean
In fact you could say they were downright obscene.
And (just as the artful among you might guess)
A number were pushing the famed Hogarth S.

But far and away the most eloquent group
Came up with a dilly -- "THE SANIBELOOP."

Options to "O"

A similar letter has been sent to members of the Sanibel City Council and City Manager Murphy.

Letter to the Editor: The Islander
Re: Periwinkle-Lindgren Intersection

If the City does nothing about what many see as an inconvenient but manageable intersection at this time, the County may, after taking over the road in 1982, judge the traffic congestion impossible for its residents to tolerate and proceed to construct rotaries, modified T intersections, or whatever it deems necessary. This may include traffic signals, overhead lights, concrete ramps, etc.

Why not use available road construction funds and proceed to make the minor improvements to the Periwinkle-Lindgren intersection necessary to help traffic flow more freely, and, at the same time, proceed to construct the road cutting across the Causeway Property from Bailey to Causeway road south of the Chamber of Commerce? This road's use could be restricted to hurricane evacuation, and-or to local traffic, and-or to peak seasonal traffic needs controlled by our policemen.

This option would be comparatively inexpensive and would preserve most of the Southern half of the Causeway purchase intact with only a strip of non-native vegetation being removed. Sanibel would have this area available for a city complex, mass transit parking, or whatever it wished in the future. The current traffic pattern could continue much of the year as it is now, but with built-in flexibility for developing needs. It would provide, with 1980 dollars, a hurricane evacuation route and a traffic control option for the future which would make any County action unnecessary.

Sincerely,
Louise N. Johnson

SCCF clarifies renourishment policy

A copy of the following letter was given to the Islander for publication:

Col. James W.R. Adams
U.S. Army Corps of Engineers
P.O. Box 4970
Jacksonville, FL 32201

Dear Col. Adams:

The position of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation on the proposed beach renourishment plan for Captiva Island should be a part of the official record. Back in October, 1979 our board of directors took the following position:

"Important questions remain unanswered regarding the environmental consequences of beach renourishment. Therefore, it is the consensus of the board of directors of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation that beach renourishment projects should not be permitted to proceed in Lee County until information is available to satisfactorily answer those questions."

The environmental questions relating to the consequences of the South Seas Plantation renourishment plan remain unanswered in our opinion. Until some responsible agency provides tangible evidence that there will be no environmental damage resulting from such beach renourishment, we continue to be opposed.

Sincerely yours,
George C. Tenney
Chairman
Environmental Affairs Committee

Easter egg hunt canceled

To The Editor:

The best laid plans of mice and men often go astray. Such is our plight at the American Legion. We regret very much having to cancel the plans for our Easter egg hunt but believe us, we'll make it up to the kids at a later date and we'll keep everyone informed.

Our reason for cancelling is that we did not wish to conflict with another community function (the kite flying contest) to which we give our wholehearted support. We will, however, still hold the drawing for the 25-inch color TV console at 8 p.m. at the Post Home on San-Cap Road. Come by and visit with us on Saturday, April 5. I know you'll enjoy it.

Saturday, May 24 will be American Legion open house. More details on that later.

Weymouth closes Audubon lecture series

By Jody Fisher

George Weymouth, noted ornithologist and local birding guide, closed out the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society's lecture series for the 1979-1980 season last Thursday night at the Sanibel Community Center.

In a program of easy banter and color slides of local birds, Weymouth made evident his vast knowledge of the area's wildlife. While identifying the birds featured in the slides, Weymouth offered information on their different seasonal plumage and the arrival and departure times of various visiting species.

Highlights of the show included fortunate close-ups of two newly hatched Black Neck Stilts which, according to Weymouth, "looked less like birds and more like fuzzy golf balls with legs."

Weymouth also gave examples of various songs of local birds and their "human translations," such as the song of the White-eyed Vireo ("Sip your beer now, Chip").

Words of Weymouth bird wisdom explained why some shore birds stand on one foot (to alternately dry their feet to avoid contracting a fungus) and why most birds have dark wingtips (the extra pigment on the end of the wings adds strength to the wing structure).

According to Weymouth, the bird population of Sanibel and Captiva is beginning to dwindle. The cause of this, be it man-made or of some natural cause, he said, is not always known.

One definite casualty of man's progress is the Least tern, which arrives on Sanibel around April 6, and was once sighted in abundance. The increasing number of construction and land moving sites, however, have flushed the Least tern from their usual nesting grounds and there have been no rookeries on the Islands for the last three or four years. Also affected is the Grey Canebird - with only 50 sightings this year compared to 3,000 on a previous count.

Weymouth's audience grimly witnessed the plight of another victim of man's ignorance towards his environment.

Weymouth's camera had captured an Oyster Catcher limping along a local shore, its foot entwined in a gnarl of monofilament fishing line. Minutes after the picture was taken, the bird lost its leg.

At the close of the slide presentation, Weymouth announced plans to take a hiatus from his usual bird tour duties to devote more time to his wildlife wood carving and painting. He did say, however, that he would perhaps be conducting a few wildlife walks through the Ding Darling Refuge in the future.

Weymouth was then joined by Audubon president, Mark "Bird" Westall, and Junior board member, Adamm Smith, for a question and answer session. Westall had reassuring news on the area's Osprey population, reporting 41 occupied nests this year - with one located on top of the Sanibel fire station's siren!

The Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society Board members for the 1980-1981 season, voted in at last Thursday's meeting are:

Mark Westall - President
Francis Saxinger - Vice-President

Jack Collins - Treasurer
Virginia Loomis - Secretary
Lorimer Moe - Program Chairman
Charlie Evans - Audio-Visual Director

MacCarry publishes - and puppetry will never be the same!

Bert W. MacCarry, Sanibel resident and Lee County Puppeteer and Storyteller Consultant, made her mark in a national publication last month - and school libraries all over the United States may never be the same again.

The lead article in the February issue of the School Library Journal, authored by Ms. MacCarry, is titled "Shadows and Substance: puppets in the library."

The irresistible urge in small children to play with light falling on a wall has been turned from a classroom distraction into an educational and creative learning tool, easily adaptable by school librarians, by the innovative MacCarry.

Overhead projectors and the ability to darken a schoolroom are the only major tools required for shadow puppetry, according to MacCarry's article. Geography, history, social studies and science are just a few of the academic subjects that lend themselves to puppetry illustration.

In her article, MacCarry details the entire procedure for utilizing shadow puppets in the classroom under the supervision of both teachers and librarians. Background for overhead projector puppet shows can easily be produced with acetate cutouts and music is an added plus while the children portray their favorite story characters on the screen. Stage lighting is also possible through the use of flashlights or portable lamps.

Ms. MacCarry's article is available through the libraries of area schools. The accompanying photographs were shot by Desiree Frederics, also of Sanibel, and illustrate area children (Jennifer Workman, Tiffany Slay and Grant Slay) at work on a shadow puppet project.

The shells of at least four of your one dozen hard-boiled eggs have emerged from the pot with hairline fractures (just like last year). The kitchen is filled with the aroma of vinegar and vegetable dye and the kids are fighting over their favorite cup of azure blue - which is running a bit low because half of it is spreading across your new formica countertop, staining it a lovely shade of robin's egg blue. While in the midst of this yearly madness, have you ever stopped to wonder who or what is responsible for this custom now running the risk of becoming strictly commercial?

First, let's understand the true meaning of Easter Sunday. Easter is the principal Christian feast day, celebrating the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. It is celebrated on the first Sunday after the full moon that falls on or after the vernal equinox (March 21). Thus, Easter falls within the 35-day period between March 22 and April 25 inclusive. The date of Easter in some Eastern churches may vary from the Western date.

There is some confusion as to where the English word "Easter" originated. During the Eighth Century, the Venerable Bede proposed that the word was derived from the Anglo-Saxon goddess of Spring - Eostre. Whereas this explanation has long been popular, consider this view: In the early Church, Easter week was known as hebdomada alba ("white week"), in honor of the white clothing worn by those baptized at Easter. The plural of white was later misunderstood as the plural of dawn and was then translated into Old High German as eostarum, from which the English word "Easter" was born!

Easter holiday traditions vary throughout the world, ranging from the strictest religious customs to the more frivolous exchanging of colored eggs and chocolate bunnies. But all these customs basically originate from the same event - the observance of Christ's Passion and Resurrection and the welcoming of Spring. Palm Sunday processions reenacting Christ's entry into Jerusalem are common and are an integral part of some official liturgies. In some areas, it is customary to recreate still other events, such as the Crucifixion, the burial and the visitation of the tomb. These dramatizations evolved into complete plays during the Middle Ages, some of which are still performed today, such as the famous Passion Play presented yearly in Lake Wales, Florida.

