

Planners veto pinball arcade

By Roxanna Motchan

Pinball wizards needn't come to Sanibel looking for entertainment. Sanibel's Planning Commission voted unanimously yesterday to deny a request for a game room submitted by Randal J. Personette. In addition, a 5-2 vote was passed recommending that City Council adopt a policy that a commercial amusement arcade not be a permitted use in the land use plan.

The game room, which would have operated under the proposed name of "Happer's Pinball Arcade and Munchery," was to be housed in lower unit number four of the Landlubber plaza.

In requesting the business, Personette told the Commissioners, "I hope that all of you realize there's no place on the Island for teenagers and young adults to go during the evening, with the exception of Island Cinema and the beach. The beach is somewhat closed down during the evening, and there isn't much else to do for entertainment."

Commissioner Bill Hagerup told Personette that he was sure this establishment would be well kept and maintained, but, "I am only thinking of other arcades I have seen; they can become an eyesore after a time. Whether there is actually a need on this Island for such an establishment I really can't say."

"I am unalterably opposed to this type of establishment on this Island," Commissioner Fred Valtin said. "This type of thing is precisely the kind of honky tonk East Coast establishment that we don't need. As a parent of teenagers, I personally would object to them spending their money there. I'm sure your motivations are honorable, and I don't question your intentions, but I think the argument that there's nothing to do on this Island is a cop-out. This is not keeping with Island image or character. It also might create much more traffic."

Commissioner Judy Workman agreed with Valtin saying, "I recognize the need for our young people to have activities, and the Sanibel Police Department is taking a strong stand in this area. There have been attempts by parents to conduct roller skating outings, and these type of activities are what I would encourage my children to participate in."

Stressing that he could foresee a need for something of that nature, Commissioner Don Manchester said, "I feel something like this should be City owned and sponsored."

"I feel as if the resident youth would not be the principal users of this facility," Commissioner Arthur Wycoff commented. "I feel it would be used by more transient youth."

"I consider the proposal obnoxious," Commissioner Joe Searing stated.

"I see no need for anything like this on the Island," said Planning Commission Chairman Ann Winterbotham.

Members of the public also voiced their disapproval of the proposal. Islander George Campbell said, "I wonder if there will be a comic book library in that place? The police are contemplating creating a swimming pool and decent recreation. Pinball machines are junk and tacky."

Alyce Kylo, another Sanibel resident, said, "This is exactly the opposite of what we're trying to encourage on this Island.

This is gambling, and will become a hang-out. We don't need any hang-outs."

Commissioner Fred Valtin moved that the Planning Commission decide that an amusement arcade of the type proposed is not a permitted in the City of Sanibel. It was seconded by Commissioner Joe Searing. However, after discussion informing Valtin that the Planning Commission could not make policy decisions, Valtin amended his motion to deny the subject his request for an amusement arcade.

Following the unanimous vote, Valtin then moved that the Planning Commission recommend to City Council that they adopt a policy that commercial amusement arcades are not a permitted use. This would allow for a City sponsored recreation type game room facility at some time in the future.

Commissioner Workman said, "I don't want to see us set a policy which will forever prevent this type of facility. I think we should look at each case individually. We're being overly cautious in this case."

The vote to make the recommendation to Council passed 5-2, with Commissioners Workman and Searing opposed.

In other Planning Commission action, a request submitted by Bill Nungester for Captran, Inc. to construct two interval ownership units at the Shell Island Beach Club, was approved 6-1. Commissioner Manchester was opposed, saying he objected to the density in the area. The two units are in addition to the 30 units already granted by the Planning Commission on June 9. Since that time the land has been resurveyed, and the acreage shows that two more dwelling units could be permitted according to the Comprehensive Land Use Plan.

Also at yesterday's meeting, the Planning Commission unanimously approved a request for a development permit to construct a bike path from Sanibel-Captiva Road to West Gulf Drive, as submitted by the City of Sanibel.

Fort Myers Beach

Butler speaks on incorporation

By BILL SCHEEL

In the first of a series of incorporation study meetings, over 250 Fort Myers Beach residents listened to a Sanibel official explain the alternatives to continuous fighting with Lee County over what many people consider excessive growth.

"Your destiny is in your hands," was the theme of a presentation by former Sanibel Mayor Zelda Butler, who outlined the process and the results of the incorporation of Sanibel as a city. Mrs. Butler is now a Sanibel City Council member.

A key question must be answered before beginning incorporation, according to Mrs. Butler. "Is controlling the destiny of Fort Myers Beach worth the additional taxes necessary to run a city?" she asked.

Mrs. Butler pointed out some drawbacks to incorporation, but when asked if she felt it had been the right move for Sanibel, she left no doubt of where she stood. "If you ask me, it was darn well worth it," she told the crowd.

The forum, the first in a series to be held on the issue of incorporating Fort Myers Beach, was sponsored by the Beach Voters Association (BVA) and was held Thursday night, June 26.

"There's no question you will need an increase in taxes to run a city government," Mrs. Butler said. She said personnel is the biggest expense, with the city of Sanibel having 60 employees.

After the meeting, BVA president Walt Cartier said of incorporation, "The greatest concern is the possibility of increased costs." Mrs. Butler told the group that Sanibel property owners paid a tax levy of three mills to enjoy city services. Since a mill is $1 of taxes for every $1000 of assessed property, a homeowner with a house assessed at $50,000 would pay $150 annually at that millage level. That figure is identical to what Beach property owners will be paying for fire and rescue service next year.

According to Mrs. Butler, the two areas where incorporation has been most advantageous to Sanibel residents are police protection and controlling growth. She told BVA members the Sanibel police department consists of 20 employees, including 10 uniformed officers, and that around-the-clock police patrols had markedly reduced crime since Sanibel became a city five years ago.

But the biggest boon to the quality of life on Sanibel, Mrs. Butler said, was a three-fold reduction in the allowable density since 1978, from 18 units per acre to five.

"One of the biggest premises we had with incorporation is that growth should pay for itself," Mrs. Butler said.

One of the biggest pitfalls to incorporation, Mrs. Butler said, was the increased costs of housing under drastically lowered density.

Mrs. Butler also warned the group that if incorporation did go to a referendum, the issue of becoming a city should be kept totally separate from the personalities of the people who might become elected city officials. She said a separate election should be held, if incorporation is approved, to elect a city council.

Another area where the city of Sanibel is having problems, she said, is the issue of what to do if condominiums built under high density levels are destroyed by hurricane or fire. "We're still struggling with that issue," Mrs. Butler said, "I don't know how to deal with it."

Later, BVA head Cartier said, "I was quite elated with the turnout." He estimated 325 people attended, which would be over half of the BVA membership.

Cartier said an informal poll after the meeting indicated about half of the people attending the forum approved of incorporation already, despite the promise of increased taxes. "Just police protection alone is worth a couple of hundred dollars to me," he said.

Cartier said another forum will be held this fall, after winter residents start returning to the area. He said Porter Goss, another Sanibel city official, or someone from the Cape Coral city government would be invited to speak then.

Assistant City Manager Gary Price submitted the plans to the Planning Commission, explaining the cost and other details of the bike path development. The bike path will be funded largely by Causeway surplus monies.

Cost of the bike path will be approximately $77,000. A bridge over the Sanibel River will also be part of the bike path. To date, realtor J.O. Evans has contributed the necessary easements for building the path in addition to $2,000 cash.

Resident George Campbell reminded the Commission that he could recall during an earlier public hearing that Evans had agreed to contribute much more monetarily, and suggested that the tapes and minutes from previous meetings be researched.

Chairman Winterbotham agreed, saying, "I think at a later hearing that agreement was rescinded, but I'm all for checking it. If we can get more money out of him, we should."

Commissioner Searing made the motion to approve the development permit, providing that after sufficient research the question of Evans commitment is no greater than what he has already contributed at the present time. If his commitment is greater, his motion indicated that they will approve the permit assuming his larger commitment. The motion passed unanimously.

Price also discussed the proposed Tarpon Bay Road bike path, which will connect Periwinkle Way to West Gulf Drive. No action was taken, as it was simply to inform the Commission of the plans for this area.

This bike path will cost approximately $150,000 to construct, will be on the east side of Tarpon Bay Road, and will involve considerable fill in a wetlands area. However, the other side of the road is owned mostly by U.S. Fish and Wildlife, and Price said he anticipated problems if the City had tried to build the path on the west side of the road.

Further Planning Commission considerations were unavailable at press time.

Cooperation is key to law enforcement

By Bill Motchan

Cooperation is the key to effective law enforcement, according to State Attorney Joseph D'Alessandro.

Speaking at the Florida Police Chiefs Convention last Tuesday at Sundial Resort, D'Alessandro said law enforcement agencies must learn to be partners.

"I try to the best of my ability to get people to work together," D'Alessandro said. "Once a month, I meet with all the police chiefs and try to work out problems; I do the same thing with the sheriffs."

The State Attorney said that he realized the need for cooperation between law enforcement agencies during a riot. "I received a call from the chief of police," D'Alessandro said. "He wanted me to call the sheriff and ask him for a curfew. I said 'I'd be glad to call, but why don't you ask him yourself?' The police chief said, 'The sheriff and I don't talk to each other.'

"I went home and told my wife, 'The city's burning down and I've got a police chief and a sheriff who aren't speaking!'"

Stressing the importance of agencies forming an alliance, D'Alessandro claimed that it is impossible for one department to do everything by itself.

"You're tied up with street crimes that you have to devote your time to," he said.

One way agencies can work together, according to D'Alessandro, is by employing the task force concept where personnel from various agencies team up to concentrate on a specific problem, such as drugs.

"With the task force concept we've drawn upon all the resources from all over the district," he said. "You also accomplish many agencies working together. I suggest you look at putting together a task force concept. I don't care how good an agency you have; you can't do it alone."

The increased use of computers and word processors has also been a boon to law enforcement, D'Alessandro said. "We have access to thousands of phone calls, registration of boats and cars. If an officer in the field calls in and says, 'I'm watching the Molly B - what can you tell me about it?' we can go into the computer and get the information for him."

"The wiretap is a very important tool," he continued, "but I hate to use it because it puts a drain on manpower. To do it well takes a lot of time and you need a man on duty 24 hours a day."

After a long investigation, it is frustrating, D'Alessandro said, to lose the case once it gets to court. He claimed that one of the main reasons for this is improper jury instruction.

"In the course of a year," he said, "I've counted all the cases that got reversed, and 30 per cent were due to improper jury instruction. That tells me, as a lawyer, that three people skilled in the law - the judge, defense attorney and prosecuting attorney - are wrong one-third of the time in what instructions to give the jury.

"In an assault case, is the jury instructed for assault, the attempt to assault, or the attempt to attempt an assault?" he queried. "A jury isn't going to understand that!"

Drug operations use slick methods

By Bill Motchan

"Don't underestimate your adversaries; in many cases, they know our own departments better than we do," warned Frank Troy, Special Agent for the Florida Division of Law Enforcement. "They've done their homework and they have the best advisors."

In a drug trafficking lecture delivered at the Florida Police Chiefs Convention last week, Troy claimed that illegal drug operations have very sophisticated methods.

"They use counter-surveillance," he said. "They monitor the radio frequency of any agency they think will be a threat to their operation."

"They seem to pick times when the police departments are operating with skeleton crews (such as Sunday evenings) to make their drops."

The marijuana shipments come in large part from giant tankers in the Gulf of Mexico, according to Troy, who explained that "The mother ship can handle up to 100 tons of marijuana. It may have three or four drop points, where the marijuana is loaded on trawlers. The trawlers then go to off-load houses."

Careful planning and caution are the watchwords of drug smugglers, Troy stressed. "Everything is done in cash; this

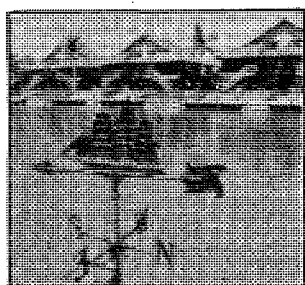

"Don't underestimate your adversaries; in many cases they know our own (police) departments better than we do."

negates the paper flow. They think nothing of dropping $100,000 or $150,000 at a time."

Troy reiterated the earlier words of State Attorney Joseph D'Alessandro when he emphasized the importance of cooperation. "The bad guys do it - we have to do it," he said.