So, where do eggs come into the picture? Historically, eggs were forbidden during the Lenten fast and could only be eaten again at Easter. At that time, decorated eggs symbolized the ending of the penitential season and the start of a joyful celebration. The eggs also suggested the Resurrection, as traditional symbols of life and creation.

Eggs dyed in the shades of the Northern Lights or the returning sun symbolized the coming of Spring. And the worldwide tradition of coloring eggs may well be as old as Easter itself.

Centuries ago, the method of tinting eggs was to boil them with flowers or leaves. Spinach leaves produced green shades, gorse blossoms, yellow, and logwood chips in boiling water resulted in egg shells of a rich violet hue.

In Switzerland, the coloring of Easter eggs was no simple task. First, tiny flowers and leaves were bound onto the eggs, which were then wrapped with the outer skin from an onion. The result was a mottled yellow shell scattered with the white patterns of the painstakingly applied flora.

And, just for the record, England's Edward I's household accounts for 1290 A.D. include an entry for "eighteenpence" spent on the purchase of 450 eggs - which were to be covered with leaf gold and distributed to the royal household.

In English homes today, decorated hen or duck eggs are the main attraction at the Easter breakfast table. Accompanied by descendants made of chocolate or marzipan, the eggs are frequently dyed red, commemorating the blood Christ shed on Good Friday.

Which came first - Easter or the egg?

Coincidentally, scarlet eggs were exchanged in the Spring by the Chinese and other pagan peoples many centuries before the birth of Christ, perhaps because the egg, dyed red, represents an Oriental emblem of life.

The red-and-white color theme also appears prominently in Hungary, where a red flower pattern is first traced with wax onto eggs that are then dipped into cold paint. The serious Hungarian egg artist then "shoes" the eggs with tiny metal shoes - complete with spurs and a small metal hanger. The hanger enables young men to display their wares on little Easter trees which they set up outside the homes of girls they admire.

In Poland, the Easter egg is similarly symbolic of romantic intentions. In a tradition that has been slowly dying since the first World War, skillful Polish girls give their favored suitors anywhere from 30 to 100 personally decorated eggs. For those less artistically inclined, there are several egg-decorating specialists within the village to do the artwork in exchange for money, food or housework. The finished products are wrapped in a fine lawn kerchief, lovingly embroidered with the intended's initials, along with another small gift of flowers or a packet of tobacco. In return, the young man is expected to give the girl a piece of dress material or gaily colored ribbons.

Besides serving as symbols of love, Easter eggs are considered good luck charms by many. In parts of the Balkans for example, a few eggs are usually kept in the home throughout the year in the belief that they will protect the house from evil. And, as added insurance against hail and thunder, a handful may be planted in the vineyards for good measure.

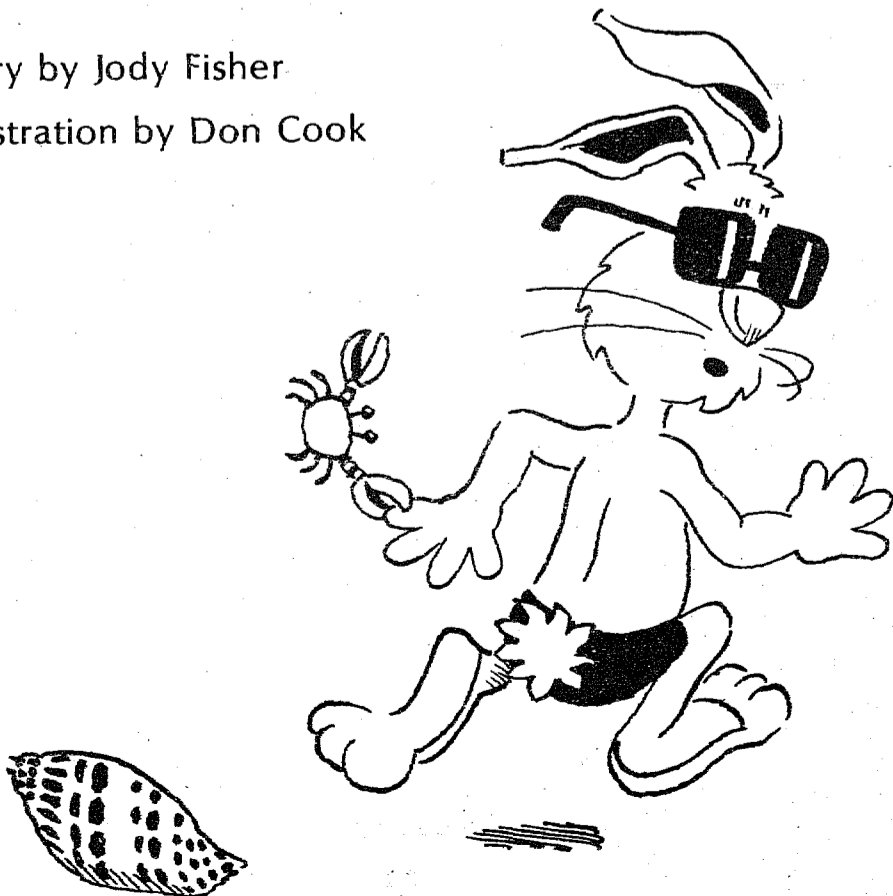

Easter eggs are also important tools in the art of egg rolling and shackling or some of the other ancient games played in many European countries as well as England. In the game of egg shackling, a hard-boiled egg is firmly grasped in the right hand, making an unexpectedly tough weapon then used to strike the fist of others similarly armed. The first contestant to smash his opponent's egg wins, of course.

As for egg rolling, the game is still practiced in Europe and, in a more familiar form introduced by the wife of President Madison, in Washington D.C. Thousands still converge Easter morning to participate in the traditional egg roll conducted on the White House lawn.

Eggs are not always delivered by lovely maidens or amorous young men, however. The hare, or rabbit, in keeping with the rites of Spring, is considered an ancient symbol of fertility and is the true Easter beast - for he was once sacred to the European Spring-goddess Eostre.

Children in Europe have been taught for centuries the story of the Easter Hare who lays colored eggs in the garden or about the house. Ritual hare hunts took place at one time in England during the Spring season as well.

The Easter Bunny, who performs the same duties in the United States, is a direct variant of this tradition. American children learn a similar story, portraying the Easter Bunny as the one responsible for laying the beautiful eggs they find in their Easter baskets on Easter morning.

Sanibel's own Easter Bunny will be making an appearance this Friday, April 4, at the Bank of the Islands. He'll be passing out candy and posing for free Polaroid pictures with the children between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. and from 4 p.m. til 6 p.m.

Today, April 1, students at Sanibel Elementary will be learning the fine art of egg decorating during "art day." Then, this Thursday afternoon, the young artists and their finished products will vie for first prize in bonnet decorating and egg decorating contests, followed by an Easter egg hunt.

The Children's Center of the Islands will throw an Easter party this Thursday, April 3, with a traditional Easter egg hunt on the playground.

There will also be an Easter Sunrise Service held at the Sanibel Causeway at 6:13 a.m., Sunday, April 6. The public is invited to attend

Captiva Civic Association raffles off rug, gains new members

The Civic Association of Captiva has announced two new members - Mrs. Hulburd Johnston and Mrs. Dorothy Wakefield. Two re-elected members are Mr. Richard Angle and Dr. Leo Hofschneider.

The Civic Association of Captiva meets every two weeks on Tuesdays at 9:30 a.m. at the Civic Association Center. General meetings are on the fourth Tuesday of each month except during the summer months.

According to Mrs. Ralph Friedmann, two Captiva residents were winners of this year's Captiva Rug Raffle. The winner of the handmade needlepoint Captiva Rug was Dan Burner, and Ralph Friedmann won the hand sewn director's chair. The drawing was held last Tuesday evening at the Captiva Civic Association meeting.

This year's rug raffle grossed nearly $9,600. The net proceeds from the raffle help support the Captiva Civic Center and the Captiva Library.

Scouts attend Labelle Camporee

Sanibel Captiva Boy Scout Troop 88 attended a camporee in Labelle this month, sponsored by Troop 9 of Labelle. The Labelle Lions Club took care of all physical arrangements.

The camporee, known as the Country Cowboy Camporee, was attended by nearly 175 Scouts and leaders on the weekend of March 21, 22, and 23.

Troop 88 combined their efforts with seven members of Troop 163 of Naples to take the first place award for all events. The events included: bomb disposal, Roman chariot race, estimating and measuring, log haul, blindfold compass course, chain gang race, and first aid for injured cowboys.

On Saturday evening the Scouts enjoyed the campfire with many songs, skits, and cheers. The campfire also included an Order of the Arrow tap out of which Keith Wainright was voted for by the members of Troop 88.

Vesper services were held on Saturday evening for Catholic Scouts and on Sunday morning for all the other Scouts.

Scott Ritchie of Troop 88 did a fine job as camp bugler for the weekend.

The Island Scouts in attendance along with their Scoutmaster Ron Sebald were: Bryan Walker, Scott Ritchie, Matt Nichols, Todd Lorenz, Keith Wainright, and Scott Wolin.

Project S.O.A.R. comes to the Islands

Project S.O.A.R. (Save Our American Resources) comes to Sanibel and Captiva this year on the 3rd of May. It is the highlight of all the ongoing conservation and environmental programs across the United States.

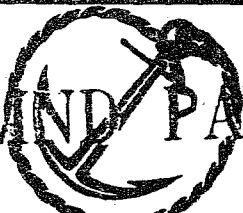

It is much more than a trash cleanup day. The emphasis will also be on recycling, cleaning our waterways, planting trees and shrubs, and conducting environmental educational programs.

Last year, nearly 100 volunteers with 28 pick-up trucks, vans, or station wagons covered 55 miles of roads on Sanibel and Captiva picking up nearly 10,000 pounds of litter.

It is hoped that this year we might cover all 75 miles of public roads on Sanibel and Captiva and expand into removing the litter from much of the Sanibel River and also cover some of the heavily used public beaches on the Islands. Everyone is invited to join in and let's see if we can't double our achievement of last year. If you are planning to attend, please contact project chairman Ronald L. Sebald evenings at 472-4719.

The Sanibel-Captiva Boy Scout Troop 88 will be sponsoring the project again this year.

** Denotes very strong tides

Conversion table: The above tides are for the lighthouse point of Sanibel only. To convert for Redfish Pass (north tip of Captiva), add 55 minutes to the time shown for every hi tide subtract two minutes for every low tide.

For Captiva Island Gulf side, subtract 30 minutes from each high tide, and subtract hour and 16 minutes for each low tide.

For Captiva Island, Pine Island Sound (Bay) side, add 1 hour and four minutes for each high tide and add 52 minutes for each low tide.

In between these points, gulf or bay, guesstimate and have good fishing and or shelling.

Sanibel pioneer honored

was taken off the stilts on which it was built and its exterior was covered with sheet metal and it now is a garage.

Nonetheless, Bertha Pearson has a strong attachment and reverence for the structure whose beautiful lumber is revealed when the garage door is open and one can examine the original doors and window frames. Further, she regards the quest for information and the resulting knowledge as very romantic, the more so in thinking that possessions still in the family once graced the sturdy dwelling at Sanibel.

A most fitting and happy outcome of the work that she and her husband accomplished occurred on March 28 at 2 p.m. when a memorial stone was unveiled on Sanibel near Andrew Wiren's grave site. The stone commemorates him as well as Othman Rutland, another Sanibel pioneer. The grave site is east of Clarence O. Rutland's home on Periwinkle Way by Jim's Shell Shop. Katherine Williams, granddaughter of Othman Rutland, shared with Vaughan Pearson in the unveiling, and local dignitaries were on hand to participate in the ceremony.

INTERVAL OWNERSHIP — it's the most vacation for our money.

True — we work hard to earn our vacations and we want the most for our money. Inflation is making resort rentals just too expensive for a family — and we simply can't afford the year-round ownership and maintenance of a vacation home.

So we're here at Plantation Beach Club where interval ownership gives our family the assurance that we can enjoy leisurely vacations each year, in comfort and luxury, — all at a one-time cost that's easy to afford.

We love the islands — it's a great place for June and me to relax and there's so much for the kids to do. Our vacation villa is right on the beach, fully furnished, complete with linens, all the kitchen utensils, magazines, — you name it. We've got two private bedrooms, two bathrooms and a screened porch, so there's plenty of room for the kids.

With barbecues and a full kitchen, we fix breakfast, lunch, snacks and dinners — and save enough money to treat the whole family to nice restaurants once in a while.

There's also an exchange program — so we can change our vacation times and visit other resorts, all without paying rent. We believe Interval Ownership provides the most vacation for our money.

The Green Thumb...

The Easter lily

With Easter right around the corner many of us will soon be receiving one of the most beautiful bulb plants in the world - the Easter Lily (Lilium longiflorum). The Easter Lily is the topic of today's column.

The first thing to consider when you receive your Lily, or any blooming bulb plant for that matter, is to keep it moist and cool. By cool I mean days in the high 60's and nights in the low 50's. I know this is difficult to do in our area in April, but if you have a naturally cool spot in your home the blooms will last much longer. Bright indirect light is also a necessity for proper flower development.

When you receive your Lily, one to three blooms will probably be opened. It is recommended you spray the unopened buds with tepid water (lukewarm water) to aid in their opening. This is especially true if you run your air-conditioner frequently, as this will dry out the air. Also, some people like to remove the yellow stamens after the buds open as the pollen will stain the white petals. While the plant is in bloom a feeding schedule of once a month would be a good idea. That is all you have to do to enjoy your Lily. The refreshing fragrance as well as the pure white of the bloom will definitely put you into the mood of spring.

Now that we have discussed the care of the Lily, what about care after the blooms are gone? The first thing to remember is to remove each bloom as it begins to fade. This is so the plant will not spend energy setting seeds. Eventually, all the blooms will fade and be removed and the green plant will be remaining. Give the plant a bright spot and continue to keep the soil moist the entire time until the leaves mature and wilt away. This takes place usually one or two months after the flowers are gone.

I should mention the forcing of bulbs to bloom at a specific time of year - such as the case of Easter Lilies at Easter time. This is quite a complex procedure which consists of pre-cooled bulbs, exact lighting times, and chemistry to keep specimens short and growth compact. It is by far too complex for the average gardener. However, if you could be content with letting your Lilies bloom when nature calls then it is a very simple procedure.

The time to buy the bulbs is in the fall. Expect the blooms in March or April. To plant the bulbs you will need a six-inch clay or plastic pot with drainage for each bulb. Place a one-inch layer of gravel on the bottom of the container and set the bulb directly on top of the gravel. The reason for this is that the Easter Lily bulb is very susceptible to rot, and good drainage is a must. Next, fill in around the bulb with a soil mix of standard potting soil and compost with slow-release fertilizer added. Fill in around the bulb making sure that the soil is firm. Be sure the bulb is covered by at least two inches of soil by the time you are finished planting. Water very thoroughly at this point and keep the soil moist but not soggy for the entire life of the plant. To get the ultimate growth - full sun and cool nights will do it. To store bulbs simply place them in dry peat moss and put them in a cool dry place.

Happy Growing!

Roadside survey

I was well aware from the very beginning that most people on the road between 6:30 and 9 a.m. are on their way to work and are probably not flattered by inclusion in this historical survey. But keep in the mind the innocuous survey questions take a maximum of 30 seconds to answer.

Smiling Sanibel Police Officer Dick Church attempted to set the tone for the interviewees by flagging them down and, in a demeanor worthy an Academy Award Oscar, informing them they had just become a statistic. He then directed them towards one of the open interview stations set up alongside the road.

The next step was for the interviewer to pick the grit out of her teeth (flying grit occurs when an angry vehicle operator hits the dirt shoulder of a road at 35 miles per hour), smile like Allen Funt and proceed with the questionnaire.

Who would have thought that such anonymous questions as "Where are you from? Where were you staying on the Islands? and How frequently do you make this trip?" would have spawned such indignation? Certainly not I.

Responses included, "None of your !?&! business" (I didn't get that one but a Planning Commissioner did - from a Buckeye non-lady), "How do I know?" "Look I'm in a hurry, make it snappy." "What do you need to know that for?" "I don't have time to answer these damn questions, I'm on my way to the airport."