Have a safe 4th of July

Although fireworks have been a traditional part of patriotic festivities for many years, they present serious safety hazards, particularly to children. Deaths, blindings, amputations, severe burns and costly property damage have resulted from Fourth of July celebrations involving fireworks.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that last year more than 8,000 persons - most of them 15 years of age or younger - were treated at hospital emergency rooms throughout the country for fireworks-related injuries.

While some of the accidents were caused by use of illegal fireworks, the majority were linked to "safe" fireworks which can be legally purchased in many states.

The sale or use of fireworks in Florida is illegal. Violations are punishable by one year in jail and a $1,000 fine. It is illegal also to set off firecrackers, cherry bombs, Roman candles and skyrockets.

Florida families are urged to view fireworks only at supervised public displays. These displays are operated under permits issued by local authorities and are supervised by fire and police departments.

Here are some suggestions for a safer Independence Day:

(1) Fireworks may be a source of accidental fires which can result in death, injury and property damage.

(2) Tourists and visitors should be made aware that although fireworks may be purchased in neighboring states, their use is illegal in Florida.

(3) Fireworks should never be considered as toys for children. They can be deadly.

(4) Do not allow children to use sparklers without close adult supervision. Even though sparklers can be legally bought and used and are thought by many to be safe, they can burn at a very high temperature and can easily ignite clothing or cause painful burns.

Maxwell sues city; police chief

By Pat Harmel

Both the City of Sanibel and Police Chief John Butler have received copies of a lawsuit filed against them by former Assistant City Manager Steve Maxwell.

Maxwell's suit stems from an incident that occurred last July 3, which resulted in Butler committing Maxwell to Lee Memorial Hospital for psychiatric observation under the Baker Act.

The incident occurred during a break in a City Council meeting being held at MacKenzie Hall. Maxwell was present at the morning session when the Council voted unanimously to reimburse Councilmembers Zee Butler and Porter Goss $9,036 for legal expenses incurred while fighting charges filed against them by Maxwell with the Florida Ethics Commission.

The conflict of interest charges brought by Maxwell had been dropped by the Ethics Commission, but a countersuit filed by Butler and Goss seeking reimbursement for legal fees from Maxwell was denied by the Commission in a 4-2 vote.

State legislation provides that public officials found innocent of malicious or frivolous complaints or who have had charges dismissed against them may counterfile against their accuser for reimbursement of costs incurred.

The Commission ruled that Butler and Goss had not proven "malicious intent" by Maxwell in filing the charges.

At the July 3 meeting, Zee Butler voiced her disappointment in the Commission's ruling. "I don't feel they're (the Ethics Commission) following their own rules...I feel very strongly that a person who brings charges like this should be accountable for his actions."

Ms. Butler said she did not intend to further pursue legal remedy through the courts because the expense of such action would be hers to bear and she did not want to give Maxwell "additional publicity." She did, however, say that she intended to pursue the issue "through the Legislature."

Maxwell, sitting in the front row, labeled Ms. Butler's remarks "inappropriate" and told the Council, "The issue is over."

Maxwell

The vote to reimburse Butler and Goss the $9,036 (one-third of which was incurred by counter-filing against Maxwell) was met with audience applause.

Maxwell then left the meeting and accounts of the events following vary.

In his suit, Maxwell charges that Police Chief John Butler (whom he met after leaving the meeting) physically beat, struck and rammed his fingers into Maxwell's ears. Maxwell further alleges that Chief Butler called him obscene names, physically and mentally abused and degraded him, arrested him and incarcerated him alleging he was insane.

According to Maxwell's suit, filed by Naples attorney William Blackwell, Maxwell suffered "bruises, contusions, and abrasions in and about his head and face, ears, throat and neck, back, and groin area." The suit further charges that because of the incident Maxwell lost working time, incurred expenses, became obligated for legal and medical disbursements, suffered indignation, humiliation, embarrassment and mental suffering and emotional distress "and will continue to suffer from same."

The suit, which requests a jury trial on eight counts against Butler (assault, battery, false arrest, false imprisonment, malicious prosecution, intentional infliction of emotional distress, infringement of Constitutional rights) "demands judgement for damages against defendants, jointly and severally, and punitive damages against" Chief Butler.

Chief Butler's account of the incident at the time it occurred alleged that Maxwell was in a very agitated state after leaving the Council meeting. The Chief claimed he may have patted Maxwell on the shoulder in the parking lot to calm him down. Maxwell allegedly then went running into the police department threatening to have Butler arrested for touching him. Butler, who followed Maxwell into the department, then had Maxwell arrested under the Baker Act, fearing that he would hurt either himself or others (Maxwell, according to Butler, allegedly threatened he would "get" the City officials and have them thrown into jail).

According to Butler, Maxwell resisted arrest and a struggle ensued with Maxwell, Butler and Sgt. Bill Trefny. Maxwell was then transported to Lee Memorial.

Sgt. Trefny and at least one other observer to the incident agree with Butler's account.

Fort Myers attorney, Frank Alderman III, obtained Maxwell's release later that same day on a writ of habeas corpus.

Dr. Clarence Schilt, who examined Maxwell at Lee Memorial, drowned earlier this year in a boating accident.

Later, Alderman met with State Attorney Frank D'Alessandro and agreed that the criminal court was not the "appropriate" forum for further action. Alderman told reporters at that time that a cooling off period was advisable. "Everything got hot and heavy there," Alderman told an Islander reporter. "Even I lost my cool more than I should have."

After the July incident numerous City Hall employees petitioned the police department for protection at City Hall. At least 13 people also filed statements with Chief Butler claiming that they felt "threatened" by Maxwell.

Since Maxwell's termination in 1978 from his Assistant City Manager position for "attitudinal differences," he has brought various charges of wrong doing against two Councilmembers, a former City Manager, the Sanibel City Council and the Sanibel Chief of Police.

Charges lodged by Maxwell with the Ethics Commission, the Florida City and County Managers Association and the International City and County Managers Association have since been dismissed.

A suit against Maxwell by Mariner Properties has also been dismissed but a suit filed by former City Manager Bill Nungester against Maxwell has yet to come to trial.

Lee County Mosquito Control District: On the cutting edge of insect control

By Roxanna Motchan

Bzzzz...swat! Bzzzz...swat! The more you slap, the more you kill, but still it seems they're always around - that most unwelcome summertime guest: the mosquito.

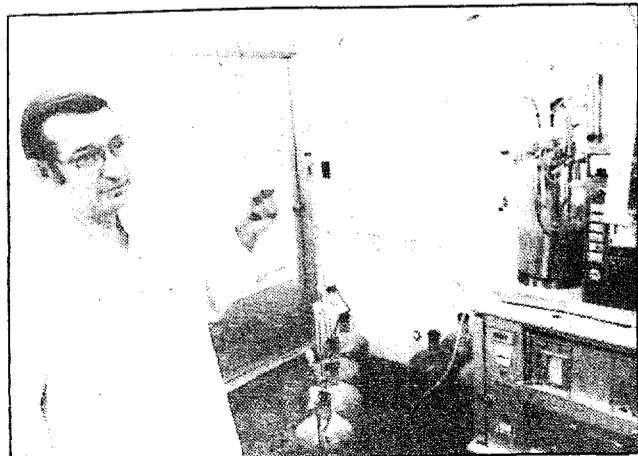

Believe it or not, the mosquito problem is much improved over the days when Sanibel was not so jokingly referred to as "The Mosquito Capital Of The World." It wasn't so very long ago that Island residents were forced to hold handkerchiefs over their mouths outside at night to keep the mosquitos from swarming in. Back then, cattle were known to literally smother to death from mosquito inhalation.

The Lee County Mosquito Control District, under the direction of Wayne Miller, is fighting to reduce the problems, nuisance and disease, caused by these wetland loving insects.

For many years, chemical methods of control were used throughout Lee County. But, due to the foresight of Miller, who believes, "Biological control is the only answer, chemicals will go by the wayside," laboratories have been set up to study various environmentally safe methods of mosquito control.

At the Lee County Mosquito Control facilities, located in Buckingham, two main laboratories have been established to study methods of mosquito control. Here macrobiology and microbiology studies and research continue daily with the ultimate goal of safely reducing the mosquito population.

Dr. Richard Levy, Chief Entomologist at the macrobiology lab, explains that his research revolves around three areas: use of parasites, use of predators, and

One management technique being tested on fresh water mosquitos is the utilization of a fresh water nematode, a parasite of mosquito larvae. Research conducted in conjunction with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (Gulf Coast Mosquito Research) at Lake Charles, Louisiana has determined that this nematode, which is a minute, elongated cylindrical worm, is effective in destroying over 60 species of fresh water mosquitos.

Nematodes raised in the mosquito control labs are added to water in helicopter sprayers when they are approximately 1 milliliter long and are then sprayed over the fresh water areas. After landing on the surface, the nematodes swim until they find a raft of mosquito larvae.

After entering the mosquito larvae, the nematode then feeds on the blood of the mosquito while growing and developing. As soon as the nematode reaches approximately 15 to 20 milliliters in length - and just as the larvae is about to pupate (become an adult mosquito) - the nematode exits, punching a hole in the larvae. The exit causes the larvae to die. This process takes approximately five days, and is recurring. After the nematode leaves the larvae, it burrows into the sand or dirt, establishes a habitat, breeds, and the entire process begins again. Fish like to feed off of the nematode clumps, however, so the spraying must be repeated. Thus far, research has shown that fresh water nematodes do not affect birds, plants, fish, or other wildlife.

According to Levy, larvae control is the wave of the future. "The ideal way to control mosquitos is in the aquatic stage, before they become adults," he said. "Otherwise you have to use adulticides, which are ineffective."

The major mosquito offender in Lee County however, is not the fresh water mosquito, but the salt marsh mosquito. Levy says that research has also begun with salt water nematodes.

Another method of control being studied is the predator known as the brown planaria. With an arrow shaped head, these creatures paralyze the mosquito, invert their mouth, suck the mosquito dry, and reject the carcass. If the mosquito is small enough, the body is digested. Brown planaria reproduce by sexual and asexual means but one disadvantage is that they must be hand distributed. They are also only effective against fresh water mosquitos. This project, conducted in cooperation with the University of California at Riverside, is also in the experimental stages.

"But," Levy stresses, "this is an effective and safe biological control mechanism which deserves a thorough look."

It has recently been discovered that sea anemones are also a helpful means of mosquito control. Grabbing the mosquitos with their tentacles, the anemones secrete enzymes in their stomachs which kill the insects.

An innovative manner of mosquito control, and the one Dr. Levy expresses the most excitement about, is the application of a vegetable oil-like substance which may just be the method of control most commonly used in the future.

process of applying a monomolecular surface film on the water which causes the egg rafts (bundles of eggs on the water surface) to sink, drowning the mosquito larvae.

A vegetable oil-like substance, similar to Mazola or Wesson oil, is poured on top of an area of water. This leaves a film floating on top of the water which is approximately 1 ten-thousandth of an inch thick. Because the surface tension of the water is reduced, the normal development of the mosquito larva and pupae is affected. Subsequently, the larvae suffer from anoxia, or drowning.

Levy says that this method of control is environmentally safe and causes no detrimental harm to other animals in the area. He estimates that it is 20,000 to 25,000 times safer than commercial pesticides.

Odorless and colorless, the oily substance is also used in the manufacturing of lipsticks and mascara. For cosmetic purposes, it acts as a "spreader."

Currently, labeling for the product is being sought, and marketing in the near future is a possibility. This substance has been used on Sanibel and, under controlled situations, has proven 100 per cent effective against salt marsh mosquitos.

Because the oil is a largely physical mechanism, there is no danger of chemical resistance, according to Levy. High wind will compact the oil, but it will spontaneously re-spread.

"I'm quite excited about this particular phase of mosquito control," Levy says. "The Lee County Mosquito Control District is acting as a consultant to the United Nations, World Health Organization, and Naval Research Laboratory in the study of this product."

While Dr. Levy is busy in his lab studying means of control that you can see, Dr. Ben Hertlein is in another building busily examining the other end of mosquito research - microbiology - organisms not detected by the human eye.

The premise behind Dr. Hertlein's research is quite simple: mosquitos get ill and they die from disease. His interest is in finding a disease agent, reproducing it under laboratory conditions, and then infecting the larvae.