Perhaps the most interesting responses were non-verbal and came when the interview was over - squealing out of the interview lane, leaving a floating cover of dust to settle on the unsuspecting interviewer as befits one who would dare violate another's Constitutional guarantee to privacy.

What surprised me, and I should say it might have been a response to me specifically because the other interviewers aren't talking, was that every single person who was rude or obscene also happened to be an Island resident. For the most part, the visitors - even if they were in a hurry - were at least courteous.

What else can I say? I was appalled. Living on a "unique" and being in a hurry does not, in my opinion, exclude me from the necessary social graces. It's all the more unfortunate that Islanders would demonstrate such a bad showing when they, not the tourists, are the ones who stand to benefit from the survey findings.

Plaudits, however, must be awarded to Assistant City Manager Gary Price, the Sanibel Police Department, the numerous survey volunteers, Curt Reinhart of the Public Works Department (who brought coffee) and Dave Bloom (who brought ice cream) for their part in keeping the operation running swiftly and smoothly.

Onions, however, to the man in the big green caddy who nearly put out my front teeth with flying gravel.

One suggestion: How about having the City Council work the next roadside survey?

ARTS and ARTISTS music

The Edison Community College Jazz Ensemble will present a Spring concert on Thursday, April 3 at 8 p.m. in the Seven Lakes Auditorium. Tickets are $2 each and are available at the ECC student activities office or at the door.

Ira Sullivan, popular jazz multi-instrumentalist, will be the featured guest soloist with the group. Mr. Sullivan plays trumpet, saxophone and flute and now resides in Miami. He is considered a "jazz educator" and is a successful recording artist.

The ECC Jazz Ensemble is directed by Dennis Hill and is composed of students in the college music program. Soloists for the performance will include Joe Caswell on the trumpet, Randy Carroll on bass trombone and Glen Newson on the tenor saxophone.

plays

Tickets went on sale March 31 for the Edison Community College Theatre Department's production of She Stoops to Conquer. Performances will be held on April 12, 17, 18 and 19 at 8 p.m. with a matinee on Sunday, April 13 at 4 p.m. The play will be presented in the college Fine Arts Auditorium. Tickets are $2 and are available in advance at the cashier's office on the campus or at the door preceding the performance.

Theatre-goers will receive an additional special treat when attending this production. Introducing each show will be Howard M. Scammon, Jr., author and authority on 18th Century theatre. Mr. Scammon was for many years director of the theatre at the college of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia and since his retirement in 1976 has written a book titled William and Mary Theatre: 50 Years. Mr. Richard Westlake, ECC's theatre instructor and director of drama, was a student of Mr. Scammon's at William and Mary.

She Stoops to Conquer is an 18th Century comedy written by Oliver Goldsmith. It is written in a special style called "Presentational Drama" in which the actors interact with the audience by directing lines to them and trying to "out act" each other for the entertainment of the audience. The play is presented solely for entertainment without deep hidden messages or philosophies to be figured out.

M'Liss, (My Western Miss) that unusual comedy fashioned by Virginia Mitchell from the famous novel of Bret Harte's will play Easter Monday, April 7, and will be the final performance to be presented at this, the 16th season of the Pirate Playhouse.

The Hunters, Ruth and Philip, producers of the unique arena theatre, are delighted with the reception audiences from all over the world have given to the three productions - "Three On A Bench," "M'Liss," and "Busybody." They are grateful for the enthusiastic reception given to the splendid casts, a company of 22 actors: Robin Pickens, Dick Robeson, Lora Mainard, John Walsh, Peggy O'Kelly Lickel, Terri Weinberg, Allen Mainard, Jeannie McLoughlin, Alan Pote, Jean Culpepper, Jack Roemer, Judy Kennedy, John Wilcox, Jack Samler, Jene Evans, Leslie Samler, Ty Symroski, Robert

The Schoolhouse Gallery, on Tarpon Bay Road, will be featuring a contemporary group graphics show April 1 - 30. Participating artists are:

Walter Crump, a graduate of Boston University School of Art who has won over 24 national awards since 1973. A collection of Crump's etchings and collagraphs will be on hand for the Schoolhouse April show.

Ruth Ensign has been featured in over 55 exhibitions, including nine one-woman shows. Ms. Ensign's hand-made cast paper prints will be on display.

Nancy Miller - an alumna of the Maryland Institute of Fine Arts in Baltimore. Since originating a unique art form of multi-layered paper and plexiglas constructions in 1965, her work has been included in over 100 public and corporate collections as well as many private and museum collections.

Judith Shahn, who completed graduate work at the Institute of Fine Arts, New York University, and has held many one-woman shows since 1964, including the Griffiths Art Center Gallery, St. Lawrence University, Canton, N.Y., where her work is also in permanent collection. Her work has appeared in, among others, The New Yorker and Harpers magazines. Ms. Shahn's serigraphs will be featured at the Schoolhouse Gallery this month.

Judy Targan, whose limited edition graphics are a combination of relief and intaglio printing. Ms. Targan uses German Etching, a 100 percent rag content paper, with the tinted areas of the embossment printed in relief. The intaglio printing is "inkless."

Anne Youkeles, who studied in Vienna, Austria, Paris and New York and whose work has won numerous awards and is featured in many collections, including the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Ms. Youkeles will be showing her silk screen modules at the Gallery.

An exhibit of "Wildwood Originals," by Sanibel artist Mell Goodwin, opened Friday at Three Crafty Ladies on Periwinkle Way. The show will continue through April.

The trees that talk to me

The Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation's beautiful Palm Ridge Trail (ending at the Alligator Hole) is perhaps the most elegant natural forest on Sanibel Island.

It was more than six years ago that I first walked this beautiful mile-long trail, but it was to become a favorite pastime of mine, and one frequently shared with the late, great Sanibel ornithologist, Richard Beebe.

Together we probably covered it some 500 times. More recently, I have continued this enjoyable activity for another couple hundred times on my own. So, it could be said that I have closely scrutinized this Trail over the last six years - compiling a total travel mileage of about 700 miles. But even so, every time I traverse it I see something new that had previously escaped my attention and, through my continuing observations of this relatively short ridge, with its beautiful palm forest, the trees have begun to share their story with me. Each and every one has a different story, and each has experienced unique conditions resulting in differences that can be interpreted by the careful observer.

The landmark occurrence that most influenced the recent history of this area and its palm tree inhabitants was a wildfire back in 1972. The Spring of '72 had been very dry and when a fire broke out (probably started by lightning) somewhere west of Tarpon Bay Road, a westerly wind quickly turned it into a raging inferno, rushing westward and thoroughly charring the entire Palm Ridge.

Further to the south, buildings near Rabbit Road and Gulf Drive were threatened. Arthur Hunter's home was kept wet by spraying and live coals were blown across Gulf Drive to sizzle into extinction on the beach. The blazing fire was stopped by Gulf Drive, and Rabbit Road became an effective barrier on which a back fire was successfully started.

"It was a huge and raging fire - it had been very, very dry" remembers Islander Ann Winterbotham, who helped Arthur Hunter save his home. "The dense, black smoke had us coughing for weeks afterward."

Sanibel resident Paul Howe recalls it was "a huge and frightening thing - 100 foot flames were heading directly for my house!"

But fire is a natural commonplace occurrence on our barrier island, so it is not surprising that habitat recovery followed the great blaze and our beautiful Palm Ridge was eventually enhanced in interest and beauty.

Story by George Campbell

The Cabbage Palm, technically known as Sabal palmetto, is the State Tree of Florida. The examples along the Palm Ridge Trail tell their stories eloquently by way of a complex code - the symbols of which are fire scars, growing rate (or dying), patterns of growth of long gone Strangler Fig trees, Poison Ivy vines, and other factors, including elevation, soil quality and wind exposure.

The concept of "talking trees" is not quite so strange as one might at first think. The American Indians believed there were many talking trees, so I don't feel it is too ludicrous for me to employ the term.

The American Indians believed in talking trees, so I don't feel too ludicrous employing the term.

Here we see two secrets that the trees tell us. The light and dark patterns on the tree on the left are caused by fire protection provided by a Strangler Fig (Ficus aurea) growing on the tree at the time of the '72 fire. The fig has since fallen away dead, leaving unburnt the palm bole surface, demarcated by the fire line. Strangler Figs have considerably less fire tolerance than Sabal Palms, but a casual observation of this forest will reveal many youngsters growing both epiphytically and free standing. So, although fire kills them (as in this case), they do return to grow quite rapidly. Many youngsters, germinated since the great fire, now exist here. The other tree was almost completely protected by its petioles - which obviously have been burned and which will display a fire-free bole when they fall off. Someday someone will wonder why there is a clean and unscarred tree growing adjacent to one so badly scarred.