Billions of dead larvae have been found that have not been subjected to pesticides or any other apparent killer. What Dr. Hertlein does is isolate the disease agent and infect a healthy "host" with the bacillus, a disease producing bacterium. The host mosquito breeds, spreading the disease, and the lethal chain continues.

Lee County Mosquito Control has spent many hours working with bacilli and commercial companies have indicated an interest in producing a compound containing a bacillus. This compound would affect no other wildlife - because it's a biological agent there is a unique feature of specificity.

Dr. Hertlein explains that research with the bacillus started around 1977 - the year there were three cases of St. Louis Encephalitis reported - and a major effort was made to control the encephalitis by spraying the bacilli in areas where the disease producing mosquito bred. This included such areas as sewers, swails, wet areas under houses and around swimming pools.

"We found one pickup truck filled with a couple of inches of water and just swarming with St. Louis Encephalitis mosquito larvae," recalled Dr. Hertlein.

The Lee County Mosquito Control District began treating these areas with bacillus sphericus, and there hasn't been a case of St. Louis Encephalitis reported in Lee County since that time.

Here is how the bacillus kills the larvae: the stomach system of the larvae dissolves the bacillus and toxins are then released into the gut wall which eventually reach the blood of the mosquito. After the bacilli enter the blood they enrich and grow, killing the larvae. When the larvae dies the bacilli are released into the water, thereby continuing the process.

In the laboratory, bacillus sphericus is produced in a culture, grown in the fermentation room, and placed in suspended animation where they can remain for an indefinite period of time.

"Mosquito control by bacillus is new and different," Hertlein says. "It's the coming thing."

One thing is certain. If the innovative methods of research being conducted the Lee County Mosquito Control District continue, our mosquito problem will continue to decrease, and the Islands may someday be blissfully mosquito free!

In our opinion

For most of us the move to the Islands was a step up in mobility. Open beaches, numerous bike paths, never ending sunshine and the small town atmosphere helped get us out of our cars, off the subways and back in touch with nature. We walk, we jog, we play tennis and ride our bikes and accept our freedom with little analysis.

Some Island residents, however, are acutely aware of the Islands' unique barriers - some environmental and others created by man.

The Islands' handicapped constantly find their wheelchairs sinking into sand. Well intentioned ramps dead end into solid walls or have a three inch gap between where they begin and the ground ends.

Too often, pursuit of the Islands' numerous joys turns into an "I can't get there from here" odyssey for the handicapped.

George Christensen, head of the Rotary's committee on the handicapped, has helped heighten our awareness with his thoughtful observations of the Islands' shortcomings for the disabled.

We hope that his series on the handicapped person's pursuit of basic needs helps heighten yours.

In your opinion

A copy of the following memo was given to the Islander for publication

To: Sanibel City Council and City Manager
From: Paul A. Howe
Subject: Digest of Florida's Below-Market Rate Housing Proposal

Contingent upon a November approval of the State's voters, a Florida Housing Finance Agency (FHA) will be created as provided by CS-HB 830 signed by the Governor on June 23. It will be within the Department of Community Affairs with the Department Secretary serving as a member of the Agency Board. The Governor will appoint the other eight members - four of them from the housing-related unions and industries, and the other four from the public not so oriented.

The primary purpose of FHA is to bolster private efforts to fund the provision of new or renovated housing for one or more natural persons or families with undefined low, moderate or middle incomes. Their eligibility to be determined by standards set by the FHA considering at least five factors set forth in Section 420.503 (5) of the Act. (Section 420.522 (3)(b) 1 of the Act favors loans to employees of local governments that are impacted by housing shortages.)

The tax-exempt mortgage loans to accomplish the objectives are confined in their maturities to a range of five to forty-five years. Their interest rates are expected to be three percentage points below the private market rate:

The Act provides for three broad types of funding programs. They are: 1. A secondary mortgage activity whereby FHA purchases from private lending institutions the insured or guaranteed mortgages from the latter's portfolios and advance commitments; 2. FHA makes direct loans to private lending institutions and purchases their secured obligations.

The proceeds of such funding are expected to be plowed back into additional housing; and 3. FHA makes direct loans to "Sponsors" such as: individuals; associations; corporations; local governments; joint ventures; partnerships; trusts; or any other legal entity customarily recognized as appropriate for the function.

The Act contains many other esoteric details. Generally, they are compatible to the standards used in the private market place. The basic security for the loans is a pledge of revenue of the project - with no involvement of State or local "full faith or credit" or payments out of the ad valorem property tax.

In summary, the Florida FHA would be patterned after a composite of the familiar "Fanny Mae" and "Ginny Mae" at the Federal level. As such, Florida lending institutions and real estate people should feel comfortable in working with the FHA.

It is suggested, however, that the City mark time on its below-market-rate housing program pending the outcome of the November referendum. In the interim, the so called "Foundation" vehicle should be considered in the light of the "Sponsor" requirements of the Act's section 420.503 (11).

Respectfully,
Paul A. Howe

Police Beat

By Pat Harmel

Summertime visitors lost their wallets, locked themselves out of their cars, ran out of gas, had flat tires and managed to stall out in the middle of Island intersections last week as the Sanibel Police Department was kept hopping in an effort to keep up with them.

A fire in the Sundial kitchen was attributed to the buildup of heat from the stoves in a drywall separation wall and a reportedly "out of control bonfire" at the Shell Island Beach Club turned out to be a brushfire instead.

An irate resident of Bunting Lane notified the SPD that a red-headed black buzzard was terrorizing his family by attacking both their home and cars. The bird has gouged holes in the vinyl car roofs, eaten the door rug and chewed up the weather stripping from a sliding glass door. The Lee County Sheriff's Office, CROW and the Humane Society had been unable to offer any the man any relief. The quick thinking SPD dispatcher however, contacted Steve Phillips at the San-Cap Conservation Foundation who, hopefully, can solve the problem.

Island visitors had a hard time holding on to their money last week as the theft reports rolled in: a wallet stolen from a parked car on the causeway; two wallets lost in Bailey's parking lot; a handbag stolen from a locked car in the lighthouse parking lot; a wallet lost at the Landlubber restaurant and a large sum of cash reported stolen from a room at the Shell Harbor Inn. The total value? Nearly $1500.

Islanders fared only a little better against thieves and vandals: an air compressor was reported stolen from Aquatronics Marina; $37.50 was reported stolen from a 3-Star locked cash box; vandalism was reported at the Sanibel Siesta laundryroom and Sanibel Beach Club II reported the theft of a color TV valued at $519.

A 41 year old man was transported to Lee Memorial Hospital for psychiatric observation under the Baker Act after the SPD ran into him twice - once behaving irrationally in his mother's home and once passed out in his car at Turner's Beach.

The SPD, fire department and Lee County Electric responded to a report that a transformer on a West Gulf Drive home had exploded - rocking the house and knocking out power along West Gulf Drive.

A peeping tom was reported by residents of Palm Ridge Apartments. After careful investigation by the SPD however, the tom turned out to be a resident who claimed the peeping was "unintentional."

An alligator was reported keeping watch over the Scotty's Restaurant and Pub parking lot on two different occasions last week. Everytime the SPD showed up however, the gator had already disappeared.

Two women in the buff were reported playing with a frisbee and a German Shepherd at Bowman's Beach last week. But by the time the SPD showed up the women had their clothes back on.

Three car accidents and the never ending problem of speeders on San-Cap Road were all part of last week's action at the Sanibel Police Department.

Sanibel resident arrested on cocaine charges

By Pat Harmel

Sanibel resident Mark Bruno was arrested last Thursday by Federal and County agents after he reportedly accepted $110,000 from an undercover agent in exchange for 4.4 pounds of cocaine with a street value estimated at $1.5 million.

Arrested with the 27 year old Bruno was Walter Bauer, 42, a former Lee County Sheriff's deputy, and Fabio Caseres of Hialeah. All three have been charged with the distribution of cocaine.

The arrests took place at Miner's Plaza, consummating a long term investigation by the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), U.S. Customs Department, Lee County Sheriff's Department and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Bruno was arrested on Sanibel in February 1978 for possession of controlled substances and later pleaded guilty to felony possession and sale of marijuana. He was fined $500 and sentenced to four years probation.

He was arrested again in August of last year in White Pigeon, Michigan and charged with possession of marijuana with intent to deliver.

Bauer posted bond of $50,000 last Saturday and was released from jail. Caseres, a Columbian citizen, posted $75,000 bond and was also released. Bruno was still being held in Lee County jail on $50,000 bond late Sunday.

On the water

By Captain Mike Fuery

If you have done any fishing out in the Gulf or Pine Island Sound over the past few weeks you know that the sun is very hot and tends to really complicate the fishing.

Not all of us can fish at the crack of dawn, or sunset or in the evening, so this week I want to share some thoughts on fishing in the sun and offer some of the ideas other people have developed to make day fishing more enjoyable.

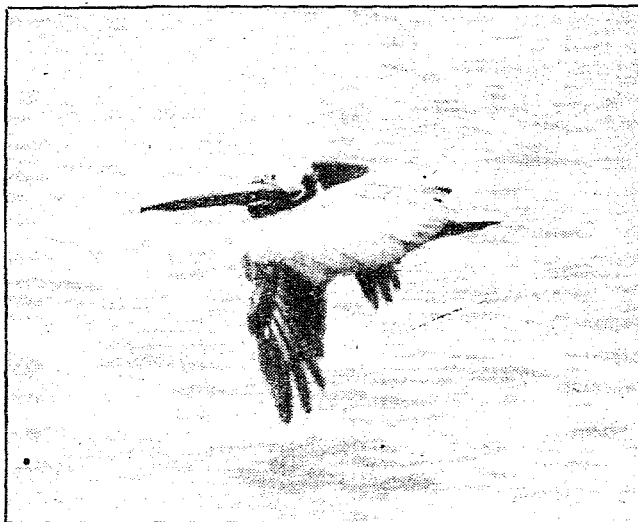

Boat fishermen, it would seem, have the best of both fishing and the shade because of the various portable tops manufacturers put on their models. But most of these are called Bimini tops and, for all practical purposes, are next to impossible to work around when a big snook is tearing past the boat. There are just too many straps, support poles and other junk to pass the rod around.

I've lost fish because of these tops when a fisherman sitting in the bow whips back the rod and whacks it into the top. It's hard to cast around these things and, as I mentioned, if you have a circling fish you can forget about landing it.

The solution? Check some of the old photographs of people fishing Pine Island Sound years ago and you'll most likely discover that they used a simple beach umbrella. I can't think of a single boat builder who offers such a sun shade but it works, and a few guides on the Islands are using the idea to keep the sun off their people during a long, hot afternoon spent drifting for snook or tarpon.

Most porch and patio stores have these umbrellas and, as you might expect, things aren't as simple as they used to be when it comes to umbrellas.

Now you can't simply have canvas. Not when you have synthetic materials that let in the breeze, fold more compactly and come in many more colors than the old standard red and white (a la circus tent)!

The beauty of these covers is that you can work a fish all the way around them and tilt the top so that it gives maximum protection for a couple of people fishing in the boat's bow.

That's good enough for the shade, but how about what's best for the skin? No doubt about that one at all. Zinc oxide. I've talked with several doctors who say the lotions on the market just can't beat a 100 per cent block like this white cream. It might make you look somewhat like a clown so many people prefer to use other lotions on their face and the zinc just on their lips. Just don't drink out of a bottle after someone with zinc on their mouth has had a shot at it first!

I guess that I have tried most of the leading sun screens and I don't even want to think about how much money I've spent on these potions. From what I've found, based on my own skin reactions to the ingredients, the Johnson and Johnson Sundown lotion is the best. There is now a rating system for the protection any given lotion offers against the sun and, even though Sundown isn't the highest on the list, it is mild on the skin. Some of the top rated lotions have a great deal of alcohol and will have a burning effect on the skin when mixed with salt and sun.

Of course you can always spot an experienced fisherman because if it's daytime he or she will probably have on long pants (not shorts), a long sleeve shirt (not a T-shirt) and a big straw hat. It looks hot and is usually even hotter than looks but the outfit keeps the sun off.

A bad burn marks you as a person who had better learn about the sun's ways - and a bad burn seldom turns to tan. You just get red and peel.

Take care to cover up out there on the water this week and good fishing.

Shelling tips

By Captain Mike Fuery

This is the time of the year when water temperatures are up into the 80's, providing comfortable swimming, but have you ever thought about snorkeling for shells along the beaches during the summertime? It's an inexpensive, healthy way to have a look for some unusual shells.

Snorkeling consists of using a face mask, a breathing tube called a snorkel and a pair of fins. That's it. You can rent the equipment from some places on the Islands, or bring your own from home. If you want to buy a set, you can expect to pay $20 to $30 for equipment that should last for many years to come.

The secret to snorkeling for shells is to get out early in the morning when the winds are calm and the sky is bright. This is because during the first few hours of daylight, the winds generally haven't started to come up and rile the waters. There are exceptions to this, of course, and I've done some great diving in the middle of the day or afternoon, but then you have to put up with the high sun. Incidentally, I always recommend that you snorkel while wearing a long sleeved shirt, or at least a T-shirt to keep you from getting too sunburned. An hour of floating on the top of the water can get you an extremely painful sunburn. You can get a burn right through a shirt too, of course, but it at least offers some protection.

The waters around Sanibel and Captiva Islands never really get crystal clear. If you have done much diving in the Bahamas or the Florida Keys, you are undoubtedly spoiled for life because of the water clarity there. You aren't going to find visibility of much more than 10 to 20 feet here, and that's under good conditions.

Visibility doesn't matter too much, however, because you will be snorkeling in five feet of water or less. That's where many of the shells, both living and dead, off the Islands are found.

You can work your way along any of the sandy beaches on the outside or Gulf side of the Islands, but again look for ideal conditions. Off Bowman's Beach, look for sand dollars, whelks, conchs and sea urchins.

If you want to see some really interesting fish life in addition to shells, try snorkeling along the Sanibel Causeway over the grass flats. All kinds of creatures call this location home and you will get an education in marine biology while enjoying the recreation.

If you have a boat there are two favorite places I would recommend. One is the set of rocks about a half-mile north of Captiva Pass and just 100 yards out of Cayo Costa Island. You will spot grouper around these rocks and you should be able to find a few good shells swept back in the rocks just off the beach. This is shallow water diving - the deepest might be 12 feet and the shallowest about three feet. This large pass dividing North Captiva Island and Cayo Costa Island has a big volume of water and is often clearer than the other passes. Another good diving area for shells is the bay side of the southern tip of Cayo Costa Island.

Diving for shells will obviously be appealing to a few shellers physically able to handle the equipment. Kids certainly love it and so do many, many adults.

It's a good way to add some special shells to your collection.

(Capt. Mike Fuery offers daily shelling trips. Call 472-3459 for more information.)

update

All the entries of the 1980 Island Open Fishing Derby have been netted, cooked or mounted, but the final results are still a day away. The last chance to catch a fish this year was Sunday at midnight, but mail-in entries will still trickle into the Chamber of Commerce until midnight Wednesday.

The largest fish caught in the 10th week of the Derby was hooked by Horst Dietrich of Middleport, New York. His 24½ lb. snook was caught in the surf at Blind Pass.

Tampa resident Ken Jones weighed-in the biggest redfish of the week at 10½ lbs., and William Branch of Sanibel pulled in the largest trout off Cabbage Key. Branch's 6 lb. trout was caught on an artificial lure. He was guided by Capt. R. Stewart South.

There were no junior angler, or cobia entries.

Everything you ever wanted to know about sharks!

By Bill Motchan

The Sea World Book of Sharks, by Eve Bunting with photographs by Flip Nicklin. Published by Sea World Press, 1250 Sixth Avenue, San Diego, California. 79 pages.

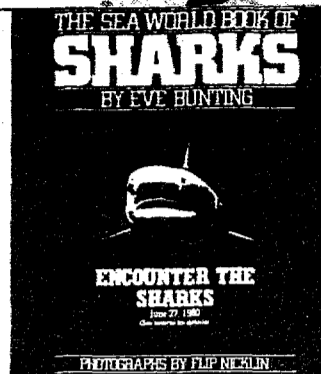

There is probably no other living creature more misunderstood than the shark.

Man has tortured and bludgeoned the shark to violent death. "Why not?" people say. "Sharks are deadly killers who show no mercy."

In reality, though, the shark's place on earth is not to devour as many human beings as it can; the shark is just another link in the continuing life-cycle of the sea. Sharks, in fact, may not even like the taste of humans - they have been known to spit out a person, after realizing it was not a fish.

There are even some sharks that are strictly vegetarian. The basking shark, who can grow to the size of a Greyhound bus, feeds exclusively on plankton.

The great white shark, however, will eat just about anything that moves and is known to be one of the rarest and fiercest species of sharks. There is a saying that if you come face to face with a great white in the ocean, it is one of the last things you will ever see.

The study of sharks is fascinating and a recently published book on the subject is just as fascinating. "The Sea World Book of Sharks," by Eve Bunting gives a graphic, breathtaking look at these denizens of the deep.

Ms. Bunting traces the shark's roots back to the age of the dinosaur. The word "shark" may have come, she says, from the German schurke (meaning "villain") or the Anglo-Saxon sceran (which means "to cut").

The book examines how sharks have evolved, methods of studying them, their physical make-up, birth and the difference between various shark species.

This is a captivating description of the ocean's kings. On almost every page is a striking illustration. Underwater photographer Flip Nicklin's work accompanies Ms. Bunting's text in a perfect match. Nicklin gives the reader a clear picture indeed, of what it's like to stand eye to eye with a shark.

Many of the shark's mysterious habits are explained and just as many unsolved mysteries are discussed. The readable text and eye grabbing photographs combine to make "The Sea World Book of Sharks" an excellent work.

Richard Beebe:

A Sanibel natural resource whose influence lives on

By George Campbell

It has been almost three years now since Richard Beebe died in the Fall of '77, but the important contributions of this accomplished naturalist-conservationist-ornithologist live on.

For more than three years Dick Beebe and I operated what we called our Sanibel Natural History Field Trips. Together we walked hundreds, maybe thousands of miles observing, learning about and teaching the nature of things here on Sanibel and several other islands too, especially nearby Cayo Costa.

Beebe's greatest love was ornithology. He knew all of the avian species - of which there are many more than 200 inhabiting these Islands. He knew their habits, their phylogenetic relations and their migratory patterns. He could describe fascinating inter-specific symbiotic relationships that can be noted by the discerning observer; sometimes as many as three or four species are involved.

I will never forget his graphic descriptions of canopy feeding as undertaken by the Reddish Egret or plunge-fishing as practiced by the Occidental Pelican. Both employ many intricate and interesting physical principles and Beebe's animated and highly technical descriptions held his audiences enthralled.

Beebe was born in western New York and was raised in a rural environment near the shore of Conesus Lake. Much of his childhood was spent in the wooded areas surrounding the lake and in the marshy part of its outlet. It was there that he nurtured a growing interest in wildlife and conservation and gained his first skills in ornithology, all of which were to persist throughout his lifetime. After he graduated from college in 1936, he spent his professional life in the field of education in western New York where his career showed constant progression up the ladder of success until he retired in 1971 from a responsible regional position in education.

All during his 13 years in the executive end of the school system in Corfu and East Pembroke, Beebe occupied himself with his natural history studies while also assuming a leadership position in teaching natural history and conservation to both children and adults throughout the region.

Richard's wife, Caroline Beebe, needed one more year of work after his 1971 retirement, so he spent the extra year conducting a comprehensive raptor study at the Iroquois National Wildlife Refuge. The study stands today as the definitive raptorial work of that region.

Eight years ago, the Beebes came to live on Sanibel where Richard spent perhaps his most productive years. He was president of the Sanibel-Captiva Audubon Society and was also a professional naturalist.

One of the major accomplishments of this versatile, dedicated man was his incredible ability to photograph natural history subjects. Many of his pictures may be seen today hanging in the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation. A number of homes on Sanibel also have his pictures prominently displayed and there is even one at the Sanibel City Hall.

Published posthumously in the Florida Naturalist in April 1978, is Beebe's study of the Least Bittern's nesting habits. That issue shows a remarkable cover photograph of the young Bittern on the nest and the text is extensively illustrated also.

Probably the most remarkable of Beebe's photographs - at least the most widely discussed - is the Snowy Egret in full breeding plumage. Sanibel Vegetation Committee Chairman Mike Klein has this most unusual photograph hanging in his home.

Mike Klein, a great admirer of Dick Beebe's, has sponsored and is the creator of a concept which is achieving realization today - the Beebe Grove at the junction of Palm Ridge Road and Periwinkle Way. Created by volunteers with cooperation from the City Administration, the restoration of natural habitat in this triangle formed by the junction of two roads is proceeding apace.

This spring of 1980 would have pleased Beebe for the Roseate Spoonbills are back in considerable number. There are about ten Reddish Egrets, abundant for Sanibel - their seemingly ludicrous but highly successful gullet filling "dance of the outstretched wing" may be seen nearly every day.

He would have been unhappy at the paucity of Least Terns but there are more Black Skimmers this year than in the last two years. In years gone by, Beebe and I had envisaged a Least Tern and Black Skimmer protected breeding ground - but no, this was not to be, and both have suffered recently at the hands of man's skillful habitat destruction ability.

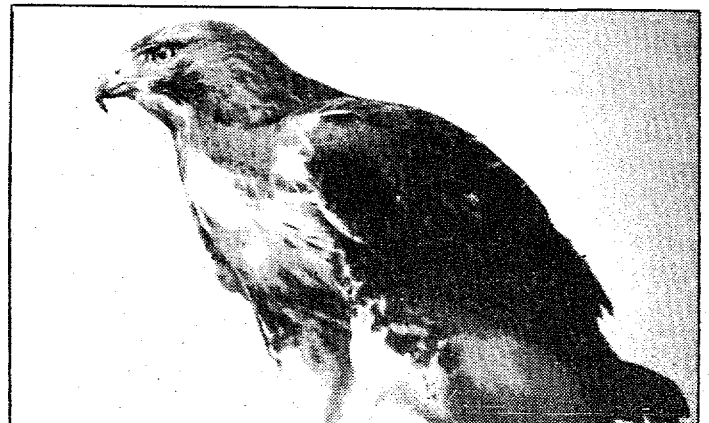

Beebe would have been excited about the sighting of a large American Crocodile last November, for his own sighting of about six or seven years ago was of great interest to him. He would be pleased to know that for the first time in several years, the Wood Storks are apparently successfully breeding at Corkscrew Swamp. I know that he would have been concerned at the potential for misuse, as I am, of the new water control devices in "Ding" Darling: primitive structures of archaic design, capable of causing serious environmental damage.

"Sometimes I find observing birders almost as interesting as the birds themselves."

For all of his serious environmental concern, Richard Beebe also had a sense of humor and a lively wit - as may be attested to by this excerpt from one of his many published articles: "Sometimes I find observing birders almost as interesting as the birds themselves. One of the classics that always induces a chuckle is to watch a carful of people suddenly come to a halt upon sighting Roseate Spoonbills. The obvious leader and bird authority then steps forth and announces to all within hearing distance, 'Look at the Flamingoes!'"

Hum-dilla-jelly!

By Bill Motchan

Do you enjoy watching softball but shy away from games because you can't understand the language? Softball games, like foreign countries, have a dialect all their own. For those people who would like to get more out of softball, the following is a glossary of commonly used Sanibel softball phrases:

Bingo: (or bingle, or bingo, bango bingo), used in conjunction with "Let's have a little..." which is a plea for a player to get a hit.

Blowing up: when a pitcher can no longer throw strikes consistently.

Can of corn: (pronounced "can-a-corn!") easy catch.

Chin music: a high and tight pitch, up around the chin; usually used in baseball to discourage the hitter from getting too close to the plate.

Get some sticks: plural of bingo.

Get some wheels: start doing some running.

Hamburger: a pitcher who is "blowing up."

Hum jelly: (also hum-dilla-jelly) has absolutely no meaning - all purpose phrase which can be yelled out at the fan's discretion.

Losing his stuff: what a hamburger does.