This beautiful Palm has retained virtually every leaf that it ever had throughout its rather long life which predates the 1972 fire. The very fact that these leaves are on the tree is proof plenty that the fire by-passed this particular spot. If you are ever caught out on the Trail in a heavy rainstorm you can keep dry by crouching beneath these leaves, which are guaranteed to provide a waterproof tent. But don't be surprised if a raccoon or a rattlesnake joins you for the same reason!

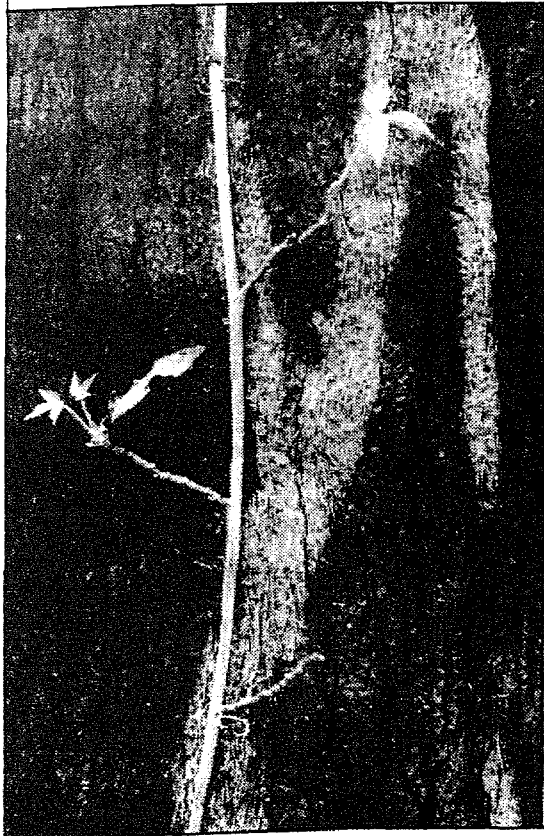

Evidence of fire can be seen at the base of this Cabbage Palm but I believe the Strangler Fig tree has grown up completely since, for there's no obvious damage to it and these trees do not withstand damage by fire-very successfully.

The Sabal Palm has another name - the Cabbage Palm - derived from its bud, or meristem, which is quite tasty when eaten either cooked or raw in salad. The Sabal is frequently called swamp cabbage by native Floridians. To get a swamp cabbage one must kill our own State Tree which isn't exactly my idea of good conservation. Natives will counter with the true statement that this species is immensely prolific and it really doesn't matter if a goodly number of them are consumed each year for human food. But I don't like to kill them anyway. I think we must begin to instill in our young people the concept of conservation of most living things - else our grandchildren will live in an environment where their happiness will be depleted by the tragic destruction of natural systems.

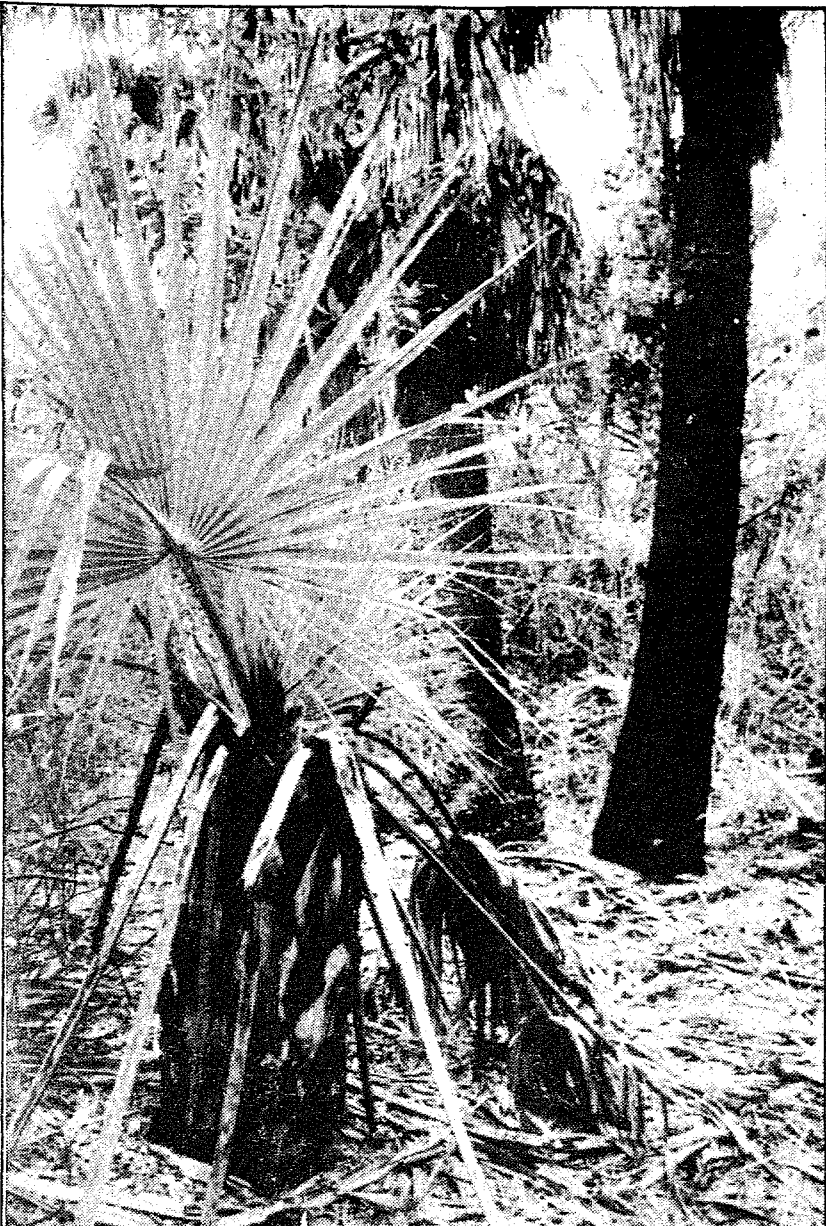

One way to get rid of Poison Ivy is by employing a forest fire! Here we see a badly fire-scarred tree with long fire-free lines which represent the dead vine of a long gone Poison Ivy plant. Also evident are small vines growing near the site of the old ones.