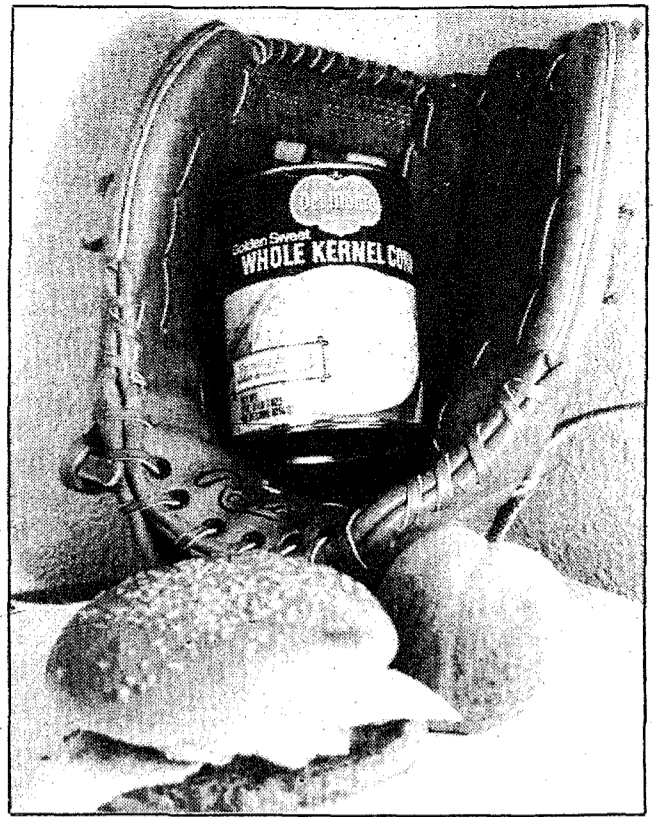

Meatball: see hamburger.

Peach: fat, juicy pitch.

Rabbit ears: a player than can hear everything; the ideal target for verbal barbs.

Shoot the dark one: a plea for the pitcher to throw a pitch that the batter cannot see.

You're a hitter: you'd better be a hitter or you're benched.

Island Pizza duo cook up a winning team

By Bill Motchan

Pat Cupo and Roger Osborn are partners. Together, they operate Island Pizza; they also team up on the ball field as co-coaches of Island Pizza's softball team in the Sanibel Softball League.

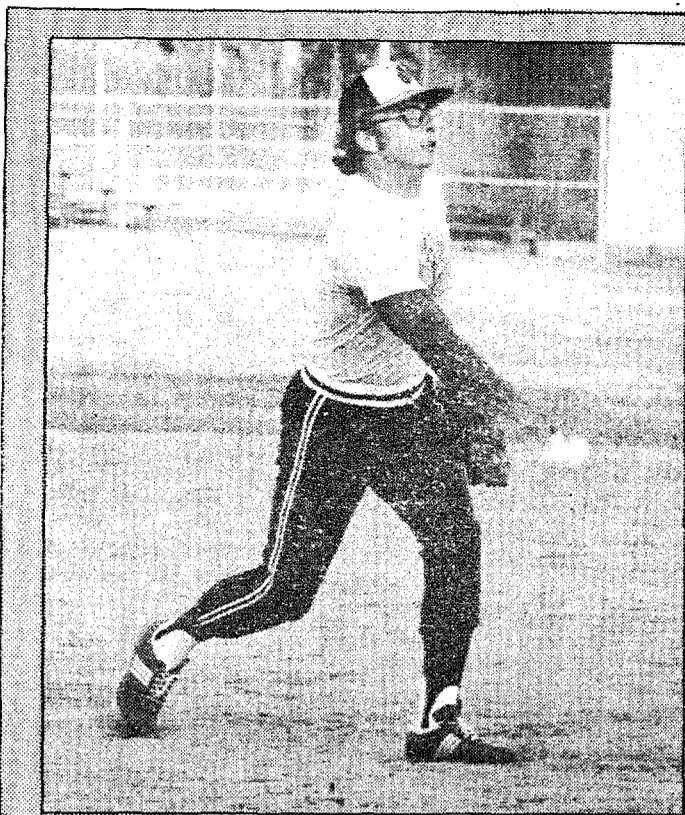

Last season was the first for the Island Pizza team and it hasn't taken them long to gel into a winning machine. In fact, they were the only undefeated team in the league going into the third week.

"We had a pretty good team last year," says Pat 'Coo' Cupo. "We picked up a few more players this year and have more strength."

Cupo and Osborn not only coach the team but also play, a system that has worked out well. "Usually, we play wherever we're needed," Osborn says.

Both coaches agree that the Island Pizza winning ways boil down to a good overall team effort. "It's just like running the pizza shop," Osborn claims. "We're on the same level with the guys on the team. Everybody's out here to have fun, and we're out to play some good ball, too."

While Island Pizza is racking up wins, they are still waiting for their uniforms, described by Roger Osborn as brilliant red, white and blue. "Even if we don't win," he says, "we sure will look good!"

Brooks, Bennett & Smith - a hot new trio

By Roxanna Motchan

Brooks and Bennett are back! Oh, don't forget Smith! Leslie Brooks and Dave Bennett, the popular singing duo now appearing at Tween Waters Inn, have added a third member to their entourage, Andy Smith.

Leslie and Dave, who have been performing together for a year and a half, arrived on the Islands in January. Since that time, they have been keeping busy wowing audiences at local night spots.

Just a week and a half ago Andy Smith, an accomplished musician specializing in drums and piano, joined the group.

With a repertoire ranging from Linda Rondstadt to Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and a myriad of other country, rock, and pop tunes, Brooks Bennett and Smith captivate and entertain with style and energy.

Dave Bennett has been playing the guitar since the age of nine. Music of the Beatles influenced his entrance into the music world.

"My dad was a musician and he was my main inspiration," Bennett says. "When I was a little boy he took me to see the Beatles. We had front row seats, and I've been hooked ever since."

Bennett left high school to tour in the road production of Jesus Christ Superstar (with Andy Smith, a friend for many years). Along with the acquisition of great experience, Bennett acquired souvenirs from the United States, Germany, and Holland.

He did return for his diploma however, and then began performing in Columbus, Ohio until he met Leslie Brooks. They joined forces and have been a duo ever since.

Leslie's reasons for turning pro had nothing to do with childhood aspirations, glamorous dreams, or the hope of someday being on the cover of a movie magazine. "I needed money to support myself through the University of Kentucky," she admits.

Andy Smith, like Dave Bennett, has always had an interest in music. "I used to play by ear until I learned how to read music," he explains. "And when I got to high school I joined a rock and roll band like everyone else. Things just took off from there."

All three members of the group are adept at playing several instruments apiece. Smith plays piano and drums, Bennett specializes in bass and electric guitar, banjo and mandolin, and Brooks plays folk guitar.

Brooks, Bennett, and Smith will be appearing at Tween Waters Inn each Wednesday through Sunday until July 20. Their performance begins at 9 p.m. and there is a $1 cover charge.

flexible, luxurious, and economical
--interval ownership makes sense.

Yes, Our vacations are special — we like to travel, stay at top resorts, dine at fine restaurants, and enjoy a variety of activities.

We've been visiting the islands for several years and have thought seriously about buying a vacation home here. We looked around, and discovered the interval ownership program at South Seas Plantation offers our kind of vacations — very economically and allows us to vacation more frequently.

In fact, it made sense for us to purchase four vacation weeks — two for our vacations at South Seas Plantation, one for our children to come and visit, and another week to use with the exchange program. The exchange week we'll use to go to Hilton Head, Europe, Hawaii or wherever.

Let's face facts. Renting accommodations at first class resorts is expensive. The vacation villas at Plantation Beach Club are luxurious, the one-time purchase price is very reasonable, and we always have something to show for the money we've spent.

Membership at South Seas Plantation and our beachfront vacation villa — that's the kind of vacation we value.

20 reasons why you should bank with BOTI

We think it's a real bargain to get over that causeway for just 50¢. But if you're using one of your tickets to take your banking off the island you should consider what that 50¢ means in terms of interest on your savings.

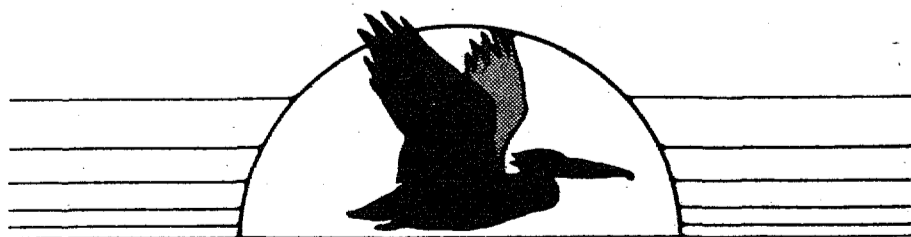

Then add the cost of gasoline and your precious time and you should have plenty of reasons to do your banking right here with Bank of the Islands.

We have two offices that are always on your way somewhere and we specialize in the kind of banking that islanders appreciate. We offer all the services; we offer all the interest on your savings that we're allowed by law; and we do it all in a relaxed, come-as-you-are atmosphere that won't interrupt your island lifestyle.

Save your bridge tickets for a night on the town or that movie you've wanted to see and save 50¢ every time you bank with BOTI.

The Beachview Men are still able to bring out 20 players for their bi-weekly matches despite the summer heat.

On Tuesday only one team was awarded a prize. The foursome of Buhl Bourgoyne, Ray Martorelli, John Wickens and Tram Sessions were as hot as the sun finishing with a plus 11.

The winning foursome on Saturday at plus seven was Charlie Uhr, Jim Briscoe, and Dave Wooster. Also on Saturday it was reported that the game of Hank Groh, the hottest player in the Beachview Association, went into total collapse. According to a source close to Groh, Hank was completely overshadowed by his guest John Brosnahan.

Portrait

By Pat Harmel

Sheila Tardosky

Age: 52

Height: 5' 4"

Roots: London, England

Artor: "Chip Chadbourn.

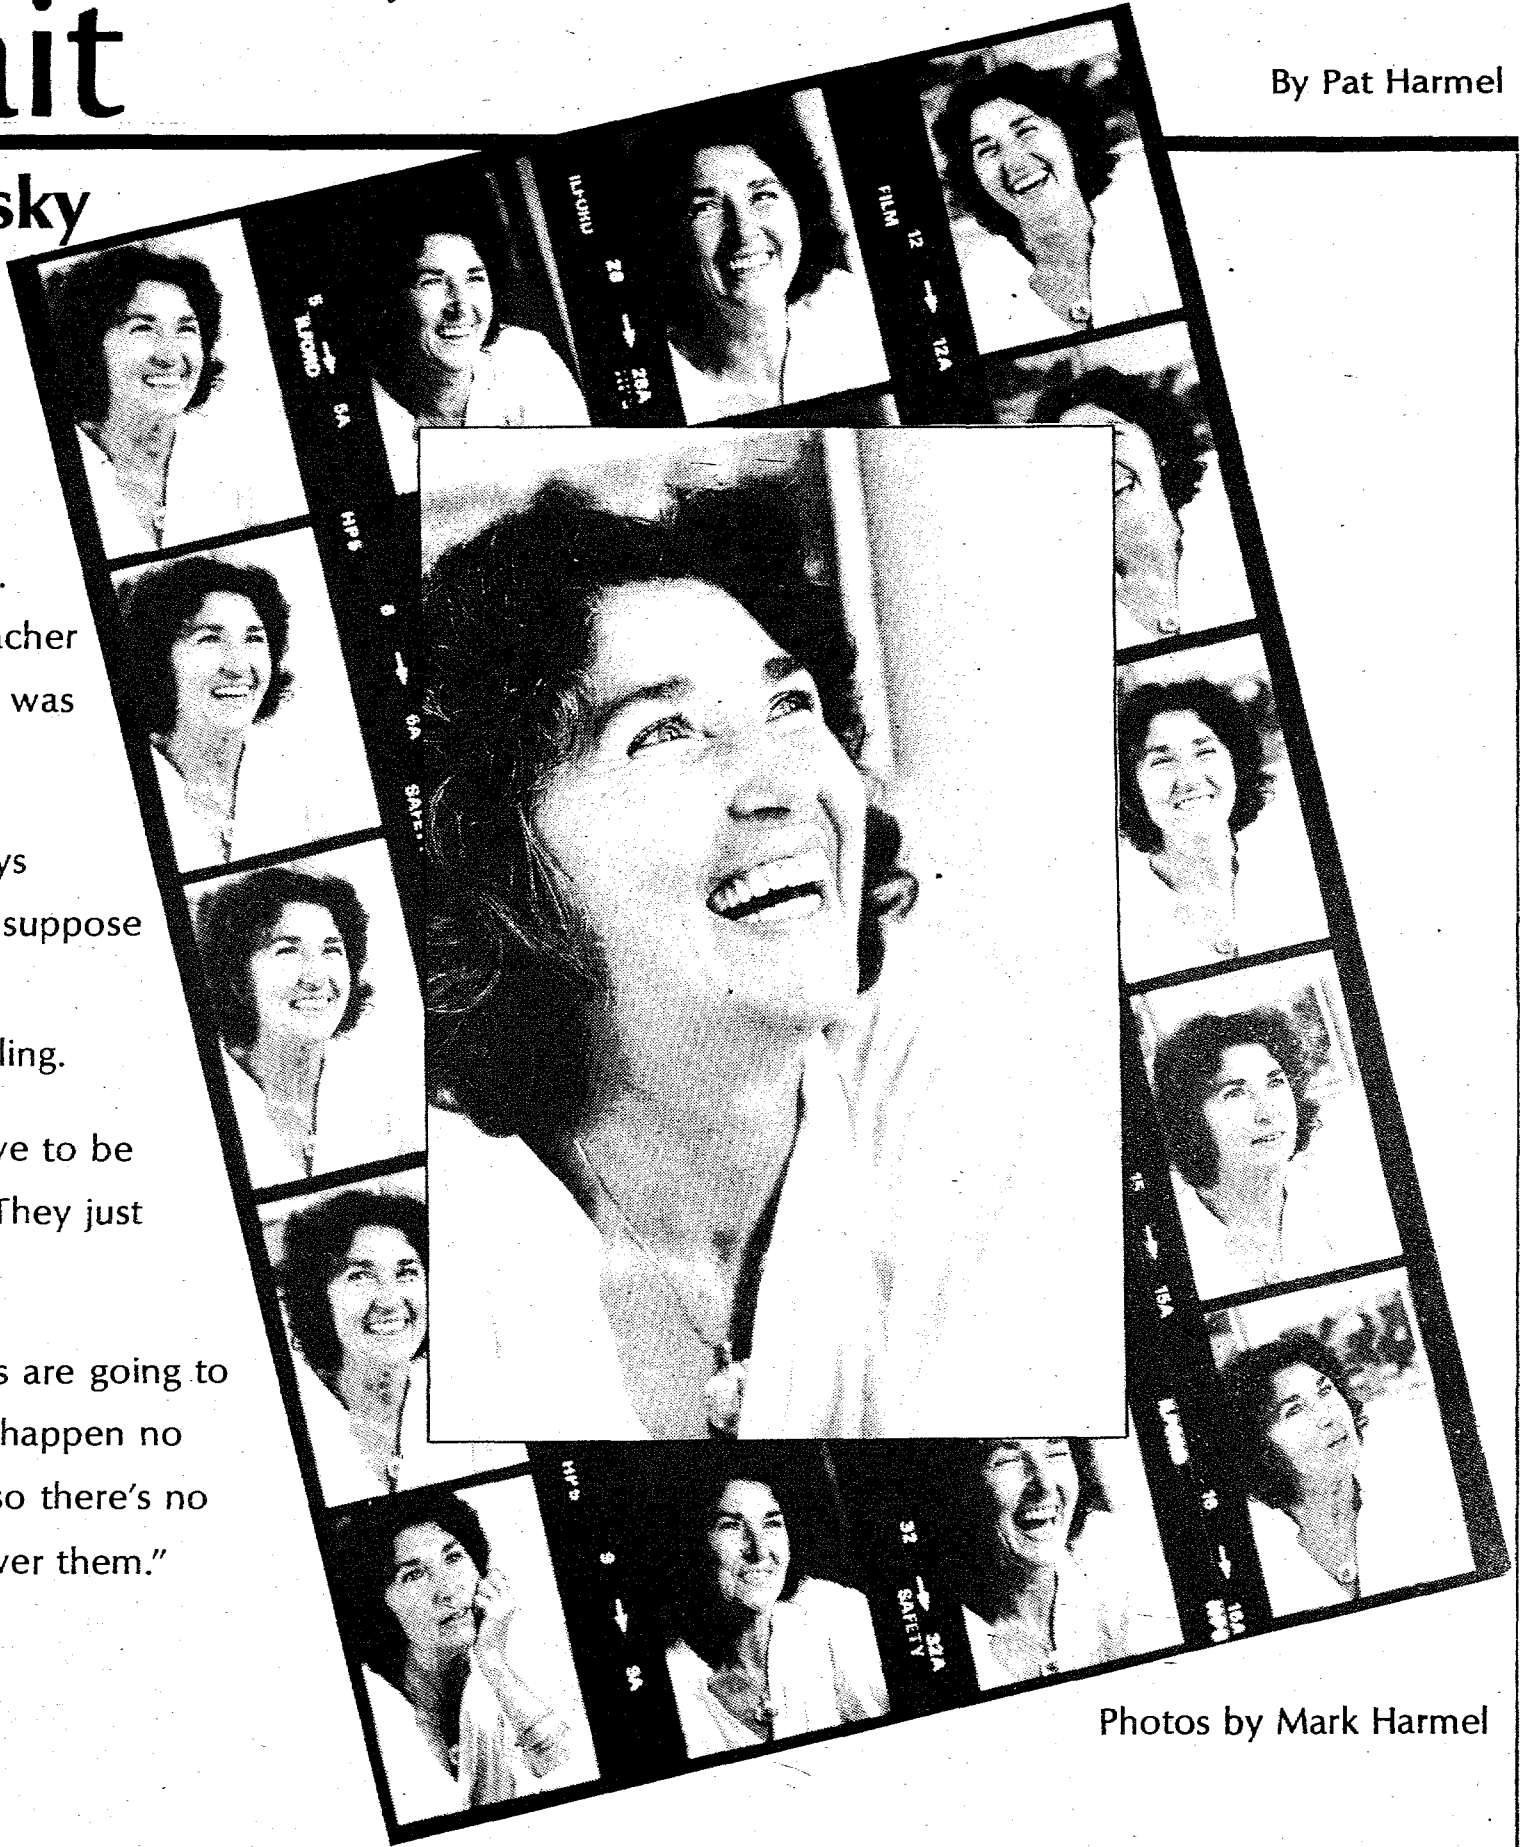

He was the last art teacher I had in Maine and he was fantastic."

Last Book Read: "I'm always reading mysteries so I suppose it was a mystery."

Pleasures: Reading and sailing.

Wish: "Sometimes you have to be careful about wishes. They just might come true!"

Words of Wisdom: "Things are going to happen the way they happen no matter what you do, so there's no reason to get upset over them."

Sheila Tardosky is probably one of the most serene people you've ever likely to meet.

She has few gripes, no wishes, and, intellectually at least, has a fatalistic outlook on life.

She is an artist today, but wasn't always. Before being an artist she was "just so busy" being an office worker.

In earlier times art was "a luxury" the working mother of three sons could not afford. "Now," she says, "art is the thing I have time for."

Being one of nine children in a London family during the war evidently contributed to the development of Sheila's innate tranquility. Just nineteen years old at the end of the war, she found herself "tired of war and tired of rationing." Relief took the form of a solo journey from London to Newark, New Jersey.

The trip to America, in Sheila's words, was not necessarily the culmination of a lifelong dream, nor even a very brave venture for a teenager.

"When you're 19," she muses, "you just want to do something like that."

She took to America right away and has only returned to London twice in the last 33 years.

Marriage and babies kept her seriously busy for many years and, despite the fact that she frequently sketched her children and taught them the wonders of the world of art, she never seriously considered herself an artist until they were all gone from home.

Then she began studying under a Hungarian professor who had set up a studio in the Maine town where she was then living.

"I studied with him for four years," she says today. "He was such a disciplinarian and I thought 'If this is being an artist I don't think I want to be one!' But he did teach me a lot."

Fortunately, Sheila also studied under other artists, including Chip Chadbourn, who instilled in her a love for landscapes and still lifes.

In Maine she finally began to think of herself as "an artist" and exhibited her work in sidewalk art shows and in a friend's shop.

At the same time, Sheila's husband, Arthur, was serving as a Vice President of a large trucking company. "He was a 'busy executive,'" she recalls, "and we were getting tired of never having enough time to spend together."

So they began to look for a small gift shop type business they could run together. "In Maine," says Sheila, "the 'season' is really only six weeks long," so, despite a very long hunt, they failed to find what they were looking for.

And then they came to Captiva.

Sheila and Arthur were introduced to the Islands by their son Glenn who attended college in Florida and now lives in Orlando. Three years ago they purchased a condominium on Sanibel and on one of their Island visits last year they came across the Captiva location that is now both their home and business.

The Tree House Gift Shop is now all they had hoped it would be. Sheila delights in the tourists, especially the children, and finds in her neighbors many kindred souls.

She has not yet adjusted to the heat ("Maybe I never will.") but still manages to find a shady, early morning spot - and in her paint box she carries a big can of bug repellent!

"As long as I'm outside painting," she says firmly, "I'm happy."

Conversely, she avoids local politics outside the realm of the artistic community. "I haven't even been here a year," she says. "Who am I to come here, knowing nothing, and then pretend to be an erosion expert?"

Sheila and Arthur have become involved in numerous area art groups, however, and are in the process of incorporating a gallery into the gift shop. Tentative plans call for a July opening of the gallery, which is already stocked with numerous friends' works.

Despite a mild irritation towards the "talk, talk, talk" tendency of many people, Sheila maintains that "practically nothing" upsets her.

"I'm really happy here right now," she says. "I'm busy doing things I like doing and I'm just lucky to have everything I want."

Island handicapped find Bailey's easy to shop

Editor's note: this is the first in a series of articles by George Christensen dealing with the specific problems facing the Islands' handicapped residents.

By George Christensen, Chairman of the Rotary Club Handicapped Committee

All too often the things we take for granted as normal are not so normal for handicapped people. A four inch step in a doorway is not an insurmountable barrier to a one legged person using crutches. That same person, however, confined to a wheelchair by other physical injuries, radiological or chemotherapy treatments, would find that same four inch step insurmountable without other assistance. Yet even with assistance that wheelchair will not go through a doorway that is too narrow.

These conditions threaten the very existence of handicapped people whose survival depends upon food, clothing and shelter, just as ours does.

Accessibility to places of worship for renewal of the spirit is of prime importance if the handicapped are to survive the many, many hardships and obstacles they must face.

To this end we intend to point out to the people in the community the good conditions for the Island handicapped in the areas of food, clothing, shelter and churches as they concern accessibility. Hopefully, our indication of the positive conditions existing in the community will motivate those in other sectors to correct poor accessibility conditions in their business areas.

This week we examined architectural barriers and accessibility conditions that affect the handicapped in the areas of food purchase on Sanibel. If this article sounds critical in any way it is unintentional. Frequently, even though I am acutely aware of handicap problems, I pass through areas that are inaccessible to the handicapped without recognizing that a problem exists. I am convinced that when astute business people recognize the problems that inaccessibility causes, and that it's good business to provide access to their place of business for the handicapped, these problems will be readily corrected.

It was most refreshing to find that Mayor Francis Bailey's food store proved to be the most accessible for the following reasons:

(1) A handicapped parking space was provided adjacent to the incline leading to the floor level of the store. Too often this space is occupied by unthinking people that are not handicapped. Handicap impairments are easily recognized - but the best indication that the driver of the car in the handicapped parking space is indeed handicapped is the handicap decal on the rear of the car or on the rear license plate.

(2) Most important, the parking space was paved, as are the incline and the sidewalk leading to the store. Too often the handicapped parking spaces are provided with sand bases. It is virtually impossible to maneuver a wheelchair in sand and walking in sand with crutches is difficult.

(3) The incline from the parking area is paved and gently sloped. It provides access to the store floor from the parking area. Changes in elevation probably cause handicapped people the most problems. The average person usually doesn't recognize small changes in elevation. When builders design steps or walkways they unthinkingly create a ratio of changes that absolutely stop handicapped people in wheelchairs, especially if they are alone and unattended.

(4) The doors at Bailey's food store automatically open inward and outward when pressure is applied by weight to a rubber mat directly in front of the entrance and exit doors. This is a very thoughtful aid. Handicapped people usually have their hands full with crutches or with the wheels of the wheelchair when going through doorways. Doors don't bother most of us, and I'm virtually certain that merchants or people happening by would assist a handicapped person through a doorway without automatic door openers. Be that as it may, this kind of assistance and consideration will be needed until such time as a uniform building standard is adopted. The American National Standards Institute (ANSI) has such a standard, A117.11, that was formulated by handicapped people and adopted by ANSI. However, this standard as revised on March 30, 1980, will not apply until it is accepted as the single standard for all Federal or Federally funded buildings. Your congressman and senators should be urged to adopt this single standard.