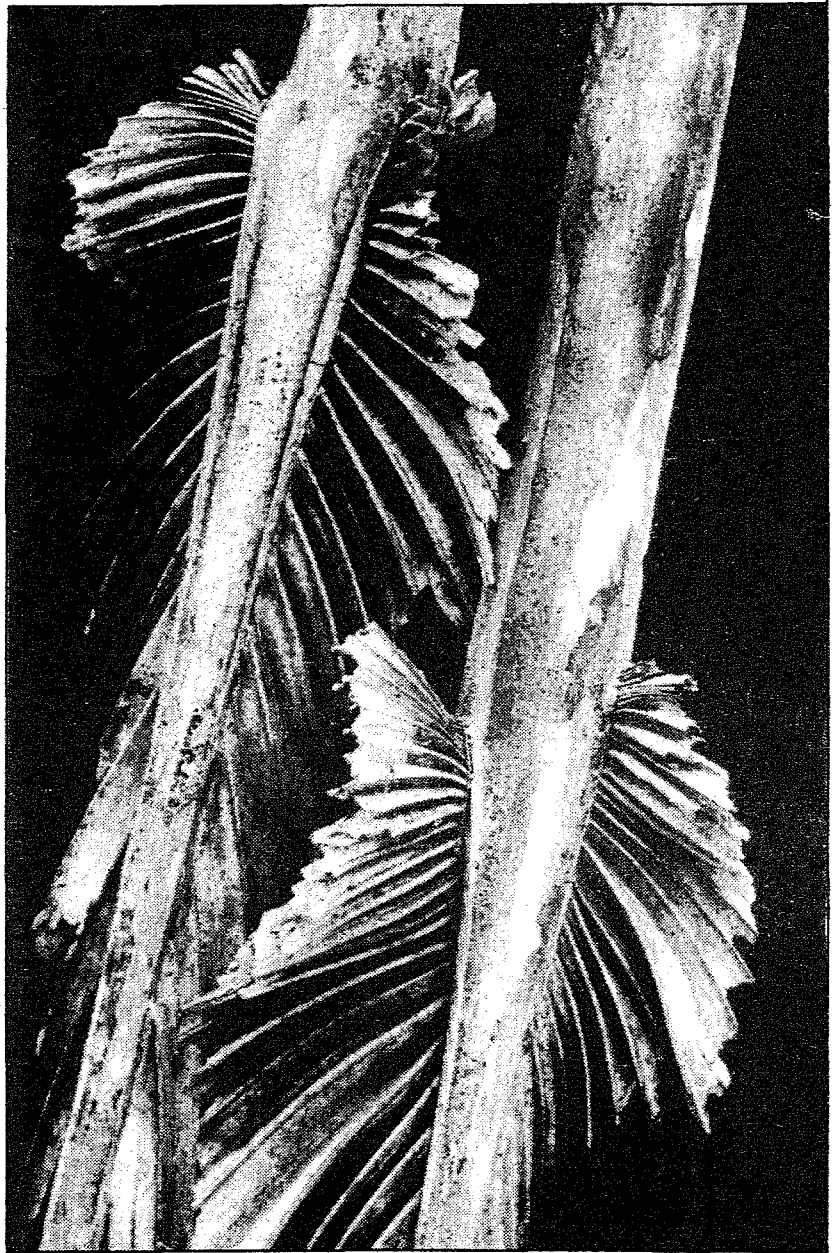

It's not too difficult on the Trail to find trees with absolutely no scarring at all standing right next to trees with completely blackened boles. The trees on the left and in the middle were obviously covered with petioles on the day of the fire and the heat was sufficient enough to burn through to the cortical or "bark" layer at the bottom; or perhaps the petioles were already gone from that region, thus allowing for permanent fire scoring. But the petioles did protect the two trees from most of the heat of the fire above knee-height, unlike the older tree to the right which had already lost its lower petioles before the fire.

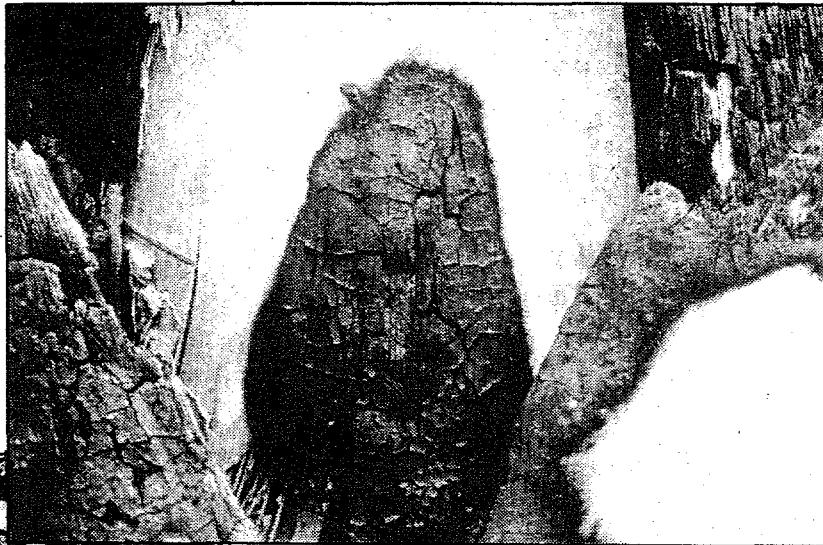

This poor, miserable little tree went through the fire, as can be seen from the scars near its bottom, and in subsequent years has hardly grown an inch - in contrast to others we have seen. I have found quite a number of small trees here that did not really recover after the fire. This one too, will soon die, while its near neighbors have demonstrated great growth.

Here the completely burned hole (in the background) indicates that the fire was very hot and the tree was unprotected by either old leaves or their petioles. The existing dead leaves (in the picture) are of far more recent vintage than the fire. It is quite natural for the Cabbage Palm to display dead leaves. Many visitors question this and ask me why the trees are dying - but they are not. The dead leaves are quite natural, and many years can pass before the leaf is completely removed from the tree.

The entire cross section of a palm trunk is loaded with bundles of vascular tissue unlike, for example, an oak tree. This example proves that the internal vascular tissue rots away quicker than does the bark. The Cabbage Palm is unique in that when it dies, it leaves a neat, round foot-deep hole in the ground and no stump. The vascular tissue is one reason that a palm trunk can withstand a great deal of external damage. In other words, you cannot ringbark a palm as you can an oak or a maple and kill it. Fire, woodpecker holes and other damage may cut down the vascularity of a palm trunk but often, even though fully half of the cross-section may be destroyed, the tree can live on quite successfully. Here on our Palm Ridge, many healthy, fire scarred trees exist.

We have come to the end of the Trail and are standing on the bank of Sanibel's only natural area of permanent fresh water - the great Alligator Hole - that has appeared on aerial photographs and maps for generations. This pond is virtually teeming with several kinds of mosquito-eating fish. One might wonder why this hole is no longer occupied by any Alligators at all. On at least half a dozen occasions we have brought gators here, but they have always left. The answer lies in the fact that man has provided so many artificial habitat sites that the Alligators seem to prefer.

Far from complete, the foregoing is but a smattering of the trees' story. May I suggest that you visit the Palm Ridge Trail and enjoy for yourself the beautiful, calm surroundings - and don't forget to brush up on your Palm Tree vocabulary so that the trees can talk to you too!

On the water

by Capt. Mike Fuery

Get your casting arm ready - the winds are up and the trout are in!

In the last few weeks, as the March winds whip up Pine Island Sound and the surrounding waters, the trout have said 'to heck with feeding on popping corks' and now you'll have to get your casting arm ready if you want to bag a few of these good eating fish.

A couple of months ago I said that the trout fishing on the flats of the Sound was as good as many could remember from the past several seasons - and one of the most popular ways to get the trout was to float a large shrimp under a popping cork or float.

That was a deadly method when the winds were relatively calm. When those last, strong northerly winds coming in from the South hit the area, the seas in the Sound were two or perhaps three feet high - and there was no way you could see a cork go under the surface. That is, assuming that there was a trout crazy enough to want to feed in the riled up mess that usually occurs when the winds howl.

So, it's time to switch tactics. Many fishermen only use artificial baits, such as Trout Touts and similar shrimp imitators, but for those of us who are old cork buffs, it's time to buy new lures and limber up the right shoulder for casting.

Ask the average fisherman who works the Sound for trout which color he uses and 90 percent of the time he'll only name one color. White, yellow and pink are the favorites.

The other day I located some Creme brand wiggly tail lures which were blue. I bought some of them and also some in the same shape which were pink - and they both worked. I've also got a "hand tied" combination jig with man-made materials and deer hair which is pink, yellow and purple - and that catches them too.

One thing we know for sure: trout have lousy taste in lure colors.

I have always found that it's the casting action that plays the largest part of the fish catching act, and not the color. When I lived in Punta Gorda several years ago, there was an old bridge over the Peace River where an elderly fella used to fish. One day, I got there and he was consistently bringing in the trout. I started out 100 feet down the dock from him and failed to catch a fish. I eventually got to within six feet of him and still couldn't get a bite, even after casting right next to his bait. I had made a trip to the bait shop to get the exact same jig but there was no way I was going to catch a fish. He knew it. And the fish knew it. And eventually, I knew it. The action he gave it made the difference.

That's the way it will be now that you have to move to the deeper spots of Pine Island Sound to go after the trout. I like to work the sides of the grass beds in about 6-10 feet of water, or sometimes more. The trout seem to want to take shelter from the rough surface waters and they stay on the bottom to do it. That's where they are feeding now and you can float a million corks and shrimp over them without getting a bite.

My advice would be to arm yourself with about three of the shrimp imitators, say in pink, brown and yellow. Then get out and work that bait, either from shore or boat - the action is usually the same. You want to make short, hopping twitches with your rod tip. You are imitating a live shrimp and they move in hops of half circles over the bottom.

Too many people want to work the lure fast. Keep the movement slow and you will do better. Remember that the Texans like to take a lure and put it under a popping cork and I've had some pretty good results with that also.

If the days seem to calm down, wind-wise, then you can still get the trout on the top with the corks. But keep that threesome of lures with lead heads handy and you'll find fish when the others can't seem to get a bite.

Shelling Tips

By Mike Fuery

Ever wonder which shell might be voted the most popular by the most people visiting Sanibel and Captiva Islands?

My guess would have to be the sand dollar. Of course, many experienced shellers would pick a lion's paw or a Scotch bonnet, but I've noticed that the lowly sand dollar probably draws the most attention.

I would imagine that this is because there are few commonly recognized shells the world over. Shells like the star fish, the scallop and of course the sand dollar, are easily recognized by even the most inexperienced shellers.

So, the sand dollar is often the most sought after shell on the beaches. This week, let's talk about the shell and, what one of the people on my charter once termed, "diving for dollars."

The other day I talked with a woman who seems to be able to locate the smallest, most delicate sand dollars in the world. Hers are about the size of a dime and are seldom found in large numbers. I asked where her "secret spot" might be and she said near the Lighthouse on Sanibel, but not along the waterline.

She said a sieve type scoop can be used on the dry shell line, high up from the water, and ever so often one little white dollar will appear, in perfect shape.

That's about what I've found also. When looking for the larger sand dollar, shellers tend to work the waterline and that is where some very fine dollars are found. But you won't pick up very many tiny sand dollars - which are usually prized over the big ones.

The sand dollar is one of the few specimens that can be blown up on the beach. I've seen them fly like small frisbees when the strong northwesterly winds rake over the beaches. Not all of the sand dollars make it up high on the shell line near the grass or trees this way, but many do.

Now that we are getting into Spring weather patterns, the gusty winds will eventually be dropping and our weather will be influenced by tropical, rather than arctic weather. When this occurs, the winds tend to come in off the mainland of Florida during the morning, and as the land heats the winds shift and come in from the cool Gulf of Mexico. This may not seem to be of much significance, but you will find the shelling better early in the warm mornings when the waters are relatively flat right near shore.

In the early morning, if the Gulf waters are calm, you will have your best chance of finding sand dollars on the bottom. With the change in weather comes the warming of the Gulf waters and one of the most productive ways of finding sand dollars is to get out about neck deep and start walking!

Sand dollars feel like a firm place in the sand when you step on them. The only trouble is, unless you have an arm five feet long you'll need to reach down and get completely wet to pick them up. Some folks like to use a long handled net, but by holding your breath for five or six seconds, you should be able to locate the sand dollars you have just found with your toes.

You might look a little silly, walking the waters, but once you find a dollar patch you can usually get all you want. One of the best places to look is at Bowman's Beach, a couple of hundred yards to the left of the entrance path as you approach the beach. Of course you won't always be able to locate a colony of them but if you have the time and don't mind a little water, you might just do fine.

Good luck out there on the water this week and remember the shelling ordinance of two live shells per person, per species. It's important to those of us who want to see shells around for a long, long time.

(Capt. Mike Fuery offers shelling trips to North Captiva and Cayo Costa Islands. Call 472-3459 after 6 p.m. for information).

QUESTION: I itemize and deduct gas tax for the 30,000 nonbusiness miles that I drive each year. Now, a friend says gas tax is not deductible. She is wrong, isn't she?

ANSWER: Your friend is correct. Beginning in 1979, the gas tax is no longer deductible. The repeal of this deduction is part of the effort to impress on all of us the need to conserve gas.

Sanibel Library offers Lenten reading selection

By Mildred C. Chamberlin

During this Lenten season, our thoughts may turn toward reading of a religious nature.

The Sanibel Public Library has much to offer along this line. Among the books which may be borrowed are many by our Sanibel resident, Bruce Larson, such as No Longer Strangers, Ask Me to Dance, Living on the Growing Edge, and Edge of Adventure. Some of our recent acquisitions are Living with the Bible by Moshe Dayan, Take a Bishop Like Me by Paul Moore, Jr. and I Was Once a Tree by Jovan DeRocco. Others include The Sermon on the Mount by Emmett Fox, This Believing World, a simple account of the great religions of mankind by Lewis Browne, and Jesus, The Son of Man, his words and his deeds as told and recorded by those who knew him, by Kahil Gibran.

The Interpreters Bible, a commentary in 12 volumes is also on our shelves.

For factual and background information, the Reference Department has many useful volumes. Among them are:

Strong's Exhaustive Concordance of the Bible. The first edition was printed in 1894. The Library has the 34th printing, 1976. It shows every word of the text of the common English version of the canonical books, and every occurrence of each word in regular order, together with a comparative concordance of the authorized and revised versions, including the American variation; also brief dictionaries of the Hebrew and Greek words of the original, with references to the English Words.

Zonderan Pictorial Bible Dictionary edited by Merrill C. Tenney, 1963. This provides quick access to biographical, chronological, geographical and historical aspects of the Bible. More than 700 pictures supplement the text. An extensive series of articles on Christian doctrines is included. An indexed Bible Atlas is also included.

Who's Who in the Old Testament together with the Apocrypha, by Joan Comay, 1971. Patriarchs, kings, warriors, prophets and sages as well as heroes, villains and ordinary people, are all included in this exhaustive biographical dictionary. Not one person in the Old Testament is omitted. Their migrations, battles, loves and hates, and their profound insights are vividly described. Well illustrated.

Who's Who in the New Testament, by Ronald Brownrigg, 1971. A full guide to every person mentioned in the New Testament. An outstanding portrayal of the life of Jesus with many pictures is included. Much attention is given to the places where major events in the life of Jesus were said to be enacted. Illustrations recording the land and sites as they exist today as well as reproductions of the great works of art make the life of Jesus very realistic.

Encyclopedia of World Religions: Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Buddhism, Zen, Hinduism, Prehistoric and Primitive Religions. 1975. A comprehensive work dealing with the religions of the world, both past and present. Beautifully illustrated in color.

Dictionary of Comparative Religion, edited by S.G.F. Brandon, 1970. Published to meet the demand for information about religious beliefs and practices of mankind.

Police Beat

Two gold colored signs indicating "Children at Play" were removed from the Signal Inn area on Gulf Drive. Anyone having information as to their whereabouts should contact the Sanibel Police Department.

Traffic citations were issued last week for speeding, careless driving and failure to stop for a stop sign.

Following in the wake of numerous noise complaints against the Fountain Restaurant earlier this month, eight routine checks of the Tahitian Gardens area were made by the SPD this week. None of the checks revealed excessive noise and no further complaints have been received from area residents.

The SPD responded to nine complaints this week regarding illegal beach bonfires. In each instance the participants were advised of the necessity for a bonfire permit and the fires were extinguished without incident. At least one bonfire site, however, was left littered with broken bottles and cans for up to 100 feet away from the fire site. The City Public Works Department was called in to clean the area.

A black and white TV set and a stereo tapeplayer valued at $240 was reported stolen this week from the Coconut Grove employee housing quarters.

A residence at 1876 Ardsley Way was reported broken into last Thursday. Investigation revealed that entry to the home was made through a screened porch door and sliding glass window leading from the porch to the kitchen. The residence's master bedroom had been ransacked and two color TV's, valued at $929, were missing. Fingerprints were taken from the scene and the investigation continues.

The SPD responded to a burglary in progress call at Andy Rosse Lane on Captiva last Thursday night at the request of the Lee County Sheriff's Department. The owner of the home said that someone had been trying to get in through both the front and back doors to no avail. The area was searched with nothing suspicious witnessed.

A purse was reported stolen last Wednesday from a locked car with one window rolled down approximately one inch at the fishing pier parking lot. A purse was also reported stolen last Saturday from a car parked at Lighthouse beach. That car was also locked with the windows unrolled approximately one inch.

An incident of vandalism at the Sanibel Elementary school resulted in nine broken overhead lights last week.

The SPD, along with the Sanibel Fire Department, responded to a brushfire reported north of the Chamber of Commerce office last Tuesday. The fire was quickly brought under control.

An alarm system at the Silver Witch on Periwinkle Way apparently scared off a would-be burglar last week. The front door was splintered however, before the burglar changed his mind.

A fire extinguisher was reported discharged in the Sand Dollar Condominium elevator and in two cars in the parking lot. Five extinguishers from that area are missing and police have no suspects at this time.

Two dead cormorants were reported at the Ocean's Reach Condominium - with the caller reporting that she had seen two juvenile boys attempting to tie a belt around the birds' necks the day before.

A water ski valued at $250 was reported stolen from Wilton Lane.

A breaking and entering was reported at Casa Ybel with no evidence of anything missing.

A rented Toyota was stolen from the parking lot of Pate's Restaurant last Saturday night - and recovered later by the SPD sitting in water near the Blind Pass bridge.