(5) Good food carts are available to assist the average shopper to pick up their weekly groceries and bring them to the checkout counter. My favorite handicapped shopper has little trouble with this chore because she uses the basket attached to her specially designed wheelchair. However, I feel that some creative thinking is required to design a suitable food cart for the handicapped. Such a cart is not presently available to the best of my knowledge.

(6) Shopping in Bailey's is relatively easy. The floors and aisles are usually clean and uncluttered, but most importantly, they are dry. Wet floors can be a disaster to a person with crutches, and debris on the floor or boxes in the aisles tend to be an obstacle course for the handicapped. The aisles are wide enough for passing other shoppers and merchandise is easily obtained from the shelves.

(7) Checkout aisles and counters are wide enough for a wheelchair to pass through and the counters low enough to permit easy transfer of goods from the shopping cart to the counter. This checkout counter is superior to those of the larger food stores in town because the handicapped person in a wheelchair can easily pass through the aisle of the checkout counter. Some stores in Fort Myers have checkout counter aisles that are either too narrow or they have several turns that prevent easy accessibility.

(8) The people checking out merchandise are very pleasant, courteous, and helpful as are the men and women in the various departments.

It is a distinct pleasure to recommend Bailey's food store to the Islands' handicapped. Mayor Bailey is to be commended for providing a store that is accessible to the handicapped, as it pertains to one of their basic needs - food.

SWIMMING

By Bill Motchan

The Sanibel Swim Team stroked to an impressive victory in a Greater Lee County YMCA meet held last Wednesday in Fort Myers. Sanibel's powerful team racked up 978 points; their closest competition, East Fort Myers, had 305.

"The high point total reflects a good swim," said Coach Dick Noon, adding that about 30 members of the Sanibel team have now qualified for the August 29 Gulf Coast Championship in Venice, Fla.

Sanibel swept the field in relay events in last week's meet, and finished strong in individual swimming. First place honors went to the following:

Six and under girls: 25 free, Karen Muench. Six and under boys: 25 free, Joel Cramer.

Eight and under girls: 25 fly, back and free, Laura Fenton; 25 breast, Lisa Fenton. Eight and under boys: 25 fly and back, John Feeney.

Ten and under girls: 50 free, Tanya Leonardi. Ten and under boys: 25 fly and 50 free, Gerritt Goss; 50 back, John Healy; 50 breast, Scotch Peloso.

Eleven and twelve girls: 50 fly, back, breast and free, Dawn Moss. Eleven and twelve boys: 50 fly, breast and free, Matt Nichols; 50 back, Larry Tremblay.

Thirteen - fifteen girls: 50 fly and back, Marcy Hugger; 50 free, Paula Mellom. Thirteen - fifteen boys: 50 fly, Art Lewis; 50 back and free, Peter Evans.

residents of Sanibel and have been involved in many Island activities.

If you would like to participate in any of the various Shell Fair committees you can

— Sanibel-Captiva Rotary —

The Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club heard about an unusual twist in energy conservation from Richard Goodwin, featured speaker at their regular Friday meeting last week at the Timbers Restaurant.

Mr. Goodwin explained how it is possible to heat and cool a home, as well as to supply hot water, using water, as he termed it, for fuel. Mr. Goodwin, a vice president of Geo-Therm Heating and Cooling Inc., illustrated his talk with a slide presentation.

A gala get-together of club members and their wives is scheduled for Wednesday, July 9, starting with a happy hour at 6:30 p.m. at the home of President John Murray and progressing to dinner at the Timbers at 8 p.m. Approximately 40 people are expected to participate.

At this week's regularly scheduled Friday meeting of the San-Cap Rotary, Mr. Warren Hyde, former interim City Manager of Sanibel, will be the featured speaker. Mr. Hyde is well qualified to speak on the topic, "Life From A City Manager's Viewpoint." He was City Manager of Edina, Mn. for 30 years before retiring to Sanibel.

This meeting will be open to the public because of the general interest subject on a Dutch Treat basis.

For club information please contact President John Murray at 472-5177 or Vice President Mark Webb at 472-4141.

Dog - gone

Denny and Phil Faubert, the wind surfers immortalized in last week's Islander, got some more attention Wednesday, June 25, but not for their surfing skills. The Faubert brothers, who work at Sundial Resort's boat rental, were called to the aid of a damsel in distress.

The subject of the rescue was an Irish Setter belonging to Mr. and Mrs. John Phillip Tyler of Atlanta, Ga. The dog spotted a gaggle of pelicans in the Gulf and took off after them. Unaware that there is no shore till Mexico, the setter swam farther and farther away.

dog, and the Fauberts rowed out to it in a canoe. Catching up with the dog was easy, but it kept on going. Finally, the dog put its paws up on the boat to rest. Seizing the opportunity, Denny pulled it in and brought it back to the beach.

"A group of people were lined up when we got back in" Denny said. "They started applauding and I felt a little dumb." Any embarrassment quickly disappeared, however, when the Tylers came back to thank Denny and Phil: the Fauberts received a $75 reward for their efforts.

Where on Sanibel Island can you get a red hot burrito at 3 a.m.? For a few more weeks at the 7-11 store on Periwinkle Way - the Island's 7-11 recently began staying open 24 hours a day.

"They (the main office) were going to give it a 90-day trial," said manager Louise Stidham. Lack of employees and customers in the twilight hours however, appear to be the reason for discontinuing the all-night service.

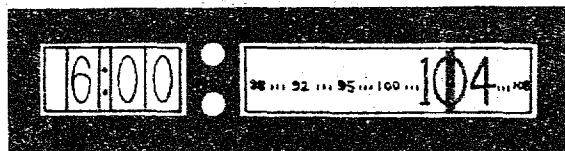

Soon, Ms. Stidham said, the store will go back to normal hours. Normal hours for 7-11, incidentally, are 6 a.m. till 11 p.m.

A bit 'O Irish

Do you see leprechauns in your sleep? Long for corned beef and cabbage? If so, you probably have some Irish blood. Everyone, it seems, is a little bit Irish, and there is a place on Sanibel where you can dress the part.

The Irish Look at Periwinkle Place has a wide assortment of clothes, shipped straight from Dublin. "The shop prides itself on the quality of its goods," says market researcher Stacy Baier. "Most of these things will last a lifetime."

Among the items available are wool sweaters, shawls and suits. If Irish wool sounds a little heavy for Sanibel's 90 degree heat, there is also cookware, gift soaps and jellies straight from Ireland.

The clothes are ideal for cooler climates and make wonderful gifts for northerners, Ms. Baier said. "Everything we carry here is classic - it will never go out of style."

Jim Spooner, Edison Community College baseball coach, has announced a summer baseball clinic for boys and girls ages eight through eighteen. The sessions will be held on a weekly basis June 23 through August 1 on the ECC baseball field.

Assisting with the program will be John Thomas, Chuck Hamlin and Vern Wiggins. The clinic is designed to develop the fundamental skills of each ball player in the basics of hitting, throwing, bunting, base running and fielding. The cost is $20 per week.

Sessions will be held in the afternoons with ages eight through 12 attending from 2 to 4 p.m., and ages 13 through 18 on the field from 4 to 6 p.m. The clinic is offered through the Division of Continuing Education at the college and registration information may be obtained by calling 481-4434.

Fort Myers Beach: cheap thrills

"It's a public service!" laughs Ellis Skolfield of his advertising message on the billboard at McGregor and San Carlos Boulevards.

"You think about all those people driving around in this energy crisis, going all the way from Miner's Corner to the Sanibel Causeway tollbooth.

"It's four miles one way, and eight miles round trip. I figure that I'm saving almost 200 gallons of gas a day by informing people that they have to pay to get to Sanibel!"

The billboard in question informs motorists traveling down McGregor that it will cost them $3 "minimum" to visit Sanibel - but if they turn left to Fort Myers Beach, it's a free ride.

"It's really just for fun and to get people to react favorably to our client," said Skolfield, Manager of the Ellis Skolfield agency. The client is Pink Shell Beach Club on Fort Myers Beach and the rationale is that people contemplating interval ownership can take a look at the Beach for less expense than they can on Sanibel.

Mary Rafferty is pleased to announce the opening of her new shop, "The Stitching Palace," located at 2244-B Periwinkle Way (behind Tuesday's Child and next to Nave Plumbing).

The Stitching Palace is not just another sewing store - it will feature alterations, handmade specialty items such as aprons, pillows and placemats in addition to crafts and clothing designed by Mary herself.

"It's not a gift shop and it's not a fabric shop," Mary says of her new business venture. "It's my own original designs and sewing that I'm trying to set up."

Sew, sew

See ya later alligator . . .

The Board of Directors and staff of the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Center bid a fond adieu last week to Executive Director Dick Workman.

Workman, Foundation director for seven years, will be going to work for CROW (Care and Rehabilitation of Wildlife) as their new director.

Champagne, elaborate vegetation centerpieces and an alligator-topped cap were all part of the going-away fanfare.

Check out Gaylord

The Sanibel Public Library is in the process of setting up a new system for checking out books. Called the Gaylord Charging System, it is used in most of the libraries in Lee County.

The Gaylord system consists of numbered library or identification cards, book cards, date due cards, and a machine which stamps on the book card the number of the library or identification card and the date the book is due.

The machine will be installed within the next two weeks and beginning on Monday, July 7, library patrons will be given numbered cards which must be presented each time books are checked out. Cards will be issued by family, with a three-year expiration date. However, family members may have individual cards on request.

Residents and members will be issued white cards; non-residents, who pay a $5 annual user's fee, will be issued salmon colored cards.

It is believed that this charging system will prove to be more efficient than that in present use, and that it will help to eliminate errors and misunderstandings.

Small Mall

Specialization is the name of the game at the new Pelican Place shopping plaza on Palm Ridge Road. The new businesses housed there include a stuffed animal shop, custom T-shirt shop and a custom mug shop.

Bill Glass, owner of the mug shop, says he will have around 300 different names in stock to personalize mugs, plates and ashtrays with, but adds that he can accommodate any name. In addition to names, Glass has some 5,000 decals to choose from.

Down the hall, Mario Abbatacola is busy grating cheese and kneading dough at Pizza Foolery. A carry-out only shop, Foolery features homemade Chicago-style pizza and sandwiches. Eventually, dinner offerings will be added to the menu.

"I'm just a tax accountant who's dabbling in stuffed animals," says Andy Gelberg of his new shop. "We'll carry a full line of Dakin products. They're very realistic but still very huggable."

Along with bears, monkeys, lions and tigers, Gelberg plans to stock animals native to Sanibel among his menagerie of some 1,000.

Besides the new specialty shops, Island Financial Services will move into its new home at Pelican Place. Island Financial President Elliot Gelbert, Wilbert Zimmerman and Cecelia Tucker are the principle owners of the new shopping plaza.

Development of the building, however, is far from completion. "Upstairs, we have 3,750 square feet," Gelberg said. "We're contemplating what would be the first of its kind on the Island - a mini shopping mall!"

The mall would have around 10 small open air shops, each using 225 square feet. "We've had calls from hobbyists on the Island who want to open a shop with this amount of space," Gelberg said. "We hope to get it in operation within four months."

Dead Fish Pass

Lack of oxygen was officially declared the cause of death for several thousand fish found floating last week in Blind Pass. Shallow water and the extreme high temperatures combined to rob the water of its oxygen, according to area environmentalists.

Mullet, flounder, sheephead, stingrays and redfish were among the marine casualties listed.

Shopping

Sanibel is a veritable shopper's paradise. Tasteful boutiques and casual Island shops join forces to present visitors with everything - and anything - a vacation shopper could hope for.

At the Lighthouse (Eastern) end of the Island, Punta Ybel Plaza and The Sea Horse Shops are right across the street from each other, providing a variety of products that can cure your sweet tooth or tickle your shell finder's fancy. Need a good haircut or coiffure? You can get it in either of these shopping centers. Most businesses open at 10 a.m. and close at 5:30 p.m. This holds true for many Island stores, although during the winter season, some are open evenings.