A Sanibel resident received an obscene phone call from an unidentified caller. The resident did not respond to the caller but instead hung up and notified the SPD.

The SPD responded, along with the Coast Guard, to a report that a boat had capsized near the Causeway. Two visitors from Tarpon Springs survived the ordeal and a ski boat, operated by Tracy Walters, towed the capsized boat back to shore.

Investigation by the SPD into the theft of $4500 worth of jewelry from a room at Sanibel Arms West has resulted in the arrest of Rhonda May McCaffery, 20, of 1890 Suncoast Estates.

Ms. McCaffery, employed with a cleaning agency working at Sanibel Arms, was arrested March 27 on charges of Grand Theft. The SPD is still attempting to recover the jewelry, reported either pawned or sold.

By Pat Harmel

Over the past several weeks, the Lee County Sheriff's Department has been investigating a rash of thefts and burglaries where gold, silver and fine jewelry have been the target of the thieves.

Two people have been arrested in connection with this type of crime. A white male, Rory Barber, and his wife, Karen Barber, were arrested on February 18th. Their arrest solved approximately nine (9) burglaries, where gold, silver and jewelry were taken. Some of the property has been recovered but the majority at this stage of the investigation has not been.

Due to the current increase in pricing of gold and silver, this type of burglary and theft, not only throughout Lee County but the entire nation, is on a definite upswing. The Sheriff's Department urges residents of this area to take precautions in safeguarding their gold, silver and jewelry and if they are going to be on vacation or away from their homes and residences for any extended period of time, they should possibly consider safety deposit boxes as one precaution.

One of the major problems facing Law Enforcement Agencies investigating this type of crime is the speed in which the stolen property leaves this area. At this time there are many many outlets for selling gold, fine jewelry and silver, and once that property has been melted down and transferred to another area it is increasingly difficult to locate and recover.

It is also suggested that anyone having gold, silver, and fine jewelry, have a very complete inventory and description of that property kept in a safe place. In the event that the property is stolen, it will greatly assist Law Enforcement Agencies in attempting to recover it.

Intensive investigation by the Sanibel Police Department has solved the mystery surrounding $3700 stolen from the Associated Properties office at Tennis Place. A Tennis Place employee has been traced to the theft and an arrest on felony Grand Theft charges will be forthcoming. The case was handled by Sgt. Ray Rhodes and Officer Jack Primm of the SPD.

Officer Don Case, City Manager Bernie Murphy, Sgt. Ray Rhodes and Chief John Butler joined with Mayor Francis Bailey in a vote of appreciation for Officer Bob Dysart. Dysart, who was honored at last Saturday's luau, has resigned from the Sanibel Police Department to take the position of Chief of Police in Clewiston.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the island, Punta Ybel Plaza and The Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30. This holds true for many island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pines shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here...the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health product fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Garden offer a variety of island delights.

At the intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original island water colors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay. Some antiques, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while other feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, island shops offer a surprising variety - from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to post cards for the simple souvenir hunter and of course, for all, shells. Shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells... the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

St. Isabel schedule

The St. Isabel Catholic Church's schedule for Holy week is as follows:

Confessions: before and after each Mass on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday; on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., and on Holy Saturday from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m.

Holy Thursday: 5:30 p.m. - Mass of the Lord's Supper and First Communion. 7:30 p.m. - Second Mass. We invite you to choose an hour so as to assure continuous Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament on Thursday night from 8:30 p.m. until midnight, when the church will be closed.

Good Friday: 3 p.m. - Stations of the Cross, followed immediately by Scripture Readings, Veneration of the Cross, and Holy Communion. A special collection will be taken up for the Holy Shrines. Good Friday is a day of fast and complete abstinence.

Holy Saturday: 4:30 to 5:15 p.m. - Confessions. 5:30 p.m. - Mass, with Lighting of the Paschal Candle, Renewal of Baptismal Promises and Readings. 7:30 p.m. - Second Mass.

Easter Sunday: 7, 8:30, 10 and 11:30 a.m., and 5:30 p.m. - Masses.

St. Isabel Church is located at 3559 Sanibel-Captiva Road.

Easter breakfast out

Ft. Myers Christian School will be serving a hearty breakfast of pancakes and sausage Easter Sunday morning at the Ponderosa Steak House on South 41 for only $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Serving time will be from 7 till 9:30 a.m., a convenient time whether you go to a sunrise or later church service. Give Mom a morning out, Easter Sunday.

Chapel by the Sea service

There will be a Holy Communion Service with music on Thursday, April 3, at 5 p.m. at the Captiva Chapel by the Sea. The public is invited to attend.

Lions Club sponsors pancake breakfast

The Sanibel-Captiva Lions Club will be holding their annual pancake breakfast on Saturday, April 5 from 7 to 11 a.m. at the Community Association Building. Price is $2.75 for adults and $1.75 for children. The menu consists of juice, pancakes, sausage, coffee and milk - all you can eat! Come join the fun.

Kiwanis Club party and community fish fry

There will be a Kiwanis Club party on Saturday, April 5, at Scotty's Restaurant. The winning ticket for the Scotland trip will be drawn at this time.

Sunday, April 13 is the day of the First Annual Kiwanis Fish Fry - timed to coincide with the kick-off of the Fishing Derby and the Blessing of the Fleet ceremony. The fish fry will be held in the cleared area just before the Sanibel side of the Causeway. Gordon Tracy and Mark Johnson will be spearing the fish for the dinner; Hal Austin is handling publicity; Frank Rau is arranging for prizes; Ron Weaver and Al Hartley are collaborating on a poster, and the rest of the Kiwanians are expected to pitch in and help. This should be a fun day and a good money raiser.

Erosion Prevention District

The Captiva Erosion Prevention District will be holding a meeting on Monday, April 7 at 3:30 p.m. at the Captiva Community Center.

The public is welcome to attend.

PTO bake sale

The Sanibel Elementary School P.T.O. is having a Bake Sale in front of Bailey's General Store on Saturday, April 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Buy your Easter goodies there!

Kiwanis

to have surprise speaker

The Sanibel-Captiva Kiwanis Club will be featuring a surprise speaker at their meeting on Wednesday, April 2. Come and find out who it is! The Kiwanis meet every Wednesday, 7:30 a.m. at Scotty's Restaurant on Periwinkle Way.

Sanibel Resources Center Eagle Walk

Over $700 was raised by Sanibel Resources Center's Eagle Walk last Friday. The group of 13 students and teachers walked the entire length of Sanibel to draw attention to and raise funds for the protection of the Southern Bald Eagle. Starting at daybreak, the group began their walk at Blind Pass and finished shortly after noon at the Lighthouse. The funds will be donated to the Florida Audubon Society.

The 1st Annual Oliver Matinzi Memorial Golf Tournament, sponsored by the Beachview Men's Association was held last Wednesday. The winning twosome out of 48 players was the team of Les Garner and Steve Resnick. The winning score was a plus nine. John McGee and Jim Briscoe finished second with a plus eight. Two strokes back at plus seven was the team of Britt Wood and Walter Schmid.

The high individual score went to Britt

Wood at plus seven. The Association's annual party was held after the tournament.

At the regular Saturday outing the team of Joe Steinert, Bob Sagers, Hank Groh, and Ted Hartshorne finished first with a plus 11.

Jim Briscoe, Bob Robertson, Bob Myers, and Don Purcell finished second at plus nine.

The high individual honors were split three ways between Bob Sagers, Bob Doubet, and Jack Adams. All finished with a plus six.

At the Dunes the Men's Golf Association played a two best-ball foursome tournament on Wednesday. There were ties for first and second places.

In first place the team of Weymouth, Lloyd, Ohlman and Robertson tied with the team of M. Minor, Wingerder, Jenkins and Zappia.

The teams of J. Minor, Kimmel, McKee, and Curtis tied for second with the team of Graessle, Clark, Wilhoit and Light.

On Friday the Dunes Women's Association played for low net and low putts.

Low putts was won by Doris VanDerBeck. Betty Uhr and Lois Jacob tied for first low net. Second low net went to Billie Tyler. Dot Ohlmann and Peg Wilhoit both chipped in.

The Beachview Women's Golf Association held a three club tournament last week.

Libby Van Emery won the least putts competition. Peg Wigington won with the most points, followed by Jean Laidlaw.

Laura Shepard, Kay Condit, and Betty Puff tied for putts and points.