Tall Australian pines shade Periwinkle Way as the shopper travels west along this main thoroughfare. This stretch of road is truly a shopper's paradise! It's all here...the fast and not-so-fast eating spots, casual and elegant boutiques, hand-wrought jewelry, craft designs, shell shops and balms for health produce fanatics.

Watch to your right and left as you drive or cycle along. Photographic supplies, bait and tackle, deli foods, fresh seafood and baked goods, knick-knacks and what-nots can all be found along the drive to the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road. Along the way, shopping centers such as the Heart of the Islands, Periwinkle Place and Tahitian Gardens offer a variety of Island delights.

Palm Ridge Road, the Periwinkle Way turn-off to Captiva, offers several new shopping centers featuring everything from a gift shop for the discriminating shopper, plants and shells, to a sandwich shop, ice cream parlour, boutique shop and the Island Apothecary pharmacy.

At the Tarpon Bay-Periwinkle Way intersection, the Island Shopping Center features the Island's only supermarket, dry cleaners and movie house.

A left on Tarpon Bay Road takes the visitor past Sanibel's original schoolhouse, which now holds original Island watercolors and woodcuts. Then on to West Gulf Drive and westward to an interesting little artisan's shop and gallery.

At the intersection of Periwinkle Way and Tarpon Bay Road, you may choose instead to turn right and follow the signs to the Tarpon Bay Marina, where you will find a cluster of quaint shops overlooking the back bay...Some antiques, shells and shellcrafts, what-nots and clever clothes can be found here, as well as a great seafood sandwich and soft drinks.

The spectacular ride to Captiva, with its lush foliage and enchanting view of the Gulf, is well worth a day's outing. Talented artists display their works in one roadside shop, while others feature some nifty gifts for Grandma to take home to little hands as a pleasant hodge-podge of remembrances from these barrier islands.

Whether for shopping, or merely browsing, Island shops offer a surprising variety - from one-of-a-kind collectibles for the discerning shopper to postcards for the simple souvenir hunter and of course, for all, shells, shell jewelry, shell lamps, just plain shells...the most beautiful shells in the world from the most beautiful shelling beaches in the world.

For Your Information

BEACH ACCESS

Sanibel has miles of public Gulf-front beaches, any one of which is only minutes from your lodging. Lighthouse Point is a stretch of Federal land on the Eastern tip of Sanibel Island, and from there, the Gulf beach is accessible again at the end of Donax Street, at Tarpon Bay Road, at Bowman's Beach Road (off Sanibel-Captiva Road) and Turner's Beach, which is located at Blind Pass, between Sanibel and Captiva Islands.

On Captiva Island, public beach access can be found at Turner Beach (which has public facilities) or further north, just past the entrance to South Seas Plantation.

NOTE: STATE LAW PROHIBITS NUDE SUNBATHING ON ALL FLORIDA BEACHES. VIOLATORS WILL BE PROSECUTED.

CAMPING

Camping on the beach is prohibited and while everyone enjoys a beach fire, you'll have to get a permit to have one on a Sanibel public beach. The Fire Department on Palm Ridge Road will supply you with a fire permit for $1. Their hours are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. In addition, you'll be required to make a $25 deposit, returnable the day after your beach party when the beach has been inspected for litter and debris. Make sure you clean the area thoroughly or you'll be out $25! Condo owners or managers may submit a letter to the Fire Department, acknowledging that they will assume responsibility for cleanup after a fire in front of their building. The $25 deposit will be waived in those circumstances.

GATORS

Feeding alligators anywhere within the Sanibel City limits is not only illegal (violators of the law are subject to a fine of up to $500, or up to 60 days in jail, or both), but can be extremely dangerous. Alligators can run 45 m.p.h., so if you're close enough to feed an alligator, he's close enough to feed on you. An alligator fed for fun loses his natural fear of humans and becomes a potential threat to children and pets.

FISHING

While no license is required for saltwater fishing, fishing in freshwater ponds or the Sanibel River requires a Florida fishing license - available at Bailey's General Store on Periwinkle Way. The fee is $3.75.

MINIMUM LEGAL LENGTHS:

Blue Fish	10 inches
Flounder	11 inches
Grouper	12 inches
Mackerel	12 inches
Mullet	12 inches
Pompano	10 inches
Red Fish	12 inches
Snook	18 inches
Trout	12 inches

SHELLING

The City of Sanibel Resolution limiting the taking of live shells to 2 live shells per person per species is one to be scrupulously obeyed. As a matter of fact, in order to preserve Sanibel's beautiful shelling beaches, most collectors refuse to take any live shells whatsoever.

SPEED LIMITS

There are varying speed limits (20-30 m.p.h.) as one comes across the causeway, and there is a very good reason for them...to preserve the bridge supports from strain and stress. This speed limit is strictly enforced with the use of radar on a 24-hour basis by both the Sanibel Police Department and the Lee County Sheriff's Department. Driving or parking a motor vehicle or moped on the bike path is strictly prohibited. Violators will be ticketed.

BICYCLE RULES

If you're not used to a lot of bicycle traffic, watch out for it on Sanibel. The extensive network of bike paths on the Island is clearly marked along the edge of the road. Observe caution when driving near the bike path. A State law and City Ordinance combine to PROHIBIT PARKING OR DRIVING ON THE BIKE PATH. MOPEDS ARE NOT PERMITTED ON THE BIKE PATHS.

Planning on spending some time on a bike to enjoy the Island sun and sights? Make sure your vehicle is equipped with a bike flag, horn, good brakes and a light for night riding. Under Florida law, bicycle riders have the same rights and responsibilities as motor vehicle drivers. Drive Safely!

DOGGY DO'S & DON'TS

If you're visiting Sanibel with the family Fido in tow, all the better. All family members can enjoy Southwest Florida sun and surf. The Chamber of Commerce can tell you what accommodations are available for families with pets. Remember: wherever you are, clean up after your pet! The friendly reminder... "Leave nothing on the beach but footprints"...applies to dogs, too. There's no leash law on Sanibel, but of course an excitable or unruly animal is better off when controlled with a leash.

Coming Attractions

Photography exhibit

The Photographers' Gallery on Sanibel will host an exhibit of the varied work of nine graduate students from the Rochester Institute of Technology through July, with an opening set for Sunday, July 6.

While using the photographic image as the main element in their work, several of the students have brought other media into play in their projects. Using paints, watercolors and washes they have transformed images into personal explorations.

Three of the students have used haloid, a forerunner to modern xerography, as their process. Haloid work is accomplished with a rather cumbersome metal plate camera. The image plate is sensitized with a selenium coating. The speed of the plate is roughly equivalent to an ASA rating of one, which makes for long exposures in the

One student utilizes black and white images, photo cut-outs and hand colored images into a collage entitled "Seven reasons why vegetables should not drive cars." Another applies paint to a color print collage, placing photographs atop one another to create a third dimension.

One of a kind books and photo stories in accordion sequence are meant to be handled by the viewer. One book invites the viewer to add his own drawings.

All the students are working toward their Master of Fine Arts degrees in photography at the School of Photographic Arts and Sciences, Rochester Institute of Technology, Rochester, New York.

The public is invited to attend the opening from 5-7 p.m., Sunday, July 6, at the Photographers' Gallery, 1554 Periwinkle Way on Sanibel.

Rotary

The Sanibel-Captiva Rotary Club has planned a social hour and dinner party for members and wives for tomorrow, July 2. The social hour starts at 6 p.m. and will be held at Dick Creter's home. From there the dinner party will assemble at The Timbers Restaurant on Rabbit and San-Cap Roads for dinner at 8 p.m.

Any inquiries should be directed to President John Murray at 472-5177 or Vice-President Mark Webb at 472-4141.

Impressions in Black and White

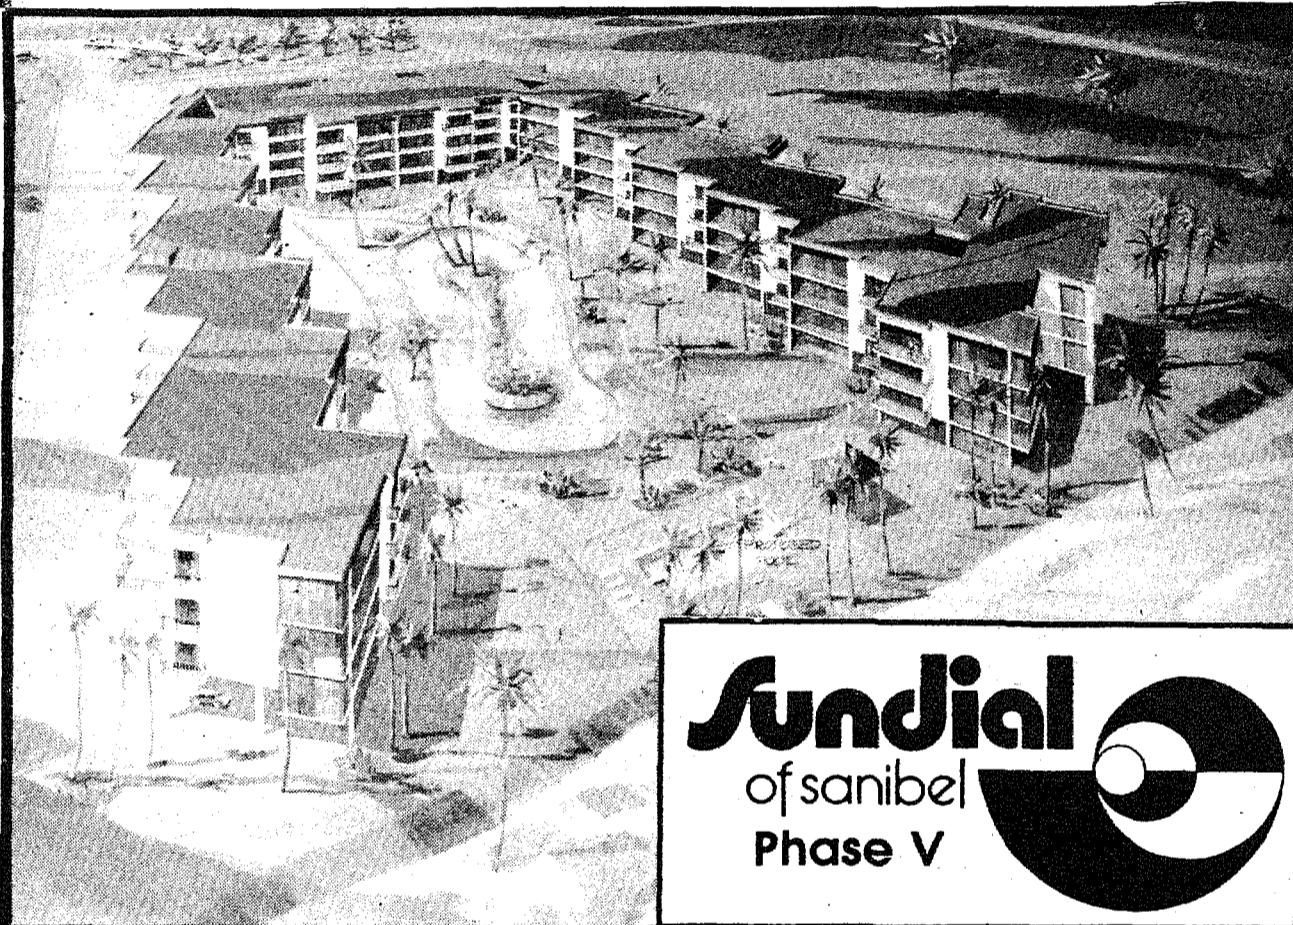

The Lee County Alliance of the Arts cordially invites you to attend a reception for artist Philecia and her unique mixed media show Impressions in Black and White at the Lee County Arts Center, 5111 McGregor Boulevard on Sunday, July 6, from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m.

Philecia earned her B.F.A. at the well known Pratt Institute in New York. Her Masters Degree was awarded by C.W. Post College of New York. She has won many awards such as the prestigious Salmagundi Scholarship Award for Graphics in New York. Her works have hung in the Hecksher Museum in Huntington, New York and are in private collections as well as public institutions.

Philecia's unique mixed media show "Impressions in Black and White" will be open for viewing at the Lee County Arts Center, 5111 McGregor Boulevard, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., through July 29. The public is invited. Admission is free.
